UMass will be making a major change in their lineup by inserting sophomore Karen Gottesman in as setter in place of the injured Patty Grant. Grant has come down with mononucleosis and will be out for at least a week, and will also miss this weekend's UMass Classic.

"We hope to play well," said coach Elaine Sortino. "It's nice to have these two matches to regroup the offense and get used to Karen (Gottesman) running the show."

Ace spiker Patti Philbin will be playing hurt with a case of tendonitis. Sortino is hoping to use second year player Julie McMurtie, but she also is suffering from tendonitis.

"Patti looked okay in practice today but she is going to have to play with the pain," Sortino said.

Tonight's doubleheader will be the best chance for UM to get their communications, which is so important in volleyball, down pat for the UM Classic. But in facing BC, who will be looking for revenge of last year's two losses to the Minutewomen, and MIT, UMass faces a formidable task.

The match will start at 6:30 p.m. with UMass facing BC and will follow with the UM-MIT match. BC and MIT will play after the two UMass matches. All the matches will be the best two out of three.

JV stickers win 1-0

By JENNIFER KUPPER
Collegian Correspondent

The UMass junior varsity field hockey team opened their season yesterday afternoon by defeating Mount Holyoke College 1-0 at the Upper NOPE Field.

"I'm very pleased with them, they had a lot of good passing combinations," said first year coach Donna Partin. Partin was a little upset, however, that her team had to play on such long grass.

UMass' offense dominated the game, and earned a total of ten corners to MHC's one, with twelve shots on goal opposed to MHC's lone shot. The offense was led by wing Patti Masory.

Masory, along with Bunny Forbes and Deb DeJesus, led a series of passes up toward MHC's goal. Mimsey MacCormick also aided in many fast break plays with Masory.

The single UMass goal came from Bunny Forbes off a penalty stroke at 11:59 of the first half. UMass was awarded the flick when a MHC defendent purposely kicked the ball out of play within the shooting circle. Forbes' shot was low to the right and went directly through the legs of goalie Diane Gora.

UMass' defense was able to keep MHC out of shooting distance for most of the game. Kim Wright, Michelle Dolan and Mary Scott coupled up with links Deb DeJesus, and Tammy Martin enabling play to return back upfield, never quite allowing goalkeepers Anita Arnum (first half) and Karen Thresher (second half) the opportunity to make a save.

The JV will see action again Saturday, October 2nd, when they host Springfield College at 3:00 on the upper NOPE field.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 18 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, September 30, 1982

Tillson Farm contaminated by coal

Collegian photo by Kevin Farbetti

Located behind the Tillson Farm power plant, the coal pile supplying the University of Massachusetts' energy is a threatening source of contamination to nearby water supplies.

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

A $20,000 preliminary engineering report commissioned last year by the University of Massachusetts and released this week confirmed that drainage from the on-campus pile at Tillson Farm is contaminating nearby groundwater and Taylor Brook.

The report follows a number of independent studies which have been undertaken in recent years to determine why the water quality in Taylor Brook has deteriorated to the point where, according to local farmers, their farm animals have refused to drink from it and portions have become devoid of plant and aquatic life.

Taylor Brook, which supplies irrigation water to several area farms, is located near the University's Tillson Farm coal pile, the storage site for the entire campus' heating fuel.

"All studies to date, including this one, are strictly being done by the University to appease local concerns raised by area farmers, the Conservation Committee, and the Board of Health," according to the Tighe and Bond study, and "to our knowledge, as of the writing of this report, there is no 'cited violation' or 'order' issued by any state or federal agency for the existing coal pile operation."

"Cost estimates for treating the groundwater pollution problem ranged from tens of thousands of dollars for minor surface drainage improvements around the coal site to over $2 million for complete encapsulation of the coal pile surface," Acting Vice-Chancellor for Administration and Finance Jack DeNyse said in reviewing the three basic options recommended in the report by consulting engineers Tighe and Bond of Easthampton.

The three alternatives recommended are(the complete covering and underside lining of the coal pile, including groundwater treatment and final disposal through the Amherst sewerage system; pretreatment of both the coal pile and its drainage, treatment of groundwater, and final disposal through the Amherst sewerage system; and removal of the coal pile to another location, followed by groundwater treatment. According to the report, the cost of each option, excluding annual operating costs, is estimated at $2,433,000, $634,000 and $245,000, respectively.

One option explored and then rejected in the report was the controlled adjustment of the brook's pH level (the litmus test scale used to describe the acidity-alkalinity of a solution) through the addition of an alkaline buffer, such as lime. Lime is present naturally in the ground, but now commonly needs to be added to many lakes, especially in New England, in an effort to combat acid precipitation, which occurs when coal burning pollutants enter the atmosphere and mix with clouds.

The report concluded that although alkaline buffering would allow some plant life to reappear, the acidification and accompanying effects due solely to the coal pile would be inseparable from the similar pollution already contributed by the acid precipitation. Since the University does not own the brook, such constant maintenace was found nonviable.

While the University already has a drainage improvement plan which it intends to implement in the near future as soon as budget appropriations can be obtained," DeNyse said Tighe and Bond recommended the University not make any firm commitments for a permanent solution until requesting and receiving of their report from the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

Student violence seen to be decreasing

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

While it is still very early in the year, indications point to a decrease in campus violence and a very good year for University of Massachusetts Department of Public Safety.

"I think we've had a good opening" said Gerald T. O'Neil, director of Public Safety. "The officers did a good job as well as the security students who came back early to help. I think it was a good joint effort."

"We have not recorded as many assaults, but we have had a slight increase in disturbance calls," O'Neil said.

"People not associated with the University seem to be the ones causing a great deal of the problems for us. They come in and try to have a good time at the expense of the students," O'Neil said.

When asked if the new stricter laws concerning drunken driving are having an effect at the University, O'Neil said there is no question they are helping.

"We're not getting the carnage on the streets we used to. The new laws and stricter enforcement by the UMass and Amherst Police is definitely helping to reduce it," he said.

"There also has been a drop in the number of false fire alarms, so we're hoping students are realizing what dangers there are in pulling them," O'Neil added.

O'Neil said "the housing security students are doing an outstanding job. They're establishing a safe environment for students to study and pursue their interests."

Carol Radzik, housing security director, agrees the year is off to a good start.

"So far I'm pleased with how the semester is going. I think all the students who work for this office are absolutely terrific," she said.

"People not associated with the University seem to be the ones causing a great deal of the problems for us. They come in and try to have a good time at the expense of the students," said UMass Director of Public Safety Gerald T. O'Neil.

The Department of Public Safety employs 507 students, 44 percent of which are female, and 9 percent of which are minority.

Radzik said "one of the biggest changes this year is that we now train every one of the students with police officers, so the students are more equipped to do their job."

Radzik added that students have been alert in spotting tresspassers and potential troublemakers.

"In one incident, a suspicious looking person who was reported by a student had not only a stolen car, but the car was filled with stolen stereo equipment, wallets, jewelry and other valuables," Radzik said.

"We've been called the eyes and ears of the police department and I think that's really true," Radzik added.

A recent survey conducted by the housing security office revealed that 83.3 percent of the students asked said they were "satisfied or very satisfied" with dorm security.

The housing security office has also produced several fliers, all of which are geared to reminding the students to lock doors and take other precautionuary measures against criminals.

One such flier asks students if they are "going out for the evening?" and responds with "so is your stereo."

While the UMass Police have been able to hire new, full time officers, the housing security office did not have a budget increase this year and Radzik said he does not think the office will get a large budget increase next year.

"Unfortunately, I don't see too big a budget increase for us, so we'll just have to get by with what we're given" Radzik said.

UMass will miss Tony Crayton

By GUS MARTINS
Collegian Staff

Now that Tony Crayton is packed up and gone, the University of Massachusetts' community has lost one of its most dynamic figures.

Crayton, 32, has taken a position with the Greater Boston Legal Services leaving his former post of director of the Office of Third World Affairs at UMass.

For the last three years, Crayton has done some of the work that many people would prefer to say they did, when actually most just sat back and hoped for the best results. His charisma, finesse and energy were just three of the attributes that made him right for the position. But his concern for the student body and for the oppressed people of the world gave him a special quality.

An example of this was while in his office one day, a young man sought support from him and asked if he would back him. Crayton replied, "I'll back anyone who's doing anything positive." That kind of answer was typical of what one could expect if they were faced with a situation they didn't quite know how to handle and went to Crayton for help.

"Tony Crayton's loss will be a big one, he knew the job inside out. He'd been around long enough to be able to spot contradictions in policies from year to year," said Student Government Association President Jim Murphy, who worked closely with Crayton.

To get an idea of how much he will be missed, one need only have been in his office they day that he was interviewed for this story. While a big sign on his door read "do not disturb," at least five interruptions took place in a span of only 30 minutes. Though he was somewhat irked, Crayton answered every one of the knocks.

Chester Davis, Professor of Afro-American Studies at the university, made various comments about Crayton, but the thing that impressed him most about Crayton was how he was able to organize others.

"Tony was a catalyst for student organizations in getting Black students involved in political activism," Davis said. "His work within the Third World community as a whole was most significant. he knew the university system here well, everybody fromthe Chancellor on down. I think he's going to be missed. However there are others to pick up the slack, but he will be missed."

Another quality that made Crayton valuable to the community is his understanding of historical issues and how the implications of them still affect Third World people who live in the United States. He said many of the movement in this country have been created by Third World people.

"We created every type of movement for so called people's rights, every type of civil rights issues that

Continued on page 4-1

After several years of active participation in the University community, Director of the Office of Third World Affairs Tony Crayton will be taking on a new position with the Greater Boston Legal Services.

World and national news

AP Laserphoto

After forcing nearly 3,000 residents to evacuate their homes in Livingston, LA. Tuesday, derailed tank cars carrying hazardous chemicals were examined yesterday by an official with Illinois Central Gulf. Because the chemicals will react if sprayed with water, officials plan to allow the smoldering cars to burn out over the next 4-5 days.

Engineer teach-in proposed

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of MIT professors is proposing a close-knit partnership of "high tech" businesses and engineering schools so that working engineers can keep up with new developments and U.S. businesses can regain their lead over Japanese firms.

The recommendations were unveiled yesterday a few days prior to a weekend of planned celebrations in Cambridge, Mass., marking the 100th anniversary of electrical engineering education, which began at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The group's proposal aims at bringing continuing engineering education into the work place itself.

A 60-page paper entitled "Lifelong Cooperative Education," by MIT engineering professors James D. Bruce, William M. Siebert, Louis D. Smullin and Robert M. Fano, said that specialists in electrical and computer engineering can no longer afford to let their education end with engineering school.

The field has changed so rapidly in the last decade that by the time a typical engineering student has graduated, his knowledge is often already out of date, the report said.

"I graduated engineering school in 1936. At that time I knew a much larger fraction of what's known about electrical engineering than kids could possibly know with the rapid advances today," Smullin told reporters.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., is the scheduled keynote speaker at the centennial celebration at MIT on Saturday.

A key proposal by the MIT group urged that engineering schools help high technology firms establish on-the-job education programs for engineers featuring university made video programs and company employed tutors. For about half a day each work week, practicing engineers would report to class and learn what's needed to stay on top of developments in the field.

Stanford University pioneered such "tutored video instruction" for practicing engineers at Hewlett-Packard Co.

Likewise, the idea of companies offering continuing education for practicing engineers is not entirely new, said Fano.

U.S. sends more marines, tanks, artillery to Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 800 U.S. Marines who landed in Beirut yesterday likely will be joined by another 400 leathernecks with tanks and artillery, possibly as early as Thursday, according to Pentagon officials. President Reagan said the Americans may stay in Lebanon even after Israeli and Syrian troops leave.

The Pentagon officials said preparations were being made for additional forces and equipment to be sent ashore, but they stressed that the final decision had to be made by the Marines' commander, Col. James M. Mead.

They said, however, that the expanded duties of the Marines made the additional deployment likely.

Reagan notified Congress yesterday that the first contingent of Marines had returned to Beirut. His formal notification, required under the War Powers Act, said the troops "will not engage in combat," but may "exercise the right of self-defense and will be equipped accordingly."

The president told Congress that the Marines would be in Lebanon "only for a limited period of time." But he later told reporters on a political trip that he expects the Syrians and Israelis to leave "sooner than Lebanon will be ready for us to" remove the Marines.

The State Department, however, appeared to retreat from Reagan's pledge that the Marines will remain in Lebanon until other foreign forces are withdrawn.

"Within the limited period of time the multinational force will be there, the United States expects the Israelis and Syrians will follow through on their intentions and withdraw from Lebanon," said deputy spokesman Alan Romberg. "The very presence of the multinational force should encourage early agreement on these withdrawals."

It was the second time that Marines were sent to the Lebanese capital. The leathernecks, members of the 32nd Marine Amphibious Unit stationed with the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, helped oversee the evacuation of 6,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas in late August and earlier this month.

A Pentagon official, who asked not to be identified, said yesterday that the Marines have a much larger area to patrol this time, making it likely that Mead will call for the armour and artillery reinforcements. During the PLO evacuation, the U.S. troops were confined to the harbor area at the northern edge of the city.

Soviet jetliner crashes

LUXEMBOURG(AP) — A Soviet jetliner carrying 77 people veered off the runway, plunged into a patch of trees and exploded in flames just after touching down at Luxembourg airport last night, killing 53 people and injuring 24, officials said.

Luxembourg police said the survivors, some of them burned severely, were taken to five hospitals in the city and to a burn center in Metz, France, about 37 miles to the south.

The airport officials said the aircraft, an Ilyushin 62 of the Soviet airline Aeroflot, landed at 8:20 p.m. (4:23 EDT) in good weather, and appeared to have made a proper landing until it suddenly turned to the right and skidded about 1,000 yards.

It shot over a small pond and plunged into some woods, knocking down trees for about 100 yards before it came to a halt at the end of a small valley, according to television reports. Several explosions followed and the plane caught fire.

It was the first major air disaster in Luxembourg history. About 40 people, including six crew members, apparently got out of the burning plane on their own and sought refuge in a farmhouse not far from where the plane came to rest, television reports said.

Airport officials said the aircraft carried 66 passengers and 11 crew members. The nationalities of those on board were not known.

Future of Mass. cities bleak under Prop 2½

CAMBRIDGE, Mass — Lawrence Susskind paints a gloomy picture of crumbling cities, declining services and demoralized public workers when he is asked about the future of Massachusetts cities and towns under Proposition 2½.

"We see an enormous difficulty brewing in the older cities and the smaller, poorer communities," says the MIT professor who heads a research group studying the effects of the property tax cutting law.

"There will be some highly visible disasters in terms of public management. You'll get a whole series of things that will seem unrelated. People will yell and scream, but they won't see the connection," he says.

Susskind and his team of researchers from a dozen different universities are among a legion of Proposition 2½ watchers monitoring the effects of the sweeping law that limits property taxes to 2.5 percent of market value and cuts back on excise tax on autos.

An Associated Press survey of the state's 351 cities and towns found municipal budget writers balanced the loss of $340 million in property tax collection by eliminating 18,000 full time jobs statewide.

A similar survey conducted by the AP a few months after state voters passed the law in 1980 recorded predictions of a far worse impact. Municipal officials anticipated layoffs of more than 20,000 in the first year, including more than 9,000 teachers, 1,350 police and 1,440 firefighters.

The latest poll found 360 police positions were cut. There are 550 fewer fire department personnel; teachers and school administrators were reduced by 7,800 in the first year.

The dire predictions of 1981 were blunted when the Legislature voted to increase state aid to the cities and towns by $260 million. Proposition 2½ advocates say this switch from local property taxes to state-collected revenues is what the law was intended to do. They call Proposition 2½ a success.

"It worked out exactly the way we hoped," said Barbara Anderson, the director of Citizens for Limited Taxation the prime mover for Proposition 2½.

Ms. Anderson said her group's goal was to reduce the reliance on property taxes in Massachusetts. She said it succeeded because the tax, once 80 percent above the national average, now is estimated at 20 percent above the average.

Digest

By the Associated Press

AP Laserphoto

Preparing to withdraw from a position they have held since the invasion of West Beirut, a group of Israeli soldiers smile and wave while at Beirut International Airport yesterday.

Arson murderer jailed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The manager of a condemned Holyoke tenement where seven people died in a fire last year was sentenced yesterday to three consecutive life terms for his role in the fire.

Hampden Superior Court Judge Raymond Cross imposed the sentence on Rafael Davila, 42, about four hours after a jury found him guilty of arson and seven counts of second-degree murder. He got 18 to 20 years on the arson charge.

His wife, Margarita, who had sat awaiting the sentence with her head in her hands, held her hand over her mouth and left the courtroom in tears. She was accompanied by their five children, aged 9 to 16.

William Teahan, assistant district attorney, said Davila would be held overnight at the county jail, but would serve his term at Walpole State Prison.

"The effect of three consecutive sentences would be that a man, now 42, would serve a minimum of 45 years. Put mildly, that would be an appropriate term. I am confident at the age of 87 he would not be a threat to society," Teahan said in explaining his recommendation.

Labor backs Dukakis, Sears gains support

BOSTON, Mass. — Former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis collected the endorsement of the state AFL-CIO for his Democratic candidacy for governor yesterday, as former supporters of Gov. Edward J. King courted votes for Republican candidate John Sears.

Meanwhile, Frank Rich, the politically unknown Independent seeking the state's top job, outlined his own philosphy on taxes: "Voter taxpayers of Massachusetts are tired of waiting for party politicans to realize that there is no more money."

The three candidates are hoping to win the governor's seat in the Nov. 2 election.

Dukakis and lieutenant governor candidate John Kerry won the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, commonly known as the AFL-CIO.

The group represents 500,000 Massachusetts workers, and joins a list of labor organizations endorsing the Democrat.

Arthur Osborn, Massachusetts AFL-CIO president, said Dukakis inherited skyrocketing unemployment when he became governor in 1975, but helped to create 246,000 jobs and cut unemployment almost in half by the time he left.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Diane Kadzis
Copy Editor	Richard Nangle
Layout Technician	Susan Bankert
Photo Technician	Drew Ogier
Composition	Laura Shanahan, Becky Robins, Kathie Wells, Jennifer Winslow, Jamie Katz, Lisa Jalbert, Scott Stockwell, Joy McCarthy, Laurie Frank, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver, Adrianne Dufour, Lynn Eisenberg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

SGA grants loan for nuke freeze rally

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

A loan and a grant totalling $1,000 were allocated to the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) for Tuesday's Nuclear Freeze Rally by the Undergraduate Student Senate at last night's meeting.

Costs for the rally, according to the budget given to the Recognized Student Organization (RSO) Office totals $1065: $400 for sound, $120 for an electrician, $345 for security and $200 for a Physical Plant carpenter.

"We weren't aware of the bills. We didn't have to go around to all the groups (sponsoring the rally). We would have done that if SCANN hadn't come to the student Government today," said campus coordinator for Sen. Edward Kennedy, Chris Alberto.

Alberto said the rally at the University of Massachusetts had been in the planning stages for three or four weeks. Cost studies have been in the works for about three weeks, Alberto said.

Sheila Sullivan, Public Policy Chairwoman said when the Kennedy people came to the senate last week for political support there was no knowledge of a lack of funds.

Sponsors on the posters were not approached for funding, said Alberto, because they are "grassroots organizations."

Mientus said the statewide Nuclear Freeze Day is being held with the financial support of Kennedy's Committee only in producing literature. The personalities involved are donating their time, she said.

"It just seems that anything like this the Senator gets involved in, people automatically stick 'Kennedy Campaign' to. It's not that way," she said.

Planning for nuclear Freeze Day began last spring when a spokeswoman for "grassroots organizations," Randall Forsberg, contacted Kennedy, Mientu said.

Student Government Association (SGA) President Jim Murphy said the rally organization went through the University's administration to gain access to the Student Union Ballroom for the event.

The process is usually channeled through the RSO office.

"It was presented definitely as a bipartisan rally," Murphy said when he was contacted by the Kennedy people "a couple of weeks ago."

"In fact, they went out of their way to make that point," he said.

Murphy said the rally itself is receiving support from the senate, and money allocated last night would go directly to production costs.

SCANN to sponsor nuclear freeze rally

By BILL WALL
Collegian Staff

The Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide last night voted unanimously to sponsor the nuclear freeze rally scheduled for October 5 by securing a $500 loan and a $500 grant from the Undergraduate Student Senate.

SCANN was asked to sponsor the rally by Chris Alberto, former campus president and student trustee at the University of Massachusetts at Boston and a current member of the campaign to re-elect Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who is to attend the event.

The rally had been endorsed by 10 area groups including the UMass Peacemakers, the Amherst Disarmament coalition and the Western Massachusetts coalition for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze. But Alberto said these organizations were only mobilizing their own groups and hopefully would spread the word about the rally.

"SCANN was the only group we approached for money to cover the costs of the rally," said Alberto.

The rally will feature speeches by Kennedy, Lauren Bacal, and Randall Forsbers with performances by James Taylor and Peter Yarrow of the "Peter, Paul and Mary" singing group said Gillian Gansler, press secretary for the Kennedy campaign headquarters in Boston.

"Our purpose of this rally is to highlight the importance of this issue in this fall's election. The date was purposely chosen because it is the last day of voter registration and we want students to register," said Alberto.

Sam Medalie, nuclear freeze coordinator for the Kennedy campaign, said "It's not a Ted Kennedy day, it is strictly a nuclear freeze day."

Posters and flyers are circulating the campus which have been paid for by the Kennedy campaign. But campaign members deny that it is a political rally for Kennedy.

"We've invited the entire Massachusetts delegation, Republicans and Democrats," said Gansler. "Edward Boland will speak at the rally."

Phil Harris, field director for the Ray Shamie for Senate campaign, said Shamie would be coming to speak at UMass the same day as the rally.

"We've got people (in Amherst) who want to hear him (Shamie) talk," Harris said. "Ray believes not only in a nuclear freeze, but that there also ought to be disarmament," he said.

Iranian students stage demo protesting Khomeini government

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

One man in military fatigues pointed a toy machine gun at a second man wearing a blindfold. A third bounced to imaginary electric shocks. A fourth stood disconsolate in a cardboard jail.

A curious crowd of about 100 gathered at noon yesterday to watch Iranian students protest against Ayatollah Ruholla Khomeini's regime in front of the Student Union Building. The students were members of Moslem Iranian Student Society, an international organization which is organizing protests around the world.

"We are trying to break the media silence," said a spokesman who identified himself as Hamad Reza. "No one is saying anything about Iran. They haven't covered the internal problems in Iran since the hostages were freed.

"We are here to break the silence and let the people know about what is happening inside Iran today," said an Iranian protester who identified himself as Bijan. "On the average one person is killed every 25 minutes."

Reza said there have been 20,000 political assassinations and 50,000 people thrown in jail over the last 14 months.

The society has been taking their cause to cities and college campuses around the country.

"No one can really feel safe unless they agree with Khomeini's mind and his dark age policies," Reza said.

"Whole families have been killed because they do not support Khomeini's policies. It takes only one member of the family to oppose him," he said.

"If I go back to Iran I'll be killed," Reza said.

"Khomieni wants to take us back to the Pre-middle age when women couldn't even come out of their houses," he said.

"People are scared. There is no guarantee your door won't be knocked down and you will be executed on the spot," said a UMass student from Iran, who asked that her name not be published.

"(The government) can not stay in power for long," she said. "The economy and the social conditions will lead to it's fall. It is just a matter of people getting ready."

The protestors passed out leaflets and newspapers outlining the atrocities that have taken place in Iran while many students observed the demonstration from a distance.

"I just came over because I read it in the newspaper," said July Hanning, 20, an inquiry program major. "I really don't know what the situation is in Iran. I think its a good statement though — what they are trying to get across."

"It's a little theatrical. It's hard to take it seriously," said Andre Narbonne, 22, an engineering major.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

In protest of the Khomeini regime, three demonstrators silently stood outside the Student Union Building yesterday.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Jeffrey Campbell, a history graduate student, directs his gaze among the wide variety of books at yesterday's sidewalk sale outside the Jeffrey Amherst Bookshop.

Work by Northeast may wake students up, landscape architect says

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

Students planning on sleeping late tomorrow morning might be in for an unpleasant shock, especially those living in Knowlton Dorm in Northeast.

As part of the construction work on North Pleasant Street, a "Road Planner" will be used to remove some of the pavement along the street from the Fine Arts Center to the Graduate Research Center. For safety reasons, the work will be started at 5 a.m. Friday morning.

"It could be slightly noisy," said Bill Lambert, Landscape Architect for the University of Massachusetts. "It won't be that much noisier than the construction equipment now being used, probably less noise than a jackhammer."

"The forecast is for nice, warm weather, which should mean he type of pea-soup fog we get this time of year," Lambert said. "The sound doesn't travel as much in the fog. But if it's a clear morning, you might be albe to hear it all over campus."

The work is being done early in the morning for safety reasons, Lambert said.

"There is a certain amount of danger when this type of equipment is used in proximity to pedestrians," Lambert said.

To avoid any possibility of injuring students, who constantly cross North Pleasant Street during the day, Lambert said the work will start at 5 a.m. and will hopefully be completed by 8 a.m.

"It would have been done last summer, but the contracts were held up, and work didn't really start until Sept. 1," he said.

The road planer will start at the Fine Arts Cener and move toward the Graduate Research Center so that students in Northeast won't be disturbed too early in the morning, Lambert said.

The work being done will remove some of the pavement on the west side of North Pleasant Street so that a curb can be installed. Lambert said all work along North Pleasant Street will probably be done within two weeks.

The construction is being done as part of an improvement project recommended by the Safety Committee of the University Health Council. In addition to elimination of the meter parking lot in front of Arnold House and installation of a sidewalk and curb along North Pleasant Street, the project will move the access drive to the University Health Services parking lot.

Lambert said the entire improvement project should be completed by Thanksgiving.

Plan says new changes require cooperation

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Correspondent

Any academic changes made at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst should be the result of dialogue between department heads, deans, the provost and the chancellor, according to the revised Long Range Plan for Academic Affairs.

The plan, written by Acting Chancellor Loren Baritz, says while individual departments are the best sources for specific plans, the Chancellor, in consultation with the provost and the Faculty Senate, is in the best position to articulate goals for the entire campus.

"It is the firm intention of this long-range plan to begin, not conclude, campus-wide planning," the plan says. What is recommended here is a procedure for planning that will move us toward a series of future long-range plans whose specificity may continually increase."

The plan calls on the Chancellor to conduct an informal inquiry into the state of the plan every other year. This inquiry would include reports from "campus units relevant to issues then current."

Every fourth year, the Chancellor would present a formal revision of the plan to the campus, after consulting with the Faculty Senate.

The plan was written after the original Long-Range Plan, drafted last year by the Chancellor's Working Group on Long-Range Planning was rejected by the Faculty Senate last May. At that time, Baritz agreed to write a new plan over the summer.

The plan is a rough draft and may be amended at a later time.

The Undergraduate Student Senate, the Graduate Student Senate and the Faculty Senate and the Professional Association at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst (PAUMA) will all be drafting responses to the plan.

Individual instruction

The plan calls for a "Center for Individualized Instruction" to be created to accomodate those students who work best when encouraged to do things differently. The center would include the Bachelor Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) program, the Honor's Program, the Internship Program and the University Without Walls program.

The document also recommends strengthening the Honor's Program, increasing the BDIC program to a four year curriculum, and creating an individual tutorial program within the center.

The plan recommends the elimination of the Southwest and Orchard Hill Residential colleges. It says the inquiry program should be studied to determine its effectiveness.

While the plan says departments are meeting the advising needs of their majors, it says the faculty should renew its commitment to advising freshmen and sophmores. Systemization of peer counseling is also recommended in the document.

To make the campus more international, the plan calls for increasing the number of foreign students on campus, expanding opportunities for students to study abroad, and continuing reciprocal faculty exchanges.

The document advises the Provost or Faculty Senate supervise a study of the state of language instruction at the University, including Comparative Literature, English and English as a Second Language, in addition to foreign languages.

Effectiveness of current instruction, the desirability of the foreign language requirement, the place of language in general education and the quality of graduate programs are suggested areas to be studied.

Five College cooperation

The plan advises continuing support to the Five College consortium with a concentration on computer studies and non-western studies. The plan recommends the Five College system begin a new Master of Social Work Degree program to meet area needs.

According to the document, the history of science and technology is "the most important missing field of study in the intellectual life of the campus."

Although the appointment of at least four highly qualified scholars would be necessary to begin such a program, the plan says this program would serve as a "bridge between science and engineering on one side and the social sciences and humanities on the other."

The plan encourages faculty to teach courses in departments other than their own. It calls for the administration to work out guidelines and safeguards to increase flexibility in teaching outside the home department.

Due to estimates of increasing numbers of part-time graduate students, the document suggests that more outreach programs be developed to accomodate these students. The plan also says high priority must be given to the recruitment and retention of minority and women graduate students.

Campus research

The document calls for the creation of a campus-based research foundation which would provide administrative support for campus-based research as well as advice on policy issues relevant to research.

The foundation, which would be organized as a non-profit corporation, separate from the three campus University of Massachusetts Foundation, will be run by an executive director and a board of directors. Research faculty will have a specific number of seats on the board.

To insure that the University retains a high quality facutly, the plan says that it is important to make careful and rigorous personnel decisions.

"If a truly distinguished appointment, one that would substantially add to our instructional or research strength and that would add to our luster, becomes possible in almost any department, we should make it if we can," it says.

Currently, according to the document, instructional and research equipment, the computing center and physical facilties are not meeting the University's collective needs. There is a deferred maintenance need of $32 million and an instruction equipment need of $8.5 million. The campus must attempt to get special state appropriations to meet these needs as soon as possible.

"Although some difficult decisions must be confronted in any serious plan," the document says, "the question cannot be whether we want a plan, but whether we can afford not to have one."

Collegian photo by Brad Hammer

The Mountain Farms Mall looms behind the glaring lights that brighten the intersection of Route 9 and South Maple Street in Hadley.

549-1311 OR 253-9051

THE BELLS ARE RINGING

"5 YEARS"

OCT. 1967 — OCT. 1982

THE BELL FAMILY INVITES YOU TO COME CELEBRATE 15 YEARS OF BEING THE OLDEST PIZZA ESTABLISHMENT IN AMHERST.

FOR THE ENTIRE MONTH OF OCT.:

$1 OFF ANY LARGE PIZZA

$.50 OFF ANY SMALL PIZZA

(NO COUPONS NECESSARY)

CONSISTENCY • QUALITY • QUANTITY

BELLS PIZZA • 65 UNIVERSITY DRIVE, AMHERST, MA

"The First Time"

Exercise Enthusiast: It was in the Fall of 1981, September 22 at 6:00 to be exact -
Good Friend: You remember the exact moment?!
Exercise Enthusiast: Of course, one never forgets their "First Time"
Good Friend: It must have been quite an experience, you must tell me about it -
Exercise Enthusiast: I was introduced to the "Beyond Fitness" Class by a friend of mine, while we were comparing jogging shoes, this energetic individual asked for my pulse rate.
Good Friend: Go on.
Exercise Enthusiast: She looked me straight in the eye and said "HEART RATE, COUNT, STOP" - I'm sorry, I don't speak aerobic-neeze, Neither do I, she said - I was so embarassed -
Good Friend: I can see why -
Exercise Enthusiast: Anyway she led me onto the gym floor and we did a few knee lifts -jog forward -shoot up, clap and smile - then I understood -
Good Friend: How was it?
Exercise Enthusiast: At first I didn't catch on. Then I realized the program is built around routines - some easy at first, and then building each time - as my fitness level increased - so did the activity - Good Friend: Was she amused&
Exercise Enthusiast: Very, she said "you'll acquire the knack of it, most people do - and she was right -my second time was much better - and now I do aerobic training as much as I can -
Good Friend: Did you ever see the young woman again?
Exercise Enthusiast: No, but I plan to meet with her again when classes begin in October - I've become physically active over the summer and have enjoyed it many weays since the first time, now I can teach her a thing or two -
If this is your "First Time" make it memorable - join on-going classes at Shutesbury Elementary School - classes being offered in Amherst-Program outlay - focuses on:

- Overall conditioning
  - Cardio-vascular
    - Flexibility
      - Weight control
        - Muscle toning

Classes and registration begin October 4th. For more information - call Erma Rocasah at 549-6111 - (after 5:00 p.m.)

HEALTH • PERSONAL APPEARANCE • SELF ESTEEM
FITNESS
GUIDANCE
COMMITMENT DECISION
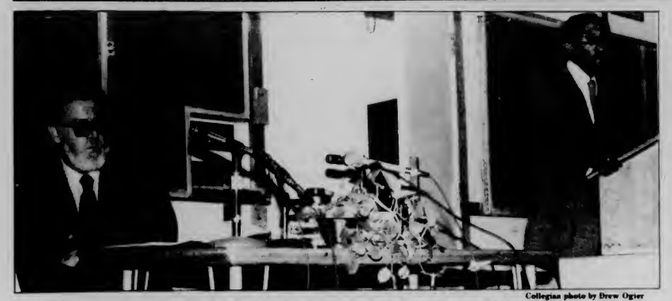
BEYOND FITNESS!
TOGETHER, LET'S BUILD FOR THE FUTURE BY MAKING TODAY'S DIFFICULTIES TOMORROW'S ROUTINE STEPS

FALL THEME "GOOD FRIENDS"



Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Addressing a Mahar crowd last night on "Blacks, Women, Jews and the Concept of Man", Julius Lester, acting director of the Institute for Advanced Study in Humanities (right) speaks as Acting Chancellor Loren Baritz (left) listens with the audience.

SAFA Washington lobby cancelled, to be held Thanksgiving weekend

By KEN LUNDBERG
Collegian Staff

This fall's lobbying effort in the nation's capital, originally scheduled for this weekend by Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) has been called off because Congress will not be in session next week.

SAFA, a group of about 40 UMass students, who lobby for increases in educational funding, postponed the trip until late November when legislators will vote on financial aid.

As director of SAFA and coordinator of community relations at the University, Gerald J. Grady made the decision to cancel next week's lobbying plans after President Reagan announced that legislators working on appropriations committees had not "done all their work."

Because only committee staff members and not actual congressional delegates would be working on budget plans next week as legislators wait to reconvene, Grady said lobbying the lame-duck session in November would have a greater impact.

Yesterday the House Appropriations Subcommittee took up the entire student aid spending package, approving $2.4 billion be budgeted for Pell Grants. The subcommittee recommended some $1 billion more than the president's request of $1.4 billion.

Grady emphasized it is important to meet with legislators who have supported SAFA in the past. He said, "lobbying an issue is continual - there are a lot of people to thank and show student appreciation."

While on their rescheduled trip SAFA will meet with Massachusetts delegates, who have usually given positive backing to the student aid cause, to gain "reaffirmation of their support."

Grady said although it is possible to do the "wrong thing at the wrong time" SAFA must work as politicians and take "advantage of opportunities when they come."

"If we find we can appeal to the officials having opposed financial aid proposals - we will."

Last March SAFA, along with thousands of other college and university students from across the country rallied in the streets of the capital city. Lobbying efforts this time will be strictly carried out by a knowledgeable, smaller group, Grady said.

Grady expects some problems will occur in getting a quota of 40 students to participate in the lobbying trip considering the unpredictable return of students from the Thanksgiving holiday break.

Professor decries 16th century views

By ROBIN MANDEL
Collegian Staff

"Sexuality in the sixteenth century meant to people what the nuclear age means to people in the twentieth century," said Julius Lester, a professor of the departments of the Afro-American Studies and Judaic Studies in introducing a debate on "Blacks, Jews, Women and the Concept of Man," held last night in Mahar Auditorium.

The Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities presented a discussion headed by Lester and colleague, Loren Baritz, acting Chancellor of the University of Massahusetts.

Lester opened the discussion stating that to understand the present, one has to understand the past. He explained what it means to be human by citing evidence within world history.

"In the Middle Ages, man was referred to as the golden chain of being," said Lester. "The Rennaissance era was the enlightening age, with exquisite pieces of art. Yet how is it that Africans were enslaved, Jews were persecuted, and women were burned at the stake for witchcraft during this 'golden age' of mankind?

"The Church was a sole investigator in the oppression of women during the Rennaissance. They claimed that women had nothing to do with sexual intercourse but instead, the male partner planted a little person inside the woman's organs. It was St. Thomas who taught people to honor thy father and not thy mother. How is an age so richly endowed with art so deficient in compassion for the human being?" Lester asked.

"The general opinion of women during the Rennaissance was that they might have been beautiful but were contaminating to look upon and dangerous to touch. Jews were considered to be more miserable than any other human being and viperous men of dark minds. Blacks were depicted as malignant and sinister to the human nature," he said. Baritz counteracted this concept of humanization by saying man was not to blame for his past behavior but that God was the one who impressed this concept into man's mind. "For after all, man was created in God's image," he said.

In addition to this, nationalism is to blame for this misperception of humanism. The context of American belief in moral superiority led to their belief in invincibility, and further led to the concept of racialism," Baritz said.

He said that to understand what is meant by humanity, everyone has to realize that the world often behaves like they are in the grasp of the devil, and the devil is deeply rooted in the brain, causing their beliefs and ideals to be distorted.

O'Keefe Ale

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

O'Keefe Ale

The Only Place To Be On Thursday Night In Amherst

O'KEEFE NIGHT

12 oz Bottles .95

plus

Two For One Bar Liquor Drinks

Three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25

BRING A FRIEND

BREAKFAST SPECIAL

• 2 Eggs • 2 Pancakes • 2 Strips Bacon • 2 Sausage C

Reg. Low Price $2.25

SERVED ALL DAY - ANYTIME

Coupon good thru Oct. 15, 1982.

Please present coupon when ordering.

2 for $2.95

Sun.-Thurs. 7 am - 3 am Fri. & Sat. Open 24 Hours

James H. McManus eating place

CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-6889

SENIOR CITIZEN DISCOUNTS 2-5 pm. . .20% ALL OTHER TIMES 10% Does Not Apply To Specials

NATURAL FIBER BEDDING AND NIGHTSHIRTS

Next to you, it's the best

LOTUS-DUVET DOWN COMFORTER

- Goose down, cotton cover, European style Duvet
- Top-of-the-line quality at affordable prices beginning at $230

FLANNEL SHEETS

- High quality, tightly woven, soft napped
- Incredibly soft, comfortable and warm
- Two styles—the Deluxe, finest quality flannel from England, prices starting at $20.75, and the Basic, American made white flannel starting at $20.00

NIGHTSHIRT

- Manufactured in Northampton, Massachusetts
- Soft flannel nightshirt extending below the knee
- Available in red or blue and white stripe

good things COLLECTIVE INC

52 Main St Northampton • 586-5403 • A WORKER'S COOPERATIVE

MUA show to examine referenda

WMUA (91.1 FM) will air a live open forum on two controversial referenda questions on the Nov. 2 ballot: The move to repeal the bottle bill and an attempt to place a moratorium on nuclear weapons development. The show will air tonight at 6 p.m.

Women's needs addressed by student advocacy group

By LEE ANN BARTOW
Collegian Correspondent

Violence against women, sexism in language and the media, and anti-semitism, racism and classicism within the women's movement will be the focus of the Women's Issues Team this semester at the University of Massachusetts.

The Women's Issues Team of the Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA) consists of several specialized committees. These committees include Students Against Sexual Harrassment (SASH), the Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedoms (CERRF) and the Women's Leadership Project.

"Students Against Sexual Harassment formed two years ago because the University was without the procedure mandated by Title 9 of Massachusetts' Law. We've been working with the Ombuds and the Chancellor's Office and are waiting for the Chancellor's final approal," said Jane Zbyszynski, an advocate for the Women's Issues Team.

"It's a good procedure that will cover students, faculty and staff," said Zbyszynski. "It's important on this campus because of the number of women here who have so much at stake - their educations, their careers. The sexual harassment grievance procedure can help to protect women here."

The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedoms (CERRF) focuses on legislation such as the Equal Rights Amendment and the Family Protection Act, said Melanie Fish, a senior legal studies major who works with the team.

One event CERRF sponsored was to provide vans to a demonstration at the National Right to Life Conference in Cherry Hill, New Jersey this past summer.

The Women's Leadership Project began last semester and will continue to form this semester in an effort to build leadership skills among women and establish a network through workshops and a resource center, said Fish.

The Women's Issues Team works closely with the Senate Women's Caucus; the Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall; the Women's Studies Department; ISIS, a reproductive rights group; and the National Reproductive Rights Network (R2N2).

SGA Elections

Elections
for the undergraduate senators will be held on Monday, Oct. 4
The polling times are from 8 am -7 pm
The polling places are as follows:
Northeast/Sylvan - Worcester D.C.
Central/Orchard Hill - Franklin D.C.
Cance, JA., J.Q.A., Mackimmie, Moore, Patterson, Pierpont, Washington - Berkshire D.C.
Coolidge, Crampton, Emerson, James, Prince Kennedy, Melville, Thoreau - Hampshire D.C.
Commuter/Greek - in front of Hatch

For further information, call 545-0341, or come up to Rm 420 of the Student Union Building.

YOUR BSN IS WORTH AN OFFICER'S COMMISSION IN THE ARMY.

Your BSN means you're a professional. In the Army, it also means you're an officer. You start as a full-fledged member of our medical team. Write: Army Nurse Opportunities, P.O. Box 7713, Burbank, CA 91510.

ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

ADD TEN YEARS TO YOUR THINKING.

The environment at MITRE is years ahead of what others consider the state-of-the-art.

As General Systems Engineer for C³I — Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence — for the U.S. Air Force's Electronic Systems Division, it is our challenge to look beyond tomorrow to the world of 5 or 10 years from now. To analyze and engineer one-of-a-kind systems that will be more than current well into the 1990s.

The importance of our work is why we provide an environment you can do your best in. You'll work with some of the most accomplished experts in their fields. You will be challenged by long- and short-term projects in computer systems, systems software, systems architecture, radar systems, and satellite and terrestrial transmission. Engineers you'll be working with can advance your career a decade in technologies including fiber-optics, computer security, sensor technology and voice recognition.

Your excellence is nurtured in every way possible at MITRE. Facilities, compensation and benefits to attract and keep the finest people. Full tuition advancement plus an ongoing in-house lecture series from the unique MITRE institute to promote your continued education. Plus exceptional project mobility and dual career pathing to get you where you want to be, doing what you do best.

If you would like 10 more years' wisdom — without the wrinkles — come to MITRE. We've got the environment for it.

University of Massachusetts Interviews Thursday, October 14, 1982

MITRE will be conducting campus interviews Thursday, October 14, 1982. Contact your Placement Office to arrange an interview if you are a BS, MS, or Ph.D. candidate in:

Electrical Engineering
Computer Engineering
Computer Science
Mathematics
Physics

Contact your placement office to see if MITRE will be visiting your campus, or send your resume to Phillip Hicks at The MITRE Corporation, Middlesex Turnpike, Bedford, MA 01730.

U.S. Citizenship required. MITRE is an equal opportunity employer actively seeking applications under its affirmative action program.

THE ENVIRONMENT TO DO WHAT YOU DO BEST.

MITRE

"2 for 1" Happy Hour
3-6 MON.-FRI.

Luncheon: Monday-Friday/11:30 am-2 pm
Dinner: Tuesday-Thursday/5 pm-8 pm
Friday & Saturday/5 pm-9 pm

For Reservations,
Please Call 549-6000, ext. 639

Lounge Hours:
Monday-Friday/11:30 am-1 am
Saturday & Sunday/5 pm-1 am

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor · Campus Center · UMass

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Jobs question on ballot

By TIM MACPHEE
Collegian Correspondent

Channeling money from the military into human needs, and putting an end to foreign intervention are two goals of "Jobs with Peace," the sixth referendum question on the November ballot.

The proposal, which will appear throughout 41 different cities and towns in Massachusetts, is being sponsored locally by Parents for Peace.

"We're a local group formed over a year ago. We are lots of women and men with small kids feeling too helpless about the way the world is going," said member Ann Woodhall, Hampshire College biology professor.

According to Parents for Peace, their plea goes further than the nuclear freeze question, already approved by the Massachusetts Legislature.

"We support the nuclear freeze and go one step beyond it. "Besides stopping the arms race, 'Jobs with Peace' also wants to keep tax money at home and to end foreign intervention in places like Central America," Woodhall said.

"'Jobs with Peace' calls on the federal government to spend less tax dollars on nuclear weapons and more on human needs," said Susan Theberge, media coordinator of Parents for Peace.

One of the goals of the organization is to make people aware that the economy can survive without depending on jobs from the military.

According to a chart compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, for every $1 billion spent on education over 184,000 jobs are created.

Spending the same amount for health care and construction, 139,000 and 100,000 jobs are created, respectively.

However, according to the chart, the same amount spent on the military yields 72,000 jobs.

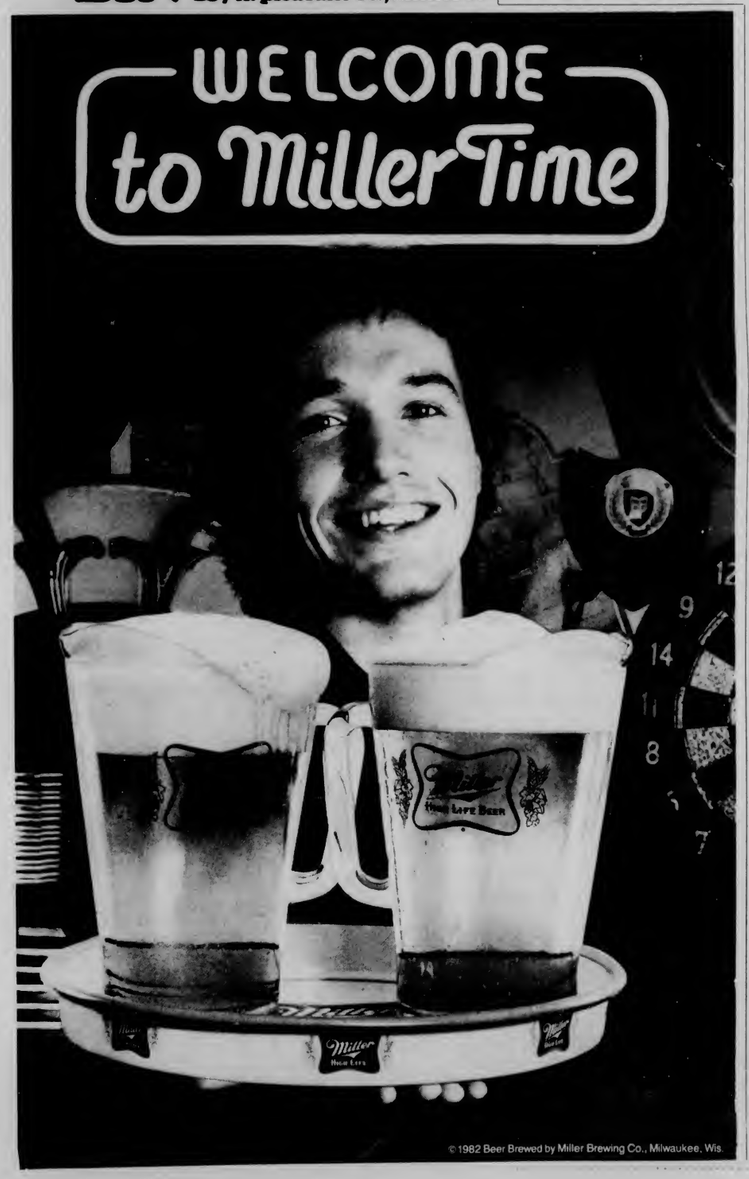
Thus, by channeling funds from the military, there exists a potential for more jobs in other industries.

"Spending money on the military creates less jobs in the long run," said Woodhall.

To get the referendum on the ballot, the group collected hundreds of signatures from voters in area towns. The forms were then filed with the office of the Massachusetts Secretary of State.

Theberge said the referendum "has a really good chance of passing," noting that it passed in Boston last November by 72 percent.

Parents for Peace will hold a meeting October 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Vernon St. School in Northampton, and one the next evening, same time at 30 Harlow Dr. in Amherst.



©1982 Beer Brewed by Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Bottle bill efforts begin

By ANNE MCCRORY
Collegian Correspondent

The strategy of the University of Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (UMASSPIRG) to combat the bottling industry's campaign against the Bottle Bill will combine leafletting with various forms of fundraising.

MASSPIRG will launch its campaign this week with six weeks remaining until the November 2 election, when the Bottle Bill referendum question will appear on the ballot.

"Opponents of the Bottle Bill bought the defeat (in 1976)," said Jonathan Souweine, director of the Bottle Bill campaign at that time.

Opponents used widespread media advertising to gain their victory, he added.

This year, however, anti-Bottle Bill literature has been limited to the distribution of leaflets in some supermarkets and direct mail advertising, said Lisa DeCarolis, UMASSPIRG chairperson. Public annoyance at the amount of money spent on advertising in the 1976 campaign has caused the bottling industry's change in strategy, she said.

The direct mail technique is "possibly more lucrative (than a media campaign)," DeCarolis said. One recipient of the anti-Bottle Bill literature received four letters in less than two weeks, she said.

UMASSPIRG's first project to combat this literature will be the leafletting of area supermarkets this weekend, DeCarolis said. Future ventures will include door to door leafletting and possibly a table at the Ingleside Mall, she said.

MASSPIRG also plans to "leaflet all polls statewide on election day," said Daniel Malarkey, a worker on the campaign to Save the Bottle Bill in Springfield.

UMASSPIRG workers leafletted two thirds of area polls on primary day, September 7. They also passed out over 2,000 leaflets to traffic at the Eastern States Exposition (Big E) in West Springfield last weekend, said Merrill Gay, a UMASSPIRG intern from Clark University.

Fundraising events are also included in MASSPIRG's strategy. The money raised will pay for the leaflets and hopefully a spot on radio or television, said Elise Jacques, a UMASSPIRG staff member.

One of the fundraisers will be a raffle, to be held October 4, which will offer a first prize of a week for two in the Carribean. Tickets are $1 each and are on sale at the UMASSPIRG table in the Campus Center.

La Raclette

WINE DOWN

AFTER CLASS
2:30-5:00
OR AFTER THE SHOW
9:00-11:00

CHEESE and WINE SAMPLER

$2.50

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY 3 OF THE FOLLOWING WINES.

FRENCH

VAL DE LOIRE
ROSE D'ANJOU
GRAND MAITRE

BORDEAUX
ENTRE DEUX MERS
BARRIERE
CHATEAU DE CLYDES

BOURGOGNE
LA VIELLE FERME
ROUGE OR BLANC

GERMAN

KANZEMER—SONNENBERG
RIESLING KABINETT 1977

CALIFORNIA VARIETALS

WENTE BROTHERS
1980 GREY RIESLING

WENTE BROTHERS
1980 SAUVIGNON BLANC

BERINGER VINEYARDS
1980 CHARDONNAY

COMMONWEALTH WINES
PLYMOUTH, MASS

CRANBERRY APPLE ROSE
SEYVAL BLANC
DE CHAUNAC

AND ANY 3 SELECTIONS FROM OUR INTERNATIONAL CHEESE BOARD.

WINES

On The Boltwood Walk
103 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
253-5927

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

At his centrally located shishkebab stand on North Pleasant Street, UMass alumnus Myron Becker (left) sells his tasty treats to a satisfied Gabirel Capy (right).

Dastardly Dans

THURSDAY
All the Draft Beer You Can Drink
$3. Cover 9 - Close
35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 253-9285

NOW OPEN
NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER

Steel Belted Radial
$35.00 size 155-13
fet $1.59

Full Service Tire Store
• computer wheel balancing
• front end alignment • brakes & shocks
78 Old Sunderland Rd., N. Amherst
549-4704
across from Watrobas Store

LEVI
Straight Leg
Denim
JEANS
$18.95
Reg $26.00
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant
Mon - Sat 10 -6
Fri til 9 pm

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. SEPT. 30
FREE
HOT ACOUSTICS
Gary Bertz & Alyce's Violin

FRI. OCT. 1
BEAU BOLERO
in a tribute to STEELY DAN
$3.00 cover

SAT. OCT. 2
THIRD EYE
MARTIAN HIGHWAY
local rock/$2.00 cover

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Letters

When unions act as repressively as management, no one wins

To the Editor:

In Richard Nangle's article on Gnomon Copy he quotes Mary Erin Crook as refering to the newly hired people as "real apathetic". What is she basing this conclusion on? Are all scabs apathetic? Well, being married to a new person at Gnomon allows me to knowledgeably state that he, for one, is not apathetic. If Mary-Erin ever talked to him she would find that he is a layed off machinist with a growing family to support. Perhaps Mary-Erin believes that supporting a family is not enough of an ethical reason to work at Gnomon Copy.

Speaking of ethics, I support the union's right to strike, (I also support the pro football players right to strike). It is the union members' choice to strike, as well as my husband's right and choice to work. I recognize that there are many valid points being made by all involved in the strike. However, if the strikers believe they are on the "moral side" then they should re-evaluate how they are stating their case. My husband and I have been subjected to verbal violence and other forms of harassment (including being chased after and screamed at while in the copy store). Strangely enough, the rudest picketers have never worked at Gnomon.

These people are rude, close-minded and self-righteous. They are not seeking support and cooperation through explanation and open discussion of the issues. Instead, they are fighting for power through intimidation, saying things like, "You're not going to have any friends because we are calling them up, so you'd better quit."

Traditionally the "us and them", power through intimidation approach is credited to management. The Gnomon picketers, however, are doing a great job of passing on the negative approach. The picketers have not intimidated my husband and I, they have made us defensive and determined.

P.S. My husband didn't get a job at McDonald's because the working conditions and wages are better at Gnomon.

Cynthia Hadge
Pelham

A struggle for decent working conditions here and abroad

To the Editor:

For nearly two years the Northampton Committee on Central America has worked in opposition to United States intervention in Central America. Putting an end to U.S. intervention in that region is crucial if we are to promote the aspirations of peasants and working people in Central America. In however small a way, we believe our work and the work of similar groups across the country has given some hope to working people of El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, where unions and labor activity are considered subversive and are mercilessly repressed

We need look no further than Amherst to see that the struggle for decent standards of living and working conditions among American workers is parallel to that of working people in Central America. The workers at Gnomon Copy of United Electrical Workers, Local 264 on N. Pleasant St. have regretfully been forced to strike and has called for a boycott because of management's refusal to bargain in good faith. Wages have been frozen for 20 months. Air/cleaning and circulation are inadequate in the store. All insurance benefits have been unilaterally dropped.

The Northampton Committee, formerly a regular customer of Gnomon Copy, has joined the boycott against Gnomon and will bring our copying to other stores until management sits down and negotiates with the union with the intention of correcting the deplorable working conditions. The Gnomon employees urge everyone to do the same. The union, also, asks that people join them on their picket line and help pwith financial contributions for the workers who will be without paychecks until the strike is settled.

The assault on working people around the world and here in the valley has become a disturbing pattern. It's a pattern that all members of the community have an interest and responsibility to respond to.

Carl Koechlin
Northampton

Comic strip unfair stereotype says Amherst College student

To the Editor:

Sometimes comic strips aren't very funny. That's O.K. Sometimes comic strips are just raving bull, though. I refer to Mark Rollins' "UMass Zone" of September 23, in which Rollins portrays an Amherst College student as a stuck-up, obnoxious, horny, elitist, idiot. You don't have to go to Amherst College to find obnoxious, stuck-up idiots, you can find them just about anywhere you choose to look. In fact, sometimes you can find them without even looking. But that's not the point.

Many students at Amherst, like students at all of the five colleges, are here to take advantage of the valley's diverse academic, social and cultural activities. As the only widely distributed daily paper in this area, the Collegian should attempt to help all students find out what's happening. I find it disturbing that the Collegian should choose to perpetuate stupid stereotypes and the pointless hostility which often accompanies said stereotypes.

Ted Stein
Amherst

Why the unfair oversight of Greeks in living area article?

To the Editor:

In the Tuesday, September 28 issue, you ran a story entitled, "Students express their views on UM residential areas." The only fault of this article is that you failed to mention the sixth residential area on campus, The Greek Area.

The Greek Area is the viable alternative to living in the dorms because it is so personal. When a student is done with a long day of classes he/she is faced with the impersonal concrete walls of the dorm. When a brother or sister has had a hard day they return to a warm, friendly, homelike atmosphere of 40 or 50 life long friends. The social life in the Greek Area can be a plus over the dorms. Joining the Greek Area increases the number of people you meet. There are weekly exchanges with other houses and dorms which increases your circle of friends to the entire campus.

Greeks also tend to have a higher GPA than the dorms which is always important, and as far as being close to campus, most of the houses are centrally located.

With all of these positive living aspects, how can the Greek Area be overlooked?

Marck Bice
Greek Area Intern

Is the cause being ignored?

Last week, a group of individuals who represent the Organization of Arab Students (OAS), rallied on the Student Union steps on two separate occasions. Both rallies were called to "mourn the deaths of Palestinians killed by christian phalangists." The OAS chanted slogans such as, "Long Live the PLO," and "Zionism is Racism." While this group has the right to congregate, it is important that each of us watches and listens very carefully to what is being said, and being implied.

Howard Glantz

The Israeli government is now under heavy political strain. That there was Israeli negligence involved in the massacres causes all Jews shame and embarassment. It is important, however, that the world remember the Israeli soldiers did not kill those people. They were killed by christian phalangists. When the PLO came to Lebanon it had established its own state within the state, as well as greatly intensifying the civil war between the Muslims and Christians. The massacres at Sabra and Chatilla are very similar to massacres which have been occurring since the PLO came to Lebanon over seven years ago. They have created an atmosphere of anarchy within the city of Beirut as different factions fight for control.

No government has had control of Lebanon since the PLO has been present. Because of the way the PLO fights, many civilians have died in Israel's efforts to remove the PLO who used schoolhouses for ammunition dumps and hospitals for hideouts. The PLO considers civilian casualty and death a way of life! I find it extremely difficult to accept the fact that the Pope, a figure so highly respected by the world, actually met the leader of the PLO, Yasser Arafat. Has the Pope not seen how the Christians have murdered and been murdered in the PLO's dwelling? Doesn't the Pope realize that the PLO has been instrumental in the continuation of the civil war in Lebanon, and seems to have no regard for humanity in general?

The PLO has a thirty-three article pamphlet which they call their covenant. The focal point of this covenant is the destruction of Israel. Knowing this fact, it is not surprising that the PLO has been bombing Israeli settlements since the PLO's establishment in 1964. In 1972 the PLO murdered eleven Israeli athletes competing in the Munich Olympics. The PLO are renown for placing bombs in Israeli buses, assassinating diplomats, and most recently the PLO was involved in the bombing of French restaurants and homes.

As do many people, I hope a responsible investigation will bring forward the actual events of these massacres. This past weekend the beauty of Israel's democracy shone, as an estimated 400,000 Israelis rallied in Tel-Aviv to demand an impartial investigation into the massacres. Did the Soviet people protest their government's annexation of Afganistan? If any did, they never were able to connect with our vast media.

Looking back again on this past week's events, I am not surprised by the actions of the OAS. I wonder, however, how interested they are in the murders committed in the camps. I believe they are driven by a chance to discredit Israel. They show their anti-semitism by not responding to the massacres committed by the group they support, the PLO. I urge the OAS to continue their rallies which will further show the UMass community how hypocritical the OAS is. But I challenge them to remove their masks so that they will be revealed.

Howard Glantz is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johannah Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings, Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Graphics Manager; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editors; Amy Jenness, Associate Women's Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affair's Editor

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES

YES! ...We're Fully Staffed and Ready to Serve You...

the hatch

So Much to Enjoy under One Roof

SALAD BY THE OUNCE
Salad Bar Monday-Friday 11 am-2 pm

Deli Garden
Sandwiches & Deli Meats
Monday-Friday
11 am-2 pm

Deli Carryout
Monday-Friday
3 pm-6 pm
Saturday
10 am-4 pm

the MINUTE LANE
A Quick Breakfast Lunch or Snack
Monday-Friday
8 am-3:30 pm

La Cuchina
Serving a Variety of Pasta Dishes, Pizza, and Italian Specialties.
Featuring the PASTA BAR: the Pasta of Your Choice Topped with Our Delightful Sauces
Monday-Friday 11 am-2 pm
Monday-Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

THE VINEYARD
A Large and Surprising Selection of Wine & Beer, in Bottles or on Tap
Monday-Friday 11 am-11 pm
Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

Joey D's TONIGHT
Ladies Night
60¢ Drinks for ladies
9-11:30 pm
THE AWESOME ALTERNATIVE

NEW POLITICS
MASS FAIR SHARE
a statewide citizen's action organization
Has full and part time positions available to do fundraising, outreach, and to develop a citizen's lobby that can shape and influence the political and economic decisions in this state.
Hrs are 3-10 pm; pay $175-225/week
call 586-8713
will train, college credits available
9 am - 1 pm Mon-Fri

A greeting card makes someone happy...and shows you've remembered.
Select from our gallery of beautiful expressions.

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
AMERICAN GREETINGS ...for that special person
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Annie captures the true spirit of Broadway.

Photo by Martha Swope

Miss Hannigan is about to paddle Little Orphan Annie in the first run of the Broadway musical Annie.

ANNIE
Tuesday, September 28
Fine Arts Center

By JOSEPH CAVANAUGH
Collegian Correspondent

The cast and crew of Annie performed to a well deserved standing ovation Tuesday night at the Fine Arts Center. The American musical, keenly directed by Bryan Young, captivated the audience as evidenced by their continual laughter and applause throughout the performance. Most important in a melodrama of this type is the characterization used to convey a rather simple but sensitive plot. And in these characterizations the cast proved outstanding.

Firstly, Kathleen Siske as Annie had a fine, sharp voice and coordinated dancing abilities. She portrayed the charm, innocence, and wit that her character called for. Her facial expressions, highly emotional, were executed with precision. Kathleen sent chills through the spine of the audience during her dramatic moments, as well as making the audience laugh.

Oliver Warbucks, played by Gary Holcombe, depicted the traditional billionaire stereotype who, through the course of the action, is revealled as a very warm and sensitive individual. Mr. Holcombe defined his character's transitions precisely, finding the humor in the role and displaying a prominent voice as well.

However, the character who stole the show was Miss Hannigan, played by Ruth Williamson. Miss Williamson displayed excellent voice control and range, and made a positive art of shambling her somewhat lanky figure across the stage. The two most powerful qualities of the comic character, voice and physicalization, were accomplished with expertise by Miss Williamson and the laughter she evoked from the audience was justly earned. Her dancing ability was well illustrated in the musical number "Easy Street," where also Rooster (William McClary) and Lily (Ann Casey) defined some of their talent.

Also of particular notice were William Metzo as President Roosevelt and Kimi Parks as Tessie. Mr. Metzo, looking very much like F.D.R., captured the era of the early nineteen thirties and displayed the image of America's most renowned president exceptionally. Nobody can forget Tessie's stamping of Ms. Hannigan's feet along wit her resounding exclamations of, "Oh my goodness!" Yet, these are only a few of the actors who collectively, performed and conveyed the plot and feeling of Annie with great precision and professionalism.

Also congratulations are due to Michael J. Hotopp and Paul DePass for the excellent job that they did with the scenery and lighting. The scene changes, which were frequent, were done with remarkable speed and agility, the action very often continuing as the scene changes were made.

In conjunction with fine singing the choreography, directed by Peter Gennaro, was also done well, giving life and vigor to the characters. The dance numbers were well timed and staged very effectively.

There were very few imperfections in the performance. A few times the orchestra, directed by Janice Aubrey, muffled a few song notes, especially some of Grace Farrell's (Lynne Wintersteller) numbers. Also, some of the blocking was insufficiently directed towards the stage right side, significantly noticeable in "The White House" scene. However, both of these points are tiny and did not infringe upon the overall quality of the performance. Overall, Annie proved excellent in expressing to the audience the spirited power of America's own theater form: the Broadway Musical.

Dire Straits play it safe

LOVE OVER GOLD (Warner Bros.)
Dire Straits

By PETER BENTTINEN
Collegian Correspondent

It's unlikely that Love Over Gold is going to produce a decent hit single – none of the cuts are short enough to make the FM playlists – but one song, "Telegraph Road," certainly deserves to make it. It's long, 14 minutes, but all of that time is put to good use. It builds up slowly, then explodes, ending with a 3-minute guitar break that sounds like an unplanned jam. Mark Knophler plays with his usual finesse, fingerpicking all of the lead parts. Par usual, he does all of the singing and produces the album as well.

"Private Instruments" is the only other work on that side. It's a slower number about the trials and tribulations of being a private eye in the big city.

"Industrial Disease" begins side two. It has an uptempo blues beat combined with the Farfisa organ sound of the 1950's underneath the Straits' own sound.

"Love Over Gold" uses vibes for a fuller sound, especially near the end of the song when combined with Mark's guitar. The song is written well and the notes of Mark's guiltar fall delicately in place throughout.

"It Never Rains" is the last song on the album and has a heavier sound, like an early morning fog. It also has an interesting chorus: "It never rains around here/It just comes pouring down."

The group still has the same sound as on Sultans of Swing, but they've added keyboards for a fuller sound. The founding members are still there with one exception – Mark's brother.

This is overall a pretty good record. Dire Straits, it seems, is becoming tighter with every new release.

Photo courtesy of Warner Bros.

Dire Straits

live wire

by Phil Planto

Photo by Millie Hooker

Mississippi Bluesman John Lee Hooker will perform at 8 p.m., October 16, in the Student Union Ballroom.

Thursday 9/30: Q.T. Hush (contents: AC/DC clonage) at Rusty Nail in Hadley...Hot Acoustics at Blue Wall...First Rate at The Wok Lounge in Hadley...Scientific Americans at Hangar One in Hadley (Warning this show contains video tapage!)...David Cantieni at the Iron Horse in Northampton...

Friday 10/1: Bouganvilla at the Iron Horse (contents: women's jazz)...The Stompers and Attic at Hangar One...Mitch Chakour at The Rusty Nail...Beau Bolero at the Bluewall (contents: Steely Dan clonage)...

Saturday 10/2: Loose Caboose at the Rusty Nail (contents: frisbees)...Martian Highway at the Blue Wall...Orrin Starr and Gary Mehalic at the Iron Horse in Northampton...First Rate at The Wok Lounge in Hadley (contents: Micki Rhyne and the New Horn Section)...

Sunday 10/3: "Indian Summer Music Festival" at Hangar One driving range in Hadley (contents: James Cotton and his Blues Band, and assorted local artists)...Chick Corea and Paco De Lucia at

The Fine Arts Center (Note: tickets on sale now)..."Living Video Experiment III" at Hangar One in Hadley (contents: Fear of Strangers and Zodio Doze)...Coming: John Lee Hooker in the Student Union Ballroom on October 16.

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser $8.99/case
Falstaff ..... $6.99 now $6.49/case
Becks (light or dark) ..... was $15.95 now $14.99/case
$3.99/6-pk
Labatt's (beer or ale) $10.49/case
$2.99/6pk
Gin or Vodka 80° $5.45/liter

Many more in store SPECIALS

What is this thing called love, anyway?
According to cartoonist Skip Morrow (author of the phenomenally popular The Official I Hate Cats Book and The Second Official I Hate Cats Book) it's a sentiment that's grown cute, coy, and completely out of hand.
Here, then, is Skip's latest collection of friendishly funny drawings—a treeless crusade against schmaltz that sheds a whole new light on the flip side of love.

THE OFFICIAL I HATE LOVE BOOK
by Skip Morrow
Holt, Rinehart & Winston

Another brainchild from your favorite birdbrains.

SHOE

THE PERFESSER

The wit and wisdom of Shoe, the sage, cigar-chomping editor-in-chief of the Treetops Tattler Tribune, and his ace pundit and crack reporter, Cosmo "the Perfesser" Fishhawk, have been collected in this anthology of 270 strips. Carried in over 700 newspapers, Pulitzer Prize-winner Jeff MacNelly has created the most poignant animal characters since Walt Kelly's Pogo.
With a supporting cast that includes the daredevil courier, Loon, the Perfesser's precocious nephew, Skyler, and Roz, the proprietress of the local greasy spoon, the wisecracks come fast and thick in this fine-feathered community.

ON WITH THE SHOE
By Jeff MacNelly
$5.95
Holt, Rinehart & Winston

CHICK COREA
TOUCHSTONE with Jazz Masters
PACO DE LUCIA

with Tom Brechtlein Don Alias
SUNDAY OCT. 3, 1982
ON SALE SEPT 20
Carlos Benavent Steve Kujala
STUDENTS $7.50 & 8.50
GEN. PUBLIC $8.50 & 9.50
Jimmy Cliff Pete Tosh
FINE ARTS CENTER • U. MASS.
Union Records • FAC • For the Record • Ticketron
No Cans, Bottles or Cameras Please

99¢ SALE

With this coupon you'll receive any foot-long sandwich for 99¢ when you purchase another of comparable value at the usual listed price. (Offer good through 10/31/82.)
Redeem At
SUBWAY
America's Famous Foot Long Sandwich

Hampshire Mall Hadley
90 King St. Northampton
214 Exchange St. Chicopee

NOW INTERVIEWING ON CAMPUS

For exceptional College Grads (and those who are soon to be)
CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES:
- NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
- BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
- AVIATION • LAW
- MEDICINE • INTELLIGENCE
- CIVIL ENGINEERING
- SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS

Sign up for an interview in the Career Placement Office.

Interviews will be held in the U of Mass.
Student Placement from 9:30 am to 4 pm
October 6 and 7.

Black Affairs

Photo by Jay Obe
Wanda, class of '86 enjoys the autumn air as she poses for this Collegian photo.

Black guard cleared

BOSTON (AP) — A black security guard in the Boston public school system was cleared Monday of charges he attacked one of four white teen-agers he accused of smashing his car windshield, and a case against the four was sent to a grand jury.

Charles Prater, 27, was found innocent in Boston Municipal Court of an assault and battery charge. Prater had been accused of striking Edward Matz, 18, in the mouth during an altercation near the Public Garden on Aug. 8.

Matz, one of four white youths accused of attacking Prater, his wife and infant son and also smashing the Prater auto, brought the charges after he was arrested.

Judge Harry Elam acquitted Prater but said he found sufficient evidence to send the case against the four youths to the Suffolk County Grand Jury. They are charged with assault and battery, willful and malicious destruction of property, and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Prater's attorney, David Cooper, said he would ask Suffolk County District Attorney Newman Flanagan to add a civil rights charge against the accused.

"It's been an awful strain," Prater said. "I'm really relieved."

Prater said he considered himself a victim, then suddenly found himself a defendent. "You have to hire an attorney, you have to take time off from work, you have to lose pay to defend yourself," he said.

The four young men were arrested after the incident Aug. 8 in the Beacon Hill section of Boston.

Make your choice America

By JAMES R. WILLIAMS
Collegian Correspondent

The problems that confront the Black race in America have been ones with no practical solution, as of yet. Many scholars have attempted to understand the situation in hopes of ending the nightmare of "racism" in America today. I, myself, have often pondered the situation. Frequently, I read other opinions on this subject in hopes of discovering the ultimate solution.

The other day, while skimming through a book on Afro-American history, I came across an article by Stokely Carmichael. The title of his essay was "Toward Black Liberation." The article was fascinating and very intriguing. His guidelines towards the liberation of the Black race in America have aided me in my quest for a solution.

Carmichael begins his essay by pointing out the fact that the Black race "has been excluded from participation in the power decisions that shaped the society, and has traditionally been dependent upon, and subservient to the White community." He further states that it is not individual but rather the White community as a whole which has attempted to keep Black people subservient and "in their place."

For those of you who do not understand the difference between individual and institutional racism, Carmichael offers a vivid example. Individual racism, he explains, is when terrorists bomb a Black Church and kill five children. This is usually deplored by most segments of society. Institutionalized racism, on the other hand, is when "five-hundred Negro babies die each year because of a lack of proper food, shelter and medical facilities, and thousands more are destroyed and maimed physically, emotionally and intellectually because of conditions of poverty and deprivation in the ghetto..."

It is the White race that created the laws in this country and enforce them, sometimes through utter violence. According to Carmichael, we have to endure these conditions only because we are "Black and powerless." He makes an interesting parallel with South Africa when he states: "I do not suppose that any point the men who control the power and resources of this country ever sat down and designed these Black enclaves, and formally articulated the terms of their colonial and dependent status, as was done, for example, by the Apartheid government of South Africa. Yet one can not distinguish between one ghetto and another. As one moves from city to city it is as though some malignant racist planning unit had done precisely this — designed each one from the same master blueprint," said Carmichael.

Businesses, local offices and the law-making processes are what we have to control in our own communities if we are to alleviate racist practices and abolish ghetto life. D.C., Newark, and Detroit all have Black majorities as do many other major cities across the U.S... They have to be controlled by the majority if the majority wants to prosper. Isn't majority rule what democracy is all about anyway? As Mr. Carmichael explains: "These areas can become either concentration camps with a bitter and volatile population whose only power is the power to destroy, or become organized and powerful communities able to make constructive contributions to the total society. Without the power to control their lives and their communities, without effective political institutions through which to relate to the total society, these communities will exist in a constant state of insurrection. This is a choice the country will have to make."

LUTHER

By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

★ Crayton

Continued from page 1

guarantees people's rights in this country were created by primarily black, Hispanic, Asian, and other Third World people," Crayton said. "Third World organizations have always been, ever since this country began, a critical part of what gave this country what little things it can claim as moral integrity."

Crayton's knowledge of history is expansive. People with leadership qualities invariable possess this. At the same time, he also speaks with an intense conviction of race pride.

"As far as I'm concerned, the Third World people have created everything that you talk about when you talk about civilizations. No disparaging other peoples accomplishments but, it is positively a historical fact that the majority of times that you can count for human civilizations, Third World People made the great civilizations on this planet," Crayton said.

"Ever since Third World organizations have existed on this campus, people have begun to see that there's a lot more to the world than just European civilization and white majority values," he said. "Through this, many white students have learned a significant amount of things. We have taught a lot of them, when you talk about their various organizations, whether it be the Radical Student Union or any of the so called 'progressive' white organizations on this campus, they modeled them after us."

Although he takes little personal credit, many have felt the Third World's renewed interests in student government, budget meetings and politics in general are related to his efforts at organizing them.

"I tried to emphasize that I didn't really have that much faith in having demonstrations and things of that nature. What I wanted to see was an efficient Third World community so that when many problems came up we didn't wait for them to fester like sores, we dealt with them immediately, efficiently," Crayton said.

"I don't think this office could function without the brainpower of the majority of the people within the Third World community here. That's why, with my job anyway, as far as I was always concerned, was not to lead anything, but was to create a situation whereby leadership could emerge," Crayton said.

In spite of all his criticisms, Crayton remains optimistic about the future of this university.

"We have every reason to believe that we can make this institution be one of the best in the country. A model Institution," he said. "The man who is now chancellor — Dr. Joseph Duffy — you couldn't ask for a better one. Loren Baritz has also been an incredibly good person to work with. They're both very direct and accessible, and most importantly we have really great people at this institution that are capable of insuring, if we're together, that this institution can respond to what we need. We are in a position to determine, with the resources we have, and with the people we have in critical positions, that if we don't buy into the divide andconquer we can make this university not only responsible, but responsive."

Now that Crayton has gone back to what many people call the "real world," he returns confidently as a result of what he's learned here.

"Any encounter with Third World people out here has been an enhancement of every bit of my life. Each encounter with Third World people out here has been a tremendous learning experience. I can now go back into the city and feel very confident and comfortable that it's a direct result of knowing a lot of people here," Crayton said.

REACHING FOR A DREAM
When you're reaching for a dream
You must leave some things behind
But always take with you
Those things which have touched you
And remember that without them,
The reality of your dream
Is lost within you.
Deanna I. Mcrae

Always Read Black Affairs

Special Purchase!
Hush Puppies
BRAND SHOES

AMERICA'S #1 WOMEN'S COMFORT SHOES

18.99

Compare at $32.99

Fall into comfort! Hush Puppies famous cushion-step construction in many fine leather and suede styles. Choose dress, casuals, heels or wedges in a beautiful color assortment. Women's sizes in narrow, medium and wide widths. Some styles may be unavailable in all sizes.

COLE·HAAN
stacy adams
FRANCO CONTI
NUNN BUSH

Men's LEATHER DRESS SHOES

34.99 to 59.99

Compare at $45 to $106

Fall into style! Famous name classics in genuine leather. Choose oxfords or step-ins from Cole-Haan, Stacy Adams, Franco Conti or Nunn Bush. Many handsewn styles. Men's sizes. Some styles may be unavailable in all sizes.

Tagway Shoes
Famous brand footwear for Less

Hampshire Mall
The Holyoke Mall at Ingleside

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

---

feast & folly Restaurant
SPECIALIZING IN CHICKEN, FISH, & VEGETARIAN ENTREES: $3.25 - $6.95
DINNER IS SERVED FROM 5-10
LIVE DINNER MUSIC ON THURSDAY & SATURDAY CLOSED TUES.
BYOB
111 PLEASANT ST. NORTHAMPTON—586-8307

Double Feature Only $2.50

CALVIN Theatre
October 1 - 7 only at 7 POINT
at 9 THE ROAD WARRIOR
In the future the roads will become battlefields.
starring Mel (Gallipoli) Gibson
R
NORTHAMPTON 584-2310

Dollar Matinee Sun 2 PM

---

adventura travel
549-1256

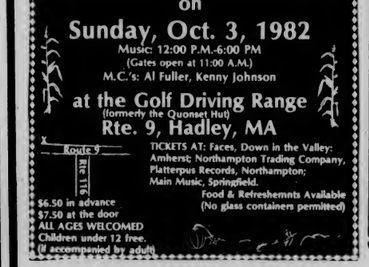
Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

Live - on stage

Annie
The Broadway Musical
September 28-30 All Shows 8:00 p.m.
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m. On Sale September 24th
Elly Ameling
Vienna Choir Boys
Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m. On Sale September 24th
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F 545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

INDIAN SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVAL
OUTDOOR CONCERT
with
The James Cotton Blues Band
Mitch Chakour and Urban Renewal
Bev Rohler and Marion Groves First Rate
John Coster & the Medicine Band
on
Sunday, Oct. 3, 1982
Music 12:00 P.M.-6:00 PM
(Gates open at 11:00 A.M.)
M.C.'s: Al Fuller, Kenny Johnson
at the Golf Driving Range
(formerly the Quonset Hut)
Rte. 9, Hadley, MA



TICKETS AT: Faces, Down in the Valley: Amherst; Northampton Trading Company, Platterpus Records, Northampton; Main Music, Springfield.
Food & Refreshemnts Available (No glass containers permitted)
$6.50 in advance
$7.50 at the door
ALL AGES WELCOMED
Children under 12 free. (if accompanied by adult)

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

POSTERS Largest Selection Ever
Bamboo BLINDS From $5.50!
BEDSPREADS cover walls, furniture, windows from $7.95
Paper Lampshades
Rugs & Mats colorful, durable
CARDS over 1400 designs
Greatly Expanded SKIRTS & BLOUSES lots of comfortable cotton
Brass and Sterling Jewelry earrings, rings, etc.

Clothing Sale!
T-Shirts India Print - 4.50
Solid Color - 3.50 to 5.50
Tank Tops - 3.95 to 5.95
20 - 50% OFF selected Blouses, Skirts

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

The People's Gay Alliance
PRESENTS
A DANCE PARTY
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1
9 pm - 2 am
Campus Center 10th Floor

FREE* FILM
2 Rolls
Bring in one roll of 24 or 36 exp color print film for processing and get 2 rolls of 12 exp. FREE.
Expires Oct. 16.
35 mm only
586-8417
Iris Photo
Thornes Market
150 Main St.
Northampton, MA
With This Ad

It's Coming
LAGNAF 83

STAR TREK LIVES!
Club Meeting
Sept. 30
Time 7-11 pm,
Room 902
Campus Center
Films, Info
for ST & SF fans
All Welcome!

Annie
The Broadway Musical
National Touring Company
September 28 - 30
All Shows 8:00
UMass students ½ price
Make Reservations Now: 545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

---

do you Need Cash?
There IS an alternative, check the Manhan difference! Class Rings, gold & silver in all forms

Manhan Jewellers
3 Pleasant St.
(corner of Main St)
Northampton
9:30-5:30 Tues-Sat
& Thursday evenings closed Mondays

THURSDAY
ROCK NIGHT
with
Al Stoner
2 for 1 all liquor drinks
9 til 11
no cover charge
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Quality Titles from the Active Lists of America's Leading Publishers
Sale
* Located on Special Sale Tables in the Trade Book Dept.
PAPERBACK BOOKS 50% OFF original price
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

---

0 to 530 in seconds.

The F-4 Phantom. It can reach 30,000 feet in 60 seconds. If that sounds like your speed, maybe you can be one of us.

The Marines PLC Air Program guarantees flight school after basic training. And if you qualify, we can put you in the air before college graduation with free civilian flying lessons. Contact your Marine representative, or call collect (203) 244-2168/2169

The Few. The Proud. The Marines.

See Captain Sparks
Campus Center, Oct. 5 - 7, 10 am - 2 pm

Baseball Style Jacket

Special Purchase 19.95

Printed Back

Color - maroon/white

Sizes S-M-L-XL
Limited Quantities Available

Located in the Clothing Department
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

charlie's

Super Happy Hour
Daily 3-6 pm
"2 for 1" Jumbo Drinks
(Everything but Bottled Beer)
FREE MUNCHIES

good food & drink

SUPER NIGHT SPECIALS (8 p.m. until closing)

SUNDAY
Rolling Rock Night
$1.05 any low shelf shot and a 7 oz. Rolling Rock bottle

MONDAY
Molson Night
99¢ Bottle of Molson Golden Ale 75¢ Molson Ale Draft
$4.00 Pitchers

TUESDAY
Pizza and Beer Night
$4.95 Pitcher of Domestic Draft (Pabst or Miller) or Carafe of any wine and a Cheese Pizza (a $7.25 average value) while kitchen is open - add for additional items

THURSDAY
Schnapps and Kamakaze Night
75¢ any shot
Peppermint, Spearmint, or Cinnamon Schnapps
99¢ Kamakazes

FRIDAY
Super Happy Hour 3-6 p.m.

We are open daily. 7 days a week, from 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m. We serve lunch, dinner, and we also have a late night menu, featuring pizza and sandwiches. Check out our daily food and drink specials. Come to our Happy Hour for "2 for 1" Jumbo Drinks and free Munchies every day (3-6 p.m.) Charlie's is a nice place to drink, the place where friends meet. Pool table, video games, dartboard, jukebox, two color T.V.'s. We make our own homemade pizza, even the dough is made in our own kitchen. Come check us out!

Underground Sound Inc.

High Power, Low Dollars:

Cybernet CR-80S

Integrated Stereo Receiver
45 watts/channel, Digital FM
$169.00

TDK SAC-90
$2.69

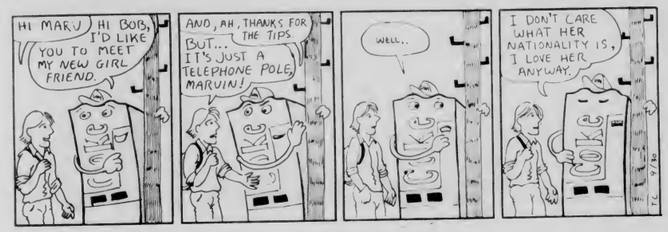
MAXELL UDXL II
$3.29

71 N. Pleasant St.
(across from Fire Station)
253-9507

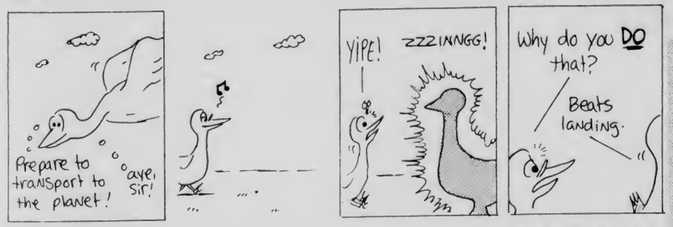
Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa



Gooz by G. Masse



Bloom County by Berke Breathed

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Closing device
5 Traversed
10 Cordage tree
14 American author
15 Toughen
16 Protuberance
17 Flivver
19 Light tan
20 Kind of bullet
21 Easter Parade sight
23 —— and out
25 Seine tributary
26 Surrender, in a way
29 Shrew
33 Similar
34 Secluded place
37 Trap of a sort
38 Partner of pieces
39 Cheated
40 Town in Galilee
41 Old word of greeting
42 Asked a difficult question
43 Kind of payment
44 Alan of "Camelot"
46 Sky parlors
48 —— Mater
50 Periods
51 Motoring nuisance
55 City in NW Syria
59 Distinctive air
60 Sometime result of persecution
62 Show amusement
63 Water raising device
64 Ransom d ——
65 Candidate's desire
66 Council of ——
67 Mill worker

DOWN
1 Author of "Act One"
2 Lab medium
3 —— precedent
4 Small faucets
5 Gazed at 6 Pismire
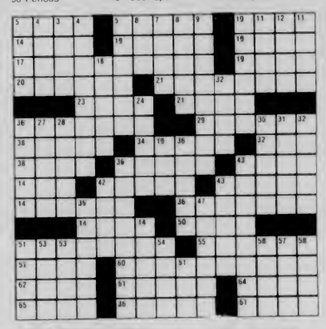
7 Miserable ones
8 Sister of Calliope
9 Took away
10 Cooking pin
11 Move slowly
12 Dickens character
13 Touch upon
18 Mississippi feature
22 Principate on SW coast of Arabia
24 Puzzle of a type
26 Plot
27 Garnish
28 Chemical salt
30 Up and about
31 Civet's cousin
32 Old Japanese coins
35 Unclose, poetically
36 Former football formation
39 Opposite of 30 Down
40 Like a Victorian matron
42 Mink or mole
43 Musical syllables
45 Afloat
47 Biblical peak
49 Jouster's need
51 Fatigues
52 Creel item
53 Scotto specialty
54 Island land
56 Compassion
57 Minute opening
58 Odd person
61 Card game



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

C	H	E	E		E	V	I	L		C	A	R	I
H	I	L	E		L	A	K	E		A	V	E	R
R	O	D	S		A	S	A		L	A	V	A
A	S	P		S	T	A		S	E	A	R	E	D
S	U		T	H	E		T	I	M	E		R	E
E	N	A		I	D	L	E		P	A	C	E	D
R	E	G	I	M	E			A	B	A	T	E	D
		R	O	L	L	S		R	O	D	I	N
R	O	S	I	S		C	A	N	A	D	A
B	E	A	R	S		S	H	O	E		E	R	I	S
A	C	T		A	D	E		A	D		A	R	R	I
N	A	M	E	L	Y		M	E	S		M	I	C	A
T	U	E	S		A	R	M	S		L	E	V	E	R
A	S	A	N		D	O	E	S		R	O	A	S	T
M	E	L	I	E		S	E	R	A		G	L	E	E

WEATHER

Sunny today. Highs in the 70s. Clear tonight. Sunny Friday. Highs in the 80's.

D.C. Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Cheeseburger Fish in Batter/ Tartar Sauce	Roast Turkey/Gravy Dressing, Cranberry Sauce Ham Cheese Florentine
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Oatburgers Fish in Batter/ Tartar Sauce	Vegetable Squares Roast Turkey/Gravy Dressing, Cranberry Sauce

Recycle this Collegian

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Concepto Latino	7-10pm	Women's Media Project
9-noon	Steve Diamond	10-2am	Kari Njiiri — Pan Afrique
12-3pm	Ed Berk	2-6	More Music
3-5:30	DR
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7pm	Focus — Ken Mosakowski

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Thursday

10:30 - 11:30	Just Another Joke in the Wall — Comedy in the Blue Wall
11:30 - 12:30	More Fun from the Wall/The Atlantics
12:30 - 1:30	Jorma Kaukonen — Ex-Airplane guitarist in the SUB
1:30 - 2:00	Rock and Roll video

Sports

Men's tennis shuts out Conn. 9-0

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Correspondent

Do not be fooled by the final score. Even though the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team whitewashed the University of Connecticut 9-0 yesterday on the Boyden Courts, it was definitely one of those not-as-easy-as-it-looks jobs.

On a day the Sun God refused to show its face, the Minutemen shook off the elements and a refuse-to-die Huskie team for the victory. Even thoug UMass lost only two sets in the triumph, the netmen wer ex tended to seven games in six sets.

Neal Mackertich, at number one singles, fought off a stubborn Craig Waddington, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5. Besides dropping the first set, Mackertich survived two match points in the tenth game of the third set before breaking service. At 3-3 in the same game, Waddington gave Mackertish the game and an early Christmas present by double-faulting. Neal graciously accepted and then

"I was lucky," said Mackertich, "He played real well. Everytime I came in he passed me. I started real slow too."

At number two, Nick Julian rebounded to defeat Mark Schultz, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Steve Jordan crushed Ken Paskowitz at number three, 6-4, 6-3. Stewart Goodman did likewise to Dave Cameron, 6-1, 6-2 at number four.

"I took charge right away. He played my backhand, which isn't a smart thing to do. That was the key. I also mixed in the serve and volley game. He didn't have a good backhand, but he did have a good forehand. His mistake was playing my backhand. That is my bread-and-butter shot," said Goodman.

Rich Lindgren and Dave Singer finished off the singles at number five and six, respectively. Lindgren beat Al Lindsay 7-6, 6-2. Singer struggled with Matt Hintz before emerging victorious, 7-5, 6-4.

In the doubles, Mackertich-Duseau got by Warrington-Schultz, 6-0, 7-5, Jordan-Lindgren defeated Paskowitz-Lindsay, 6-1, 7-5. In a match that contained moments of extra-curricular activity, Julian-Dave Salem were victorious over Cameron-Hintz, 6-3, 7-5.

"The key was winning the tiebreakers and the third sets. Last year we lost them all," said Coach Bob Szlosek.

The netmen return to action today with a home match against Westfield State on the Boyden Courts at 2:30 p.m. The Minutemen will take a 2-1 record into the match.

Spikers split tri-meet

By GERRY DESIMAS
Collegian Staff

In baseball, if you hit 'em where there 're not, your probably going to win. This philosophy also holds true in women's volleyball.

Against Boston College, the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team hit the ball where BC wasn't to take a quick 15-4, 15-6 win over the Eagles. However, against the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was UMass that wasn t in the right place at the right time and the Minutewomen lost 11-15 and 9-15.

Everything went UMass' way against the Eagles. UM jumped out to a quick 5-3 lead and proceeded to score the next seven points for a cozy 12-3 lead.

It was teamwork that propelled the Minutewomen over BC. Strong serves by Sally Mahar and some blistering spikes by ace Patti Philbin highlighted UM play in the opening game win.

In the second BC game, new setter Karen Gottesman played very well in the place of the injured Patty Grant. Led by Gottesman's high sets, Philbin's spikes, and the hustling play of Kirsten Smith, the Minutewomen rallied for the 15-6 win and the match.

However, against MIT the Minutewomen could not get untracked. MIT ran out to an early 5-2 lead buoyed by UM mistakes caused by a lack of communication. But UM battled back to tie it up 5-5, helped by a fantastic Mahar spike that gave Massachusetts possession of the ball.

But UMass could not obtain the lead and MIT took a 9-6 lead. Again, UM had to come back and led by Gottesman, who seemed to be all over the court, the spikers tied the game at 9-9. Kirsten Smith had some ace serves and helped UM take the lead for the first and only time against MIT, 11-10.

MIT came roaring back and dropped the ball in the 'hole', which is behind the front line players and in front of the diving arms of the back row players, to take the first game.

The second game bore a scary resemblance to the first, as MIT continued to drop the ball into the hole and occasionally dropped the ball just over the net.

The Boston Bruins appear ready to be big and bad

By GEORGE MARTINS
Collegian Correspondent

Prediction: The winter of 1982-83: Boston becomes a hockey town once again.

Now granted, the Celties will be powerful and the Garden will be packed for all their games; but on October 8th, when organist John Kiley strikes the first chords of "Pavec," skating onto the ice will be the most exciting, talented, and determined group of Boston Bruins since the early 1970's.

A blend of new and old faces are the reasons that the Bruins will become a National Hockey League powerhouse once again. The new faces, three in all, are due to the mastermind of general manager Harry Sinden.

Sinden used his number one draft choice very well. In agreeing not to sign the overhyped Brian Bellows, whom Minnesota wanted, he managed to convince Minnesota to give the Bruins a 21 year old left wing named Brad Palmer.

Palmer is a potential superstar. He showed signs of brilliance in his brief stay with the North Stars before getting injured last year. Palmer could be what the Bruins have lacked in recent years; a winger (besides Rick Middleton) who can put the puck in the net.

After agreeing not to draft Bellows, Sinden chose defenseman Gord Kluzak as his no. 1 pick. Kluzak, a defenseman in the Larry Robinson mold both in size and style of play, solidifies an already excellent defensive unit that could be one of the best in the league.

Realizing that the Bruins have more defensemen than necessary, Sinden, traded Brad McCrimmon to the Philadelphia Flyers for two time All-Star goaltender Pete Peeters.

Now a look at the team by positions.

Goaltenders: Three quality goalies vying for two positions. Peeters has one spot. The other is up for grabs between rookie Mike Moffat, who sparked the Bruins in last year's playoffs and Marco Baron, Boston's best goalie last season.

Defense: Awesome! Two quality N.H.L. defensemen will have to be cut. The Bruins will most likely keep six. Kluzak will make the team, as will veteran Brad Park and All Star Ray Bourque. Massachusetts born Mike Milbury and Mike O'Connell are both likely to have secured spots.

That leaves one spot up for grabs between second year men Larry Melayk and Randy Hillier, and veteran Dick Redmond.

My choice goes to Hillier. Randy progressed faster than Melayk did last season and as the style of play changes to a less physical game with each year, the need for an enforcer like Melayk is not as great. They can always call Melayk up from the farm when Larry Playfair (who doesn't) and the Buffalo Sabres come to town.

Forwards: This is the key. Can this unit produce? Will it be as powerful on ice as it is on paper? Can the youngsters progress as they did last season? Can Middleton and Tery O'Reilly continue to produce and set examples? My answer to all these questions is yes. This forward unit should score more goals than any other Bruins unit in recent memory.

The team has five centers, four will make the team. Last year's rookie sensation Barry Pederson, who would challenge for the scoring lead if Wayne Gretsky wasn't invented, will make the team as will Tom Fergus and Steve Kasper. The fourth spot will be a battle between veteran Peter McNab and rookie Mike Krushelynsky.

The wings have improved; along with Captain Wayne Cashman, Middleton, O'Reillly and Palmer are the Crowder brothers (Bruce and Keith), Norm Levielle, Craig MacTavish, Stan Jonathan and Mike Gillis.

Well there are: the 1982-83 Boston Bruins. They should win the Adams division and then they'll play the New York Islanders in the semi finals. If they can beat the Islanders they will win the Stanley cup.

See you at the Garden.

Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Cathryn Esch, a senior HRTA major, works out in the new Body Shop, located in room 8 of the NOYE building yesterday.

UM jayvee football team starts its season Friday

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

When JV football head coach Steve Telander takes his squad to Harvard University this Friday, he will begin his second year at the jayvee helm and if his second year is anything like the first it will be a very successful campaign.

It isn't easy compiling a 4-1 record when you best players are playing varsity, but Telander achieved this during his rookie season as head coach. It was the same deal this season for Telander as 19 freshmen were sent up to the varsity level. But Telander sees this team to be just as competitive as last years.

"This is mostly a learning experience for these kids," said Telander. "Most of their practice is with the varsity, so they don't get a chance to practice with themselves an awful lot. JV football means they can have some fun and still learn the game."

This year's squad is comprised mostly of freshmen, with a handful of sophmores also on the team. The 30-35 player turnout was fairly low, but it has been leveling off during the past few years, according to Telander.

Because of the lack of time spent with just the JV level, Telander isn't quite ready to name any players he thinks will star for the JV's. He said that until he sees them in game situations, he won't make a comment on his players. He even selects his captains on game to game basis, picking the ones who work the hardest all week.

Telander likes the idea of the JV practicing with the varsity.

"Playing against All-American guards Jerry Gordon and Scott LaFond and running back Garry Pearson gives our squad a real test," said Telander. "Most other teams we play are in the same situation (practicing with the varsity). Only the Ivy League teams put more emphasis on their programs."

Finally, Telander stated that although the springtime is when other JV members make the varsity, they still work hard in the fall for the learning experience.

The JV's play a five game schedule. The first game is this Friday against Harvard. Coach Telander is looking for another fine season that will turn youngsters into varsity ballplayers because these JV players will eventually be seen at Alumni Stadium, where football is taken very seriously.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUTO FOR SALE

'66 VW Bug very good mechanical shape. Runs well. $400. BO 665-4669

1972 Chevrolet Ven runs well. Outfitted as camper. Radial tires & snows. Auto trans, 6 cyl. $1300. 256-0452

1972 Toyota Corolla some rust $350 253-9794

Datsun 240Z 1971 excellent cond. call 665-3047

1977 Buick Opel, 4 door sedan 60,000 miles good cond, mpg, AC, orig owner $1,500. 549-0084 aft 6 pm

Clean 1973 Honda Civic engine rebuilt 1982 new tires 1595 774-5306

77 Toyota Celica-GT, standard, excellent condition, 56,000 mi, alarm, AM/FM/tape, louvers, $3595/BO 253-9389 after 5

1972 Datsun 510 manuel, tape-deck, runs good, looks fair, $900.00 or BO 256-6668 evenings

68 Olds Cutlass runs well exc transpor call Bob 549-6416

69 Chevelle Malibu new brakes, shocks, tires, stereo. Good condition, runs well. $700 or best offer. 256-6222, Dan or Norma

Sporty French Sedan Renault R12 fwd 4 doors, peppy, 30 mpg, excellent engine, body, and interior, no rust, no dents $1800.00 256-8871

AUTO REPAIR

Auto Repair--U.S. & Foreign, lowest rates, quick service, No. Hadley Motorworks, 586-9029

AVIATION OPPORTUNITIES

Fully paid flight training program. Train to fly Navy prop or jet aircraft. Requires good health, 20/20 vision, between the ages of 19 and 29, U.S. citizenship, and BS/BA degree

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BLUES LOVERS

John Lee Hooker and the Coast to Coast Blues Band will appear in the Student Union Ballroom, Saturday October 16 at 8:00 pm. Tickets on sale Oct. 5--$3 545-2145

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJ's FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks, Parties, Semis. Paul 549-4405 Joe 549-1588.

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

New Dunham Boots size 10½ - too big for me. $50 6-7487 Marc

Attention COINS 121/123 students. Tired of the terminal lines? Own for less than the cost of renting. For information call Rob 6-5365.

2 tickets, Van Halen, New Haven Col. 10/7 BO 546-8682

Beautiful handcrafted wooden bunk for sale. Great spacesaver for dorm rooms. $75 or best offer 549-6739

Tag Sale Bluehills Rd (connects Rt 9 & Amity St) sat 7 Sun entire house contents including all furniture & women's designer clothing

FOUND

A very friendly gray and white cat who wants to come home. Found in Brittany Manor. If yours call 256-0800

HELP WANTED

Acting Director of the SGA Communications Office applications available in 420 Student Union. The SGA is an AA/EOE Third World Students and women are encouraged to apply

SGA Affirmative Action Officer needed will oversee SGA adherence to affirmative action standards. Applications available in 420 Student Union. The SGA is an AA/EOE Third World students and women encouraged to apply.

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Centonese Speaker needed for conversation practice 1-3 hours weekly 323-4561 evenings.

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

First meeting of the official Bhakti-Yoga Group free nectarean vegetarian feast by Padmanabhal Rm 177 Campus Ctr Thurs Sept 30 7 PM further info 527-6114

JUDGES NEEDED

The Commuter Collective is now taking applications for the University Judiciary Committee. Two judge will be appointed by October 1. Stop by 404 SUB 545-2145

LESBIAN/GAY

Are you gay? Is someone you care about? If you need someone to talk to, call the Lesbian's and Gay men's Counseling Collective Thursdays, 6-9 pm, at 545-2645

Lesbian Union open meeting Thurs. 7 pm Sept. 30

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

9/21 silver unicorn ring in CC ladies room. If found please call 6-9241

Olive green cordoroy jacket. Lost Fri afternoon between Campus Store and Student Union. Reward call Beth 546-8059

Men's high school class ring. Lost on 9/27 at Boyden. Much sentimental value. Reward. Please call Andy at 665-3466 or turn in to lost & found at Boyden

Lost! Pair of glasses (light brown) near Cottage C if found call 323-5966 Darlene

Lost Panasonic Calculator sentimental value it was in a checkered sponge case if found please call Sue at 546-8208 or Colleqian thanks! last seen in Dickenson

The Hatch - were you there Monday Sept 27? Did you find my tan cordory Calvin Klein mini skirt? If found please call Cindy 549-3589 reward

Wallet and Band Jacket in Sylvan call 6-9643 jacket has the name Jay on it

Green plastic ringbinder notebook lost between GRC - E-Lab with vital botany notes call Owen 549-5050

MOTORCYCLE

Honda 350 '73 ex cond $550 or best offer call Dan 6-5168

1972 Yamaha R5 350 cc two-stroke oil injection dual carbs caf'e bars 5-speed $450 or best offer 253-5880

1979 Kawasaki KZ750 7.7k miles, helmets, cover, and more Asking $1095 will talk. Bob 546-9197

PATTERSON

Thurs Night Series on alcohol 7 pm free munchies Be there or be squarel

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

1981 Index is here! Yes that's right and for only $4.00 you can own one. Stop by room 103 CC to purchase yours

Sigma Delta Tau
would like to invite all Univ women to an Open Rush Dinner at 5:00 on:
Tuesday, Sept. 28
Wednesday, Sept. 29
Thursday, Sept. 30
We are located at 409 N. Pleasant St.
For more info call 545-0527

Experienced drummer looking for work: avant garde, ska, reggae, wave. Marc 253-3362

Shveethot, I love you. . .so much! Love, Honey 9-26-82

Kathy O Happy Birthday Love all of us

Come to Cherlies on Thursday Night for 99¢ kamakazes and 75¢ shots of schnapps

MHW Happy Birthday beautiful ! love you. JRD

To the exciting women of Chi Omega! We think you're the greatest! Lots of love -your pledges XO

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

GET PHYSICAL coming soon!!!

"Run for your Right" race festival to benefit nuclear referendum on Oct 31 Bike, run, or rollerski for your right to vote. Call 665-4815

Cliff, Tosh Concert sec-3L487 Missed u the second half. Stop the bombing. 546-6354

Remember passenger in red convertible Camero. Call 6-4209

Topic Focused Groups: Problems with self-esteem, assertiveness, relationship skills, managing stress, or learning about yourself? Contact Mental Health Service, 127 Hills North for an appointment before October 12th 545-2337

Paul Happy 1st. I'll remember all those nights we'll be friends always! Love KI

Are you sick and tired of the Moral Majority?? Do something about it!! Join the Real Majority and support basic human rights. Introductory Meeting Monday Oct. 4 7 p.m. CC - room to be announced. Don't let Jerry Falwell and Jesse Helms rule your life.

Lisa any music colloq this year, Greg 549-6147

17 Hobart - best of luck to the Hug Home may this year be a uge success

Com-Stu Happy Hour - following meeting. All majors welcome! Meeting in E-37 at 3:30 pm Happy Hour in Lounge (E-34) see you there today!

RECORDS

Joan Jett - I Love R & Roll J Geils - Freeze Frame, best offer, never used call 6-9648 keep trying

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thomes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RESUME WRITING

Quick/Confidential/Efficient call after 5 pm or weekends 253-7468

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed daily to and from the Ingleside Mall, Holyoke. Will share expenses. Call Julie 549-5455

RIDERS WANTED

South on I-91 & I-95 as far as Norwalk, CT. Fridays. Return Sunday afternoon 253-5196

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share 1 bedroom Puffton apt 145 month call 549-0919

Female wanted to share room in spacious 3 bedroom Townehouse apt call Susan 549-3868

Female to share bedroom in Townehouse 549-5980

Grad Student quiet room 150--month 549-5469 eve

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable, on bus route furnished, call Jeff 665-4357

RUSSIA/ROMANIA

Slide presentation with open discussion following. Please join is, Thursday, September 30th at 7:30 pm in room 44 Fine Arts Center. Given by UMass Chorale, sponsored by Fine Arts Council

SERVICES

Typing - $1.25 per page - will do overnight typing - $2.00 per page call between 6 & 9 PM 665-7731

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations - repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

WANTED

Wanted: Copy of BABEL by Patti Smith Also, any other books or rare or obscure material written or recorded by Patti Smith. Rick 546-4919

Full Face Motorcycle helmet for small head. Call Peter 256-8057

Intramural Hockey Teams. Entries due October 4th. Contact IM Office Boyden

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

FREE CONCERT
BOSTON COMMONS
4 bands Rock & Reggae
Sign up at RSU office rm 413A
For $5. Roundtrip bus
Sponsored by the Coalition to Return Marijuana to the Pharmacopocia

EARN $6 - $9 PER HR.
BY DELIVERING
PAPA GINO'S PIZZA
IN HADLEY
Big dollars can be made delivering Papa Gino's famous pizza. Learn how you can supplement your income and have dollars to spare. You must own your own car. $3.75 per hour, plus delivery charges are yours! Our drivers have averaged between $5-$8 per hr, full or part time.
If you are interested, please call 584-0220 and ask for General Manager. Equal Opportunity Employer
Papa Gino's Restaurants

RESUME WRITING
Efficient,
Quick,
Confidential
call 253-7468
After 5 PM
or Weekends

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 18

Collegian photo by Jay Obe

Neal Mackertich, the number one singles player on the UMass men's tennis team, prepares to serve during yesterday's match.

Smith's hat-trick leads to UMass stickers to victory over P.C.

By JILL LANG
Collegian Correspondent

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - The University of Massachusetts field hockey team overcame both adverse weather and field conditions to defeat Providence College yesterday, 4-1.

Playing on a wet and bumpy field, the Minutewomen were slow to start, as Providence scored the first goal at 18:05 in the first half.

The goal came while UMass was still adjusting to the slick surface on a fast break.

"We definitely came out slow at the start," said coach Pam Hixon. "But once the pace picked up, we played well."

True to Hixon's words, the Minutewomen all but shut down Providence for the remainder of the game.

Forward Pam Moryl started the UMass ball rolling at 27:38 in the first half when she took a long pass from forward Patti Smith and put it past the Providence goalie.

Less than two minutes later, UMass struck again, this time on a set corner play.

Tish Stevens passed the ball from the end line to Smith, who was at the top of the striking circle. Smith took a direct shot on goal that eluded the Providence defense.

Although UMass dominated the entire second half, it took the Minutewomen 32 minutes of play before they were able to score again.

Smith picked up her second goal of the afternoon when she followed up on a shot by forward Allyson Rioux to up the score to 3-1 and seal the victory for UMass.

At the 1:40 mark, Smith completed her hat-trick when she took a cross pass from forward Diane Kobel and swept it into the net.

The Minutewomen outnumbered Providence in every statistic column: UMass tallied 13 corners to Providence's one, and bombarded the Providence defense with 29 shots on goal while UMass goalie Patty Shea only had to contend with five shots from the Providence offense.

"We had plenty of breakaways and we used the long ball to beat their defense," said co-captain Carol Progulske. "Once we adjusted to the field, we really got moving."

Although Providence managed only five shots on goal, coach Hixon still feels her defense was tested in this game.

"They used the long ball against us, and on the wet field the defense had to make good plays to bring the ball back upfield," said Hixon. "We were ready, and we counteracted successfully."

"I am pleased with the outcome of the game," continued Hixon. "I am glad we scored four goals, especially on such a wet field."

The stickers are looking to extend their unblemished record, now at 4-0, when they begin a four game homestand with a game Saturday against Springfield College, at 1 p.m., on the Upper NOPE field.

Wednesday, the team will be facing off against Yale at 3 p.m., also on the upper NOPE field.

Women booters drop first game of season

By PETER SODERBERG
Collegian Correspondent

PROVIDENCE, RI. The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team dropped its first game of the season to sixth ranked Brown University, 3-0 last night. Going into the game, UMass was ranked fourth in the nation. The loss drops their record to 4-1. Brown improves to 5-0.

"Whoever scored first would probably win the game," said coach Kalekeni Banda before the game started. The two teams were very even, and UMass controlled the ball throughout much of the game. However, the Brown defense was incredibly strong during the second half, denying UMass of any goal opportunities.

UMass's passing game which is generally very consistent was off during most of the game.

Brown's scores came late in the first half with goals by Amy Robinson at 35:29, the second score came at 37:58 by Carmen Tuttle and was assisted by Colleen O'Day. Tuttle also scored the final tally of the game at 44:16 and was assisted by Gretchen Orr.

UMass will host University of Vermont tomorrow at 3:00 p.m. at Boyden Field. UMass lost to Vermont in Burlington last year 2-0 and will be looking to avenge their defeat. The Minutewomen are undefeated at home and are looking to stay that way.

It will be the last home game before the Minutewomen head out on the road for games against Connecticut and Cortland State.

Last year, UMass lost to Connecticut, 2-0. Cortland split with Massachusetts last year, but the key defeat was in the EAIAW playoffs.

Banda has a young team comprised of mostly freshmen who are exciting to watch. They are a well balanced team that is strong on defense and unselfish in passing. It is their passing that set up many of their opportunities for scoring.

Men's soccer loses 3-0

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

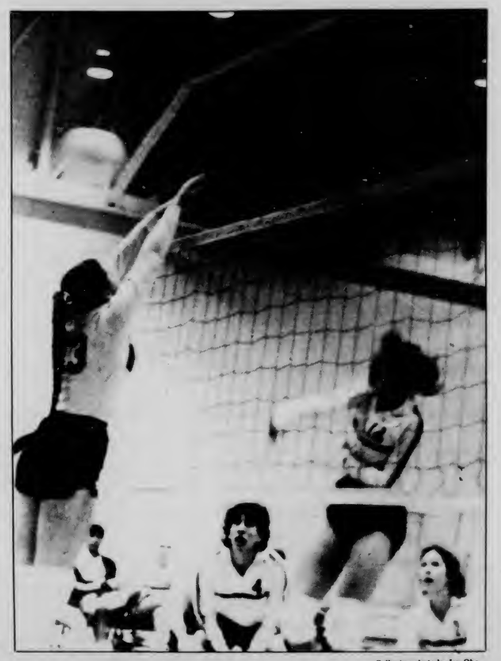
The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team, which was riding high ever since its Loyola Invitational tournament victory last weekend, came crashing back to earth yesterday when they were shut out by Yale University 3-0.

UMass entered the contest sporting the number four ranking in New England but Yale, who owned the number three ranking, apparently had no intention of allowing the Minutemen to use them as a stepping stone to a top ranking.

The loss gave UMass its first loss of the season and dropped them to 5-1 overall. The 5-0 start had been the best Minuteman start in the past couple of seasons.

New UMass soccer coach Jeff Gettler said earlier in the season that it would take the Minutemen at least until mid-season before his team was operating the way he wanted it to so Minuteman fans should not dispair.

UMass plays again October 2 away at Vermont.



Collegian photo by Jay Obe

Kirsten Smith spikes the ball past a Boston College opponent while Karen Gottesman readies for a return.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 19 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, October 1, 1982

Photo by Peter Marks

A solitary student walks across the semi-futuristic Campus Center landing.

Shamie denied stage presence at freeze rally

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Although denied permission to speak on stage by organizers of Tuesday's nuclear freeze rally, Republican senatorial candidate Ray Shamie will come to the University of Massachusetts that afternoon to "circulate through the crowd" and to address a separate audience in the Campus Center.

The Committee to Re-Elect Senator Kennedy, which conceived and planned the rally, denied the event to be a campaign appearance, claiming to have invited the entire Massachusetts Congressional delegation, including the two Republican members. All 12 members of the delegation voted in support of the Kennedy-sponsored nuclear freeze resolution.

Gillian Gansler, press secretary for the Kennedy campaign, yesterday said Shamie would probably not be allowed to address the rally because he is not a freeze supporter.

However, Phil Harris, field director for the Ray Shamie for Senate campaign, said Shamie "believes" in a freeze, while Missi Tessier, press secretary for Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said the Congressman,an original freeze co-sponsor in the U.S. House of Representatives, had not received an invitation either.

The Student Senate Wednesday night allocated a $1,000 loan and grant package to be used for the event after it was presented to them by the Kennedy campaign as "definitely a bipartisan rally," Student Government Association President Jim Murphy said.

"I would certainly think it is improper" if such funding were to be donated directly to a political campaign, Murphy said yesterday.

The Committee to Re-Elect Senator Kennedy originally planned to hold the UMass rally without seeking any local sponsorship, but Sheila Sullivan, chairperson of the senate Public Policy Committee, said she was contacted by the campaign when they "apparently forgot" to arrange for details such as security and a sound system.

Sullivan said the Kennedy campaign, which has been and will continue to be the source of all other money spent on the rally, including advertising and promotion, declined to provide the remaining $1,065. The Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide, an area sponsor of the rally, then requested the money from the senate.

The Kennedy campaign, in explaining its reason for not being the sole source of funding for the rally, "said that money is tight," Sullivan said.

Melissa Martin, scheduler for the Ray Shamie for senate Committee, said the Republican challenger had planned to addressing a Mt. Holyoke College audience Tuesday, but decided to cancel when Kennedy's plans for the day were announced. He then decided to seek permission to address the UMass gathering, she said.

However, the Kennedy campaign failed to return their call, Martin said, and when the Senator agreed to debate Shamie on another occasion, she assumed the rally appearance would be denied.

Continued on page 8

Hillel works for releaseof Soviet Refusenik

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Correspondent

Hillel, a student Jewish organization at the University of Massachusetts, has adopted a "Refusenik", a Soviet citizen who has sought and was denied the right to emigrate to Israel.

"Adopting a Refusenik is a personal way of getting in touch with the issue of Soviet government oppression of human rights," said Lynn Kerew, chair of the Soviet Jewry Council. "We could just say the Soviet Union is too politically powerful to deal with but we can't forget about a human being that is being denied rights to leave his country."

Hillel's adopted Refusenik is Lev Tukachinsky, a rubber research engineer who applied to leave the Soviet Union in June, 1979 and was refused an exit visa in August, 1980.

Hillel found out about Lev through the Student Coalition For Soviet Jewry (SCFSJ) of Brandeis College. The SCFSJ was founded in 1964 because of the detainment of Anatoly Scharansk, a well-known Jewish Refusenik.

Last February, Hillel accompanied the SCFSJ and nine other colleges to Washington to lobby Congress to make it aware of the human rights violations that exist in the Soviet Union, Kerew said.

"After the lobby, we received a request from the coalition asking us to seriously consider adopting a Refusenik," she said. "We were given Lev's name arbitrarily."

The Soviet government allowed Lev's wife, Ilana, and their daughter, Riva Chana, to emigrate to Israel in July, 1981 without him. They are presently living in a Jerusalem absorbtion center for newly arrived immigrants where they are clothed, fed and given shelter.

"Lev's situation is morally and politically intertwined with Soviet human rights legislation. On December 10, 1948, the Soviet Union agreed to the principles and intentions of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights which state that everyone has the right to leave any country including their own," Kerew said. Adding that Tukachinsky is being denied these rights.

"Usually upon applying for immigration, the applicant loses his job, no one will hire them out of fear of government retribution, and then the Soviet authorities have the audacity to claim that these Refuseniks are parasites to Soviet society because they can't secure employment," Kerew said.

Kerew has written to Lev three times and has yet to receive a response.

"The letters could be screened or I have been told by Soviet Jews living in the United States that the Soviet government is not responsible when it comes to mail service. Since Lev has applied for immigration, he is definitely being watched," she said.

Kerew has, however, received letters from Ilana, Lev's wife. In Ilana's last letter, received by Kerew in August, Ilana said Lev is not doing well, he doesn't sound good over the phone, and his health is deteriorating since they have been separated. She is fine, Kerew said, but very sad being separated from her husband. They have been married for two years, she said.

It is unknown whether Lev is still employed. Communications with Ilana are difficult because of the language barrier, Kerew said. Russian and Hebrew translators are needed for Hillel.

Hillel's efforts to get Tukachinsky released include starting a more active lobby in Washington, continuous letter writing to legisktures in the United States and Russia, writing letters to the chief emigration officer in the Soviet Union, and bringing in a counselor from the Los Angeles Jewish Federation to speak on the Soviet Refusenik crisis.

Kerew said, "Because his government is aware of our actions to get him released, it is our goal that Lev never slips into oblivion and can be released."

World and national news

U.S. Marine killed at Beirut airport by bomb

AP Laserphoto

Members of the United States Marine Corps, armed with mine detectors, comb the beach near West Beirut for unexploded mines

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An unexploded part of a cluster bomb blew up at Beirut airport yesterday, killing one U.S. Marine and wounding three others who tripped on it, U.S. military spokesmen said.

The casualties were reported after several hundred Marines waded ashore to help guard the field just reopened by President Amin Gemayel.

One of the survivors was in serious condition with groin injuries and the other two were slightly wounded, the spokesmen said.

The casualties were the first suffered by the Marines since they deployed in Beirut this summer to help oversee the evacuation of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas from the Israeli-ringed city. The Marines returned Wednesday on their second peacekeeping mission.

President Reagan reacted with "shock and sorrow," but said the casualties would have no effect on the U.S. commitment to remain in Lebanon until Israeli and Syrian troops are out and the government is in control, White House Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes said in Washington.

Gemayel officially opened the airport after a nearly four-month shutdown following a ceremony before U.S., Italian and French peacekeeping forces in which he proclaimed Lebanon's capital a "unified city," free of Israeli troops in both the Moslem western sector and the Christian east.

A red and white Middle East Airlines jet, with Lebanon's flag flying from the cockpit window, landed at the airport to the applause and cheers of about 300 bystanders, who tearfully embraced relatives setting foot on their native soil for the first time since Israel invaded June 6.

Hours after the jet touched down, an explosion rocked the southwest end of the runway nearest the Mediterranean. The blast occurred at about 4:45 p.m. 10:45 EDT.

Marine Lt. Gregory van Houten said the explosion occurred when the men tripped on part or parts of a cluster bomb, an anti-personnel weapon. He said each part thrown out by the cluster bomb is "pressure sensitive. If you jar it, or hit it, or in any way disturb it, it will explode."

Cluster bombs supplied to Israel by the Reagan administration were dropped on west Beirut by Israeli jets this summer, causing a public uproar in the United States, which then temporarily suspended shipment of the bombs to Israel.

Army Lt. Col. Lee Delorme, a Pentagon spokesman in Beirut, said in a written statement that one Marine was killed and three were injured, one seriously, "when some unexploded ordnance was accidentally detonated...The incident was not the result of hostile action."

The Marines were evacuated by helicopter to the amphibious ship Guam, where one died in surgery, the statement said. It added that one of the survivors was seriously injured in the groin, another was slightly injured in the arm and shoulder, and another in the leg.

Congress puts off compromise spending measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opting instead for an evening of political partying, Congress abandoned its race against the clock yesterday to keep the government from going broke upon the midnight start of the new fiscal year.

But negotiators for the House and Senate reached agreement on a compromise spending measure they said would win swift approval today, and a Reagan administration spokesman said there probably would be no interruption of regular government operations.

Although agreement on the compromise bill came several house before the midnight deadline, congressional leaders decided against a late-night session to pass the measure on an evening when major social events were scheduled for both Democrats and Republicans.

The Democratic Party had a $1,000 per person fundraising dinner that many members of Congress were expect to attend. And President Reagan invited the entire Congress to a barbecue at the White House in what amounted to a counter-event dominated by Republicans.

The stopgap spending plan will keep the entire government in business until Dec. 17, thereby assuring a post-election session of Congress in which law-makers will debate the regular money bills that have not yet been approved. Only one of 13 regular bills has cleared Congress, and it is still awaiting Reagan's signature.

For domestic programs, the catch-all measure generally is within the budget that Congress set for itself several months ago, meaning many programs will be frozen at roughly the 1982 levels.

On defense spending, it calls for roughly $6 budget below the amount contained in the budget Congress approved last summer, and about $17 billion below Reagan's original request of last winter.

The interim measure temporarily prohibits purchase of the first five MX missiles, which the administration wants to buy, and blocks any spending on the second of two new nuclear aircraft carriers Reagan wants to build. Construction of the B1 bomber may proceed, however.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., did not mention either social function when he told reporters that negotiators for the two houses estimated that no compromise bill would be ready for floor action until shortly after the midnight deadline.

"We'll pass that tomorrow so I don't think there will be any effect" on government operations, he said.

Cyanide-tainted Tylenol capsules suspected in five Illinois deaths

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) – Five people in suburban Chicago died after swallowing capsules of Extra Strength Tylenol, and at least three of them were poisoned by cyanide that had been put into the medicine, authorities said yesterday.

A sixth person was near death, and two others were hospitalized with possible cyanide poisoning symptoms.

The manufacturer recalled nearly 4.7 million of the capsules and the medical examiner said the case was being investigated as "possible homicide."

Authorities said the cyanide was probably introduced sometime after the capsules left the plant in Fort Washington, Pa., where they are manufactured by McNeil Consumer Products Co. The poison is not used in production of the medicine.

The series began with the deaths Wednesday of two brothers in the western suburb of Arlington Heights and a 12-year-old girl in the neighboring community of Elk Grove Village.

The wife of one of the brothers was hospitalized in extremely critical condition after taking a capsule of the medication, which is the nation's bestselling over-the-counter pain reliever. Doctors said her brain had suffered "a great deal of damage" and she was not expected to live.

AP Laserphoto

The label on a bottle of Tylenol shows it to be from the same lot, MC2880, which was found to have caused at least five cyanide poisoning deaths in the Chicago area. Two large Midwest-based drug stores have announced an immediate halt in sales of the product.

See A.P. Digest on page 4

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Bill Wall
Layout Technician — Brad Eden
Photo Editor — Jim Powers
Composition — Gail Tanzer, Terri Cooper
Suzanne Erickson, Donna Maurice, Dano Welsh
Adrianne Dufor, Sheryl Silver, Alan Steinberg
Jennifer Winslow, Lynn Eisenberg, Marianne Walsh, Fredey, Scott Stockwell

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Groups file suit against federal land sale

BOSTON (AP) — Three environmental groups filed suit in federal court yesterday seeking to halt the Reagan administration's plan to sell up to 35 million acres of federal land.

The suit, filed for the Conservation Law Foundation, the Natural Resource Defense Council, Inc. and the National Wildlife Federation, charged the land sale program violates various federal administrative and environmental laws and does not follow procedure required for sale of government property.

Defendants in the suit include Interior Secretary James Watt, Treasury Secretary Donald Reagan, Agriculture Secretary John Block and White House aides James Baker, Edwin Meese and David Stockman.

The suit, filed by Steven Stark of the Conservation Law Foundation, alleges that the $1.3 billion land sale program violates the National Environmental Policy Act because officials have not analyzed the proposed sale's environmental impact.

The complaint also charged that the plan violates federal law because it would use proceeds from the sale to reduce the national deficit. The environmental groups claimed federal law requires the money be used to purchase park land.

The groups charged that the General Services Administration has broken federal law by discontinuing a policy of offering state and local governments discounts in purchasing federal land. The suit also alleged that Bureau of Land Management has reversed the federal policy of retaitverent land.

The complaint said the federal government, which holds 744 million acres of land, has sold very little of the public acreage in the past.

The Reagan administration announced plans early this year to begin transferring up to 35 million acres of federal land to private ownership.

Duffey starts today as UMass chancellor

By PAUL BELVAL
and KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

Rev. Joseph Duffey, who assumes the position of Chancellor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst today, promised he will listen to the students and faculty.

Duffey, who was chosen for the post last August over Acting Chancellor Loren Baritz and University of Miami (of Ohio) Vice President and Provost David C. Brown, said he understands the complexity and variety of the UMass campus.

"The Amherst campus is very complex," Duffey said in an interview last month. "It has many constituents and they are used to being listened to. If changes are to be made, input would be gained from all concerning interests."

Duffey, 50, the son of a coal miner who also served in the West Virginia state legislature, earned two bachelors degrees in the 1950's from Marshall College in West Virginia and the Andover Theological School in Newton.

He received his master's from Yale University in 1960 and his doctorate from the Hartford Seminary Foundation in the same year.

Duffey, an ordained Congregational minister, became nationally known for his strong stands for civil rights and his opposition to the Vietnam conflict.

In 1968, along with his wife Anne Wexler, a political consultant who worked in the Carter administration, Duffey co-chaired the Eugene McCarthy for President Committee in Connecticut, which was described by a commentator as "an insurgent coalition of political amateurs led by a Congregational minister...(and) made up of students, housewives and academicians."

He became national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, a group advocating left wing principles such as amnesty for draft evaders and deserters of the Vietnam conflict.

In 1970, Duffey was the Democratic nominee for the United states Senate from Connecticut, with his campaign managed by Wexler. Duffey's candidacy drew scorn from then Vice President Spiro Agnew, who called him a "Marxist revisionist," and praise from the New Times which wrote, "(he) displays a high idealism and a down to earth political drive that appear in combination far too rarely to be passed up." Duffey lost a three person race to Republican Lowell Weicker.

Between 1970 and 1974, Duffey filled fellowships at Harvard University, Calhoun University and Yale University before accepting the position of president of the American Association of University Professors from 1974 to 1976.

Collegian file photo

Joseph Duffey, a former Carter Administration official, begins today as chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Financial aid law seen as unconstitutional

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

A law requiring that students seeking federal financial aid file a "statement of compliance" with Selective Service laws was called "both unconstitutional and awful" by a University of Massachusetts student who is a member of Students Against Militarism.

The law was passed as an amendment to the Defense Authorization Act for 1983, and was signed into law on Sept. 8, 1982, catching students and financial aid administrators by surprise.

The law, which will take effect July 1, 1983, affecting financial aid for the 1983-84 school year, forbids any student from receiving federal financial aid while in violation of the Selective Service law, which requires that all persons born since 1960 register for the draft shortly after reaching the age of 18.

To help the enforcement of the law, any student who is affected by the registration law must file a "statement of compliance" with the school he attends or plans to attend. A list of students who have filed these statements may then be turned over to the Secretary of Education and the Selective Service to check against registration lists.

Students who are accused of not registering must be notified and given thirty days to reply if they wish to prove they have registered, and must be given a hearing if they request.

Federal loans, grants or work-study assistance will be denied to students who are in violation of the Selective Service laws.

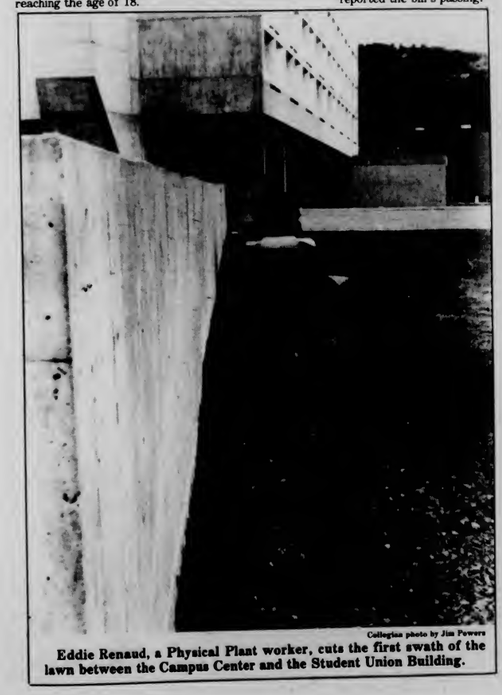
Director of Financial Aid Art Jackson said he thought the bill was still being considered by a House-Senate conference committee, and that none of the financial aid groups that regularly alert him on such matters had reported the bill's passing.

Jon Braine, a member of Students Against Militarism, a Recognized Student Organization at UMass said the law is "both unconstitutional and awful."

"It should be unconstitutional because it denies federal benefits because of political beliefs," said Jon Braine, a member of Students Against Militarism, but he said the Supreme Court would probably not agree.

Braine said because neither the Department of Education nor the Selective Service Office has a national computer, it would be "an enforcement nightmare," and that many mistakes might result. He cited recent errors in which the Selective Service has mistakenly accused women and older men of violating the law, which does not apply to them.

"A lot of people are going to lose their aid because of a computer error," Braine predicted. He said the law's provision for a 30-day response period for those accused of



Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Eddie Renaud, a Physical Plant worker, cuts the first swath of the lawn between the Campus Center and the Student Union Building.

SGA ballot to question students on fee increase, return of death penalty

By DIANE KADZIS
Collegian Staff

Students who cast their vote in the Student Government Association's (SGA) senate elections Monday will be asked to take a stand on two referendum questions.

The first question on the ballot asks students if they are willing to help fund the renovation of Curry Hicks Cage by accepting a $20 increase in fees.

Plans to remove the 50-year-old cage do not specify where the money will come from. University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp recommended last July 5 that a yearly student fee of about $20 be created to pay for the project.

"The reason for having this question on the ballot is to give students a chance to voice their opinion on whether they feel they should be paying for the renovation," said Mitch Gaslin, chairperson of the SGA Rents and Fees Committee.

"Ideally, the reason for renovating the Cage is because it is going to benefit the students and the University," Gaslin said. "Therefore, students should be the ones who should decide whether they are going to pay for it or not."

"If a majority of students voted yes, then it would be a sign to the Trustees that the students are in favor of this. On the other hand, if students vote against the proposal, then this would be a basis for a campaign to pressure the Trustees into not approving the proposal," Gaslin said.

Question 2 on the SGA ballot will also appear on the November state ballot. It asks students if they support reinstatement of the death penalty.

Mindy Ordway, assistant speaker of the SGA, said Question 2 was added to the ballot in an effort to "get an insight into" the general awareness of UMass students on the issue.

The death penalty was discussed on campus at a recent debate, but Ordway said she feels students should think about the issue some more before the Nov. 2 election.

Chairperson of Government Affairs Tom Ahearn said the fall elections will be marked by a lack of candidates appearing on the ballot. As a result, Ahern said, competition for seats representing dormitories in each of the five residential areas is narrow, with only four contested races offering students a choice.

Ahern said he expects votes turnout may be low Monday. Attributing the slump in student participation in the senate elections to a lack of knowledge about, and interest in, the SGA, Ahern said an informational outreach drive will be organized to attract students with an interest in being appointed to a senate seat after the election.

"We can't have people becoming senators just to be senators," Ahern said. "We need people who will be willing to work hard."

Students living on campus can vote at their residential area's Dining Common this Monday. Off-campus students can cast their ballots outside the Hatch.

Digest

By the Associated Press

House passes budget to finance construction

BOSTON — A $243.1 million public construction budget passed the Massachusetts House yesterday including $2 million that a critic said would turn a legislative committee quarters into a "Taj Mahal."

The measure included $44 million for higher education, including repairs at the various schools, and $55.1 million for mental health, including $41.9 million to comply with court consent decrees requiring improvements at the state mental hospitals and schools for the retarded.

A $236 million budget, apparently increased by about $6 million in committee, grew by another $7 million as representatives added amendments on the House floor to provide for local projects.

The construction bill passed the House 109-28, with the Republicans united against increasing the state debt.

Originally, the capital outlay budget totalled $338.2 million, but the House Ways and Means Committee divided that package into two bills.

Rep. Michael C. Creedon, committee chairman, presented the $236 million public building construction package saying the public housing portion, initially estimated at $108.2 million, would follow later.

Ballot question poses threat to waste dump

ALBANY, N.Y. — A Massachusetts ballot initiative could damage efforts to establish a Northeastern regional dump for low level radioactive waste, delegates to an 11-state conference said yesterday.

Question 3 on the November ballot could force Massachusetts to withdraw from the 11-state regional nuclear disposal compact and might encourage other states to do the same, some delegates said.

"This could cause a lot of trouble if it's not shot down in the courts, quickly," said Steven Sklar, a Maryland state legislator. "You're taking highly complex issues and reducing them to emotional slogans."

Under federal law, states must dispose low-level radioactive waste within their own borders or enter a compact with neighboring states to open a regional dump by 1986. Most of it now goes to South Carolina.

Drafting the regional compact in Albany yesterday was the Policy Working Group of the Coalition of Northeastern Governors. The group represents Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Maker of Breathalyzer warns of unreliability

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Smith & Wesson, the nation's largest manufacturer of devices that check suspected drunken drivers, says its Breathalyzers may give false readings if police radios or even AM-FM receivers are nearby.

The readings could be thrown off "slightly or significantly" by the radio wave interference depending on the individual machine and its location, according to Jim Vandergrift, director of marketing for the company.

Smith & Wesson has sent letters to all police agencies using its equipment urging them to test their Breathalyzer.

About 10,000 of the machines, which the company began marketing in the 1950s, are currently in use by police agencies in the U.S., he said. In 39 states, including Massachusetts, the Breathalyzer is the standard court test for drunkeness, and in the remaining states, similar devices have been approved, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The federal agency, which tests and approves all breathtesting devices, has not detected the problems reported by Smith & Wesson, Ron A. Engle, a safety management specialist with the agency said Thursday.

"We sent Smith & Wesson a telegram when they sent out their advisory suggesting that their open-field tests were perhaps not readily comprable to real-world situations," Engle said. "We've found that unless you get right up on top of the instrument — say you place a walkie-talkie within a foot or so of it — there's no interference."

AP Laserphoto

Lynn Simone, independent candidate for the US Senate seat held by Edward Kennedy, poses with her gun and campaign sticker at her Winthrop headquarters.

Kennedy challenged by write-in candidate

WINTHROP — Lynn Simone, a gun-carrying welfare mother, says she has widespread support and pledges totalling $100,000 in her bid to unseat Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in a write-in campaign this fall.

"I'm tired of seeing people ride into Washington on elephants and jackasses," the 34-year-old former police officer and singer said yesterday. "I'm telling people over and over that I'm riding on issues."

Ms. Simone has filed reports with the Federal Election Commission that say she raised $19,500 in campaign funds through June 30. She claims she has now taken in about $100,000 in money and pledges.

She is not on the Nov. 2 ballot but hopes to mount a massive write-in showing against Kennedy and Republican candidate Ray Shamie.

"People believe it's a joke until they hear me talk," she said, "but believe me it's no joke."

Ms. Simone, who has been living on welfare for nearly a year, said she has been campaigning since April. She maintains a campaign office with a staff of two and is even distributing bumper stickers that read: "For A Change, Simone for U.S. Senate."

Her 19-month-old daughter Joey wears a T-shirt with the words: "Mommy for U.S. Senate."

The candidate, a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, has a five-point program that includes such issues as energy, taxes, the economy and defense. She said she is neither liberal or conservative.

"I'm practical," she said. "I don't like to be tied to a party."

FAC Productions

TOUCH DOWN THIS SUNDAY

with

Touchstone

featuring jazz masters

CHICK COREA PACO DE LUCIA

SUNDAY OCT. 3, 1982

Tickets available at:
Union Records • FAC • For the Record • Ticketron
STUDENTS $7.50 & 8.50 GEN. PUBLIC $8.50 & 9.50

Corea, the master keyboardist who formed Return to Forever with Stanley Clarke and Al DiMeola and has worked with Miles Davis. De Lucia, the master guitarist who has worked with John McLaughlin, DiMeola, and who is credited with spreading flamenco to the world, will be HERE SUNDAY NIGHT. TICKETS ARE STILL AVAILABLE, GET YOURS NOW!

FINE ARTS CENTER • UMASS

BOG asks for less-restricted Halloween

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

The Board of Governors (BOG) at the University of Massachusetts voted unanimously last night to appeal to Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson to allow events on campus Halloween weekend.

"We want constructive and creative programs to take place Halloween weekend," said Ron Keefe, BOG chairman. "We are favoring low key events that won't attract huge crowds."

The activities would include small concerts, fireworks, bonfires and a horror movie on Metawampee lawn.

Keefe said the Administration has closed the campus over Halloween weekend the last two years and is considering implementing the same policy again this year. The Halloween policy prohibited off-campus guests from university dormitories and curtailed on-campus activities and programming.

The policy was a response to Halloween 1979 when there were reported bottle fights, sexual assaults and vandalism. Medical personnel responded to more than 200 emergency calls over the weekend.

"We are living in fear of three years ago. Most people responsible for the damage in 1979 are gone and the students of UMass deserve another chance," Keefe said.

Bud Wilkes, assistant director of the Campus Center said, "I support whatever policy the administration approves, although the student body deserves another chance to prove themselves as being responsible and not destructive and malicious as they were Halloween '79."

People in direct contact with students, area directors and campus center administrators are hesitant to take the lead in allowing on-campus programming Halloween weekend because they feel they have no support from the administration, Keefe said.

Security is always the main issue, Keefe said, and students are willing to work security.

"People take the attitude it is Halloween and the students at UMass must be babysat," Keefe said.

In other business last night, the BOG voted to increase vendor table space to the Student Union Ballroom lobby area.

"The additional space will be used for the overflow of vendors from the C.C. concourse and for special events and entertainment, comedy routines, guitar playing and the promotion of upcoming special events," said John Furbish, the coordinator responsible for vendor space.

Protest planned by pro-abortion group on Monday

By DEBBIE KRUPCZAK
Collegian Correspondent

A silent protest of existing and proposed restrictions on access to abortion, sponsored by Isis, a reproductive rights group, is scheduled to be held Monday on Coolidge Bridge in Northampton.

"The protest is a way of making this danger and threat of our rights known to the public," said Janice Tobgy, a member of Isis and an organizer of the protest.

The protest will be from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. and will be a quiet demonstration. The participants will be standing on the bridge carrying signs, but there will be no speakers.

"This is not going to be an uplifting experience, but more of a mourning," Togby said. About 50 people are expected to attend the protest.

Organizers of the silent protest are Janice Tobgy, Alice Dembner, Gail Brown Humphrey, and Sally Koplin, all active members of Isis.

The silent protest is in memory of Rosie Jimenez, a 27-year-old Texas woman who died on Oct. 3, 1977. Jimenez could not afford a medically safe abortion and because of the Hyde Amendment, which states that government funds can't be used for abortion, was forced to seek an illegal abortion. Jimenez was the first woman to die from a "back-alley" abortion and Isis feels there is a need for people to know, Tobgy said.

Similar rallies will be held on the same day in Buffalo and in New York City.

Isis started about three years ago in the Amherst-Northampton area. It is an affiliate of the Reproductive Rights National Network. The local group has about 15 active members, with a larger amount of people who participate with them in demonstrations and rallies.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Student Note Service employee Mike Mathews (left) hands class notes to a customer.

Student Note Service handles handles lecture notes

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

Students who tend to sleep through their morning classes or blow off their afternoon classes for a few beers at the Blue Wall have someplace to go for help.

The University of Massachusetts Student Note and Printing Service (SNPS) located in Room 403 of the Student Union Building sells notes for class lectures as well as affordable copying when a student has to copy a lot of notes fast.

Margaret Twohig, lecture note coordinator, said the biggest problem the service has is the fact that few students are aware the service exists or what it offers.

The Student Note Service (SNS) provides most classes with enrollments of over 200 students with supplementary notes for each of the lectures.

"The notes we supply should not take the place of regular class notes, but rather should be used as a supplement to the students own notes," Twohig said.

Most notes cost $5 for a half of a semester, while economics notes cost $4, Twohig said.

"The reason we charge by the half semester is to avoid the end of the semester rush and to see where we stand," she said.

The notetakers are students who have previously taken the course and received a grade of B or better, Twohig said.

"Most of the courses we have notes for are the introductory courses," said Cheryl Carey, a senior French major from Nahant who is the lecture note desk supervisor. Carey said because of this, the service caters mostly to freshmen, but "the problem with that is that most freshmen aren't aware of the service."

"Most professors are very helpful and welcome the notetakers. There are a few who won't though," she said.

Vickie Lanza, a senior economics major from Woburn who works at SNS, said the best time to get notes is now. By buying the notes early, she said, students can avoid the long lines at the end of the semester.

The courses that SNS currently has lecture notes for are: Anthropology 103B, Botany 100, COINS 121 and 123, Communications Studies 121 and 150, Economics 103A, C, D, E, and F, Economics 104B, C, and D, Food Science and Nutrition 102 and 130, Geology 103, HRTA 100, Mgt 301, Psych 100A, B, and D, Psych 150B, D, and E, Soc 102, and Zool 102.

However, the Student Note and Printing Service does not just provide lecture notes. Continued on page 8

THE TOUGHEST JOB YOU'LL EVER

LOVE...PEACE CORP

General Information Meeting
Tuesday, October 5th 7:30 p.m.
Rm. 122 Draper Hall
...Slides...Former Volunteers...Refreshments...

TIME OUT

Two TV's

Great Juke and Stereo

A GOOD PLACE TO START A CONVERSATION

Amherst's Biggest Little Bar
37 N Pleasant St, Amherst MA

FOUR SEASONS

Labatts.....beer & ale.....$9.99
Bud.....cans.....$8.99
Busch.....cans.....$7.99
Utica Club....16 oz returnable bottles....$6.99
Myers Dark Rum.....750.....$7.99
Cordon Bleu peppermint schnapps1.75$9.99
Clan McGregor Scotch...1.75...$11.99
Folonari Soave.....1.5.....$3.99
Casata wines.....3 L.....$4.99
Sebastiani table wines.....1.5.....$4.49

New Supply of Free Posters
WE DELIVER
Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley,ma./584-8174

PIZZARAMA
for
FREE DELIVERY
356 COLLEGE ST. AMHERST call 253-3808
Next to Spirit Haus & Cumberland Farms or 256-0115

RESUME WRITING
Efficient,
Quick,
Confidential
call 253-7468
After 5 PM
or Weekends

DELANO'S
OCTOBER'S
HAPPY HOUR
SPECIAL
2 for 1
Beck's Beer
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10 - midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St
253-5141

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Budweiser $8.99/case
Falstaff ..... $6.99 now $6.49/case
Becks (light or dark) ..... was $15.95 now $14.99/case
$3.99/6-pk
Labatt's (beer or ale) $10.49/case
$2.99/6pk
Gin or Vodka 80° $5.45/liter
Many more in store SPECIALS

Please recycle this Collegian

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

OPENING SPECIAL
25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

The People's Gay Alliance
Presents
A DANCE PARTY
Friday, October 1
9 pm - 2 am
Campus Center 10th Floor

Joey D's
THE AWESOME ALTERNATIVE
Something Different at Joey's
Evening Happy Hours this FRIDAY & SATURDAY NITE!
• Two for One 9:00 - 11:00
• A pouchful of prizes throughout the night
• $200 in certificates to be given out by Joey's Lodestone, Faces
* $1.00 cover both nites *
Proper dress and ID required
Located at the corner of Univ. Dr. & Rt. 9, Amherst

SALADS SUBMARINES SYRIANS
the sub
11 AM TO 2 AM 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST 549-5160
Friends and neighbors lend us your ears
(and your stomach)!

The SUB would like to offer you a coupon special. Buy any two subs and get a third* absolutely FREE! This coupon is good from now thru Nov. 9, 1982, on any Sunday or Tuesday between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.
We hope to see you soon and don't forget to bring a friend.
FREE 1 FREE sub with a purchase of any two whole subs when purchased along with this coupon.
coupon good til November 9, 1982 any Sun. or Tues. 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.
FREE
*Free sub is of equal or less value than most expensive sub purchased

Long-Range Plan experiences delay

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Correspondent

The chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst said the remainder of the plan originally scheduled to be released last April, will be released "some time this semester."

Robert Noland yesterday said the plan is not ready yet because of a lack of enthusiasm on the committee and uncertainty about what incoming Chancellor Joseph Duffey will want to do with the plan.

The report the committee is preparing includes all aspects of long range planning except planning for academic affairs which was covered in a report released last March, Noland said.

Student affairs, the chancellor's office, and administration and finance will be covered in the report. Under these categories, Health Services, the Campus Center, housing, and counseling and advising are specific areas Noland said would be discussed in the plan.

Noland declined to say exactly when the plan would be released. When he specified dates last year, the university community got "mad" when the report wasn't ready on time, he said.

"The committee didn't work too hard over the summer because of what happened last year," Noland said. Last year, the first part of the plan on academic affairs met opposition from faculty and students and was voted down by the faculty senate in May.

Currently the members of the committee are reviewing a rough draft of the plan written over the summer, Noland said.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

A large cylinder, used to test rare gasses, behind Engineering East, provides an interesting view.

UMassPirg to leaflet supermarkets for Bottle Bill

By PAUL BELVAL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (UMassPIRG) will begin leafletting area supermarkets this weekend in an attempt to save the Bottle Bill in the November elections.

Elaine Coveny, UMassPIRG's leafletting coordinator, said the group will be handing out leaflets supporting the Bottle Bill in supermarkets in Springfield, Holyoke, Chicopee, Northampton and Amherst.

The Bottle Bill won approval on last November's ballot and was scheduled to go into effect in January, but a group of people spearheaded by the bottling industry and the state's chain supermarkets collected the necessary 30,000 signatures to get the question back on this year's ballot.

Coveny said UMassPIRG will concentrate its efforts on the larger grocery stores in Chicopee, Holyoke and Springfield because "the people in this area (Amherst-Northampton) seem to be pretty much in favor of the Bottle Bill."

The leaflets ask the question, "Have you had it with the litter?" on the outside and presents facts concerning the economic and environmental advantages of the Bottle Bill on the inside.

She said the eastern chapters of MASSPIRG have already started leafletting grocery stores, and UMassPIRG passed out pamphlets at the Eastern States Exposition (Big E) last weekend.

"It went all right," she said. "People weren't as supportive as they are in this area, naturally. We gave out about 1,000 leaflets."

Coveny said she was optimistic that the Bottle Bill would not be defeated in November.

"I think the chances are pretty good," she said. "A lot of people are really behind it, and they're sick of being pushed around by big business."

If UMassPIRG's efforts fail, Coveny said the group will try to get the signatures to have the question placed on the ballot for a third time.

She said UMassPIRG will be passing out the leaflets at area supermarkets every weekend until the Nov. 2 election.

20% off
Leather Bags
$11.96
reg $14.95
short strap
Long or Short Strap

$12.76
Reg $15.95
shoulder strap
Assorted Colors
Quantities Limited
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-f 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

中華民國青年友好訪問團
YOUTH GOODWILL MISSION FROM TAIWAN
REPUBLIC OF CHINA
An Adventure in Chinese Songs and Dance
FREE ADM.
7:00 P.M.
Sunday, Oct. 3
Bowker Audit.
U. Mass.

Sponsered by Chinese Student Club
Asian American Student Association
International Program Office

Volunteers needed for group which serves abused women

Necessities, a program in Northampton serving women who are abused, will be holding a training program for volunteer hotline staffers. The training, which begins in mid-October, will prepare volunteers to work as hotline and advocacy staff members. Women with any experience or background are encouraged to participate. For more information, call 586-1125.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
THE FINEST IN ENTERTAINMENT
Ellis Ameling
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m.
Vienna Choir Boys
Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m.
Monday, October 18 8:00 PM
All shows on sale now
THE ZAGREB GRAND BALLET
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Newslines...

English language proficiency test scheduled for Tobin Hall

All potential English as a Second Language (ESL) students should take the Michigan Test of English Language Proficiency. The test will be given at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 6 in Room 204 of Tobin Hall. All students must register in person or by calling 545-2578. Additional testing dates will be Oct. 20, Nov. 3 and 17, and Dec. 1 and 8 at the same time and location.

Amherst Camera Club plans meeting, photo presentations

The Amherst Camera Club will hold its first meeting at 7:45 p.m. tonight in Room 227 of Herter Hall. The program will consist of a presentation by Alan Briere, a Northampton native and self-taught naturalist and photographer. Briere photographs the great outdoors in natural light, never using artificial lighting or background, according to the club.

Sukkos services to be held

Sukkos services will be held at Chabad House at 6:30 p.m. and 10:30 a.m. throughout the weekend. Meals will follow services, and no reservations are necessary.

★nuke rally

Continued from page 1

Jeffrey Kelly, a senior political science major and chairman of the UMass College Republicans, said he was then contacted by Shamie's office, which sought a campus sponsor and room for his appearance.

Because his group is, as part of a national organization, not allowed Recognized Student Organization (RSO) status, Kelley could not obtain a room in the Campus Center. Kelley, however, this week formed the Conservative Campaign Committee, which he expects will be certified as an RSO group in time to accommodate Shamie's campus visit.

★note service

Continued from page 5

"The print service offers high quality printing at the lowest prices around," and Peter Weber, a junior accounting major from Framingham. "We hope to expand printing in the next few years."

The print service prints posters and flyers for students, professors, and other groups. It also does most photocopying jobs.

Again, the main problem the service encounters is the lack of notoriety, Weber said.

Bob Ragland, the production manager of SNPS, said the print service is capable of much more than it is currently used for.

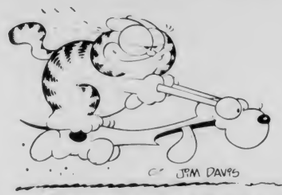
"When more students realize how inexpensive we are, hopefully they will come to us first," Ragland said.

Double Feature Only $2.50
CALVIN Theatre
October 1 - 7 only
at 7 & 9:15 STRIPES
at 9 THE ROAD WARRIOR starring Mel Gibson
In the future the roads will become battlefields
R
NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
Dollar Matinee Sun 2 PM

LEVI
Straight Leg
Denim
JEANS
$18.95
Reg $26.00
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant
Mon - Sat 10 -6
Fri til 9 pm

****
It's Coming
LAGNAF
83
****

Don't Be Late



Last Chance to Enter
Drawing Today
OCT. 1st
Win A Giant - over 2 feet tall
Garfield
Drop off coupon in our Clothing Dept.
Enter as many times as you like.
All entry's must be on official newspaper coupons.
Giant Garfield Contest
Name_____Phone_____
Address_____
Coupon must be dropped off in Clothing Dept.
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

Spirit Haus
WINES & LIQUORS
338 College Street
Budweiser cans.....$8.99 case
Rolling Rock.....$4.50 12 pack
Tuborg.....$2.25 6 pk
Albani Lager (Denmark).....$2.99 6 pk
Becks Beer.....$3.99 6 pack
Ed. Saarbach semi-dry white.....$2.99 liter
Segesta dry Italian white.....$2.99 liter
Folonari Soave.....$3.99 1.5 liter
Cossack Vodka.....1.75 liter $8.39
Booths Gin.....1 liter $7.45
Jim Beam Bourbon.....1.75 $11.99
not responsible for typographical errors

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The darker side of tuition bills

There are several corrections I wish to make concerning my bill for the fall semester of 1982. They are as follows:

Activities-Undergrad-Fall — This does not apply to me. I am a very inactive individual. When not in class or studying, I plan to sit in my room, chanting mantras, and philosophizing about the many mysteries of life.

Elizabeth Luciano

Campus Ctr-Undergrad-Fall — This, also, is inapplicable to me. I believe that the classroom is the center of the campus, because this is where learned men and women impart wisdom to the ignorant masses.

Health Fee-Undergrad-Fall — I personally have no need to be healthy. Mankind's madcap race for this ever-elusive goal is but a frivolous waste of time and cosmic energy.

I.D. Card-Undergrad-Fall — I am not in need of an I.D. card. Whenever I forget my name, I simply refer to my driver's license.

Athletic-Undergrad-Fall — I do not anticipate being athletic, not only because I lack any semblance of coordination and am never chosen when team sports are played, but also because I am conducting a personal experiment on muscular atrophication.

Recreation Fee-U-Fall — As previously stated, my only form of recreation is the recitation of Eastern syllables, and observing my own physical decline.

Fine Arts-Undergrad-Fall — The question of whether a given art is "fine" relies on an individual's opinion. I find all arts shallow and foolish. Thus, I am exempting myself from this fee.

Supplemental Health-Optional — I opt negatively (See item #3).

Board-14 Meal-Fall — I am spending the coming year refusing all nourishment except water, so that my father, Frank Lucianovski, may be permitted by Soviet officials to defect to the United States.

Rent Temporary-Fall — I have secured the Housing Assignment Office's approval to either pitch a tent in the middle of Metawampe Lawn, or reside in a kayak which I will paddle around the campus pond. (If the latter is preferred, I will construct an igloo on the pond. This will be my residence from late November until early April).

Telephone-Fall — The New England Telephone has deemed installation of a phone in a tent, igloo, or kayak inadvisable and unsafe. However,I will communicate with my parents via a bongo-drum relay that stretches along the eastern coast of the United States.

Tuition Out of State-Fall — While attending UMass, I will be residing in-state, and am therefore exempt from paying out-of-state tuition.

Mass PRIG-Fall-Optional — I am not a prig, and am thus declining the invitation to join an organization for prigs, although, (in a typical intellectual fashion), I respect their right to hold prig meetings and engage in priggish activities.

Performing Arts-UGRD-Fall — In the words of William Shakespeare, "All the world's a stage, and the men and women, merely players." Because all the world is a stage, it is presumptious and offensive of the University to attempt to claim a franchise on it. (Less astute students might not realize this, but you have not "pulled the wool" over my eyes!).

As you can see, due to the various deductions from my bill, I owe you nothing for the coming semester.

I have one further correction, regarding the name of your financial office. Money is held not in a burse, but in a purse. If you wish to be grammatically correct, the office should be renamed the Purser's Office.

Elizabeth Luciano is a UMass student.

Letters

PVHA representative defends area housing squeeze

To the Editor:

When the University of Massachusetts opened this fall newspapers reported that more than 400 students were unable to be housed on campus.

I have no information on the responsibility for the shortage which appears to occur on an annual basis, but I can report on the availability of private sector housing in Amherst. A survey of our membership, conducted by one of our members, disclosed that at least 120 units of housing (2 and 3 bedroom) were available. This is a sufficient number of tenant vacancies to house all of the displaced university students.

Despite the perennial allegations of rent pressure associated with demands for rent control this vacancy rate approximately 400 beds against 4000 available in the Amherst area is a very competitive and healthy market condition. In mid September at the supposed height of the rental market pressure, it constitutes a vacancy rate of approximately 10 percent. My most recent information suggests that the units remain available and that the secondary market in subletting and roommates is prospering.

Keith Jenkins
Pioneer Valley Housing Association

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Full-time or UMass lifer?

As I walked down the hall on the fourth floor of the Student Union, right by the senate offices, I saw Joe, one of my old buddies from SGA days, rushing towards me. Ducking into the nearest closet in hopes of losing him, I found myself trapped!

"Hey, John! How goes it?" he asked, peering out from his John Lennon glasses, a single strand of oily hair matted against his peach-fuzz covered cheek.

"Not bad, not bad at all," I said, attempting to hide my intense desire to bolt.

John F. Hudson

It's not that I don't like Joe, it's just that he's a prime example of academic procrastination at its best. Around this school he's more of a vague memory than a student. In my freshman year he was here, fighting battles in the Student Senate, for this cause or that. Back then he was supposed to be a senior, but who knows? Some old Physical Plant workers say he was the one who climbed to the top of the then unfinished library and unfurled a "Ho-Chi Minh for President" banner. Like bad Hatch coffee, long registration lines and happy hour at the Wall, Joe, it would seem, had become a part of the UMass scene. Together we made our way to the T.O.C. and sat down for a beer. What the hell, he was buying.

"Joe," I began, "weren't you here for the big protests in the sixties?"

"Yeah!" he began excitedly, "Those were the days. None of the apathetic bullshit of today. We knew our dreams, what we were fighting for..."

I interrupted. "But how come you're still an undergraduate here? You should have graduated years ago."

"Well, I took off a few years to go out to California and start a tofu farm, sort of an independent study for my B.D.I.C. degree-tofu husbandry. That didn't work out so I came back here. Went another year in geology, switched to fashion marketing, then to women's studies, poli sci, theology and now...uh...oh yeah! I've got an internship-president of the Radical Alliance for Public Education."

I thought about the group for a second as he adjusted his McGovern in '72 campaign button, and took a haul off his clove cigarette. I remembered a friend of mine had run for the same office, an undergraduate who had worked hard in the organization for two years in hopes of winning. Now it all came together.

"You mean to tell me," I said, "that you, a rerun radical who has trouble deciding on where his head's at, took away the chances for a truly deserving person to win!"

"Yup," he said proudly, "It took me thirteen years to get some type of student leadership position, but I finally did it!"

"How many credits do you have left to graduate anyway?"

"None, its just...that...well." He began to fidget and nervously tugged at his sad excuse for a beard. "Its the 36 incompletes that are giving me the real problem."

"You mean to tell me you've been here for thirteen years, wasting classroom space, taking up professor's time, and sliming off academic loopholes just because you couldn't figure out where your head is at?"

Suddenly he became defensive. "Look, by staying here I get cheap meals, political activism, a place to hang out and people that I like. If I can manipulate the system so I can do that, what's the hassle?"

He got up to leave, turning towards me just before he hit stride and said, "Look, you know, I know...maybe even Whitmore knows. But believe me, I'll be here long after you're gone."

With that he left, picking up a discarded Globe on the way out, stuffing it in to the back pocket of his well worn jeans. As I watched him walk away, I felt both anger and pity. Anger because of all the money, space, time and effort wasted by the University and students on this "student." Who knows? I may have been bumped from a freshman year class because of this guy. Even more though, I felt pity for the guy. Like so many other people you will meet in your life, he, like them cannot face the idea of growing up and going out into the real world. UMass is no more the real world than Disneyland or the boardwalk in Atlantic City. We live in a very comfortable cocoon, sheltered from the harsh economic conditions by study, fun, and leisure. Four or five years of this, or more advanced study is a logical bridge between the fun of high school and the kick-in-the-pants of graduation. Those like Joe live in a dream, where they idolize history instead of making it, exist in a vacuum instead of escaping it dream so many dreams they become real life.

"You are never given a dream witnout aiso being given the power to make it come true. You may have to work for it, however."

— Richard Bach

John F. Hudson is a Collegian columnist.

Sears

A. B. C.

20% OFF

Men's or women's casuals

A. For women: Soft supple leather uppers, long wearing, flexible man-made soles. Sizes 5½-9. 10B. Regular $29.99 — 23.99*

B. For men: Leather uppers with true moccasin construction. White composition grooved-rubber bottom. Sizes 7½-11, 12D. Regular $34.99 — 27.99*

C. For men: Rugged Fieldmaster™ outdoor casuals. Leather uppers. Vibram® rubber soles. Sizes 7½-11, 12D. Regular $44.99 — 35.99*

*With coupon

Redeem coupon for 20% OFF shoes shown
Name _____ School _____
Student _____ Faculty _____ Other _____
Coupon must be presented for savings
Coupon expires 10/2/82

You can count on Sears

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back

ALBANY NY · FAIRMONT FAIR NJ · EASTFIELD NY · GLENS FALLS NY · MIDDLETOWN NY · N SYRACUSE NY · POUGHKEEPSIE NY · WATERTOWN NY · AUBURN NY · NEWBURGH NY · EASTFIELD MALL MA · PITTSFIELD MA · HOLYOKE MA · NEW LONDON CT · BRIDGEPORT CT · HAMDEN CT · MIDDLETOWN CT · NEW LONDON CT · ORANGE CT · W HARTFORD CT · BURLINGTON VT

AMC THEATRES
2.00 Matinee & Twilite
Reduced Prices for Students & Senior Citizens with an AMC Discount Card

AMC HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL

E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL PG
He is afraid. He is lonely. He is dying. Phone home.
Fri(4:30 @ $2.00)7:15, 9:45
Sat(1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00)7:15,9:45
Sun(1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:00,9:15

PINK FLOYD THE WALL R
Fri(4:45 @ $2.00)7:30,10:15, 12:15
Sat(2:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00)7:30,10:15,12:15
Sun(2:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:00

RICHARD GERE
AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN
Fri(4:30 @ $2.00)7:15, 9:55
Sat(1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00)7:15, 9:55
R Sun(1:45 & 4:15 @ $2.00)6:45, 9:15

ROBIN WILLIAMS
He's got a funny way of looking at life.
THE WORLD ACCORDING TO Garp
Fri(4:15 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:45
Sat(1:30 & 4:15 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:45
R Sun(2:00 & 5:0 @ $2.00)8:00

AMC MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

LUCIANO PAVAROTTI IN Yes, Giorgio PG
Fri(4:30 @ $2.00)7:15, 9:55
Sat(1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00)7:15, 9:55
Sun (2:00 & 4:30 @ $2.00)6:45, 9:15

FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH
At Ridgemont High Only the Rules get Busted!
Totally Awesome!
R
Fri(4:45 @ $2.00) 7:45, 10:15
Sat(2:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00)7:45, 10:15
Sun(2:15 & 4:45 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:15

Most men dream their fantasies. Phillip decided to live his.
TEMPEST
JOHN CASSAVETES
GENA ROWLANDS
PG
Fri(4:15 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:55
Sat(1:30 & 4:15 @ $2.00)7:00, 9:55
Sun(1:45 & 5:00 @ $2.00)8:30

KATHARINE HEPBURN HENRY FONDA JANE FONDA
On Golden Pond PG
Fri(4:30 @ $2.00)7:30, 10:15
Sat(1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:30, 10:15
Sun(2:00 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 6:45, 9:00

MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY 12:15 AM ALL SEATS
AMC HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
50¢ off if dressed in costume
R

PINK FLOYD THE WALL R

THE MONSTER MOVIE R
AN AMERICAN WEREWOLF IN LONDON

The Three Stooges Film Festival PG

BARSELOTTI'S
Friday Happy Hour
Giant Ribs and Chicken Wings plus our usual low drink prices
4 - 7 PM
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Dr.
Amherst, MA
549-5713

Good Food and Drink
served in a comfortable, friendly atmosphere

1.) Delicious Luncheon Specials at $2.49
Mon - Fri 11:30 - 3:00
2.) Dinner Special for 2 - $8.95
Friday - Baked Boneless Breast of Chicken
or
Baked Stuffed Schrod
3.) 50¢ off any dessert - just mention this ad
4.) Daily Happy Hours 2:00 - 5:00 - FREE PIZZA!

"The First Time"

Exercise Enthusiast: It was in the Fall of 1981, September 22 at 6:00 to be exact -
Good Friend: You remember the exact moment?!
Exercise Enthusiast: Of course, one never forgets their "First Time"
Good Friend: It must have been quite an experience, you must tell me about it -
Exercise Enthusiast: I was introduced to the "Beyond Fitness" Class by a friend of mine, while we were comparing jogging shoes, this energetic individual asked for my pulse rate.
Good Friend: Go on.
Exercise Enthusiast: She looked me straight in the eye and said "HEART RATE, COUNT, STOP" - I'm sorry, I don't speak aerobic-neeze, Neither do I, she said - I was so embarassed -
Good Friend: I can see why -
Exercise Enthusiast: Anyway she led me onto the gym floor and we did a few knee lifts -jog forward -shoot up, clap and smile - then I understood -
Good Friend: How was it?
Exercise Enthusiast: At first I didn't catch on. Then I realized the program is built around routines - some easy at first, and then building each time - as my fitness level increased - so did the activity - Good Friend: Was she amused&
Exercise Enthusiast: Very, she said "you'll acquire the knack of it, most people do - and she was right -my second time was much better - and now I do aerobic training as much as I can -
Good Friend: Did you ever see the young woman again?
Exercise Enthusiast: No, but I plan to meet with her again when classes begin in October - I've become physically active over the summer and have enjoyed it many weays since the first time, now I can teach her a thing or two -
If this is your "First Time" make it memorable - join on-going classes at Shutesbury Elementary School - classes being offered in Amherst-Program outlay - focuses on:

- Overall conditioning
  - Cardio-vascular
    - Flexibility
      - Weight control
        - Muscle toning

Classes and registration begin October 4th. For more information - call Erma Rocasah at 549-6111 - (after 5:00 p.m.)

FALL THEME "GOOD FRIENDS"

Arts

Pink Floyd's The Wall is missing a few bricks

PINK FLOYD THE WALL
Directed by Alan Parker
Starring David Gilmour
Hampshire Mall

By DOUGLAS MUISE
Collegian Staff

Yeah, I know — "intense" party, "intense" personality, even "intense" yogurt — the word intense has lost the brunt of its impact as an adjective as it has crept into overuse. But in my scrambles to find the ideal superlative to describe Pink Floyd's latest cinematic venture, The Wall, the word "intense" just seems remarkably appropriate. And when I say intense, believe me, I mean INTENSE. This flick has got a violent-acts-per-minute quota that's just plain startling. Visually, the film is a total trip, a full scale visceral assault. But it ends there. The jarring is totally physical, not cerebral. You leave the theater feeling as if you've been boxed about the head and face for 90 minutes, but darned if you know how your a better person for it.

About the plot. Imagine, if you can, the head-banger, pseudo-profundy lyrics and music of The Wall LP accompanied by visual images. Pretty wild is right.

Our protagonist is Pink, a rock guitarist who sits locked in his hotel room before a gig catatonically watching TV. He's doped-up, burned-out, and pretty much fed-up with his life as a performer. As he sits watching some crusty war flick, we flash-back with him in time as he surmounts the "wall" he has built around unpleasantries in his past. Pink's father was a victim of Hitler's invasion of Britain, and the film follows Pink's attempt to reconcile his indignation at the absurdity of his death. The rest I just couldn't figure out.

I recommend The Wall solely as a cinematic spectacle. The animation is superlative if not terrifying and overall the film is pretty shattering. But if its something substantial you're looking for, better forget it.

Photo courtesy of MGM

Pink (David Gilmour) checks out the late show in Pink Floyd's The Wall which opened last week at the Hampshire Mall.

Diva keeps eyes rolling

DIVA
Directed by Istvan Szabo
Starring Klaus Maria Brandauer
Academy of Music, thru October 7

By KEN LUNDBERG
Collegian Staff

Like other foreign films that have made profitable showings in theaters throughout the country this year, Diva has been no exception in satisfying the varied tastes of American movie-goers. Having played the Nickelodean Theater in Boston since the beginning of the summer, the film undoubtedly deserves the notoriety it has gained for making money with ...grace.

Diva succeeds brilliantly by combining stylish and visually exciting modes of European film technique with a Hollywood pretension for form and function. With the extravagant but practical appeal of a neon light, suspense blinks on and on in this colorful thriller.

Although it is hard to say whether there is any real meaning beneath the films glossy coating of pop images, a certain cultural richness is given off. Brought together is an entanglement of schemes and probably the most unexpected grouping of characters to be chanced in any recent cinematic endeavor.

The implausible cast of misfits includes: A goddess-like black opera soprano who refuses to be recorded; a delivery boy whose infatuation for the diva sets him on heroic adventures to protect his musical passions; a precocious Vietnamese girl who has a thing for transparent clothes and shoplifting; an eccentric who is infatuated with the Vietnamese girl; and of course, the punk hit man who hates everything but his wraparound sunglasses.

The film remains incredibly poised as it works all these bewildering elements together into a smooth transgression of absurdity. The manipulative, visual, and verbal twists in movement never go so far as to jar the film's continuity from frame to frame. All the strange pieces fit together somehow and the result is a happy American audience.

The unlikely lot of characters are propelled by love, pride, greed and moped through a string of events suitable to any contemporary city, like Paris, as is the case here.

Keeping in step behind the delivery boy, Jules (Frederic Andrei) gets mistakenly involved in separate intrigues of pirated recordings and prostitution. We feel pressure mounting as two pairs of hoods, the police and a Cop on the take tracks him down.

By stealing the robe of the diva, early on in the film, Jules trips into a mess that takes two hours to complicate further and finally figure out. One thing leads to the next and before you know it he is stuck in a lopsided romance with an international opera singer and two tapes that some very crooked people want desperately and are willing to kill for.

Unbashedly funny, surprising and straightforward, Diva keeps the eyeballs rolling with portrayal of far reaching lifestyles that in the end are somehow believable.

Diva is an eye-catching merry-go-round that, while spinning you in the same circle over and over again, never lets you see an image in the same way twice.

Trailers
by Andy Gordon

On the action front, John Badham's Blue Thunder is packed with it. The film stars Roy Scheider as a helicopter pilot in the Los Angeles of the future. In addition to numerous copter chases and shootouts, the film features a helicopter actually crashing into an apartment complex. Malcolm McDowell and the late Warren Oates also star in the film, which is due out in December.

On the other end of the spectrum, two small films concern themselves with the joys and pangs of human relationships. Beginners stars Maureen McGovern and Keith Gordon as young lovers. Baby, its You has a similar plot; two lonely high school students from Trenton, New Jersey come together. The film, which is due out in October, was directed by John Sayles (Return of the Secaucus Seven) and was produced by actors Amy Robinson, Griffin Dunne (Jack in An American Werewolf in London) and Mark Metcalf (Doug Neidermeier in Animal House). Meanwhile, the trio's first team effort, Joan Micklin Silver's Head Over Heels, has been re-edited and will be rereleased as Chilly Scenes of Winter. The film stars John Heard and Mary Beth Hurt.

Critics are now claiming that Michael Cimino's massive flop, Heaven's Gate was ruined by the studio's insistence that he halve the film's original 220 minute running time. A restored version of the original recently succeeded as a midnight movie and will probably be sold to television as a mini-series.

The recent tour of the Rolling Stones has been captured on film. The film, titled Time is on our Side, will open this fall. 27 songs were filmed from two concerts — Phoenix and Meadowlands — of which the best will be used in the final cut. The concert film was directed by Hal Ashby, who made such wonderful films as Harold and Maude, Shampoo and Coming Home and filmed by several acclaimed cinematographers, including Caleb Deschanel (Being There, The Black Stallion).

Sack Cinemas president A. Alan Freidberg is having a new cinema complex built in Boston's Copley Square. The Sack Nineplex will show only foreign, revival and art films. One has to understand, however, that this will destroy the city's older art houses: The Exeter, the Nickleodean, The Orson Welles and The Coolidge Corner, who don't have as strong a powerful buying power as Sack. Nice going, A. Alan.

Cheech and Chong, Richard Pryor, Gilda Radner, John Candy and Dan Aykroyd are the narrators for It Came From Hollywood, an anthology of film comedies. The compilation flick is due out this month.

Local Best Bet: Diva, the wonderful French film, continues through October 7 at the Academy of Music in Northampton.

TRAILERS Trivia: Match the beer with the film it was consumed in —

ET	Budweiser
The Deerhunter	Coors
The Cannonball Run	Michelob
An Officer and a Gentleman	Rolling Rock

Photo courtesy of Columbia Pictures

Cheech and Chong are among the many narrators for It Came From Hollywood, due out this month.

The rusty nail Inn presents

Fri. Oct. 8 Robin Lane
Sat. Oct.9 Commander Cody
Sat. Oct. 16 - Billy Idol & the Atlantics
Sat. Oct. 23 - The Busboys
Thurs. Oct. 28 - Marshall Crenshaw

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Mike's Smorgy is back!
"All you can eat for $1.00"
Still the best happy hour in town
three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25
Bar drinks - 95¢
4:00 - 7:00

Non-Football Sandwich Special
Eat until you can't
$1.00
12 oz Rolling Rocks .85¢
1:00 - 6:00

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

POSTERS
Largest Selection Ever

Bamboo BLINDS
From $5.50!

BEDSPREADS
cover walls, furniture, windows
from $7.95

Rugs & Mats
colorful, durable

Paper Lampshades

CARDS
over 1400 designs

Greatly Expanded SKIRTS & BLOUSES
lots of comfortable cotton

Brass and Sterling Jewelry earrings, rings, etc.

Clothing Sale!
T-Shirts
India Print - 4.50
Solid Color - 3.50 to 5.50
Tank Tops - 3.95 to 5.95
20 - 50% OFF selected Blouses, Skirts

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
TONIGHT
FRI. OCT. 1
Beau Bolero
BEAU BOLERO
in a tribute to STEELY DAN
2.50 cover

Beau Bolero recreates Steely Dan the audience responded with a standing ovation.

When a band comes to town claiming to be a Steely Dan "clone", one cannot help being skeptical about their talent. Any skepticism was quickly dispelled however, when the Beau Bolero Band took to the stage in a recent concert.
Imagine the music of Steely Dan in concert.
the next best thing is Beau Bolero.

SAT. OCT. 2
THIRD EYE ©82
MARTIAN HIGHWAY
—WITH CARL MARTIAN—
1.50 cover

Court decides prayer unconstitutional

By STEVEN A. COHEN
Associated Press

BOSTON — In an advisory opinion, the state Supreme Court held yesterday for the second time in two years, that a bill allowing prayer in public schools is unconstitutional, even with a new provision for meditation.

The advisory opinion was requested by the Massachusetts House in connection with a bill that provides for a "student volunteer" to offer a period of prayer or meditation at the opening of the first class each day.

But the court, in a 5-2 decision, held that "the addition of the words 'or meditation' is of no constitutional significance in this context... The proposed statute, on its face, demonstrates an intent to return prayer to the public schools."

The court said the bill "is almost indistinguishable in substance" from a 1979 statute allowing voluntary prayer in schools that was held in 1980 to violate the constitutional separation of church and state.

"The only discernible distinction between the 1979 statute" and this bill is that the new bill "does not exclusively contemplate that the student volunteer will offer a prayer," the court said. "The student may offer a period of meditation...

"Neither the fact that the opening period may sometimes result in silent meditation, nor that its observance is by a student volunteer, can serve to free the proposal from the limitations of the Establishment Clause" of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

★ draft law

Continued from page 3

not registering was inadequate, noting that many students have either not received their registration forms or have lost them.

Jackson said he was opposed to the law because they would require his office do a large amount of additional paperwork and checking.

"I hope universities do not become enforcement agencies for other arms of the government," Jackson said. "That's a political hot spot."

Braine said too many agencies are being forced to work with Selective Service in enforcing the laws.

"Many governmental agencies are being used to support the Pentagon...including the Post Office, Social Security, the Internal Revenue Service, and now all colleges and universities. These agencies are being brought under a military banner," Braine said.

Photo by Bradford Hammer

The light at the end of the tunnel is clearly pointed out to motorists leaving the Campus Center garage.

B"H
SUCCOT CANDLELIGHTING

* Fri. Oct. 1st at 6:13 PM - light no later than this time
* Sat. Oct 2nd at 7:21 Pm - light from a pre existing flame, no earlier than this time sponsored by Chabad Student Coalition for details on Succot events call 253-9040

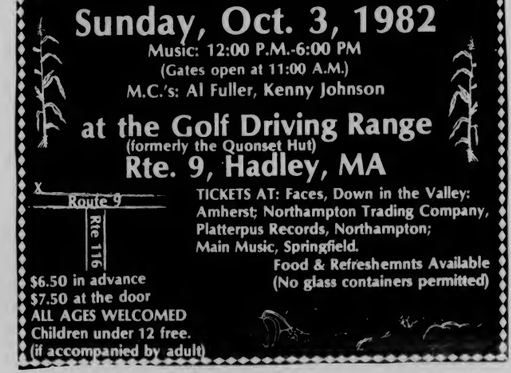
FRIDAY
Happy Hour
35¢ Beers
PUB MUGS
— 3 'til 6 —
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, OCT. 2
THE GREAT FALL HAT SALE
20% OFF
our entire selection of Fashion & Casual Hats

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

INDIAN SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVAL
OUTDOOR CONCERT
with
The James Cotton Blues Band
Mitch Chakour and Urban Renewal
Bev Rohler and Marion Groves
First Rate
John Coster & the Medicine Band
on
Sunday, Oct. 3, 1982
Music: 12:00 P.M.-6:00 PM
(Gates open at 11:00 A.M.)
M.C.'s: Al Fuller, Kenny Johnson
at the Golf Driving Range
(formerly the Quonset Hut)
Rte. 9, Hadley, MA



TICKETS AT: Faces, Down in the Valley: Amherst; Northampton Trading Company, Platterpus Records, Northampton; Main Music, Springfield.
Food & Refreshemnts Available
(No glass containers permitted)
$6.50 in advance
$7.50 at the door
ALL AGES WELCOMED
Children under 12 free.
(if accompanied by adult)

It's not what you see.

It's how you see it.

Kodak

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

For women
DISTRESSED by PREGNANCY...
Services that are confidential, helpful, caring and free.
Birthright
Amherst area: 549-1906
Spfld. area: 732-6184

LAGNAF 83

FREE
OFF CAMPUS DELIVERY
$15.00 Minimum
TELEPHONE 253-3091
Lowest Price on Budweiser in Town
Bud 12 oz. ..... $8.49 case
Becks light or dark 12 oz bottles... $14.50 case
Busch 12 oz loose cans ..... $7.99 case
Almaden mountain wines 1.5 liter..... 4.79
Gallo hearty burgundy & chablis 1.5 liter. $4.50
Canadian Mist 1 liter..... $7.75
C & C PACKAGE STORE
61 MAIN STREET
"Across the street from Plumbleys" special in store cash only

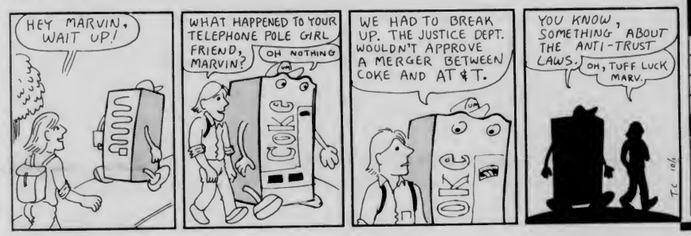
THINK DICK'S
FRIDAYS & SATURDAYS
Buy 1 Get 1 FREE
8-10:30
COME ON AND DANCE TO THE BEAT
POOR RICHARD'S ASHFUP

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa



Gooz by G. Masse

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Tuna Grinder
Macaroni and Cheese

DINNER
Salisbury Steak/French Fried Onion Rings
Shrimp and Scallop Creole
Egg Salad Plate with Saltines

BASICS LUNCH
Bulgar and Bean Salad
Macaroni and Cheese

BASICS DINNER
Creamed Vegetable Croquette with Sauce
Shrimp and Scallop Creole

Saturday
BRUNCH
Scrambled Eggs
Breakfast Sausage
Waffles/Maple Syrup
Sloppy Joe

DINNER
Baked Chicken/ Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce
Baked Ziti
Garbanzo Vegetable Bake

Sunday
BRUNCH
Boiled Eggs
Omelet
Bacon Slices
Hot Corned Beef on Rye
Rice Frittata
DINNER
Au Jus
Kielbasa Grinder
Sauerkraut
Gr[illegible]

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Tolerate
6 Match up
10 Gumbo ingredient
14 Concentrate
15 — Stanley Gardner
16 Russian form of "Caesar"
17 Weather insurance of a kind
19 Designate
20 Pitchblende, e.g.
21 Makes known
22 Coins
24 Hangings
26 Ancestry
27 Last letter, in London
28 Atmosphere
29 Extinct flightless bird
32 Dalai
35 Thatcher country home
37 Yearn
38 Makes well
40 Calif.'s partner
41 Cocker spaniel of political fame
43 Your own worsteds' enemy?
44 And so on, in a way
45 French lady friend
46 Latin possessive
47 Book of —, (Celtic manuscript)
49 Artist's medium
52 Part of a BLT sandwich
54 Defraud
55 Repent of 57 Composer Khatchaturian
58 Harness restraints
61 Western defense pact
62 Short pleated skirt
63 Acronym in music
64 Valley
65 Watering places
66 Lachrymal

DOWN
1 Natural hairdo
2 Provide meals
3 More frigid
4 Neutral color
5 Issues from
6 Jurors
7 Follows a curving course
8 Sort
9 Breathes
10 Vocal group
11 Prague track games?
12 Uncommon
13 "— and the Man"
18 Hastened
23 Country of SW Asia
25 Montezuma, for one
26 Inlaid cabinet work
28 Try — (litigate)
30 Mus. org.
31 Invites 32 Appearance
33 Eight: Ger.
34 Last word in chess?
36 Shipping menace of 1917
38 Part of the "forest primeval"
39 Sister of Ares
42 Cold, in Cologne
43 Aquatic rodent
46 Dr. Jonas —
48 De Valera of Ireland
49 Early British people
50 Author Jong
51 Crescent-shaped
52 Distinctive flavor
53 Exam of a sort
54 Composer Bartok
56 Catch sight of 59 With it
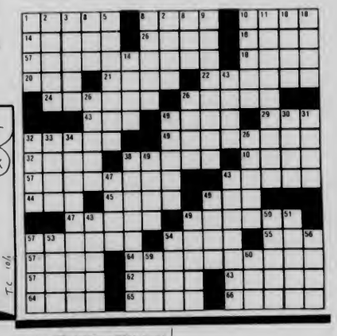
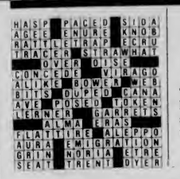
60 Ending with journal etc.





WEATHER

Partly sunny today, highs 70 to 75. Clear tonight, lows 40 to 50. Mostly sunny tomorrow highs 60 to 70.

WMUA 91.1 FM

Friday

6-9am	Teresa Mitchel	6-7pm	Athena's Web — Don Cerow
9-noon	Concepto Latino
12-3pm	Carl Lowman Rythym Section	7-10pm	T.K. Til Ten
		10-2am	Vickie Bates
3-5:30	Jim McDee	2-6am	More Music
5:30-6	Newswatch

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Friday

Pireted Video Today

10:30 - 11:30	Sun Ra concert
11:30 - 12:30	Jazz with Spyro Gyra
12:30 - 1:30	A Retrospect of the Doors
1:30 - 2:00	Last Great Americans

STADIUM LIQUORS
U. Mass. Amherst

10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Miller Lite 12 pk cans..... $4.25
Bud 12 oz bottles..... $8.95
Busch 12 oz cans..... $7.95
Labatts Beer and Ale $9.95
Rolling Rock 12 pk cans..... $4.00
O'Keefe Ale 12 pk..... $5.25

Cossack Vodka 1.75 L..... $8.20
Schmirnoff Vodka 1.75..... $10.95
Costillo Rum 1.75..... $9.95
Kennedy's American Blend 1.75.. $9.95
Seagram's 7 1.75..... $12.95

Balbon White Table Wine 1.5. $4.95
California Cellars 1.5..... $4.29
Los Hermanos 1.5..... $4.29
Principato 1.5..... $3.99

not responsible for typographical errors

Catch Our Weekly Specials

DORITOS ½ lb. .99¢

253-5595

Sports

Thanks, to the NFL owners

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Correspondent

Entering my second weekend without pro football, due, of course, to the strike, I can honestly state, as a recovering pro football addict, that I find myself relieved, even happy, that I will not be transfixed to the television set for six hours this Sunday and three hours both Monday and Thursday nights.

Commentary

Being a junkie, I admit the thought of not seeing Lawrence Taylor dismembering opposing quarterbacks, Kellen Winslow making acrobatic catches, or Earl Campbell running rampant through defenses had me worried. In fact, I was losing sleep at nights trying to figure out solutions to the owner-player impasse.

Now, however, that the worst has happened, due to the greed of the owners, I find myself still living. In fact, not only am I surviving, I may even be thriving.

With an apology to the players, who I refuse to give credit to for the strike since they acted as any rational human beings would, I must thank the owners for freeing me from my obsession.

For, without the owners insistence upon keeping the most abused athletes in professional sports the most underpaid (while their own profit margins are the largest), this strike never would have occurred and I still would be watching 12 hours of football weekly.

As it is, my life has radically changed for the better. On Sunday I can now sleep late, there being no need to wake up early to catch the 1:00 p.m. game.

Once up, I now have the time to call my family and let them know that I am still alive and well. This weekend, being particularly ambitious, I plan on writing a letter to a long-neglected girlfriend, an extravagance I did not have time for prior to the strike.

Intramural football action continues on at Boyden playing fields. Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Also, I will not have to undergo the emotional roller-coaster of rooting for my team, the Giants, as they teeter precariously between victory and defeat. Heartbreak will be unknown as it will be impossible for the Giants to lose while on strike.

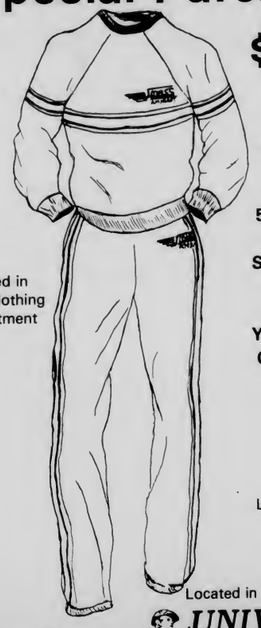
My academic life should prosper as well. No more missing Tuesday and Friday morning classes because there will be no need to stay up until 1:00 a.m. without football and Howard on the tube.

These are just a few of the benefits of the strike that I have the owners to thank for. Perhaps I will write them letters thanking them for their greed.

In the meantime, I will pass the time reading accounts of strike negotiations, watching the baseball season wind down and waiting for Larry Bird and the Celtics to start playing basketball again.

Besides, as my dad told me when I called him last Sunday, the strike cannot last forever.

Special Purchase



$26.95

complete Jogging Suit

50% cotton
50% polyester

Sizes Available
S-M-L-XL

Your Choice of Grey, Navy or Maroon

Limited Quantities Available

Located in The Clothing Department

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Free Beverages
BONANZA
with all Specials

The Bonanza Special's For Every Day of the Week!!!!!

MON	TUE	WED	THUR	FRI	SAT	SUN	BONUS
½ chop steak $3.99	Ribeye Dinner $4.49	all the fish you wish $4.89	Sirloin Tips $4.49	Fish/Shrimp $4.99	Chicken Teri $4.99	½ lb Sirloin Strip $5.49	USDA Texas Steak $4.49

Mon Only
½ Lb. Chop Steak includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls & beverages $3.99

Tue Only
Ribeye Dinner
includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls & beverages $4.49

Wed Only
All the Fish You Wish
Baked Haddock or Fried Flounder
$4.89

Thur Only
Sirloin Tips
includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.49

Fri Only
Fish/Shrimp Plt.
includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.49

Sat Only
Chicken Teri
includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.49

Sun Only
½ Lb. Sirloin Strip
includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $5.49

BONUS COU... USDA Choice Texas Longhorn St... includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.49

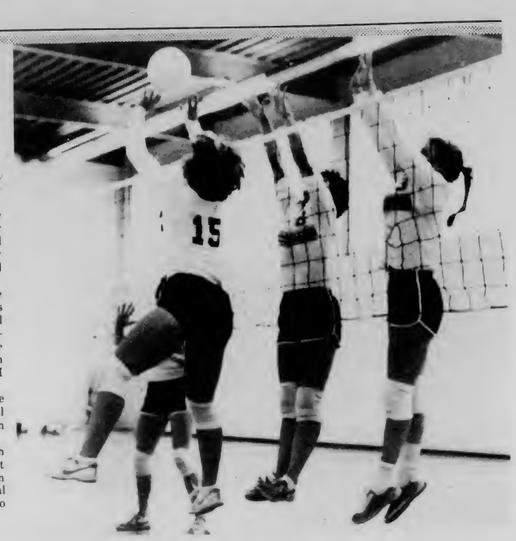
HOURS
Mon - Thur & Sun 11-9 pm
Fri & Sat 11 - 10 pm

BONANZA® Freshtastic Salad Bar
Rt 9 (in front of the Hampshire Mall)
Head for Bonanza Instead, Head for Bonanza's Freshtastic Salad Bar

Sports

Volleyball team to host UMass tournament



By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Fast hard-hitting power volleyball will be the name of the game as the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team hosts the UMass Classic volleyball tournament, today and tomorrow in Boyden Gym.

Sixteen teams will battle it out for the championship and UMass has as good a shot as anybody to win. What coach Elaine Sortino will be looking for is her team to keep improving and play together.

UMass has been improving over the past two weeks. A major problem was the Minutewomen's inability to keep their serves in bounds. Wednesday, against Boston College and MIT, UM only missed the serve six times.

"Our missed serves are really down and that's a good sign," said Sortino. "I was pleased with what the team was doing (vs. MIT, BC). We compliment each other very well. If one person is off another one will pick up the slack."

However, it has been inexperience that has hurt the Massachusetts spikers. MIT, who has been the state champion during the past three years, confused UMass with a slow, ball-control offense and the Minutewomen had a hard time adjusting.

"Basically, we had five rookies out there (experience-wise) and MIT threw off our timing," explained Sortino. "But, we still did some good things. MIT didn't block any of our spikes and Karen Gottesman played very well as setter."

Gottesman and captain Patti Philbin, the only senior on the team, will lead UMass into the classic, where they will face Cornell in their first match. Queens and Northeastern University will also be part of the Minutewomen's qualifying pool. Both Cornell and Northeastern are division I schools.

Unlike the slow, ball-control type of game played by MIT, the UMass Classic will feature power hitting volleyball and action that will be fast and furious.

Action will start tonight at 6:00 p.m. with qualifying pool action lasting until about 11:00 p.m. Saturday, play starts up again bright and early at 9:00 a.m. Semi-final action starts at 2:30 p.m. with the finals to be held at 4:00 p.m.

Westfield State has no guts for UM netmen

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Correspondent

No doubt about it, the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team was loose and confident going into their match against Westfield State yesterday on the Boyden Courts.

While the late-arriving visitors went through a quick warm-up, the Minutemen engaged in a game of home-run derby in which the contestants each took shots at depositing balls on the roof of Goodell Library. After this exhibition the netmen proceeded to more important matters by smashing an obviously outclassed Westfield State, 9-0.

The extent of the UMass rout can be translated into simple statistics: there were seven sets in which Westfield State failed to win a single game and four others in which they managed to win only one. Westfield State only won twenty-five games in the entire match.

Neal Mackertich, at his usual number one spot, polished off Mike Fowler 6-2, 6-0 to start the ball rolling. Nick Julian, at number two waltzed past Robert Easterbrook 6-1, 6-3. The only difficulty UMass experienced all match was at number three singles with Steve Jordan fighting off a stubborn Pete Gardner 6-4, 5-7, 6-3. Stuart Goodman continued the onslaught with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Buddy Hood.

"It was a match I could practice my weakness, which is my serve and volley game. It'll help my confidence, which I will need later on," said Goodman.

Rich Lindgren pounded Bob Frazier 6-0, 6-1 at number five.

"I played great. It was a lot better than yesterday (Wednesday versus UConn)," said Lindgren.

Dace Singer finished off the destruction with a 6-0, 6-0 wipeout of John Aho.

"It was good serving practice. I was serving great. I really wasn't tested," said Singer.

It was the same story in the doubles.

Mike Douseau-Singer destroyed Easterbrook-Hood 6-0, 6-1. Eric Glassoff and Mark Gelinas, both in their collegiate debuts, certainly made a favorable impression with a 6-0, 6-0 whitewashing of Aho-Frazier. Dave Salem-Jordan also had an easy time with Westfield team of Mike Osborne-Fowler, 6-0, 6-0.

Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Senior captain Bruce Emerson practices his pitching yesterday after practice. Fall baseball is in full swing now for UMass. They play on Lorden Field.

The NFL strike: What if...

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

As millions of professional football fans prepare to enter the second weekend in a row without being able to watch the action of their favorite team, the "what-ifs" of the National Football League strike continue to pile up.

Commentary

While newspaper columnists and television know-it-alls keep up their analyses of the strike and the issues, very few people seem to acknowledge the inevitable. As the NFL owners and the players' union continue to play chicken and wait for each other to cave in, both seem resilient in their determination to win the strike. Neither side appears willing to budge. It's safe to say neither will and this NFL season will become a write-off.

But then what? If the strike is settled over the summer and football returns next fall, the NFL must grapple with the question of the annual collegiate draft. In a year in which only two games were played, how on earth do you distribute draft picks? The possibilities are endless.

First, the league can go by the records of teams in the two game season. If they do, Baltimore, Seattle, the Giants, Tampa Bay, Chicago, San Francisco and the LA. Rams would have all tied for last with 0-2 records. Then, the NFL could either conduct a lottery between the teams, combine this season's records with last year's to determine the low man on the totem pole, or simply let the greedy owners bid on the rights to claim the dubious distinction of being the worst team in the NFL after a two game season.

This year, perhaps more than any other, the rights to the first round draft pick are crucial. The reason: Herschel Walker. The Georgia running back, possibly the most celebrate college football player in history (and certainly one of the most talented) will be up for grabs and all 28 teams would surely love to sink their claws into his muscular hide. The politics of determining who gets the first pick should prove quite interesting in the strike.

When the dust finally settles and the draft pick order is decided, one lucky team will walk off with the grand prize. Walker will undoubtedly help any team he goes to, no matter how much depth they now possess. The team which gets Walker will become the real winner in this strike.

It would be a terrible shame if Herschel Walker's future in the NFL is altered because of the strike. If political wheeling-dealing wins out over common sense, Walker's career could become tainted with the realization that he became the first free agent rookie in the league's history. It would be unfair to Walker and the game as a whole.

Perhaps cooler heads will prevail, however, and the usually ineffective Pete Rozelle will prevent this sham from occurring. Perhaps he can devise a better method for determining the draft oder. Maybe they'll go by last year's records. Herschel Walker would then end up wearing the red and white uniform of the New England Patriots.

Wouldn't that be nice? New Head Coach Ron Meyer could then begin his first full year in the NFL with a strong team built around two first round draft picks — Walker and this year's rookie sensation, Ken Sims. The Pats' rebuilding program would be well under way and success could be close at hand.

Of course, this is all conjecture and based more on wishful fantasies than actual hard facts. But then, in the crazy, unpredictable, greed-ridden world of professional sports, anything can happen. Maybe the players association will sign with the new United States Football League and put the old NFL out of business.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc - Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUTO FOR SALE

'66 VW Bug very good mechanical shape. Runs well. $400. BO 665-4669

1972 Chevrolet Van runs well. Outfitted as camper. Radial tires & snows. Auto trans, 6 cyl. $1300. 256-0452

1972 Toyota Corolla some rust $350 253-9794

Datsun 240Z 1971 excellent cond. call 665-3047

Clean 1973 Honda Civic engine rebuilt 1982 new tires 1595 774-5306

77 Toyota Celica-GT, standard, excellent condition, 56,000 mi, alarm, AM/FM/tape, louvers, $3595/BO 253-9389 after 5

1972 Datsun 510 manuel, tape-deck, runs good, looks fair, $900.00 or BO 256-6668 evenings

68 Olds Cutlass runs well exc transpor call Bob 549-6416

69 Chevelle Malibu new brakes, shocks, tires, stereo. Good condition, runs well. $700 or best offer. 256-6222, Dan or Norma

Sporty French Sedan Renault R12 fwd 4 doors, peppy, 30 mpg, excellent engine, body, and interior, no rust, no dents $1800.00 256-8871

AUTO REPAIR

Auto Repair--U.S. & Foreign, lowest rates, quick service, No. Hadley Motorworks, 586-9029

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BLUES LOVERS

John Lee Hooker and the Coast to Coast Blues Band will appear in the Student Union Ballroom, Saturday October 16 at 8:00 pm. Tickets on sale Oct. 5--$3 545-2145

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kalush 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJ's FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks, Parties, Semis. Paul 549-4405 Joe 549-1588.

FOR RENT

Double rooms available 1000/semester all util inc rent by semester ask for Sue 253-9929 after 8:30 PM

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

New Dunham Boots size 10½ - too big for me. $50 6-7487 Marc

Attention COINS 121/123 students. Tired of the terminal lines? Own for less than the cost of renting. For information call Rob 6-5365.

Beautiful handcrafted wooden bunk for sale. Great spacesaver for dorm rooms. $75 or best offer 549-6739

Bass amp Fender Music Master $125, BO 253-9698

2 tickets, Van Halen, New Haven Col. 10/7 BO 546-8682

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience, 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Parttime position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel, and work experience. Contact Beach Comber Tours, Inc. PO Box 1236, Burlington, MA 01803 617-273-2423

2 soccer coaches needed for grades 4 - 6, So Deerfield, after school, 3 - 4:30, 2 - 3 days per week, $5.00 per hour. Contact Mrs. Reid, 665-2272 or grade school, 665-3820

INSTRUCTION

Tutoring Math Physics 256-0193

JUDGES NEEDED

The Commuter Collective is now taking applications for the University Judiciary Committee. Two judge will be appointed by October 1. Stop by 404 SUB 545-2145

LESBIAN/GAY

Are you gay? Is someone you care about? If you need someone to talk to, call the Lesbian's and Gay men's Counseling Collective Thursdays, 6-9 pm, at 545-2645

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Men's high school class ring. Lost on 9/27 at Boyden. Much sentimental value. Reward. Please call Andy at 665-3466 or turn in to lost & found at Boyden

Lost! Pair of glasses (light brown) near Cottage C if found call 323-5966 Darlene

Wallet and Band Jacket in Sylvan call 6-9643 jacket has the name Jay on it

Help!! Lost purple & gold bead bracelet & silver bracelet with large greyish stone -sentimental - my Dad gave them to me REWARD! 6-5087

Keys - Room/Bike key ring says Jill call 6-9212

Lost! Thin gold medallion inscribed on both sides: - MRS 1982 - - NDA Tyngsboro - very sentimental any info please call Peggy 6-8029

Glasses thin rims maybe case (brown) 665-4931 keep trying

9-20-82 in Mach W-11. Lee dungaree jacket great sentimental value call Janice 6-6334

MEN - WOMEN

JOBS ON SHIPS! American, Foreign, no experience required. Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Summer job or career. Send $3.00 for information. SEAFAX, Dept D-4 Box 2049, Port Angeles, Washington 98362

MOTORCYCLE

Honda 350 '73 ex cond $550 or best offer call Dan 6-5168

1972 Yamaha R5 350 cc two-stroke oil injection dual carbs caf'e bars 5-speed $450 or best offer 253-5880

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

1981 Index is here! Yes that's right and for only $4.00 you can own one. Stop by room 103 CC to purchase yours

Sigma Delta Tau
would like to invite all Univ women to an Open Rush Dinner at 5:00 on:
Tuesday, Sept. 28
Wednesday, Sept. 29
Thursday, Sept. 30
We are located at 409 N. Pleasant St.
For more info call 545-0527

Dicky - Happy Birthday, Baby! Lots of Supertramp this weekend - I love you - The Ion Monster

Chuck-Unit! Happy October and Happy Birthday! Hope that both turn out GREAT! Me

Maggie - to the best roommate and the best friend I've ever had. Thanks for being you. People like you are hard to find. Love your roommate Gail

Hi Sammy! How are ya, Punkin?!

Charlie's Super Happy Hour with 2 for 1 mixed drinks and draft 3-6

Hi OTT how are you

Attention - women interested in service to the community - open meeting of Gamma Sigma Sigma Nat'l Service Sorority - Mon Oct 4, 6:30 pm CC Rm 905 for more info 304 SU 545-2068

Danbecita! Welcome back. Here's to a Koolawalah weekend. Love, Kimbecita!

Ange, we will always remember: cat attack, nap attack, correctol, hanger, man, garbage can, UMass vs. Westchester, food, bowling, alcoholics, score! Love, your future roomies

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

"Run for your Right" race festival to benefit nuclear referendum on Oct 31 Bike, run, or rollerski for your right to vote. Call 665-4815

Cliff, Tosh Concert sec-3L48? Missed u the second half. Stop the bombing. 546-6354

Remember passenger in red convertible Camero. Call 6-4209

Lisa any music colloq this year, Greg 549-6147

Laura, Happy Bday. Enjoy your day Love Michael

Annie Annie Annie blonde hair blue eyes, beautiful Annie I love you Joe

Look for RAY SHAMIE at the nuclear freeze rally Oct 5th

Unique and sweet gifts for all occasions call 6-6299

HRTA Students - ESD Honor Society meeting, Monday Oct 4, Flint 201 at 6:00

Are you sick and tired of the Moral Majority? Then join the Real Majority. It's time for supporters of human rights to let their voices be heard! Introductory meeting Monday Oct 4 at 7:00 PM Tell Jerry Falwell and Ron Reagan where to go! CC room to be announced

Anne "Pute" Atwood: Get out of the shadow and in tune - touch it today! Happy Birthday - love the 3 Putateers

Krista: Happy Birthday to the best roommate ever. Amy

RECORDS

Joan Jett - I Love R & Roll J Geils -Freeze Frame, best offer, never used call 6-9648 keep trying

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

ROOM WANTED

23 yr old male with well behaved dog seeks own room. I have a car. Call John at 665-4605

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share 1 bedroom Puffton apt 145 month call 549-0919

Female to share bedroom in Townehouse 549-5980

Grad Student quiet room 150--month 549-5469 eve

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable, on bus route furnished, call Jeff 665-4357

Two quiet friendly guys need M or F roommate. Own bedroom $120 mo , call 665-3943

SERVICES

Typing - $1.25 per page - will do overnight typing - $2.00 per page call between 6 & 9 PM 665-7731

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

WANTED

Full Face Motorcycle helmet for small head. Call Peter 256-8057

Intramural Hockey Teams. Entries due October 4th. Contact IM Office Boyden

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WORD PROCESSING

Resumes & Papers: Prompt quality preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/WORD LINK 253-9535

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials
Take-Out Service
Sunday Brunch
$5.25 per person
All You Can Eat
11:30-3:00
Dinner Specials
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 256-0252

10% OFF WITH THIS AD • 10% OFF WITH THIS AD • 10% OFF WITH THIS AD • 10% OFF
PURVEYORS of FINE USED
SACKS
OF SOUTH AMHERST
WEARING APPAREL
located at the Grist Mill, Rt. 116, So. Amherst
one mile south of Amherst Center
on the So. Amherst bus route
Jeans & Cords $3-$8
also flannel shirts, skirts, 40's style dress- fi jackets hospital drawstring panys, sweaters, etc.
Used Wearing Apparel
open daily 10-5 pm

Sports

More Sports on Pages 17 and 18

Minutemen start the real season

Conference schedule starts with URI Rams

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team will open its 1982 football season tomorrow when the Minutemen travel to Kingston, Rhode Island to take on the University of Rhode Island Rams in a...

What? Wait just a minute. The University of Massachusetts football team started its season three weeks ago. Their record is a disappointing 1-2 and all of a sudden, Minuteman fans are beginning to wonder if maybe, just maybe, this prophesized golden year of football might be turning to brass.

Not really. The REAL Minuteman season begins when they start pursuit of the Yankee Conference championship, a title that would earn them an instant berth in the NCAA division 1-AA playoffs.

A win tomorrow would take the first three games, a win over a lower division West Chester State team and losses to division 1-AA foes Holy Cross and Harvard, and perform the equivalent of a Catholic confession on them. The slate would be wiped clean. A win would make them a 1-0 team. It would make them an undefeated Yankee Conference team.

"Our conference is as significant as the Big 10 because the winner of the Big 10 goes to the Rose Bowl," said head coach Bob Pickett. "Likewise the winner of the Yankee Conference goes to the 1-AA playoffs. It earns the winner a chance at a national championship."

The Rams come into the game sporting a 2-1 record with wins over Lafayette (20-10) and Maine (a 58-55 six overtime thriller that set a new NCAA record for the longest game) and a late-in-the-game loss to Brown (24-20).

"URI has an excellent football team. They have excellent balance and excellent team speed," said Pickett.

Most veteran fans will remember that the difference between a playoff berth and the end of last year's season was a 16-10 Minuteman loss that came at the hands of the Rams last year in Alumni Stadium. Clearly, UMass has a score to settle with Rhode Island.

"We're ready," said Pickett, "as Garry Pearson said to the team the other day 'If a football player can't get excited about this game, he has no right being in a football uniform.'"

Starting at the helm again this week will be senior quarterback Dean Pecevich. Pecevich had a rough outing last week against Harvard, but Pickett feels that Dean is his number one man and will continue to have faith in his ability as a field leader. He goes into the game as the number four passer in the conference.

UMass will, as any team with the combination of Pearson and tri-captain Tom Murray in the backfield would do, try to establish a ball control ground attack early on and grind it out towards the Ram goal, but despite four interceptions last week, the Minutemen are capable of passing for yardage.

"The running game is the strength of our football team, but we'll do whatever the situation dictates," said Pickett.

Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Cornerback Glenn Holden upends a Harvard player in action last week.

Defensively, the Minutemen have simply shut off the rush all year long and their pass defense, which looked pretty bad in the books last week (when Harvard set a school record for yardage in the air), is actually a lot stronger than most people realize.

"We had trouble with missed tackles," said Pickett in reference to the long passes (which in reality, were short passes that receivers ran for long yardage on). "Take that yardage away and it makes it a totally different football game."

In short, the defense is solid.

It's simple enough, it's two solid teams, it's two hungry teams, it's a chance for UMass to regain both its composure and respectability and, for one team, it's a step towards a chance for a national championship.

Bob Pickett, the UMass fans and most definitely, the UMass football team, hope the Minutemen take that step.

The season starts tomorrow in Kingston (or on 91.1 FM at 1:30 p.m.).

Women's soccer team at Vermont today

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

As the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team faces off against Vermont tomorrow at home, coach Kalekeni Banda believes that being home will be a super advantage.

"We'll have something more going for us," Banda said. "We know we're in for a tough game. They have one of the top players in the country. Still, they seem to think we're the team to beat."

Vermont, which has a 2-1-1 record and is eighth ranked nationally, beat the UMass women in their last meeting by a score of 2-0, in Burlington.

"Vermont is a good team. They've always given us a hard time. Every time they come here, it's either overtime or a 1-0 game with us winning," Banda said.

The squad comes off of their first loss of the season against Brown Wednesday night. The team went down 3-0 in a game that Banda said the team didn't play as smart as they should have.

"We played as hard as they did but didn't play a smart game. We were second guessing ourselves. We made a few mistakes that were costly," said Banda.

The teams passing game, which is usually excellent, was also off in the game against Brown. UMass, which had previously come off of two shutouts against BC and George Washington the weekend before, lacked the sharpness they have displayed all season.

UMass' defense, which has been outstanding and hasn't given up a goal at home yet, gave up the first three goals of the season at Brown, which kept its undefeated record. Banda attributed the downfall of defense in the game to an over-confident attitude.

"After playing BC, the team acquired a sense of complacency," Banda explained. "Brown scored the first goal on the defense and it was a shock to them. They thought we couldn't be scored on and they didn't know how to handle this."

Tammie Easton will be the starting goaltender in tomorrow's contest against Vermont which will begin at 3:00 p.m. at Boyden field. The team will work to try to add another win to its 4-1 record.

Forward Debbie Harackiewicz has missed two games this season as a result of a knee injury. According to Banda, she will play sparingly as she did in the game against Brown.

Although Vermont's record could be misleading, Banda feels the women will have a tough game tomorrow.

Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Stuart Goodman of the UMass tennis team goes airborne to return a volley during yesterday's tennis match. See story on page 18.

UMass netwomen lose

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team went down to their fourth straight defeat yesterday afternoon, at the hands of the University of New Hampshire 7-2 dropping their record to 1-5.

UNH dominated play as UMass could extend only three of the matches to three sets. UMass first singles player, Elizabeth Sullivan lost her match by a score of 6-4, 6-2.

Second singles player Ariel Fowler bounced back with a hard fought three set victory, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2. Third singles player Chris Frazier played in the toughest match of the afternoon, but lost in three sets, 3-6, 6-4, and 7-6 (7-5) (the last game being lost in a heartbreaking 7-5 tie-breaker).

The fourth and fifth singles players were both defeated in straight sets. Patricia Sullivan lost her match by a score of 7-5, 6-1, while Karen Orlowski went down in defeat, 6-3, 6-3. Sixth singles player Anne Marie Mackertish had the easiest match of the afternoon, routing her opponent in straight sets, 6-3, 6-0.

Doubles matches continue to plague the team. Two out of the three doubles teams lost instraight ses and UMass has now not won a doubles match in its last three contests.

"The new doubles teams played well for their first matches together," said Coach John Beal. "We are working more on doubles, trying to change. You can't win matches, if you cannot win doubles."

The firstes team of Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli lost the first doubles match, 6-2, 6-1. Laura Kaufmann and Jillian Nesgos lost the second doubles match by a score of 7-6, 6-3, while third doubles team, Tina Eglin and Bonnie Lechten took their opponents to three sets, but lost 2-6, 6-0, and 6-3.

Despite the scores, Beal thought his team played well, although he expects better play in the next couple of matches.

"We knew UNH would be strong, we were just outplayed," said Beal.

The next match for Beal's troops will be tomorrow at Springfield College before travelling to Harvard Monday. They then return home Thursday against Northeastern University.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 20 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, October 4, 1982

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

New University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey and his wife Anne Wexler chat with former acting Chancellor and Provost Loren Baritz at a reception held Friday.

Duffey greets new faculty at reception

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

In his first day as chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Joseph Duffey met with new faculty members in a reception held to welcome both.

After meeting with staff in the Whitmore Administration Building and reviewing work in his office, he hosted the annual reception for new faculty at the Chancellor's House with his wife Anne Wexler and Provost Loren Baritz.

Duffey said he is excited to be at UMass. "UMass is a place where we set goals together by consultation," he said.

"Morale is high," he added "and there is a lot of determination to build a strong institution."

Throughout the reception Duffey displayed a sense of humor. When he met Elizabeth Hill, the new student attorney general, he quipped, "Student attorney general, that's a great title. I like that."

Duffey's wife, Anne Wexler, a political consultant, showed her wit also. When she was introduced to Hermine Randall, the new chief engineer for the physical plant, she remarked, "A woman chief engineer, I think that's wonderful. I'd like to shake your hand again."

Continued on page 4

Student government elections are today

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts' Student Government Association's annual elections for undergraduate student senators will be held today from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Unlike last year's elections, which were marred by controversy, this year's elections will be held only one day — as opposed to two days last year — said Mindy Ordway, assistant to the speaker of the SGA.

"We made mistakes last year that I think we have cleared up," said Ordway. "Last year we had a lot of hassles the first time, but in the second election we cleared them up, thanks to a much more coherent staff," she said.

The elections will be for undergraduate senator positions in each of the dorms on campus, she said.

"Ideally there is supposed to be one senator for each 250 students in a dorm. But because of the lack of interest on the part of students to run for these positions that does not always happen," Ordway said.

Of all the residential areas on campus, the Southwest area has been the most active area in terms of voter turnout and student participation in government, she said. The Northeast area has been the least active of all five areas on campus, she said.

"I've really had it with people constantly complaining about the SGA or anything else about the student government," said Ordway. "When you look at the low number of students who vote, you begin to realize that the ones who are complaining the most are usually the ones who don't vote," she said.

"I urge all students to vote. It only takes a few minutes and is well worth it," she said.

"Write-in candidates are also welcome. If you have the slightest interest in student government, then run as a write-in candidate," she said.

The Student Government Association is the major proponent of campus wide activities. It is in charge of allocating funds to student groups from the money undergraduate students pay as the student activity fee, said Ordway.

This year there will be two referendum questions on the ballot, Ordway said.

The first question deals with a proposal by UMass President David Knapp. Knapp has proposed that the cost of renovating the Curry Hicks Cage be funded by an increase in fees of $20 a year. The question on the ballot is whether or not students are willing to pay for the increase on their bills, she said.

The second question asks whether or not UMass undergraduates support the death penalty, she said.

"These questions are just to see where students stand on these two issues," said Ordway. "By showing the state how students feel about the death penalty and added fee, we may be able to convince them that the students here represent students' views elsewhere."

The polling places this year will remain the same as 1981. Students from Northeast and Sylvan may vote at the Worcester Dining Commons. Students from Central and Orchard Hill may vote at the Franklin D.C. Those students who live in the Southwest dormitories Cance, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Mackimmie, Moore, Patterson, Pierpont and Washington may vote at the Berkshire D.C. Students in Coolidge, Crampton, Emerson, James, Prince, Kennedy, Melville, and Thoreau dormitories vote at Hampshire D.C. Off campus and Greek students vote in front of the Hatch cafeteria in the Campus Center.

Shamie invited to rally by students

By BILL WALL
Collegian Staff

Ray Shamie, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Edward Kennedy, was invited Friday by the Student Coalition against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) to speak at the nuclear freeze rally scheduled for Oct. 5.

Originally Shamie had asked to speak at the rally but was denied permission by the Kennedy campaign. SCANN, which is sponsoring the rally and controlling the agenda for the first hour of the rally, called Shamie's headquarters Friday to extend an invitation for Shamie to speak.

Cliff McCarthy, the member of SCANN who invited Shamie to speak, said that there were conditions that had to be met by Shamie in order for him to speak.

"The conditions were that Shamie would go on at 1:20, he would speak solely on the freeze issue for 3 to 5 minutes and would have to leave the area after giving his speech," McCarthy said.

Shamie will show up at UMass at noon the day of the rally in order to do some "light campaigning in front of the Student Union," Jeff Kelley, a member of the UMass College Republicans, said yesterday.

Continued on page 4

AP Laserphoto

Republican candidate for U.S. Senator from Massachusetts Ray Shamie, who will be speaking at the freeze rally tomorrow.

Northeastern has similar rally day

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

About two and one-half hours before the nuclear freeze rally begins here at the University of Massachusetts tomorrow, an identical event will be staged at Alumni Auditorium on the campus of Northeastern University in Boston.

The Northeastern rally, scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. in the largest hall on the campus, will feature singers James Taylor and Peter Yarrow, actress Lauren Bacall and Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy. At 1:30 p.m., the four, as well as several others, will address an audience on Metawampe Lawn at UMass.

Also speaking at the Northeastern rally will be the school president, Kenneth G. Ryder, according to a University spokesperson. No students are scheduled to speak at the Boston rally, the spokesperson said.

According to Caroline Buonomo, news editor of the Northeastern News, the campus newspaper, a large turnout is expected at the rally. While there has been no controversy surrounding the rally at the Northeastern campus, Buonomo said many students are concerned with the

Continued on page 4

Clothes dryer causes fire in N.E. dormitory

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

A fire caused by a malfunction in one of the dryers in the basement of the Mary Lyon dormitory in the Northeast Residential Area of the University of Massachusetts broke out at about 2:30 Saturday morning, forcing the evacuation of the building but injuring no one.

The fire was discovered by Ellyn Titterington, a senior special and women's studies major from Danvers who is the second floor resident assistant.

"When I came in for the evening, around 2:30, I smelled something coming from the basement. At first it smelled like an iron burning. I went downstairs and saw smoke coming from the laundry room. I immediately ran to the first floor and pulled the fire alarm," Titterington said.

The dryer was destroyed in the fire. Most of the clothes in the dryer at the time were also destroyed, she said.

After the alarm was pulled, the RA's on each floor went from room to room pounding on doors, alerting residents to the problem, Titterington said.

"Everyone really cooperated well," she said. "As a result everyone got out of the dorm quickly and safely."

Dormitory security was supposed to be on duty until 3 a.m., but was not around at the time of the fire, she said.

"When I first went into the dorm, I noticed that security was not on. I thought it was strange because they should have been there. That was what made me stop," she said.

Richard Jencks, a lieutenant in the Amherst Fire Department, said the residents of the dorm conducted themselves "very well" during the fire.

Sally Borden, associate head of residence in the dorm, praised all the women of Mary Lyon, especially the RA's.

"The RA's did a good job getting everyone out quickly and orderly," she said.

Residents of the dorm were instructed to go to nearby dorms to seek shelter, Borden said.

Photo by Tom Kudla

Senior biochemistry majors Tony Saverwein and Jan Gikner study a long program for their Coins 121 course outside the Graduate Research Center late last week.

Strikers make progress

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

Both Gnomon Copy Services strikers and owners said there has been a "complete change in attitudes" after contract negotiations Friday afternoon, but exactly when the strike will end remains unclear.

Several agreements were made Friday on minor points in the contract but the language still must be worked out, Mary-Erin Crook, spokesperson for the strikers, said Friday.

Agreements have been reached on such issues as seniority, vacations, union dues, and a 30 day probation period for new workers, she said.

"We're negotiating seriously now. Before we felt our time was being wasted on purpose," said striking worker Tobi Saisa.

Negotiations will continue tomorrow at 10 a.m.

Catherine Iannacchino, co-owner of the store, said she does not expect a settlement soon because "there are still a lot of stumbling blocks." She said such issues as union security and how the workers propose to return to work have still not been settled.

"They want a pay raise and that's not possible financially," she said.

Friday's session was also the first time the owners met with the union without their advisor, John Sytek, vice-president of the Gnomon Copy chain. Iannacchino said Sytek could not attend the session because of a previous committment, but continued negotiations without him because she felt negotiations "were on a roll" from a session on Thursday afternoon.

Saisa said there is a big difference in negotiation sessions when Sytek is present. He said Sytek led the discussion at Thursday's session and "prevented real bargaining."

"He doesn't have a sense of compromise. We felt Candy (Iannacchino) and Rolly (Roland Wetherbee, the other owner of the franchise) made a serious attempt to understand our feelings and intentions," he said.

On Thursday the owners submitted a formal proposal for wages based on productivity. Iannacchino said the proposal is actually an addition to a pre-determined base pay.

The union has rejected similar proposals by Sytek, who was the previous owner, because it said the proposal actually decreased wages. On Friday the union made a counter-proposal and said it would not accept a productivity proposal that decreased wages.

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Scott Hersey
Copy Editor — Bill Wall
Layout Technician — Stephen Anderson
Photo Technician — Michael Margolis
Composition — Lauri Neely, Scott Stockwell
Gail Tanzer, Janet Buch, Donna Maurice
Nancy Gallo, James Shanahan, Adrianne Dufor
Tracey Hollander, Will Hopkins, Sheryl Silver

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-8153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
fine dining ...a meal with a view

THE TOUGHEST JOB YOU'LL EVER
LOVE...PEACE CORP
General Information Meeting
Tuesday, October 5th 7:30 p.m.
Rm. 122 Draper Hall
...Slides...Former Volunteers...Refreshments...

WE WANT YOU!
National Ski Patrol System
UMASS SKI PATROL
Recruiting Meeting Monday, Oct. 4
Herter Hall Rm 108 7 p.m.
If unable to attend call Gary 253-7152

Death penalty opponents urge voters not to approve referendum

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Rep. Jim Collins, D-Amherst, urged people to vote for Michael S. Dukakis for governor in November if they want to make absolutely certain that the death penalty is never used in Massachusetts.

His remark was made at a press conference Friday at the First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, 165 Main St., Amherst.

"If the vote were taken today, the death penalty would pass," Collins said. A yes vote on Question #2 on November 2 may bring the death penalty back toMassachusetts after its having been abolished for 35 years.

The forum included Collins, Lee Holt, a retired English professor at American International College in Springfield, Merry Nasser, a Northampton attorney and Gerald Souza, an ex-convict who wpent 18 years in prison for taking part in an armed robbery in which a man was killed. Souza now teaches a course on prisons at the University of Massachusetts.

Holt said those who oppose capital punishment must convince people that it will not reduce crime in general as is commonly believed. He spoke of a woman interviewed on a Springfield television station who reiterated that "fallacious" view.

"We've got to change the perception that the death penalty accomplishes anything. Michael (Dukakis) has a very clear perception of the death penalty, he opposes it and would not use it," Collins said.

Collins added that if the death penalty is voted into law, "we could have executions by Christmas."

Souza said by having the death penalty, the state gives up intellectual solutions to criminal behavior.

"If you have the death penalty on the books you're saying that might makes right," he said. With the death penalty "we will never get at the roots of crime," he added. "We in Massachusetts aren't murderers and shouldn't act like them," Collins said.

Collins encouraged people to look at the issues both pro and con, concerning the death penalty. He said he believes most people would be against the death penalty if they are exposed to both sides of the issue.

He said the death penalty is strictly a political issue which is clouded with rhetoric by its proponents. Death penalty talk makes governments appear to be tough on crime, he said.

Souza said the death penalty would be a senseless act since criminals do not, in most cases, commit premeditated murder. He also ridiculed those who say the odds of executing an innocent person are low.

"You can't look at odds when you're dealing with human life," he said.

Nasser said the current legislation for the death penalty was drawn up without thought and was "carelessly and sloppily thrown together."

Collegian photo by Sam Millett

Remnants of yesteryear lie dormant in a Northampton railroad yard.

Jewish group has own ideas about Israel's situation

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Correspondent

The New Jewish Agenda, a group who disagree with Israel's recent involvement in Lebanon and on the West Bank, held an open forum Thursday at Smith College.

This relatively new organization, founded in 1980, numbers about 2000 nationwide. Locally, it has about 15 members, primarily teachers and students from the five colleges.

"We believe that Israel's invasion is wrong," said Mark Breslow, a UMass graduate student. "We call for Israel and the Palestinians, including the PLO, to recognize each other's right to exist. It is time to end the polarized debate and to support the human rights of both Arabs and Jews."

The meeting was organized and run by Breslow, who presented the organization's philosophy and gave examples of what it would like to see occur in the Middle East.

The New Jewish Agenda made these demands in a printed statement: the resignation of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon; the immediate withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon; an independent investigation into the West Beirut massacre; mutual recognition by Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization of the rights of both Palestinian Arabs and Israeli Jews to national self-determination.

As well as the New Jewish Agenda supporters, there were a number of local students attending, who said they support Israel's actions and who were angered at what they see as the New Jewish Agenda's stand against Israel.

"If fellow Jews aren't going to support Israel's right to survive, who will? They (the NJA) are stabbing Israel in the back," said Dave Romanoff, a UMass student.

Breslow stressed that the NJA is not stabbing Israel in the back, but he feels that as Jews, they must speak up against what is wrong.

"American Jews are conditioned not to raise criticism of Israel, but we feel we are criticizing out of love," said Martha Kransforf, a Smith College teacher and New Jewish Agenda member.

Several points were made by the "pro-invasion" participants during the evening's discussion. Romanoff said everyone seems to be overlooking the alleged atrocities the PLO has committed during the years leading to this military action. Examples he gave were the 1972 Olympic massacre, the massacre of schoolchildren at Ma'alot, various political assassinations, including that of US Ambassador Noel of Sudan, and the PLO's guerrilla activites in Lebanon over the past 8 years.

At the end of the evening all of the participants seemed to agree on at least some points: They agreed that the Middle East needs peace immediately and the Palestinians must have a permanent and safe home.

Kransdorf summed up the evening as follows: "There was dialogue and even though people didn't agree, they listened to each other and that doesn't happen enough."

Although the NJA is not yet a registered student organization at UMass, it is trying to achieve this status and hopes to hold meetings at UMass in the near future.

Register to vote on campus today

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Today and tomorrow are the last days voters can register for the November elections. The League of Women's Voters will hold a voter registration drive today and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Campus Center concourse. Voters who are already registered somewhere else can still register in Amherst if they wish to vote in the town.

Two weeks ago over 1,000 University of Massachusetts students registered. All Amherst residents, including UMass students wishing to vote here, are eligible to register for the gubernatorial election.

The voter registration drive coincides with Tuesday's nuclear freeze rally to be held on Metawampe Lawn near the Campus Center. The rally will feature a number of speakers including Senator Edward M. Kennedy and James Taylor.

Included on the November ballot will be referendum questions concerning the nuclear freeze, the death penalty, the bottle law and nuclear power.

"In the last gubernatorial election, only nine percent of the eligible voters between the ages of 18 and 24 voted," said Sheila Sullivan, chairperson of the Public Committee for the UMass Student Government Association, which sponsored the previous voter registration drive this semester.

"With this voter registration drive, we hope to change that," Sullivan said.

If weather permits, another table will be set up outside the Student Union Building on Tuesday. That registration table will also run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Surveying student Waiman Ng is framed by his transit as he pauses to check his notes Thursday afternoon near Marston Hall.

★ Duffey

Continued from page 1

Duffey said that he is looking forward to working at UMass. "I've always had a very special feeling about this state," Duffey said. "It's very nice to be here and it is a great campus," he added.

During the next few weeks Duffey said he plans to meet with students, faculty and staff at UMass and intends to get to know the campus.

In addition to hosting receptions and dinners with administrators, academic deans, state legislators, student leaders and the chancellor's search committee, Duffey will also attend UMass football games and events at the Fine Arts Center, according to Assistant Chancellor Deidre Ling.

Ling mentioned that Duffey has made five two-day visits to the campus and has met with "all top administration and many key faculty already."

★ Shamie

Continued from page 1

"He will be at the Student Union in an informal capacity shaking hands and distributing leaflets," Kelley said.

McCarthy insisted that there "was never any intention to exclude Ray Shamie, so long as he was a freeze supporter."

"The delay was caused because we had trouble determining his position on the freeze issue. None of his printed material states his position on the freeze," said McCarthy.

"Our original supposition was that he was not a freeze supporter, but we found out he was, so we went ahead and invited him," he said.

Todd Domke, campaign manager for Shamie, said the first time he had heard from SCANN about Shamie being invited to the rally was approximately 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

McCarthy said he had conferred with the Kennedy campaign before inviting Shamie, but the final decision was his.

"It was not a matter of the Kennedy people giving in to Shamie's appearance. It was a matter of their recognizing that this is a student sponsored event and their control is limited," McCarthy said.

Domke said he guessed that arrangements were made with the Kennedy campaign.

"I think the shots on this have been called by the Kennedy campaign," but added that Shamie had agreed to the conditions and "anything he (Shamie) says will be connected to the freeze rally."

McCarthy said the agenda for the rally would be in two parts, with SCANN organizing the first part and the Kennedy campaign organizing the second part.

"The Kennedy campaign is presenting to us a package of talent including the Senator, Lauren Bacall, James Taylor and Randall Forsberg; they had to be a part of the planning for the rally, we (SCANN) couldn't have brought the talent," McCarthy said.

SCANN's segment of the rally will feature local politicians, area bands, and student speakers, including members of the Student Government Association, SCANN, the UMass Peacemakers, and the Radical Student Union, McCarthy said.

While the Northeastern rally is being sponsored by the Council for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze, the Western Masschusetts Coalition for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze, the Amherst Disarmament Coalition, the UMass Peacemakers and the Lawyers' alliance for Nuclear Weapons Control, the same sponsors as the UMass rally, the New England Law, Policy and Society Program at Northeastern is also supporting the rally.

★ Northeastern

Continued from page 1

connection of the Kennedy campaign to the rally.

"No one is oblivious to the fact that it's part of the Kennedy re-election campaign and a pseudo-presidential election campaign," Buonomo said.

Variety of events set for Women's Week

THE WOMEN'S W[illegible]

The Women's Week is a calendar of upcoming events for women. To place an event, contact the Women's Department of the Collegian by Fr[illegible]

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER (EVC)

Tuesday: The support group "Mothering in all life situations" will hold their first meeting from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall.

WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM

Monday: ISIS, a reproductive rights group in Hampshire and Franklin counties from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Coolidge Bridge in Northampton in memory of Rosie Jimenz who died in 1977 from an illegal abortion. The silent protest reiterates the importance of access to safe, legal abortions for all women.

Supporters of abortion will be wearing armbands provided by the Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedoms (CERRF). Armbands can be obtained from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at CERRF's table in the Student Union.

Tuesday: The Center for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom (CERRF) will hold their weekly meeting at 6:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 903.

Thursday: The Women's Issues Team will hold their weekly meeting at 6:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 901.

AMHERST COLLEGE

Wednesday: Florynce Kennedy will speak on "Women Against Women — A Horizontal Hostility" at 8 p.m. in Amherst College's Johnson Chapel. Kennedy, a New York lawyer, is coordinator of the Coalition Against Racism and Sexism. She is also a co-founder of Black Women United for Political Action and one of the people who helped establish the National Organization for Women (NOW).

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

$1.14 reg $1.63
Noxzema 4 oz

$1.49
Ladys Choice Deo
Reg Unst Fresh

$3.72 reg $6.51
Oil of Olay 4 oz

$2.22 reg 3.10
7 oz tube
H & S shampoo

$1.69 reg 2.46
Contac 10's

$1.61 reg $2.70
Afrin nasal spray

Aim 4.6 oz $1.11 reg $1.50
regular or mint

$2.22
reg $3.10
11 oz H & S
shampoo

All sale items also available the Mini Store located in the Student Union

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center Open M-F 9-5

Dastardly Dans
TONIGHT Pool Tournament
2 person teams $10 CASH PRIZES
sign up at bar Starts 7 pm
35 E Pleasant St.,Amherst, MA 253-9285

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

JOSTEN'S GOLD RING

SEE YOUR JOSTENS REPRESENTATIVE.
DATE Oct. 4, 5 - Mon, Tue
TIME 10 am - 3 pm
PLACE Campus Center
Deposit $15.00
UNIVERSITY STORE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Who's fooling who?

Tomorrow, thousands of members of the University of Massachusetts community will be asked to attend a rally on Metawampe Lawn to support the movement toward the nuclear freeze. Those planning to attend the rally, however, should be aware that the rally may be more than it seems to be.

While we fully support the nuclear weapons freeze movement and the rally in favor of it, we feel the University community should be aware of other, subtle purposes for tomorrow's gathering and keep some points in mind while listening to the variety of speeches and performances scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Since the rally was first proposed for the Umass campus, the name of Senator Edward M. Kennedy has figured prominently in any mention of the event. Press releases publicizing the rally have all boldly displayed the Massachusetts Democrat's name, more prominently than any mention of the freeze issue itself. Calls to Collegian editors about the rally have come from individuals clearly identifying themselves as Kennedy campaign organizers. At last Wednesday's Undergraduate Student Senate meeting, Kennedy campaign workers appealed to the senators to come up with $1,000 they said was needed to fund certain technical aspects of the event.

All these things seem to point to the fact that Kennedy, more so than the freeze issue, is the primary focus of the rally. It seems the senator has attached his name to the issue in hopes of gaining political mileage through the popular support of the freeze movement. The grave and crucial issues presented by the nuclear freeze movement may be undermined by the political aspirations of this state's senior senator.

Last Wednesday, the general lack of respect for the UMass community on the part of Kennedy's staff surfaced when they received a $500 grant and a matching loan from the student senate. While the Kennedy campaign was willing to finance the publicity and other costs of the rally, it refused to supply funds for a sound system, electrical wiring, the stage and other technical equipment required for a large rally. Instead of drawing the funds from Kennedy, the rally sponsors elected to ask the students of UMass for their money.

While the student senate did nothing improper in allocating the funds, since there is no evidence it will directly benefit Kennedy, it showed poor judgement in granting the request. Many members of the senate said they felt they had no choice; if they denied the money it would seem they did not support the rally, a week after they voted to endorse the nuclear freeze movement. While they felt they were backed against the wall, the senators agreed to supply the money on a voice vote with no dissention. It should be noted that the Student Coalition against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) have worked to insure that the rally remains focused on the nuclear freeze issue as much as possible.

While attending the rally, students should think of what their money is going to benefit, whether the rally is indeed accomplishing its stated purpose and whether one man's political aspirations have diluted the effectiveness of the rally.

We feel it is a shame that the nuclear freeze issue, the most important issue of our time, has been undermined by petty electoral politics.

All unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors

Education and nuclear politics

Jim Murphy

On October 5, and November 2, students will have the opportunity to help in deciding the fate of the earth. Sound far-fetched? Well, it isn't.

October 5, is the date set for the rally. Its focus is the arms race. The question is what this has to do with you and me? The answer is everything.

It is no secret that the arms race is progressing at a cancerous rate, while rhetoric flies back and forth between Washington and Moscow; each side attempting to advance the macabre illusion of national security through nuclear superiority. The result is the ultimate in insanity: There are now 50,000 nuclear weapons on this planet — enough to dessimate it many times over. What kind of security is measured in terms of how many times one can destroy everything?

Those who defend the arms race will tell you that it is necessary for us to stay ahead of the Soviet Union in weapons-production, if we are to prevent nuclear war. The assumption that underlies such a statement is that the United States would never be the one to initiate such an exchange. History, however, says otherwise.

Truman ordered atomic bombs to be dropped on the cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Subsequent administrations have gotten tremendous use out of a foreign policy in which the use of nuclear weapons has been an underlying threat. Eisenhower offered atomic devices to the French for use in Indochina; Kennedy intimated the possibility of a nuclear exchange during the Cuban missile crisis; and Richard Nixon's "secret plan to end the war in Viet Nam" was based upon the intention of leaving a huge crater where North Viet Nam once stood. Even today, the Reagan administration speaks of the possibilities of winning a nuclear war. With the construction of Trident submarines and missiles, and the MX cruise missile, our country is building up what is known as first-strike capability. Common sense dictates that one does not develop the capability of striking first unless one intends to do just that. Thus, the claim that we need to keep ahead of the Soviet Union for the purpose of ensuring mutual restraint must be viewed as dubious, at best. In addition to the prospect of deliberate warfare, we must also consider the possibility of nuclear accidents. Even assuming mutual restraint, it must be acknowledged that the technology with which we safeguard our weaponry, is still far from perfect.

Every dollar wasted on nuclear arms is one that could have been spent on education. The economy we live in is based on a system of exchange. Labor is exchanged for money; which is then exchanged for various goods and services. The whole process proceeds in a cyclical fashion; the crucial factor being the continued exchange, upon which jobs, productivity, prices, and wages are totally dependent. Without going into economic postulates when the circle of exchange is broken, everything that depends on it suffers. Presently, we live in a situation of massive unemployment, low productivity, and prices that are continually rising beyond reach. It is apparent that the circle has been broken, and a large part of the reason stems from our investment in the arms race. We put massive amounts of money into the development of weapons. Yet, once these are built, they are not exchanged for anything — they are stockpiled. The money and labor that were invested in the weapons never find their way back into the economy, which suffers for it. This is an inevitable consequence of investment in nuclear arms; and the extent to which we invest our resources in them is the extent to which the economy suffers. In fact, the only way to make that weaponry economically productive is to use it; the consequences of which we all know.

The state of the economy determines the amount of support that is given to education, which ultimately determines its cost to individuals and families. It determines who can and cannot obtain access to our institutions of learning. Because investments in nuclear weapons stifle our system of exchange, they are instrumental in barring people from an education that they have a right to receive. Therefore, disarmament is a student issue, and we must all concern ourselves with it. If we are to preserve education — especially public higher education — for future students, we must really press the issue to those who make the decisions: replacing those who refuse to make the right ones. No one will do it for us, and for that reason the burden is ours.

While at the rally, register to vote, if you haven't already done so. The other date is November 2, and it represents a chance to make our support for the freeze felt in a concrete manner. This is totally dependent on a huge turnout on our part.

The future is in our hands.

Jim Murphy is the SGA President and Student Trustee Representative

Letters

Curda — breath of fresh air.

To the Editor:

I congratulate you for publishing Katherine Curda's views, in the September 28, 1982 Collegian. From reading the Collegian daily, I was beginning to believe I was one of the last conservative Republicans on the UMass campus.

It is a shame that letters of such kind do not appear more often. I believe it would be healthy for UMass students to hear a second point of view. For not all students agree with the Bottle Bill or disagree with nuclear energy. This is one thing the Collegian has overlooked through many of its publications.

I can only hope that Katherine's article is the beginning for the conservative Republican's few points, in the Collegian.

Eric W. Carlson
Amherst

We must act now to be free

To the Editor:

Tomorrow's nuclear freeze rally will serve as a vehicle for voter registration. And we all know that a vehicle is to get us from one place to another. Question #5, which will appear on the ballot in November will ask us whether or not we wish to end up where we are headed in the nuclear arms race.

Tomorrow we will probably be asked to challenge the might of our own government by simply voting. But in order to accept this responsibility, one needs to be registered.

Not to register to vote is to decide not to say no to the continued insanity of the nuclear arms race. We are reminded by the words of a Latin American poet that we are free to act but we must act to be free.

Richard Morrison
Northampton

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johannah Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings, Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Graphics Manager; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Beival, Associate News Editors; Amy Jenness, Associate Women's Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affair's Editor

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

Thompson Seedless Grapes 79¢ lb
Enjoy "the natural snack"...naturally sweet, juicy, delicious! Pick your own!

Fresh Red Tokay Grapes lb 69¢
Fresh New England Grown Bosc Pears lb 49¢
New York Concord Grapes quart basket 1.19
Fresh Jumbo Head Cauliflower ea 99¢

Russett Potatoes U.S. No. 1 5 lb bag 99¢
Fresh Carrots Pick Your Own lb 15¢
Yellow Onions Pick Your Own lb 15¢
Yellow Turnips lb 15¢
Louisiana Yams or Sweet Potatoes 3 lbs $1

DOUBLE MFG. COUPONS Hadley-Amherst only see Store for Details

STOP & SHOP

corner deli Available in stores featuring a service deli.

Swiss Cheese Austrian Swiss Sliced to your order 2.99 lb
German Bologna Stop & Shop 1.79 lb
Skinned & Deveined Beef Liver Frozen lb 59¢
Carando Pepperoni Vac Pack 2.99 lb
Devault Sandwich Steaks Beef 2 lb pkg Frozen 3.59
Matlaw's Stuffed Clams 30 oz pkg, Frozen 1.79
Chicken Franks Weaver 1 lb pkg 89¢
Minit Chef Chicken Patties Breaded 1 lb pkg Frozen 69¢
Drakes Family Pack 10½ oz Ring Ding Jrs. or 12 oz Yankee Doodles 1.29 pkg
Aqua-Fresh Toothpaste Aquafresh 6.4 ounce tube 1.19

Bottom Beef Round Roast Up to 5 lbs 1.59 lb

Beef Top Round Roast	Up to 5 lbs	lb 1.89
Rump Roast Beef Round	USDA Choice	lb 1.79
Beef Eye Round Roast	USDA Choice	lb 2.29
Center Cut Bottom Round Roast		lb 1.79

Beef Top Round Steak 2.29 lb

Top Round London Broil	Beef Round	lb 2.49
Beef Bottom Round Steak		lb 2.09
Cube Steak Beef Round	USDA Choice	lb 2.49
Beef Eye Round Steak	USDA Choice	lb 2.49
Shoulder London Broil	Beef Chuck	lb 2.19
Beef Round for Stew	USDA Choice	lb 2.29

Colonial 6-8 lbs Smoked Pork Shoulder Picnic water added lb 99¢

Semi Boneless Cooked Ham	Portions Colonial 5-7 lbs water added	lb 1.79
Smoked Pork Shoulder	Colonial Master 4-5 lb Picnic water added	lb 1.39
Smoked Pork Butt	Boneless Colonial water added	lb 1.99
Boneless Cooked Ham	Colonial Master water added	lb 2.59

— Family Paks Stretch Your Dollar! —

Ground Beef Fresh 5 to 6 lb pkg 1.39 lb

Fresh Lean Ground Beef	5-6 lb pkg	lb 1.69
Chicken Wings 'White Gem'	5-6 lb pkg	lb 59¢
'White Gem' Chicken Legs	5-6 lb pkg	lb 69¢
Chicken Breast Split	with Back 5-6 lbs	lb 99¢
Boneless Beef Chuck Steak	5-6 lb pkg	lb 1.79
Boneless Blade Steak	Beef Chuck 5-6 lb pkg	lb 2.39

Stop & Shop Coffee Regular, Drip, Electric or Automatic, one pound can 1.99
Chicken Noodle Soup or Chicken Rice Stop & Shop 10½ oz 3 for 89¢
Cut or French Style Green Beans Stop & Shop 15½ ounce can 3 for $1
Ronzoni Spaghetti Regular or Thin 16 ounce package 2 for $1
Duncan Hines Cake Mix Regular or Deluxe II Asst'd Varieties, 18½ oz pkg 78¢
Vanity Fair Towels Assorted Print 2 ply 100 sheet roll 59¢
Minute Maid Orange Juice from concentrate Half Gallon carton 1.29
Imperial Margarine Quarter pound sticks One pound package 2 for $1
Florida Orange Juice Stop & Shop 6 ounce can Frozen 39¢

C 1 lb quarters Imperial Margarine FREE — With this coupon Good Sun. Oct. 3 Sat. Oct. 9 Limit one per customer — A10 416
Stop & Shop 10½ oz can C Chicken Rice Soup or Chicken Noodle FREE — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase Good Oct. 3 Oct. 9 Limit one per customer — A9 415
One Pound Can C Stop & Shop Coffee Regular, Auto Electric Perk or Drip 99¢ — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase Good Oct. 3 Oct. 9 Limit one per customer — A8 414
C Florida Orange Juice 6 ounce can Frozen FREE — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase Good Sun. Oct. 3 Sat. Oct. 9 Limit one per customer — A11 417
Assorted Varieties C Cake Mix 18½ ounce package 49¢ — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase Good Oct. 3 Oct. 9 Limit one per customer — A12 418

Prices effective Sun. Oct. 3 Sat. Oct. 9 W. Mass. Mon., Oct. 4 Sat. Oct. 9 In fairness to our customers, we reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any items offered for sale. Not available in case lots or to other dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1982 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Not responsible for typographical errors.

OPENING SPECIAL
25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst (above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

Get Organized
School Year Calendars pocket size & desk size at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
COMING SOON TO THE FINE ARTS CENTER
Elly Ameling
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m.
Vienna Choir Boys — Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m.
Monday, October 18 8:00 PM — First America on Tour THE ZAGREB GRAND BALLET
Scottish National Orchestra — Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.
All shows on sale now
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F 545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

IMPROVE STUDY HABITS
STOP SMOKING
Lose Weight, Insomnia, Nail Biting, Self Confidence, Sexual Problems, Bed Wetting
Hypnosis can help you make it PERMANENT
Hampshire Ethical Hypnosis Center
Call or Write for Free Brochure
Milton H. Askinoss, Member A.A.E.H.
Available for Lectures/Demonstrations
The Farrick Building, Rte. 9 Hadley, MA
3/10 mile Hampshire Mall (next to Rocky's Hardware)
584-1919 by Appt. Only

USED BOOK SALE
20% Regular Prices
Oct 4-9, Mon - Sat
VALLEY BOOK SHOP
Carriage Shops, Downtown Amherst
10-5:30 M-F, Sat 10-5, Sun 12-4

BICYCLE WORLD
104 Federal St.
Greenfield, Mass
Save 10%/30% • Univega • Motobecane • Puch
Selection of used bikes available
50% X/C skis
774-3701

GRAND OPENING SPECIAL
Oil & Lube $9.95
SAVE $6.00
Route 47 next to Pip's General Store
North Hadley 586-9029

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!
POSTERS Largest Selection Ever
BLINDS Bamboo From $5.50!
BEDSPREADS cover walls, furniture, windows from $7.95
Rugs & Mats colorful, durable
Lampshades Paper
CARDS over 1400 designs
Greatly Expanded SKIRTS & BLOUSES lots of comfortable cotton
Jewelry Brass and Sterling earrings, rings, etc.
Clothing Sale!
T-Shirts India Print - 4.50 Solid Color - 3.50 to 5.50
Tank Tops - 3.95 to 5.95
20 - 50% OFF selected Blouses, Skirts
Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

adventura travel 549-1256
Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level 233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst Carriage Shops

SAVE AT ELEK-TEK ON CALCULATORS
TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
HAND HELD COMPUTERS BY
HEWLETT-PACKARD SLIMLINE PROGRAMMABLE LCD PROBLEM SOLVERS
HP-41C CALCULATOR AND ENHANCEMENTS
HP-IL ACCESSORIES
CALL TOLL FREE 800-621-1269 EXCEPT Illinois, Alaska, Hawaii
ELEK-TEK, Inc.

LAGNAF 83

SGA ELECTIONS TODAY
Polling Places as Follows:
Northeast/Sylvan - Worcester D.C.
Central/Orchard Hill - Franklin D.C.
Cance, JA., J.Q.A., Mackimmie, Moore, Patterson, Pierpont, Washington - Berkshire D.C.
Coolidge, Crampton, Emerson, James, Prince Kennedy, Melville, Thoreau - Hampshire D.C.
Commuter/Greek - in front of Hatch

The UMass Fitness Center is sponsoring a FREE Aerobic Dance Demonstration
DATE: Tues. October 5
TIME: 7:30 P.M.
PLACE: Rm 22 NOPE
Classes begin Oct. 6 at 6 and 7 pm and will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings through Dec. 22
Registration following demonstration - Fee - $50 for 20 classes
Limited Enrollment
Aerobic Dancing is an excellent form of cardiovascular conditioning, helps tone muscles, and is a great calorie burner.
Come — Move — Be Energized!

Arts

The Bach stops here

NEW ENGLAND BACH FESTIVAL
Wednesday, September 29
Buckley Recital Hall
Amherst College

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Correspondent

The New England Bach Festival opened its 13th season Wednesday night with an excellent program of solo cantatas and orchestral works. The orchestra, under the direction of Blanche Honneger Moyse, is actually more of a chamber group, with violins, violas, cellos, a harpsicord, bass and bassoon.

The first piece, Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, featured soloist Allen Vogel on oboe, Susan Ratholz on flute, Edmund Carrol on trumpet, and Peggy James on violin. Allen Vogel proved to be the strong soloist of the evening. Playing on all four pieces and the main solo accompaniest for the cantatas, he played with great depth and precision, eliminating any preconceived notions that local New England musicians are weaker or less qualified to perform the works of the masters.

The second movement of the Brandenburg Concerto was one of the highlights of the evening. The slow blend of instruments was so beautiful that as the movement concluded, the audience became completely still, listening to resonance.

The next piece, "The Wedding Cantata," featured soprano Arleen Auger and celloist Eric Bartlett. Perhaps contrary to the opinion of many people attending, I felt that, while Ms. Auger sang quite well, it was Eric Bartlett's continuo that really made this piece. It was a real treat to watch his hands zipping up and down the cello. Together with harpsicordist Suzanne Cleverdon every nuance of the music was brought to light.

Yet the evening belonged to Arleen Auger. As she sang "Jauchzen Gonn in Allen Landen," a cantata composed for the 13th week after Trinity, the full range of her talent became clear. She has a light, lucid voice, that isn't driven by the pretentions that turn so many sopranos into shriekers. She hit the highest notes with ease. While not famous among the general public, Ms. Auger is well known in the music community and has recorded extensively. Her clean crisp singing makes it clear why she was asked back to sing with the Festival this year.

The only shortcoming of the concert was the length of the program (only an hour and twenty minutes including intermission) and Edward Carroll the trumpet player, whose playing lacked the grace of the other performers. But these are minor points. Blanche Honnegger has succeeded in putting together an ensemble that brings to New Englanders music of the highest caliber.

The New England Bach Festival will be performing all over New England for the next two weeks, including a performance of chamber music in Deerfield Thursday night.

THE 1982 NEW ENGLAND BACH FESTIVAL

Read the other voice on October 15

LAST CHANCE!

OPEN RUSH

BKΦ

Monday, October 4, 1982

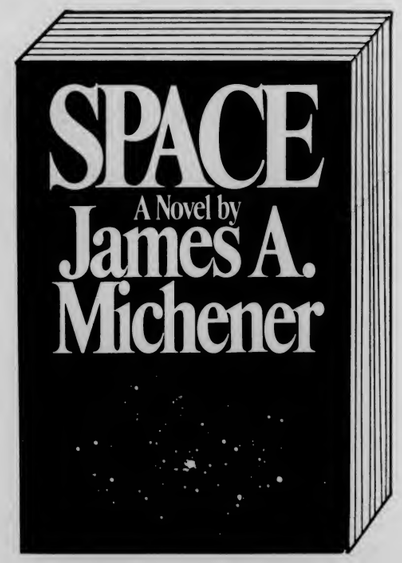
9:00 - 11:00 p.m.

If you missed our last rush parties, now is the chance to check our alternative to dorm life. Don't miss it!

Beta Kappa Phi
388 N. Pleasant St.

(The modern white cinderblock house on way to Downtown)

NOW AVAILABLE



Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

JOSTEN'S GOLD RING

SEE YOUR JOSTENS REPRESENTATIVE.

DATE Oct. 4, 5 - Mon, Tue
TIME 10 am - 3 pm
PLACE Campus Center

Deposit $15.00

UNIVERSITY STORE

1- 3 Credit

Positions Open
for
Student Representatives to the Work Groups on General Education

Continuity and Change
Expressive Culture
The Individual
Society and Institutions
The Biological World
The Physical World
Foreign Language
Quantitative Reasoning
Integration of Knowledge
Communication with High Schools
Issues of Civility
Foundation Support

In May, after a year long investigation into the current General Education ("core") requirements, a Faculty Senate committee set forth a proposal for a new General Education curiculum here at UMass/Amherst.

Students are needed to join representatives from the faculty and administration in exploring the specific aspects of the General Education proposal listed above.

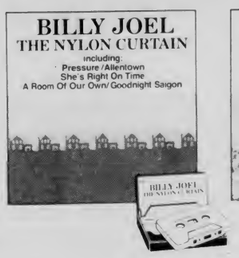
Does one of these topics interest you? This is an opportunity to become involved with a process which will affect thousands of students in years to come.

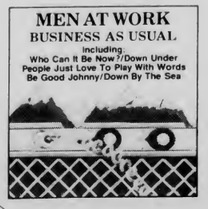
Contact Immediately:
Rob Thayer
at SCERA (545-0341)
420 Student Union Bldg.

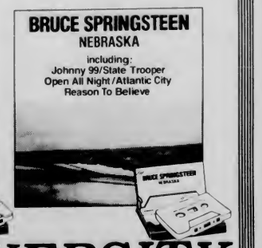
RECORD SALE

$5.99
your choice
LP or cassette

NEW RELEASES







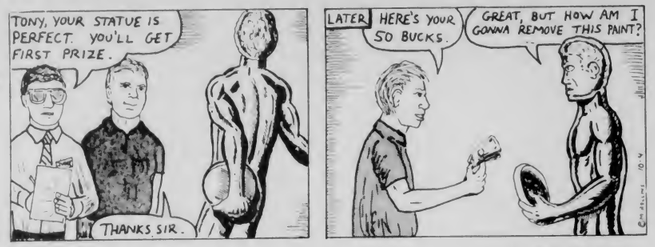
from CBS

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins



Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Gooz by G. Masse

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Stuffed Pepper with Tomato Sauce
Grilled Ham and Cheese Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Pineapple Yogurt
Stuffed Peppers
Grilled Cheese on Sprouted Wheat

DINNER
Beef Stew/Savory Garden Biscuits
Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce
Cheese and Egg Cold Plate

BASICS DINNER
Mexican Vegetable Bake
Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

Please Recycle this Collegian

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Undercover agent
5 Playbook direction
10 Origin of The Magi
14 Unrelenting
15 Kind of orange
16 Prefix meaning "stranger"
17 Serb or Croat
18 Heart action
19 Vacation choice
20 Holy Week service
22 Osage
24 Roue's glance
25 Family member
26 Sugar measure
29 Homage
34 Chance
36 Heathen deity
37 Actress Joanne
38 Fencing weapon
39 Northern dwelling
41 Brace
42 Gas prefix
43 Identical: Fr.
44 Fable, in old Greece
46 Voter's right
49 Have —— to pick
50 Memo lingo
51 Turkish pound
53 Missed
56 Stairway adjunct
60 Fancy
61 Incensed
63 Star form
64 TV producer Norman ——
65 Prevent
66 Spenser character and namesakes
67 Nursery word, often
68 Chris Lloyd, nee ——
69 Action suffix

DOWN
1 Weather word
2 Voided escutcheon
3 Interest producer
4 Letter carrier
5 Archaic cave
6 North African hot spot
7 Etre —— de joie (to be overjoyed)
8 —— gratias
9 Free scope
10 Not lost
11 Long time
12 Seaworthy
13 Pulled apart
21 Nota ——
23 Silver coin of Iran
25 Have nothing —— with 26 Bundle of straw
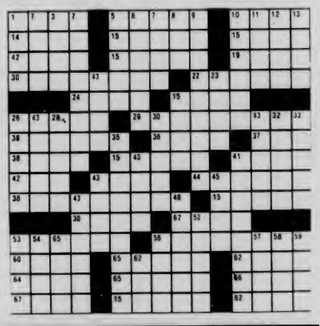
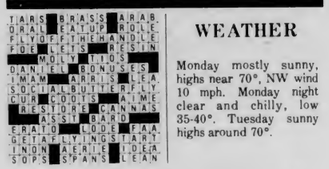
27 Word with moon
28 Norma
30 Pickles
31 Border state
32 The Hunter
33 Foster
35 Dusk to dawn
40 Reach
41 Showman of Amer. fame
43 External: Prefix
45 Enclosure
47 Kettledrum of India
48 Snapping beetle
52 Like neon
53 Coppola's Medium
54 Music halls
55 Paper purchase
56 Detest
57 Top-drawer
58 Great Russian duke
59 Terminal
62 Church title: Abbr.





WEATHER

Monday mostly sunny, highs near 70°, NW wind 10 mph. Monday night clear and chilly, low 35-40°. Tuesday sunny highs around 70°.

You are the eyes and ears of the Collegian. If you see a story, tell us about it.

Doonesbury
Brought to you everyday by Garry Trudeau and the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

10:30-12:30 Jane Fonda speaking at UMass
12:30-1:00 A Weekend with Wendelin Gletzel
1:00-1:30 Un Par Pas Dela-Avant Garde Video Art
1:30-2:00 May The Force Be Wtih You — Try it, you'll like it!

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Reckadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

Cleen 1973 Honde Civic engine rebuilt 1982 new tires 1595 774-5306

77 Toyote Celica-GT, standard, excellent condition, 56,000 mi, alarm, AM/FM/tape, louvers, $3595/BO 253-9389 after 5

1972 Datsun 510 manuel, tape-deck, runs good, looks fair, $900.00 or BO 256-6668 evenings

68 Olds Cutless runs well exc transpor call Bob 549-6416

Sporty French Seden Renault R12 fwd 4 doors, peppy, 30 mpg, excellent engine, body, and interior, no rust, no dents $1800.00 256-8871

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

In epartment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

DELTA ZETA PLEDGES

Congratulations Beta Pledge Class! Get Psyched!

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJ's FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks, Parties, Semis. Paul 549-4405 Joe 549-1588

The best sound system is MF Coffeehouse sound 256-8400

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Bass amp Fender Music Master $125, BO 253-9698

Telephone enswering machine Brand new $100.00 Bob 253-2098

I know I am crezy selling a Pioneer graphic equalizer for $250 recently bought for $400 Frank 6-8663

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Perttime position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel, and work experience. Contact Beach Comber Tours, Inc. PO Box 1236, Burlington, MA 01803 617-273-2423

2 soccer coaches needed for grades 4 - 6, So Deerfield, after school, 3 - 4:30, 2 - 3 days per week, $5.00 per hour. Contact Mrs. Reid, 665-2272 or grade school, 665-3820

INSTRUCTION

Tutoring Math Physics 256-0193

Basic Auto-Mechenics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Tennis Instructor Wanted for intermediate level player call 546-8534

INVESTMENT CLUB

Investment Club Meeting: 7:oo pm Tues Oct 5 rm 107 SBA guest speaker - Lawrence Dwight, stock broker from HM Payson & Co

LESBIAN/GAY

Office Menager Position open - 10 hour a week workstudy position - apply at the People's Gay Alliance office 413 SUB 5-0154 women & third world students encouraged to apply

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Wallet and Band Jacket in Sylvan call 6-9643 jacket has the name Jay on it

Glasses thin rims maybe case (brown) 665-4931 keep trying

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Dicky - Happy Birthday, Baby! Lots of Supertramp this weekend - I love you - The Ion Monster

Attention - women interested in service to the community - open meeting of Gamma Sigma Sigma Nat'l Service Sorority - Mon Oct 4, 6:30 pm CC Rm 905 for more info 304 SU 545-2068

Cherlies tonight 8 to 1 99¢ Molson bottles 75¢ Molson drafts

Register to vote October 4th and 5th, Campus Center Concourse

ANNIE, Over a year now. I'm glad Idaho was so close. i love you.

Hey Alicia! Have a good week Lil Sis

Rey Shamie wants to meet YOU at the nuclear freeze rally tomorrow

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

Annie Annie Annie blonde hair blue eyes, beautiful Annie I love you Joe

HRTA Students - ESD Honor Society meeting, Monday Oct 4, Flint 201 at 6:00

Hey Ed! Hows Cousin It? From X-Cuz & S

Here is your chance to fight the Moral Majority!! The Real Majority is having its introductory meeting Tonight at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center - check the agenda near the elevators for the room number. Fight Jerry Falwell and his cronies! Support abortion rights and other basic human rights--

Rosaco 16 has been great and its going to get better and better I love you Jo

Daddy - Welcome to UMass - I'm psyched for tonight! Love Kitten

Victor caught you by surprise. Happy Day! I love you. Love Gail

RECORDS

Joan Jett - I Love R & Roll J Geils -Freeze Frame, best offer, never used call 6-9648 keep trying

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RECORDMANIA

JOE JACKSON AND CHICK COREA are alive and well and on sale at Union Records. . .

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to D.C. aree Oct 8. Will share $ and conversation 546-8021

To Weshington DC Oct 7 or 8 call 546-1178, Ron

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Bucknell Univ leave Fri Oct 8 return Oct 11 will go to other places in Penn call Jodi 549-1352

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted to share room in spacious 3 bedroom Townehouse apt call Susan 549-3868

Female to share bedroom in Townehouse 549-5980

Apartmentmete needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable, on bus route furnished, call Jeff 665-4357

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tenk available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WORD PROCESSING

Resumes & Papers: Prompt quality preparations. Professionel theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/WORD LINK253-9535

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA
congratulates its new sisters:

Kristen Anderson
Mary Cazzetta
Kelly Conlin
Susan Duff
Jo Hethnger
Li Hunninghake
Maureen McDonald
Triss Schafer

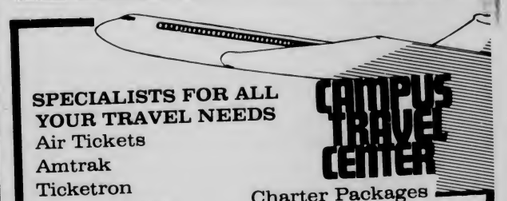
KKG, Going Strong for 40 Years!

TIME OUT

Two TV's

Great Juke and Stereo

MONDAY SPECIAL
Pitchers of Beer $3.00
starting at 6 PM
PINA COLADA SPECIAL
Each Afternoon $1.50
37 N Pleasant St, Amherst MA



SPECIALISTS FOR ALL YOUR TRAVEL NEEDS
Air Tickets
Amtrak
Ticketron
Eurailpasses
Hotel Reservations
Charter Packages
Car Rentals
Cruises

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

BOOK YOUR HOLIDAY TRAVEL NOW TO AVOID HIGH PRICES!

Campus Center 2nd Floor
545-0500
UMass Amherst 01003

Sports

Rhode Island just wasn't Ram tough

UM stands at 2-2 overall

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Inspired performances by the defensive and special teams units of the University of Massachusetts Minuteman football team, combined with a couple of key "big" plays spelled disaster for the University of Rhode Island Rams Saturday as the Minutemen posted a 17-7 win over URI.

The biggest-of-big plays came at 11:44 of the second period when URI's Tom Wilkins lined up to punt. Wilkins and center Bruce Love already knew that they were going to be spending several extra hours after practice this week working on snaps because of a low percentage success ratio. (Translated, this means that two of the three long snaps prior to this one were fumbled.)

Love decided that the only way to get out of extra practice was to lose his position as long snapper, as he rolled a ground ball to Wilkins. An alert Glenn Holden then proceeded to block the late kick. Freshman Duckworth Grange then made the biggest play of his young career as he picked up the ball on the 25 yard line and scampered untouched into the end zone.

The score put UMass up 7-0 (after Bob Ross' point after) and typified the way play for URI went all afternoon.

Coach Bob Pickett credited the punt return unit for making URI cough the ball up.

"We played well on special teams. We saw URI on game films and they executed very well but our team forced them to do things they don't normally do. They didn't execute because our people did," said Pickett.

The entire first half was a series of shows by the two teams' respective star running backs.

Garry Pearson put on his usual cutting, weaving and dodging game en route to a 115 yard day. (His fourth 100 yard game this year).

On the other side of the field, Rhode Island's Cal Whitfield showed why he is a leading force for the Rams as he utilized his speed to turn corners on the UMass defense and gain 102 yards of his own including URI's only score of the afternoon on a sweep around the right end midway through the third quarter.

The best offensive play of the day came from the Minutemen. UMass got the ball on the Rhode Island 20 yard line courtesy of an exchange of possessions between the two teams' offensive units by way of several URI fumbles.

As usually happens in football, the turnover cost dearly. On third down and 18, Dean Pecevick stepped back to pass. He looked right for several seconds and then suddenly turned to the left and let fly a picture-perfect lob that a streaking Ron Mangarelli, who had beaten his man by about a half a step, in stride and UMass had cushioned its lead to 14-0.

URI came back on the aforementioned Whitfield touchdown but a Bo Ross 28 yard field goal at the 12:54 mark of the final period gave the Minutemen breathing room and they held on to the win.

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Don Keefers swallows URI quarterback Dave Grimsich as the ball squirts loose while Glenn Holden starts towards the fumbled ball.

Pickett was pleased with the outcome for a number of reasons.

"Rhode Island has a good football team, one of the best they've had in a long time," said Pickett. "This is one-fifth of the league."

Pickett also said that he thought that the final tally should have been different.

"We should have scored more. I don't think that the score is any indication of the number of scoring opportunities that we had," said Pickett.

URI coach Bob Griffin had different sentiments.

"I don't want to take anything away from UMass," Griffin said. "They played fairly well, but we just played terrible."

The Minutemen now prepare for a Homecoming that will feature a game with the Fighting Blue Hens of Delaware.
donna 1-04 19.5

Local spikers sputter at the UMass Classic

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

When you're struggling, nothing seems to go right. Your serves don't always stay in in-bounds, your passing is poor, your team play is inconsistent and when you do play well, there is another team that plays above their heads to defeat you.

It was that type of weekend for the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team as they struggled through the UMass Classic, last Friday and Saturday in Boyden Gym.

UMass opened their tournament play with a 15-8, 15-11 win over Queens College, but the momentum didn't last as the Minutewomen were plastered by Cornell 15-9, 15-1 in their second match. In UMass' next match against Northeastern (with the winner going into the championship round), UM played tough. They took the first game 15-9, but stumbled in the second, losing 5-15.

In the third and deciding match, Northeastern ran out to a 6-1 lead before UM tied it up at 7-7. But NE established control despite the best efforts of Patti Philbin and Sally Mahar. The Minutewomen could not get themselves together and Northeastern won the match.

"It was a really hard weekend for us," said coach Elaine Sortino. "We were all struggling at the same time. It was an off-day for everyone."

Even though it was an off-day for UMass, they came out and gave their best shot against the University of New Haven in the first round of the consolation matches.

Kirsten Smith helped UMass take off to a 7-3 lead, but NH battled back to tie it up at 10-10, enroute to a 15-10 win. In the second game, Massachusetts came from behind to take a commanding 14-10 lead. But UM couldn't buy the fifteenth point due to some hustling plays by NH and some bad UM serves. New Haven was able to overcome and take the match, 17-15.

"We did improve our play against New Haven, but by then it was too late," explained Sortino. "Our defensive play was good and it was at its best in the NH game."

What UMass was lacking in was a good, consistent offense because of mistakes in their passing and serving. The Minutewomen will be looking to improve on this when they entertain Mount Holyoke tomorrow night.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Christine Taggert kicks a pass towards the Vermont goal dring Friday's game.

Vermont boots UM back to Amherst 3-1

By CHARISSE E. FEINERMAN
Collegian Staff

BURLINGTON, Vt. – A promising write-up in Friday's Boston Globe had most University of Massachusetts men's soccer team supporters eager to hear about their team's fifth win of the season. Unfortunately, the win didn't come as the booters returned home from the University of Vermont with a 3-1 loss, pushing their record to 4-3.

Massachusetts' only goal of the game came eight minutes into the second half, after leaving for halftime with a two goal deficit. Scoring for UM was Tom Ushok, who was assisted by Fritz Pike.

UMass was ranked fourth in New England as of last Sunday (when the rankings were changed). The University of Vermont has no ranking, and is currently 3-5-1.

"UVM's not a bad team, we played poorly," said coach Jeff Gettler. "It was like watching ten year olds playing against old men...they did anything they wanted to do to us."

The Minutemen played in front of a rather large crowd of about 1500 enthusiastic Vermont fans.

"It was kind of embarrassing," said Gettler.

When the first 45 minutes of the game were through the booters were down 2-0. Those two goals were given up in the first ten minutes. The first was as a result of a throw-in and the other as a result of the UMass defense allowing Vermont offenseman through the middle unguarded for an easy shot.

With 17 minutes left in the second half, Gettler sent in Tim Searls to replace injured goalkeeper Jeff Smith. This was the first opportunity for Searls this season, as Smith has pretty much dominated the net during the first seven games.

"Searls played well," said Gettler.

"Vermont is not a bad team. They beat Boston University, which happens to be a fair team," said Gettler.

UMass plays against Boston University Saturday at home, at Boyden field at 11:00 a.m.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday October 4, 1982 VOLUME 11 ISSUE 62

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

Were Blacks the First Victims of Nuclear Explosion?

This week Nummo News is beginning a series on "The Port Chicago Disaster" as covered by Black Scholar in its Spring 1982 issue. As stated in this issue 320 American sailors, most of them Black ammunitions loaders, died in a major explosion at the Port Chicago, California naval base 35 miles north of San Francisco in July of 1944. A work stoppage followed when many all Black regiments of the segregated naval base refused to return to work because of their valid fears regarding work conditions and the possibility of yet another major "accident".

The ammunition loaders were charged with mutiny; many were court martialed and later 50 were sentenced to jail. A full investigation did not occur. The cause of the explosion which instantly killed 320 people, injured 390 and destroyed ships, buildings and the pier was never officially determined. The Black Scholar article is significant because the incident has not been heard of by the vast majority of Americans over the years.

No one close enough to see exactly what happened at Port Chicago lived to tell about it. Recently evidence has come to light indicating that a nuclear blast may have been involved. The incident occurred 13 months before Hiroshima and Nagasaki and may have involved the same basic type of atomic bomb. Yet, the U.S. military asserts that the Hiroshima bomb had never been tested. Thus, the inhumanity of the Hiroshima bomb may have been brought to bear upon Americans first as a test of the bomb's strength.

If this evidence does indeed prove that the Port Chicago explosion was a nuclear one, then it can only be concluded that there has been a cover-up of this fact for all these years. The strongest tool in the cover-up effort would then be the institutional racism present in the court martial which followed the Black ammunition loaders' work stoppage.

The official Navy investigation focused heavily on the alleged "carelessness" and "rough handling" of ammunition by the Black work gangs. The subsequent "mutiny" court martial effectively deflected public attention from the explosion and onto the trial of the Black sailors. Thus, the Navy's and the public's racism allowed the American public to view the Blacks as "mutiners" instead of victims.

This incident shows that nuclear arms control is not simply a "white" issue. It also shows how racism was (and continues to be) used to divide and divert the various groups of people, in their various struggles, when unity in action is most needed!!

WATCH FOR PETER VOGELS INVESTIGATIVE ARTICLE TO BE FEATURED NEXT WEEK IN NUMMO!!!!

South Africa's Nuclear Capacity

1. Belgium has provided guarantees for a long-term contract to purchase South African uranium; Belgian interests are involved in Creusot-Loire which holds majority shares in the consortium supplying reactors to the Koeberg ; Belgian intersts are also involved in Eurofuel which will fabricate the fuel elements for Koeberg.

2. Britain helped establish uranium mining and the manufacture of uranium oxide in South Africa; it has been a consistent and major purchaser of South African uranium and is a major purchaser of uranium from the Rossing mine in Namibia in which Rio Tinto Zinc, a British multinational corporation, is the largest foreign shareholder. Since the mid 1950's at least there have been regular exchanges and high level contacts between the British and South African nuclear industries which have undoubtedly facilitated the recruitment of Britons to important positions in the South African industry.

3. The Federal Republic of Germany has, most importantly, been the main collaborator in South Africa's development of the technology for enriching uranium. Companies from the FRG were the main foreign suppliers of equipment for the enrichment plant. The FRG has imported South African uranium and now imports uranium form Rossing in which FRG state companies initially were shareholders. In 1962 the FRG and South Africa concluded an agreement including scientific cooperation. Since then there have been regular exchanges between the two countries'nuclear industries and in 1969 the FRG began training some South African scientists in uranium enrichment technology.

4. France has shares in the Rossing mine, from which it also purchases uranium as it purchases other South African uranium.France has been sending technicians since 1966. French state suport and finance, together with training of techinians, has made possible the construction of a nuclear power station at Koegerg by a consortium dominated by French intersts.

5. Israel agreed in 1976 to increase scientific cooperation with South Africa, possibly including the nuclear field, and there have been rumours of Israeli personnel working at the Valindaba enrichment plant.

6. Japan is a major purchaser of South African uranium with several companies, including Kansai, purchasing uranium from Roissing Equipment supplied by Hitachim Mitsubishi and Toshiba.

7. The United States of America helped, with Britain, to establish uranium mining in South Africa and was a major importer of South African uranium until 1971; several American companies still import significant quantities of South African uranium, while other American companies prospect for uranium in Namibia and South Africa. Under the 1957 cooperation agreement there have been major exchanges of personnel and training of Sotuh African technicians. An American company with government approval constructed Safari 1 reactor; American uranium, some of it fabricated into fuel elements in the U.S. fuelled both Safari 1 and 2. The U.S. has exported other nuclear materials to South Africa, including the heavy water needed for Safari 2, and American companies supplied equipment to the Valindaba enrichment plant, while Westinghouse has shares in the consortium constructing the Koeberg power station using Westinghouse designs for the reactor.

SOUTH AFRICAN NUCLEAR TECHNOLOGY - A SHORT CHRONOLOGY

1950 Agreement with American-British Combined Development Agency on uranium mining (27 mines opened during 1950s)

1957 South African Atomic Energy Board founded. Agreement on nuclear cooperation with US (amended to expand scope and duration 1962, 1967 and 1974)

1958 Joint US and South African team monitored US nuclear tests in South Atlantic.

1960 Secret work on uranium enrichment begun within South African AEB.

1961 US company of Allis Chalmers contracts to construct Safari 1 nuclear reactor.

1963 Uranium production at Palabora initiated.

1965 Safari 1 went critical (1965-76 : US supplied uranium for Safari 1)

1967 South African scientists joined with British to monitor French nuclear tests in Pacific. Safari 2 reactor was activated.

1970 STEAG obtained world rights on commercial development of jet-nozzle. South Africa announced it had developed unique method of uranium enrichment.

1976 Uranium production started at Rossing (Namibia) Work begun to build Koeberg nuclear power station.

1977 US held up futher contract for supplying uranium for Safari 1 reactor.

1979 US satellite identified double-flash over south Atlantic in vicinity of South Africa, ineicative of nuclear test.

Reprinted from SOUTH AFRICA'S NUCLEAR CAPABILITY
World Campaign against Military and Nuclear Collaboration with South Africa

Toxic Waste Dumped in North Carolina Black Community

By Keith W. Johnson

The last time Warren County, North Carolina was in the news was in the 1970's when Floyd McKissick tried to build a new flagship town of Black people called Soul City. But now Warren County is about to gain the same recognition as Love Canal, N.Y. as the center of an important chemical waste controversy.

Afton, North Carolina has attracted attention because it is the first case in which a state has deliberately decided to create a chemical waste site despite the community opposition. The chemical is polychlorinated biphenyls, commonly known as PCB. The PCB originates from a 1970 case when truck drivers of a Raleigh, N.C. electrical company dumped the deadly toxic chemical along 14 roadways in North Carolina. Three truck drivers pleaded guilty and the owner of the Raleigh electrical company was also found guilty. The state then collected the material and decided to dump it in Warren County.

In 1978 the Federal government abandoned the Soul City project and many Blacks believe the project was abandoned as a result of political pressure created by North Carolina Republican Senator Jesse Helms, who had been opposed to Soul City since its creation.

When Soul City died many Blacks began to wake up and become more politically aware. In 1978 the idea of developing a PCB landfill in the area stirred up the community. Black leaders began building a movement that culminated with the demonstrations and arrests of this September 14.

After six days of protests 230 people had been arrested by the North Carolina State Highway Police. The protest had attracted national civil rights leaders such as Rev. Ben Chavis of the Wilmington 10, Rev. Fred Taylor and Rev. Joseph Lowery of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) and Rev. Leon White of the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice. McKissick, who helped defend the original freedom riders and was the past chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) before his involvement in Soul City participated in the protest. Many of these leaders were arrested. Local leaders Ken Ferruccio of the Warren County Citizen Group and Rev. Luther Brown of the Coley Springs Baptist Church which became a meeting place for the bi-racial citizens group against the waste disposal brought Lois Gibbs of the Love Canal, N.Y. Homeowners Association to Warren County to speak at a rally. The people then marched to the dump site two and a half miles from US-401 Highway. There they met an army of North Carolina Highway Police with a National Guard helicopter flying overhead. Bill Phillips of the State Department of Crime Control and Public Safety dispatched ten patrol squads to Warren County in order to see "that the dumping was carried out with the least possible disturbance".

For days protesters tried to set up a human chain in order to stop the yellow trucks from dumping the carcinogenic waste. The PCB is laced in 60,000 tons of earth which is being dumped into a large hole dup up for a landfill site. Many local people believe that this will create a serious health hazard. They also believe that the state has chosen this area not only because it is rural and sparely populated, but also because the county is sixty-percent Black and the area of the landfill has a seventy-five percent Black population. Thus they feel that the selection of the landfill site has been racially motivated.

The Duke Ellington Committee

By Victoria Carter

The Duke Ellington Committee was formed several years ago bythe Campaign to Combat Racism (CCR), in an effort to address the lack of musical entertainment of and for the Third World community. The Duke Ellington Committee has been trying to meet the needs of the community ever since.

The Committee is named in honor of Duke Ellington, who was a classic artist and innovator who set a standard of excellence for all musicians to follow. His genius has influenced and touched a universal audience. The Duke Ellington Committee (D.E.C.) has immortalized his name on the University of Massachusetts campus.

In the recent meeting on September 28th the Committee dealt with an issue that has caused controversy for sometime. Would the integrity of Duke Ellington's name be in question if the Committee started booking artists who play Urban Contemporary Dance music (Funk)? Some members felt that only African-American Instrumental music (Jazz?) should be featured since Duke Ellington was one of the major creative forces of this musical form. Finally, a motion was seconded and passed by a majority vote to "widen its scope of musical entertainment while keeping its cultural, educational background". Theresa Mitchell, Talent Coordinator for D.E.C. is looking into many diverse groups that fit into this format. Fortunately Solos and Duos, a concert series showcasing artists in the African-American instrumental tradition will be continued this year.

The Duke Ellington Committee works along with Union Program Council (U.P.C.) and has access to twenty-five percent of the U.P.C. budget. So far this year, D.E.C. has co-sponsored with U.P.C. the successful show featuring Jimmy Cliff and Peter Tosh.

The Duke Ellington Committee Executive Board includes Theresa Mitchell-Talent Coordinator, John Ruddock-Production Manager, Darryl Ruffen-Security, and Jennie Gonsalves-Hospitality. All of the Board members were democratically elected with the exception of Theresa Mitchell and John Ruddock who were appointed by last year's talent coordinator Yat Man. In cooperation with the Executive Board the rest of the Committee helps to produce the shows and select the artist.

In order to join the Committee an application must be filled out. Attendence at weekly meetings is also important. The meetings are scheduled on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. D.E.C.'s phone number is 545-2892 and their office is located at 406 Student Union Building. If you are interested in getting creative Black music on campus, come and make a contribution. Also, when they put on a show, come out and support it because, "All people need music like the flower needs the sun."

Book Review

Ntozake Shange: "A Poet's Poet, Even in Prose"

By Tracey Bryant

In her new novel Sassafrass, Cypress and Indigo, Ntozake Shange weaves a story from feelings, emotions and attitudes. In this book of recipes, relationships and realizations, one is taken through the processes of life from both a woman's and a Black perspective: neither being separate from the other. Shange states that her spirit is "too ancient to understand the separation of soul and gender". The emphasis of the book is on the flow of each person's spirit into life's circle. In it each person must dance her own dance, give to the spirit and therefore, live. The book is rich, colorful and imaginative. It is African, it is Afro-American, it is simply Black; it is poetic It is a song which echoes many of the themes Ntozake has previously expressed in her poetry.

The book opens with Indigo, the youngest, the mystic, the incarnate of innocent spirituality. Indigo expresses Shange's belief in the power generated out of one's relationship to the Spirit. Being "in the spirit" or aligned to the spiritual world (of ancestors, God, etc.) is a natural state believed to be strongest in youth. Therefore Indigo's story is practically the whole of the book's opening and very little of the rest. She grows up to be a healer.

Her older sisters, Cypress and Sassafrass are more mundane, but no less interesting. One becomes a dancer, the other a weaver with a novel lingering in her soul. Though their lives separate, they are mentioned together because they represent a particular aspect of life- trying to be in the world. The characterizations become even stronger as they transform learning-to-live-in-the-world into learning--to-live-their-own-lives. The process happens without marked recognition because it is simply a part of life's cycle (and is too vague to be exacted upon).

Cypress and Sassafrass represent interaction with the world. Indigo represents interaction with one's self. Hilda Euphania represents the peaceful unification of both. She is life that simply goes on. She is the mother of the three women and the background to the whole story. Together they represent life's circle, each one a special part.

The difference between Shakespeare and Shange is like the difference between their cultures. Shakespeare said, "Life is a stage, and we are merely players". Shange would say, 'Life is a stage, within it we are all creators'. Her book is not perfectly written by literary standards. It does not seek to fulfill a quotient dictated by external altercations. It embodies the essence of an attitude towards life. It does not seek perfection, it seeks expression. Written in the spirit where consciousness does not readily command, it is human. It talks, it dances, it sings, and never performs. It simply displays humanity- the humanity of Black womanhood following its circles through life and time.

This book has been reviewed before by many more prestigious than I. But it seems to me, that though many gave thorough evaluations of the book, there was much they did not understand. The essence of the book is very sacred, and is given to those with whom it already rests. Still, it is to be enjoyed by all, and cherished by some- as a very special moment. Sassafrass, Cypress and Indigo is a world of its own.

NFL Strike: Class Struggle in Sports?

By Keith Johnson

The recent strike by the National Football Players Association of the NFL may make some people laugh and others angry. But this strike deserves a closer look because it involves a strike against one of the largest growing businesses and some of the richest people in America today. Though baseball is America's "favorite pastime", football is fast becoming America's favorite sport. But in these times of economic hardship with high inflation and high unemployment, many people believe it almost ridiculous for players who earn an average salary of $90,000 a year to ask for more.

The financial statistics involved in sports are amazing. It seems as though all figures in football start with millions of dollars. For instance, the revenues of NFL teams for 1970 stood at a modest $125 million but estimate revenue for this year was projected at some $550 million. This money comes from three basic sources: first is the money from ticket sales of the various stadiums across the country, second is from television contracts. (The clubs recently signed a new contract with the three major networks for more than $2 billion dollars over the next five years. That's a one hundred percent increase over last years television revenues!) The third source of revenue comes from an assortment of spin-off areas ranging from parking fees to souvenirs. (How many of you for instance have an official NFL poster or cap or jersey?)

The players have looked at these growing statistics and have decided that they now want an increase in their share of the pie. In other sports (such as baseball [$250,000] and basketball [$214,000]) players are making much more money per average so the football players feel that they are worth at least an average of $175,000 a year. To get this the players have asked for a $1.6 billion dollar package over a four year period as opposed to the owners $1.6 billion dollars over five years. This is a difference of nearly $80 million dollars a year. The details of the players package include: a fifty percent share of the growing television revenues, a wage scale guaranteeing rookies $90,000 a year and eight year players $200,000; there would be bonuses for exceptional performances and additional issues such as free agency, artificial turf, game rules, etc. are also to addressed.

What the management council has said to the majority of these issues is basically no way. But who are these powerful people on the other side of the table of whom the players first asked for fifty-percent of their purse? They are some of the richest people in America who use football as a sideline. It is just part of their corporation. Football is big business, one that you cannot start at the bottom. Take Ted Turner for instance. He not only owns the Atlantic Falcons Football Team but also baseball's Atlanta Braves. He is the owner of the Cable News Network and also the WTBS superstation that broadcasts to cable stations across the nation.

Continued on page 4

Congress Votes to Restore Jim Thorpe Records

By Keith W. Johnson

A House of Representatives panel has approved a resolution to ask the International Olympic Committee to restore the 1912 records of American Indian, Jim Thorpe. Jim Thorpe was one of America's greatest Olympic champions and is said to have been perhaps the greatest athlete that America has produced.

He was a star athlete in college; creating a legendary name for himself on the football field and in track. In 1912 he was part of the U.S. Olympic Team that went to the Olympics in Stockholm, Sweden. There he participated in two of the most grueling events in the Games: the pentathlon, an assortment of five track and field events, and the decathlon , which has ten track and field events. He set records in both.

But before the Olympics, Thorpe had once played summer baseball earning $2 a day in order to pay his expenses at Carlisle College. The authorities claimed that this made him a professional under the rules of the Olympics so his gold medals were taken away and his records were erased.

Thorpe, who many felt was the victim of discrimination went on to play professional football and then helped coach athletic youth. He died in 1953 still seeking to clear his name.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Third World Women in Liberation Struggles

The Third World Women's Task Force is sponsoring a film series this autumn semester, 1982, entitled: Third World Women in Liberation Struggles. In concert with each film presentation, there will also be a faculty member from the five college area to speak, answer questions, fill in gaps, update the film, and help lead a discussion. It is the hope of the Third World Women's Task Force that these presentations will provide a forum of discussion as well as education around topics of concern to the Third World, and specifically to the women of the Third World.

This is a lunchtime film series to be held every-other Thursday at noon until 1 p.m. These presentations are free of charge and open to all.

Due to the nature of the organization, and to the extremely limited budget we are working with, we are asking those groups and individuals like yourselves who share common interests to co-sponosr the series by making a monetary contribution, if possible. Any amount is both welcome and appreciated. We thank you for your interest in our program.

October 14th Bottle Babies
An important and informative documentary about the Nestles Corporation and their exploitative advertising of infant-formula marketed to Kenya and other Third World countries. Amrita Basu, Prof. of Political Science at Amherst College, will be speaking in conjunction with the film. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room TBA.

October 28th Women in Arms
A vivid account of the role of women in the Nicaraguan Revolutionary forces, and their post-revolution situation. Carmen Diana Deere, Prof. of Economics at U.Mass and member of the NCOCA, will be speaking in conjunction with the film. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 904-08.

November 4th Chile: Four Women's Stories
Four women speak in their own words about their lives in Chile before and after the September 11, 1973 military coup. Their stories touch on Chile's history, economic conditions, the worker's movement under Allende, the Chilean women's movement, repression after the coup, and commitment to the new Chilean revolution. Susan Triolo, member of the NCOCA, will be speaking in conjunction with the slide presentation. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 917

November 18th Women Under Siege
A brand new film which looks at the participation of the women of a small Palestinian village located just six miles north of the Israeli border in their unique and often overlooked struggle. *Speaker TBA. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 903.

December 2nd A Vieled Revolution
From the same woman who produced Women Under Siege, comes this very recent account of the women's movement in Egypt. *Speaker TBA. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 904-08.

* Indicates that the speaker has not yet formally confirmed. TBA to be arranged.

John Lee Hooker

U.Mass/Amherst....The Commuter Collective will present John Lee Hooker in concert on October 16, 1982, in the Student Union Ballroom at 8:00 p.m. Admission is 3.00.

Born on August 12, 1917 in Mississippi, Bluesman John Lee Hooker learned to play the guitar at an early age from his stepfather William Moore. By the time he was thirteen years old, John Lee's serious intentions to be a musician were well charted.

Running away to Memphis, Tenn., John found the famous Beale Street section a source of unending inspiration. His concerned parents, who would have preferred him to sing Gospel music, soon found him and hauled him home. After a series of frequent escapes and returns he was finally allowed to stay in Memphis.

1948 found John Lee Hooker in Detroit playing "after hours" in local clubs. He began to record with local record labels and his hit single "Boogie Chillun" became a national hit.

John Lee has come a long way since 1917; meeting and performing with some interesting people in that time. In fact, nineteen years ago he was so famous in Europe that the Rolling Stones were his opening act.

"I've sat down and thought about it," recalls John, "There ain't many of us left....maybe five or six. We ain't going to be around always. When we're gone, they'll still be people playing the Blues, but not the way we play it."

The influence of John Lee Hooker's music can be heard in the music of the DOORS, JIMI HENDRIX, CANNED HEAT, ROLLING STONES, and JOHN MAYALL. John Lee Hooker has recorded over 100 lp's and remains popular in contemporary times. As Thomas Albright of the San Francisco Chronicle comments: "John Lee Hooker is what the blues is all about."

Women in Prison

The Women's Studies Program at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst will be sponsoring a movie about women in prison on October 5, 1982 at 8:00 p.m. The movie, entitled "PW4:Prison for Women", is a feature length film about five women: their stories, their relationships and their lives in prison.

Appearing with the movie will be independent filmmaker Holly Dale, co-producer and co-editor of "PW4:Prison for Women". There will also be a special presentation on the death penalty in Massachusetts.

This event is co-sponsored by the U.Mass Women's Studies Program, The Third World Women's Task Force, The U.Mass Human Services Program and the Commuter Collective. It is presented in cooperation with the Canadian Consulate General.

"PW4:Prison for Women" will be shown in Herter Hall, Room 231, on the U.Mass campus. The event is free and open to the public.

Dennis Brutus Update

Dennis Brutus, black South African poet currently under deportation orders from the Immigration and Naturalization Service and awaiting a State Department ruling on his political asylum application, will be in Amherst on Monday, October 11, 1982 to commemorate Native American Peoples Day. Last year, Dennis Brutus, then the Visiting Professor at Amherst College, together with American Friends Service Committee Frances Crowe and others renounced the celebration of Columbus Day, citing the invasions and massacres led by Columbus, and the ultimate colonization of the Carribean islands and the Americas which followed, as events of tragedy and infamy. Reading original poetry which he dedicated to the cause of Native Americans, Brutus announced to a crowd which had gathered in front of the Unitarian Church on North Pleasant Street, Amherst last year on October 12 that the struggle of peoples in South Africa, seeking to regain their land and destiny, is the same struggle waged before by Native Americans. He urged solidarity between the struggles of native people everywhere. Brutus is presently teaching in the English Department at Northwestern University, in Evanston, Ill.

The celebration event, featuring Brutus who will read poetry and speak on the struggles of Native Americans and South Africans will take place on the Amherst Commons on Monday, October 11th at 1:00 in the afternoon. In the event of rain, the event will be held in the Meeting Hall at 16 Spring Street. The celebration, which is free and open to the public, will also feature music and refreshments.

To date, fifty-two Congressmen, including Conte, Boland and House Speaker Tip O'Neill, and sixteen Senators, including Kennedy and Tsongas, have urged the State Department to rule favorably on Prof. Brutus's application for political asylum. While in South Africa, Brutus vigorously opposed the apartheid regime in his teaching, writing and political activities. After being shot by South African police, he was sentenced to hard labor at Robbin Island prison in South Africa. For the past ten years, Brutus has been teaching in the United States but last year, as the Reagan administration moved closer to the South African government, INS refused to grant Professor Brutus a visa extension and ordered him deported.

Brutus filed his political asylum application on February 3rd this year but the State Department has still failed to rule on his application.

Third World Theater Series

The Third World Theater Series introduces its 6th season with a production by the acclaimed Broadway musical "Home" written by Samm-Art Williams.

"Home" was surprisingly conceived on a Greyhound bus December 22, 1976 when Samm-Art Williams was on his way to a small town in North Carolina. Through the bright and playful character of Cephus Miles, we experience the pain and struggle of a black man who has a strong will to survive in a world falling apart around him. On the journey back to his hometown Cephus receives "a gift of deep and loving friendship". Cephus introduces us to a stream of characters that show the humor and mobility of "Home".

"Home" was praised by the New York Times for its "love, passion, and purpose." "Home was presented with two Tony nominations and the Outer Circle Critic Citation for Best Play of The Year. "Home" was winner of the Audeleo Award for the highest achievement in the craft of black playwriting and theatre production. Join us.

When: Thursday, October 7, 1982 at 8:00 p.m.
Where: Bowker Auditorium, U. Mass
Tickets: 2.00 for students; 3.00 for general public. Tickets will be sold at the box office on evening of the performance.

Continued from page 3

Many believe that very soon the owners will open their training camps to players who want to come back. Gene Upshaw, All-Pro Offensive Guard with the Los Angeles Raiders and President of the Players Association, believes that this is the way the owners will try to break the union. Some players have said that they are not in favor of the strike and that they are prepared to go back. Players such as Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh, Joe Montana of the Super Bowl winning San Francisco 49ers, and Doug Williams of Tampa Bay are said to be ready to return. John Stallworth and Lynn Swann of Pittsburgh showed up for practice the day after the strike began. There is talk of organizing new teams with free agents and players who do come back. The owners believe that the superstars would come back.

But not all owners are interested in breaking the union or creating scab football teams. Coaches such as Dick Vermeil of Philadelphia and Mike Ditka of Chicago have said they would not coach scab football teams. Owners such as Wellington Mara of the Giants said that he is in favor of a union at this point in the league history. He believes it is a way that players and owners can talk without going to court. The Rooney family of Pittsburgh, like Mara, is one of the longtime owners in the NFL. In Pittsburgh, land of the steel and Steeler football dynasty, labor unions are as much a part of the city as are the blast furnaces. Grandpa Rooney was in the Homestead Steel Strike and his son, Art, went on to found the Pittsburgh Steelers who practically owned football in the late 1970s. Art Rooney and his son, Dan Rooney, are also in favor of the union. The Rooneys are known to treat their players fairly. Maverick owner Al Davis, who was a rebel in moving his Raider team from Oakland to Los Angeles against the will of the other owners, agrees with Gene Upshaw that although the owners pay the bills, the players are the people on the field who play the game. He is opposed to the fact that the six owners on the Management Council are the only ones who have a say in negotiations. He does not believe that the idea is to break the union. Ted Turner has even thrown an end-around play at the League by signing a contract to show all-star games on his cable network. These games would be organized by the players themselves.

The fact is that this is a strike of employees against management. But many people believe that football players do not have the same rights as auto workers or postal workers. They booed at the players as they shook hands in solidarity at the beginning of exhibition games. But isn't this America and don't all employees have the right to collectively bargain with their employers? Or is this right reserved for some and not others?

To Be Continued in Next Weeks Issue

Nummo Staff

Roxana Bell	Co-Editor
Angela Brown	Co-Editor
Brynne Clarke	Lay-Out
John Wright	Photo Editor
Jennifer Bayne	Researcher
Donna Davis	Business Manager
Angela Siscamanis	Typesetter
Deanna McRae	Administrative Assistant

Contributing Reporters/Photographers

Keith Johnson
Victoria Carter
Tracey Bryant
Max Senior
Ed Cohen
Sheila Smith
Chris Hardin

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 21 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, October 5, 1982

Photo by Katie Watters
Rory Boy an arboriculture student in the school of Stockbridge practices climbing trees for tree care purposes near Orchard Hill last week.

Nuclear Freeze Rally held today at UMass

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts will host a nuclear freeze rally today that promises to be the largest political rally this campus has seen in many years.

Twenty-two speakers and musicians will take the stage at 12:30 p.m. on the Metawampe Lawn next to the Student Union building. If it rains the rally will be held indoors at the Student Union Ballroom.

The agenda for the first hour of the rally has been set by the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide, a UMass student organization, and will feature student speakers, local politicians and Ray Shamie, candidate for the U.S. senate seat currently held by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The second half of the rally will feature speakers invited by the Kennedy re-election campaign with Kennedy giving the closing address at approximately 2:30 p.m.

Chancellor Duffy will introduce himself to the UMass community and say something on the nuclear freeze issue at 1:45 p.m.

Among the notables to speak at the rally will be James Taylor, Peter Yarrow, a singer with Peter, Paul and Mary in the 60's, and Randall Forsberg, a leader in the nuclear freeze movement.

Student Government Association president Jim Murphy will address the crowd at about 1:20 p.m. and may sing a few songs.

"First Rate", a local band will open the rally at 12:30 p.m.

The following speakers will hold the stage for about 3 minutes each: Nan King of the UMass Peacemakers; Robert Garvey, chairman of the Hampshire County Commissioners; Sharon Davies, speaker of the student senate; Mayor of Northampton David Musante; Becky Lautman of the Radical Student Union; Rep. Jim Collins D-Amherst; Jim Murphy; Ray Shamie; Sen. John Olver D-Amherst; Cliff McCarthy of SCANN; and Judy Scheckle of the Trap Rock Peace Center in Deerfield.

At 1:30 p.m., "First Rate" will play another song. Rev. Donna Schaper of Amherst and Rev. Joseph Quiggley of the UMass Newman Center will say a few words before the second half of the rally with Duffy's address begins at 1:45. James Taylor will have the stage after Duffy followed by Lauren Bacall, Randall Forsberg and Peter Yarrow. Kennedy will begin the last speech at about 2:30 p.m.

Higher ed campaigns to boost student aid

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

As a measure to increase state financial assistance to students stalls in the Legislature, a renewed effort by students, higher education officials and state legislators is underway to substantially increase the Massachusetts State Scholarship Program.

Last spring, under the threat of massive federal student aid cuts, a broad coalition within the higher education community introduced a proposal that would double the amount of state aid given to students. After receiving strong support within the state legislature, the bill has stalled in the House Ways and Means Committee for the last six months.

"Obviously (Governor Edward) King did not want it (the student assistance bill) to appear before the (primary) election," said Sen. John Oliver, D-Amherst, a principle sponsor of the bill in a telephone interview yesterday.

"He did not want to be placed into a position of signing a proposal that appears to raise taxes on the one hand or veto a measure that would help students," Oliver said.

"I figured the bill had a chance after the primary. But now the legislators themselves are running and I suppose a fair amount of them won't take a stand," Oliver said.

In an effort to generate support for the proposal the Massachusetts Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (MASFA) and the Massachusetts Independent Student Coalition (MISC) will be holding a rally from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. on Friday, October 15 at Boston Common.

"The thrust (of the rally) is on additional assistance and not any specific bill in particular," said Darsie Lincoln, a financial aid administrator at Suffolk University and coordinator of the rally.

Oliver said that the Legislature will be in session until December 15 and possibly much longer.

"There's still plenty of time to do something. The strength is still there," he said, referring to the support the measure received last spring.

Student participation in elections and a strong lobbying presence in the State House is vital for any measure that benefits students to be passed favorably, Oliver said.

Evangelists speak against sex and drugs and rock 'n' roll

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Two evangelists spoke against sexual relations, rock music and drugs, in front of about 250 students on the south lawn of the Student Union building at the University of Massachusetts yesterday.

"I've got a word for all you oral sex practicers. People who practice oral sex are soooo disgusting," Jim Gilles of Evansville, Indiana said to the crowd.

"In 1980 I was a big drug dealer," Gilles said. "I loved rock and roll so much. I had all the Led Zeppelin albums and all the Judas Priest."

At this point one member of the crowd yelled out, "I want to party with you!"

While Gilles was speaking, Jed Smock of Terre Haute, Indiana spoke to a group of about 10 students nearby. One asked him why his fellow evangelist was being ridiculed.

"People didn't take Noah seriously while he was building his ark," Smock replied.

Smock said Jesus Christ willingly was crucified because he knew that was the only way man could be saved.

Police broke up the gathering shortly after 4 p.m. saying they had received complaints from people in the Student Union building.

"We want the crowd to calm down and we want the noise to stop," Sgt. Ominsky of the UMass police department said. "We've received notice of complaints."

The crowd then followed Smock to a grassy area between the Old Chapel and the campus pond.

"God offers forgiveness to all, but God is not all forgiving," Smock said in his midwestern evangelists drawl.

"God is an all consuming fire. Most everybody is condemned whether you're a jew or not," he said. "Jews who do not want to convert to Christ are damned to hell."

Continued on page 4

Collegian photo by Michael Hargolin
The Reverend Jed addresses a heckler in the crowd he spoke to by the Campus Pond yesterday.

Volunteers search city to warn isolated people

CHICAGO — About 1,300 volunteers fanned out through the city yesterday to warn the lonely and elderly who may not have heard about cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol. Government officials, meanwhile, sought measures to prevent future tampering with over-the-counter drugs.

Authorities reported no significant progress in the hunt for the random killer who claimed seven victims by placing deadly capsules on several different stores in the Chicago area last week.

On Sunday, state Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said investigators were looking at more than two dozen suspects who included "malcontents and weirdos who don't act right or did something extremely out of the ordinary."

He said investigators believe one person acted alone, filling the capsules at home and then "salting" store shelves with the tainted capsules.

Also yesterday, tests were under way on a few Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules and some powder recovered from a suburban motel parking lot. Two sheriff's deputies became dizzy and nauseous after stumbling across hundreds of discarded capsules in the lot the day before the poison was apparently placed on shelves. One of them said the majority of the capsules inside had been emptied and not put back together.

State hospital anarchy results in boy's death

BOSTON — There was "anarchy in the ward" at Northampton State Hospital in 1974 when officials released mental patient Vernal Walford, who was later charged with murdering a 9 year-old boy, an expert witness told a legislative committee yesterday.

Walford was released because of "misinformation" on his legal status or because "the staff wanted to get rid of a patient they were quite frightened of, and wanted to get him the heck out," said Dr. Bernard Katz, president of the Massachusetts Psychiatric Society.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Chelsea officer faces new assault charge

MALDEN — A suspended Chelsea police officer, facing charges in connection with a fatal motel lounge brawl, pleaded innocent yesterday to a new assault charge involving another lounge fight.

Michael F. Nadworny, 34, of Malden was arrested Sunday night at Town Line Lounge in the Town Line Ten Pin bowling alley on Route 99 in Malden, according to Malden Police Capt. James Keohane.

Nadworny was charged with assault by means of a dangerous weapon in connection with a disturbance, along with Daniel DiBenedetto of Peabody.

"They had some kind of a beef between them and allegedly pulled guns on each other," Keohane said of the incident.

Keohane said both men pleaded innocent yesterday in Malden District Court, and the cases were continued to Nov. 4 for a pretrial conference in the same court.

Investigators have said wepons were taken at the scene from both men, who were licensed to carry firearms, police said.

Nadworny is one of about 10 police officers from Chelsea and Everett and three civilians facing charges in conection with a bloody brawl July 23 at King Arthur's Motel and Lounge in Chelsea's produce district near the Everett line. A customer, Vincent Joseph Bordonaro, 54, of Everett, died several days later while being treated for a head injury sustained in the incident. Seven other civilians and four officers also were hurt.

Israel hits Arab posts

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli jets blast[illegible] a Syrian missile battery east of Beirut yesterday [illegible]d Lebanese radio reports said the Israeli warplanes also struck at Palestinian positions in the eastern mountains.

Although Israel did not link the air strike to an ambush that killed six Israeli soldiers Sunday, it was announced following a special Israeli Cabinet meeting to discuss the attack on the Israeli soldiers.

The Israeli air attacks, the first since mid-September, came as U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib was headed to Washington for consultations after a round of talks in Israel and Syria on getting their occupying forces out of Lebanon.

Meanwhile, President Amin Gamayel asked acting Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan to head his government, and Wazzan immediately started negotiations to form a Cabinet.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Michelle Murray
Copy Editor — Susan Callender
Layout Technician — Kelley Riley
Photo Technician — Michael Margolis
Composition — Alyssa Rusiecki, Jamie Katz
Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Adrianne Dufour
Kathie Wells, Becky Robins, Maria Cahillane
Marianne Walsh

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Read the Collegian

USED BOOK SALE
20% Regular Prices
Oct 4-9, Mon - Sat
VALLEY BOOK SHOP
Carriage Shops
Downtown Amherst
10-5:30 M-F, Sat 10-5, Sun 12-4

Kathy O
Happy Birthday
Love
Lori and Mary

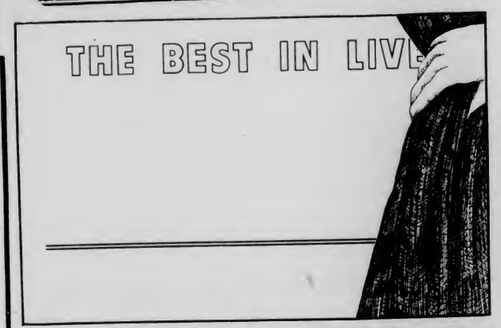
TACO VILLA
SPECIALS
ALL DAY AND NIGHT
Monday thru Thursday:
COMPLETE MEALS (Including Drink) 2.15-2.60
With prices like these, why eat at home?
NORTHAMPTON — 21 Center St.
AMHERST — 41 Boltwood Walk
HOURS: Mon.-Thurs., 11-10
Fri. & Sat., 11-11...Sun. 3-9



ARE YOU VOTING ?!!
"Today", October 5th, is the Last Day to Register to Vote.
If you have any questions, call, "TIPS", at 545-1540 and ask for TAPES...
*2000 Registering to Vote in Amherst
*2005 Absentee Voting
IDB TIPS
a Service of Dean of Students Office

The UMass Fitness Center is sponsoring a FREE Aerobic Dance Demonstration
DATE: Tues. October 5
TIME: 7:30 P.M.
PLACE: Rm 22 NOPE
Classes begin Oct. 6 at 6 and 7 pm and will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings through Dec. 22
Registration following demonstration - Fee - $50 for 20 classes
Limited Enrollment
Aerobic Dancing is an excellent form of cardiovascular conditioning, helps tone muscles, and is a great calorie burner.
Come — Move — Be Energized!

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Karin Lee Shea, (left), a Smith College psychology/communications disorders student, and Patricia Ruddy, a Smith graduate, join the protest against existing and proposed anti-abortion legislation.

Women's rights defended at rally

By ROBIN MANDEL
Collegian Staff

"A Woman's life is at stake when the government imposes its dictatorship in our bedrooms," said Lyn Michaels, a University of Massachusetts psychology major who participated in a silent protest about the freedom of reproductive rights for women, held yesterday afternoon on Coolidge Bridge in Northampton.

According to Sally Koplin, one of the major organizers of the group, the silent protest was sponsored by ISIS, a reproductive rights group and was a demonstration to alert the general public that a woman's access to reproductive health care faces severe threats.

"We want people to understand that there are a lot of restrictions influencing a woman's choice to have an abortion. Medicaid funding for abortions have been cut down, some insurance policies for workers no longer cover the expenses of an employee who has undergone an abortion, and often women are exposed to unsafe reproductive facilities," said Koplin.

"One of the main purposes of this protest was to commemorate Rosie Jimenez, a single woman, who died in 1977 from an illegal, back-alley abortion," she said. According to Koplin, only 21 percent of the public hospitals all over the nation were performing abortions.

"Today," she continued, "women have been forced to have unnecessary surgery. Often doctors will perform Caesarean sections or hysterectomies when the woman doesn't need one. Sometimes this will happen if the woman is under a great deal of strain during childbirth or if there is a language barrier between the doctor and the woman patient."

The most recent opposition to the fight for woman's reproductive rights is the possibility that the Human Life Amendment might be passed. If passed, the amendment will ban all forms of birth control and all forms of abortion.

Michaels said that even if a woman is raped, she will not have the option of having an abortion.

"The worst part is that if a woman is going to die from having her baby, she will be prohibited from having it aborted. If this amendment should be passed, the government will be promoting a crime to take place," claims Michaels.

Town appropriates $475,000 for data system

By ANN CARRNS
Collegian Correspondent

The Amherst Town Meeting last night voted to appropriate $475,000 for data processing equipment for the Town.

The package included $400,000 for a data processing system and $40,000 for a word processing system, both of which would serve the Town of Amherst, the Amherst-Pelham Regional School District, and the Pelham School Department. In addition, $35,000 was approved to automate the Jones Library circulation system.

The funds were approved with the recommendation of the Data Processing Feasibility Study Committee, a group appointed in 1980 by the town selectmen to determine the most cost-effective way of updating the town's record keeping system.

"We are certain this is a good deal," said the committee's chairman, Diana Romer. "The purchase price was much less than leasing it. It should serve our needs well in excess of 5-7 years."

Romer explained that the data processing system is a Prime I-250, supplied by the Fulcrum Computer Group.

The word processing system has not been specifically chosen yet, Romer said. Since it will interact with the data processing system, it was decided to wait until the main system was experimented with. In that way a compatible system can be chosen, she said.

The Feasibility Committee made its conclusions with the help of University of Massachusetts students. In 1980 and 1981, classes taught by Professor Joseph Sardinas of the School of Business Administration analysed the town's data processing needs and studied systems in towns similar to Amherst. In addition, graduate students in the Public Administration Program in 1981 studied the data processing activities of all the town's departments.

The Jones Library system will increase the productivity of the staff, but will not result in a decrease in full-time personell, according to the library's director, Bonnie Isman.

"Our present manual system uses long hours of staff time alone to deal with checking books in and out," Isman said.

"The automated system will greatly increase efficiency in that area. In addition, 26 other public and academic libraries in western Massachusetts are hooked up to this system, with the headquarters at Anna Maria College in Paxton.

Housing security exchanges courtesy for cooperation

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

Although this year has been off to a good start for the Housing Services Security Department, some University of Massachusetts students have not been as cooperative as they could have been in helping the dorm security program run smoothly.

"I think the Housing Security System is a very good one, but it would work better if some people cooperated more," said Susan Orpin, a junior Arts and Sciences major. "People not cooperating make the dorms less safe," she said.

Orpin is quick to point out, however, that "only some students give you a hard time, but when they do, it makes the job harder."

"People who live in the dorms don't cause too much trouble because they have consideration for their friends. It's different with visitors because it's not their home," said Jim Kelly, a junior political science major.

The Housing Security Office, which employs 507 students, uses police officers to train the students in what to do in virtually any situation. Brian Schofield, a sophomore civil engineering student, says that this training is very thorough and important.

"They covered everything we're supposed to do in any situation. They stress that the students contact them if trouble starts and they get here very quickly," he said.

Kelly added "they went over everything you have to know. Carol Radzik (supervisor of Housing Security) knows what she's doing. She expects the unexpected," he said.

Dispatchers based in the Housing Security Office check with security receptionists three times a shift to make sure that they are not having any trouble. If a receptionist needs help, the dispatchers contact student supervisors and the UMass Police department, who are both in constant radio contact with the Housing Security Office.

Orpin said, "sometimes people give you a hard time when you ask to see their keys and some people have tried to enter the dorms through other doors,"

"It's much safer for the students and their belongings when we keep students from roaming the halls," she said.

In spite of these annoyances, the students say they have not encountered any major incidences.

Cockroach dines in Worcester DC

By KEN LUNDBERG
Collegian Staff

While sitting down to Sunday brunch with friends this past weekend at one of the dining areas on campus, a University of Massachusetts student found, come dessert time, a cockroach would also be joining him.

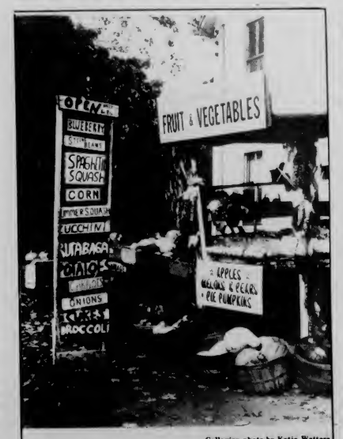
After going through the cashier and food line for an entree of scrambled eggs, Marty Bunshaft, a freshman economics major, said he seated himself with his tray and discovered a cockroach nestled on a dessert dish.

Bunshaft, who was eating in Franklin Dining Commons when the troublesome pest appeared behind his cake, complained to the manager on duty, who in turn called for an additional insecticide spraying that night by physical plant workers.

Dining Commons Manager Victor Keedy said that with on-campus dining areas open seven days a week with up to 11,000 people to feed, "it's not uncommon" to find some roaches now and then like in any food service establishment.

The regular manager at Franklin Dining Commons, Peter Brooks said that because most of the dry storage of grains is located at Worcester Dining Commons, he doubted any large number of the bugs which are know to frequent grain shipments are nesting within the Franklin facility.

A chef, requesting her name not be used, and who has worked within the food services system for 17 years said, "In any food establishment it's impossible not to have them (cockroaches) sometimes. They come in boxes and on boxes from other districts that we have no control over."



Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Hawthorne's fruit and vegetable stand on East Pleasant street behind Butterfield Dormitory is a veritable cornucopia thanks to the fall harvest.

Study abroad fair sponsored by IPO

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts International Programs Office (IPO), which sponsors more than 40 programs of study throughout the world, will hold a Study Abroad Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., tomorrow in the Student Union Lobby.

The fair is being held to inform students about the different programs of study abroad and the way students can pay for the study, said Maryelise Lamet, the Overseas Study Coordinator of IPO.

"We want students to know financial aid can travel with them," she said.

IPO sponsors programs at different universities all over the world, from Japan to Ireland.

"It is fair to say it is a successful series of programs," Lamet said.

Booths will be set up from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. representing the different countries which host the programs. Slides will also be shown throughout the day. Students who have studied abroad or are foreign exchange students will be on hand to answer questions people may have about individual programs.

"At the moment we have more students than we can handle inquiring," Lamet said. The fair will be a good way to answer the students' questions, she said.

"We want to see if a Study Abroad Fair is the best way to reach students about the opportunities of study abroad," Lamet said.

Deadlines are nearing for financial aid and work study

Students who want to be considered for financial aid for the spring semester must file their Financial Aid Forms (FAF) by Oct. 15. Forms are available in the Financial Aid Office located in room 243 Whitmore Administration Building.

Students who have been awarded College Work Study for the fall semester must locate a work study job by Oct. 15 or their award will be invalidated. The student Employment Office located in room 239 Whitmore should be notified of any difficulties students are having finding a work study job. Alternative work arrangements can be made.

Womens studies dept. presents film about imprisoned women

The Women's Studies Department at the University of Massachusetts is sponsoring a movie about women in prison. The movie, entitled "PW4: Prison for Women", will be at 8 tonight in Herter Hall, room 231.

The movie is a feature length film about five women, their stories, their relationships and their lives in prison. There will also be a special presentation on the death penalty in Massachusetts. The film is free and open to the public.

Newslines . . .

Bill Sutherland to participate in discussion of Namibia crisis

Bill Sutherland, the Southern Africa representative for the American Friends Service Committee, will participate in a discussion of the issues surrounding the latest developments in Namibia, South Africa and the independence front line nations at 10 a.m. today in Room 264, Hills South at the University of Massachusetts. Students, staff and faculty are welcome to participate in the discussion.

Workshops for the employed and unemployed given by EWC

The Working Women's Task Force of the Everywoman's Center is offering a workshop and three support groups during the month of October.

A workshop on job interviewing will be held from 12 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Thursday October 7 at the Campus Center in rooms 905-909.

The last week in October a career/life planning group, a working women's support group and an unemployed women's support group will start. All groups are free and open to community and University of Massachusetts women.

For more information about the workshop or the support groups or to register for the support groups call the center at 545-0883.

Womens lecture at Smith rescheduled for today

The lecture, "Women and the Agrarian Reform in Nicaragua", has been rescheduled for 4:15 p.m. tomorrow at Smith College in the Wright Hall Common Room by Carmen Diana Deere.

Deere, who teaches in the Department of Political Economy at the University of Massachusetts, has returned from Nicaragua where she did research on the revolutionary movement.

Rhetoric exemptions in Mahar

A rhetoric exemption test for upperclassmen only will be given at 7 tonight in Mahar Auditorium. A student ID, pen and 50 cents are required.

★ Rev. Jed

Continued from page 1

Smock also said he was a member of the Moral Majority.

"I'm in basic sympathy with Jerry Falwell," he said concerning the Virginia based leader of the group. "I'm very impressed with him."

One member of the crowd said he did not want to go to heaven if it was going to be filled with people like Smock.

"It won't be heaven for you sinner, it will be hell," Smock retorted.

Gilles said the reaction from UMass students was typical of the two evangelists' receptions. He said their worst incident ever was a few weeks ago at Kent State where people were throwing knives, forks, spoons and beer cans at he and Smock.

He called it an "outbreak of emotions" which was eventually broken up by police.

Some of the best receptions the two have received were at the University of Minnesota and University of Florida.

Smock and Gilles may speak at UMass again today but will definitely appear at the University of Maine later this week, Gilles said.

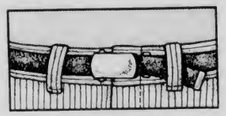
Smock preached at UMass three years ago.

Priced Right, from the start.

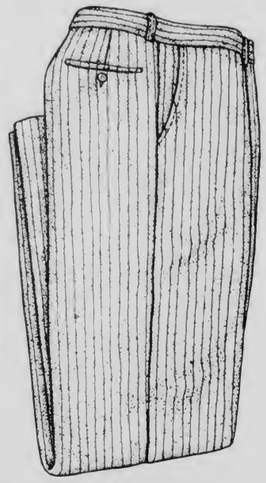
Lodge basics don't have to go on sale. They're "Priced Right" from the beginning of the season. While other stores must reduce originally inflated prices to make them more realistic, we've been offering realistic values all along. We have such confidence in our basics that we buy them in very large quantities and pass our savings directly to you.

We know that when you look at our quality and compare our prices, you'll agree that The Lodge is "Priced Right, from the start."

FREE BELT



thru 10/9 with purchase of



Wide Wale Corduroy Chinos $19.95

Turtlenecks 100% cotton $7.95

Ragg Wool Sweaters $26.95

All Items for Men & Women

THE LODGE at harvard square

Route 9, Hadley. 584-9690.
Monday to Saturday, 10:00-9:00.

Massachusetts • New Hampshire • Connecticut • New York • New Jersey • Pennsylvania • Maryland

NOW OPEN
NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER

Steel Belted Radial $35.00 size 155-13 fet $1.59

Full Service Tire Store
• computer wheel balancing
• front end alignment • brakes & shocks

78 Old Sunderland Rd., N. Amherst
549-4704
across from Watrobas Store

TONIGHT
Hear the new music of Rack-A-Disc
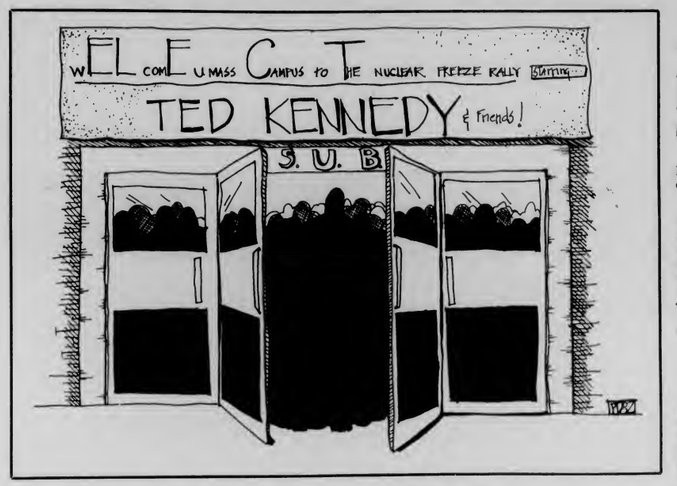
Requests Welcome

Two For One 9 til 11
- All Liquor Drinks -

No Cover

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

EDITORIAL/OPINION



A case for Chemical Warfare

The time is now for the United States to divert its attention from nuclear deterrents to chemical deterrents. I base my argument upon three premises. 1) The Soviet Union used strategic chemical weapons first hand in Afghanistan, and supplied chemical weapons to the Viet Cong in the early 1970's. 2) By not having a chemical deterrent, the Soviets can strike a major blow to NATO's armed forces in Western Europe. 3) By not being chemically prepared the United States would have to rely more heavily on nuclear arms in the next confrontation.

Dave McCarthy

In Afghanistan, rebels talk of an unseen gas, which paralyzes troops for a substantial period of time. In Cambodia, refugees tell horror stories about a light mist falling from the sky, which induces vomiting, convulsions, and respiratory ailments. These two incidents lead to the belief that the Soviets are willing to use all means necessary to subdue enemies. Henry Kissinger once said,

> "We are troubled by Soviet weapons momentum, and we simply cannot ignore the prospect of growing disparity between the two major powers. We do not propose to let an opponent threaten a major component of our forces without being able to pose a comparable threat."

The United States cannot now pose a comparable threat in the area of chemical warfare.

If NATO does not come up with a chemical deterrent in the near future, the WARSAW pact would have an overwhelming edge in the initial contact made in the Middle East, Germany, and Asia. It is estimated that seventy-five percent of our Rapid Deployment Force (which has had little training in fighting in contaminated areas) would be annihilated in the first ten days. I do not believe the notion that the United States would (in the initial stage) retaliate with nuclear arms. Confusion between the president and Congress would delay the deployment of the nukes for days. In that time, the Soviets would have taken the factories in Germany, the oil in the Mid-East, and folded our China card. The British and Germans take the threat of chemical warfare far more seriously than we do, because the Russians were found to have given so much chemical warfare equipment to the Egyptians in the early seventies. So they fear the contamination that would hang over their heads in the next conflict.

But the most important reason for having chemical capabilities is to reduce the dependance on nuclear weapons, and to add flexibility to our armed forces. In a hypothetical attack, the Russians might use nerve gas in "The European Theater", and knock out seventy percent of our NATO forces. If that happened, we would have three options. 1) Send in huge amounts of troops and ammunition, or 2) Accept the status quo, or 3) Use our nuclear weapons, knowing the Russians would retaliate. But by having a chemical deterrent, the benefits would be two-fold. First of all, the Soviets would think twice before using any chemicals, knowing that we could retaliate in like fashion. Second of all, the chemical option could be used in a retaliatory manner to proclude nuclear war.

For those who see chemical weapons as barbaric, inhumane and alien to rational man, I agree wholeheartedly. But the question I ask is, "Is the neutron bomb, the Titan missile or an ICBM with multiple warheads any more humane?" A sane human being does not want any of these weapons, but unless we have a balance to what the Soviets have, we will lose flexibility in arms limitation negotiations. Henry Kissinger said after his success in SALT I,

> "Flexibility was a virtue only in the purposeful."

I contend that pacifist should opt for the chemical option, in the name of short term arms control.

Dave McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

A Democratic party for all

The liberals in the Democratic Party may be on the verge of accomplishing for the more conservative Republican Party what the Republicans could not accomplish for themselves: increased Republican membership.

It appears now that the dominant liberal wing of the Democratic Party is trying to monopolize the party. This is neither liberal, democratic, or intelligent. Any party which has received such a beating as the one the Democrats suffered in 1980 will undergo some soul searching and find a new basis upon which to rebuild itself. Unfortunately the Democrats have let the same ideological group which guided them to massive defeats in 1972 and 80 gain even more control and importance in 1982.

Steven P. Barrett

These same liberals have lost sight of the fact that the general public is not so enamored with their pious causes. While wasting their energies on emotionally symbolic but fruitless efforts like the ERA and running off on tangents like the nuclear freeze, the same liberals who cry out for greater economic opportunity seem to lack for any fresh ideas and concepts of their own.

The blue collar constituency has in the past stayed with the Democrats because the Democratic Party gave the impression that they and their union bosses cared the most about their concerns. But did the liberals and their friends in the union hierarchy really listen to them?

"Reaganomics doesn't work", is the main message and plank that many liberals running for office are using. But what do they offer in exchange? Since they haven't been able to answer that kind of question throughout this campaign, many have chosen to fall back on easy issues like the nuclear freeze, ERA, higher defense spending, welfare cuts, etc. What really happened to bread and butter issues like job security, reasonable services for reasonable taxation, etc.? The liberals seem to be forgetting something, and that is the average employed or unemployed worker is primarily concerned with economic security for himself and his family.

The world isn't going to blow up soon. Women will not be forced back into the kitchens. And yes, some increased defense spending will mean more jobs. Just ask any congressman if he or she would honestly turn down any defense contract for his or her district if that contract meant more jobs. Blaming the Pentagon is an easy tool for liberal politicians to let off steam and gain publicity. But the working man or woman will soon grow tired of hearing this type of worn out and bankrupt demagoguery if the job market is sluggish. When one has mouths to feed and bills to pay, the type of industry he works for seems not as important to him as economic survival would. Unfortunately many upper-middle class liberals forget this all too often, particularly those living in the Northeast. It's little wonder that the Sun Belt is far ahead of this area for federal funding. They deserve it.

Don't the liberals realize these things? Maybe they do, but are unwilling to adjust. While taking over the Democratic Party it appears that they avoid these stark realities because these realities would upset their victory parties. They seem to forget that victories are sweeter when something more lasting than just a facial change has occurred. But this is why they don't want the conservative wing in "their" party any longer.

Perhaps the liberals prefer to risk driving their conservative brethren into the ranks of the GOP rather than rolling up their sleeves and searching for new ways to build a true coalition. Alas, that would take an open mind, yet alone an open heart.

But rather than leave the Democratic Party, the conservatives should remain in the party to remind the liberals what the true meaning of the word democratic is all about. It's their party also, and they should show the liberals that they will choose to remain a force within the party to be reckoned with and listened to — now and in the future.

Steven P. Barrett is an Amherst resident

Letters

Kennedy Press Secretary responds to policy editorial

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to yesterday's editorial "Who's Fooling Who?"

Senator Kennedy is the first to acknowledge the debt this country owes to the original grass roots activists who started the nuclear freeze campaign. For over two years, individual concerned citizens have been and remain the driving force behind today's arms control movement.

However, because of the success of the freeze movement the focus of the freeze is now in Congress, which must pass it into law. That is why Senator Kennedy is in the forefront of the freeze movement.

The editorial implies that Senator Kennedy is a newcomer to the field of arms control. This is simply not true. He was a sponsor of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, a leader in the fight against the Anti-Ballistic Missile System, a leading supporter of SALT I and the Vladivostdok agreement, a delegate to the SALT II negotiations and a leading supporter of the SALT II Treaty as submitted to Congress. In addition, he is the author of the nuclear freeze legislation now before Congress and has been the leading opponent of the Reagan administration's attempt to defuse the freeze movement.

The key to the passage of the freeze is now, as it has always been, the mobilization of concerned Americans. That is why Senator Kennedy was instrumental in the passage of the Massachusetts Nuclear Freeze Resolution Question and that is why he has joined in the organization of the mass rally to be held today.

Senator Kennedy has one goal in mind — passage of the nuclear freeze so we can at last achieve real control of nuclear arms. The sincerity of his committment goes back over two decades and he joins today with thousands of voices from UMass and the western part of Massachusetts to send a clear message to Washington.

Brian Delaney
Kennedy Campaign
Press Secretary

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Residency approved for Cubans and Haitians

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Correspondent

125,000 Cubans and 20,000 Haitians who flocked Florida's shore last year, along with other unnumbered aliens will become legal U.S. residents by an immigration reform bill approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

Those Cuban and Haitian refugees that left their countries seeking political asylum in the United States, fleeing from totalitarian governments and devastating social conditions will be housed by a special rule.

This, in effect, was backed by a special invitation made by the last administration when President Carter invited the Cubans and Haitians with his 'open arms policy.'

"We are ready to start an airlift and a sealift for those screened and qualified people to come to our country...", said Carter offering help to those leaving Cuba.

Those 145,000 "special guests" presented costly problems which molested president Carter and still torment President Reagan.

Resident aliens, other than Cubans and Haitians are required by the bill to have been in the United States by January 1, 1980 in order to achieve legal status. Cubans and Haitians arriving by January 1, 1981 will gain legal residency.

Legalization of these entrants was an effort to resolve this problem. Yet many feel that this bill is unfair to those who came after the cutoff date of December 31, 1980. Furthermore, they also said that the bill does not refer to the question of asylum or deportation hearings conducted unfairly in some states.

For the reasons stated above, Sue Sullivan, director of Haitian Refugee Project in Boston calls the bill "a gesture, nothing but public relations," Sullivan said.

Rep. James F. Semsenbrenner Jr. (R-Wis.) member of the Judiciary Committee said that he is against amnesty in any way.

but if it has to be approved, it should be the same cutoff date for all aliens.

The question for amnesty has been greatly debated during the Committee's consideration of the bill, and it will meet tougher opposition during the full house debate.

Black Affairs

White teachers oppose Court decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday rejected a claim that more than 1,000 white teachers in Boston were improperly laid off rather than their black colleagues with less seniority.

The court, without comment, let stand a ruling that the layoffs were acceptable as part of the court-ordered desegregation of the city's public schools.

U.S. District W. Arthur Garrity, ruling in 1974 that the Boston School Committee had intentionally segregated schools along racial lines, ordered a massive desegregation plan into effect. The busing plan sparked major local resistance.

Garrity later ordered a series of measures aimed eventually at giving blacks 25 percent of teaching and administrative jobs, saying the move was needed to complete full desegregation.

The number of blacks increased until they held about 19 percent of the teaching jobs and about 20 percent of the administrative posts.

Judge Garrity in June 1981 ruled that if layoffs took place during a budget crisis then facing the school system, his percentage goals for teachers and administrators had to remain intact.

Garrity thus allowed the Boston School Committee to breach job security and seniority provisions in its labor agreements, as blacks with less seniority were retained in preference to whites with more seniority.

Garrity also ordered blacks to have an absolute preference if the school committee began to recall laid-off teachers, until a 20 percent goal could be reached.

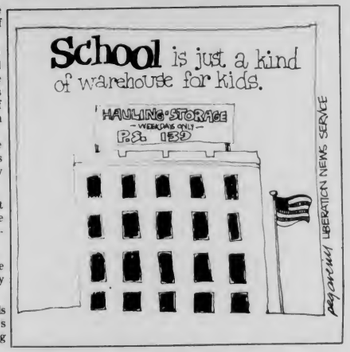
In its Supreme Court appeal, the Boston Teachers Union said that as a result of Garrity's order "over a thousand white teachers with tenure of up to 16 years of service have been laid off while none of the tenured black teachers — including those with lesser service — have been laid off and at the same time new black applicants have been hired."

The teachers union said in its appeal to the Supreme Court that none of the other parties in the case disputed its figure on the number of white teachers affected by Garrity's order.

"Depriving innocent employees of their jobs so that others of a different race, who are not victims of the employer's discrimination, may be employed is unprecedented," the union added.

The Supreme Court today also refused to consider the layoffs of seven tenured white administrators affected by the June 1981 ruling.

Last February, the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Garrity's order regarding layoffs. The appeals court previously had upheld the affirmative action hiring requirements.



Arts

Corea worth visiting

CHICK COREA AND PACO DE LUCIA
Sunday, October 3
Fine Arts Center

By SARAH GALDSTON
Collegian Correspondent

Sunday night's concert was like having an extremely personable four-piece orchestra playing in your living room. There was no hysterical showmanship, just simple professionalism.

The first set opened, to my surprise, without UPC waltzing out with a trite opening shtick. Instead Paco De Lucia simply walked out, sat down and started playing. This is the man who taught American audiences that flamenco is not just a pink bird beloved of Art Deco dilletantes.

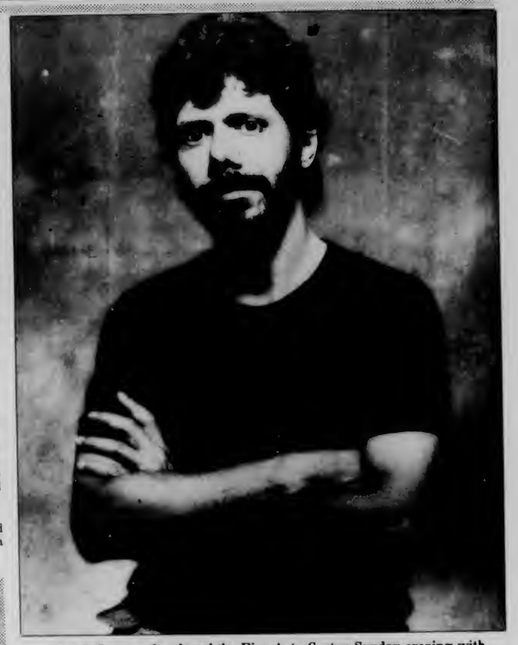
His opening "composition" (these folks don't play songs, they play compositions-a slight symphonic affectation) was an interpretation of a traditional Spanish piece, and was played with the richness of melted chocolate. He was then joined by bassist Carlos Benavent. After a second De Lucia piece, they left the stage, only to re-emerge with Chick Corea, flutist Steve Kujala and percussionist Don Alias. Corea formally introduced the band and briefly outlined what they were to play. It should be noted here that his formalism should not be confused with elitism. As the spokesman for the ensemble, he never patronized the audience, something that often happens with technical virtuosos.

The ensuing performance lacked the overly esoteric, technoid musicianship of last year's show with Al Di Meola, John Mclaughlin and Paco De Lucia; as well as the herd-of-thundering-elephants-up-and-down-the-fret-board sound of Stanley Clarke in his last performance at the FAC (Di Meola and Clarke being former Return to Forever Members, as is Chick Corea).

Corea's pieces were relatively consistent in form, reflecting only slightly the eclecticism of the man who has played with such diverse musicians as Miles Davis, Stan Getz, and Sarah Vaughan. However he did display dazzling ability. He opened the group's set with a piece affectionately dedicated to De Lucia, "Yellow Nimbus" (at least I assume it was affectionate).

Corea had a particularly beautiful solo during an untitled De Lucia piece that had languid eerieness, like punk-funk electronics meets the Strauss waltzes from 2001. Don Alias had a stellar stand as percussionist. Drummer Tom Brechtlew's solo seemed to be a gratuitous rock n roll routine, with endlessly cliched drum rolls.

Nonetheless, the ensemble of Corea and De Lucia provided what I would consider a supremely enjoyable evening.



Chick Corea, who played the Fine Arts Center Sunday evening with Paco DeLucia and others.

Arts writers — The deadline for The Other Voice is Thursday. Please bring copy to the Collegian arts desk from 2 to 4 daily. New writers are always welcome.

SAME DAY COLOR PHOTO PROCESSING
FILM IN BY 10:00 AM
BEAUTIFUL COLOR PRINTS OUT BY 4:00 PM
The Foto Factory
A division of HALLMARK COLOR LABS processors to the professionals
Hours: Mon.–Fri., 8–6 / Sat., 8–Noon
257 TRIANGLE STREET IN AMHERST

JOSTEN'S GOLD RING
SEE YOUR JOSTENS REPRESENTATIVE.
DATE Oct. 4, 5 - Mon, Tue
TIME 10 am - 3 pm
PLACE Campus Center
Deposit $15.00
UNIVERSITY STORE

JOSTEN'S GOLD RING
SEE YOUR JOSTENS REPRESENTATIVE.
DATE Oct. 4, 5 - Mon, Tue
TIME 10 am - 3 pm
PLACE Campus Center
Deposit $15.00
UNIVERSITY STORE

See the light.
DESK LAMPS
many styles and colors
to choose from
UL approved
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

LAGNAF 83

Dastardly Dans
TONIGHT
25c DRAFTS No Cover
8 pm til Closing
35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 253-9286

OPENING SPECIAL
25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • NEW WAVE
&
DESIGN HAIRCUTS
$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
expires 10/30/82
C

Please Recycle this Collegian

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
TUES. OCT. 5
COMEDY NIGHT
"The Bobby Darling Show"
FREE
WED. OCT. 6
MONTY PYTHON FILM
"And Now for Something Completely Different"
FREE
Free Popcorn/Drink Specials
THURS. OCT. 7
FREE The Valley's Own
PLEASURE DOTS!
FRI. OCT. 8
HAPPY HOUR/3-6 PM
with Cliff Meyers
D.J. DANCE PARTY
with Fern Spierer
FREE/Album Giveaways

Free
One Sample Pack with five deliciously different one-cup servings.
Gratis
Creamy rich, with an orange twist.
Gratuit
Smooth and light, French style.
Kostenfrei
Viennese style, with a touch of cinnamon.
Saor
Delicious. Like a chocolate after-dinner mint.
Gratis
Rich and chocolatey Swiss.
GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES Sample Pack
Irish Mocha Mint | Suisse Mocha | Café Francais | Cappuccino
GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES Orange Cappuccino ITALIAN STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE ONE-CUP SERVING GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES CAFÉ FRANCAIS FRENCH STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE ONE CUP SERVING GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES Cafe Vienna AUSTRIAN STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE ONE-CUP SERVING GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES Irish Mocha Mint IRISH STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE ONE CUP SERVING GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES Suisse Mocha SWISS STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE ONE CUP SERVING
UNIVERSITY STORE
HAS YOUR FREE SAMPLE PACK OF GENERAL FOODS' INTERNATIONAL COFFEES. CLIP THIS COUPON AND HAVE A TASTE ON US.
Limit–one request per customer. Sample packs are available at your college bookstore while supplies last. This offer expires December 15, 1982.
If sample pack is not available at your college bookstore, send coupon, along with your name and address, printed on a 3 x 5 card, to General Foods' International Coffees Sample Pack Offer, P.O. Box 4051, Kankakee, Ill. 60902.
FREE FREE
© General Foods Corporation 1981

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Gooz by G. Masse

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich/ Cranberry Sauce
California Quiche

BASICS LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich/ Cranberry Sauce
California Quiche

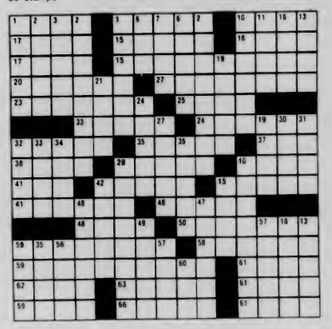
DINNER
Rotini/Tomato Meat Sauce
Roast Pork/Gravy
Applesauce
Fruit Plate with Banana Bread

BASICS DINNER
Golden Carrot Bake/ White Sauce
Hi-Protein Spaghetti/ Tomato Sauce

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Cicatrix
5 Crate and crib
10 Court order
14 Czech name for the Elbe
15 Ancient market place
16 Greek I
17 Part of NEA
18 Bed
20 Knight ——
22 Goes on a spree
23 Era of the reptile
25 Network
26 Moffo and namesakes
28 Sea nymph
32 Task
35 —— da Gama
37 Conjunction
38 Pasternak character
39 Accordingly
40 Talking bird
41 Publication
42 Young ox
43 West Pointer
44 Respectful response
46 African capital
48 Excited
50 Stamps
54 Female spiders
58 Inner patio
59 Attire connected with 18 Across
61 Direction in Madrid
62 Gen. Robert ——
63 —— of Nantes
64 Chinese god
65 Direction
66 "Uncle ——"
67 Stone or storm

DOWN
1 Lullaby word
2 Skeleton organization
3 Signature of Jefferson's V.P.
4 Boudoir, in Spain
5 Ankle-length garment
6 Past
7 Whiskey ——
8 Trial's partner
9 Wisdom
10 Owen ——, American novelist
11 Repetition
12 Road: Lat.
13 Salts
19 Bone: Prefix
21 Prime time
24 Fleet, old style
27 More rational
29 Lady at Camelot
30 Bulwer Lytton heroine
31 Expression of annoyance
32 Material for a potter
33 Hearty's companion
34 Raw materials
36 Get rid of
39 More robust
40 Part of 18 Across
42 Aiming guide
43 Hire actors
45 Scented packet
47 Toots one's own horn
49 Hollow crystalline stone
51 Wife of Mohammed
52 —— Tag, greeting in Berlin
53 Correct
54 Over again
55 Vex
56 Birthday items
57 Pool activity
60 Chapel Hill inst.



WEATHER

Sunny today. Highs 65 to 70. Fair tonight. Lows 45 to 50. Tomorrow, a mixture of clouds and sun. Highs 65 to 75.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

M	O	L	E		A	S	I	D	E		E	A	S	T
I	R	I	S		N	A	V	E	L		K	E	N	O
S	L	A	V		T	H	R	O	B		T	O	U	R
T	E	N	E	B	R	A	E		B	O	R	N	G	E
			L	E	T	H	A	R	G	I	C
S	P	O	O	N		A	D	D	R	A	T	I	O	N
H	A	P	P	E	N		I	D	O	L		D	R	U
E	P	E	E		I	G	L	O	O		P	A	I	R
A	E	R		E	G	A	L		M	Y	T	H	O	S
F	R	A	N	C	H	I	S	E		A	B	O	N	E
		A	T	N		L	I	R	A
F	O	R	G	O	T		M	A	N	D	R	A	I	L
T	O	E	A		I	R	A	T	E		N	O	V	A
L	E	A	R		O	E	T	E	R		U	N	A	S
M	A	M	A		E	I	V	E	R	T		M	E	N	T

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9 Fern Spierer, Oblivion Express
9-12 Pauline, Rock and Roll
12-3 Live Broadcast of the Nuclear Freeze Rally
3-5:30 Mr. Ted, Modern Dance
5:30-6 Newswatch
6-7 Sports Cafe
10-2 Eliot Andrew, Urban Contemporary
2-6 Classical Music With Mike Cevasco

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

10:30-11:30 Bobby Muller Speaks to Vietnam Vets

11:30-12:30 Avante Garde Video Art of Wendalin Glatzel and Nam June Paik

12:30-1:30 Realm of the Grat Whales (Nothing fishy, please)

1:30-2:00 Video Rock!

Junior varsity ties UConn in opener, 2-2

By GEORGE MARTINS
Collegian Correspondent

Striker Matt Dowd drove home a pass from Chris Gift with eight minutes left in regulation time to give the UMass junior varsity soccer team a 2-2 tie against a powerful UConn club.

It was the opening game for the UMass squad. Connecticut came into the contest undefeated, including wins over Southern Connecticut and Yale.

UMass took an early 1-0 lead at the 17:00 minute mark when John Metzger took a nice cross from Bob McIntosh and deposited it into the back of the net past diving UConn netminder Andy Paterson.

Connecticut came back to tie the game off of a set play on an indirect free kick. Forward Larry Day headed home a cross from Nigel Wilkie at the 23:00 minute. The remainder of the first half was played evenly and without any scoring.

Connecticut came out storming in the second half. Goalie Ricardo Sanchez kept the Minutemen in the game with three key saves, but UConn took the lead at the 15:00 minute mark on a goal by Ron Angelo.

It looked as if the score would remain 2-1 as Connecticut managed to keep the UMass attack bottled up, but Dowd's goal inspired the Minutemen and they carried the play throughout the remainder of regulation time.

The teams played two ten-minute scoreless overtimes before the game ended in a draw. UMass dominated the overtimes but was unable to put the ball in the net. A Dowd header, saved by Paterson in the first overtime was the closest chance for a score by either side during the overtime periods.

UMass coach Dave Sawaid thought that it was a game that was played evenly and a tie was a fair result.

"We defended well, our players were well disciplined but we gave two goals away from set plays," said Sawaid.

Sawaid pointed to midfielder Rick Fortesque and sweeper Brian McDavitt as standout players.

Matt Dowd was not satisfied with the tie.

"We had opportunities that we didn't capitalize on, but we stayed in there and didn't give up once," he said.

UMass plays their next home game against Amherst College on Wednesday, October 13th at Lower Boyden field.

Women golfers take third at Yale

By JIM SAMIA
Collegian Correspondent

Paced by the superb playing of Marlene Susienka, the University of Massachusetts women's golf team came in an astounding third place at the Yale Invitational this weekend.

Susienka won the tournament by a huge margin of 12 strokes finishing at 162. What made this even more sensational was the fact that she began the final day 2 strokes behind North Carolina's Hedi Crossley.

After shooting an 85 on a windy opening Saturday, Susienka came back to hit a 77 on Sunday.

"She just blew them away in the second half," said UMass women's golf coach Jack Leaman.

On a course that Leaman cited as being "beautiful but tough" Susienka hit 16 greens.

North Carolina at Wilmington won the overall competition. They were a model of consistency throughout the entire tournament.

The other team in front of the Minutewomen was perennial division-three powerhouse Longwood College. They boasted the sixth and ninth place finishers.

Teeing off from the number three position for UMass, Jane Egan finished a very respectable eleventh out of the field of fourty-four.

"She played the best golf since she's been at UMass," said a very pleased Leaman. For the first time in her collegiate career Egan shot under 100. On Saturday, Egan shot a 98 and was even better on Sunday, clipping the course at 89 to finish the tournament at 187.

The biggest improvement of anybody in the tournament was made by Minutewoman Theresa Collins. After shooting a 121 on Saturday, she rallied around the fine play of teammates Susienka and Egan to shoot a 107 and finished at 228. Judy Guzy and Nola Eddy finished the tournament at 202 and 214 respectively.

Finishing behind UMass was Rutgers in fourth, followed by Mt. Holyoke, Princeton, Dartmouth and Yale.

The talk of the tournament was Susienka. One week after breaking the collegiate women's course record at Hickory Ridge Country Club she remained just as hot at Yale. Coming from two down to defeat the field by twelve strokes is just another remarkable feat for a truly remarkable Minutewoman golfer.

Sports Notices

The UMass Boxing Club will hold an organizational meeting today at 4 pm on the 19th floor lounge of Washington Tower. Both new and experienced boxers are welcome.

Yoey D's
All You Can Eat
Spaghetti & Meatballs
$2.25
includes bread and butter
Draft Beer 50¢ Pitchers $2.95
Well Drinks 95¢
DJ entertainment in the lounge

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

HAVE SOME FUN WITH 3 FOR $1

TUESDAY 35¢ Drafts/$2.00 Pitchers
POOR RICHARD'S A STEP UP

VALLEY BICYCLES
89 Main St.
Amherst
256-0880
Behind the Cheese Shop & Valley Farms Dairy Store
BICYCLE SALE!
We have just purchased a limited selection of non-current FUJI models.
Now is your chance to own a new FUJI at a Bargain Price!

FUJI Time		$189.00
FUJI Sports 12 SX	was $245.00	Now $189.00
FUJI Grand Tourer	was $265.00	Now $219.00
FUJI Royale	was $345.00	Now $319.00
PLUS OUR 1982 FUJI STAR LINE-UP
Montereys	29 lbs.	$215.00
Supremes	26 lbs.	$259.00
Del Reys	25.5 lbs.	$289.00

All above include our Fall Special Discount of 20% off
all accessories purchased with your new bike

LIVE COMEDY at the BLUE WALL
featuring
THE BOBBY DARLING SHOW
FREE! FREE!
ON TUES, OCT. 5
sponsored by
Governor's Program Council

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

77 Toyota Celica-GT, standard, excellent condition, 56,000 mi, alarm, AM/FM/tape, louvers, $3595/BO 253-9389 after 5

1972 Datsun 510 manuel, tape-deck, runs good, looks fair, $900.00 or BO 256-6668 evenings

68 Olds Cutlass runs well exc transpor call Bob 549-6416

73 Mustang new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 31,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1860

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

In apartment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

The best sound system is MF Coffeehouse sound 256-8400

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Bass amp Fender Music Master $125, BO 253-9698

Telephone answering machine Brand new $100.00 Bob 253-2098

Refrigerator 5 cu. ft. good cond. 100.00 firm 549-1014

The Who Sun. 10/10 Byrne Arena N.J. floor tickets BO by 10/7 549-4032

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counscling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Job Available - security guard 10 PM - 2 AM 2 nights/week great job for student call 774-3092 9:30-3:30 M-F

Parttime position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel, and work experience. Contact Beach Comber Tours, Inc. PO Box 1236, Burlington, MA 01803 617-273-2423

2 soccer coaches needed for grades 4 - 6, So Deerfield, after school, 3 - 4:30, 2 - 3 days per week, $5.00 per hour. Contact Mrs. Reid, 665-2272 or grade school, 665-3820

People interested in making money at home, with your own Texas Instrument personal computer. Call Grace or Paul after 5 PM 665-2494

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

ICE HOCKEY

Goalie Pads needed to buy or rent. Call Bob 584-7035

INSTRUCTION

Tutoring Math Physics 256-0193

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Tennis Instructor Wanted for intermediate level player call 546-8534

INVESTMENT CLUB

Investment Club Meeting: 7:oo pm Tues Oct 5 rm 107 SBA guest speaker -Lawrence Dwight, stock broker from HM Payson & Co

LESBIAN/GAY

Office Manager Position open - 10 hour a week workstudy position - apply at the People's Gay Alliance office 413 SUB 5-0154 women & third world students encouraged to apply

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Wallet and Band Jacket in Sylvan call 6-9643 jacket has the name Jay on it

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets 89. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Dicky - Happy Birthday, Baby! Lots of Supertramp this weekend - I love you - The Ion Monster

Register to vote October 4th and 5th, Campus Center Concourse

A USMC Aviation Officer will be on hand Wed Oct 6 from 6 to 8 in CC 902 to provide info on aviation and ground officers programs

Charlie's tonight from 8 to 12 is pitcher and pizza night. Pitchers of domestic beer or a carafe of wine and cheese pizza only $4.95

G. Wells - Have a great birthday! Love, Di

Free Comedy Tonight! The Bobby Darling Show at the Blue Wall - lots of laughs -sponsored by Governors Program Council

Happy 19th Birthday Baby Doll! And thanx-you've made me so very happy. Love A

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

Hey Ed! How's Cousin It? From X-Cuz & S

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

Attention Comdis Majors! Comdis Association Elections will be held on Thurs Oct 7 at 7:30 in Arnold 136. Guest speaker will also be featured. Come and show your support!

M - I need you to need me - C. Dior

ARTHUR is coming to the SUB. Check the Collegian later this week for details.

Congratulations to the cutest new sister at IGU. Its about time Fran! Love always Tom

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RECORDMANIA

JOE JACKSON AND CHICK COREA are alive and well and on sale at Union Records. . .

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to D.C. area Oct 8. Will share $ and conversation 546-8021

To Washington DC Oct 7 or 8 call 546-1178, Ron

I need a ride to Yale Fri Oct 8 call Bob 6-9421

After Oct 12 Who Concert at Shea Stadium back to UMass. Will share all expenses. 546-8545

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Bucknell Univ leave Fri Oct 8 return Oct 11 will go to other places in Penn call Jodi 549-1352

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted to share room in spacious 3 bedroom Townehouse apt call Susan 549-3868

Room for rent M or F $165 monthly ir-cluding utilities call Sharon 253-5218

Two people needed in Northampton Apt days call: 5-1336 (for Denis) evenings: 586-3834

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

Pioneer Valley Cappella - 17 member choir needs bass. Group performs renaissance music; rehearses Tuesday evenings. Contact Mallorie Chernin 586-6425

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WANTED TO RENT

Beautiful, inexpensive apartment in Amherst needs roommate right away. Bus stop just steps from door. Call collect 617-249-6556

WORD PROCESSING

Resumes & Papers: Prompt quality preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/WORD LINK 253-9535

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
fine dining ...a meal with a view

Need Answers On Voting Procedures?
CALL "TIPS" at 545-1540, and ask for TAPES...
#2000 Registering to Vote in Amherst
#2005 Absentee Voting
We are your TAPED INFORMATION PHONE SERVICE.
IDB TIPS
a Service of Dean of Students Office

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 10

Field hockey team beats Springfield

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team held off a last ditch comeback effort by Springfield College Saturday, defeating the Chiefs 2-1.

The clear blue skies and home crowd helped UMass get started quickly, as the Minutewomen tallied within the first three minutes of the game.

Although Springfield had possession first, the Minutewomen picked off a long pass and drove through the Springfield defense.

On the second corner of the game, forward Tish Stevens passed the ball to middle Megan Donnelly, who pushed the ball past the lunging Springfield goalie.

Several minutes later, the Minutewomen gained three consecutive corners, but were unable to capitalize on these opportunities.

As the clock wound down in the first half, however, Springfield sensed the Minutewomen tiring, and began to apply pressure on UMass goalie Patty Shea and the rest of the Minutewomen defense. Time ran out on Springfield and UMass went off the field at halftime with a one goal lead.

UMass came out strong at the start of the second half, completely dominating Springfield and pressuring Springfield into making numerous turnovers.

At the 20 minute mark, forward Allyson Rioux registered the second UMass goal of the game when she took a pass from forward Pam Moryl and nailed it into the corner of the goal.

Less than two minutes later, the Minutewomen had an opportunity to put the game out of reach.

The Springfield defense had been warned twice previously about leaving the line too soon before a corner hit was taken, and after the third infraction, the referee awarded UMass a stroke.

Middle Carol Progulske positioned herself at the hash mark in front of the Springfield goal and Springfield goalie Carol Kinsella readied herself on the goal line. After the whistle sounded, Progulske took her shot, aiming for the right side of the goal. Springfield's Kinsella anticipated correctly, however, and was able to deflect the ball to the outside of the post.

After the missed stroke, there was a very noticeable shift in the game's momentum.

Springfield drove down field time after time, taking most of their corners during this time.

The UMass defense held Springfield to only three shots on goal for the second half, but the Chiefs refused to give up.

Springfield's persistence paid off, because with only eight minutes left in the half, Springfield forward Sherren Granese took a deflection off Shea's pads and put it in the net.

Instead of a comfortable two goal lead, the Minutewomen were only up by one, and Springfield was threatening strongly.

For the last eight minutes of the game, Springfield kept the ball in the UMass circle, but as in the first half, time ran out on the Chiefs.

"The last fifteen minutes of the game were really tense," said Hixon. "Instead of moving and anticipating the ball, we sat back with our lead. We pressured and played well, but we just couldn't finish things off."

The stickers are looking to maintain their unblemished record, now ar 5-0, as they meet Yale on Wednesday, on the upper NOPE field. Game time is 3 p.m.

UM booters beat Vermont at Boyden to become 5-1

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team knew it was in for a tough game on Friday against the University of Vermont but that didn't bother the squad too much as the Minutewomen went on to overthrow Vermont 3-0.

Defense was the key to the victory. UMass held back the Vermont kickers, particularly in the second half when Vermont began to turn its offense on and started going after the ball more.

"I think Vermont has a better team than what they showed," UMass coach Kalekeni Banda said. "Our defense kept us in the game."

UMass scored all three of its goals in the first half of the game.

The first goal was a surprise score. Three UMass booters went in on the Vermont goaltender. Christine Taggart, who got an assist on the goal, passed the ball in front of the net to Sharon Dagget who made a tough goal look easy. The ball hit the top of the right goal post and instead of bouncing out, fell down behind the Vermont goalkeeper and rolled into the net.

Nina Holmstrom put in the second goal for UMass 13 minutes later. She received the pass from Taggart who kicked the ball as she was falling down. Helmstrom kicked the ball into the right hand corner of an open net. Taggart got the assist.

Freshman Jamie Watson scored a beautiful goal with eight and a half minutes to go in the half. After getting a pass from the side of the net, Watson, without hesitation, blasted the ball into the top of the net, out of the Vermont goaltenders reach.

Coach Banda, who thought UMass didn't play as well as they're capable of, didn't expect to beat Vermont so easily. Banda said Vermont always gave UMass a hard time when they came to Amherst and prepared the team for a tough game.

Tammie Easton was the goaltender in the UMass nets on Friday. She played great when challenged by the Vermont offense.

Banda feels that UMass needs to be more aggressive against the better teams.

"We have to go to the ball more with authority. Concentration is the factor in these games," said Banda.

The women have a tough week ahead as they have two away games against two highly ranked teams. On Tuesday, UMass will face the University of Connecticut in what will be a difficult contest. UConn is ranked as one of the top three teams in the nation. On Saturday, the women will be at Cortland State.

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Dean Pecevich lets go a pass during Saturday's win over the University of Rhode Island.

Women's tennis wins 6-3

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Waltham, Mass — When you are an athlete representing the state university, lengthy van rides for intercollegiate competition against Division II schools tend to be more physically draining than the forthcoming match.

But this certainly was not the case yesterday when the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team traveled to Waltham and defeated a better-than-you-would-expect Brandeis University club, 6-3.

Neal Mackertich and Nick Julian, playing at number one and two singles respectively, were both extended to three sets before emerging victorious. Mackertich played catch-up in defeating Jeff Heier 6-7, 6-2, 6-2. Julian, like Mackertich, rebounded from a loss in the tiebreaker to get by Bob Bernstein, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

The rest of the singles were not quite so difficult. Stuart Goodman, at number three, easily handled Phil Goldstein 6-3, 6-3. Steve Jordan did likewise to Marshall Fisher, waltzing to a 6-0, 6-4 triumph.

"He went out and did his business," said Coach Bob Szlosek of Jordan, who had his share of problems against Westfield State.

Rich Lindgren defeated Andy Koslow 7-6, 6-1 at number five and Dave Singer romped past Joel Singer 6-1, 6-4 at number six to close the curtains on singles.

"Everybody that played singles had good performances", said Szlosek.

In the Doubles, Mackertich-Goodman dropped a 6-4, 6-4 decision to Heir-Bernstein. Jordan-Lindgren rebounded for a 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Fisher-Singer. Julian-Dave Salem, in the midst of a 7-5, 6-7 match with Goldstein-Koslow, defaulted so the netmen could return home at a reasonable hour to prepare for home matches the next two days.

Jayvee footballers lose 6-0

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Talking to JV Football coach Steve Telander, one might think that the JV football team easily handled Harvard University.

But, things aren't always as they seem.

Led by a 25 yard run with a minute left to play in the game, Harvard erased their goose egg on the scoreboard and slipped away with a 6-0 victory. Nevertheless, Telander had nothing but praise for his squad.

"Our kids played great. I can't believe we did as well as we did with the amount of practice time we had," said Telander. "It was just a great effort by the kids."

Led by fullback Greg Andonia, UMass drove the ball well the entire game, but just couldn't put the ball in the end zone. Their best scoring bid came in the first half when UMass opted to go for the touchdown on fourth down from the 35 yard line, instead of going for the field goal. The pass in the end zone was deflected in the last minute and UMass came up empty.

The key play of the game was when the Minutemen had the ball with two minutes left in the game on their own 49 yard line. On fourth and two, the jayvees went for it, but came up short. Harvard took over and marched all the way for the final score.

Playing well for the JV's were tailback Ricky Garcia and quarterback Mark Tabor on offense and defensive end Dave Roland and free safety Brian Gibson on defense. Punter Steve Larkin also punted well, pinning Harvard with poor field position almost every punt.

The Minutemen travel to Springfield on Sunday, October 10 to take on AIC.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 22 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, October 6, 1982

Crowd hot for freeze

Crowd cry: Go home

By PAUL BELVAL
Collegian Staff

The crowd at yesterday's nuclear arms freeze rally at the University of Massachusetts booed and jeered Republican Senatorial candidate Ray Shamie as his speech departed from the subject at hand.

Shamie had been invited to the UMass campus by the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) to speak about a bilateral nuclear arms freeze between the United States and the Soviet Union and although his speech started on that subject, it quickly developed into a political campaign speech attacking his opponent, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Originally, Shamie had not been scheduled to speak at the rally, but after some campus groups began questioning whether the rally was for a nuclear arms freeze or Kennedy's campaign, SCANN agreed to allow Shamie to speak under certain conditions.

Among these conditions was an arrangement that he would stick strictly to the issue of the nuclear arms freeze and not make a campaign speech.

However, he quickly broke that promise.

"I support a nuclear freeze," he began. "I oppose freezing out speakers on an American campus."

The crowd then began jeering Shamie as he began attacking Kennedy. They shouted, "Talk about the freeze. Get the hook. Loser go home."

The abuse continued as Shamie spoke on.

"My opponent wants to use the nuclear freeze issue and the people who support it and ride it into the White House."

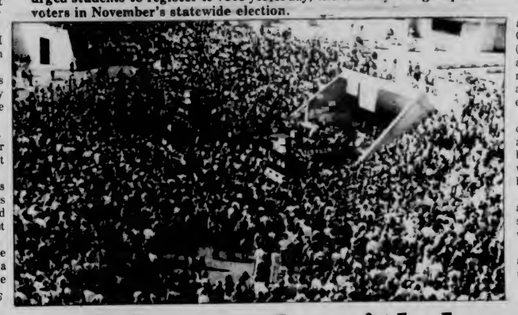
Shamie spoke more about Kennedy's record than he did about the nuclear arms freeze, saying, "Ted Kennedy supported the war in Vietnam and then came out against it."

Several minutes into his speech, Shamie was interrupted by emcee Cliff McCarthy, a member of SCANN, telling him his time

Continued on page 6

Collegian photos by Kevin Fachetti, left, Teresa Bellafiore, right, and Danny Tessier, below.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, left, and his Republican opponent Ray Shamie, right, address students — separately — as they jam Metawampe Lawn, below, to hear speakers support a negotiated nuclear weapons freeze between Soviets and Americans. Both men also urged students to register to vote yesterday, the last day to sign-up as voters in November's statewide election.



Thousands for freeze

By PAUL BELVAL
and MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

[Editor's Note: Staff reporters Paul Basken, John Brobst, Andrew J. Gordon, Hannah Hosom, Ken Lundberg, Ed Levine, Richard Nangle and Mark Welch contributed to this article.]

James Taylor, Peter Yarrow, Lauren Bacall, student leaders and local politicians all helped Sen. Edward Kennedy D-Mass., bring his nuclear freeze message to the University of Massachusetts yesterday as a crowd of 10,000 clapped, sang and cheered.

"Western Massachusetts is the birthplace of the grassroots movement now sweeping the country for a nuclear weapons freeze. A small ripple that began in Western Mass. is going to sweep across the state and across the nation," Kennedy said.

Enjoying unseasonably warm sunshine the enthusiastic crowd covered Metawampe Lawn out to the edge of the Campus Pond and filled the balconies and roofs of the Campus Center, the Student Union and Hasbrook Laboratory.

The agenda for the first half of the 2 hour and 45 minute rally was set by the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN), a student group at UMass, which agreed to cover some of the costs of the rally. The second half consisted of speakers and performers invited by the Kennedy re-election campaign.

"It is not just enough to talk about destroying all life in the Soviet Union, we are talking about how high the rubble will bounce, and the rubble will bounce all the way from Moscow to Vladivostok and back," said Kennedy.

When Kennedy first appeared on stage, and throughout his speech, about two dozen supporters gathered in front of the stage waving Kennedy signs.

Michael Dukakis, former state governor and candidate for governor, made an unannounced appearance on stage to a

Continued on page 9

Registration drive ends with large turnout

By ANN CARNS
and CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Not even a crystal ball could have given the assistant registars a true picture of what was going to happen yesterday at the voter registration table in the Campus Center concourse of the University of Massachusetts.

More than 1200 students registered to vote at the tables, said Estelle Matusko, Amherst town clerk.

"This is the most successful single day of registration in the state this year," said Mike Ferrigno, coordinator of the Massachusetts State Student Association, which was responsible for the voter registration drive in conjunction with the Office of Third World Affairs.

Matusko said the large turnout was because yesterday was the last day for voter registration and interest was generated by the Nuclear Freeze Rally.

"We were not really prepared for the volume here," Matusko said. "It would be unusual anywhere else, even Cambridge, which has a large student population.

Matusko said she had been informed there would be a rally, but "didn't know of the celebrities that were going to come out today," she said.

She said there was a noticeable shortage of assistant registrars and registration forms yesterday. Matusko said they had 630 forms to start with and they ran out by mid afternoon.

"Everything has been moving so quickly," Matusko said. "I've been cranking out facsimiles of registration forms like mad."

Speakers at the rally urged students to register after the rally.

"If you're not registered to vote, make sure you do it. Do it today so your voices can be heard all across the state," said former governor, Michael Dukakis.

Actress Lauren Bacall said, "I'm not going to make a speech, I just want you all to register after this is over."

"By our votes and by our own determination, we decide our future," said singer James Taylor.

After the rally, students rushed to the registration table in the concourse. More than 150 students waited in line to register.

Some students waited in line for more than 35 minutes, according to one of the women working at the table.

"Listening to the rally made me come down here," said Elke Dratch, a freshman, who was waiting in line to register.

"It is so good to be able to go and vote," said Suzannah Clemitson, an exchange student from the University of Sussex, England. "It seems a shame that people don't bother to register. I wish I could vote."

"I decided to register because I turned 18 a couple of days ago. I said, what the heck, it's an experience to vote," said Erie Shaver, a freshman.

"I think it is great to come out where the students can register. We get a lot more registered that way," said Grace Rhodes, 70, who was working at the registration table. "And the students all go out to vote, too."

The last drive for voter registration was planned to coincide with the rally, said Ferrigno.

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Students swamp the voter registration tables in the Campus Center concourse as over 1200 registered yesterday for the November 2 elections.

World and national news

AP Laserphoto

Frank "Lefty" Rosenthal, linked to organized crime by the FBI, was injured when a bomb exploded in his car Monday night in the parking lot of a Las Vegas, Nevada, restaurant.

Democrats expect gains in 1984 campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's policies all but assure Democratic gains in this year's congressional elections but the party must do more than "fire up the old coalition" to win the White House in 1984, Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., said yesterday.

In a speech at the National Press Club, Tsongas said Reagan has "squandered his mandate" by excessive tax cuts which resulted in large deficits and by foreign policies which have "frightened our allies and countrymen."

"Running the country is different from speaking to the Santa Barbara American Legion," Tsongas said. "That lesson has been costly for President Reagan. The bloom is off the rose.

"In 1982, despite the president's genuinely decent and likable personality, he is the issue, and his policies are the object of scrutiny," the first-term Democratic senator said. "We Democrats need little more in order to win."

"Anti-Reaganism is the core of the Democratic appeal," Tsongas said. "For 1982 it can be no other way, because there is no other focus."

But in 1984, he added, the Democrats will have a presidential candidate and must have a platform.

"There are two choices," he said. "First, fire up the old coalition with rhetoric that paints the Reaganites as the enemy and promises a return to the same tired formulas once the Democrats take over."

This, he argued, would "lock the Democrats into the mold of fulfilling expectations that are unfillable" and would "undermine the power of any Democratic president, as it has with Reagan."

As an alternative, Tsongas called for a "cleansing realism" which would "admit the value in Mr. Reagan's approach, without ignoring its flaws."

Reagan, he said, "is an honest, sincere, well-meaning ideologue who failed."

"We will take the good things he did and embrace them without embarassment," he declared. "We will take the bad things he did and discard them without arrogance."

Tsongas, regarded as a leader of neo-liberal Democrats who often take issue with the party's traditional policies, was elected to the Senate in 1978 after two terms in the House.

Rat poison found in drug

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Strychnine was found in two bottles of Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules here and a man who took the medication suffered convulsions, federal officials said yesterday.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said McNeil Consumer Products Co., which makes Tylenol, is telling retailers nationwide to withdraw non-prescription Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules and regular-strength Tylenol capcules from sale.

The man took the poisoned capsules Thursday, one day after cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules began claiming their first victims. Seven died after taking capsules in the Chicago area.

There is no evidence the discovery of strychnine in the capsules is related to the seven Chicago-area deaths, said Robert Kniffen, a spokesman for McNeil, a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson.

In addition to the two bottles containing strychnine in California, a third bottle from the same store was tampered with, officials said.

The FDA in Washington reported that a man in Oroville, Calif., suffered convulsions Thursday after taking Tylenol capsules.

The remaining capsules in his bottle contained pink granules that tests by McNeil and the FDA showed to be strychnine, a nervous system stimulant that can cause convulsions and death. Strychnine has been used as a rat poison for centuries.

The man recovered quickly and returned to work Monday, but his physican reported to McNeil that he asked the man's wife to get additional capsules from the store where the first bottle was bought.

The FDA was informed the wife provided two more bottles, one of which also contained pink granules. The store operator removed remaining packages from the shelves, McNeil picked them up and found a third bottle that had been tampered with.

The capsules were Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules with the code 1766MA, a batch number not cited in the Illinois deaths.

Eye drops burn woman

RIALTO, Calif. (AP) — A woman suffered severe eye burns after using a new bottle of drops, but authorities who tested the medication said today the eye drops were "normal" and didn't cause the woman's injury.

A doctor who treated the woman at an emergency room had said the woman burned her eyes Monday after using a bottle of Visine A.C. solution. But lab tests showed nothing wrong with the solution the woman said she used, said Anthony Longhetti, director of the San Bernardino County sheriff's crime lab.

Longhetti said his lab tested both the solution the woman used and another bottle purchased by police at the same store.

Asked about the hospital doctor's test, Longhetti replied: "He's incorrect."

Longhetti said his department's investigation had ended.

Caroll Sam, 28, of Rialto went to San Bernardino County Medical Center's emergency room Monday after her eyes began burning from freshly opened Visine A.C. drops she had bought at the Stater Bros. store in Rialto, said Dr. Douglas Gruzd, who was working in the emergency room.

"She had corneal burns and the only thing that she knew she'd put in her eyes were the eyedrops," said Dr. Francis Comunale, director of the San Bernardino County Medical Center.

Gruzd was not at work today and his home telephone was not listed in area directories. A hospital switchboard operator who would not give her name dialed his home number and said there was no answer.

Ken Jeske, division manager for county Environmental Health Protection Services, said the state Food and Drug Administration also had concluded the Visine was not to blame.

"I've contacted the state Food and Drug office and they've indicated it was not a problem with the Visine," said Jeske, noting that neither the state or federal FDA had issued a recall of Visine products.

"We think it was a false report," Police Chief Raymond Farmer said.

Heckler ads heckle Congress opponent

BOSTON — Republican Margaret M. Heckler's assault on Democrat Barney Frank's voting record took a new turn Tuesday when her congressional aides unveiled television ads that list Frank's past votes on pornography and other issues.

The ads follow Mrs. Heckler's stinging attack on Frank's Statehouse voting record during their televised debate Monday night in the 4th congressional district contest.

The race has drawn national attention as a referendum on Reagonomies. Ms. Heckler, an eight-term moderate Republican, supported most of President Reagan's budget-cutting moves last year while Frank, a liberal Democrat in his first term, opposed them.

But Mrs. Heckler put Frank on the defensive during the debate by ignoring their congressional differences and concentrating on Frank's actions in the Massachusetts Legislature from 1973 to 1980. The 30- second TV ads continue the approach.

One of the five spots shows an unattractive black-and-white photograph of Frank while an announcer says, "Barney Frank says you can trust him. But look at his record."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Brian Sullivan
Copy Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Assistant Photo Editor — Drew Ogier
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Jackie Femino
Nancy Gallo, Janet Buch, Ken Kalinowski
Kyle Cooper, Terri Cooper, Scott Stockwell
Gail Tanzer, Adrianne Dufour, Sheryl Silver

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Digest

By the Associated Press

Hojo's to pay $5m in overtime wages

BOSTON — The U.S. Department of Labor announced yesterday that the Howard Johnson's restaurant chain has agreed to pay $5 million in past overtime pay to 5,000 current and former employees nationwide.

In a consent decree, signed Sept. 23, Howard Johnson's and its subsidiary, Ground Round Restaurants, agreed to give overtime credit to manager trainees and assistant managers who worked for the company between August 1977 and March 1982.

Labor Department officials called it one of the largest wage settlements of its kind.

"There aren't too many of cases like this of this magnitude," said department spokesman John M. Chavez.

Kevin Callanan, Howard Johnson's vice president for labor relations, said the firm based in Braintree, Mass., would have no comment on the settlement.

The agreement ends a two-year lawsuit filed by the U.S. Department of Labor on behalf of Howard Johnson's workers. The suit charged that the chain violated provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act by refusing overtime pay to hourly workers.

Principal reprimanded for bellygram joke

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A school principal who hired an exotic dancer to perform for a fellow principal has landed himself in the dunce's corner.

Robert Miller, principal of the Davisville Middle School, has been reprimanded by school administrators for sending a "bellygram" to fellow principal John Harrington — just as Harrington was about to begin a parents' night presentation.

Miller, who described the incident as "a practical joke gone awry," said yesterday he thought the dancer would arrive before the parents showed up.

Bipartisan plan: Can death penalty

BOSTON — A bi-partisan group of legislators will fight to convince voters that reinstating the death penalty would be "a terrible mistake," one legislator said yesterday.

The group of about 19 state senators and representatives includes mostly Democrats and a handful of Republicans and independents. They announced their final push to defeat a referendum question on the death penalty on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Rep. David Cohen, D-Newton, said all have been foes of capital punishment in the Legislature. "Now we're taking that fight to the people in hopes of convincing them that reinstituting the death penalty would be a terrible mistake."

The group is fighting a proposed constitutional amendment that would remove constitutional barriers to reinstatement of the penalty, last used in 1947, and let the Legislature pass a bill to bring back capital punishment in certain cases.

Dukakis gets support from local mayors

SPRINGFIELD — Connecticut Valley mayors and other Democrats, many of whom had supported Gov. Edward King's primary bid, got together yesterday to endorse former Gov. Michael Dukakis.

About 30 politicians sat quietly on rows of chairs and nodded in agreement as the senior elected Democrat in the valley, U.S. Rep. Edward Boland of Springfield, said he supported Dukakis' attempt to regain the governor's office.

Mayors from all of the valley's cities — Springfield, Northampton, Chicopee, Westfield and Holyoke — attended. Chicopee and Holyoke mayors endorsed Dukakis before the primary.

"There's winners and losers in primaries. After the primary is over, the objective is to do all we can to make sure the ticket wins," Boland said. Boland, a congressman since 1952, endorsed King in the primary.

Collegian photo by Heidi Levine

Glen Goldstein, journalism major, serves himself at Earthfoods yesterday, outside the Student Union.

UMass referendum results in

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

Seventy percent of the University of Massachusetts students participating in Monday's Student Government Association (SGA) elections do not support the proposed renovations of Curry Hicks Cage through fee raises.

The second referendum question, asking whether students support the death penalty, was voted down by a slim 668 to 507 margin.

A total of 1,645 students participated in the election, making up approximately 8.6 percent of the eligible voting population, according to SGA Chair of Governmental Affairs Tom Ahern.

Joel Weissman, professional staff member of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) said most local elections receive turnouts of 12 to 15 percent, so the number of voters "is not as bad as it sounds."

"Turnout was poor due to the lack of publicity. We filled more seats (in the Undergraduate Student Senate elections) than on the ballot. A lot of people staged write-in campaigns. In one dorm a write-in beat someone on the ballot," Ahern said.

In the elections for senators, Ahern said write-in candidates with less than 10 votes were not considered valid. Only 76 out of a possible 120 seats were filled. Ahern said those elected must attend tonight's meeting so an accurate count can be made.

An outreach program will be held next week to fill the vacant seats. Area governments will be informed of which dorms need representataives, and applications will be taken.

Elected senators from Southwest are:
Mark Schuback, Coolidge Lower; Jodi Green and Sylvia Smith, Coolidge Upper; Aileen O'Conner, Crampton; Shobhan Powers, Emerson; Brian tuttle, James; David Eckoff/James Kearns, JFK Lower; Robert O'Neil, JFK Middle; Michael McCarthy, JFK Upper. Andrea Steckerl, Melville; Joanna Matarazzo, Thoreau;
William Wall and Bruce Levitus, Cance; Ronald Lipof and Robert Kenweis, JA Upper; James O'Neill, JQA Middle; Dave McCarthy, MacKimmie; Mindy Ordway/Jeff Kadish and Jud Walton, Patterson; Lydia Reyes and Christine McGrath, Pierpont; Michael Bean, Washington Upper; Jimbo McMullen and Cindy Howland, Washington Lower.

Senators from Central are: David Rhodes and Kenneth Freedman, Baker; Doug Storey, Brett; Quentin Donohue, Brooks; Robin Ravech, gorman; Lauren Wexler, Greenough; Chris Sullivan/Mark Shea, Wheeler; Janet Lannan, Butterfield Elected from Orchard Hill were: Andrew Porter and Andy Sparks, Grayson; David Singer and Steven Kraver, Dickinson; Tom Ahern and James Jaworsky, Field; Alyssa Sheehan, Webster.

Senators from Northeast are: Dave Stanley, Crabtree; Richard Elder, Hamlin; Susan Manng, Leach; Sharon Hoppisley, Lewis; Michael Wong, Thatcher.
Senators from Sylvan are: Laura Gallant/Judy Gallant, Brown; Eva Marie Pendergast, Cashin; Ken Dugan and Brent Blake, McNamara.
Greek senators are: Kenneth Abert, Maurya Sullivan/Lauren Bertach, Beth Diamond/Karen Wall, Joe Armstrong/Sean Cochran and Mark Bice.
Commuter senators are: Michael Leary, Mitch Gaskin, Susan Cottle, Eric Nitasche, Lisa Mead, James Armstrong, Ellen Devlin, Lori Weiss, Steven McDonnell, Lewis Evangelides, Kenneth Scanlon, Mimi Turchinetz, Daniel Durgess, Jim Quinn, Linda Sable, Sheila Sullivan, Jane Johnson, Bill Pritchett, Sam Hamner, Robert Schwartz, Barbara Jean Curtis, Alan Swierez, William Sewell, Charlene Allen, Bob Peterson and Greg Frick.

Breakdown in talks for Gnomon copiers

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

Contract negotiations between strikers and owners of Gnomon Copy Services broke down yesterday afternoon after five hours of talks.

Gnomon copy vice President John Sytek said the negotiations ended because progress was made on issues such as wages and whether all workers must join the union. Sytek is advising and negotiating for storeowners Catherine Iannacchino and Roland Wetherbee.

"We object to a union shop as a matter of principle. People should decide what they like without having to pay dues," Sytek said.

Mary-Erin Crook, spokesperson for the strikers, said people who join the union to receive benefits negotiated by the union should have to pay union dues.

"We want people to join the union. We want them to realize that they're getting benefits," she said.

Both sides said no progress was made on wages yesterday. The owners have proposed a plan to base wages on productivity, which the union rejected. The proposal sets pay on the productivity of the store. Under the plan, a base pay is set based on a business period then wages are based on the relationship between current production and production of the base period, said striker Tobi Saisa.

"Basically what they're asking is the impossible. We have no guarantee when the machines would be up, who fixes them, and when parts would be ordered," Crook said.

Crook said the union proposed 15 modifications to the owners' productivity proposal. She said the modifications let workers have more control over store operations but Sytek would not discuss them.

"To make what we're making now, we would have to run about 25,000 more copies than we made in 1981," Crook said.

"We look at the other people in town and they aren't paid that bad. We start at $3.55 an hour. This is a minimum wage town for this sort of job. The only room we have for giving a raise is for a leaner operation. The hope of the productivity plan is that it is self-policing and self-rewarding," Sytek said.

Sytek said the Amherst store has received print work from other Gnomon Copy stores to keep it open during the strike. also work has come in from customers who cross the picket line.

"We're in for the long haul," he said.

Crook said she is not worried about a long strike. She said it is easier for the strikers to make adjustments than the store owners. She said some of the strikers have other jobs and money saved up.

"We have $700 in the strike fund and we're getting union funds in a few days," she said.

"What they should have done was to take our proposals and give it a try and find out that I don't have a tail and horns," Iannacchino said.

New and ex-Gnomons experience tension

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

The 3-week-old strike at Gnomon Copy has continued with tension between strikers and the newly hired workers.

The new workers, called "scabs" by the strikers have been taunted by verbal insults while going to and from the store. One "of the newly hired workers", Tracy Butler, 21, has filed a police complaint after a striker, Carol MacColl, allegedly threatened her "health and well being."

The strikers and strike supporters who also walk the picket line try to persuade people away from the store. The strikers tell people why they are on strike and tell them to go to other area copy stores. Sometimes the strikers are ignored and people walk through the picket line. Other times people won't break the line and go elsewhere.

"Many people are afraid to enter the store because of their tactics. Most of the abuse is coming from the hangers-on but that is just speculation," said Butler.

Butler said she answered an ad in the paper for a job at the store. She said she did not know about the strike and talked to the strikers about why they were on strike and then went inside to talk to the owner for her side of the story.

"I tried to be a self-appointed mediator in a sense," she said.

"I took the job because, although the strikers had reasonable demands, I was turned off by their tactics," she said.

"I like Candy (Iannacchino, a co-owner) very much. She struck me as a fair and reasonable person. Candy is strict about putting down all the hours you've worked. She won't let you work for free. I'm happy donating my time," Butler said.

Butler, formerly of California, came to Amherst three years ago. She attended the University of Massachusetts two years ago as a Pre-Veterinary major, but quit after two semesters because she said she was not ready for school.

Pennie, a new employee at the store who wished to remain unidentified is married and has four children ranging in age from 5 to 15. She said her husband has been disabled since March, 1981, after he broke his leg in two places and shattered his ankle. She said he spent two weeks in the hospital and is due to go back for an ankle fusion operation.

She said she serviced 18 customers at the store on Thursday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. She said she enjoys working at the store and that Catherine "Candy" Iannacchino is nice to work for.

Although the strikers have complained about particles floating in the air at the store, Pennie said "nothing in the air bothers her at all." In addition to working in the store, Pennie said she makes deliveries in and around the Amherst area.

Pennie said she also delivers newspaper bundles for A.J. Hasting's each day at 6 a.m. She said she works because she likes it and because her husband's disability checks are not enough to live on.

Both of the new employees said they wish the strike would end.

"I'm fed up with the whole situation," Butler said.

Interviewee woes soothed by UPS

By TRICIA YACOVONE
Collegian Cor·respondent

For anyone worried about job applications and interviews, Dr. Arthur Hilson, director of the University Placement Service (UPS), says "an interview is nothing more than an exchange of information."

Hilson, a graduate of the doctoral program at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, said the most important thing a student needs when going into an interview is "a clear sense of who he or she is."

Hilson said if students take time to identify their strong skills and take steps to market those skills, then they should have no problem getting a job. This is what Hilson terms the "marketing approach."

"The student is the product and the employer is the consumer. The employer is merely trying to find the best product," Hilson said.

Hilson said students should try to convince the employer that they have the potential for being an asset to the company. He said every student truly has the power to make things happen, to offer something to the company.

An interviewee should read up on the company to show a genuine interest in the company, he said.

Getting an interview is a process simplified by the UPS staff, he said. First students should talk to a counselor working in the resource area of the UPS located in room 102 of Hampshire House.

These counselors help students in specialized fields and work as liaisons to those fields.

Next, a student fills out a registration form to start a credential file, where references are placed. This information next goes into a computer used to match qualified students with available jobs.

After seeking potential employers through the computer or other literature in the Placement Service office, the student goes to room 120 Hampshire to sign up for an interview with a company visiting the University and submits a resume. The student is then told to study literature on that company.

Hilson said this literature is required of the recruiting companies so students can learn more about the companies. Also, UPS sends out a Recruiter's Manual to companies, to give information about UMass and the Placement Service.

The UPS has many services for the students at UMass at Amherst. Along with publishing "Career News," which is distributed campus-wide each week, the UPS provides job search workshops for resume writing and interview preparation, a walk-in counselling service and lifetime access to its facilities.

Collegian photo by Peter Marks

Sheila Polzarski and her Afgan hound, Mereek, take a walk by the Student Union Building at UMass.

Bromery accepts Watt appointment

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The former Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and current Professor of Geology, Randolph W. Bromery, has been appointed by the Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt to serve on the Scientific Committee of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Advisory Board.

The Committee, a group of scientists from various universities and federal agencies, provides the board with scientific information on oils and gasses and the leasing of the OCS. Bromery, a member of the Board of Directors of Exxon, Corp., for the past six years, said his connection with Exxon would not affect his job. "I'll be doing scientific work. They know that I am on the board."

Bromery, who spent 20 years in the Interior Department as an exploration geophysicist for the US Geological Survey before coming to UMass in 1967, said he will begin attending committee meetings this autumn.

The Interior Department's policy in regards to the OCS, oil and gas underwent a major change this summer when Secretary Watt announced plans to increase the amount of coastal waters in which drilling would be allowed.

"Fortunately, I don't have to get into the policy area," Bromery said, declining to comment on his views regarding the Reagan Administration's interfor and environmental actions.

Bromery also serves on the Visiting Committee to the Department of Geophysical Sciences at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the Advisory Committee on Arts and Sciences to the President of Johns Hopkins University, his alma mater.

Collegian photo by Bryan Lashway

A hot air balloon lifts off against a backdrop of the Southwest Residential Area.

School of Educ. pushes programs

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

As it observes National Higher Education Week (Oct. 4-9), the School of Education plans to continue to strengthen its field based programs dealing with secondary and community schools.

Yesterday Richard Clark, dean of the School of Education of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, said the department will continue "trying to keep its field base programs going well."

Ten faculty members from the School of Education spend one day each week in Boston working with principals and teachers in the Boston public schools discussing "school development and improvement," Clark said.

Some of the projects UMass is involved with include curriculum development, improving attendance and developing alternative programs.

The School of Education also runs a program to improve faculty at community colleges in the state, Clark said.

"The program provides the opportunity for community college faculty to enroll in a doctoral study that relates directly to the work place," he said.

Curriculum modification, teaching techniques, guidance and counseling skills are some areas included in the program.

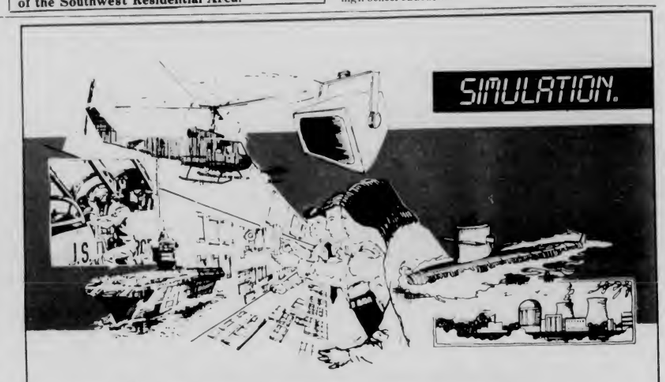
Last month UMass President David C. Knapp announced a five-point plant outlining goals for the University over the next 18 months, including plans to increase the quality of students by working with secondary schools around the state to improve the quality of their high school education.

Are You Graduating, But Still Questioning Your Next Step? If so, Call "TIPS", at 545-1540, and ask for TAPES...

* 2420 Transcripts
* 1034 Professional & Graduate School Examinations
* 2427 Placement Service (résumé Guidance)

Feel more confident about the future... now.

IDB TIPS
A Service of Dean of Students Office



TECHNOLOGY THAT'S AHEAD OF TIME.

At Link, We Make the Possible Happen ...Before it Happens.

Ed Link had the right idea at the right time.

Way back in 1929 when Ed Link built his first trainer to teach people how to fly, he helped make it possible for a fledgling aircraft industry to keep growing. And, more importantly, he created a new technology — SIMULATION. During World War II, Ed Link's famous "Blue Box" trained thousands of allied pilots.

Today, Simulation is the key to defense, to the development of safe and efficient energy systems, to pioneering new frontiers.

Think about it!

Colonels Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton, the Commander and pilot of the shuttle Columbia's third flight, as did the astronauts before them, credit their spacecraft's successful flight to the many hundreds of hours spent training in a Link simulator.

And so it goes. Link continues to develop and introduce sophisticated simulation techniques that find application to an ever widening range of fields. Link simulation systems are used to teach navigation and for tactical and anti-submarine training. A Link device trains commercial pilots to guide ships through busy harbors anytime, and in any weather. In industry you'll find Link simulators are critical to the safe, cost-efficient operation of nuclear and fossil fueled power generating facilities.

No matter what the area of application, Link state-of-the-art simulation systems demand the creativity of highly skilled and motivated professionals. Ours is a demanding business: success depends on our ability to meet new technical challenges.

Link's environment is progressive and geared to growth. There are opportunities for Electronic and Electrical Engineers, for Mechanical and Chemical Engineers, and for Physics, Mathematics and Computer Science graduates as well as those with business degrees. Really, openings at all levels of experience in most degrees.

Link provides new employees with a PROFESSIONALLY PREPARED ORIENTATION PROGRAM to help ease their transition from the academic world to the practical business world.

THINK LINK. There's no better place to begin a rewarding and meaningful career than with the leader.

For more information, contact your college placement office, or write directly to Link Simulation Systems, Professional Recruiting (College Division), 11800 Tech Road, Silver Spring, Maryland 20904.

Link
SIMULATION SYSTEMS DIVISION
THE BINGER COMPANY

LINK SIMULATION SYSTEMS

Link Simulation Systems is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer actively seeking talent without regard to race, sex, age, religion, national origin or physical handicaps.

Kennedy addresses rally; blasts US policy

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

As the crowd at yesterday's rally sang the last verse of Peter Yarrow's "Blowin' In The Wind," Senator Edward M. Kennedy rose from his seat, strode the the podium and raised his fist to the crowd in the standard Kennedy fashion.

During his speech, Kennedy blasted the Reagan administration for what he said was its hypocracy on its stance against a nuclear arms freeze.

A plane with a banner reading "Support Ray Shamie for U.S. Senate" flew overhead during the entire rally drawing a good laugh from the senior Massachusetts senator.

Kennedy had waited on stage nearly 45 minutes to speak. He sang along with Yarrow and clapped to the music of James Taylor. He was th keynote speaker of his travelling road show and drew the loudest applause from the audience.

He called the freeze issue "the most important ideal of our generation. I grew up in a family that believed that individuals can make a difference, and all of us should try."

Responding to a statement yesterday in which President Reagan accused nuclear freeze proponents of being manipulated by people who want to weaken America Kennedy once again attacked the Reagan administration.

"I wonder if the president has a list in his pocket of the people who want a nuclear freeze because they want to weaken America? I want a strong America. I want to say this to the president. You're as wrong about arms policy as you are about the economy."

He said the president was engaging not only in voodoo economics, but also voodoo arms control.

"I believe President Reagan owes an apology to those who want to reduce the threat of a nuclear holocaust. People care and they care deeply. We here on this campus are on ground zero," Kennedy said.

Kennedy also spoke of the "madness" of the United States having 4.5 tons of TNT for every man, woman and child in the country. "We can say to this administration, Enough is enough," Kennedy said.

Kennedy told the crowd that top Pentagon officials have said they would not trade all U.S. nuclear capabilities for Soviet capabilities.

"If they say 'no' they would not trade, then why not freeze today and move toward reductions?" Kennedy said.

Contradicting President Reagan and Pentagon officials Kennedy said the United States has 9,000 nuclear weapons compared to the Soviet Union's 7,000. He said the smallest U.S. weapon is the equivalent of three of the bombs dropped on Hiroshima, Japan in 1945. He said such a bomb would kill 300,000 people.

"We are talking about how high the rubble would bounce. And the rubble would bounce from Moscow to Vladivostok and back," he said.

Kennedy likened the arms race to two people standing in a cellar waist high in gasoline, one person with six matches and the other person with eight.

"With Casper Weinberger we're trying to give everyone 15 matches. Now what kind of sense is that?" he said.

Civil Defense crisis relocation policy also came under the senator's attack.

"In order to minimize the casualties it (evacuation) would take seven days notice. I wish we had an administration that would spend more time trying to prevent nuclear war, than trying to prepare for it."

"That small ripple that started in western Massachusetts is going to sweep across the state and the nation this year, and we're going to say to the Reagan administration we want a mutually verifiable nuclear arms freeze," Kennedy said.

At a reception following the rally, a tired-looking Kennedy said he first publicly supported the nuclear freeze issue in January this year. But he added that he has long supported the idea of arms limitations.

Earlier in the day, Kennedy had spoken at Northeastern University's nuclear freeze rally. After speaking at UMass Limitations Treaty). "I've introduced resolutions to ratify the '74 and '76 SALT treaty," he said.

The senator added that the arms race is one of the primary reasons for unemployment in this country.

Earlier in the day, Kennedy had spoken at Northeastern University's nuclear freeze rally. After speaking at UMass he attended a dinner and speaking engagement in Boston.

But before leaving the reception Kennedy stood on a chair and addressed the crowd of about 200 at the reception.

"We'll be back soon and give you some Democratic speeches," he said.

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

An unidentified woman collects money for the organizers of yester- day's nuclear freeze rally.

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Two unidentified students show their opposition to yesterday's speakers on the Campus Center patio.

Kennedy road show makes stop in Boston

By DANA GARDNER
Special to the Collegian

BOSTON — Stressing the need for student voter registration and verbally attacking the Reagan administration's "voodoo economics" and "voodoo arms control," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Massachusetts Representative Barney Frank and a slew of concerned artists addressed the Northeastern University community yesterday.

Echos of Kennedy's strong and positive voice rang down Huntington Avenue past the Museum of Fine Arts and uptown to Boston's Back Bay.

Signs reading "Hell no, we won't glow" and "Ban the bomb" bounced above a crowd of some 4,000 students, passers-by and political activists gathered in the Northeastern Quad yesterday morning.

An unexpected appearance by Frank, who just the night before conducted a strong and bitter debate with Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler, drove home the point of the seriousness of the lawmakers.

"You may have heard or read in this morning's paper that Ronald Reagan announced last night that we're all dupes. Apparently the president cannot be made to understand the deep desire that we've got to keep this planet whole," Frank said.

"It's discouraging and depressing that the President of the United States has to resort to that kind of McCarthyite rhetoric to discredit people who are only trying to prevent nuclear holocaust," he said.

Applause was genuine and generous for Frank. His opponent in the upcoming November election, Heckler, later appeared on the steps of the Carl Ell Student Center and was booed. Heckler was the only Republican to appear at Northeastern yesterday.

Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor John Kerry spoke sarcastically about Reagan and his speech Monday night in Ohio.

"Manipulation is something Ronald Reagan knows a lot about. Just ask Ed Meese and Baker, and Deaver, and Nancy — no, don't ask Nancy," Kerry said. "These are the same people who have asked the mayors of the cities of Massachusetts to plan an evacuation program for millions of our citizens, so that we can put them up in the Green Mountains or on the Cape and have a peaceful, nice place to die."

"That's the king of manipulation we're witnessing in this place and time. And we're here to say we have a different evacuation plan for the people of this country — it's called evacuation of the White House in 1984. And the principal architect of that plan will be Senator Edward M. Kennedy," Kerry said.

SGA President Murphy performs; non-political talent is displayed

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Student Government Association President and Student Trustee Jim Murphy showed he has talent in other areas besides politics when he serenaded throngs of fellow students at the nuclear freeze rally yesterday.

Murphy, 22, a senior psychology major, who was elected SGA president last spring, played two short verses of a Phil Ochs song, "Love me, I'm a Liberal," as well as two of his own compositions.

Murphy said he has been playing guitar since he was 15 and has sung in many choirs and ensembles since he was very young. His musical training began with piano lessons at the age of six.

Murphy said he chose to play his guitar and sing at the rally because he feels more comfortable addressing a large crowd musically rather than by making a speech.

"I'm not a good speaker," Murphy said. "If I'm going to get up in front of that many people and do something, it should be something I'm comfortable doing."

While it was not his first performance before a large audience, the first coming in a community chorale when he was 12 years old, Murphy said it was by far the largest crowd he had ever entertained and while he was a bit apprehensive, he felt he handled it well.

"I think I still have to work on being comfortable with an audience," he said.

Murphy played "Power Plant" and "Lullaby" at the rally just two of a number of songs Murphy has written. He also plays material by James Taylor, Joan Baez, Gordon Lightfoot, Jonathan Edwards and others.

Murphy's performance yesterday is just one of what he hopes will be a long line of concerts. He said he would like to become a professional entertainer when he graduates from UMass and has no aspirations to enter politics.

"It's about the only thing I could really feel happy with," Murphy said. "I don't know if I have a particular end in mind. I think anyone who goes into a performing art has stars in their eyes. I like playing whether or not I get any success doing that. That's not what I;m worried about. If I can keep food in my mouth, I'm happy."

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

SGA President Jim Murphy delivers his political views through song.

★Shamie

Continued from page 1

was up. After Shamie finished, McCarthy apologized to the crowd, explaining the Republican candidate was asked to speak only on the freeze and not to mention Kennedy or his campaign against him.

"I'd just like to mention Ray Shamie was invited to speak on the condition that he would address the nuclear freeze issue. "As you are aware, that's not exactly what happened," he said.

In an interview after the speech, Shamie claimed he did stick to the issue of the nuclear arms freeze.

"This is all related," he said. "The way we're going to prevent war is to put people in office who can negotiate with the Soviets. You can't negotiate with yourself."

Although he seemed shaken, Shamie said he wasn't that upset by the crowd's reaction.

"This isn't the first time I've been jeered. There's always a lot of loud people who make a lot of noise," he said.

"Ted Kennedy believes the freeze is his issue and I don't believe its right," he said. "I spoke about my position on the freeze. The freeze is not a partisan issue."

Shamie also said Kennedy is using the freeze to score the voters into voting for him, speaking particularly about the Kennedy commercial telling people that by voting for Kennedy, they can prevent a nuclear holocaust.

Shamie said he doesn't believe his candidacy is in vain and that he does in fact have a chance to beat the incumbent senator.

"I expect to win," he said. "I didn't get into this thing to use up my free time."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Former Massachusetts Governor and candidate for governor Michael Dukakis addresses the crowd of over 8,000 that attended yesterday's rally.

DeKuyper introduces DeMugshot.

Get your mug shot and get your mug in this paper.

Discover DeMugshot from DeKuyper, and you might discover your face in this paper.

DeMugshot is a shot of DeKuyper's delicious Peppermint Schnapps chased by a frosty beer. Be around when DeMugshot Night comes to a nearby bar, and you could be caught in the celebration by a photographer. If your face is the winning mug, you'll soon see it featured in this paper.

So get your mug shot, and you might become one of the most wanted faces on campus.

For participating pubs, check your campus bulletin boards.

DeKuyper® Peppermint Schnapps.

Peppermint Schnapps. 60 Proof. John DeKuyper & Son, Elmwood Place, Ohio.

Please Recycle this Collegian

adventura travel
549-1256

Reserve Holiday Flights Now
save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

LEVI SALE

$18.95

Straight Leg Denim

SATURDAY CLOTHES
266 N. Pleasant
Amherst
Mon-Sat
9:30-6
Fri till 9 pm

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Crayton shed light on racial problems

This month a friend and dedicated UMass activist has left us. Tony Crayton, who served as the director of the Office of Third World Affairs, will be sorely missed. Not only did he struggle to help keep Third World organizations and activities going, but he also worked on many different programs with white student groups, where he helped to bring a different perspective to work that they were doing. Tony tried constantly to help push progressive movements forward and build unity between different organizations.

One of the things that he stressed and demanded was the need for white people to confront the reality of Racism in this country and at UMass. By examining some of the basic assumptions about racism, a better understanding about Tony and the entire community can be achieved.

Racism is the practiced and deliberate subjugation of a people based upon their skin color or other racial characteristics. It permeates America in a number of ways historical, cultural, economic, and social. One of the most damaging is the perpetuation of racial stereotypes. Sometimes this is organized, as with the Schockley school of genetic falsification; (Blacks are inherently inferior.) Other times it takes more subtle forms that are expounded through the cultural apparatus of the country. The extreme is the KKK which holds that minorities are responsible for all of the evils of our society from unemployment to acid rain.

The lunacy of this is easy to see, when statistics that help make up the social and economic fabric of the country are examined. Two examples from the Federal Government show 45.7 Black teenage unemployment, and 33 percent of Native Americans having only an elementary school education or less. While one could go on with many more that is not the point. The shattered lives and dashed hopes that result from the reality shown by the stats affect the whole country. Just as we could not exist half slave and half free, so we will not be able to exist and move forward if the prejudices based on skin color and social standing are not taken care of. Those on top in positions of power and authority and those with wealth who help control that power and authority, they have to answer for the condition and shape that our society is in. Racism and the ills that spring from it can only be partially solved by government programs that attempt cosmetic solutions.

Racism is a disease of the mind that has to be solved by people first admitting that it exists, and then figuring out how to deal with it. Right here at the University we have the papers of W.E.B. Duboise, one of the intellectual giants of the United States, and founder of the NAACP. Yet after a whole year of civility the library is still unnamed and no buildings are named after Third World people.

Despite the fact that only one percent of the UMass population is Third World, there are an impressive number of Third World programs and cultural events at UMass. Check out Nummo News or Black Affairs to see what is happening in the Third World community.

Within living memory of many of our grandparents and a few of our parents if they are older, is the traumatic migration from Europe. Thousands fled political persecution and poverty to find a new life in America. How they rotted in the pens at Ellis Island, often unable to speak English. How they were herded like cattle with signs and tags around their necks. How cruel were the signs "No Irish and no Italians need apply," the anti-catholic riots, the No Nothing Movement, the contempt and control practiced by the native born against the immigrants as our forefathers tried to build a new life in this country.

Racism has been around in North America for four hundred years. However through the efforts of people like Tony, more people will hopefully understand and come to grips with it.

Brooke States is a UMass student.

Brooke States

Why the rally was successful

It was truly a day to remember. Like any and all spectacles, it had elements of the absurd, the humorous, the ugly and the significant. As one student remarked, "I thought days like this went out with Abbie Hoffman, flower children, and the free love movement." Apparently they didn't — or did they? If one can cut through the rhetoric, the cries for change and the general hysteria of the rally, one question still remains — why today? Why here, and why this issue? Having just attended the rally, addressing this concern certainly isn't easy. More importantly though, if days like today are to become more than just a flash in the pan, or a one shot deal, the "why" of today and not just the "who" or "what" should be examined.

John F. Hudson

As an issue, the nuclear freeze movement and why it so significantly controlled the emotions of the 10,000 people gathered on Metawampe lawn is unique. Unlike other mass movements of the past such as the drive for unions around the turn of the century or the anti-war protests of the sixties, this cause cuts across lines of class, race and sex. An ICBM neither knows nor cares about its potential target. This blindness of sorts which characterizes nuclear war lifts the issue above the bi-partisanship, the divisiveness and distinct drawing of battle lines which traditionally marks the nation wide protest movements.

It is also important to note the movement was born in Town Meetings, City Councils, and small, well organized grass-root groups. In the beginning, politicians considered the freeze issue too hot, a question better left to students and leftover liberals. From this inauspicious beginning, the freeze grew in popularity, from the bottom up, devoid of the rhetoric, and simplistic arguments characteristic of manufactured political causes such as Reagan's infamous tax cut. Even Senator Kennedy, considered by many to be the prime mover and shaker of freeze politics, admitted that he only became involved in the movement in January of 1982, over two years after its first beginnings. This purity of sorts adds even more legitimacy to the issue and therefore attracts those people turned off by the facade of sincerity so often professed by candidates and officeholders alike.

The simplicity of the freeze proposition advocating a nuclear weapons freeze is, in the final analysis, the main reason for its widespread popularity. The average voter, in analyzing the problem of nuclear proliferation, has suddenly found the answer. The terms throw weight, ICBM, Trident, Triad, MX, Stealth, and B-1, which have been thrown at the voter in the past by hawkish politicians in hopes of muddling the issue, have been tossed by the wayside. It is now a question of survival, of life and its opportunities being available for others in the future, not subject to annihilation at the hands of a few sinister or paranoid leaders.

In conclusion, a cynic could view yesterday's rally as an all-star campaign party for Ted Kennedy in '84. Though today realistically proved the rally was much less than this, the question of staying power and voter turnout on the issue should be examined. If Peter Yarrow had not so beautifully led the crowd in song, would ten thousand have shown up? If "Handyman" James Taylor hadn't explained his own views on nuclear politics, would the throng have cheered so loudly and forcefully? What if the Duke had been touting his own candidacy rather than the issue — would that many people have really cared? Of course not. The sad part is that these famous people will not be there on November 2 to lead us by our hands to the polls. The nuclear freeze rally cannot be termed a success until many more people become involved in the drive to stop the mad rush by both superpowers to hold nuclear superiority. Without this mass involvement, today will just be remembered as a chance to grab some rays, listen to tunes and watch the Ted and Mike show with 10,000 of your closest friends.

John F. Hudson is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Nuclear freeze issue undermined by editorial politics

To the Editor:

In its Oct. 4 issue the Collegian Board of Editors has accused the Kennedy campaign of politicizing the Oct. 5 Nuclear Freeze Rally at our UMass campus. However, the editorial fails miserably on all major points of the accusation. The Collegian claims "the Senator has attached his name to the issue in hopes of gaining political mileage." In fact the most prominent piece of anti-nuclear legislation before Congress today bears Senator Kennedy's name. The Collegian claims that Senator Kennedy's staff received $1000.00 in technical support funds for the rally. In fact the monies were awarded to SCANN, the sponsor of the rally. The Senator's office offered to donate the money but this offer was refused by the SGA to keep the non-partisan mood of the rally intact. The Collegian claims that "Since the rally was first proposed for the UMass campus, the name of Senator Kennedy has figured prominently in any mention of the event." While it is true that press releases of the event are on letterhead stationary, all of the advertising leaflets (which are paid for in full by the Kennedy campaign) distributed to the general UMass population clearly emphasize support for nuclear freeze.

I believe the major focus of the Collegian editorial was to protest the timing of the rally in view of the general election in November. The fact of the matter is the Senator initiated the rally on Oct. 5 because it is the last day to register to vote for Referendum Question 5 on the Massachusetts ballot which supports nuclear freeze. As anyone of the hundreds of people who stopped by the Kennedy table on Thursday or Friday of last week can attest, the major thrust of our presence was to inform people of the rally itself, the nuclear freeze issue in general, and the need to register to vote by Oct. 5 in view of the important referendum question. We, as volunteers working the table, were told by the Kennedy campaign to advise interested parties that our work on the November re-election campaign would begin after the rally.

I feel it is a shame that the nuclear freeze issue, the most important issue of our time, may have been undermined by petty editorial politics.

James Crosby
Volunteer
Committee to Re-Elect
Senator Kennedy

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Car registration a must

By JACKIE ART
Collegian Correspondent

Out-of-state students who will have cars, trucks or vans on campus while attending school should register them with the University of Massachusetts Police Department, Philip J. Cavanaugh of the UMass department of public safety announced recently.

Cavanaugh said the non-resident students and faculty must register the cars to comply with state law.

Chapter 90, Section 3 of the Massachusetts General Law states that every non-resident enrolled at a school in the Commonwealth who has a vehicle during the school year must register it with the local police department. The department is in this case UMass police, Cavanaugh said.

The registration form requires information about the car, such as the state it is registered in, license plate number, and make. It also has several questions regarding the owner's liability insurance.

Cavanaugh said the law requires non-residents driving vehicles on campus to have a liability insurance providing at least $5,000 coverage for injury or death to one person and $10,000 coverage for more than one person. The policy must be valid while the vehicle is driven in the state.

If the policy does not meet those requirements, he said, a registration decal won't be issued.

Cavanaugh also said non-resident students and faculty who don't register can be fined up to $50.

Schools and colleges in Massachusetts are also required by law to keep a file on registered out-of-state vehicles, and can be fined $100 for not doing it, Cavanaugh said.

Registration forms can be picked up in the basement of Dickinson Hall, Room 1. Once the form is complete and approved, applicants are issued a decal for their vehicles. There is no cost to register, he said.

Decals shouldn't be confused with decals issued by the parking office, which are permits to park in specific lots, he said.

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Sophomore Gary Cohen enjoys an evening smoke while relaxing at the pyramid Tuesday at the Southwest Residential Area.

10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD *

MOTORWORKS
586-9029
We Make Your Engine Fly
GRAND OPENING SPECIAL
Oil & Lube
$9.95
SAVE $6.00
Route 47 next to Pip's General Store
North Hadley 586-9029

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Miller or Miller Light
35c Pub-Mugs
- OLDIES -
with
Gregg Adams
No Cover
9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

NOW OPEN
NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER
Steel Belted Radial
$35.00
size 155-13
fet $1.59
Full Service Tire Store
• computer wheel balancing
• front end alignment • brakes & shocks
78 Old Sunderland Rd., N. Amherst
549-4704
across from Watrobas Store

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERT
THE RA

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH
Dr. Virginia Harper DC
Dr. Howard Ewert DC
CHIROPRACTORS
Joint Pain & Muscle Balance
If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.
Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.
The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. She will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.
If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.
In the interest of better health from the office of:
Amherst Chiropractic Center
190 University Drive at Route 9 256-6700

apc PRODUCTIONS
Steppin' Out with JOE JACKSON
In Concert
THURSDAY OCT. 21, 1982
on stage 8:00 p.m.
TICKETS
ON SALE
OCT. 7, 1982
Ticket Limit 4 per person
Ticket Prices: student 9.50, 10.50
general public 10.50, 11.50
Union Records • FAC • For the Record •
No Cans, Bottles or Cameras Please
FINE ARTS CENTER • U. MASS.

Arts

Collegian photos by Teresa Bellafiore

Among the artists present at yesterday's nuclear freeze rally were musicians James Taylor, Peter Yarrow and actress Lauren Bacall. Of the three, Taylor took the stage first. He spoke softly, articulately, saying it was very reassuring to see all the students present and citing the arms problem as "without doubt, the most important single recognizable issue today."

Actress Lauren Bacall took time off from her "Woman of the Year" tour to take place in the event, where she urged students to register to vote on the referendum questions.

Peter Yarrow, of Peter, Paul and Mary fame, was the last person to perform before Ted Kennedy came out to speak. Yarrow sang "The Banks of Jordan" and a cover of the Bob Dylan classic, "Blowin in the Wind."

— Andrew Gordon

Play by Play

by Pam Madnick

Come Home tomorrow night to Bowker Auditorium at UMass. Sponsored by the UMass Third World Theatre Series, Home, by the Samm-Art Williams, is an autobiographical comedy about a young black man growing up in North Carolina. The Negro Ensemble Theatre, which performs here tomorrow, took Home to Broadway, where it was nominated for two Tony Awards. Williams also won the Audelco Award for outstanding achievement in black playwriting and theatre production. The performance begins at 8 p.m. Tickets will be sold at the door and are $2 for students and $3 for the general public.

Also on campus, Dogg's Hamlet, Cahoot';s MacBeth continues through Saturday night at the Curtain Theatre, Fine Arts Center. The show begins at 8 p.m. and tickets may be purchased at the Rand Theatre Box Office. For students and senior citizens tickets are $1.50 and $2.50 for the public.

The Women's Community Theatre presents a Celebration of New Plays by American Women Writers this Friday and Saturday in Sage 2, Smith College, Northampton. The Friday night premiere of The Red Hat by Barr Walton begins at 8 p.m. Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m., No False Moves by D. Proos and S. Thames will be read for women only. The Tangled Thread by C. Rusch, Another Thursday Afternoon by Annie Corey and Love Song for an Amazon by M. Boesing beginning at 8 p.m. The plays will be presented as stage readings with discussion and coffee to follow. Peter Gould and Stephen Stearns join efforts in presenting Jesus — A Peasant of El Salvador, a portrayal of the personal life of an old man struggling to survive in El Salvador, Saturday at 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, 3 Elm St., Northampton. The performance combines mime, music, and a narration of events and true accounts. The production is sponsored by the Northampton Committee on Central America. It was inspired by Archbishop Oscar Romero, who was murdered on his pulpit on Palm Sunday 1980 with others devoted to the liberation of the World's poor. Tickets are available at Food For Thought, Amherst; The Good Things Collective, Northampton and at the door for $2.

Food Fright, a dramatization of women's obsession with food runs October 8,9,10,16, and 17 at Present Stage at 19 Hawley St., Northampton.

If you plan to be in Boston, consider Dancin' in the Streets, Boston's longest running musical running through November 7 at the Next Move Theatre, Boston. Directed and choreographed by Tony Award nominee Billy Wilson, Dancin' in the Streets features over 20 hits described by critics, as "the soulful musical Dream Girls should have had." Performances are Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Annie, the award winning musical based on the famous comic strip orphan and her adventures, plays the Metropolitan Center in Boston through October 24 with a new cast. Tickets are half-price for students and senior citizens for all 7 p.m. shows. Annie will be performed Tuesday through Saturday at 7 p.m. with matinees at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

Photo courtesy University Ensemble Theater

Becket Royce, Lawrence M. Devine, and Gary Trahan star in the University Ensemble's production of Tom Stoppard's Dogg's Hamlet, Cahoot's Macbeth through October 9th in the Curtain Theater of the Fine Arts Center.

Art behind closed doors

By ANDREA MILLSTEIN
Collegian Staff

How often have you strolled through the Student Union, Herter Hall, the Fine Arts Center, and Hampden Center noticing the sign "Gallery," but passed it by because you were not quite sure what lurked behind those closed doors? It may be worth your while to let curiousity get the best of you.

Visionary Art, an exhibition of oils and mixed media, is currently on display in the Student Union Gallery. This show, created by Libby Hubbard, a UMass undergraduate, has an intriguing background. From the beginning of her childhood, Hubbard has had a love for creative drawing and painting and has found happiness in creative thought.

In the summer of 1981, Hubbard attended the Naropa Institute in Colorado, and there married Charles Carroll, Allen Ginsberg's teaching assistant at the time. Together they are working on a vision of peace for all of mankind. Through their creative works of art, they hope to give humanity the spirit necessary for planetary survival. These unique drawings and paintings must be seen to appreciate their significance. The show will run through October 9.

Contemporary Prints: The Figure Beside Itself and Exhibition of Work by Vito Acconci are the two themes presented in the University Gallery located in the Fine Arts Center. The artists in the Contemporary Prints exhibition are from Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Boston, Italy, Germany, and England. Basic themes of violence, destruction, terror, anxiety, and isolation run through these works and portray the tensions present in the world. The main attraction in this exhibit is Nicholas Africano's "The Shadow." This piece literally stands "beside itself" in expressing human anxiety.

The other exhibit in the University Gallery is the structures of Vito Acconci. The space in the main gallery has been split into nine areas with painted aluminum siding on moveable tracks to create walls. These walls can be moved and changed by the viewer manipulating the space. Causing a sense of uncertainty is the theme Acconci is conveying. One can not simply look at this exhibit: you must participate in it.

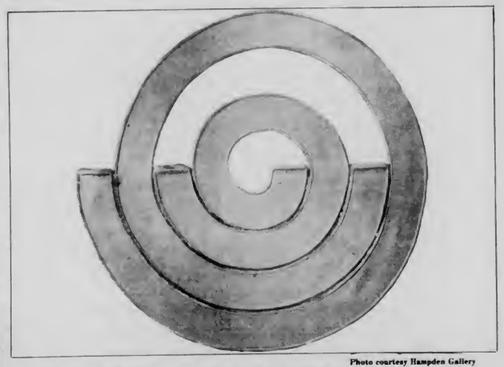

Photo courtesy Hampden Gallery

"Untitled 1982" is one of the many sculptural paintings by Anthony Thompson on display October 12-29 at Hampden Gallery in Southwest.

Two exhibits presently on display in the Herter Hall Gallery are the University Children's Art Works and Foundation Works. The Children's Art Works is a myriad of art work by children in the four University sponsored day care centers. Foundation Works, the second exhibit, is presented by last year's first year art students for the benefit of the freshman class. The works represented consist of drawings and two and three dimensional designs and illustrate a variety of concepts and issues addressed in the basic art foundations program.

Through October 8 in the Hampden Gallery in Southwest, collages and Trompe L'oeil paintings by Enid Munroe will be on exhibit as well as sculptural paintings by Anthony Thompson, October 12-29.

Louis FINE FOODS
76 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MASS.

Save on your grocery bills plus S&H Green Stamps!

S&H GREEN STAMPS

SPECIALS VALID OCT 4-9, 1982

USDA CHOICE Top Round Roast $2.09 LB

USDA CHOICE

USDA CHOICE Top Round Steak $2.79 LB

COME TO LOUIS FOODS FROZEN FOODS

Fall Festival!

BIRDS EYE Orange Plus 99¢ 12 OZ CAN

BIRDS EYE FRENCH OR CUT Green Beans 2 9 OZ PKGS 99¢

7 OZ PKG CELESTE Cheese Pizza 99¢

10 OZ PKG AUNT JEMIMA Jumbo Waffles 69¢

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

WITH THIS COUPON & A $7.50 PURCHASE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEM & TOBACCO — LIMIT ONE.
BOUNTY Paper Towels LARGE ROLL 49¢ LU-89
VALID OCT 4-8, 1982 AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH THIS COUPON & A $7.50 PURCHASE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEM & TOBACCO — LIMIT ONE.
ALL PURPOSE Gold Medal Flour 5 LB BAG 59¢ LU-90
VALID OCT 4-8, 1982 AT LOUIS FOODS

Limit One Per Customer IT ONE
LOUIS' OWN FRESH SQUEEZED 100% Orange Juice QT CONT 25¢ OFF LU-91
VALID OCT 4-8, 1982 AT LOUIS FOODS

CRISCO Shortening 3 Lb. Can $2.19

RED CHEEK NATURAL Apple Juice 64 OZ BTL $1.49

RED ROSE Tea Bags 100 CT PKG $1.79

IVORY Dish Liquid 12 OZ BTL 49¢

Conviction overturns pleaded

BOSTON (AP) — All seven defendants looked on as their attorneys asked the state Supreme Court yesterday to overturn their convictions in the deaths of two teen-agers who drowned in a car last year in the Berkshire Hills.

The families of the two dead boys also were in the packed courtroom as Assistant District Attorney Daniel A. Ford told the high court there was no error in the trial, and that it was conducted fairly and correctly.

The seven young men were each convicted of two counts of involuntary manslaughter and one of assault and battery by a jury in Berkshire Superior Court last Nov. 19. Judge William Simons sentenced each to 2½ years in jail.

The defense attorneys claimed the lakeside fight which preceded the deaths was not enough for a manslaughter conviction, that the evidence failed to establish a joint enterprise by the seven, that the prosecution failed to show why the car carrying the two went into Laurel Lake, that the judge erred in instructing the jury and in a variety of rulings in the case and that witnesses were not properly sequestered.

"The defendants were entitled to directed verdicts" of acquittal, said Imelda C. LaMountain, a defense attorney, who added, "It is our position that the facts could not sustain a conviction."

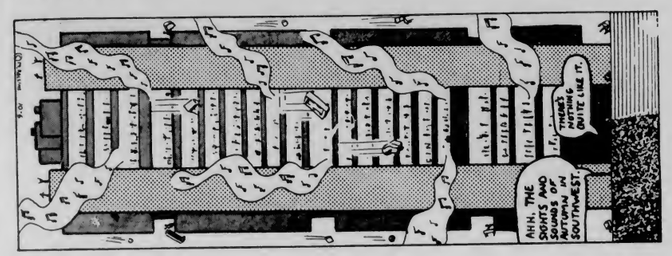
"The fact is that the jury came back and asked questions" during its deliberations, said another defense attorney, Henry J. Boitel.

The judge didn't answer the question, according to Brownlow Speer of the Massachusetts Defenders Committee. "We submit that was error on his part."

LAGNAF 83

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins



Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Gooz by G. Masse

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Cold Cut Grinder
Egg Roll/Soy Sauce
Duc Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Grinder
Egg Roll/Soy Sauce
Duc Sauce

DINNER
Diplomat Sandwich
Roast Top Round of Beef/
Au Jus
Squash Bake

BASICS DINNER
Fried Clams/Tartar Sauce
Cocktail Sauce
Squash Bake

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Deep tone
5 Swinish beast
9 Great company
14 Part of the eye
15 Latvian metropolis
16 "—— Irish Rose"
17 Care for 18 Verve
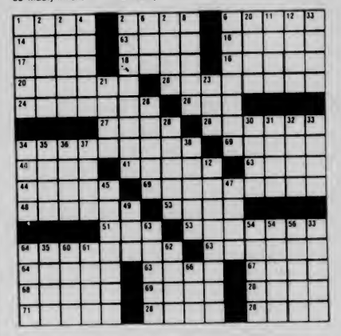
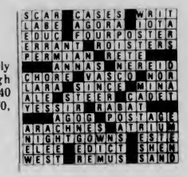
19 Baron or earl
20 Horse-drawn vehicle
22 Salesman's forte
24 Rushes swiftly
26 Correlative
27 Partner of cranny
29 Salesman's inducement
34 Daily doings of Boy and Girl Scouts
39 Shortstop's bugaboo
40 First word of story
41 Tendency
43 Peruvian native
44 Aquatic animal
46 Graduation souvenirs
48 Lathered
50 Incentive
51 Important fellow
53 Madly in love
58 Greek
63 Chide strongly
64 Oriental prince
65 Slangy refusal
67 O'Neill heroine
68 American oriental
69 Legal proceedings
70 Polaris
71 Metric measure
72 Old card game
73 Famous pianist

DOWN
1 Archery targets
2 Turn aside
3 Spanish title
4 Character in "Rain"
5 Get ahead of the pack
6 —— of turpentine
7 Arabian rulers
8 Talked without pause
9 Obsolete foyer furniture
10 Japanese sashes
11 Marriage ceremony
12 Valley
13 Donkey, in Munich
21 German philosopher
23 Because
25 Word of regret
28 Where knickers stop
30 Con —— (vivaciously)
31 Pisa's river
32 Clock sound
33 Historic times
34 Blunder
35 Upon
36 Numerical prefix
37 Consider
38 Closing devices
42 Parade sound
45 Daydream
47 French cheese
49 Noise
52 Spanish fruits
54 Some printed matter
55 Relative, French style
56 Heaters
57 Approaches
58 Poultry
59 Send forth
60 —— majesty
61 Flirtatious look
62 —— of the walk
66 School org





WEATHER

Clear nights and mostly sunny days through tomorrow. Lows tonight 40 to 50. Highs today 65 to 70, tomorrow 60 to 70.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Theresa — BMCP	6-7pm	Women's Affairs — "The Everywoman's Center"
9-noon	Avandel — New Music	7-10pm	New Music with Paula T.
12-3pm	Darryl Hickman — 50's, 60's rock	10-2am	James Neill — Terpsichorean Cacophony
3-5:30	Beat the Beat with Mary Kelly	2-6am	Glory Gospel Road with Rev. Pearson
5:30-6	Newswatch with Mary Kelly

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC Daily Programming Schedule

10:30 - 11:30	Bill Russell talks of Basketball and Equal Rights
11:30 - 12:30	Marion Brown and Dave Burrel in Concert '81
12:30 - 1:30	Comedy from the Bluewall
1:30 - 2:00	Nam June Paik's Global Groove

USED BOOK SALE
20% Regular Prices
Oct 4-9, Mon - Sat
VALLEY BOOK SHOP
Carriage Shops
Downtown Amherst
10-5:30 M-F, Sat 10-5, Sun 12-4

OPENING SPECIAL
25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

Greeting Cards, Pens, Pencils & Office Supplies
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

DON'T MISS THURS, OCT 7
"ARTHUR"
STARRING Dudley Moore
Liza Minnelli, John Gielgud
Shows 5, 7, 9 & 11 AT SUB

Striders take UM track title

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Striders, paced by the first place performances of John Gessner (100 yard dash and long jump) and Neil Osborne (high jump), outdistanced Phi Mu Delta to take the intramural track crown yesterday at Derby Track.

The Striders amassed a total of 44 points to Phi Mu Delta's second place tally of 32 points. Trailing in third place was Pi Kappa Alpha with 29 points.

Individual winners for Phi Mu Delta were Jim Ford, who won the shot put with a throw of 46'1", Bob Ross, who won the mile in 4:40.2, Larry Floyd, who edged out teammate Dave Donovan in a very close two-mile run, and Bill Elbery, who clocked a 54.01 in the quarter mile.

Other winners on the day were Gary Gauthier in the discus, Mike Millaney in the 120 yard low hurdles, Neal Dickson in the 220 yard dash and the Pi Kappa Alpha 440 relay team.

In the women's division, Janet Chin won the high jump, Diane Smith took the discus, Margie Dubinsky won the mile and Smith repeated as champion in the 11 yard dash.

The event, which was sponsored by the UMass Intramural Department, was open to all university students, both undergraduate and graduate. It was part of a series of intramural events which the department sponsors throughout the course of the school year.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Bob Ross (right) heads for the front of the pack in the mile which he won in 4:40.2.

★rugby

Continued from page 16

Kevin Lyons executed a perfect drop kick and UMass had the lead at halftime, 9-8.

Charles River made sure that the second half would be no holiday for UMass as they pushed home 14 unanswered points to sew up a 22-9 win.

The afternoon wasn't a complete loss by any means. The UMass ruggers got a chance to watch a highly organized team perform and it will no doubt help them this weekend in their match against Mystic River, another club side. Former UMass captain Brent Goldstein now plays for the Mystic side.

Overconfidence hurt the Rats B side. They simply thought that the A side had all the good players. Riding on the play of hooker Glenn Callen, who won many important scrums, and backs pat Sabbs and Keith Lombardo, UMass controlled the ball when they had to and won 7-3. Greg Tawa scored his third try in as many weeks off of feeds from Symmon Buns and Tim Kickham. Martin Bluck missed his first conversion try of the year, but was successful on an earlier penalty kick to pace the B's.

The C side did not have a good day at all. The Rats were on them all eighty minutes of the game. Charles River never let UMass get any nearer than a missed penalty kick by Brian Alves and crushed the C's 34-0. The only thing the C's can be happy about is that most of their bruises will be healed by the time they play Charles River again.

UMass hosts the Mystic River club this Saturday at 12:00 p.m. on the lower Boyden playing fields.

Sports Notices

Intramural Ice Hockey was cancelled during the Spring semester of 1982 for lack of entries.

Hockey entry date was October 4, 1982; Intramural Program only has five (5) teams to date.

Any persons planning on having a team should get their entries into the office as soon as possible.

UMass Table Tennis club meeting Wednesday, October 6, at 7 p.m. Student Union games room (across from Hatch). For more info. call Steve 584-6217.

"2 for 1" Happy Hour
3-6 MON.-FRI.
Luncheon: Monday-Friday/11:30 am-2 pm
Dinner: Tuesday-Thursday/5 pm-8 pm
Friday & Saturday/5 pm-9 pm
For Reservations,
Please Call 549-6000, ext. 639
Lounge Hours:
Monday-Friday/11:30 am-1 am
Saturday & Sunday/5 pm-1 am
TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Danskin
Dance, Exercise and Fashion
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Mustang new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 91,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1880

76 Honda Civic Wagon new clutch shocks battery some body rust 665-7530 after 7 PM

Ford Granada 1975 excellent condition with many new parts AM/FM cassette & many features please call 256-8297

1975 Toyota Celica recent Rdls. AM/FM stereo, trunk rack, cloth int., 4 spd, 549-6515 $1600 or BO

1971 Hornet coupe good shape $500.00 527-4963

1970 Olds 442 recent timing G & Ch dual exh rebuilt carb rds wk $400 firm call 6-9243

Subaru Wagon 77 engine, 76 body. AM/FM. Good condition. 549-0865

73 Vege rusty but in good driving condition 80000 miles $500 negotiable call Sheri 549-1815

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

in apertment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereze 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

The best sound system is MF Coffeehouse sound 256-8400

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Telephone answering machine Brand new $100.00 Bob 253-2098

Refrigerator 5 cu. ft. good cond. 100.00 firm 549-1014

The Who Sun. 10/10 Byrne Arena N.J. floor tickets BO by 10/7 549-4032

Used Waterbed, Queen size. Frame, heater, mattress incl. $100. call 268-3586 after 4.

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Perttime position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel, and work experience. Contact Beach Comber Tours, Inc. PO Box 1236, Burlington, MA 01803 617-273-2423

People interested in making money at home, with your own Texas Instrument personal computer. Call Grace or Paul after 5 PM 665-2494

Job Availeble - security guard 10 PM - 2 AM 2 nights/week great job for student call 774-3092 9:30-3:30 M-F

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Free homecooked meals Kitchen helpers needed $$$ rebate from dining commons. Evenings 4-6:30 p.m. Located very close to campus. No experience necessary. Call immediately for info. Joe W. 545-2150/545-0047.

ICE HOCKEY

Goalie Pads needed to buy or rent. Call Bob 584-7035

INSTRUCTION

Tutoring Math Physics 256-0193

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Tennis Instructor Wanted for intermediate level player call 546-8634

LESBIAN/GAY

Office Menager Position open - 10 hour a week workstudy position - apply at the People's Gay Alliance office 413 SUB 5-0154 women & third world students encouraged to apply

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Help Lost Woman's Seiko watch between Hampshire and Hasbrouk 9-29 call 6-4247 or 6-5439

LOST! thin gold medallion inscribed on both sides: Mrs. 1982- NDA Tyngsboro- very sentimental any info. pleas call Peggy 6-8029.

Lost brown leather wallet call Maura 6-1413 very important

JAK-PACS

The original cotton, multi-colored jackets direct from Bali. $80. way below retail. Rob 253-5238 am or eves

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

A USMC Aviation Officer will be on hand Wed Oct 6 from 6 to 8 in CC 902 to provide info on aviation and ground officers programs

"I live for weekends party" at Hangar 1, Wed Oct 13th w/Fantini Bros and Rack-A-Disc

Blue-eyes It's been an awesome year je t'aime

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, 1982 for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0516

Charlies tonight 2 for 1 jumbo drinks 8 til 1

Rated X: Andy Warhol's Frankenstein Oct 6 SUB 7, 9, 11 $1.25

Happy Birthday Di Hope we pull out of this little rut soon, it's killing me. Want to watch you smile forever. Love always, Mike

Hockey Goalie Wanted for intramural team this season. Call John 549-6042

People interested in making money at home, with your own Texas Instrument personal computer. Call Grace or Paul after 5 PM 665-2494

Adventurous-Athletic-Warmhearted Women
I'm GARY I own a PLANE and love to FLY I seek a COMPANION for FLIGHTS & FUN never too late DAY-NIGHT call 546-7812

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

Memory, concentration, study skills taking silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WANTED TO RENT

Beautiful, inexpensive apartment in Amherst needs roommate right away. Bus stop just steps from door. Call collect 617-249-6556

WORD PROCESSING

Resumes & Papers: Prompt quality preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/WORD LINK253-9535

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RECORDMANIA

JOE JACKSON AND CHICK COREA are alive and well and on sale at Union Records. . .

RIDE WANTED

To Washington DC Oct 7 or 8 call 546-1178, Ron

I need a ride to Yale Fri Oct 8 call Bob 6-9421

To DC 10-8 will share $ call Beth 6-4687

Ride needed to UConn or UVM this weekend call Sherri after eleven 6-9601

Ride wanted to Pennsylvania Oct 9-11 share expenses Mike 6-5710

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Bucknell Univ leave Fri Oct 8 return Oct 11 will go to other places in Penn call Jodi 549-1352

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted to share room in spacious 3 bedroom Townehouse apt call Susan 549-3868

Room for rent M or F $165 monthly including utilities call Sharon 253-5218

Two people needed in Northampton Apt days call: 5-1336 (for Denis) evenings: 586-3834

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

GRADUATE STUDY IN PUBLIC POLICY

The LBJ School of Public Affairs at The University of Texas at Austin emphasizes public policy analysis, interdisciplinary research, and summer internships in government agencies in its graduate programs:

- Master's Degree in Public Affairs
- Joint Degrees Program with the UT Law School
- Joint Degrees Program with the UT College of Engineering
- Joint Degrees Program with the UT Graduate School of Business

Financial aid and fellowships are available based on merit or need.

Meet with a representative at:
Placement Service Office
University of Massachusetts, Amherst
October 7, 1982
9:00 am - 3:00 pm

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Dr.
Amherst, Mass
549-5713
Good food and drink
served in a comfortable, friendly atmosphere
1.) Delicious Luncheon Specials at $2.49
Mon - Fri 11:30 - 4:00
2.) Dinner Specials for two $8.95
served with salad and baked potato
every night 5:30-9:00
3.) Pizza Party!
A free small pizza with a pitcher of beer
every evening 9:00 - closing
4.) 50¢ off our cheese dipper
during any happy hour - just mention this ad
2:00 - 5:30 daily 9:00 - closing Sun - Thurs

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 14.

Tennis team continues its play

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Question: What University of Massachusetts intercollegiate athletic team has a .833 winning percentage, yet draws only a few fans to their home matches?

Answer: The streaking UMass men's tennis team.

It is an understatement to say the netmen are on a roll. Yesterday the UMass tennis tornado continued to wreck havoc on the New England college tennis scene with a 9-0 destruction of the University of New Hampshire on the Boyden Courts. It was the Minutemen's fifth consecutive victory, three of them being whitewashings. UNH only won two sets in the match and fell victim to UMass' capability to win the big points.

Neal Mackertich continued his unbeaten season at number one singles with a 7-5, 6-3 victory over T.J. Hyman. Mackertich fell behind 2-5 in the first set before rebounding to win 11 of the last 14 games in the match.

"He was very good. I was surprised," said Mackertich. "My serve was on but my ground strokes were off. He had a really good backhand. I underestimated him and got behind real fast."

Nick Julian and Stuart Goodman had few problems at number two and three, respectively. Julian easily handled Steve Noble 6-1, 6-2.

"I served well today. I settled down and concentrated on tennis," said Julian.

Goodman banged around Dave Simonyon to the tune of 6-2, 6-2.

"I started off well. I got confidence as the match progressed. We had an argument in the second set and I got mad. He kept hitting everything to my backhand. The key was holding my compusure after the argument," said Goodman.

Steve Jordan held off Peter Dickson at number four 6-4, 7-6 (7-1), Rich Lindgren pulled off one of his patented comebacks to escape with a 2-6, 7-6 (10-8), 6-4 victory over Dave Hall at number five, and Dave Singer got by Shaun Hassett 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 to complete the UMass sweep.

UMass continued its dominance in the doubles as UNH failed to win a single set in the three matches. Mike Douseau-Mackertich handled Hyman-Noble 6-4, 6-4, Jordan-Lindgren trounced Simonton-Dickson 6-2, 6-1 and Goodman-Dave Salem knocked around Hassett-Deliso 6-1, 6-2.

The netmen will be back in action today, putting its 5-1 slate on the line against Albany State at 2:30 p.m. on the Boyden Courts. This weekend the netmen travel to Princeton for the ECAC Championships.

OT setback for booters

By PETER SODERBERG
Collegian Correspondent

STORRS, CONN. — "Those who were there saw the best soccer in the nation to date," said Coach Kalenkeni Banda of the University of Massachusetts women's varsity soccer team after a tough double overtime loss to the University of Connecticut, 1-0 yesterday.

Going into the contest, the two teams were top ranked in New England. University of Connecticut, ranked second in the country and first in New England, has been the top competition UMass has faced to date. UMass stands at sixth in the nation and second in New England. The less drops UMass to 5-2 on the season.

The two regulation periods were all out assaults by each team. According to Banda, the women booters gave one hundred percent throughout the entire game. Captain Jackie Gaw was cited by Banda for a fine defense performance. Freshmen Debbie Harackiewicz and Tammie Easton each had good games. Tammie Easton in goal stopped some "point blanks" that should have been goals.

The lone goal was scored by Jane Duffy for UConn with three minutes left in the second ten minute overtime period. The goal came from the left wing, crossed over to the right and was blasted from twelve feet away.

"Soccer is a game of luck, it is a very important part of the game. Anything can happen with a round ball," said Banda.

UMass was not without its chances. A pass from Sharon Daggett left Natalie Prosser with an open net but Daggett could not capitolize. A corner kick that went through the hands of the UConn goalie found no one there to put it in for the score.

"We came to win, but it was a tough loss and we shouldn't feel bad about our performance," said Banda.

The Minutewomen played strong defense, put pressure on the UConn zone and played overall smart soccer. Banda sees lots of room for improvement. He is looking for improvement in the halfback area and wants to work on looking for the shot.

"It is early in the season, and the girls's have shown me they want to win, I am looking foreward to the rest of the season," said Banda.

The women booters will be on the road again for a game against Cortland State, Octover 9.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Larry Floyd gets up high in the long jump during yesterday's intramural track meet. Floyd won the two mile.

UM spikers fall in five

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's varsity volleyball team suffered a heartbreaking 15-11, 12-15, 15-10, 13-15, 15-3 defeat to Mt. Holyoke College last night at the NOPE gym. More frustrating was the fact that UMass was only six points away from winning it in the fourth game as they ran out to a commanding 9-0 lead.

Mt. Holyoke, led by the strong serving of freshman Elizabeth Schmider and freshman Heidi Landry, refused to quit as they put it all away in the final game, crushing the Minutewomen 15-3.

UMass was not without its stars however. Strong serving efforts by freshman Sally Maher and Karen Gottesman enabled the Minutewomen to come from behind to win game one of the match, 15-11. Sluggish play by the UM spikers in game two enabled Mt. Holyoke to battle back from a 7-4 deficit, to win the game, 15-12. The front line of the Mt. Holyoke team played especially tough as they blocked a number of UMass spikes.

In the third game, Mt. Holyoke jumped ahead early but the Minutewomen regrouped and knotted the score at 3-3. After an exchanged of serves, UM spikers Karen Gottesman and Patti Philbin combined to lead UMass to a 15-10 win.

Then came the pivotal fourth game.

The UMass women seemed well on their way to victory as they leaped out to a quick and seemingly invincible 9-0 lead. Everything was going well as UM forced Mt. Holyoke into making many errors. Suddenly all of their luck ran out. Slowly the Mt. Holyoke women came back. They played aggressive volleyball as they tied the score at 9-9 and then took the lead on a booming spike by Heidi Landry. After an exchange of points, the Minutewomen tied it once again on a Philbin spike. That was about it for UMass however, as Mt. Holyoke forced a fifth and deciding game by winning, 15-13.

The final game was all Mt. Holyoke as the UMass spikers simply fell apart. They just seemed to run out of gas as spike after spike got by them. Mt. Holyoke raced out to a 12-0 lead and they never looked back as they prevailed, 15-3.

Both coaches agreed the fourth game was the key to the match. Mt. Holyoke coach, Penny Curtis was jubilant.

"Once my girls get their momentum going they go," she said. She also said she used a lot of her players to keep her starters rested.

First loss for ruggers

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Correspondent

CONCORD — The UMass rugby club had their first losing afternoon this past Saturday as the A's and C's both lost to the Charles River Rats, while the B side triumphed 7-3.

The Rats used their experience and big, strapping forwards to pull ahead 8-0 in the first half. These were the first trys scored on the A side this year. The Rats' only noticeable weakness to that point was their kicking game which was poor. Only one of the extra points attempts was made on that day.

The A side didn't buckle under the constant swarm of green shirts and Dave Brown scored a try followed by a Sean Kinneen conversion that sliced the Rats lead to 8-6.

Continued on page 14

UM runners place well

By JOHN WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

This weekend, the University of Massachusetts mens' cross-country team traveled down to Philadelphia, PA. to take part in a five-mile race at the Atlantic Ten Championships.

Coach Ken O'Briens' squad returned with a strong fifth place finish among stiff competition such as first place winner Penn State which scored a total of 30 points, St. Josephs', who took second place with 57 points and third place Rutgers who had an 80.

UMass, with a total of 116 points, was led by Rick Deirons' third place finish in what O'Brien called, "Ricks' best performance ever."

"Deirons' time was even more outstanding considering the quality of other runners in the field," said O'Brien.

The race was won by Penn States' Jeff Adkins, in a time of 26:04. Kraige Schmidt of Rutgers finished second with a time of 26:15 and he was followed closely by Deiron at 26:19.

"Ricks' time was only nine seconds off of UMass' record for that particular course." added O'Brien.

Rounding off UMass' good showing were sophomore James MacPhee in 23rd place, junior Red LaFlamme in 25th place, sophomore John Keelan in 31st place, and Jack Marinilli, also a sophomore, finishing 38th.

When asked if he was pleased with his teams' overall performance, O'Brien replied, "Yes, because this was really the first time that many of my young runners have faced such a competitive field. So it was very good experience for them because they performed well."

"Since this is only the third race that we have run this year, they are still improving and getting stronger," said O'Brien.

So, O'Brien will be preparing his team for next weeks' Lehigh Invitational down in Penn. This race will feature such track powers as Villanova and Georgetown, so O'Brien expects a tough race.

"This race will give my runners a look at the same course that they will be running in the IC4As, which is a qualifying race for the NCAA championships," said O'Brien.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 23 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, October 7, 1982

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

Cindy Hunter and her horse take a flying leap during an advanced horse jumping class at Tillson Farm. (See related story and photo essay on page 15.)

Some student leaders surprised by thin death penalty disapproval

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

Student leaders at the University of Massachusetts were surprised by the results of the death penalty referendum on Monday's election ballot. The referendum, which will also appear on the statewide ballot November 2, was voted down by a slim margin Monday, surprising many who expected the question to be defeated far more strongly.

Student Government Association (SGA) officers were more pleased by the results of the other referendum question on the ballot. Over seventy percent of students voting opposed a proposal by UMass President David C. Knapp to charge a possible $20 fee to renovate the Curry-Hicks Cage.

Sharon Davies, speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate, was one of the student government officials surprised at the narrow defeat of the death penalty question.

"I was disappointed by the outcome of the vote," Davies said. "My own personal feeling is that people should recognize that the percentage of people who go to Death Row are overwhelmingly minorities."

SGA President Jim Murphy said he was not that surprised by the results.

"It's a fairly controversial issue," Murphy said. "I'm glad the question failed. I just hope that reflects into the general community."

"People just aren't educated enough about the issue," Murphy said. "People don't realize that the death penalty doesn't work as a deterrent."

Sheila Sullivan, chair of the Public Policy Committee of the SGA also found the vote unusual.

"I was surprised by the death penalty vote. I had expected students would come out more strongly against the death penalty."

The rejection of the referendum concerning the Cage renovation proposal met with strong approval by SGA officers, however.

Continued on page 7

Trustees vote favorably for tuition waivers

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

A measure which would allow all University of Massachusetts professors and other professional employees a tuition waiver for their spouse and dependent children was approved yesterday afternoon by the Board of Trustees.

The trustees vote, which now needs final approval by the Massachusetts Board of Regents, was wlecomed by both student and faculty leaders.

Bruce Laurie, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, said his union has been seeking such a ruling during collective barragaining sessions for the past two years, and is now hoping to favorably resolve the issue outside of contract negotiations.

"It's something that every other state school (in Massachusetts) has, and almost all private schools," said Jim Murphy, Student Government Association president and student representative to the board. "It's real important in terms of retaining staff and faculty."

Although the proposal was favorably recommended to the board by its Committee on Budget and Financial Affairs, much of the over three and a half hour meeting was spent in executive session, where debating continued. Following the closed session, however, the motion, amended to take effect retroactively to September, was passed unanimously.

Also approved by the board was the raising of the pre-enrollment deposit for entering freshmen and transfer students from $62 to $100. The deposit, paid by students after acceptance to the University, is credited to their first semester's bill after enrollment.

Included in the ruling was a provision for a $50 refund when student notification of withdrawl is made prior to June 1, and a waiver allowance for any student in case of "hardship."

Murphy praised what he considered the motivation for the refundable deposit's increase, saying "UMass has got to cease to be considered as someone's second choice. The University doesn't deserve that — it's a first rate university."

The vote also established a Pre-Enrollment Scholarship Trust Fund, into which all non-refunded deposits will be placed to be distributed by the Office of Financial Aid as scholarships.

Attending his first trustees meeting, Chancellor Joseph Duffey was awarded tenure as Professor of Sociology by the board.

"Dr. Duffey has had a productive and various scholarly career with particular interests in the sociology of religion and in higher education; he will bring important intellectual strengths to one of the distinguished departments on the campus," UMass President David C. Knapp said in his recommendation.

A look through clearing dust at the ERA drive

By MARILYN LENTZ
Collegian Correspondent

Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment [ERA] to the United States Constitution were unable to secure ratification of the amendment by last summer's June 30 deadline. With 38 states necessary for successful ratification — a two-thirds majority — only 35 had passed the ERA by the deadline date. In the aftermath of this setback, the following report, the first of a two part series, reviews events of the ratification drive's final year.

Karen Shelley, treasurer of the Hampshire County chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) said the National Countdown Campaign, attempted to get the ERA ratified in the year and a half prior to the deadline.

"This campaign operated on three levels," Shelley said. The first level was "the Message Brigad, an attempt to sign up people who would write a letter, send a telegram or place a phone call at a particular time to specific representatives. This way we would be able to show state legislators that it was a national issue since they would be receiving correspondence from across the country, and that people with national political aspirations should be responsible to the needs of 100 million women," she said.

Shelley said it was not successful in ratifying the ERA but was effective in reaching people.

Airing television advertisements in support of the ERA was another element of the campaign.

"These ads were created by women in the advertising industry and the national NOW headquarters paid for the production of, and the air time for, the ads run. I think they were very successful in terms of creating awareness," Shelley said.

The Countdown Campaign's third component was called the Missionary Project, which involved volunteers canvassing for at least two weeks in selected communities in the following unratified states: Florida, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Illinois.

NOW spent $1.3 million a month in the final four months of the Countdown campaign in a ratification attempt, Jennifer Jackman, an ERA campaign worker said.

Jackman, a government and women in American society major, said she viewed the amendment as "the last chance for women to obtain constitutional equality in this century."

While interning at the NOW Women's Legal Defense Fund in Washington, Jackman approached NOW president Ellie Smeal with the idea of organizing students to work for the ERA. That idea became the ERA Campus Campaign, Jackman said.

Organizing this campaign meant Jackman, a Pittsfield native, would travel around the Northeast with three other women setting up Campus Action Teams at colleges and universities.

UMass was one stop on the 25 college tour which began at Radeliffe College and ended at Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania, Jackman said. "The response was terrific; 25 campus action teams were set up with untold people involved" Jackman said. "Out of the 600 people interested in giving up two weeks to work in unratified states, about 200 actually did missionary work and 10 students took the whole semester off to canvas."

Just after a Thanksgiving speaking tour in Florida with Ellie Smeal Jackman said, "As Smeal spoke, I organized and plugged the people that she mobilized into action teams."

As a field organizer in the Gainesville area of northern Florida, Jackman said she and other NOW volunteers "would go into a community and talk about the ERA as an issue and people would talk about what action they could take regarding ERA ratification."

Also, NOW missionaries came from all over the country to canvas door-to-door in targeted areas, educating local people about the ERA and asking supporters to contact their local senator and legislator, Jackman said.

Although Democrats were generally supportive of the ERA, Jackman said Senator Kirekpatrick, the incumbent Gainesville democrat, was very sensitive to the business community, which was often resistant to the amendment.

"Pickets and vigils were organized and letters were written to Kirekpatrick informing him of his constituents' pro-ERA stance and he would still not listen to his con-

Continued on page 7

World and national news

DIGEST ON PAGE 4.

AP Laserphoto

The search for the presence of deadly cyanide in Tylenol continued yesterday at the Chicago City Health Department as residents of Chicago turned in Tylenol products almost a week after the discovery of cyanide was linked to the death of seven people in the metropolitan area.

Calif. "copycat" now sought

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Police in Oroville, Calif., said yesterday they were seeking a "copycat" who may have planted strychnine in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules after hearing of the Chicago poisonings. But Illinois' top prosecutor said he did not believe one case "inspired" the other.

In the Oroville incident, Greg Blagg, a 27-year-old butcher, went into convulsions last Thursday after taking capsules that contained strychnine. Blagg, who has recovered, told reporters Tuesday that he bought the Tylenol at a local drug store two weeks before taking the capsule — well in advance of reports of the Chicago-area deaths.

Police Sgt. Jack Lee in Oroville said the account of the purchase Blagg gave to authorities "has not been confirmed." Blagg was questioned for two hours Tuesday by FBI agents.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said strychnine was found in two other bottles obtained from the Longs Drug Store where Blagg said he purchased his.

"It's highly suspected at this point in time that it was a copycat crime," Lee said.

That assesment was disputed by Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, who is heading a task force of more than 100 investigators from federal, county and state agencies investigating the cyanide deaths of seven people.

Mourners gather at grave of President Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Wiping a tear from her eyes, the widow of President Anwar Sadat placed a wreath on his grave yesterday — the first anniversary of his assassination by Moslem fanatics.

Relatives and friends, including the widow of the shah of Iran, stood by Jihan Sadat beneath a brilliant desert sky as an honor guard placed the flowers on Sadat's white marble tomb, 300 yards from the site where he was gunned down.

Some of the women, all dressed in mourning black, wept during the brief, low-key ceremony. Farah Diba, widow of the Iranian monarch whom Sadat sheltered in his final months, stood gaunt-faced beneath a black lace shawl.

The shah's son and self-proclaimed heir, Reza, was among the mourners for Sadat, architect of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Mrs. Sadat, wearing dark glasses and a black dress buttoned to the neck, was also accompanied by her son Gamal and President Hosni Mubarak's wife Suzan, who rarely appears in public. They listened as a Moslem sheik read from the Koran, and then Mrs. Sadat shook hands with other mourners, who wept openly.

A Koran lay in a book-rest on top of Sadat's tomb, which was surrounded by wreaths of pink, red and purple carnations and roses. A gas flame burned in a cast iron vase atop a marble column beneath the tomb.

Lebanon's army rounds up refugees

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's army rounded up dozens of people at a palestinian refugee camp yesterday in the second day of a sweep it says is aimed at pacifying west Beirut.

But Palestinians say the army wants to terrorize them and drive them out of the country.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem, meanwhile, said they were told by U.S. envoy Morris Draper that Syria wants Israeli forces who invaded Lebanon four months ago to leave before Syria's army pulls out. But the officials called the Syrian message an "opening position" that could be negotiated.

Draper is trying to arrange a pullout of both Syrian and Israeli troops to avoid the possibility of another outbreak of fighting between the two countries. Israel still has the bulk of its invasion force in Lebanon and Syria has an estimated 30,000 troops in Lebanon. They entered the country to police a cease-fire that ended the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war.

"We must clean Beirut of all arms," said Lebanese Defense Ministry spokesman Maj. Atef Torbay after the latest sweep at the Bourj el-Barajneh camp.

Private Lebanese Christian militias operate in east Beirut, but as far as is known the army has taken little action against them beyond random checks for identity papers.

Torbay said he did not know how many people in west Beirut had been arrested or where they were being taken. Police sources said 250 had been picked up but one diplomat put the number at 44.

Asked about illegal aliens, many of whom have worked in Beirut for years, Torbay said: "They will be deported."

Tuesday, at least 450 people were arrested in the central shopping district of west Beirut. Last week, an estimated 2,000 were picked up, mostly at Bourj el-Barajneh, and about 600 are still in custody.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Diane Kadzis
Copy Editor — Ken Lundberg
Layout Technician — Brad Eden
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Composition — Jamie Katz, Gail Tanzer
Frances Merrimam, Adrianne Dufor, Joy McCarthy, Laurie Frank, Marianne Walsh, Sheryl Silver, Ellen Pulawski, Lynn Eisenberg, Kathie Wells, Becky Robins, Lisa Jalbert, Will Hopkins

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

1982 UMASS FOOTBALL

THIS SATURDAY, Oct. 9th

Homecoming

UMass

vs.

Delaware Blue Hens

The Blue Hens deserve their reputation as one of the finest football teams in the East. Every time the Minutemen go head to head with the Blue Hens, it's a show that is long remember. An exciting and open brand of football — look for a real thriller.

UMass Undergraduate Students with valid ID No Charge

KICK-OFF 1:30 P.M.

ALUMNI STADIUM, AMHERST

Reserved seats $6

TICKET OFFICE BOYDEN BLDG., UMASS.

545-0810

UMASS '82 HOME GAMES REMAINING

Oct. 30, 1:30 - Connecticut
Nov. 6, 1:00 - Boston College
Nov. 13, 1:00 - New Hampshire
Nov. 20, 1:00 - A.I.C.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

The only place to be on Thursday night in Amherst

2 for 1 Bar Drinks
3-7 oz Rolling Rocks
$1.25

Moosehead Nite
12 oz bottles .95¢

The moose is loose at Mike's

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate, Sharon Davies (left) reviews the procedures for the newly-elected senators at last night's senate meeting as Lindsey Coyle, assistant to the speaker (right), takes a break from notetaking in the Campus Center.

RSU receives Senate funding for trip

By ANNE CHAPMAN
Collegian Correspondent

After moving to approve Monday's senate election results, the Undergraduate Student Senate granted in its first official vote, $712,000 to the Radical Student Union for the sending of 56 University of Massachusetts students to the Progressive Student Network (PSN) conference in Detroit.

The conference, scheduled for October 15-17, is designed to unite student organizations on a national level to discuss relevant social issues.

"The Progressive Student Network is trying to coordinate different student groups into a national network in order to promote the political clout of students which has diminished since the sixties," said Mimi Turchinetz, student senator.

The PSN is attempting to focus on a few significant issues such as rascism, sexism and the nuclear disarmament issue, Turchinetz said. "People want this year to be a year for expressing a real committment to these social issues. We are ultimately trying to improve our skills for addressing these issues on the UMass campus," Turchinetz said.

The conference will consist of movies, speakers, panels and workshops. Topics for panel discussion include struggle for reproductive rights, alternative for Reagonomics and struggle for world peace.

Strategy workshops will be set up to discuss how organizations can cope with the problems that will be emphasized in the panel discussions. These problems include such issues as gay rights, sexual harrassment, and militarism. The workshops are designed to improve the communication skills of people who are members of concerned organizations, Turchinetz said.

"The conferences in the past have been a real success. You can't get the true feeling from reports alone. You have to go to experience something like this to benefit from it," SGA Senator Chris Sullivan said.

Group formed to serve multicultural community

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

A new student group, aimed at serving the bilingual and multicultural community of the University of Massachusetts was formed on September 29.

The new Bilingual/Multicultural Student Organization (BMSO) was formed because of an increasing need to teach bilingual students more about the culture of this country and this community, Secretary for the group, Wendelee Graves said.

"Even though we will be primarily serving the bilingual community, we hope to be able to serve the entire UMass community by infroducing students to different cultures," she said.

"The one thing that classrooms cannot teach students is the practical day to day things needed to survive in a new culture. Things like going to the post office and knowing which stamps to buy, and other aspects of this culture which may be new to someone else, are what we hope to teach the student," she said.

BMSO currently has only 10 to 20 members but Graves said she hopes when more students become aware of the organization, the membership should increase.

Anthony Kung, president of BMSO and a graduate student in Education said because the group is only a few days old, a set agenda has not yet been drawn up.

"We will be sending out questionnaires to students in an effort to find out in which direction the group should head," he said.

"We have applied to the Graduate Student Senate for recognition, but have not received word yet on its acceptance," he said.

If granted Recognized Student Organization status, Graves said she expects to receive funding for the group from the Graduate Student Senate.

Also at the introductory meeting of the BMSO, Phyllis Rodin was elected vice-president, Ali Munif Seden, treasurer and Tom Powers, Liason officer. All of theses people are graduate students, Graves said.

UM false alarms "desensitize" students, says officer

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

The large number of false fire alarms is one of the greatest problems with fire prevention at the University of Massachusetts.

"False fire alarms de-sensitize residents. After hearing the first fire alarm, they just don't go out anymore," said Keith Hoyle, the Fire Prevention Officer from the department of Environmental Health and Safety. "As luck would have it, the next fire will be the real one."

After a false fire alarm, "students figure it is a false alarm and say to hell with it, and they just go back to sleep," he said.

Hoyle used a 1978 fire in the John Quincy Adams dormitory as an example. There had been a false fire alarm at 1:00 a.m. and a real fire alarm at 4:00 a.m. People had to be carried out of the dorms, he said.

In the past week, there have been fires in the basement of Mary Lyons dormitory in Northeast and on the third floor of Crampton dormitory in Southwest. There was also a false alarm in the Campus Center on Sunday.

"People should treat every single alarm as a real fire," said Ed Mientka, a fire inspector at UMass. "The bottom line to fire prevention is common sense. There are countless ways fires can start and most of them are from something dumb people have done."

There were 50 fires on campus during the fiscal year of 1982, said Hoyle. Students do not realize that fire is real and it happens.

Mientka said fire inspections and fire drills will be conducted by the Environmental Health and Safety department this week to commemorate National Fire Prevention Week. Yesterday a table was set up by the department in the Campus Center Concourse as part of the attempt to inform student of fire prevention. Four films were shown continuously attracting remarkable interest, said Mientka.

"It's been this crowded all day. We didn't expect this kind of crowd. But students get a lot of information out of the films," he said. "I think we'll work on expanding it in the years to come." The table was set up only for one day in the concourse.

"It was something new. We weren't sure as far as the interest," she said.

Cable television viewing in Campus Center will change with new purchase

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

The Union Video Center (UVC) plans to revamp the Cable Television System in the Campus Center.

Currently the UVC displays two cable television sets in front of the Hatch and in the main lobby of the Student Union featuring concerts and special events for pedestrians passing through.

The change was brought about because newly purchased cable casting equipment funded by the Governor's Program Council and supervised by the Campus Center Media Services.

"Last year the cable system was pretty much neglected but this year, with the new equipment properly installed, the system will be greatly improved both technically and programmatically," said Jim Nelson for UVC.

The new equipment includes a video distribution amplifier to boost the video signal, two monitors, a rack mount and a passive switcher which allows an operator to cut from one channel to the other by pressing buttons.

"The technical aspects of the cable casting will be a lot smoother and visually more professional. This in turn will mean better overall programming that will be both entertaining and informative," Nelson said.

UVC plans to raise the quality of the cable programming by working closely with Northampton Cable and The Center for Community Access Television, especially in the area of information about events on campus.

"We really want to focus on public service announcements that will represent the entire University community. This year we hope to include Spanish and Third World programming, deal much more with Black History Month and Woman's Week and also provide announcements and information concerning all the RSO groups, co-ops and other student organizations on campus," Nelson said.

As well as providing public service announcements, UVC is interested in making the cable system as a viable news source. Both UVC and the Collegian are exploring the idea of producing live newscasts over the cable network from the Campus Center everyday at 12:30 p.m. UVC would work in conjunction with members of the Collegian who would supply the news copy.

The Campus Center Media Services and UVC hope the changes in the cable system will be an asset to the entire Campus Center Complex. "Something people will come to everyday and depend on for reliable news and information on the same level as newspapers and television," Nelson said.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Dennis Martin, manager of Union Video Center (UVC), busies himself in the Student Union office by editing video programs.

Draft evasion charge makes Boston history

BOSTON — A 22-year-old Boston man has been indicted for failing to register for the military draft, U.S. Attorney William Weld said yesterday in announcing the first Bay State prosecution for evading the sign-up.

A federal grand jury indicted Edward J. Hasbrouck on a single count of failing to register with the Selective Service System, Weld said. If convicted, Hasbrouck faces a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Hasbrouck could not be reached for comment.

According to Weld, Hasbrouck told authorities that he grew up in Wellesley and has been living in the Allston section of Boston.

The Massachusetts man is one of about a dozen people around the country recently indicted on draft registration evasion charges, Weld said. Three of the defendants have been convicted, he said.

The prosecutor said he hoped that the case would serve as a deterrent to prevent other young men from avoiding draft registration. Such a deterrent is "a legitimate purpose of prosecution," he said.

"I would say to the extent that the prosecutions serve the goal of encouraging or stimulating other people to register, that's achieving a legitimate purpose of prosecution," he said. "You could call that a deterrent effect."

Candidate Sears says "goodbye" to Dukakis

BOSTON — Massachusetts voters are ready to say "Goodbye, Mike Dukakis," Republican John W. Sears said last night in a speech that kicked off his formal campaign for governor.

Sears said Dukakis' record as the state's Democratic governor from 1974-78 showed that he cannot fulfill the public's desire to hold the line on taxes and get tough on crime.

"Did Mike Dukakis give us relief from ever-increasing rates of crime? Did Mike Dukakis give us relief from more and more government regulation? Did Mike Dukakis give us relief from higher and higher taxes?" Sears asked in his first major speech since winning the Republican nomination.

Digest

By the Associated Press

AP Laserphoto

Wearing a Ronald Reagan mask, a steelworker, along with hundreds of others, paraded through downtown McKeesport, PA. yesterday in protest of Reagan's economic policies.

"Isn't it time for Massachusetts to get relief from Mike Dukakis•" Sears asked at a rally in front of the historic Old North Church. "The people of Massachusetts are fed up. They are ready to say goodbye Mike Dukakis."

The rally, which marked the start of daily campaigning by Sears, dramatized a major problem in his drive to the Statehouse: a lack of Republican voters in this overwhelmingly Democratic state.

New primary pursued by petitioning teacher

WASHINGTON — Lawyers filed a petition yesterday in the Supreme Court seeking a new Democratic primary for a Sterling, Mass., teacher who w s not permitted to challenge Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Attorney Laurence A. Elgin said the unusual legal action was taken because the U.S. District Court in Boston refused to declare unconstitutional the Massachusetts Democratic Party's 15 percent rule and to place the teacher's name on the Sept. 14 primary ballot.

"If they get away with this in Massachusetts, there's nothing to stop party bosses from deciding who will be on the ballot in every state," Elgin said.

The persistent would-be candidate is Alwin E. Hopfmann, who disagrees with Kennedy on various issues and wants to run against him for senator. He acknowledges that winning would be a "long shot."

But Hopfmann says competing against Kennedy in a Democratic primary would at least dilute Kennedy's chances of becoming president, a goal he says is shared by many people, including some who disagree with Kennedy but are willing to see him continue as senator.

McNamara drops by — pushing O'Neill debate

CAMBRIDGE — Republican Frank L. McNamara Jr. went to the home of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. yesterday and continued his battle to force O'Neill to debate him in their congressional contest.

McNamara, accompanied by television cameras, dropped off a letter outlining his debate challenge at the house. O'Neill was working on Capitol Hill in Washington.

"In the end, before the campaign is through, I have confidence that the voters will prevail and that you will mount the stage with me and debate the important issues facing our country," McNamara wrote to O'Neill, a Democrat who has represented the 8th congressional district for the past 30 years.

McNamara, a 34-year-old attorney making his first run for political office, also borrowed an idea from Republican Senate candidate Ray Shamie. He offered to give the Charlestown Boys Club a gift if O'Neill agreed to a one-on-one debate before a prime-time campaign audience.

Food for Thought for HOMECOMING...

Best ...Full dinners
Best ...Sandwiches
Best ...Happy Hour

3 Good Reasons to Celebrate with us!

RIB-IT RIB-IT RIB-IT

Carbur's by popular demand expanded an already extensive menu selection in 1979 to include full dinners. The Rib-It Room on the lower level will impress you with it's intimacy and rustic atmosphere. The menu goes from Prime Rib, a house specialty, to Frog Legs southern style or Provencale. They also offer Steaks, Seafood and Chicken entrees.

These are complete meals that include a choice of salads and vegetable or baked potato or rice. Hot bread is also served and an appetizer of Boursin cheese with fresh vegies to dip.

All beef is aged and cut on the premises and cooked slowly to perfection.

Reservations suggested

CARBUR'S

at the Elmwood Shops
Route 9, Hadley

586-1978
584-4310

$2.95 $2.95
HOT-L WARREN
South Deerfield Center 665-8757
ALL THE BEER YOU CAN DRINK
(your choice ice cold domestic drafts with this ad and college ID)
BAR DRINKS $1.00 ALWAYS
• Shuffleboard free • • Pool Table • • Video Games •
Home of the Best Oldies Juke Box in the Valley

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!
POSTERS Largest Selection Ever.
Bamboo BLINDS From $5.50!
BEDSPREADS cover walls, furniture, windows from $7.95
Rugs & Mats colorful, durable
Paper Lampshades
CARDS over 1400 designs
Greatly Expanded SKIRTS & BLOUSES lots of comfortable cotton
Brass and Sterling Jewelry earrings, rings, etc.
Clothing Sale!
T-Shirts India Print - 4.50 Solid Color - 3.50 to 5.50
Tank Tops - 3.95 to 5.95
20 - 50% OFF selected Blouses, Skirts
Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Women have power in'80s change, says N.Y. lawyer

By AMY JENNESS
Collegian Staff

Florynce Kennedy, 66, sporting black leather pants and a cowboy hat told a group of about 150 people last night at Amherst College women have three powers which they can contribute to a change in the 1980's.

"We have body power. We march. We walk. We have babies. We have dollar power. You all know how that works. We have vote power. Although most of you don't use it. I feel this can be the beginning of a real '80's push," Kennedy said.

Florynce Kennedy, a New York based lawyer, is coordinator of the Coalition Against Racism and Sexism, a co-founder of Black Women United For Political Action, one of the people who helped establish the National Organization for Women (NOW) and author of several books.

The title of the lecture Kennedy was supposed to give was, Women Against Women: A Horizontal Hostility. But she covered many other issues about sexism and racism as well.

On the subject of horizontal hostility within the feminist movement Kennedy told her audience: "You don't have to worry about horizontal hostility. Look for a common enemy. Lord knows there are enough of them out there. The major problem in this society is the disease of Pentagonorrhia and if you can't find someone to agree with that find someone who does."

Kennedy said she believes conservatives like Phyllis Schafly and Jerry Falwell and Ronald Reagan do more for raising the country's awareness than to hurt what people like her have been working for.

"When I went to law school there were 2,200 men and eight women. Now 30 percent of law students are women. There are women in Congress. You have abortion rights, you have to pay for them thanks hasn't paid off," said Kennedy. to Senator Helmes. There are more women in work; they are underpaid but they are there."

"Obviously in any struggle you make mistakes anytime you move. We don't vote enough, we don't use our money power enough, we don't boycott enough," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said she believes conservatives like Phyllis Schafly and Jerry Falwell and Ronald Reagon do more for raising the country's awareness than to hurt what people like her have been working for.

"I did five and a half hours on cable T.V. the day the ERA went down the drain. We drank to Phyllis Schafly. You know she did more to make women aware than any other person," Kennedy said.

"Publicize. If it's a rape don't take it. If you are a lesbian say it, if you want. If you don't, don't say it. All I'm telling you is move in any direction that you want. If they tell you you're not ready, honey, you tell them "here we come!" said Kennedy.

Collegian photo by Jay Obe

Out in the shade with his four month old South American boa constrictor named Jake the snake, UMass senior Bod DaPramo doesn't worry about breaking leash laws as he walks his unusual pet on North Pleasant St.

Lifesize concert poster stolen at FAC

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

The six by three foot Joe Jackson poster set up outside the Fine Arts Center at the University of Massachusetts was found missing early yesterday morning.

"Naturally we're kind of upset. It's our money. Actually, it's the students' money," said Fern Spierer, publicity coordinator for the Union Productions Council (UPC), who is producing Jackson's upcoming concert at the Fine Arts Center.

"We'd like to get that back and have the person apprehended. We are willing to offer a reward for information leading to return of the poster and prosecution of the theif," Spierer said.

The poster was painted on pressed board by artist Erik Ela, and was light blue with the graphic from Jackson's new "Night and Day" album done in black and white. Concert information was printed at the bottom, Spierer said.

James McCarthy, director of Production Services at the Fine Arts Center, said the theft is a disservice to students, as the posters are there to inform the community about upcoming shows. He said he was surprised a poster would be stolen from a student-produced show.

"It's students stealing from students," McCarthy said.

"We discovered it missing on Tuesday morning. It would have taken at least a six foot ladder. When we put them up, we used a 12 foot ladder. I suppose you could stand on a van," McCarthy said.

McCarthy said thefts of the display posters occur rarely. Only two in the past seven years have been actually taken, despite futile attempts to remove them.

"Some of our signs do have padlocks now," he said.

"Didn't anyone see anything?" Spierer asked, adding that people removing a poster that size from the side of the Fine Arts Center would be "a little noticeable."

"Who's to say if we do it again (pay for a promotion poster) it won't happen again?" she asked. "We got burnt."

Long Range Plan gets grad senate approval

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

The Graduate Student Senate at the University of Massachusetts voted Tuesday night to recommend approval of the Long Range Plan for academic affairs drafted by Provost Loren Baritz.

The senate noted, however, that the plan is too vague and needs more concrete descriptions of how its principles will be applied.

"The major problem with the plan is that it's not specific enough. It speaks in broad generalities," president of the senate Jack Delmond said. "This plan comes out to be a mission statement for the University rather than a detailed, precise long range plan."

The senate rejected the plan first submitted by former UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler, saying the proposal for a combined Ph.D. in foreign language and Comparative Literature is "unworkable," and that "the creation of a Biology department may be appropriate, however, it should be evaluated within the context of the current states of the disciplines."

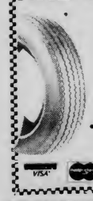
The senate rejected the proposed creation of Centers of Excellence, the elimination of the Comparative Literature Department and expressed its view that the committee formed to investigate the Communications Studies Department "lacked expertise," and therefore was not "justified" in recommending that department's termination.

Greg Graham, executive officer of the senate, announced a lobbying trip planned by Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) to Washington D.C., originally slated for Oct. 3, has been changed to Nov. 9 due to a schedule change in the congressional calendar.

DO YOU WANT TO exel AT CROSS COUNTRY SKING THIS YEAR?

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET INTO SHAPE WITH EXEL ROLLER SKIS. THE NEXT BEST THING TO SNOW!
Available at: Peloton Sports
One East Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass. 01002 (413) 549-6904
15 State St. Northampton, Mass. 01060 (413) 584-1016

NOW OPEN
NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTE



Steel Belted Radial $35.00 size 155-13 fet $1.59
Full Service Tire Store
• computer wheel balancing
• front end alignment • brakes & shocks
78 Old Sunderland Rd., N. Amherst
549-4704
across from Watrobes Store

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

VALUABLE COUPONS from McManus
STOP & SHOP CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-4888
GOOD THRU OCT. 15, 1982

BREAKFAST SPECIAL
2 EGGS, 2 PANCAKES, 2 STRIPS BACON, 2 LINKS SAUSAGE
Reg. $2.25 With This Coupon
2 For $2.95
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982
SERVED ALL DAY ANYTIME

DELI-MELT
Oversized 1/3 LB. Chopped Beef With Sauteed Onions, Melted Zesty Cheddar Cheese On Grilled Pumpernickel Served With French Fries.
Reg. $2.85 With this coupon
2 For $4.25
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982
SERVED 11 A.M.-10 P.M.

FISH DINNER
Our Famous Batter-Dipped Fillets English Style — Served with French Fries, or Baked Potato, Cole Slaw, Roll & Butter.
Reg. $3.25 With This Coupon
2 For $4.95
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982
SERVED 11 A.M.-10 P.M.

HOURS OPEN 24 HOURS Fri. & Sat. 7 a.m.-3 p.m.
James H. McManus eating place
Senior Citizens Discounts 2-5 p.m. 20% All other times 10% Does not apply to specials

YOUR BSN IS WORTH AN OFFICER'S COMMISSION IN THE ARMY.

Your BSN means you're a professional. In the Army, it also means you're an officer. You start as a full-fledged member of our medical team. Write: Army Nurse Opportunities, P.O. Box 7713, Burbank, CA 91510.

ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

DON'T MISS THURS, OCT 7
"ARTHUR"
STARRING Dudley Moore
Liza Minnelli, John Gielgud
Shows 5, 7, 9 & 11 AT SUB

Please Recycle this Collegian

The PLEASURE DOME
TONITE • BLUEWALL • Be There!

BE PART OF THE TRADITION

UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union 545-3437

MEMBERSHIP
$10 (before Nov. 15)
$15 (after Nov. 15)

Includes:
free transportation,
free refreshments,
discounts,
lift tickets
and a variety of special events

11th Annual Ski Snatch
Nov. 18-21
$500,000 worth of top name winter clothing & ski equipment at incredible savings

11th Annual Bush Bash
Jan 23-28
Sugarbush Ski & Party Week
6 days lift tickets, lodging, meals,
Hot Tubs/Sauna Party,
Free Beer and Wine Parties,
Turtle Races,
Beer & Ski races
NASTAR Races,
Long Underwear Party
etc, etc, etc

LAGNAF 83
IT'S NOT JUST A CLUB,
IT'S A UMASS TRADITION
BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
430 Student Union 545-3437

ADD TEN YEARS TO YOUR THINKING.

The environment at MITRE is years ahead of what others consider the state-of-the-art.

As General Systems Engineer for C³I — Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence — for the U.S. Air Force's Electronic Systems Division, it is our challenge to look beyond tomorrow to the world of 5 or 10 years from now. To analyze and engineer one-of-a-kind systems that will be more than current well into the 1990s.

The importance of our work is why we provide an environment you can do your best in. You'll work with some of the most accomplished experts in their fields. You will be challenged by long- and short-term projects in computer systems, systems software, systems architecture, radar systems, and satellite and terrestrial transmission. Engineers you'll be working with can advance your career a decade in technologies including fiber-optics, computer security, sensor technology and voice recognition.

Your excellence is nurtured in every way possible at MITRE. Facilities, compensation and benefits to attract and keep the finest people. Full tuition advancement plus an ongoing in-house lecture series from the unique MITRE Institute to promote your continued education. Plus exceptional project mobility and dual career pathing to get you where you want to be, doing what you do best.

If you would like 10 more years' wisdom — without the wrinkles — come to MITRE. We've got the environment for it.

University of Massachusetts Interviews
Thursday, October 14, 1982

MITRE will be conducting campus interviews Thursday, October 14, 1982. Contact your Placement Office to arrange an interview if you are a BS, MS or Ph.D. candidate in:

Electrical Engineering
Computer Engineering
Computer Science
Mathematics
Physics

Contact your placement office to see if MITRE will be visiting your campus, or send your resume to: Phillip Hicks at The MITRE Corporation, Middlesex Turnpike, Bedford, MA 01730.

U.S. Citizenship required. MITRE is an equal opportunity employer actively seeking applications under its affirmative action program.

THE ENVIRONMENT TO DO WHAT YOU DO BEST.
MITRE

TONIGHT
ROCK
with Al Stoner
and
Do Mugshot Night
Shot of Schnapps
Mug of Beer $1.00
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Timberland

6" and 8" waterproof
This waterproof boot is insulated for real warmth below zero.

Matthews SHOES
The Village Common, Amherst

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
COMING SOON TO THE FINE ARTS CENTER
Elly Ameling
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m.
Vienna Choir Boys
Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m.
First American Tour
THE ZAGREB GRAND BALLET
Monday, October 18 8:00 PM
Scottish National Orchestra
Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.
All shows on sale now
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F 545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Newslines . . .

Sorority sisters at UMass pledging money from parade

Sorority women voted to give money raised during the upcoming Homecoming parade this year to the EveryWoman's Center at the University of Massachusetts.

In the past, money collected by sorority pledges along the parade route was given to national health organizations. This year the sisters have decided to distribute funds locally. The pledges will be carrying collection cans throughout the parade.

On campus women centers meet in joint session today

The Southwest Woman's Center will host a meeting of all residential area woman centers from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. today. The center is located between Mackimmie and Crampton Dormitories in the Southwest Residential area.

Nuke freeze rally highlights will frost on airways tonight

WMUA (91.1 F.M.) will air highlights of the nuclear freeze rally at 6 tonight. Senator Edward Kennedy's speech will highlight the program. The broadcast is presented as a special feature of "Focus," the weekly public affairs series.

Another segment of the show will feature a live discussion on the United States involvement in Central America.

★ ERA

Continued from page 1

stituents" Jackman said. "There was a Harris Poll done in the district one month prior to the ERA vote in the legislature and it indicated that 54 percent of those polled supported the ERA, but Kirekpatrick dismissed the poll."

On June 21, 1982 the vote was held in the Florida House of Representatives with the amendment winning by one vote. One hour later the vote was held in the Senate. The count was 21 to 16 against ratification with two senators not voting. Kirekpatrick did not vote due to the death of his father the night before, said Jackman.

Jackman said in the aftermath of the Florida vote "women were angered with legislators who wouldn't listen to them and realized that they should be in those seats."

★ referendum

Continued from page 1

Mitch Gaslin, chair of the SGA Committee on Rents and Fees said, "I think it clearly shows that students are not in favor of paying $20 a year each to renovate the cage."

"I think the vote itself will not be enough to sway the Trustees, but the Rents and Fees Committee fully intends to follow up on this and increase student pressure on the trustees regarding this proposal," Gaslin said.

SGA President Jim Murphy felt some voters may have been confused by the wording and some might have thought it asked whether students favored the cage renovation, rather than the fee proposal.

A very special purchase!

Women's BRAZILIAN LEATHER ASSORTMENT
Including many famous brands
14.99 to 26.99
Compare at $30 to $48

A direct buyout from leading Brazilian manufacturers brings a rich assortment of leather fashions to the season. Choose pumps, clogs and sandals on Fall's heels and wedges. Women's sizes. Some styles may be unavailable in all sizes.

REGAL®
Men's LEATHER SPORT BOOTS
26.99
Compare at $41.95
Quality fit for a king! Rugged leather sport boots from famous Regal. Cushioned insoles and collars, long-wearing soles. Men's sizes.

Tagway Shoes
Famous brand footwear for Less
Hampshire Mall
Holyoke Mall at Ingleside

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. OCT. 7
HAPPY HOUR 3-6 PM
with Jonathan Harrison
FREE The Valley's Own
PLEASURE DOTS!

FRI. OCT. 8
HAPPY HOUR/3-6 PM
with Cliff Meyers
D.J. DANCE PARTY
with Fern Spierer
FREE/Album Giveaways

SAT. OCT. 9
HOMECOMING
HAPPY HOUR
4-7 PM
with Cliff Meyers

MON. OCT. 11
NO CLASSES
BLUEWALL CLOSED

Sears

SAVE $100
10-watt mini component stereo system
199.95
Regular $299.99
• Only 10¼-in. high
• AM/FM receiver has 5-band graphic equalizer, digital frequency display, high filter
• Metal cassette deck has Dolby® system
• Sale ends 10/16/82
This advertised item is readily available for sale as advertised.

1/3 OFF
Buy 2 get 1 FREE
Reg. Sep. Price $14.97
9.98 ea.
Memorex 90-min blank tape

FREE: Your choice of any Maxell, TDK, or Memorex 90 minute blank tape when you buy mini-stereo #2940
Name _____ School _____
Student _____ Faculty _____ Other _____
Coupon must be presented for FREE item
Coupon expires 10/16/82

You can count on Sears
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back
ALBANY, NY · FAIRMOUNT FAIR, NY · FAYETTEVILLE, NY · MIDDLETOWN, NY · N. SYRACUSE, NY · POUGHKEEPSIE, NY · WATERTOWN, NY · AUBURN, NY · EASTFIELD MALL, MA · HOLYOKE, MA · NEW LONDON, CT · BRIDGEPORT, CT · HAMDEN, CT · MIDDLETOWN, CT · NEW LONDON, CT · ORANGE, CT · W. HARTFORD, CT · BURLINGTON, VT

IS THIS YOUR LUCKY DAY?

CALL JEANE DIXON'S HOROSCOPES-BY-PHONE.

You never know what might happen today. But you can always ask the stars. Jeane Dixon's latest one-minute forecast is just a phone call away – 24 hours a day. It's always fun to call, and if you check the rate chart, you'll find out when you can call for practically nothing. And who knows. That one call might just make your day.

Aries (March 22-April 20) . . . 1-212-976-5050
Taurus (April 21-May 20) . . . 1-212-976-5151
Gemini (May 22-June 21) . . . 1-212-976-5252
Cancer (June 22-July 23) . . . 1-212-976-5353
Leo (July 24-Aug. 23) . . . 1-212-976-5454
Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) . . . 1-212-976-5656
Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) . . . 1-212-976-5757
Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) . . . 1-212-976-5858
Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) 1-212-976-5959
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) . . 1-212-976-6060
Aquarius (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) . . 1-212-976-6161
Pisces (Feb. 20-March 21) . . . 1-212-976-6262

	1st Min.	Extra Min.
Monday-Friday 8 am-5 pm	58¢	39¢	These rates apply on calls you dial yourself, no operator involved, from the Amherst-Northampton area. Tax not included.
Sunday-Friday 5 pm-11 pm	34¢	24¢
Sunday-Friday 11 pm-8 am	23¢	16¢
All Day Saturday	23¢	16¢
Sunday 8 am-5 p.m.	23¢	16¢

A service mark of Horoscopes By Phone, Inc.

New England Telephone

EDITORIAL/OPINION

'HE'S EVEN TRIED PRAYER TO END THE NFL STRIKE. THANK YOU VERY MUCH FOR JAMMING HIS TRANSMISSIONS.'

Will chances be taken or lost forever?

Anyone who has attended UMass for more than a year, can consider themselves expert in one field: relationships. In retrospect, we can all look back at our experiences with mixed emotions ranging from anger to nausea. The things that vary from one person to the next, however, are the degree of anger and nausea that are felt. That is very easy to explain, though, for these feelings are directly proportional to the number of years that you have spent at this university.

It would seem that freshmen fall in love very often and very quickly. That is not to say that what they feel isn't love (indeed it may be) but perhaps it's just the sudden liberation into freedom that's condusive to romance. These romances usually peter out, and become memories and topics of late night bull-sessions and are often referred to as the freshman mistake. These romances are important, however, for they build a strong foundation for comparison during later relationships, and if not at least they are good for an embarassed laugh.

Sophomores and juniors are often separated into two groups. Those that have steady relationships and those that do not (for different reasons ranging from incompatability to carrying various social diseases). These unlucky souls find themselves hopping from one bed...rather, one meaningless experience to the next; an often sad and depressing situation. It usually follows, oddly enough, that the people who have misfortune at one relationship always continue in a bad streak in relationships that follow, almost as if branded 'loser' from the start. The other group seem to be rather set in their lifestyles. Hopefully, one of the partners in the romance has a single, otherwise a roommate will find him or herself in quite a few uncomfortable situations; either that or sleeping in a different floor member's room every night of the weekend. Neither situation is ideal, and they both have their own advantages, it is just a matter of getting used to.

Seniors as well fall into two categories. There are those who want to settle down, and those who want to have fun during their last year at UMass. Those who realize that they are getting on in years often find themselves getting too serious too fast, and maybe they should take things as they come. Perhaps going to Joey D's or the Pub in search of a life-long mate isn't really a very good idea. Those who want to have fun at UMass, will undoubtedly have no problem having it. That is under one condition: they can have all this fun without getting involved. I wish them a lot of luck, but if they can do this they certainly have learned something during their stay here.

The most important thing that you can learn anywhere is how to relate to other people. If you can let others know that you care about them, you have mastered an art that not many people have acquired. When opportunities arise in life, it is only the fool who lets them slip by the way-side. Regardless of the risks involved, they must be taken. Whoever it was that said 'Nothing ventured, nothing gained' certainly hit on some very poignant social issues. It all comes down to taking risks, putting yourself on the line, and being vulnerable: it's worth the risk.

When it comes time to leave UMass (for whatever reason) you'll always look back to those times, no matter how few or limited they were, with the fondest of memories. And maybe, just maybe, if the times together were so great, you'll see the person again. After all...how often do you meet someone that you really like?

Charisse Feinerman

Charisse Feinerman is a Collegian staff member

A short toast to chemical punch

It's been said that drinking eight glasses of water a day is good for your health. It's not a very good idea if you live in Amherst – it could even make you sick.

While the problem of contaminated water has not yet reached UMass, there have been several reports issued of late that have been unsettling, to say the least.

The water problem has been around for awhile. Anyone who was here for the "Great Evacuation" in the Fall of '82 can attest to that. I was one of those trusting souls who didn't think twice about taking a shower in what looked like Jack Daniels. Only after the cops rode around Southwest with loudspeakers and sounded the alert did I realize that something was up.

Josh Meyer

That was two years ago. We have continually been warned to conserve water to prevent another disaster, yet they have happened just the same. Last summer, Amherst residents had to boil their water for five minutes to kill all the fecal coliform bacteria it contained (and some still do). For those uninitiated in the art of scientific terminology, fecal coliform bacteria is a nicer word for human waste, which in this case came from gypsy moths. Speaking for myself, I've avoided drinking diluted gypsy moth droppings whenever possible, so it's a good thing I wasn't here that summer.

After this occurrence, things got complicated. Two chlorinators were installed to pump chlorine into the water to kill most of the bacteria. Frequent problems, including discoloration and high levels of bacteria in the water have arisen, according to several area papers.

These filtration systems were set up to alter the "chemical punch," as one official called the water we use, so that the water becomes more fit for human consumption. I won't go into the gory details, because a lot of people read The Collegian during lunch. The sludge is separated from the water, which is then filtered as much as possible. The amount of turbidity, or insoluble waste products is kept to a minimum. Hold a glass of warm water up to the light, and you'll see a whole bunch of these cute little devils.

Since acid rain has become such a popular industrial by-product, the pH level of the water must be neutralized so the water won't eat through the pipes and give people lead poisoning. Unfortunately, this hasn't worked as well as one would have hoped.

Lead consumption causes brain damage and other assorted, but not necessarily related, behavioral problems. Therefore, the federal standard is 50 parts per billion parts water. A UMass professor found the water at Wildwood school in Amherst to contain between 90 and 230 parts per billion, and this is after the two filter systems were installed. So far it's been a fairly isolated problem — officials believe the acid content of the water ate through the lead solder in the copper pipes. Therefore any copper pipes with lead solder are potential hazards, which is a problem because this is the accepted way of irrigating water in Amherst.

Before I'm done, let me add that the drainage from the UMass Coal Pile has been found to contaminate Amherst ground water and Taylor Brook, a major source of irrigation water for several area farms that grow produce. Farmers have been complaining about this for ten years, because their cows had been getting sick and even dying, and have since refused to drink the water.

Three ways of eradicating the problem have been suggested, costing between $245,000 to $2,443,000. One of them will be implemented "as soon as budget appropriations can be obtained," or as soon as hell freezes over, whichever comes first.

Just how serious is the problem? Town officials say that some of the plant life that had been around Taylor Brook might even reappear in a few years.

I don't know about anyone else, but this has gotten me very depressed. I think I'll suspend my academic activities for awhile and have a nice, cold glass of flocculated chemical punch. After all, I'm going to Mexico over intersession, and my system might as well get used to it.

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Has UMass spawned an elite educational technocracy?

To the Editor:

The program recently announced by UMass President Knapp regarding a shiift in educational focus from liberal arts to the hard sciences, business and high-tech related fields is not simply a change in policy, but a significant restructuring of power and decision making both inside and outside our educational institutions. This emphasis on developing a skilled high-tech labor force along with the cutbacks in liberal arts, is just another example of concentrated unaccountable corporate control over traditionally public institutions.

The direct involvement, in the form of contributions and grants, (most recently and notably those made by Digital and Wang) by the technostructure in educational institutions is presented as financial supplements to tight departmental budgets, but is essentially political management. Last May a group of corporate, academic, and state officials proposed a forty million dollar educational and research facility in micro-electric technology. This facility is to be managed by a coalition of all three institutions, including executives of Digital and Wang among others, and would draw students from the state institutions for further education in these fields. This proposal along with Knapp's recent announcement and the administration's re-organization plan announced last year, outlines the major points of the reconstruction of public higher education to meet the needs of a growing technocracy. This is however, not a public versus private issue but a poignant example of the political reality of our modern American power structure. The struggle between academic freedom of choice and financial priorities becomes secondary in the face of the larger issue of political power in the institutional decision-making process. A process that is being increasingly controlled by a small concentrated group of corporate managers and technocrats. The alliance of business and state, to be argued among liberals and conservatives, was essentially consummated decades ago, and is gradually becoming consolidated into a new corporate technocratic order. An order that should be examined critically starting with this institution.

Paul Hetznecker
UMass student

Bacall's words uninspirational

To the Editor:

Lauren Bacall's few words at the nuclear freeze rally were uninspirational and a great disappointment. Her 30-second appearance, came off in my eyes, as insensitive and unenthusiastic, as well as a cop-out.

I tend to wonder if her appearance was an eminence front or if she really was there in sincere representation of the issue.

Janine L. Micucci
Amherst

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

-KNITTING - CROCHETING - MACRAME - KNITTING
NATURALS - FELT - VOGART PAINTS - RINGS
DRIED FLOWERS - BEADS - SILK FLOWERS - RAFFIA

We make it - We stock it - We teach it!
Handicrafters Haven
Largest craft supply store in the 5-college area.
288 Pleasant Street
Northampton, MA
586-5316
* Come in and inquire * about our classes

Northampton Days are every Thursday in the Collegian

feast & folly Restaurant
SPECIALIZING IN CHICKEN, FISH, VEGETARIAN ENTREES - $3.75 - $7.95
DINNER IS SERVED FROM 5-10
111 PLEASANT ST. NORTHAMPTON — 586-8387
BYOB — CLOSED TUES.

SALADS SUBMARINES SYRIANS
the sub
11 AM TO 2 AM / 7 DAYS
33 E PLEASANT ST AMHERST 549-5160
Friends and neighbors lend us your ears (and your stomach)!
The SUB would like to offer you a coupon special. Buy any two subs and get a third* absolutely FREE! This coupon is good from now thru Nov. 9, 1982, on any Sunday or Tuesday between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.
We hope to see you soon and don't forget to bring a friend.
FREE 1 FREE sub with a purchase of any two whole subs when purchased along with this coupon. coupon good til November 9, 1982 any Sun. or Tues 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. FREE
*Free sub is of equal or less value than most expensive sub purchased

If The Way You Look On Paper Is Important To You, You'll Like What THE COPY CENTER Can Do For Your Image
THE COPY CENTER
32 Pleasant Street (across from Pleasant St Theater) Northampton, Mass. 584-0117
Clean, Crisp, Black and White Copies
7c for the 1st copy, 6c - 2nd and up to 100
100 or more - 5c, 500 or more - 4c fast service, no waiting back to back
xerographic reductions overhead transperencies
HIGH QUALITY OFFSET PRINTING
Photostatic Camera work perfect and spiral binding
Hours: Mon. - Fri. 8 am to 5 pm, Sat., 11 am to 5 pm

take home a Tiger on sale
$25.00
(with this ad only, usually $35.00)
MONTREAL - a great shoe at a great price! The Montreal has loads of cushioning, a good-wearing sole and sports the Tiger stripes - your assurance of quality. Available in tan or silver, while supplies last.
runner'shop 114 Main St. Northampton
Mon - Sat 9:30 - 5:00 586-1971

SANYO
Mini Stereo Cassette Player
SALE PRICED $38.88
• Protective auto-stop system
• Seperate left & right volume controls
• Locking fast forward & rewind
• Operates on batteries or optional AC adapter
The Electronics Center
32 Pleasant St., Northampton
586-2270

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENT

Arts

Shakespeare would turn over in his grave

DOGG'S HAMLET, CAHOOT'S MACBETH
By Tom Stoppard
University Ensemble Theater
October 5-9
Curtain Theater, FAC

By PAM MADNICK
Collegian Staff

Before Tuesday night, I was unaware that "mousehole" was something you eat for lunch or that "hollyhacks" were better than "pelicancrash." But such was the language to be found in the two Tom Stoppard plays presented Tuesday night by the University Ensemble Theater.

The first, Dogg's Hamlet, was a story about three boarding school boys, who set up an auditorium for a big awards ceremony to be followed by a presentation of Hamlet. The age of these boys isn't exactly clear, but one might guess they are nine or ten and have never been on stage before. The awards ceremony begins and Dogg, the headmaster played by Michael Solomita, gets a little excited about the way the stage is set up and pushes the play's most humorous character, Easy (Mark Cohen) around until some of the scenery for Hamlet falls over.

Baker, played by Randy Farias, was equally funny as a little boy who overexaggerates his facial expressions as Laerates. Farias had superb characterization. Charlie, who played Ophelia in the student production, was a riot with a sportjacket on and a white flowing dress underneath. Charlie was played by Mike Hale. Dogg, the headmaster responsible for the madness which takes place on the stage, was very strict about the way the assembly was set up. Everytime Easy made a mistake, the headmaster would punish him by pushing him to the ground. Dogg was an unrealistic character played by Michael Solomita. Although the part of Fox (Russell Greene) was smaller, it was a demanding role and well-cast. Fox wins all the trophies and is the star of the play, with his hyperactive speech.

Also, in this play there is a lot of running around and people screaming at each other in jibberish.

C'hoot's MacBeth begins after a very solemn tune is played. The first act of MacBeth was performed by Lawrence Devine as MacBeth, David Otto as the 2nd Actor, John Finnegan as the 3rd Actor. Lady MacBeth was played by Becket Royce, and the 1st Actress was played by Dara Dworman. MacBeth was performed straight, in Shakespearen English.

In Act II the Inspector (Gary Trahan) enters and interrupts the play by literally coming out of the woodwork. He stops the play, questions the actors on their past history and ridicules them, telling them they don't deserve to use free expression. The group is forced by the Inspector to perform the play without any expression. The actors look devastated, but do as the Inspector says because he has the power to throw them in jail for speaking freely. After taking control of the 2nd Act, the Inspector leaves.

Act III shows the power the Inspector has on the actors, even after his exit. Some try to express emotions, others cannot.

By Act IV, something crazy happens as Easy, from Dogg's Hamlet, walks in questioning the actors in his new-found jibberish. He wants to know if someone will sign for the wood needed for scenery. Of course, no one will sign anything, for fear that they will be signing their life away. So Easy leaves. Then, he re-enters, after the play starts again, but silently from the same space as the Inspector. There he tries to get the actors attention again. MacBeti is the only one who sees him during an ironic scene about Banquo's ghost. It takes a prior knowledge of Shakespeare's MacBeth to really appreciate this play.

In Act V, the Inspector is back. All hell breaks loose as the 2nd Actor, also known as Cahoot, begins communicating in the jibberish of Easy. While the Inspector is talking to his chief on the phone about all this the moves against the "normalization" that the government is imposing the rest of the cast begins speaking in Easy's funny tongue. At the end, the Inspector gives in to the actors, screaming at them in their own language.

This was my first chance to see a Stoppard play and well worth seeing. If you're tired of being misunderstood, see Dogg's Hamlet, Cahoot's MacBeth. It'll make your day.

Mike J. Hale shows Randy Farias and Mark Cohen how to do the funky chicken in the University Ensembles production of Dogg's Hamlet, Cahoot's Macbeth.

Irreverent Rock 'n Roll

CATHOLIC GIRLS (MCA)
Catholic Girls

By PETER BENTTINEN
Collegian Correspondent

Catholic Girls is an all-girl band from Los Angeles area where the new all-girl band crunch got its start. They dress the part of parochial school girls on the cover so I guess you could call that their gimmick.

Gail Peterson has a voice reminiscent of Belinda Carlysle of the Go-Gos, but with a little less excitement. She is the leader of the group, writes all the songs and plays guitar as well. She is ably assisted by Joanne Holland on bass, Roxy Anderson on backing vocals and lead guitar, and by Doreen Holmes on drums.

"Someone New" starts the album off with a decent beat and lyrics about looking for a man. "C'est Impossible" continues the side with about the same beat.

"You Let Me Down There" uses an interesting guitar lick to keep the song moving by clueing us in on the way men let women down.

Side two, seemingly the better side, opens with an upbeat tempo, on which Gail's voice sounds like Lena Lovich's. On "Boys Can Cry," the group has a sound reminiscent of the Dave Clark Five.

The last song, "God Made You For Me," has a bass drum right up front throughout the entire song.

There isn't much new music to wander into on this album, but that doesn't mean it's a bad record. It just so happens that all of the songs here sound like they have been done before by other groups. I think Catholic Girls would be a pretty good live attraction, that is, if these young women can pull off their stuff in front of a live audience. A little more originality couldn't hurt though.

Joanne Holland, Gail Peterson, Roxy Anderson, and Doreen Holmes of Catholic Girls.

The UMass Department of Music and Dance opens Homecoming Weekend '82 with a presentation of the eight annual Multiband Pops show on Friday, October 8 at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center. The musical extravaganza will feature performances by...count 'em...no less than nine of the University's music ensembles including the 'Minutemen' Marching Band, the University Symphony Band, and the University Wind Ensemble. Also featured will be guest appearances by singer Beau Flahive and Irish uilleann piper Damain Lyons. Admission is free.

Would you like to spend the FALL/SPRING SEMESTER IN JERUSALEM?

The Jacob Hiatt Institute in Israel
OFFERS YOU

- fall term focus on Israel: its politics, history, social development, art and architecture
- spring term focus on Jerusalem: its unique ethnic, religious, artistic and political diversity
- study trips throughout Israel in the fall, including an extended stay on a kibbutz and in a development town
- courses conducted in English
- a strong program in Hebrew
- a small learning community, with students from all over the United States
- a superb location, in the center of Jerusalem, within walking distance of the Old City
- Brandeis credit
- financial aid available

APPLICATION DEADLINES: MARCH 15 (fall) NOVEMBER 1 (spring)

For further information, see your Study Abroad advisor or write:
INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS, SACHAR CENTER
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02254 (617) 647-2422

BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY

It is the policy of Brandeis University not to discriminate against any applicant on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, or the presence of any handicap.

BARSELOTTI'S
THURSDAY NIGHT SPECIAL
Downtown Amherst
$1.00 off any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon
DON'T FORGET OUR FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR WITH MORE FOOD THAN EVER

OPENING SPECIAL
25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

"A remarkable experiment in legal education. There is no other school in the nation that can do what you are doing here."

Warren Burger
Chief Justice
U.S. Supreme Court
September 17, 1980

University of Puget Sound School of Law
Tacoma, Washington

Get the facts on:
• Selecting a law school
• Surviving in law school
• The Puget Sound law program

Day Friday Oct 8
Time 2-4 pm
Place Hampshire House
Contact Becky Blajda

FOREVER IS A LONG TIME

Presenting High Bias II and the Ultimate Tape Guarantee.

Memorex presents High Bias II, a tape so extraordinary, we're going to guarantee it forever.

We'll guarantee life-like sound.
Because Permapass,™ our unique oxide bonding process, locks each oxide particle--each musical detail—onto the tape. So music stays live. Not just the 1st play. Or the 1000th. But forever.

We'll guarantee the cassette.
Every facet of our cassette is engineered to protect the tape. Our waved-wafer improves tape-wind. Silicone-treated rollers insure smooth, precise tape alignment. Housing is made strong by a design unique to Memorex.

We'll guarantee them forever.
If you are ever dissatisfied with Memorex High Bias II, mail us the tape and we'll replace it free.

YOU'LL FOREVER WONDER,
IS IT LIVE, OR IS IT MEMOREX.

LAGNAF 83

Minority engineering students win awards

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Correspondent

Four students from the Minority Engineering Program (MEP) here at the University of Massachusetts won scholarships from General Electric last Friday.

One other minority engineering student also received an award from General Electric.

Jeff Rocha was the recipient of the award, and received a 41 C General Electric programable calculator, the newest model from General Electric.

Mark Baugh, Steve Haynes, Jesus Fonsesca and Amarildo Ferreira were the recipients of the $500.00 General Electric Pittsfield Division scholarships, honored for excellence in the Electrical Engineering field.

Amarildo Ferreira, a Junior Mechanical Engineering major is a good example of the work and encouragement provided by the Minority Engineering Program according to Professor Ting-wei Tang, MEP Director.

"Amarildo was not prepared to take the calculus course essential for engineering when he entered UMass, so he decided to take the five year program. In the program he took one year of pre-calculus. By doing this he started on a lower level and carried a full calculus load the next semester. By being extremely careful in taking his other courses, he obtained an excellent cumulative average," Ting-wei Tang said.

Jeff Rocha, a sophomore is considered the best among the minority engineers with Jesus Fonsesca, also a sophomore closely following his steps, according to Tang.

"This is the beginning of an interaction of companies that support the Minority Engineering Program," Professor Tang said. With these scholarships and this award, Tang wishes to encourage other minority students to work hard to achieve these same goals.

Black Affairs

Teacher's union wrangles verdict

BOSTON (AP) — Despite its refusal to hear the case, the U.S. Supreme Court hasn't heard the last of the issue of layoffs favoring black teachers in the Boston public schools, the head of the Boston Teachers Union has predicted.

"Taking a job from someone on the basis of skin color is a substantial constitutional issue," Union President Kathleen A. Kelley, said Monday, reading a statement after a staff meeting of the BTU, which represents about 3,500 teachers.

"The issue has to be resolved. The constitutional issues raised by this case will not go away.

"It is our belief that with cases in New York, Michigan and Illinois following closely behind Boston, eventually the court will be forced to decide on the merits which we believe have national significance."

Without commenting, the Supreme Court let stand on Monday a ruling that the layoffs of more than 1,000 white teachers were acceptable as part of court-ordered desegregation of Boston public schools.

Thomas Clegg, Blackstone School principal and head of the administrators' union, said only "that's what we have a Supreme Court for."

Boston School Superintendent Robert R. Spillane said the decision was one he expected.

"We didn't expect it to be any different," said Jean M. McGuire, black Boston school committee member and a founder of the Black Educators Alliance of Massachusetts. "Using seniority doesn't hold water anymore. The main reason you should hold a job is because you're doing a good job. The issue, of course, is full employment, and we're still not facing up to that."

The BTU had gone to the high court to challenge a 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling of last February that upheld the layoffs.

"Over a thousand white teachers with tenure of up to 16 years of service have been laid off while none of the tenured black teachers — including those with lesser service — have been laid off and at the same time new black applicants have been hired," the BTU charged.

U.S. District W. Arthur Garrity, ruling in 1974 that the Boston school committee had intentionally segregated schools along racial lines, ordered a massive desegregation plan into effect, including busing.

Garrity later ordered measures aimed at giving blacks 25 percent of teaching and administrative jobs. The number increased until blacks held about 19 percent of teaching jobs and 20 percent of administrative posts.

In June 1981, Garrity ruled that in case of layoffs during a budget crisis then facing the school system, his percentage goals had to be kept.

He therefore allowed the School Committee to breach job security and seniority provisions in labor agreements to retain blacks with less seniority were retained in preference to whites.

Garrity also ordered blacks to have an absolute preference if the school committee began to recall laid-off teachers, until reaching a 20 percent goal.

Three who dared: Glenroy Buchanan, Phil Pasley and Alex Murkison, the latter two of the fraternity Alpha Phi Alpha, in stride during the 13 mile walk to raise money for the ABC house.

The future of America lies in our voting

By PHIL JENNINGS
Collegian Staff

Tuesday's rally emphasizing "NO NUKES" is a very important issue, one that should not be taken lightly. It is especially important to the future of our children, who as of yet cannot realize the potential for destruction that nuclear weapons hold.

The nuclear build up, which our great leader president Reagan has deemed so necessary, has taken life sustaining jobs from our people. Unemployment is now the highest it's been in forty years. Not to mention black teenage unemployment which has now leveled off at sixty percent.

The nation's elderly, who after having their welfare benefits and food stamps cut right out of the budget now suffer indirect effects, by cutbacks in police protection and general town maintenance, and are directly affected by the threat of having their social security benefits rescinded.

Even our children, the nation's future, have had their hot school lunch program slashed by the budget cutting hatchet of President Reagan. In short, huge cutbacks all across the board, from government aid in education to job training, have meant nothing but hardship and economic disaster for literally millions of Americans.

Editors Commentary

The Reagan administration has taken a most radical step in the wrong direction. All this has been in the name of building a stronger and more independent America. Maybe this should be rephrased as building a stronger and more independent corporate America.

It appears that we are now a country who has given up all that we cherish, in exchange for a nuclear holocaust. It seems that we are no longer pro-life, but pro-death.

In the book entitled "The Third Wave" author Alvin Toffler compares the various stages in which civilization has progressed. From a First Wave agricultural society to a Second Wave industrial society, Toffler singles out the differences in which the two societies coexisted with nature and the surrounding environment.

"With the coming of the Second Wave society civilization one found capitalist industrialists gourging resources on a massive scale, pumping voluminous poisons into the air, deforesting whole regions in pursuit of profit, without much thought about side effects or long term- consequences. The idea that nature was there to be exploited provided a convenient rationalization for shortsidedness and selfishness."

We are now entering a post industrial state and we must direct all of our efforts toward moving into the future or the "Third Wave" as it is termed. The men who now hold office in our countries are from almost a pre-industrial state. Their minds reminisce about the good old days when a woman's place was in the kitchen and a Negro was passive and subordinate.

These are old ideals which hold us back from making progress in a more beneficial manner to serve all peoples, and not just those who are "deserving." Students have made history in the past and as we can see it's time we let our voices be heard again. Speak out about the issues which torment you night after night. Write a letter to your congressman. Tell them you don't want nukes. Tell them you don't want industries creating pollution and acid rain. Tell them you want more jobs at home and you want them to pay you decent wages. And let them know you don't approve of their exploiting other countries and their people as cheap sources of labor.

We are the inheritants of this country called America. And I for one would like to share it with my children. I would like to remember America as it is "amber waves of grain," and not to see it resemble a lunar landscape.

National Student Exchange Students
UMass Students returning from exchange
Anyone interested in going on exchange

Come to the NSE Club Kick-off - Happy Hour!
Where: The Amherst Pub
When: Tuesday, October 12 from 6:00 P.M. - 9:00 P.M.
Why: To get the NSE Club rolling. There will be MUNCHIES and liquid refreshments (at your own expense - MA drinking age is 20, positive ID required)
Everyone is invited so COME ON DOWN!

Campus Center/Student Union
Board of Governors

Accepting applications for the following coordinator positions:

Special Projects
Building Operations
Conference Services/Hotel Accomodations

Applications and information available in CC 817 (9 am-4 pm) Deadline Oct. 8, 1982
This is your chance to get involved!
An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

La Cuchina
Serving a Variety of Pasta Dishes, Pizza, and Italian Specialties.
Featuring the PASTA BAR: the Pasta of Your Choice Topped with Our Delightful Sauces
Monday-Friday 11 am-2 pm
Monday-Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

THE VINEYARD
A Large and Surprising Selection of Wine & Beer, in Bottles or on Tap
Monday-Friday 11 am-11 pm
Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

CALCULATOR CENTER
Basic Business Scientific
Move Ahead With the HP-10C.

HP-10C
$65.00 List 80.00

Hewlett-Packard's lowest priced programmable ever! The new HP-10C scientific calculator can make problem solving easier with
- 79 Program Lines, Conditional Branching
- Built-in Trigonometric and Statistics Functions
- RPN Logic, Merged Keycodes
- Continuous Memory
- Liquid Crystal Display

Let the HP-10C help you upgrade your performance. See one today.

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

Yoey D's
Thurs.
Ladies nite.
60¢ Drinks
9 to 11:30
No Cover

Photo Essay by Michael Margolis
The horses at Tillson farm will be treated to something other than hay when the newly constructed riding arena is in full operation. Until then, its business as usual for Kris Heffer (right) who gives one of the horses a new pair of shoes for the occasion. Nancy Freedman (bottom left) boldly hurdles the jumping bar during class. Carla Mates (bottom right) is mounted in mid-air on one of the two mustangs housed at Tillson Farm.

$150,000 horse arena dedicated at Tillson Farm

By JULE LANZA
Collegian Correspondent

As of October 29, students who have had a riding class canceled because of bad weather will no longer have to worry, because at 11 a.m. today, the new indoor horse arena at Tillson Farm will be dedicated.

The $150,000 arena covers an area of 80 by 200 feet and is built to accomodate two separate riding classes at once, said Tom Trotman of the University of Massachusetts Foundation, a non-profit fund-raising organization for the University.

The funds for the project were raised by a group of private citizens known as The Equine Center Council, who saw the need for an indoor arena and decided to do something about it.

In addition to the building of the arena, plans for the construction of horse stables are under way. An additional $100,000 is needed for their completion.

The Equine Center Council collected contributions from a wide range of private companies, alumni and private citizens of Amherst and other local communities. Trotman estimated the total amount collected to be approximately $140,000 with an additional $10,000 in donations still expected.

Janet Dakin of Amherst, former chairperson of the council and now an active member said all the council members have contributed to the fund. Dakin said she feels the UMass Equine Program is "excellent," and has been deserving of an indoor arena for the past 16 years.

The arena makes economic sense for both the taxpayer and the University, since it is such a waste of money for the horses to be idle on bad days," Dakin said.

Dr. Anthony Borton, director of the Equine Studies Program, said the program, owning 50 horses, is one of the best in the country and the arena will serve to help it a great deal.

"I'm delighted with the arena," adds Borton. "I'm very excited to be associated with a group of private citizens who have seen this as a need and have given so much of their time and money to make it a reality."

Borton also said that while the arena will be used primarily for classes, it may also be used for other activities such as field days, horse shows and public riding classes.

James B. Marcum, chairperson of the department of Veterinarian and Animal Sciences said the Equine Department is one of the bigger users of labs at Tillson, which are particularly helpful to students who need to gain some practical training.

"The biggest problem that faces the department is one of state support in terms of funds for the program," Marcum said. "That is why we have been extremely pleased with the help from people like those of the Equine Center Council."

Dr. Marcum said the riding classes to be offered in the new arena will teach people how to ride and manage horses while certifying some in teaching. He also said the department will now have the opportunity to go year round with the classes.

The Equine Center Council is still taking contributions for the fund in its efforts to raise about $100,000 to pay for horse stables. Anyone interested in contributing to the fund should contact Dr. Borton of the Equine Studies department or the council.

Collegian photo by David May
Standing erect in the bright sunshine, the new indoor horse arena at Tillson Farm will begin to bear the brunt of many horse hoofs on Oct. 29 when it is expected to open.

SONY WALKMAN

Sensational Stereo for All Walks of Life

SRF-70W
AM/FM WALKMAN WITH STEREO HEADPHONE—THAT'S RIGHT! AN AM/FM WALKMAN!
Here at last! A high performance Walkman radio that does both AM and FM stereo SRF-70W is a solid choice for everyone who enjoys tuning in AM news, sports, weather and talk shows. And then switching over to FM for rich stereo music. High quality MDR headphones project sound from either band with outstanding clarity. Dedicated engineers are most impressive with the wide dynamic range of the headphones. Unprecedented volume and tuning controls. A three-position sensitivity switch adjusts FM for maximum. And a locking tuning dial holds the desired station exactly even while jogging. Wait 'til our band hits earmuffs.

WM-2
SUPER-COMPACT STEREO CASSETTE PLAYER
Walkman 2 is so amazingly compact it's scarcely larger than the cassette that fits inside. Yet the sound quality, from the leather-caught MDR-4LIS stereo headphones will move you into a whole new world of portable listening excitement. Soft-touch controls give you instant music access. Optional headphones let you listen with a friend. There's impressive features like metal tape capability. Counter memory. Pause lever. Portable playback stability. Headphone mute switch so you can hear what's going on around you. And matching carrying case with shoulder strap. Two AA alkaline batteries deliver up to 8 hours of music. And for an incredible 60 hours of music, the external battery case supplied holds a pair of D-alkaline batteries. The WM-2 is now available in two new colors—red and black.

Located in the Campus Center
OPEN M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

Dastardly Dans
THURSDAY
All the Draft Beer You Can Drink
$3. Cover 9 - Close
35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 253-9285

You are the eyes and ears of the Collegian. Call x3500.

LEVIS SALE	Straight Leg Denim	$18.95
V neck	Men's Acrylic Sweaters	$12.95
Crew Neck	Ladies Sweaters	$18.00
100% Cotton Turtlenecks		$7.95

FREE: Handpainted stick pins with purchase
1 per customer
no minimum purchase
good for 1st 75 customers

Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant St. Amherst
9:30 - 6 Mon - Sat
FRIDAYS till 9 pm

UPC PRODUCTIONS

Steppin' Out with JOE JACKSON
In Concert

THURSDAY OCT. 21, 1982
on stage 8:00 p.m.

TICKETS ON SALE OCT. 7, 1982

Ticket Limit 4 per person
Ticket Prices: student 9.50, 10.50
general public 10.50, 11.50

Union Records • FAC • For the Record •
No Cans, Bottles or Cameras Please

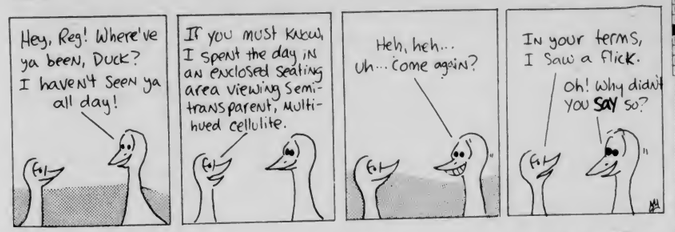
FINE ARTS CENTER • U. MASS.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

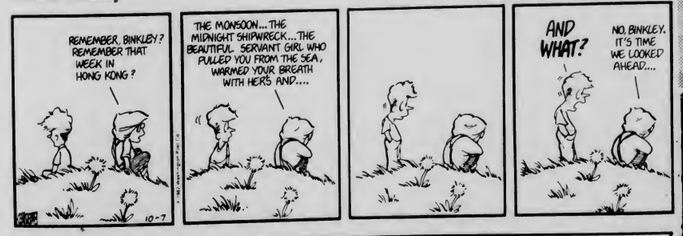
The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Gooz by G. Masse



Bloom County by Berke Breathed



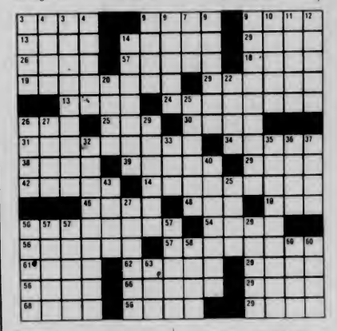
D.C. Menu

LUNCH	BASICS LUNCH	DINNER	BASICS DINNER
Hamburg on Roll Spinach Noodle Casserole	Golden Burgers Spinach Noodle Casserole	Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce Reuben Sandwich Salute To APPLE Month	Stir Fry Vegetables and Tofu Baked Chicken/ Supreme Sauce Cranberry Sauce Salute To APPLE Month

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 "—— and the Man"
5 Attracted
9 Profound
13 Frugal
14 Religious sculpture
15 Different
16 Capital on a fiord
17 French historian
18 Two-wheeler
19 Begin
21 Wall Street worker
23 Transaction
24 Contemptuous ones
26 Isl. near Corsica
28 Short haircut
30 Inhabitant of 65 Across
31 Lookout spot
34 One with unusual drive
38 Freshwater mussel
39 Legendary evil being
41 "The world will little ——."
42 Primitive symbol
44 Charm
46 Game fish
48 Big bird
49 Show assent
50 Appropriates
54 French state
56 "Wait a little ——."
57 Enduring
61 Lock ——
62 Ward off
64 Stead
65 Paradise
66 Bordeaux and Macon
67 Med school subj.
68 Rankling
69 "—— Fall in Love"
70 Concordes, for short

DOWN
1 Old Testament book
2 Siesta
3 Bungling
4 Sign of a catnap
5 "—— et mon droit"
6 Charters
7 Greek letter
8 Post Office poster
9 Act of exclusion
10 Omit
11 Gravelly ridge
12 Equals
14 Draw out
20 Keep —— on
22 Learn by observing
25 Essence
26 Rabbit's tail
27 River through Florence
29 Command
32 Downcast
33 "Dombey and ——"
35 Geological features
36 Other, in Spain
37 Requirement
40 Cries for
43 Rosalind Russell role
45 Places
47 Careless urban development
50 Works at
51 Musical term
52 Sign on a door
53 Gardenia's forte
55 One of the Titans
58 Cuprite and iron
59 Orderly
60 Disapproving sounds
63 Compete



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

B	A	S	I	S		B	O	A	R		W	H	O	R	D	E
U	T	E	A		K	I	O	A		A	B	L	E	S
T	E	N	D		E	L	A	N		T	I	T	L	E
T	R	O	I	K	A		S	O	F	T	S	E	L	L
S	T	R	E	A	K	S		N	O	R
			N	O	O	K		R	E	B	A	T	E
G	O	O	D	T	U	R	N	S		E	R	R	O	R
O	N	C	E		T	R	E	N	D		I	N	C	A
O	T	T	E	R		Y	E	A	R	B	O	O	K	S
F	O	A	M	E	D		S	P	U	R
			V	I	P		S	M	I	T	T	E	N
H	E	L	L	E	N	I	C		B	E	T	A	T	E
E	M	E	E	R		N	O	P	E		A	N	N	A
N	I	S	E	I		A	C	I	A		S	T	A	R
S	T	E	R	E		S	K	A	T		M	E	S	S

WEATHER

Sunny this morning with increasing clouds in the afternoon. Highs in the upper 60's. Showers developing tonight continuing into tomorrow morning.

WMUA FM 91.1

6-9am	Concepto Latino
9-noon	Steve Diamond
12-3pm	Ed Berk
3-5:30pm	DR
5:30-6pm	Newswatch
6-7pm	Focus — Ken Mosakowski
7-10pm	Women's Media Project
10-2am	Kari Njiiri — Pan Afrique
2-6	More Music

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

10:30 - 11:30	Just Another Joke in the Wall — Comedy in the Blue Wall
11:30 - 12:30	More Fun from the Wall/The Atlantics
12:30 - 1:30	Jorma Kaukonen — Ex-Airplane guitarist in the SUB
1:30 - 2:00	Rock and Roll video

Netwomen beat Springfield

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team easily defeated Springfield College Saturday by a score of 6-3, to improve their record to 2-5, but did not play with as much intensity as their previous match, according to coach John Beal.

"I don't think they played as well as they did against UNH," said Beal. "Springfield is just not nearly the caliber of a team that UNH is."

Despite their lack of intensity, UMass jumped out to a quick lead on a beautiful sunny afternoon with little wind. Both the first and second singles players won their matches, as first singles Elizabeth Sullivan won a lengthy and tough match in three sets, 7-6 (8-6 in the tiebreaker), 3-6, 6-2. Second singles Ariel Fowler dominated her match in winning 6-2, 6-2.

The team suffered a minor setback when third singles player Chris Frazier lost her match, 6-3, 6-3, but fourth singles player Patricia Sullivan easily defeated her opponent 6-1, 6-3.

Fifth singles player Anne Marie MacKertish was defeated in her match, 6-3, 6-2, but sixth singles player Joyce Girasella won in straight sets, 7-5, 7-5 to put UMass ahead 4-2 in singles matches.

The first doubles team of Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli won handily, 6-2, 6-4, while the second doubles team of Laura Kaufmann and Jillian Nesgos won even easier, by a score of 6-1, 6-2.

The third doubles team of Tina Eglin and Bonnie Lechten played a good game but were defeated in three sets, 2-6, 6-4, and 7-6 (7-4 in the tiebreaker).

The team will host Northeastern University today at 3 p.m. on the Boyden Courts.

An Ode to Jim Craig

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The news came over the AP wire yesterday afternoon. Jim Craig had been released by the Boston Bruins after having been on waivers since Friday. No other team wanted to pick him up.

Hopefully, this will be the last we hear of Craig. True, he was an olympic hockey hero and cover man for Sports Illustrated when the famed olympic team won the gold medals, but he's been such a pathetic creature clinging to a legend of days gone by that a lot of people are sick and tired of hearing his name.

Now maybe Jim will go out and get a real job. Car salesman would be a good choice for a Jim Craig occupation. He could get his dad (you know, the guy who did soda commercials with Jim while a Jim Craig's dad caption flashed under his face) to help him.

"My son Jim always cruises in his Cordoba, don't you son," Jim Craig's father could say.

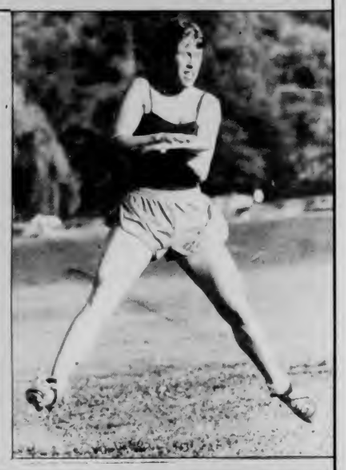
"Where's my dad?" Jim could say with his lips while not making any sound to a nearby customer.

Jim Craig's father, Jim Craig's dad, Mr. Craig...the guy must not have a real name of his own. Imagine your own father going onto a television commercial with you with so-and-so's dad printed under him. Jim Floyd's dad would not like it, that's for sure.

Jim Craig was a good goalie as a U.S. national team player. He was not of National Hockey League calibre. With any luck, Craig will smarten up, grow up and pick up his life. If he had followed teammate Mike Eruzione's example and just made guest star appearances before his star got too tarnished (if it isn't already) then he would have made out much better.

Maybe he can have a son, name him Craig, wait for Craig to become a star and do commercials as Craig Craig's dad.

Zoo Disc hosts "Ultimate Affair" at UMass



Collegian photo by Sam Millett

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Reckedisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Musteng new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 91,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1086

76 Honda Civic Wagon new clutch shocks battery some body rust 665-7530 after 7 PM

Ford Granada 1975 excellent condition with many new parts AM/FM cassette & many features please call 256-8297

1971 Hornet coupe good shape $500.00 527-4963

1970 Olds 442 recent timing G & Ch dual exh rebuilt carb nds wk $400 firm call 6-9243

Subaru Wagon 77 engine, 76 body. AM/FM. Good condition. 549-0865

73 Vega rusty but in good driving condition 80000 miles $500 negotiable call Sheri 549-1815

74 Suberu runs only 250$ call 549-0773

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

In epartment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BELLYGRAMS!i

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Brownie grams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

The best sound system is MF Coffeehouse sound 256-8400

FOR RENT

Amherst. 1 bedroom apt. $295/m include util, heat. Bus route. Call 253-3515

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Refrigerator 5 cu. ft. good cond. 100.00 firm 549-1014

The Who Sun. 10/10 Byrne Arena N.J. floor tickets BO by 10/7 549-4032

Used Waterbed. Queen size. Frame, heater, mattress incl. $100. call 268-3586 after 4.

Guild Maderia ecoustic guitar excellent cond Bill 549-4718

Jak-Pecs! The original cotton, multicolored jackets direct from Bali. $80. way below retail. Rob 253-5238 early am, eves

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

People interested in making money at home, with your own Texas Instrument personal computer. Call Grace or Paul after 5 PM 665-2494

Job Available - security guard 10 PM - 2 AM 2 nights/week great job for student call 774-3092 9:30-3:30 M-F

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Free homecooked meals Kitchen helpers needed $$$ rebate from dining commons. Evenings 4-6:30 p.m. Located very close to campus. No experience necessary. Call immediately for info. Joe W. 545-2150/545-0047.

Earn extra cash easy Halloween sales 549-0694

ICE HOCKEY

Goalie Pads needed to buy or rent. Call Bob 584-7035

Goalie Urgently Needed - for I.M. team. Call Bumper immed. 253-7501 or 545-3121 leave message

INSTRUCTION

Tutoring Math Physics 256-0193

Basic Auto-Mechenics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Tennis Instructor Wanted for intermediate level player call 546-8534

LESBIAN/GAY

Office Manager Position open - 10 hour a week workstudy position - apply at the People's Gay Alliance office 413 SUB 5-0154 women & third world students encouraged to apply

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Help Lost Woman's Seiko watch between Hampshire and Hasbrouk 9-29 call 6-4247 or 6-5439

LOST! thin gold medallion inscribed on both sides:-Mrs.1982- -NDA Tyngsboro- very sentimental any info. please call Peggy 6-8029.

Lost brown leather wallet call Maura 6-1413 very important

Pair of glasses in a red case if found please call 253-5339

Tan Jacket with blue trim near Boyden courts Tuesday morning 10/5 please call 549-5208 if found

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counseling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RECORD STORE

Dynemite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RECORDMANIA

JOE JACKSON AND CHICK COREA are alive and well and on sale at Union Records. . .

RIDE WANTED

I need a ride to Yale Fri Oct 8 call Bob 6-9421

Ride wanted to Pennsylvania Oct 9-11 share expenses Mike 6-5710

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Bucknell Univ leave Fri Oct 8 return Oct 11 will go to other places in Penn call Jodi 549-1352

ROOMMATE WANTED

Room for rent M or F $165 monthly including utilities call Sharon 253-5218

Female roommate wanted to share house on Bay Rd 140 + 256-8058

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable on bus route furnished. Call Jeff 665-4357

Two rooms available in Northampton Apt cheap must rent now 545-1336 (9-5) 665-3509 after 5

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, 1982 for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0516

Hockey Goalie Wanted for intramural team this season. Call John 549-6042

Adventurous-Athletic-Warmhearted Women

I'm GARY I own a PLANE and love to FLY I seek a COMPANION for FLIGHTS & FUN never too late DAY-NIGHT call 546-7812

Don't miss Arthur Thurs Oct 7 at the Student Union Ballroom shows at 5, 7, 9, and 11:00 pm

Keren - Happy Birthday! I bet you're surprised to see this! I can't wait for this w/el Love Dawn

Colloquium on undergraduate racism and sexism October 16-17 9:00 am location Center for Racial Studies Moore House Southwest call 5-0472 or 5-2083 to register

Better and better wish contact Silva-MC graduates to practice Leamsi 546-9407

Kelly, Julie & Mark,
Although each one of you didn't receive your own, we didn't forget about you! Each one of you mean alot to us, and let's celebrate our last years with the "best times" ever! Happy Birthdays, afterall, this is just the beginning.
Love ya all
Mark, Jo-Anne & Chris

Was your weekend too wild! Maybe your clothes need mending. I can do your mending for a minimal fee call eves 6-4916

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

Ojo! Carlos Pizarro. Tu hermana blanca rubia te busca. No seas pendejo Llamame. Pompii

Don't miss Arthur Thurs Oct 7 at the Student Union Ballroom shows at 5, 7, 9, and 11:00 PM

Happy Birthday Mickey! Celebrate! M & L

Barb - Thanks for all the special times we've shared. Happy Birthday S.H. Love, Steve I'm fine! Who are you? From the otter.

Attention Minxs: Homecoming Events & Homecoming Brunch at the Pub. . .football game. . .Happy Hour. . .Pike. "We are family!" Nancy & Edee

Karen Sullivan Happy 20! A long wait but well worth it. Have a good one! Love, Pam P.S. for everyone we know that is reading this we're not always together??

Debbie, Happy Second Decade. Looking forward to a great year! Linda

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate Cash For class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest Prices paid on campus 6-8722

Proffessional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WORD PROCESSING

Resumes & Papers: Prompt quality preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/WORD LINK253-9535

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

99¢ SALE

With this coupon you'll receive any foot-long sandwich for 99¢ when you purchase another of comparable value at the usual listed price. (Offer good through 10/31/82.)

Redeem At

SUBWAY

America's Famous Foot Long Sandwich

Hampshire Mall Hadley
90 King St. Northampton
214 Exchange St. Chicopee

THURSDAYS ALL NITE

THE BIG ONE

16 oz for regular price!

TACKLE IT!

POOR RICHARD$ A STEP UP

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 18

UM stickers match sixth straight

Collegian photo Jay Obe

University of Massachusetts' Patty Smith moves the ball downfield in the Minutewomen's 2-0 win over Yale yesterday at upper NOPE field.

Defeat obstacles, Yale 2-0

By JENNIFER KUPPER
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's field hockey team overcame three obstacles in yesterday's game, when they defeated Yale University 2-0 at the upper NOPE field.

Despite the intense heat, the bumpy field, and the poor officiating, UMass coach Pam Hixon's team upped their unmarred record to 5-0.

"If they can't play the way they're used to doing, it disrupts the whole game and everything they have been working on," Hixon said while commenting on the poor officiating.

The officiating was ambiguous with the referees allowing seconds to pass between the whistle and their call. One official on the otherhand, called the game "uninspiring, with terrible passing." She blamed the "atrousious" field as the culprut.

Although Yale never succeeded in putting the ball past UMass goalie Patty Shea, they were an offensive threat. They were led by Hilliary Hart, who was fed fast break passes a number of times by her Yale teammates.

On these occasions, the UMass defense was able to stop Hart. Andrea Muccini, Nancy Goode and Carol Progulske led the defensive team that shattered Yale's dreams of a victory.

Midfield play saw alot of action in this game of seasaw possession. The work of Caroline Kavanaugh, Megan Donnelly and an excellent performance by Sue Packard served as the connecting link between the offense and defense.

The first goal came in the first half at 20:46 when Tina Coffin took charge of a Patty Smith cross and shot the ball home.

At the end of the opening half UM led 1-0. They had six corners to Yale's four with only three saves against Yale's six.

Second half play led UMass to fast break action prompted by Smith and Donnelly. Strong crosses by Tish Stevens and Packard gave the UMass stickwomen the edge in the Yale circle, upsetting Yale's defense and gaining corners.

At 22:56 Smith's fast break set up a corner. On the corner shot, a Yale defenseman stood in goal and caught the powerful drive with her stomach. This foul gave UMass a penalty stroke.

Megan Donnelly was chosen by Hixon to take the flick. At 21:21 Donnelly blasted the ball past goalie Nada Cellers to give UMass a 2-0 lead.

Yale never relented, and with nine seconds left UMass' Patty Shea made her last save of the day when Hart gave one more effort toward goal.

UMass ended the last half with their fifth victory. They had eight shots and two saves opposed to Yales's two shot and three saves in the second half.

The UMass women will host their sixth opponent, the University of Maine, Friday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. on the upper NOPE field.

Tennis team tips Albany State, 6-3

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

As the western sky glowed a bright orange over the hills here in the Pioneer Valley early last evening, the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team truly arrived as a legitimate power in New England collegiate tennis. The significance of yesterday's 6-3 victory over an experienced Albany State squad should not be lost.

It was simply the biggest win of the year, a satisfying triumph over the same cast of players that crushed the Minutemen, 9-0 last year. The Minutemen now cruise into Princeton, New Jersey this weekend for the ECAC Championships riding a six match winning streak and a wave of confidence.

Contrary to past triumphs this season, this one was definitely not easy. Five of the six singles matches went to three sets, with the teams splitting 3-3.

Neal Mackertich remained unbeaten on the season with a 6-7, 6-0, 6-3 victory over old nemesis Barry Levine. Last fall, Levine beat Mackertich in three sets, winning the third set 6-1. Mackertich turned the tables this time winning 12 of the last 15 games after suffering a first set loss in the tiebreaker.

Nick Julian, who has lost only one singles match this fall, emerged victorious once again, a 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 winner over Rob Karen.

"It was real close. I couldn't hit hard today and I had to chip," said Julian. "I was patient. I didn't make many forced errors, especially in the third set."

Stuart Goodman continued the winning ways for the netmen, rebounding for a 5-7, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Dave Ulrich.

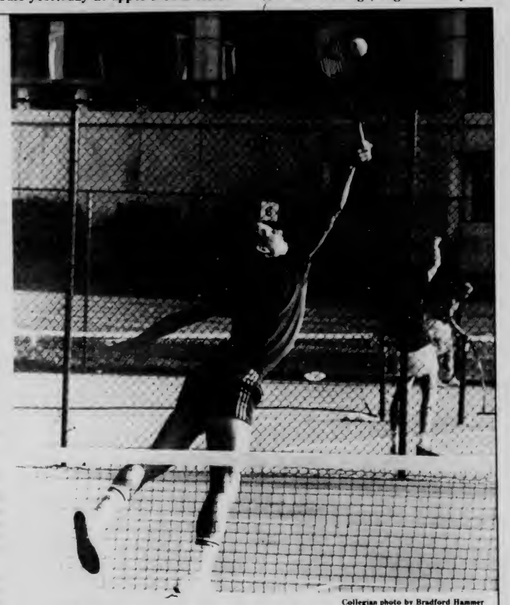
"I listened to coach's advice to stay back and hit crosscourt and move him (Ulrich) around," said Goodman. "In the first two sets I played aggressive and he had a good passing shot. In the third set I stayed back and dictated tempo from the baseline."

Despite the UMass success in the first three singles matches, the story was reversed in the bottom three as Albany State bounced back to gain the split.

Steve Jordan lost a tough one to Fred Gaber, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 at number four. Rich Lindgren was smashed by Tom Schmitz at number five 6-0, 6-2 in the only singles match that did not last three sets. Dave Singer was bounced by Dave Grossman 6-2, 1-6, 6-4 at number six.

With the split in the singles, the scene shifted to the doubles to see who would emerge victorious on this beautiful afternoon. As the sun set low the netmen responded in high style by sweeping Albany State.

Julian-Dave Salem turned back Schmitz-Grossman 10-7 (they were forced to play ten-game pro sets because of the onrushing darkness.) Mackertich-Duseau romped over Levine-Gaber, 10-4. In the tightest doubles match, Lindgren-Jordan squeezed past Ulrich-Karen 8-7 (7-1 in the tie breaker) in a match shortened by the darkness.



Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Nick Julian makes a backhand return in yesterday's action at Boyden tennis courts. Julian came away with a three set victory as the Minutemen topped Albany State 6-3, for their sixth straight win.

JV women stop Yale

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts junior varsity field hockey team shut out a sluggish Yale team yesterday, 3-0.

If one had to describe this game using only one word, that word would have to be: pressure. The Minutewomen were in the groove all afternoon.

Five minutes after the opening whistle sounded, Bunny Forbes put UMass on top with the only goal they would need for a win.

After a drive downfield and several shots on goal, Forbes took a rebound off Yale goalie Jennifer Ellis's pads, and nailed it to the back of the goal.

Less than two minutes later, Mimsi McCormick and Deb DeJesus teamed up for the second UMass tally of the game.

DeJesus took a hard shot from the top of the circle, and McCormick made sure it got past the Yale defense.

The Minutewomen spent most of their time well past the fifty yard line, frequently driving through to the Yale striking circle.

At 14:11 in the first half, McCormick put the game well out of Yale's reach.

On a fast break, McCormick went one on one with Yale's Ellis. McCormick dodged Ellis, and tapped the ball into an empty net.

The second half of the game was very similar to the first, except that UMass had trouble capitalizing on scoring opportunities.

The Minutewomen outshot Yale 7-1 in the second half, but could not get going.

It was a long afternoon for both teams. Yale seemed to find a small second wind as the clock wound down, but even then, the Minutewomen were not threatened.

The UMass defense was hardly tested as Yale managed only two shots on goal the entire game.

"We have been working on our passing in practice," said Coach Donna Partin, "and I think it has paid off."

In a game that was played last Saturday, the UMass JV defeated Springfield College 1-0. Forbes scored the lone Minutewomen tally, with an assist from McCormick.

The JV is now 3-0, and looking to extend this record when they face Smith College at Smith, on Friday.

Special Homecoming section inside

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 24 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, October 8, 1982

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Raymond Hayes of the masonry shop at the Physical Plant squints and saws while cutting a cinder block for the construction of a wall outside the loading dock of the Whitmore Administration Building.

Faculty Senate hears Duffey on budget hike

By JIM FINKLE
and RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph Duffey, speaking to the Faculty Senate for the first time yesterday, said he is optimistic about budget allocations for next year for the University of Massachusetts.

Duffey announced that the Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education will request UMass President David C. Knapp to appropriate $115.3 million to the Amherst campus for fiscal year 1984.

Duffey said this will be in addition to any salary increases negotiated by the faculty. He was optimistic about this request, saying in comparison the campus received $109.7 million for fiscal year 1983.

Commenting on yesterday's decision by the Board of Trustees to waive tuition for employees' children and spouses, Duffey said, "This is a better place to work today than it was yesterday."

Duffey said he hopes the waiver will enable UMass to "recruit and retain faculty."

Saying the "uniqueness of UMass is a social and intellectual necessity for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Duffey promised to "work hard to dramatize and defend that case both on and off campus."

Duffey, who came to UMass after working in various government and academic positions, said "I welcome the opportunity to be in a specific place. I promise that I will be here frequently to nudge, to provoke, to urge, to persuade, to decide, and sometimes to argue. I look forward to participating with you in the future."

Duffey said there is currently a mood of "intense questioning and skepticism" about the future of higher education.

"We must be mindful of the aspects of responsibilities we have as a public institution," Duffey said. "The public expects

Continued on page 11

NOW looks at the past and future of ERA

By MARILYN LENTZ
Collegian Correspondent

Editor's note: second of two parts

June 30, 1982 marked the deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) ratification. The ERA failed to pass in state legislatures for a number of reasons, and perhaps the major stumbling block was that "we did not anticipate the difficulty of getting it ratified," said Karen Sheeley, treasurer of the National Organization for Women (NOW) Hampshire County Chapter.

Shelley said that throughout the campaign ERA supporters found that when they asked people if they were in favor of the ERA, there was between a 54 percent and 65 percent positive response. If the supporters read the actual wording of the amendment, the positive response rose to 75 percent to 80 percent.

The following is the wording of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution:

Section 1: Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.

Section 2: The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Section 3: This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification.

The wording of the amendment appears straight forward yet it was surrounded by confusion, Shelley said. Unisex bathrooms, homosexual marriages, and women on the front lines during wartime were among the things many people believed the amendment would lead to, she explained.

"There are people who are against equal rights and rest on the premise that men and women are totally different and should remain different," Shelley said. "They have a narrow view of the world, do not respect the rights of other people, and subscribe to a collection of issues that is often called the 'New Right'."

Opposition to ERA

ERA opposition was powerful and wealthy attribution. Shelley cited the opposition of the Mormon church, which backed up its stance with considerable money. Jennifer Jackman, a Smith senior who took a year off from studies to work for the ERA, said "Major business interests profit from sex discrimination." Shelley gave the example of the insurance industry, in which policy rates differentiate male from female, as one that is based on gender discrimination.

According to the September issue of Ms. Magazine, prominent among the ERA's New Right opponents was the 'Eagle Forum.' The forum was organized by Phyllis

Continued on page 11

Computer students find some memory files purged

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

A computer programming "hacker" left an unpleasant surprise Monday night for University of Massachusetts students enrolled in an introductory computer and information science (COINS) course.

When students tries to log on to the COINS 121 computer subsystem, they were treated to several lines of obscenities instead of the usual greeting, all their homework files were purged (erased), and they were logged off of the computer.

Also affected by the unknown "hacker" were an administrative internal account and a program library file, according to Chuck Lyman, Associate Director of the University Computing Center.

Stan Kulikowski, who teaches one of the COINS 121 classes, said that as many as twenty of his students were affected, although the bogus program was only operating for about a half hour.

"It cost a number of students time in what is a very fast-paced course," Kulikowski said. "But we're trying to turn it into a positive learning experience, since the course deals with computer literacy."

"Security is an issue," he said. "This is something you have to be aware of in a timesharing system." The individual responsible made changes to three different accounts, Lyman said, but the most damage was done on the COINS 121 account because approximately six hundred students are enrolled in the course and access the affected files almost constantly.

The files which were damaged in the three accounts were restored from backup tapes.

"It's not a catastrophe, just a pain in the butt," Lyman said.

"We caught it while it was happening," Lyman said. "It was dealt with before the end of our second shift."

"I guarantee the person who did this was a pretty sharp programmer," Lyman said. "We are looking into the security of the system."

Both Lyman and Kulikowski noted a similar incident occurred about two years ago. However, student files were not erased in that incident.

Kulikowski said the due date for the COINS 121 assignments has been extended because the students affected would either have their files restored or retype their assignments into the

Kulikowski said the due date for the COINS 121 assignments has been extended because the students affected would either have to have their files restored or retype their assignments into the computer.

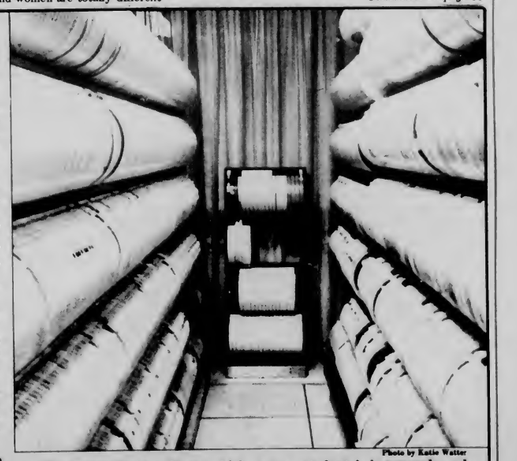


Photo by Katie Watter

Computer tapes, from which some students' homework, administrative accounts, and other files were purged this week, line storage rows in the University Computing Center in the Graduate Research Center.

World and national news

AP Laserphoto

Five Amerasian boys look out the window of the processing center at Bangkok airport yesterday after they flew in from Vietnam with 19 other children of American fathers. The 24 children who came out today represent the largest single group of Amerasians allowed to leave Vietnam.

Technological espionage by U.S.S.R. is thwarted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said yesterday the Soviets attempted to steal a device vital to air and satellite reconnaissance, but the equipment was intercepted before leaving the United States.

Weinberger mentioned this briefly in a speech in which he accused the Soviets of using both legal and illegal methods "to raid our technological base."

"They tried to steal a multispectral scanner, which is indispensable to military air and satellite reconnaissance," Weinberger said in a speech prepared for the American League for Exports and Assistance.

"Fortunately, it was intercepted as it was being smuggled out of the country on a corporate aircraft," he added.

Experts said the scanner is used to monitor voice communications.

Weinberger gave no other details, but Pentagon sources said the incident occurred early this year and that the shipment was prevented by agents working under a Treasury Department operation called "Exodus."

The sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said "Exodus" is designed to choke off the illegal diversion of key U.S. technological devices to the Soviet Union and other countries which might be hostile to the United States.

Acoording to these sources, the scanner was to be routed through Mexico and Switzerland. They said that the device was manufactured by a company in Anaheim, Calif., but they refused to identify the firm.

After removing the scanner equipment from the plane, the sources said, U.S. agents substituted sandbags.

Weinberger and other Reagan administration officials have been carrying on a campaign to choke off what they regard as the dangerious diversion of U.S. technical know-how to the Soviet Union.

The defense secretary's accusation that the Soviets "tried to steal" the scanner was the harshest language he has used so far.

"As we tighten our own safeguards over technology, we must be prepared for the Soviets to target our friends and allies even more heavily," Weinberger said.

Elaborate terrorist tunnel system found in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An elaborate tunnel network under west Beirut served as a "city within a city" for Palestinian guerrillas — complete with an amusement center and torture chamber, security sources said yesterday.

They also said that the international terrorist Carlos used the tunnels to meet with Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas.

The sources said the four-mile network ran from the Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps to Bourj el-Barajneh next to the airport, and was packed with arms, forged passports and stolen cars. Other sources said helicopters and small submarines were hauled from the tunnels, but that was not confirmed.

The tunnels were discovered late last month, the sources said.

In other Lebanese developments:

—U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib met in Washington with top Reagan administration officials to refine a plan for the phased withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces from Lebanon, followed by the recall of the 1,200 U.S. Marines in the peacekeeping force.

—Israeli officials in Jerusalem, in an apparent softening of earlier positions, said the Palestine Liberation Organization could pull out in stages with the Syrian army, but that all PLO fighters must be out before the last phase of the Syrian and Israeli pullout.

—Lebanese army troops arrested 175 more people in west Beirut, bringing to more than 1,000 the number seized since last week in what the military calls a campaign to pacify the Moslem sector of the capital. The Palestinians fear the drive is to terrorize them and force them to leave the country.

Libertarian Party expands horizons

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — "ALASKA: LAND OF THE INDIVIDUAL ... and Other Endangered Species," proclaims a popular T-shirt.

The message goes a long way toward explaining why the Libertarian Party has found a home in Alaska, where it enjoys much more political power than anywhere else in the country.

Dick Randolph of Fairbanks, who preaches unfettered individual rights and freedom from government interference, was the first Libertarian ever elected to office in a state when he won a seat in the Alaska House of Representatives in 1978.

The number of Libertarian state legislators anywhere in the country doubled in 1980 when Alaska voters re-elected Randolph and sent Ken Fanning, also of Fairbanks, to join him in the 40 member house.

This year, with 15 candidates, Libertarian Party officials say they expect to pick up three or four additional seats in the Legislature. Randolph, 46, wants to succeed retiring Republican Gov. Jay Hammond.

The Libertarian Party, which considers itself the country's third largest political party, says it will make its views heard in 1982 as never before, even if it fails to score many electoral victories.

It says it will have at least 21 gubernatorial candidates this year, and will have candidates running for enough offices to give 75 percent of the voters a chance to vote for at least one Libertarian.

All told, the party says, 900 to 1,000 advocates of the Libertarian philosophy will be on American ballots in 46 states.

U.S. stance hurts acid-rain solution

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Canadian official warned yesterday that U.S.-Canadian cooperation on acid rain are threatened by the Reagan administration's insistence that not enough is known about the pollution problem to correct it.

"Let's not hide behind a smoke screen," said Robert Slater, assistant deputy minister for Canada's Environmental Protection Service. "While our understanding of acid rain is far from perfect, we know that it is real, man-made and damaging."

Slater said his government has been "deeply disappointed" by the U.S. position reiterated here Wednesday by Anne Gorsuch, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"This has been a bitter pill for us to swallow," Slater said at the final session of a two-day symposium on acid rain.

Since signing a memorandum of intent in August, the two nations have been negotiating possible ways to curb air pollution across the border. Slater said Minister of Environment John Roberts has asked his staff to determine whether the talks are worth continuing.

"President Reagan has confirmed the U.S. commitment to work out an agreement... and indicated our expectation that the negotiation would be lengthy," said Robin Porter, the State Department's environmental specialist for Canadian affairs.

Acid rain is generally considered the product of chemical reactions involving sulfur dioxide and nitrous oxide pollutants, plus water vapor and other substances in the air.

AP Laserphoto

Maine Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn Manuel empties some of the 30,000 young Atlantic Salmon placed yesterday into the Saco River in Limington, Maine. The stocking of the southern Maine river represents the first official attempt at bringing back fish to the area.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Bill Wall
Layout Technician — Brad Eden
Assistant Photo Editor — Jim Powers
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Donna Maurice, Annie Gardner, Alan Steinberg, Dano Welsh, Will Hopkins, Alyssa Rusiecki, Terri Cooper, Scott Stockwell, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver, Adrianne Dufor, Laurie Frank, Lynn Eisenberg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Retraction

In Wednesday's Collegian the main story about the nuclear freeze rally held on campus contained an erroneous statement which we would like to retract.

In the story, it was reported that "many people complained the members of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, who were serving as student security in that area, were doing most of the pushing, (Associate Director of Public Safety Phil) Cavanaugh said."

This statement is untrue. Cavanaugh did not make such a statement and no complaints were filed with the University police or other groups about pushing or any other improper activity by PIKE members or anyone else.

The error was the result of a reporting mistake and miscommunication between the several reporters and editors who prepared the story.

The Collegian regrets the error and apologizes to all those involved.

Correction

In yesterday's Collegian, a story on the University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees' passage of a tuition waiver package indicated the waivers would be available to spouses and children of professors and other professional staff members. The waivers, in fact, will be available to all non-student, full-time University employees in categories "01" and "02."

In addition, the story on the Undergraduate Student Senate's passage of funding to send a group of students to the Progressive Student Network inadvertently reported the amount as $712,000. The Senate actually allocated $712 for the trip.

The Collegian apologizes for these errors.

See Digest on page 4

Interest in video games spurs expansion

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Jim Fontenarosa, a senior chemical engineering major, begins a game of Qix after feeding it one of the over one million quarters now spent yearly in Campus Center video games.

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

In the past year more than 1.5 million quarters were dropped into the 40 various video-games and pinball games in the Campus Center.

In response to the overwhelming demand 20 more video-games are now being installed throughout the building.

Last year the Campus Center took in $226,537 out of $365,382 made on the games, said Mohhammad Idrees, the financial manager of the Campus Center.

"By installing 20 additional machines the Campus Center hopes to further increase the revenue made off of video-games," he said.

Waiting lines can usually be seen around the machines located in the arcade, the games area, and in the Blue Wall.

"I enjoy playing other people's creation plus it relieves anxieties brought on by school, said computer system engineering major David Pickett.

"I had a lot of free time and the video games wake me up so I can keep studying," Junior Tony Bullock said. Bullock said until recently he never played the games. Now he said he spends almost two hours a day and $5 a week in the video arcade.

"The money from video-games goes towards maintenance and operation costs for both the Campus Center and the Student Union Building (SUB)," Idrees said.

Maintenance and operations include custodial services, maintaining studen' meeting rooms, staffing the informatio' desk, and repair work such as that presen' ly underway on the ceiling in the SUE. Winthrop Cummings, manager of the University Store/Retail Services, said.

Cummings said the UMass contract with Trico-Vending of East Hampton, in which the Campus Center receives 62 percent of the gross profit from the video machines, "is one of the best in the country."

"The unusually high percentage is due to the volume of the business and the fact that the machines are located so close to one another. This means lower overhead costs for Trico," Idrees said.

Gary Childs, an employee of Trico, said, "The contract UMass has with Trico is the best in New England and volume is why UMass got such an unusually good deal."

Across the country it is standard practice for the receipt split to be 50-50, in which case the deal depends on service, Childs said.

Plans for the expansion of the video game area in front of the billiard room have been approved, Bud Wilkes, assistant director of the Campus Center, said.

"By removing some machines from the arcade and expanding the game area we hope to make it less congested," Wilkes said. "Renovations will begin during intercession or this summer, but the date has not been finalized."

BOG sees annex profit as way to pay off C.C. debts

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) last night announced plans to take a "reasonable" stand on trying to use the increasing profits of the Textbook Annex to pay off the Campus Center debt, which could possible lower the existing fee that all University of Massachusetts students must pay towards it.

Craig Freedman, BOG finance coordinator, said he and two other members of the board met with Acting Vice-Chancellor John DeNyse to discuss the proposal of using the Textbook Annex profits to help pay the Campus Center's annual bond debt payments, instead of using the extra money to subsidize certain operations in the building that are financially unsuccessful, namely The Food Services Department.

"The acting vice-chancellor was very receptive to listening to our proposal and seemed to be willing to negotiate further," Freedman said. The outcome of the meeting was an agreement between both sides to set up a committee consisting of members of the University administration, Auxillary Services and the BOG to further negotiations on the subject.

"The problem lies in the fact that buying books at the Textbook Annex is a mandatory fee similar to the Campus Center Fee because you have no other choice," Freedman said. "The annex is making approximately $13 per head on every student that buys books there and is then funneling the money back into the Campus Center and funding losing operations; therefore it becomes just another hidden fee that students pay but are not aware of."

The BOG is concerned about making students aware of what they are actually paying for and exactly how much they are paying for it, BOG chair Ron Keefe said.

"This movement would help students across the board because the amount of profits the annex makes is big enough that if it were applied to pay off the Campus Center debt, it might even roll back and lower the mandatory Campus Center fee, which would be beneficial for everyone," Freedman said. "This is a very big issue and the BOG wants to make a reasonable stand on it as well as creating widespread support from other campus organizations."

New bent in psychology offered by Chicopee man

By PAUL BELVAL
Collegian Staff

Kenneth Collins claims he can help the world and he is willing to be arrested to prove it.

Collins, 35, of Chicopee, has originated a theory concerning the function of the brain, but says no one will listen to him.

So next Wednesday, beginning at 10 a.m., he will start a sit-in protest of the scientific community on the Campus Center concourse.

Collins has one demand. "I seek simply to make the gift of knowledge."

His theory states that when the brain is excited by something unknown to it, it will react in a way to escape the unknown situation and return the brain back to its normal state.

Collins said if a person is walking through the woods and sees a bear, and if he has never seen a bear before, he will turn and run, not because he is afraid of the bear, but because his brain tells him he must escape the unknown situation.

Collins, who holds a bachelor of science degree from Springfield College, said he began work on his theory in 1971 and completed it two years ago. Since then, he has taken his theory to people in the neuropsychology field across the country, but to no avail.

"I came to professors saying, 'I've got this beautiful thing to show you,' and they end up saying, 'How can you say that? We won't know enough to say that for another 100 years,'" he said.

"In the history of science, every revolutionary idea has gone through this period of non-acceptance," he said.

While doing research for this theory, Collins said he faced some hard times.

"I've lived in attics, cellars, single rooms and in rooms without heat. To write the last papers, I lived on dry spaghetti," he said.

Collins said he picked the University of Massachusetts for his protest because he took graduate courses at the school, and has contact with many people here.

"A large number of these people were my professors," he said.

Collins said he has expanded his theory to explain racial prejudice and the ghetto experience.

"This biological goal which takes precedence over behavioral considerations is responsible for racial prejudice," he said. "The brain favors that with which it is familiar over that which is unknown."

"The ghetto environment is familiar. The way the brain processes information keeps the person in the ghetto," he said. "When the ghetto person operates outside the ghetto environment, he experiences anxiety and returns to the ghetto environment."

Continued on page 6

Various activities planned to celebrate forthcoming Homecoming weekend

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Homecoming weekend, commemorating the hundredth year of football at the University of Massachusetts, begins tonight with a bonfire and concert followed by a parade, a football game against Delaware and a Greek Area party at the Blue Wall.

The festivities begin tonight at 7 at the Campus Pond where the University Marching Band, cheerleaders, football captains and coaches will participate in a short program before lighting the bonfire.

Homecoming celebrates the Minutemen's return from their first road trip of the year. During the past three weeks, the Minutemen traveled to Holy Cross, Rhode Island and Harvard.

At 8 p.m., the departments of music and dance will sponsor a Multiband Pops concert at the Fine Arts Center.

Admission is free to the performance, which features the Minutemen Marching band and guest appearances by singer Beau Flahive and Irish uilleann piper Damian Lyons. The Jazz Ensemble 1, Percussion Ensemble, Symphony Band, UMass Marimbas, Brass Choir, Vocal Jazz Ensemble, Afro-American Music Ensemble, and Wind Ensemble will also perform.

Fraternities and Sororities, Southwest Area Government and the Student Government Association will compete in a float contest during the parade which begins at Hasbis Mall at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

Cartoons are the theme of the float contest, which will be judged by University officials, according to Peggy Jablonski, director of the Greek Area.

She said the University Marching Band, UMass cheerleaders, equestrian team and UMass ROTC pro- will also participate in the parade.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Kenneth Collins, who said he will begin a sit-in protest of the scientific community next week in the Campus Center, explains his theory concerning a person's intrinsic fear of the unknown.

Industry attacks nuke waste-site referendum

BOSTON — Opponents of a ballot question that would require public approval before radioactive waste dumps could be located in Massachusetts said yesterday that passage would harm the economy and medicine.

The referendum, if passed, "could deprive Massachusetts of essential medical, research and industrial services," said John Dendahl, vice chairman of a group calling itself the Committee for Responsible Policy on Low-Level Nuclear Waste.

Dendahl also said at a news conference that passage could "force Massachusetts to handle its low-level radioactive waste alone, rather than regionally, and could allow voters across the state to impose a low-level radioactive waste facility on one community."

The measure, one of five questions on the November ballot, is an initiative petition brought by the Massachusetts Nuclear Referendum Campaign. Unlike another nuclear-related question on the ballot, one seeking a moratorium in the arms race, this one isn't advisory. It will become law if passed.

Elbert M. Giordano, campaign manager of the group behind the referendum, said it was, in part, a response to negotiations involving about 10 states for a regional low-level nuclear waste dump.

At issue is the low-level radioactive waste generated by nuclear power plants and industrial, research and medical facilities. Highly radioactive waste, such as nuclear fuel rods, is not included. These wastes are currently stored at the power plants, under federal control. But the federal government has given the states until 1986 to resolve their own low-level waste disposal problems.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Gubernatorial hopefuls raise charity money

BOSTON — Democrat Michael S. Dukakis and Republican John W. Sears stopped campaigning long enough yesterday to take part in a charitable fund-raising event before resuming their battle for governor.

The two candidates joined Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in roasting a local television personality to benefit The Genesis Fund, which raises money for the treatment and prevention of birth defects.

Sears also released an inhouse poll yesterday taken after the Sept. 14 primary which shows him running far behind Dukakis in the governor's contest.

The statewide telephone survey of 300 adults said 58 percent were for Dukakis, 21 percent for Sears, 2 percent for Independent Frank Rich and 19 percent were undecided. The poll had an estimated margin of error of 4 percent.

Sears said he was pleased with the results of issue questions asked in the survey. When voters were asked whom they would prefer if "Sears is for cutting taxes further and Dukakis against cutting taxes," they backed Sears 41-40 percent. But Dukakis has not said he is against cutting taxes.

On capital punishment, which Sears supports and Dukakis opposes, Sears had a 46-42 edge. The Republican also was preferred by a wide margin on a crime questions.

Bottle Bill proponents condemn skullduggery

BOSTON — Backers of the state's new bottle deposit law charged opponents yesterday with waging a "secret campaign" in which trade organizations are raising money in alleged violation of state law.

Proponents of the bottle law, on the November ballot for repeal, filed a complaint with the state asking for an investigation of the Voter Education Committee and other groups in the industry-backed, anti-bottle bill camp.

Douglas H. Phelps, manager of the pro-bottle bill campaign, said he hopes the complaint will "require that the Office of Campaign and Political Finance force the industry to reveal the extent of their campaign and who's funding it.

"That's the important thing we think people have a right to know," he said.

Specifically, the proponents charge four trade organizations with raising funds for the antibottle bill campaign, without registering as political action committees and reporting their financial activity, which they say is required by state campaign finance law.

Tracey Helland, spokeswoman for the campaign to repeal the law, said, "We have an excellent campaign attorney in William McDermott... He's the best lawyer on this kind of law in the state. There is no way that he would let his clients violate the law. These are business people ... they simply would not violate the law. I just think the allegations are not well founded."

McDermott could not be reached for immediate comment at his office.

Phelps said the Voter Education Committee has raised more than $700,000 so far — 90 percent of it from 10 donors — and he expects that campaign to raise $3 million in all before the election is over. The proponents have raised about $206,000 so far — from thousands of individuals contributors — and expect to raise another $100,000, he said.

The bottle law becomes effective in January, and requires 5 and 10 cent deposits on beer and soft drink containers.

Greenfield police told to reinstate woman

GREENFIELD — The Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination has ordered Greenfield selectmen to reinstate a woman to the town police force with seniority and back pay as of May 1.

The ruling by MCAD hearing commissioner Kenneth Cote is the latest development in a fight that began February 1980 between Susan Heath, 24, and the town. Cote's ruling was dated Monday.

Miss Heath, a reserve police officer, alleges that the town rejected her for a full-time appointment to the force only because she is a woman.

Cote ruled in July that the town discriminated against Miss Heath and ordered the town to pay her $34,000 in damages and hire a woman for each man hired until three women are on the reserve force.

Selectman Chairman Ann Hamilton and acting police chief David McCarthy refused comment on the decision.

AP Laserphoto

Mrs. Robert Boyd hugs her dog while standing in front of her tornado damaged house at Cape Coral, Fla. yesterday. The family's boat was moved more than 40 feet in the Wednesday night storm and landed in the swimming pool. More than $1 million in damages was reported done to the more than 30 homes hit by the storm.

1982 UMASS FOOTBALL

THIS SATURDAY, Oct. 9th

Homecoming

UMass vs. Delaware Blue Hens

UMass Undergraduate Students with valid ID No Charge

The Blue Hens deserve their reputation as one of the finest football teams in the East. Every time the Minutemen go head to head with the Blue Hens, it's a show that is long remember. An exciting and open brand of football — look for a real thriller.

KICK-OFF 1:30 P.M.

ALUMNI STADIUM, AMHERST

Reserved seats $6 545-0810

TICKET OFFICE BOYDEN BLDG., UMASS.

UMASS '82 HOME GAMES REMAINING

Oct. 30, 1:30 - Connecticut
Nov. 6, 1:00 - Boston College
Nov. 13, 1:00 - New Hampshire
Nov 20, 1:00 - A.I.C.

John Lee Hooker and the Coast To Coast Blues Band IN CONCERT

Saturday Oct. 16th
SUB/UMass 8 pm.
Gen. ADM...$3 404 SUB UMass
Tix Unlimited--UMass
Tickets on Sale at: For More Info...545-2145
For the Record--Amherst
Main St. Records-N'ton
Commuter Office--

SPONSORED BY THE COMMUTER COLLECTIVE & the GOVERNORS PROGRAM COUNCIL

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Professor Geoffrey Boothroyd of the mechanical engineering department, who has spent 15 years researching industrial production methods, compares a door latch with a simplified model constructed with techniques he developed.

Professor's design for lock could key economic surge

By DIANE KADZIS
Collegian Staff

Dr. Geoffrey Boothroyd, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Massachusetts, sat yesterday in his Engineering East office with two door latches designed to secure a Xerox copy machine resting on his desktop. The metal parts, while they each serve the same function, are distinct in their characteristics: one is composed of 62 intricate nuts and bolts and the other is made up of only 17 mechanical ingredients.

The simplified model, built with a savings of about two dollars, was constructed using methods of industrial design originated by Boothroyd in an effort to promote the regeneration of an ailing American economy.

Detailed in a federally funded publication titled "Design for Assembly — A Designer's Handbook," Boothroyd's strategies highlight the importance production design can play in "manufacturing efficiency." Despite the difficulty of introducing new designs to established companies, major corporations such as Digital, IBM, Xerox and General Electric are currently observing Boothroyd's techniques in their own work places.

"The design of a product is the first step of the manufacturing process and is where the costs are fixed. Our interest," said Boothroyd, "is to teach designers in industry to make better decisions and tradeoffs."

One aspect of Boothroyd's design scheme introduces robotic assembly to the production process. Gearing the manual assembly process toward automation would help to facilitate cost reductions and quality increases, he said.

"There has to be a definite future for robotics in American industry. There is a desperate need to assist people to do the job — not to replace them," he said.

Boothroyd said the 15 years he has given to researching methods of production were an outgrowth of an American attitude of economic superiority to the rest of the world. Because industrialists in the United States were "overconfident" about their production methods, Boothroyd said international manufacturing rivals like Japan and West Germany have accelerated their economies while the United States industrial climate has remained stagnant.

"Obviously the economic situation is bad and we are continually losing a competitive edge," he said. "Japan and West Germany have put a lot more effort into design products.

Institute seeks to inform UMass community about global issues

By WILLA WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

The Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities, formed in 1981 by Provost Loren Baritz, attempts to keep faculty, students, and the public informed on world issues.

One part of the organization consists of faculty members running seminars for faculty. "The purpose is to bring together faculty from (all departments) to talk about issues that interest them. These seminars are not open to the public," Acting Director Julius Lester said.

For the public, the institute organizes seminars which "bring the humanities to bear on important questions and issues to the general public.", Lester said.

The major efforts of the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities are to "bring intellectual thought to the real world," "break down departmentalization," and "get people talking on the level of ideas," Lester said. "You don't hear people getting excited about ideas."

This year the Institute is sponsoring a Dialogue Series comprised of three public seminars each semester. This series' aim is to "bring faculty, students, and the general public together to discuss ideas that are of concern to the Humanities," Lester said.

The next public seminar in this Dialogue Series is titled, "Humanistic Values, Intellectuals, and the Pursuit of Utopia." The speakers will be Paul Hollander, professor of sociology, and Johnetta Cole, professor of anthropology. It will be held at 8 p.m., Oct. 27, in Mahar Auditorium.

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

Old farm equipment, long made obsolete, now spends its autumn afternoons in the Farm Museum on Route 9 in Hadley. Such relics, donated by local harvesters, fill four museum floors.

Newslines . . .

Free photo session for Dean's list students

The University News Bureau will send free photos of students who made the Dean's list to the student's hometown paper if he wishes. The photo sessions are scheduled to be held in Rooms 168 and 169 of the Campus Center from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Students whose last names begin with the letters A to L can have their photos taken on Oct. 12, and those with last names beginning with the letters M to Z can have their photos taken Oct. 13.

DELANO'S

OCTOBER'S HAPPY HOUR SPECIAL
2 for 1
Beck's Beer
plus our original twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10 - midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St
253-5141

Homecoming Fallfest
Sat. Oct. 9th
Live Band
at
Kappa Sigma
B.Y.O.B.
(cans only)
10 pm - ?
$1.00 Cover

PARTY with
THE FANTINI BROS
THE AREA'S FAVORITE DANCE BAND
WED. OCT. 13 HANGAR ONE

BICYCLE WORLD

104 Federal St.
Greenfield, Mass

Save 10%/30%
• Univega
• Motobecane
• Puch

Selection of used bikes available
50% X/C skis
774-3701

Herpes knowledge helps combat fear of the disease

By PAULA HOYT
Collegian Staff

The nationwide panic concerning Herpes may be an over-reaction to the actual threats posed by the disease, according to a health educator at the University of Massachusetts.

"People tend to associate Herpes with an incurable disease, and fail to realize that it is a very localized and manageable one with which the body can easily cope," said Debbie Edelman, a health educator at UMass.

"Part of the phobia spreading the nation is not knowing enough about Herpes," Edelman said.

The Herpes virus is characterized by a red rash and small blisters on the skin. Herpes Simplex II affects the genital areas and is usually transmitted by sexual or close skin contact with an infected person.

"Many people don't realize that cold sores and fever blisters are a form of Herpes (Simplex I), and can be transmitted to someone's genitals," Edelman said.

The initial outbreak is the worst, and the sores are simply the body's way of fighting the virus, Edelman said.

The virus is capable of lying dormant in the body, and periodically there are recurrences of symptoms, Edelman said.

Serious complications from Herpes are very rare, said Edelman. Symptoms usually disappear in four to six weeks for the initial outbreak and seven to ten days for recurrent outbreaks, she said.

Edelman said it is important for people who have the disease to be honest about it with those with whom they are having sexual relations.

"The best way to lower the risk of transmitting the disease is for people to be direct and up front about the situation," Edelman said.

The incidence of Herpes is increasing all over the country, and particularly on college campuses, where people are sexually active with more than one partner, Edelman said. "It is important for people to learn about Herpes, regardless of whether or not they have it."

Edelman provides Herpes education on an individual basis at the University Health Services. She facilitates workshops for the community and dormitories, as well as educational sessions for concerned couples.

There has been an incredible increase in requests for Herpes workshops, more people are calling and coming in with questions, Edelman said.

"The people coming in seeking out information are at a lower risk for transmission because they are educating themselves about Herpes," Edelman said. "People who educate themselves and others about herpes are doing everything possible to prevent it. Through education people learn to recognize when they are at a higher risk for transmission," she said.

An educational workshop and discussion on Herpes will be held on December 7 at the University Health Center. Those interested in learning the facts about Herpes can pre-register for the workshop by calling Health Education at 549-2671, ext. 181.

Additional workshops can be arranged upon request.

★protest

Continued from page 3

Neil Carlson, a psychology professor at UMass, said he spoke briefly to Collins about his theory before, but really doesn't understand it.

"I don't know enough about it to evaluate it," Carlson said. "He's saying what he's done is something no one else has done and that he's done it by reading and by insights he's gotten sitting in an attic."

Collins said he wished he had another alternative to find a way to present his theory, but he has none.

"I'm embarrassed that I have to do it, but I want to make a contribution to science," he said. "It runs contrary to my nature to raise hell like this."

PRECISION HAIRCUT

only $12.50

(Includes Shampoo, Cut & Styling)

We also specialize in perms, cellephanes, highlighting and braiding.

Mon - Sat
10:00 - 9:30
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-6182

NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY

GREAT EXPECTATIONS
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS

the Hungry U Restaurant

55 University Dr.
Amherst, MA
549-5713

Good Food and Drink
served in a comfortable, friendly atmosphere

1.) Delicious Luncheon Specials at $2.49
Mon - Fri 11:30 - 3:00
2.) Dinner Special for 2 - $8.95
Friday - Baked Boneless Breast of Chicken
or
Baked Stuffed Schrod
3.) 50' off any dessert - just mention this ad
4.) Daily Happy Hours 2:00 - 5:00 - FREE PIZZA!

Baseball Style Jacket
Special Purchase 19.95

Printed Back

Color - maroon/white

Sizes S-M-L-XL
Limited Quantities Available

Located in the Clothing Department
Open M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

FRI.
HAPPY HOUR
3-6 with Cliff Meyers
D.J. DANCE PARTY
with Fern Spierer
FREE/Album Giveaways

SAT. HOMECOMING
HAPPY HOUR
with Cliff Meyers
4-7 PM

Linguistics department interacts with other majors

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

In the past 20 years, linguistics has become a rapidly growing and changing field. By working with other disciplines, such as psychology and computer science, researchers hope to develop talking computers and gain a better understanding of the human mind.

"On the bases of studying individual languages, people are arriving at a conception of what a possible human language actually is. Ultimately it will tell us the nature of the human mind," said Lisa Selkirk, acting director of the Linguistics Department.

Selkirk said linguistics is the scientific study of language which began in the 19th century but is today rapidly changing and developing.

"It has exploded in the last 20 years," she said.

"The department works closely with other departments at the University such as psychology, philosophy, computer science, and the language departments, she said.

Computer science has developed close connections with linguistics in the attempt to understand the mathematical properties of the human language, she said.

Computer scientists are interested in developing the science fiction type computer that can speak with programmers in English, she said, and linguistics is an important part of that area of research.

"At the abstract level, the emphasis is in trying to understand what kind of properties the human language has. In order to make a computer speak, you have to write down in black and white what English is," she said.

The Linguistics Department was designated as a "center of excellence" in the Chancellor's Long Range Plan, Selkirk said. Some of the most prominent people working in the field of linguistics are in the department, she said.

Some of the people are:Department Head Emmon Bach and Professor Barbara Partee, who are recognized for their research in semantics (sentence meaning); Alan Prince and Lisa Selkirk, for research in phonological theory; Professor Rodger Higgins and Edwin Williams, for their significant contributions to syntactic theory; and Professors Tom Roper and Lyn Fraizier, for research in psycholinguistics.

Selkirk said Roper and Fraizier are studying how children acquire language and how people process sentences. She said their research in psycholinguistics includes the search for psychological evidence of particular aspects of linguistics theory.

Selkirk said Noam Chomsky, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, made contributions that gave basic shape to what modern linguistics theory is. She said he believed linguistics could be thought of as a branch of cognitive psychology.

The Linguistics Department offers seven joint majors which are a combination of linguistics with anthropology, Chinese, German, Japanese, philosophy, and Russian. Students can also arrange a joint major not offered in linguistics through the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration program.

Selkirk said the job market for linguistics is primarily for Ph.D.'s and is rather limited. However, some training in linguistics can be an extremely helpful supplement to specialization in other areas such as psychology, philosophy, foreign languages, English, communication studies, speech therapy, and computer science, she said.

For the last few years, the departments of linguistics, psychology, computer science, and philosophy have been the recipients of the Sloan Foundation Grant for the study of cognitive science, Selkirk said.

"The funds have fostered a lot of interdisciplinary work. They have sponsored workshops with speakers from all over the world as well as on-going research groups on campus," she said.

"The grant has created a stimulating atmosphere for research," she said.

Selkirk said the Five-College Linguistics Committee has put together a proposal for a Five-College linguistics major which is under consideration.

"The Five-College major seeks to pool resources so students from any college could pursue a full program of study that makes use of all the schools," she said.

The home for Beautiful Classics...

16 Main St., Amherst
253-9800
Daily 9-5:30

Patterson House Presents
The Fantini Bros
at Hangar One
Wednesday, Oct. 13th - 8-1 am
$2.50 at the door
Drink Specials Rock-A-Disc
"I live for weekends party"

$2.95 $2.95
HOT-L WARREN
South Deerfield Center 665-8757
ALL THE BEER YOU CAN DRINK
(your choice ice cold domestic drafts with this ad and college ID)
BAR DRINKS $1.00 ALWAYS
* Shuffleboard free * * Pool Table * * Video Games *
Home of the Best Oldies Juke Box in the Valley

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

DOMESTIC

Budweiser 12 oz NR bottles..... $8.99/case
Busch 12 oz cans only..... $7.99/case
Falstaff 12 oz cans..... $6.99 now $6.49/case

IMPORTED

Becks (light or dark)..... was $15.95 now $14.99/case
$3.99/6-pk
Labatt's (beer or ale)..... $10.49/case
$2.99/6 pk

WINE

Sebastiani Mountain Rose, Rhine, Chablis, Burgundy
..... $4.69/1.5 liters
Folonari Soave..... $4.59 now $3.99/1.5 liters

Many more in store SPECIALS
Posters in stock — NO CHARGE

PRIME CUT, the pant you look at twice. A complete selection of current styles and colors. Priced from 18.95 to 34.95

Downtown Amherst

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas

家酒園南湖

Hunan Garden Restaurant

MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE

"The Best Chinese Food"

Luncheon Specials
Take-Out Service

Sunday Brunch
$5.25 per person
All You Can Eat
11:30-3:00

Dinner Specials
Full Cocktail Menu

Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.

10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 256-0252

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Mike's Smorgy is back!
"All you can eat for $1.00"
Still the best happy hour in town
three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25
Bar drinks - 95¢
4:00 - 7:00

By popular demand
the movie that
"will leave you feeling 10 feet tall" is now playing at theatres everywhere.

Rex Reed, syndicated columnist

AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN

PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRESENTS
A LORIMAR-MARTIN ELFAND PRODUCTION
A TAYLOR HACKFORD FILM
RICHARD GERE · DEBRA WINGER
AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN
Also starring DAVID KEITH and LOUIS GOSSETT, JR. as 'Foley'
Original Music by JACK NITZSCHE · Written by DOUGLAS DAY STEWART
Produced by MARTIN ELFAND · Directed by TAYLOR HACKFORD
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

R RESTRICTED UNDER 17 REQUIRES ACCOMPANYING PARENT OR ADULT GUARDIAN

CHECK LOCAL NEWSPAPERS FOR THEATRE LISTINGS.

Candy it ain't!

Mr. Boston Schnapps.

Look for Mr. Boston's two new cookbooks, the Cordial Cooking Guide and the Spirited Dessert Guide
Available at bookstores or through Warner Books
75 Rockefeller Plaza, Special Sales, Dept. B, New York, New York 10019
Mr. Boston Schnapps, 54, 80, and 100 proof. Produced by Mr. Boston Distiller, Owensboro, KY, Albany, GA • 1982

the rusty nail Inn presents

Fri. Oct. 8
Robin Lane & the Shake

Sat. Oct. 9
Commander Cody

$1.00 off with this ad

You must be 18 to enter. Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937

EDITORIAL/OPINION

In case you haven't noticed

Personally, I never make lists because I feel it is beneath my dignity as a columnist. However, after writing for the Collegian for over a year, I realize I have no dignity left anyway. Some may view the following compilation of quasi-facts to be somewhat of a cop-out on my part..It is.

In case you haven't noticed: UMass really does have a talking Coke machine. It's located in the Student Union Building and really does say, "Hi, I'm a talking Coke machine." People who are excited about this phenomena are being sent to Tobin for further study.

In case you haven't noticed: the tower library isn't the only thing in Amherst that is sky high. Inflation has hit the copy machines which now cost ten cents instead of a nickle. Do they think they can double the price without anyone protesting? Is one eight and a half by eleven copied page worth ten cents? Is Gnomon Copy receiving kickbacks from Goodell? We might never know.

In case you haven't noticed: fashion marketing majors and uncivilized beasties are all breathing a little easier. That's because the Long Range Plan doesn't exist anymore. And the Year Towards Civility is just a thing of the past. Makes you wonder what's happening in Arizona, doesn't it?

In case you haven't noticed: the "Pond Series" stage has finally been dismantled; much to the dismay of Frank Gironda, who was hoping it would remain erected as a permanent monument to his skills as ex-UPC talent coordinator. Frank is now trying to decide what he's going to do with the 347,422 green stamps he saved in order to have the stage bronzed.

In case you haven't noticed: the PVTA has a new fleet of buses. It's too bad they're still not big enough to cram in the swarming masses that clamor for mass transit. To alleviate this problem, the transportation authorities are considering stringing them together and establishing a monorail system. This new system should dislodge all those freshmen who have been waiting at bus stops for buses that say "Southwest."

In case you haven't noticed: we have a new Chancellor. His name is Joe Duffey and he is to be commended for not doing anything to piss anyone off yet. Let's hope he keeps up the good work.

In case you haven't noticed: the price of most movies on campus for students is up to $1.50. It's like we're seeing first-run films only it's "A Clockwork Orange" for the thirty-seventh time. I guess that's what happens when your student activities fee isn't high enough.

In case you haven't noticed: every September the pools in front of the Fine Arts Center are drained. I didn't even know they were ever filled until this summer. So why are they drained? Is someone worried that Southwest is going to hold a community bubble bath? Is there an incredibly strong, secretive coalition of skateboard riders?

In case you haven't noticed: the "Blue Wall" is probably the only bar in the Western Hemisphere that doesn't have restrooms in it. Why is it that a bar that has such great happy hours has no immediately accessible bathrooms? Does the management get some sort of perverse kick out of watching imbibers lurch across the Campus Center? Those who have problems making the trip are starting a petition to change the name of the "Blue Wall" to the "Yellow Floor."

Cut this list out and study it carefully . . . There'll be a quiz at the end of the semester.

Mary Beth Hebert is a Collegian Columnist

Mary Beth Hebert

Letters

Pi Kappa Alpha responds to charges of freeze rally brutality

To the Editor:

On p.9 of Collegian (Oct. 5) the following was printed in your article "Rally":

"Cavanaugh admitted some pushing and shouting did occur near the area that had been roped off for guests and the press in front of the stage.

Many people complained the members of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity who were serving as student security in that area were doing most of the pushing, Cavanaugh said."

True, members of my fraternity did work security for yesterday's rally, but they flatly deny that any shoving occured. According to Pi Kappa Alpha member Dave Fachetti, "There was no physical pushing. We were instructed under any circumstancs not to let anyone in that roped off section."

Dave adds that, "We (fraternity members) were subjected to insults. Outline the duties of security working in a 10,000 person event...I volunteered three hours of my time to secure a public figure (Kennedy) and stage that probably had a higher chance of being shot at than most that have visited our campus.

If the police thought they could have done a better job I would welcome them to it. We acted to the best of our ability to keep secure a crowd of 10,000 people."

I would personally like to take this opportunity to thank the Collegian for printing second hand accounts (Cavanaugh said "many people complained"), for citing anonymous sources of information ("many people"), and for printing a potential libel ("members of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity who were serving as student security in that area were doing most of the pushing").

As a former Collegian staff member and a senior Journalism-Political Science major, I think I can recognize irresponsible journalism at its best.

Paul Banks
Pi Kappa Alpha

Editors note: The Collegian acknowledges that the information about Pi Kappa Alpha members involved in shoving matches is inaccurate. Furthermore, Associate Director of Public Safety Phil Cavanaugh made no such statements to the Collegian. The inaccurate information appears to be the result of a reporting error. For a more complete explanation, please see the retraction on page two.

The suffering must stop now

This space is usually reserved for opinions concerning the rights of humans, but to quote a well known comedy team, "and now for something completely different:" animal rights.

The animal rights movement, and in particular the anti-vivisectionist movement has in recent years gathered momentum. In it's 1981 coordinator's report put out in January '82, the New York city-based Coalition to Stop Draize Rabbit Blinding Tests detailed recent victories in their drive towards reducing needless animal suffering in laboratories. The coalition had been attempting to halt the federally required Draize Test in which chemicals used in cosmetics are dripped into the eyes of albine rabbits in order to assess the product's irritability to the human eye. Among the results achieved due to the coalition's efforts in 1981 was the commitment of over two and a half million dollars by cosmetic companies such as Revlon for the purpose of developing non-animal alternatives in scientific research.

Bill Thomas

In Europe, where the idea of alternatives to the use of live animals in experiments has been proposed since the adoption of Recommendation 621 by the Council of Europe in 1971, anti-vivisection marches to laboratories such as the one that took place this past August 30 to the Huntingdon Research Centre in Huntingdon, England are not uncommon. In Dublin, Ireland, individuals distribute anti-vivisectionist literature in front of Trinity College on a weekly basis. Further evidence of the emergence of a burgeoning animal right's movement can be seen in the September 29th Boston Globe centerpiece feature article on animal right's advocate Dorothy Checchi O'Brien. The significance of this article is its location on page two in a space that the Globe usually reserves for more conventional political profiles.

What are the reasons for the increased activism on the part of animal right's groups? One is that the protracted debate among research scientists themselves concerning the validity of findings derived from animal experiments. For example the LD (lethal dose) 50 test still in use today tests the toxicity of drugs by administering compounds or agents to a group of laboratory animals until half of the animals die a prolonged death. The LD 50 test continues to be used despite a judgement by Britain's Home Office Animal Experimentation Committee that it "affords no information as to the consequence of long term exposure to the same substance."

Another catalyst spurring the action of humane organizations are recent developments in alternatives to animal experimentation such as the judgement of the Bristol-Myers Company in its November, 1982 report that Dr. Brian Issell's use of human tumor cultures to test new anti-cancer levels of predictability resulting from the use of animal tests in their labs.

Animal experiments may be necessary where there are as of yet no alternatives. But public pressure must be brought to bear on huge corporations that torture animals for profit. These companies have the resources to provide funding to develop alternatives but they will continue to experiment ruthlessly on animals if there is no public outcry on the subject.

It is unlikely that we can solve all of humankind's violent conflicts. However, the pain needlessly experienced by 80 million animals that are routinely injected with poisonous substances, artificially stressed, infected with disease and administered electric shocks, we can do something about. So contact the Humane Society and write that letter demanding that corporations involved in animal experiments actively support research to find alternatives to vivisection.

Bill Thomas is a UMass student.

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Joe Jackson
Sold
Out

New York University
Visits Your Campus to Answer Questions on the M.B.A. Program

Located in the heart of the Wall Street area, New York University's Graduate School of Business Administration has trained students for executive positions for over 60 years. A recent survey by Standard & Poor's ranked New York University number 2 nationwide as the source of graduate education for chief executives in major companies. On Tuesday, October 12, an admissions officer will be on campus to discuss the quality and flexibility of the graduate business program. Check with the Office of Career Development for sign-up schedule and further information.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
PRIVATE UNIVERSITY IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

New York University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity institution

4 to 8:00
Joey D's
Sat.

Post Game.
Happy Hour.

Free: Buffet.
Hot & Cold food.
Bloody Mary. $1.25
Drafts. 50¢
Pitchers. $2.95

Amherst
Best D.J.s
First drink free with this coupon.
Rt. 9
← To UMass
To Joey D's
Stadium
Oldies but Goodies.

Jonathan Reid
Harris-Tweed Sport Coats
&
Camel Hair Sport Coats
Reg. $165.00
NOW only $129.99
Hampshire Mall
(413) 586-5302
Holyoke Mall
Ingleside
(413) 536-4334

Are You Graduating,
But Still Questioning
Your Next Step?
If so, Call "TIPS", at 545-1540,
and ask for TAPES...

*2420 Transcripts
*1034 Professional & Graduate School Examinations
*2427 Placement Service (résumé Guidance)

Feel more confident about the future... now.

IDB TIPS
a Service of Dean of Students Office

12 Montague Road
North Amherst, Mass.
549-6255
aristocrat
A FASHIONABLE APPROACH TO HAIR
A Fashionable Approach to Hair
Hair Cutting for both Men and Women
* Perms *
* Haircoloring *
* Hair Care Products *
Open
Mon-Sat 9-4
T-F evenings

For women
DISTRESSED
by PREGNANCY...
Services that are confidential, helpful, caring and free.
Birthright
Amherst area: 549-1906
Sykl. area: 732-6184

Dinner for Two Enjoy
any two entrees
with salad bar and a complimentary n/a beverage
EVERY FRIDAY $12.95 EVERY FRIDAY
• valid UMass ID holders receive a 15% discount
• validated parking in the Campus Center Garage
• call 549-6000, ext. 639 for further information

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE

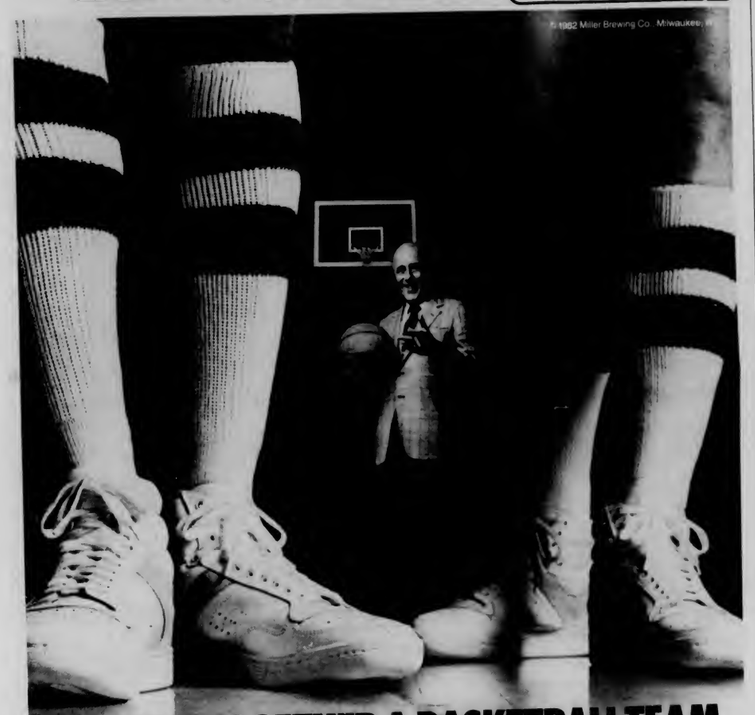
Order Your College Mirror
THE UNIVERSITY SERIES
We offer classic scenes representing every four-year American college. All medical and law schools, too. Each traditional view hand painted by Eglomisé Designs of Boston. Two week delivery. Silver toned frame, 15" x 26". Major credit cards accepted. $120. plus tax.

Fred Houtk Jeweler
AGS Member American Gem Society

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Joey D's
Fri. & Sat.
2 for 1
9 to 11:00
$1. Cover

© 1982 Miller Brewing Co. Milwaukee, WI



PUTTING TOGETHER A BASKETBALL TEAM IS LIKE DRINKING BEER.
START OFF WITH A COUPLE OF TALL ONES.
Red Auerbach

EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

★budget

Continued from page 1

and deserves an accounting of what we do here. There is much to do, and changes to make together as a community," he said. "Here at UMass we cherish and prize individualism. I will seek to explain to the public why this society should cherish and defend vitality."

★ERA

Continued from page 1

Schlafly, whose supporters included Senators Jesse Helm and Orrin HATCH, Secretary of the Interior James Watt, Moral Majority President Jerry Falwell, and persons associated with the John Birch Society and the Christian anti-Communist Crusade. This conservative movement supported the partiarchal family, the exemption of women from the draft and the opposition to abortion.

Shelley said Schlafly capitalized on the confusion surrounding the ERA and was a spokesperson for her point of view and the 15 to 20 percent of the population who think like her.

"If it hadn't been her, it would have been someone else," Shelley said.

"Schlafly is out there taking advantage of opportunities she says she doesn't want women to have," Shelley said.

"The so-called nuclear family, where Mom stays home and doesn't work for pay outside the home and where Dad works outside the home, is 17 percent of the population. The world these people are talking about and trying to protect by attacking the ERA doesn't exist."

The sex bias of legislators was another defeating factor, Jackman said, as only 12 percent of state legislators are women.

"State legislators who were publically on record in support of the ERA actually voted against it," Shelley said. "This happened over and over again."

State Equal Rights Laws and Title IX

NOW literature says, "There can be no 'E.R.' (equal rights) without the 'A' (Amendment to the Constitution)." Shelley said women need the ERA even when a state's equal rights laws and the congressional statutes, including Title IX, protect them.

"Sixteen state legislatures have state equal rights. In some cases it is a law and in some cases it is an amendment to the Constitution. If it is a law, it can be removed; that's why it was important that the ERA be passed," Shelley said.

Shelley said the Legal Defense Fund of NOW did a study which revealed that state equal rights legislation promoted administrative changes rather than the heavy burden of litigation many feared. Laws were revised and made more gender-equal.

Title IX states that educational institutions receiving federal funds cannot discriminate on the bases of gender. Shelley notes, for example, that this legislation has helped open up sports for women at the college and high school level.

However, "it's legislation that can be removed through a majority vote in both houses," Shelley said. "Title IX is on the social agenda of the Moral Majority, they want to get rid of it."

ERA Reintroduced

Despite the defeat of the ERA, the struggle NOW wages to obtain equal rights for women is not over. During the summer, the ERA was re-introduced in the House and Senate, although NOW did not support this move. Jackman explained that NOW considers many legislators pushing it are opportunists and are soliciting votes for the November elections.

This change in strategy means that "NOW is not going to seriously consider ERA ratification until we have changed the political composition of legislatures; until we have elected more women, feminists and pro-ERA legislators," Jackman said.

Political Endorsement

As part of future NOW strategy, "national and state Political Action Committees (PACs) have been developed to back certain candidates who support equal rights for women, including economic, minority and lesbian rights," said Shelley.

The local chapter will be involved in evaluating and endorsing candidates, in addition to fund raising, Shelley said.

The NOW National Conference will be held Oct. 8 to 10 in Indianapolis, Indiana.

"We will face a national election of officers, look at the vision of the organization and get some sense of the direction on which we want to go," Shelley said.

"NOW was effective in politicizing people and we built a strong core of organizers. We came out of the ERA campaign strong," Jackman said.

Arts

UMass artist gives conceptual performance at FAC

Collegian photos by David May

Wednesday night outside the Fine Arts Center, BDIC student Paul Cercone presented a live conceptual art performance which can certainly be described as interesting. While a crowd of about 50 stood by and watched, Cercone gave a short talk covering such things as energy, evolution, revolution, tar, and soap.

Dean's List Students

The University News Bureau would like to send a picture and a news release about your academic achievement to your hometown paper. For a FREE photo, please go to room 168/169 in the Campus Center (downstairs).

A - L Tuesday, October 12

M - Z Wednesday, October 13

Photo sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. If you have any questions, please call Joan Ashwell at the News Bureau, 545-0444.

Arts

Avant fest fascinates

THE FALL OF THE ROMANOV DYNASTY
KINO PRAVDA #21
Wednesday, September 29
Pleasant St. Theatre

By Chris Hyde
Collegian Correspondent

Two films were shown last Wednesday night at the Pleasant St. Theater that demonstrated how creative the Soviet cinema was in the ten or fifteen year period just following the 1917 revolution.In addition to being indicative of the innovation occuring in the film medium at that time, these two films also showed the way in which a strong revolutionary statement could be made by assembling and editing together raw footage of realism.

First on the program was Dziga Vertov's Kino Pravda number twenty one. This extremely well-edited film examined different aspects of life in post-revolutionary Russia, exposing the audience to the building of the Moscow trolly system, the organizing of peasants into communes, army tanks leveling an area for an airport, and other Soviet events and institutions of the day. Hardly any of this was important in its subject matter alone, but Vertov's use of juxtaposition and his different, revealing camera shots helped to expose the drama that he saw in the "prose of life".

Also shown that night, was Esfir Shub's The Fall of the Romanov Dynasty, which was made during the same period as Vertov's movie, and it belied the influence of its reporter-as-documentarist approach. Made from old newsreel footage that she found in the Museum of the Revolution in Leningrad, Ms. Shub's film ambitiously told the story of the events that led up to the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. By using "home movies" which showed the Czar Nicholas 11 and the upper classes of Russian society engaging in various leisure time activities, and intercutting these with footage of peasants laboring in mines and fields, Shub gave a lucid picture of the disparity which existed between the classes in pre-revolutionary Russian society. In addition, she also utilized subtitles to underline her revolutionary standpoint on the inequality of the old Russian system, for example stating "they even perspire" when she shows the nobles dancing with their ladies. In this manner, Shub used the documentary or "compilation" film to demonstrate certain things about the structure of Russian society before the revolution, by taking old newsreel footage and assembling them together into a fascinating and powerful framework.

Everyone's favorite Disney flick, Bambi, is set for re-release next month.

trailers

By Andy Gordon

Comedy is in the forefront this week. The big news is the announcement of production of Yellowbeard, an all star pirate farce. Set in 1700, the film is headlined by the Monty Python troupe, of which Graham Chapman plays the title character. Also starring are Peter Cook, John Candy, Marty Feldman, Madeline Kahn, Peter Boyle and James Mason. In a major casting coup, Cheech and Chong were signed to play El Nebuloso and El Segundo, a Spanish ruler and his right hand man. The film is budgeted at $8,000,000 and will begin shooting next month in the Caribbean, on the original Mutiny on the Bounty ship.

Set for release next month is Airplane II: the Sequel. The picture brings back Robert Hays, Julie Hagerty, Peter Graves and Lloyd Bridges from the original, as well as adding a slew of other performers, including Chuck Connors as an airport ground controller, Sonny Bono as a mad bomber, Raymond Burr as a judge, Chad Everett as a doctor and, get this, William Shatner as commander of the Alpha Beta space station.

Robert Hays has also been signed to play the lead in Scandalous, which begins filming November 15. The film, which has been billed as a romantic comedy, was written by Lawrence Cohen (Carrie)

Marily Chambers has also just signed for a new movie. The porn star will switch to an R rated format (her second: she starred in David Cronenberg's Rabid a few years back). She plays a country singer trying to make it in the music business, any way she can. The name of the film: Up 'n' Coming.

While we're on the subject of poor taste sexual film titles, United Artists test-marketed the title of the 13th James Bond film and found it wasn't considered offensive by middle America. Octopussy wil open in June with its original title. Roger Moore will again play Bond, Kristina Wayborn is the female lead and Louis Jourdan appears as one of the film's several villains.

Here's a sequel you probably didn't expect. Tony Manero returns in Staying Alive. John Travolta will reprise his Saturday Night Fever role but John Badham, director of the original, will not be able to resume his chores (he's busy filming some fascistic flick called War Games). Who will replace him? Not someone you'd expect. Sylvester Stallone will write, produce and direct the film, but will not act in it.

All the horror masters are teaming up. First, George Romero (Night of the Living Dead) directed Stephen King's Creepshow, which is due out on Halloween. Then, John Carpenter (Halloween) signed to direct King's Firestarter. And now King's The Dead Zone is set to be directed by David Cronenberg (Scanners). Meanwhile, Cronenberg's other new film, Videodrome, has been rescheduled to open in June. The film, a surreal tale involving some bizarre video doings, stars James Woods and Debbie Harry.

If you don't like horror, there's still Disney. The company's Tex is scheduled to open in November, and their animated classic Bambi, is scheduled to be rereleased shortly after.

Richard Dreyfus and Richard Pryor will star together in Aint no Heroes. The film, a World War II comedy, had it's October shooting start postponed because Pryor is still working on Superman III, which is running past schedule. Pryor plays a good guy in Heroes; a bad guy in Superman.

Until then, crowds can catch Richard Pryor as the title character in The Toy, a comedy set to be released this Christmas. Jackie Gleason plays a multi millionaire who brings his spoiled son to a large toy shop. What does the boy want? The salesman. So Gleason "buys" Pryor as a plaything for the brat. Eventually, a friendship blossoms between the two and they are each affected by the situation. The film is based on a French film made several years back by the same name. Gleason, meanwhile, has wrapped work on The Sting II, in which he stars with Mac Davis.

Local Best bet: no best bet this week. No real highlights anyway. Smash Palace at the Pleasant St. Theatre looks good and the Calvin has a Bergman double feature: although they're depressing as hell. Might be a good weekend to catch ET again. Or the midnight showing of Apocalypse Now at the Hampshire 4.

TRAILERS Trivia: Who wrote and recorded the soundtrack to Rebel without a Cause? Answer to last week's question: ET drank Coors, Burt Reynolds drank Budweiser in The Cannonball Run, Richard Gere drand Michelob in An Officer and a Gentleman and everyone drank Rolling Rocks in The Deerhunter.

live wire

By Phil Plante

Commander Cody, minus the Lost Planet Airmen, will be appearing at the Rusty Nail Saturday night.

If you're not going home for mom's cooking this weekend, you might want to investigate some of the better music this valley has had to offer this semester.

Remember Robin Lane? Lane and her band the Shake play at the Rusty Nail tonight. Though things ain't what they used to be for Robin; it isn't that often such a well-known recording artist makes it to the Valley. If you like your old Beatles records a lot, Apple (get it?) is playing at Hangar One for $3. If blues is what you want, The Albert Otis Blues Band is playing at Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton. Spellbound, an original Jazz-Rock band is playing at Plumbley's in Amherst.

The one and only Commander Cody (minus the Lost Planet Airmen) is playing at the Rusty Nail in Sunderland Saturday night. The Commander, who last played in this area during Southwest Day last year, has his own inimitable style of trashy boogie rock. The Valley's own Pleasure Dots will grace Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton and Bluesian George Gritzback will appear at The Iron Horse in Northampton.

Impressionist piano virtuoso George Winston is sold out at The Iron Horse, but there may be tickets at the door for those willing to gamble. Steeley Dan clones, Beau Bolero will appear at the Rusty Nail in Sunderland, and the Museum Direktors, R-Complex and the Junior Hostesses will appear at Hangar One as part of a "New Wave Dance Party." Keep your clothes on as the Hangar's "video simulcast" will be in operation. Last but surely not least, singer-guitarist Shane Devine will be playing Sunday night at Steeplejacks Coffeehouse in Sunderland.

Up coming week: Country great Jesse Winchester will be at The Iron Horse Tuesday the 12th and the following day, Wednesday the 13th, Roger McGuin. songwriter and guitarist for the Byrds, will play with special guests The Psaltry — also at The Iron Horse.

Robin Lane, minus the Chartbusters, will be appearing at the Rusty Nail tonight.

大城中國餐館
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7636

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENT

LAGNAF 83

Headquarters for University of Massachusetts
Sportswear

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-f 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

Prepare For: Out 6th Year
MCAT LSAT · GRE GRE PSYCH GRE BIO DAT · VAT GMAT PCAT OCAT MAT SSAT PSAT SAT
ACT TOEFL MSKP NMB ECFMG FLEX · VQE NDB · NPB RN BDS CPA SPEED-READING® TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
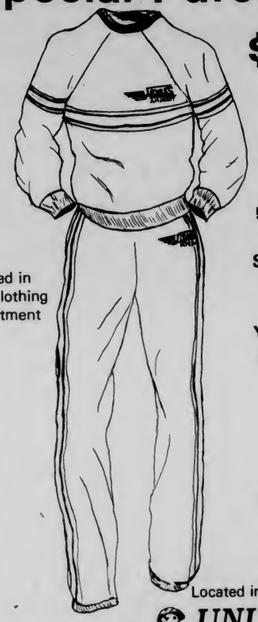
Stanley H. KAPLAN
Educational Center
Call Days Evenings & Weekends
253-5108
264 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
Centers in More than 105 Major U.S. Cities, Puerto Rico and Toronto, Canada
Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE: 800-223-1782

Special Purchase



$26.95
complete Jogging Suit
50% cotton
50% polyester
Sizes Available
S-M-L-XL
Your Choice of Grey, Navy or Maroon
Limited Quantities Available
Located in The Clothing Department
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

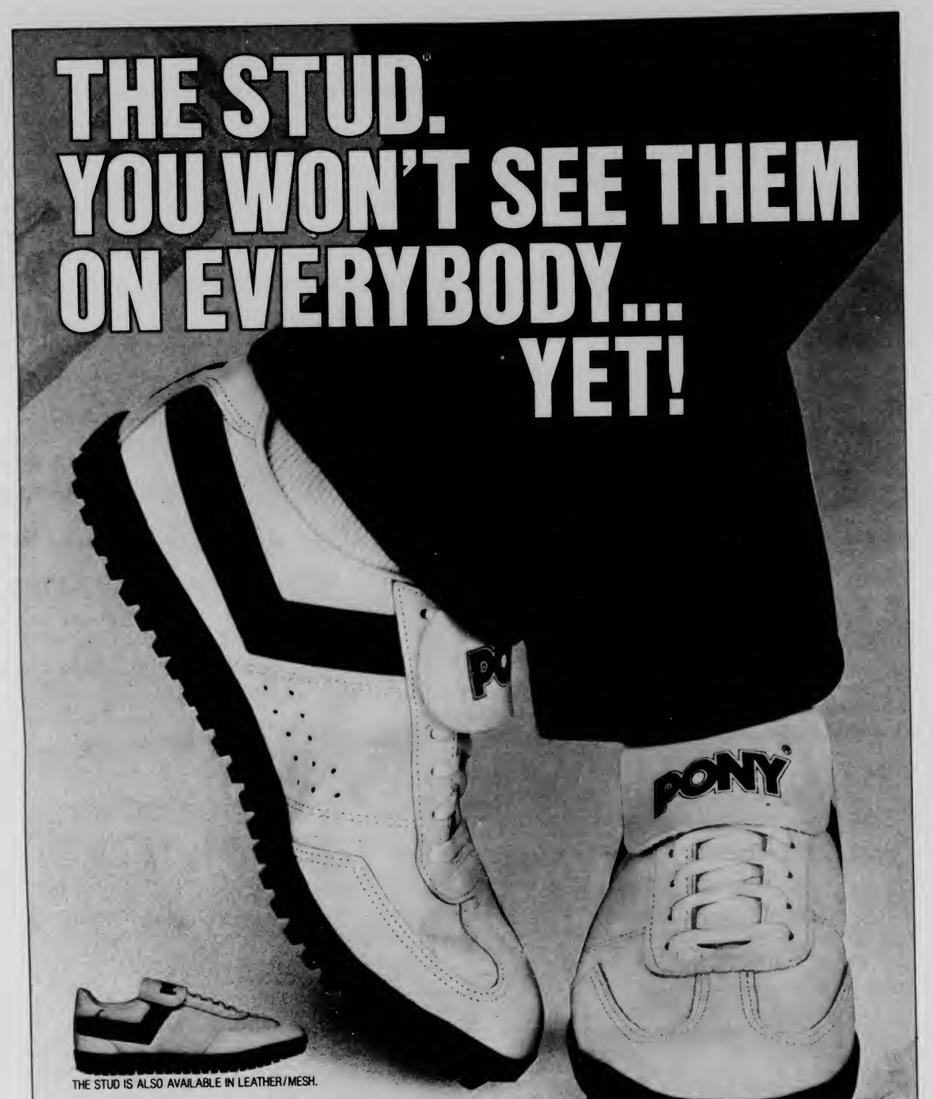
RUGBY SHIRT
Extra Heavy Weight
100% cotton
rubber buttons

Available Sizes
S-M-L-XL
Assorted Colors
For sports, recreation, or relaxing.
Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

FOUR SEASONS
Lite.....cans.....cs $8.99
Rolling Rock Light ...(new item)...cs $8.69
Labatts.....beer & ale.....cs $9.99
Grolsch....12 oz btls save over $3.00....$14.49
Grolsch.....12 oz bts 6 pack.....$3.99
Skol Vodka & Gin.....1.75.....$8.99
Castillo Rum.....1.75.....$9.99
Gordons Gin.....1.75.....$12.99
Old Crow Bourbon.....1.75.....$12.49
Casata jug wines
.....chablis, rose, burgundy 3 L.....$4.99
Sparkling Wine Tasting in the store this Saturday
Premiat "Champagne"
WE DELIVER
Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174

amc THEATRES
$2.00 matinee & twilite
Reduced admission for students and senior citizens with an AMC card
amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL
E.T. (PG) Friday at(5:00 @ $2.) 7:15, 9:30 Sat at(2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.) 7:15, 9:30 Sun at(2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.) 7:15, 9:30 Mon at (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2) 7:15, 8:30
Tess From The Mall (R) Friday at (5:15 @ $2) 7:45, 9:55 Sat at (2:15 & 5:15 @ $2) 7:45, 9:55 Sun at(2:15 & 5:15 @ $2) 7:45, 9:55 Mon at (1:30 & 3:45 @ $2) 8:15, 8:15
RICHARD GERE AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN (R) Fri at (5:00 @ $2) 7:30, 9:55 Sat at (2:15 & 5:00 @ $2) 7:30, 9:55 Sun at (2:15 & 5:00 @ $2) 7:30, 9:55 Mon at (1:00 & 3:30 @ $2) 8:00, 8:30
You've never met anyone quite like Joni (G) Fri at 4:45, 7:15, 9:30 Sat & Sun at 2:00, 4:45, 7:15, 9:30 Mon at 1:00, 3:30, 6:00, 8:15 Special Engagement
amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
A world inside the computer where man has never been. TRON (PG) Fri at (5:00 @ $2) 8:00 Sat at (2:00 @ $2) 8:00 Sun at (2:00 @ $2) 8:00 Mon at (1:30 @ $2) 6:30
THE SOLDIER HE'S OUR GOVERNMENT'S MOST GUARDED SECRET. (R) Fri at (5:15 @ $2) 7:30, 10:15 Sat at (2:30 & 5:15 @ $2) 7:30, 10:15 Sun at (2:30 & 5:15 @ $2) 7:30, 10:15 Mon at (1:30 & 4:00 @ $2) 6:00, 8:30
YES GIORGIO Fri at 10:15 Sat at (5:00 @ $2) 10:15 Sun at (5:00 @ $2) 10:15 Mon at (4:00 @ $2) 8:45
Peter O'Toole in MY FAVORITE YEAR (PG) Fri at (4:45 @ $2) 7:45, 9:55 Sat & Sun at (2:15 & 4:45 @ $2) 7:45, 9:55 Mon at (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2) 8:15, 8:15
ROBIN WILLIAMS He's got a funny way of looking at life THE WORLD ACCORDING TO Garp (R) Fri at (4:30 @ $2.) 7:15, 9:55 Sat at (1:30 & 4:30 @ $2) 7:15, 9:55 Sun at (1:30 & 4:30 @ $2) 7:15, 9:55 Mon at (12:45 & 3:30 @ $2) 8:15, 9:00
MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY 12:15 AM ALL SEATS
amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW (R) 50¢ off to anyone in costume
Apocalypse Now (R)
THE MONSTER MOVIE / AN AMERICAN WEREWOLF IN LONDON (R)
Pink Floyd: The Wall (R)

THE STUD. YOU WON'T SEE THEM ON EVERYBODY... YET!



THE STUD IS ALSO AVAILABLE IN LEATHER/MESH.

BUT YOU CAN GET THEM AT:

Eddie's Sporting Goods
Enfield Mall
Enfield, CT.

Alternative Sports
56 Southwick Rd.
Westfield, MA.

Athletes Choice
348 High St.
Holyoke, MA.

Clark's Sport Shop
289 Main St.
Greenfield, MA.

Fenton's
826 Main St.
Springfield, MA.

Fenton's
53 Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA.

Locker Room
250 Main St.
Greenfield, MA.

Huston's Shoes
Eastfield Mall
Springfield, MA.

Murphy's Trophy and Sports
708 Sumner Ave.
Springfield, MA.

Western Village Sports
32 Main St.
Northampton, MA.

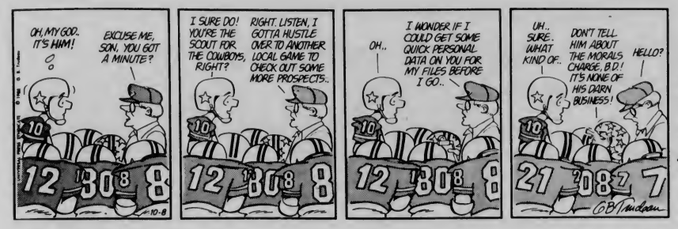
Wilson Sport Shoes
Bay State West
Springfield, MA.

Open Country
All Stores

Foot Locker
All Stores

PONY
THE MARK WITH THE CHEVRON™

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau



The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Gooz by G. Masse

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

DINNER
Seafood Newburg/
Puff Pastry Triangle
Eggs and Sharp Cheese
Cold Plate
Cheese Lasagna with Tomato Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Herbed Soybean Casserole
Turkey Divan

LUNCH
Fishburger on Roll
Tartar Sauce
Turkey Divan

BASICS DINNER
Fresh Zucchini Pie
Seafood Newburg/
Puff Pastry Triangle
Eggs and Sharp Cheese
Cold Plate

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1982 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Puccini heroine
6 Solve
10 King of Norway
14 "What —— boy am I!"
15 Rouge et ——
16 Time of the year
17 Treasured item from infancy
20 Put in the mail
21 Dickens' "Little ——"
22 Like corn stalks
23 Tidal bore
25 4 qts.
26 Shrimp dish
29 impressive entries
33 Tubing of reddish metal
36 Channel between cliffs
37 Newspaper item, for short
38 Took 40 winks
39 ——-pie (from head to toe)
40 Brother
41 Covered up
43 Has a liking for 45 Books
46 Donkey's cousin
47 Loud sound
49 Frenzy
52 Speedy one
53 Pro ——
57 Small timers
60 After kitchen or major
61 Place for a toastmaster
62 Eagle's nest
63 Settled accounts
64 Leave it, in printing
65 Small mouth, in Biology

DOWN
1 Keep —— on
2 Unpleasant fellow
3 And ——
4 Open disrespect
5 Cutting tool
6 Word with study or stand
7 High-minded
8 "—— M for Murder"
9 Sun or moon
10 "A pillar ——"
11 Memorable Bert
12 S. African lily
13 Escaped
18 Circles
19 Long period of time
24 Copy
25 "The Man With the ——"
26 Show scorn
27 Hooded reptile
28 Relating to bees
29 Crusty items
30 Amaryllis family member
31 Suit feature
32 Very important people
34 Sounds from a cote
35 Parts of lbs.
39 Bedding component
41 Gadget: Var.
42 Beetle
44 Liquidated
47 One over par
48 Minimum
49 Two-——, ballroom dance
50 Fiber plant
51 Against 52 Pesky insect
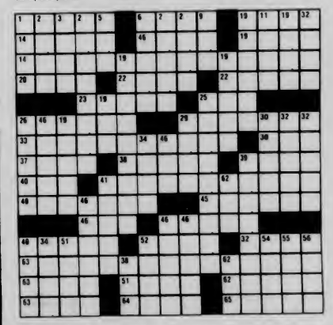
54 Prefix with space
55 Light haircut
56 Traveling by cutter
58 Envelope abbrs.
59 Univ. degrees



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	R	M	S		D	R	E	W		D	E	E	P
M	E	A	N		P	I	E	T	A		E	L	S	E
O	S	L	O		R	E	M	A	N		B	I	K	E
S	T	A	T	O	U	T		T	A	D	E	R
		D	E	A	L		S	N	E	E	R	E	R	S
S	I	A		B	O	D		A	D	A	M
C	R	O	W	S	N	E	S	T		D	E	M	O	N
U	N	I	O		C	M	O	U	L		N	O	T	E
T	O	T	E	M		E	M	R	A	P	T	U	R	E
			E	A	S	E		E	M	U		M	O	D
P	E	R	E	M	P	T	O	R	Y		E	T	A	L
L	O	R	I	E	R		C	O	N	S	H	A	N	T
I	N	T	O		A	V	E	R	T		L	I	E	U
E	D	E	N		W	I	T	N	E	S	S		A	N	A	L
S	O	R	E		L	E	T	S			S	I	T	S

WEATHER

Cloudy this morning, with some drizzle possible. Chance of sunshine in the afternoon, highs in the 60s. Cloudy tomorrow morning. Partly sunny tomorrow afternoon, with highs 60 to 65. Partly cloudy Sunday.

WMUA FM 91.1

Wake-up with Bettina	6-9 a.m.
Concepto Latino	9-noon
Carl Lowman-The Rhythm Section	noon-3 p.m.
Jim McDee	3-5:30
Newswatch	5:30-6
Athena's Web with Don Cerow	6-7
T.K. - Banana Giveaway!	7-10
Mercedes and Michelle	10-2 a.m.
More music	2-6

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Blue Wall Rocks!

10:30 - 12:30	Beau Bolero — a Steely Dan clone from the Blue Wall
12:30 - 2:00	The Atlantics from Boston at the Wall

Sports

It was the Red Sox, dad, and box seats

By TOM WHALEN
Collegian Correspondent

The Green Monster beckoned balefully before us as my father and I were in the process of finding the way to our respective left-field, upper-box seats.

I was a short, slightly pudgy, freckle-faced youth of twelve years who was about to witness his first baseball game much to the apparent delight of my dad.

He was a tall, stout, gray-haired man in his upper forties.

Commentary

On this particular day he took a certain amount of pleasure and pride in the fact that I was about to experience my "baseball baptism."

The site of this auspicious occasion was the intimable Fenway Park. With a raucious Saturday afternoon capacity crowd on hand, I sat with wonderous wide eyes eagerly awaiting the first pitch to be thrown.

The contest pitted the Red Sox against their then traditional opponents: the Cleveland Indians.

On the mound for the Beantowners was the colorful, contorting and crafty moustachioed Cuban nonperil, Luis Tiant. After being greeted with accolades of "Loo-is Loo-ie" he promptly proceeded to twist and turn his way to victory.

The 1977 edition of the "Boys of Summer" (Rice, Lynn, Fisk, Scott, and Hobson to name a few) provided him with the runs as they mercilessly and relentlessly pounded a parade of Tribe hurlers for eight runs.

But as it turned out, the score was academic. What was important was that I was irretrievable and uncomprisingly hooked. I had succumbed to my dad's affliction. I had become a Red Sox fan. It was as simple as that.

From that day on, we weathered through the good and bad times of six memorable seasons spanning from 1977 to 1982.

During that period we witnessed the following: The batting and fielding heroics of the "Golden Outfield" — Rice, Lynn, and Evans...The slick fielding of behemouth George Scott and the irrepressible Rick Burleson...The rises and falls of Butch Hobson and Bill Campbell...The awesome power production of the '77 ensemble...The spellbinding machinations of Luis Tiant...The ineffectual late season pennant drives of the '77, '78, '80, and '81 Sox...

The unorthodox style of Bill "Spaceman" Lee...The voices of Ned Martin and Jim Woods on the air waves...The Yankee Massacre of the Sox in September of '78...The subsequent heartbreaking playoff loss to New York and Bucky Dent...The gusty, day-to-day determination of Yaz...His three-thousandth hit and four-hundredth home run...

The spectacular glovework of Fred Lynn...The emergence of Dwight Evans...The inept starting pitching...The tape measure home run shots of Rice...His four-hundred total bases...The bat control of Carney Langford...The come-from-behind Sox of '81 and '82...The clutch hitting of Bob Watson in '79 and Tony Perez in '80...The joys of summer...

Now I find myself rooting alone. My dad died recently leaving one left-field, upper-box seat empty.

Of the numerous memories and recollections I posses of him, the one that stands out starkly is his or more appropriately our devotion to the Sox.

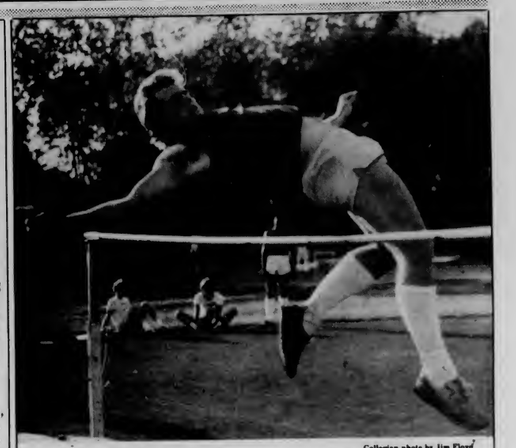
For, it was the Sox that provided us with a common bond that forever cemented our relationship as father and son.

Through the intervening years, our idealism, views, and perceptions of the globe may have differed but our unflagging allegiance to the Sox was a constant.

In a world replete with strife, turmoil, and discord, it was reassuring if not satisfying to know that our all-consuming passion for the Crimson Hose could somehow overcome the chaos about us and provide a unifying force of order.

Indeed, it brought us closer together, thus bridging the generation gap that existed between us.

For this reason I will be forever grateful to the Boston Red Sox.



Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Bill Elbery goes up high to clear the high jump bar during Tuesday's intramural track meet.

No go on NFL talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts to end the National Football League players strike continued Thursday with no signs of apparent progress.

For the second time in as many days, the NFL Management Council rejected a proposal from the union for a private mediator to end the 17-day players' strike. It also said it saw no point to even resuming negotiations.

Late Thursday morning, Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players union, released a list of nine private citizens the union would accept as mediators. It included former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg; the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, Archibald Cox, the former Watergate special prosecutor and three former secretaries of labor.

But Jack Donlan, Garvey's counterpart with the Management Council, rejected the proposal two hours later, saying the owners would only accept federal mediation. Jim Miller, the council's spokesman, said Garvey's call for private mediating was "injecting another issue into the dispute. Who should mediate becomes an issue."

The management council also stuck to the position it enunciated Wednesday — that no further talks would be held until the union dropped its demand for a minimum wage scale. Miller said the council saw no point to meeting even to discuss non-economic issues, as Garvey had proposed.

"We went down that road last week," Miller said of the three days of fruitless negotiations on those issues that broke off on Saturday.

Garvey meanwhile, discounted the possibility of the union agreeing to federal mediation.

Despite the presence of a federal mediator in 1974, the union's contract dispute with the league was not resolved until 1977 and then, only after both sides agreed to settle the dispute themselves.

Last week, Garvey said he opposed private mediation because the two sides were too far apart and it would take a mediator too long to familiarize himself with the personalities and the issues.

However, he changed his position this week, saying: "We need bargaining. We need people at the table with an open mind."

Mackertich ready to swing into the pros

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

It is the dream of many an outstanding collegiate athlete to achieve success in professional sports. But along the rugged and rocky road to riches and glory, countless hopefuls run out of gas, eventually doomed to be cast aside and forgotten.

Here at the University of Massachusetts, there is an athlete, although virtually unknown to the vast multitude, who will soon begin that treacherous journey. His name is Neal Mackertich.

Neal does not play football, basketball, or any other big budget sport. He is not even on scholarship. You see, Neal Mackertich plays tennis. And he plays it very well.

Mackertich, a senior chemical engineering major, is presently in the midst of his third consecutive year as the Minutemen's #1 singles player. He is one of the top netmen in the East and a potential All-American. Neal, apparently knows the secret to playing good tennis.

"Consistency. I'm pretty steady on all parts of the game. A steady backcourt game and concentration are also important. People also say I have fast hands at the net.

"Experience is the key, though, I've been playing in tournaments since I've been thirteen. I'm a better match player than in practice. Some players get tight, but I play better," said Mackertich.

Pertaining to the journey, next summer Mackertich will travel to France and begin what he hopes will be a fruitful career in smaller, "satellite" tournaments with cash prizes and ATP (Association of Tennis Professionals) points awarded in lesser amounts than larger, more prestigious tournaments.

"I would be around #300 in the world if I didn't go to school and just played tennis," said Mackertich, "If I stay healthy, there is no reason why I can't make the top 150...Rankings are important. They allow you to move up. It works like a minor-league system."

This past summer, Mackertich played an extensive New England Circuit tournament schedule. He registered a victory over Bud Schulz, New England's #1 ranked player. Before that loss, his only defeat of the summer, Schulz had won nine consecutive tournaments. Also, Mackertich and his doubles partner defeated the #80 ranked team in the world over Labor Day Weekend.

"That victory gave me the confidence that I can play with these guys," said Mackertich.

Last spring, Neal suffered torn ligaments in his ankle in the first set of the first match of the spring schedule and missed the rest of the campaign. Mackertich did not compete competitively for three months, but feels the injury has had a positive effect on him.

"It helped my outlook on the game. Before the injury I was a very good athlete who beat opponents with quickness and speed afoot. After the injury I learned to use the court and my shots. I developed shots to make up for the lack of speed. Now I have speed and the shots needed to win."

Mackertich hails from a tennis-minded family. His sister, Annmarie plays for the UMass women's team and his father teaches the game at camps.

"Tennis came easy to me. My father made it fun in a relaxed, family setting. It was much better for me," says Mackertich. "During the summer I played 4-5 hours a day, hitting a ball against walls. I knew I had to get serious if I wanted to be outstanding."

Coming out of Westfield (Mass.) High School, Mackertich was recruited by several top tennis schools, including the University of Arizona, who offered a full scholarship, but he turned them all down to come up the road to Amherst.

"UMass had balance. Other schools didn't emphasize academics as much as I would have liked," said Mackertich. "UMass has a fine engineering school. It has worked out better for me."

Mackertich praises his coach, Bob Szlosek, for much of his success.

"Bob has spent much time on improving my game. Last year I had a weaker forehand. Bob videotaped my forehand and pointed out my flaws...Bob stresses that you give everything that you have. We play loose as a team. The team roots for each other, something that was missing in the past...Bob has expanded the schedule and made it more difficult and challenging," said Mackertich.

At Umass, Mackertich labors in obscurity while the major sports like football and lacrosse grab the headlines.

"I wish we had more fans. If the public knew, we would get a few people out to our matches. If we get fans, it certainly would help," said Mackertich. "Tennis isn't emphasized enough here. There's not enough funding. Tennis could be big here...I could play for Stanford and receive a scholarship and be supplied with all my equipment."

Okay, UMass sport fans. If you are interested in watching an athlete not caught up in the hysteria of big-time college athletics, and who is one of the best in the country at his craft, you should see Neal Mackertich. It is worth it.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackedisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Mustang new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 91,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1086

1970 Olds 442 recent timing G & Ch dual exh rebuilt carb nds wk $400 firm call 6-9243

Subaru Wagon 77 engine, 76 body. AM/FM. Good condition. 549-0865

73 Vege rusty but in good driving condition 80000 miles $500 negotiable call Sheri 549-1815

74 Subaru runs only 250$ call 549-0773

1975 red BMW ex condi $3800 or BO call after 5, 533-4950

1980 Camaro Z-28, 21k miles, T-roof, 4 spd air induction, 60 series tires and aluminum rims 549-2715

76 GMC Van, long bodied, windows all around, good condition 2500 $ tel 549-6327

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

In apartment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by profassional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

ENTERTAINMENT

The best sound system is MF Coffeehouse sound 256-8400

FOR RENT

Amherst. 1 bedroom apt. $295/m include util, heat. Bus route. Call 253-3515

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Refrigerator 5 cu. ft. good cond. 100.00 firm 549-1014

Used Waterbed, Queen size. Frame, heater, mattress incl. $100. call 268-3586 after 4.

Guild Maderia acoustic guitar excellent cond Bill 549-4718

HELP WANTED

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective aks counseling supervisor to train and supervise peer counselors in hotline and walk-in counseling. Should have MA or equal experience. 10 hr/wk paid pos. Send resume to Counseling Coll. c/o 242 Student Union

Promote Ecology and Consumer issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $180-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Earn extra cash easy Halloween sales 549-0694

ICE HOCKEY

Goalie Pads needed to buy or rent. Call Bob 584-7035

Goalie Urgently Needed - for I.M. team. Call Bumper immed. 253-7501 or 545-3121 leave message

LESBIAN/GAY

Office Manager Position open - 10 hour a week workstudy position - apply at the People's Gay Alliance office 413 SUB 5-0154 women & third world students encouraged to apply

LIFE AT DEATH

Doing a study about people who have died and come back. If you have experienced this, please contact Drew 6-8612

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Lost brown leather wallet call Maura 6-1413 very important

Pair of glasses in a red case if found please call 253-5339

Tan Jacket with blue trim near Boyden courts Tuesday morning 10/5 please call 549-5208 if found

Womans watch 10/5 in CC much sentiment Please call Lisa 549-5589

MOTORCYCLES

1972 Yamaha R5 350cc two-stroke oil injection dual carbs cafe bars 5-speed $450 or best offer 253-5880

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Adventurous-Athletic-Warmhearted Women
I'm GARY I own a PLANE and love to FLY I seek a COMPANION for FLIGHTS & FUN never too late DAY-NIGHT call 546-7812

Karen - Happy Birthday! I bet you're surprised to see this! I can't wait for this w/e! Love Dawn

TBS pledges Mike & Karen get psyched for a great weekend!! Homecoming alumni and party! Do it up & get those points! Your big sis Mary

Glenn - - ---- --I Sue

Hey Paula - Happy 21 Birthday! Hope its a good one - Amy

NANCY AND JEFF!! HAPPY BIRTHDAY!! THIS IS YOUR WEEKEND - LET'S PARTY! LOVE ANNE AND EVERYONE

Bon Anniversaire "Muscles" 21 - hope it's a good one Love Bones

Happy Meow Meow Birthday Meow Meow Mikey! - Love Irene (meow)

Happy Birthday Mika! Hope all your birthday wishes come true except one. Have a super day! Gowild (man) - Fitz Yo UMMBI Woop 'em hens!

Aerobic Experience. co-ed. free demo tonight 7-8 or 8-9 Commonwealth Rm Student Union $40 20 classes 549-5258

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

Attention Minxs: Homecoming Events & Homecoming Brunch at the Pub. . .football game. . .Happy Hour. . .Pike. "We are family!" Nancy & Edee

Happy Birthday Bonehead

Happy Birthday Robyn

To Roxanne in Oregon. Having a great time - wish you were here. The "scenery" IS nice, but I haven't gotten much sleep! There IS life after Chris Evans. Miss you much, you far away friend, Lauri

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

Nancy, Petty, Stacy - Blue Wall Happy Hour Friday, be there Aloha! Dan and Rich

Hank, Happy 21st live it up! Love Chennie

Hey Sue, have a Happy 21st. Love, Chennie & Amy

Welcome back to UMass KMW. I love you (always) JKW. See you next year.

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counselling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RECORDMANIA

JOE JACKSON AND CHICK COREA are alive and well and on sale at Union Records. . .

ROOMMATE WANTED

Room for rent M or F $165 monthly including utilities call Sharon 253-5218

Female roommate wanted to share house on Bay Rd 140 + 256-8058

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable on bus route furnished. Call Jeff 665-4357

Two rooms available in Northampton Apt cheap must rent now 545-1336 (9-5) 665-3509 after 5

Need immediately woman to share room in Southwood Apt $91.25 call Trecia 256-0354 leave message

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Professional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

Immediate cash for class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest prices paid. Call Ralph 6-8722 anytime

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

Montreal Trip $89 Oct 29 - 31 and Nov 5 - 7, 1982 for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

WANTED

Tutor wantad for Genetics (Zoo.) 510 please call Barbara S 545-0162

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Spirit Haus
WINES & LIQUORS
338 College Street

Budweiser	cans	$8.99/case
Rolling Rock		$4.50/12 pack
Tuborg		$2.25 6 pack
Giraf Malt Liquor		$2.99 6 pack
Becks Beer		$3.99/6 pack
Ed. Saarbach	semi-dry white	$2.99/liter
Le Sable Cabernet Sauvignon		$2.79 750 ml
Folonari Soave		$3.99 1.5 liter
Cossack Vodka	1.75 liter	$8.39
Booths Gin	1 liter	$7.45
Jim Beam Bourbon	1.75	$11.99

not responsible for typographical errors

LEVIS SALE — Straight Leg Denim — $18.95
V neck — Men's Acrylic Sweaters — $12.95
Crew Neck — Ladies Sweaters — $18.00
100% Cotton Turtlenecks — $7.95
FREE: Handpainted stick pins with purchase
1 per customer
no minimum purchase
good for 1st 75 customers
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant St. Amherst
9:30 - 6 Mon - Sat
FRIDAYS till 9 pm

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 18

UMass looks ready for an up week

Pearson on running tear

By BILLY SHEA
Collegian Staff

Because Delaware is not a member of the Yankee Conference, this game will have no direct effect on the Minuteman title drive. For this reason people have downplayed the significance of this game.

Football preview and homecoming schedule in pullout.

Since opening the season with a convincing 25-3 win over West Chester State, the Minutemen have stumbled the last three weeks posting a 1-2 record with the lone win coming last week in a defensive struggle with Rhode Island.

Unquestionably, a strong performance against a quality team like Delaware could give the Minutemen sufficient momentum to propel them through the remainder of their Yankee Conference schedule.

On the other hand, a uninspiring performance could do nothing but raise questions about just how good a team the pre-season favorite to win the Yankee Conference is.

* * *

There was no Collegian Player-of-the-Game award last week because of space limitations but its just as well because the choice probably would have been Garry Pearson and we're just running out of things to say about Pearson.

It would have been just a boring little article that would have told you that Pearson rushed for over 100 yards for the fifth straight game dating back to last year and that Pearson earned Yankee Conference Offensive Player of the Week honors for the second time this year when he ran for 115 yards on 25 carries against Rhode Island.

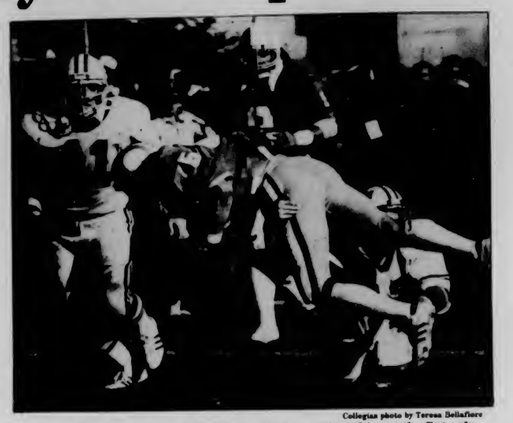
Duckworth Grange, a shoo-in for the annual All-Name team, received the Yankee Conference Rookie-of-the-Week award for scooping up a blocked punt and running it in for a touchdown in second quarter against Rhode Island.

* * *

Also receiving heavy support for Collegian Player-of-the-Game was the entire defensive line which was outstanding in holding URI to 141 yards rushing and chasing quarterback Dave Grimisch all over the backfield. Dav Cavanaugh and Ed Kern supplied the inside pressure forcing Grimisch out of the pocket and into the hands of Todd Comeau, Craig Lesinski and Joe Graham, each of whom had two quarterback sacks.

* * *

The after-four-games-best-hit-man award goes to co-captain Dwayne Lopes.



Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Glenn Holden up ends a URI Ram during action this week. Saturday Delaware invades Alumni Stadium.

Lopes would, if we gave out a top ten hit list, take at least six of the top spots. The New Bedford native has been inspiring in his on field leadership and scary with his tenacious hitting. He also ties for best high-fivin' with offensive tackle Wilbur Jackson.

* * *

UMass has never beaten Delaware. The two teams have played in six games since 1958 and the closest the Minutemen have come was in 1980 when the final score was 21-17.

Booters ready for Homecoming battle

By CHARISSE E. FEINERMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team will be hosting Boston University tomorrow at 11 a.m. in what hopefully will be an exciting homecoming weekend for the players, fans and returning alumni.

"I want people to come and watch us play," said coach Jeff Gettler. "It will be an exciting game."

The Boston squad is a good team overall, and they are an especially dangerous team up front. They have a Nigerian freshman and an English player who are playing positions up in the field and are definitely worth watching. Boston has given ten of its players full scholarships, so one can be sure that they have recruited some pretty decent soccer players.

"We need the game for our season...we can win...we match up well against them," said Gettler. UMass is now ranked sixth in New England (having dropped two places due to last weeks losses to Yale and Vermont). Boston is ranked eighth in New England, after having played a limited number of gamed so far this season.

Gettler is hoping that after a week of practice the team will be much improved over last Saturday's disappointing game against Vermont. The team has been concentrating on training, coaching, and fitness.

"We'll be better prepared," said Gettler.

Though Gettler isn't making any major changes, he does plan on changing Fritz Pike to midfield from his forward position and Mike Rudd will travel from midfield to center forward. Kayvan Khatani will be returning to play in wing position after not having played in the Ioyola tournament and the Yale game. Also playing wing will be Michael Gibbons.

Two players who haven't been able to play because of injuries, but who may see action on Saturday are Steve Berlin and Scott Elliot although Gettler hasn't decided positively on their status.

"Until I see in practice that they are ready, I won't throw them to the wolves," said Gettler.

Tomorrow the booters will be playing the eighth game of their season. Now, wouldn't it be nice to come out just a little earlier this homecoming Saturday and support one of the many UMass teams with a winning record?

Game time, once again, is 11:00 a.m.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Intramural Ultimate Frisbee action at the Boyden playing fields saw some high flying action.

Netwomen squeak by

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team put together back to back victories for the first time this season, winning a tough, but important match over Northeastern University by a score of 5-4 yesterday.

They have now accomplished what coach John Beal called their first objective out of three.

"We would like to win these three matches in order to bring us back to a good record and help us to get into the state championships next week," said Beal.

The team applied to the states, the MAIAW's this week and hopes to be one of the six teams in Massachusetts to play in the Class A Tournament. If they win their next match against cross-state rival Tufts University, it will certainly increase their chances to be accepted.

"The team played well. They know they had to win, and they came through," said Beal.

First singles player, Elizabeth Sullivan, played well, but lost a hard-fought three set match by a score of 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 (7-5 in the tiebreaker).

Second and third singles each won easy straight set victories. Ariel Fowler continued her winning ways as she won 6-2, 6-1, while teammate Chris Frazier won her match by a score of 6-2, 6-2.

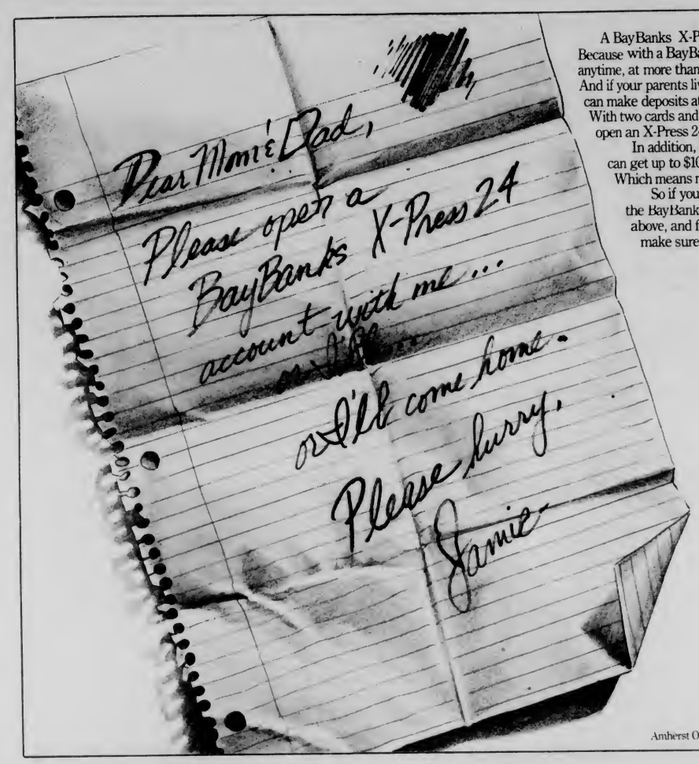
Fourth and fifth singles unfortunately both lost by identical scores. Patricia Sullivan and Karen Orlowski went down to defeat by scores of 6-4, 6-2. But, sixth singles player Anne-Marie Mackertich was successful in her match, winning it, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

The doubles teams continued to play well together, winning two out of three matches, both in straight sets, and losing the third in a tough three set affair.

First doubles team, Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli easily defeated their opponents by a score of 6-2, 6-4. Second doubles team, Joyce Girasella and Jillian Nesgos lost their match in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

The third doubles team of Tina Eglin and Bonnie Lechten quickly ousted their opponents in straight sets by a score of 6-4, 6-2.

The Minutewomen improved their record to 3-5, while Northeastern's record fell to 3-3. UMass will host Tufts University in an important match tomorrow on the Boyden courts at 2:00 p.m., before travelling to Storrs, Connecticut on Tuesday for another tough match against the University of Connecticut.



A BayBanks X-Press 24™ account is worth writing home about. Because with a BayBanks Card, you can do all your regular banking, anytime, at more than 300 convenient X-Press 24s around the state. And if your parents live near an X-Press 24, when you need cash, they can make deposits at home and you can make withdrawals at school. With two cards and one account, it's easy. Or, if you prefer, you can open an X-Press 24 account of your own.

In addition, with our Deposit With Cash Back feature, you can get up to $100 cash instantly when you deposit a check. Which means no more waiting in long lines in the Bursar's office.

So if you think you could use the added convenience that the BayBanks offer, simply make a copy of the sample letter above, and forward it to your parents. But for best results, make sure you sign your own name.

BayBanks X-Press 24
560200 123456789 17
JANE DOALKS 05-85

BayBank | First
Amherst Office: 75 East Pleasant Street at the corner of Triangle Street

Free Beverages BONANZA with all Specials

Bonanza Special's For Every Day of the Week!!!!!

Mon Only ½ Lb. Chop Steak includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls & beverages $3.99	Tue Only Ribeye Dinner Includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls & bevrages $4.49
Wed Only All the Fish You Wish Baked Haddock or Fried Flounder $4.89	Thur Only Sirloin Tips includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.49
Fri Only Fish/Shrimp Plt. Includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $4.99	Sat Only Chicken Teri. Includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts. rolls and beverages $4.99
Sun Only ½ Lb. Sirloin Strip includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages $5.49	BONUS COUPON USDA Choice Texas Longhorn Steak includes all you can eat salad bar w/desserts, rolls and beverages 4.49

HOURS
Mon - Thur & Sun 11-9 pm
Fri & Sat 11 - 10 pm

BONANZA. The freshest and most complete salad bar in the area

Rt 9 (in front of the Hampshire Mall)

Head for Bonanza Instead, Head for Bonanza's Freshtastic Salad Bar

Food for Thought for HOMECOMING...

Best ...Full dinners
Best ...Sandwiches
Best ...Happy Hour

3 Good Reasons to Celebrate with us!

RIB-IT RIB-IT RIB-IT

Carbur's by popular demand, expanded an already extensive menu selection in 1979 to include full dinners. The Rib-It Room on the lower level will impress you with it's intimacy and rustic atmosphere. The menu goes from Prime Rib, a house specialty, to Frog Legs, southern style or Provencale. They also offer Steaks, Seafood and Chicken entrees

These are complete meals that include a choice of salads and vegetable or baked potato or rice. Hot bread is also served and an appetizer of Boursin cheese with fresh vegoes to dip.

All beef is aged and cut on the premises and cooked slowly to perfection.

Reservations suggested

CARBUR'S

at the Elmwood Shops
Route 9, Hadley
586-1978
584-4310

TIME OUT
Welcomes Back the Alumni

Two TV's
Come Meet
Free Popcorn

your good friends
We luv UM!
Beat Delaware!
37 N. Pleasant Amherst

Welcome Back Alumni
TAILOR'S House of Walsh INC. HABERDASHERS

32 Main St., Amherst

The House of Walsh is a family-run store that for 80 years has been dedicated to offering the very best in traditional and distinctive clothing and accessories for men and women. Classic clothing, both domestic and imported, that withstands the test of time amidst fads and passing trends.

After the game, why not stop in and see our fine collection of woolen and tweed clothing styled in the manner that typifies the "New England Look".

Come treat yourself!

Just north of the common.
Open Monday through Saturday 9-5:30

(413) 253-3361

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

Chinese Shoes
many styles and colors
$5.50 - $14.95

POSTERS
Largest Selection Ever

Bamboo BLINDS

BEDSPREADS
cover walls, furniture, windows

dozens and dozens print, stripe, solid

Rugs & Mats
colorful, durable

CARDS
over 1400 unusual designs

SKIRTS & BLOUSES
lots of comfortable cotton

Baskets

Imported Soaps
a real treat for your skin

BOXES & TINS
plain & fancy

Sterling Chains, Pendants, Lampshades, Earrings, Paper Mobiles, Candles

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm

MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Minutemen set to play Blue Hens

By BILLY SHEA
Collegian Staff

If there is an observation to be made as Homecoming weekend approaches the University of Massachusetts it is that this annual event extrudes different attitudes among the university community.

From the Greeks, who design floats and parade through town on Saturday morning, to the senior who doesn't know what a Homecoming is and doesn't really care, Homecoming weekend can range vastly in significance.

For some, it's the biggest party of the year. For others, it's a perfect chance to take advantage of the long weekend and go get some home cooking from Mom.

For the University of Massachusett's football team, Homecoming Day 1982 means the Fightin' Blue Hens of Delaware, the number sixth ranked Division 1-AA football team in the country.

"I compare Delaware favorably to Holy Cross," said UMass head coach Bob Pickett. "Delaware and Holy Cross will be the strongest teams we will have faced up to this point. They have an experienced quarterback in Scully and they are an excellent football team."

Scully is third year starter Rick Scully and an excellent football team is right. Every starter, from last year's team is back both offensively and defensively, from a team that rolled over UMass at Delaware last year to the tune of 38-15.

"I don't think players dwell on the past much," said Pickett. "We like to deal with the present. We're a good football team and we have to handle any situation we get into."

Whether you dwell on the past or not, one fact still remains. Delaware was one of the top teams in the country last year against the run, which of course is the strong point of the Minuteman offense, but the game may not turn out to be a test of strengths.

"I don't think you can call a football team a 'running team' or a 'passing team,'" said Pickett. "Football involves more than that. We'll try to establish our running game and throw the ball when we need to."

Delaware head coach Tubby Raymond, owner of an impressive 137-43-2 record in 16 years at Delaware, sees UMass as more than a legitimate threat to his Blue Hens.

"We are pleased to be part of a good rivalry," said Tubby. "UMass is one of the toughest teams on our schedule. Pearson will be one of the best running backs we will face this year and the UMass defense is always impressive."

Tubby is not the only one impressed with the UMass defense. Pickett was also pleased with the defensive performance last week against Rhode Island. After listening to everyone ask what was wrong with the defense after Harvard threw for 358 yards against the Minutemen two weeks ago, Dwayne Lopes, Grady Fuller & Co. responded with a hard-hitting performance against Rhody.

"I was very pleased with the defense against Rhode Island and the overall progress of the defense," said Pickett. "They gave us great field position all afternoon and if they do the same this week we're going to have to take advantage of the turnovers and score more points."

So, if your mother refuses to feed you anymore, you can't find a ride home, or you just want to see some good football, you should come down to Alumni Stadium and check out Homecoming. If your not into the Homecoming festivities, just sit back, watch the game, and enjoy the scenery. (Let's hope its a hot day.)

Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

TRUCK LOAD SALE!

CLEATS • SNEAKERS • RUNNING SHOES
FENTON'S
ATHLETIC SUPPLIES
377 Main St., Amherst 253-3973

Rediscover
SILVERSCAPE CAFE
Amherst's most intimate cafe now offers —
• beef • vegetarian
• poultry • spirits
• seafood • cappuccino
Meals prepared and served with pride
Tuesday thru Saturday 11:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.
SILVERSCAPE CAFE
264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass. 01002 (413) 253-3447

We don't build them to last.

But we do build each one to exact specs, so you'll enjoy every bite. The next time your appetite contracts for a real sandwich, visit the engineers at

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-6314

GRAND OPENING
Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions
Fine Lingerie
Silks
Loungewear
for women & men

233n. pleasant st. carriage shops - amherst 549-6915

HOMECOMING SCHEDULE
FRIDAY:
Bonfire by the Pond — 7 p.m.
Multiband Pops Concert — in the FAC 8 p.m.
SATURDAY:
Homecoming Parade — 11 a.m.
Football game versus Delaware — 1:30 p.m.

ATLANTIC SUN ACTIONWEAR
67 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

Long Sleeve T-Shirts
Corduroy Pants & Jackets
Sweaters

ocean pacific sunwear.

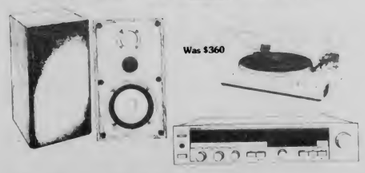
HOMECOMING WEEKEND
11th ANNUAL BLOODY MARY BREAKFAST
14 oz. Bloody Mary, 2 Eggs, Ham, Bacon or Sausage
Homefries, Toast & Coffee
Saturday, $4.25 October 9, 1982

AFTER THE GAME
D. J. SULLIVAN
• Sing-a-long • Contests • 3 til 7

Saturday and Sunday
DISCO and ROCK
with
WAQY's Rock 102 - Al Stoner

Drink Specials on Sunday
Hoppee Liquor Drinks - Pub 40 Pitcher
* T-Shirts *
9 til 1
no cover
2.25 refills
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Back to Basics-$299
BSR Model 82 Speakers JVC L-A10 Turntable
ONKYO TX-11 Receiver SHURE M70B Cartridge



Sound & Music "Good Advice—Honest Price"
90-92 King St. (Rte. 5), Northampton, 584-9547
Mon.-Wed. 10-6, Thur. & Fri. 10-9, Sat. 10-5
FREE DELIVERY TO FIVE COLLEGE AREA

STADIUM LIQUORS
U. Mass. Amherst

10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Bud 12 oz bottles..... $8.95 cs
Carling 12 pk cans..... $3.25 12 pack
Busch cans loose..... $7.95 cs
Pabst 12 oz bottles loose..... $7.95 cs
Rolling Rock 12 pk cans..... $4.00 12 pk
Labatts..... $9.95
Cossack Vodka 1.75 L..... $8.20
Castillo Rum 1.75..... $9.95
Seagram's 7 1.75..... $12.95
McGregor Scotch 1.75..... $10.95
Beam 8 Star Blend 1.75..... $9.95
Almaden Mt Burg, Mt Chablis, Mt Rhine, Mt Nectar
Grenache 3 L..... $6.95
Tavola red, white, rose 4 L..... $5.45
Mondavi red, white 1.5..... $4.95
California Cellars 1.5..... $4.29
Los Hermanos 1.5..... $4.29
Conche Y Toro cab, sauv, sauvignon blanc 1.5..... $5.99
Dragone Lambrusco 750..... $1.50

Catch Our Weekly Specials

DORITOS ½ lb. .99¢

253-5595
not responsible for typographical errors

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 25 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, October 12, 1982

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

A tuba player in the University of Massachusetts marching band passes the bonfire by the Campus Pond which was part of homecoming celebrations last weekend.

Hundreds turnout for homecoming bonfire

By STEPHEN HOWE
Collegian Correspondent

At 6:30 Friday evening a lone figure stood by the 20 foot high pile of wood. Klyde Siegfriedt was making the final adjustments to ensure a successful blaze.

This October marks Siegfriedt's fourth year of helping to construct the two and one half cord University of Massachusetts homecoming bonfire. "I enjoy it," Klyde said.

At 7 p.m., the crowds began to gather around the torch lit platform, from which the festivities proceeded. At 7:05 the University marching band, preceeded by a troop of cheerleaders, appeared on the scene booming out the UMass theme song.

The sudden clash of sound and activity attracted a large and enthusiastic crowd of supporters. After the band's lively rendition of J. Geils' "Centerfold," one of the cheerleaders took the stage to introduce Coach Bob Pickett, Chancellor Joseph Duffy and his wife Ann Wexler.

The new Chancellor spoke briefly wishing the coach and the football team luck and extending his best wishes to the band.

Coach Pickett then took the microphone, expressed his appreciation for the support of everyone present and commended the band.

"Fans at a football game," said the coach, "are like voters in an election — everyone is important."

The coach introduced football tri-captains Tom Murray, Dwayne Lopes, and Jerry Gordon. Each spoke briefly, expressing appreciation of fans support in the past and each encouraged everyone present to attend the game Saturday.

"Football is a team game," said Gordon, "and it takes more than the players alone to win."

When the speakers had finished, the moment everyone had waited for was at hand. The tri-captains and head cheerleaders ignited the blaze.

The inferno leapt up immediately to the tune of the marching bands rendition of Olivia Newton John's hit song "Let's Get Physical." Taking this as their cue the cheerleaders went into a spectacular display of gymnastics and dance rivaled only by the human pyramid of the band's tuba section.

Soon the fire began to dwindle and the crowd began to disperse, another annual bonfire was winding down. What was the expert's opinion?

"I thought it worked well. It was higher than most. I was kind of surprised," said Klyde Siegfriedt.

What about next year?

"We'll be back next year bigger and better than ever," Siegfriedt said.

When the fire had died and the crowd dispersed, many headed for the Fine Arts Center where the house was rapidly filling with students, parents, alumni, and other

Continued on page 5

Law allows Gov. King to add new trustees

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees will be increased by two additional members under a law signed by Governor Edward J. King last Thursday. King is expected to name the new members before his term expires in January.

Normally, laws take effect 90 days after they are signed by the governor. However, King is expected to sign an "emergency letter" which will make the law effective upon King's signature, said Roy Lyons, assistant press secretary for the Governor.

King will sign the emergency letter to the law which adds two members to the 27 boards of trustees for all state colleges and universities "in the next couple of weeks," Lyons said.

Chairman of the UMass Board of Trustees Robert Quinn said he supports King's move to appoint the additional trustees immediately.

"If you knew who appointed me (to the Board), then you'll know why I'd like them appointed (by King)...in 90 days we'll have a new governor," Quinn said.

Quinn was appointed to the UMass Board of Trustees by King in 1981.

The University of Massachusetts board was scaled down from 22 members to eight and its powers reduced in 1980 when the system of public higher education was reorganized. Several pieces of legislation have been filed since to increase the size of the Board.

Last Nov. 2, additional seats were created to allow for student representation. The two additional seats created last week will bring the total members to 12.

"I believe a 22-member board was too large. Seventeen was too much (as proposed by Rep. James G. Collins, (D-Amherst). Anything below 15 I have no objections to. I would have objections if they (the Legislature) had doubled the board size," Quinn said.

Quinn defended the timing of the law, which comes after King was defeated for re-election and has only three months before his term expires.

"Last year there was very little time to think of these things because we had a few battles to fight," he said, referring to the merger of UMass-Boston and Boston State College, and the attempted elimination of the UMass President's office by the Legislature.

Another factor in the timing was the primary elections last September which preoccupied most elected officials' time.

"Now things have to get done," Quinn said.

The bill, allowing for a total of 54 members on all boards, received a measure of opposition from state legislatures who supported Michael Dukakis during the primaries. See related story, page 4.

Student fees will fund Curry Hicks renovation

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp said he will continue plans to renovate the Curry-Hicks Cage facility through a student fee-based project, despite the results of a new student referendum Oct. 4 rejecting the proposal.

Knapp said Saturday he sees no other way to fund the renovations and that delaying or cancelling renovation plans would be "short-sighted." He also called a recommendation by former UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler not to consider a fee for the renovation, "good campus politics."

A non-binding referendum on the Student Government Association election ballot Oct. 4 was rejected by 70 percent of the 880 students voting. The referendum asked if students supported Knapp's proposal to charge a fee of about $20 to pay for the Cage renovations.

When told of the referendum results, Knapp said, "Would you expect anything else?"

"I think I would have to raise the further question, does anybody want the Cage renovated? If you don't want it renovated, if you don't want a basketball team we can be proud of, then we can chuck the whole proposal," Knapp said.

"I'm not about to do that. I'm not about to throw overboard a thought of trying to do something to develop a basketball program on this campus. It's short-sighted, and it's not very much in the interest of the campus, to let the cage just sit there and deteriorate."

Knapp said he had no plans for a further study of student opinion with regard to the Cage proposal.

"I'd be perfectly willing to entertain alternative options," Knapp said. "But so far I haven't heard from anyone."

Knapp said there are only three options to fund the Cage renovations: private donations, state funding, or a student fee. He said that relying on voluntary contributions from private sources could take five to ten years, and that state funding would be dubious.

"The chance of our getting early action from the state on the renovation of the cage is almost nil," Knapp said. "I don't really see much hope for it, within a five to ten year range."

"The only way we can find for prompt action would be to go through the UMass Building Authority," Knapp said. In order to take this route, student fees must be pledged to pay off the bonds sold to pay for the renovations.

"One could consider going to the proposition of shifting the whole way in which we deal with sports, of an overall fee, and deal with ticket sales," Knapp suggested as an alternative. At the present time, student fees pay all athletic team expenses and ticket sales pay for athletic scholarships.

That's the way a number of institutions do it," Knapp said. "That's one kind of approach if you want to avoid a $20 fee or a $15 fee. You can go into creative financing, of a variety of kinds."

When told that student leaders were upset at the suggestion of selling a state-owned academic building to the Building Authority, because a precedent would be set, Knapp said he felt there would be no danger.

"I don't think there are any comparable projects at all. I can't conceive of it being the first of several," he said.

According to Knapp, the building has not yet been transferred to the Building Authority, which is undertaking a feasibility study.

"Nothing has been nailed down yet," Knapp said. "They've been working on the original design plans to see what it would take to do the project."

These plans will be used to estimate the cost of the renovations, Knapp said.

World and national news

Investigative efforts reveal no new clues

CHICAGO (AP) — A task force investigating the deaths of seven people who took cyanide-laden Extra-Strength Tylenol reported no progress in its inquiry yesterday and declined to say whether it had any new leads.

Chicago police, who are working with the force of more than 100 investigators from federal, state and local agencies but conducting their own probe into the death of the seventh victim, said there was "nothing new" in their effort.

"Things are quiet," Sgt. Michael Invergo said.

Meanwhile, a Chicago man who became the first person arrested in connection with the investigation remained in the Metropolitan Correctional Center on yesterday on a federal extortion charge.

Nobel Prize is given to European Scientists

BOSTON (AP) — Two Swedes and an Englishman shared the Nobel Prize for Medicine yesterday for their research into a common but still perplexing group of body chemicals that affects a variety of human ills ranging from arthritis and high blood pressure to asthma and painful menstruation.

The Nobel was awarded to Sune Bergstrom and Bengt I. Samuelsson of the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm and John R. Vane of the Wellcome Research Foundation in Beckenham, England.

Their research has delved into the workings and chemistry of a group of substances called prostaglandins, which are similar to hormones. Scientists believe they may be able to treat a variety of stubborn disorders by manipulating these substances, found throughout the human body and the animal world.

All three men are in Boston this week to speak at scientific meetings held as part of the bicentennial celebration at Harvard Medical School. They sipped champagne together in a medical school lecture hall, and Bergstrom promised they would hold "a joint symposium" to figure out how to spend the $157,000 prize money.

"It's certainly most gratifying that your colleagues value the work that you have been fighting with for the past 35 years," said Bergstrom, 66, who is sometimes called the father of prostaglandin chemistry.

Added Samuelsson: "It's a very nice way to wake up."

Oil lease sale may bring in 3 billion in bids

WASHINGTON (AP) — An icy stretch of water above Alaska named Diapir Field may hold the biggest reserves of oil and gas found in the United States in 14 years.

The oil industry is gearing up for the 1.8 million-acre lease sale this week, which could bring in a record $3 billion in bids.

Many oil company officials believe the lease sale tomorrow in Anchorage, Alaska, may be the most lucrative of the 41 sales to be offered in Interior Secretary James Watt's leasing program.

Watt, who has been attacked for the program offering virtually the entire U.S. coastline for drilling over the next five years, is hoping the ping the success of the sale will silence critics.

"What we need is a big one — something that will show that the oil industry wants this land," Watt has said.

The Diapir Field, named for the type of geological formation, lies at the top of Alaska just offshore from the Prudhoe Bay field, the 1968 discovery that supplies the country with 18 percent of its domestic oil production.

Diapir's proximity to the Prudhoe field and the Alaska oil pipeline is the reason the oil industry is excited.

The Interior Department puts the chance of finding commerical quantities of oil and gas at 99.3 percent. It estimates that Diapir holds 2.4 billion barrels of oil and 1.8 trillion cubic feet of gas.

AP Laserphoto

Rioters in Amsterdam erect barricades in the streets during battles which erupted when police drove squatters from a building they had occupied to protest housing shortages. Police tried to break up the crowds of about 1000 protesters with tear gas. Reportedly few injuries and arrests resulted.

Polled POW's dislike national war memorial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A poll of former U.S. prisoners of war found that most dislike the design selected for a national memorial honoring Americans who fought in the Vietnam war, a critic of the design said yesterday.

The poll was paid for by Texas computer millionaire H. Ross Perot, who is among the critics of the original design and who joined in the protest that led to a decision to add a larger-than-life statue and an American flag to the memorial.

Perot called the design a "tombstone" and a "slap in the face" of those who served in the war but said he would withdraw his objections if a poll showed veterans supported the monument. He originally intended to commission a poll among all Vietnam veterans but later decided to survey only former POWs.

New law prohibits hospitals from collecting excess insurance

BOSTON — One response to the high cost of being sick is a new state law in Massachusetts that gives hospitals a strong incentive to cut costs.

The law, which took effect Oct. 1, limits the amount of money that the state's 120 hospitals can collect each year from health insurance. Officials say they expect the unique law to be a model for cost-trimming efforts in other states.

David Kinzer, president of the Massachusetts Hospital Association, says he thinks the law will force some hospitals to merge, while others will split up their services, such as maternity care and emergency rooms.

Some hospitals already have stopped filling vacancies, and some may replace some of their registered nurses with practical nurses or aides.

Kinzer says hospitals are likely to try other tactics as well. Some probably will encourage doctors to admit fewer patients, send them home sooner and order fewer lab tests. Community hospitals may stop providing expensive care like open-heart surgery and send patients who need them to big medical centers.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Impact of 2½ can be decreased by increasing neighborhood neighborhood services

CAMBRIDGE — Massachusetts cities and towns could cut the impact of tax-limiting Proposition 2½ on their revenues by increasing user charges for such services as sewerage [illegible]ther sanitation activities and parks and recreation, says a study.

"Massachusetts appears to underemploy user charges," said the report disclosed yesterday by Prof. Daniel Holland and staffer Patricia McCarney of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"On a per capita basis, state and local fees and charges came to $144 for the U.S. as a whole and only $116 for Massachusetts," they reported. "As a percentage of personal income, these charges were only 1.7 percent in Massachusetts while they equal 2.3 percent of the U.S. as a whole."

Berkshire Hills are aflame with fall foliage at its peak

SHELBURNE FALLS — As brilliant sun melted away the early morning frost on pumpkin patches Monday, thousands of holiday tourists jammed the western Massachusetts hills aflame with autumn color.

The foliage was at its peak this weekend and traffic was bumper-to-bumper Sunday on the Mohawk Trail through the Berkshire Hills and heavy again by noon yesterday, according to state police.

"It reminds you of the old days," said Trooper Dean Gardner of the Shelburne Falls barracks. "Ten or 15 years ago traffic used to back up for several hours every weekend in the fall."

"It's been an outstanding weekend for leaf lookers and tag sales," Gardner said.

All the motels and hotels in southern and northern Berkshire County were filled, officials said, and the sidewalks of the resort villages of Stockbridge and Great Barrington were jammed with a Manhattan-like crush of bodies.

AP Laserphoto

Participants in the Bonne Bell 10 kilometer road race cross the starting line in Boston. The race, with 7,700 participants, was the largest women's road race in history. New Zealander Anne Audain won, setting an American record with 31:41 minutes.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Michelle Murray
Copy Editor	Susan Callender
Layout Technician	Kelley Riley
Photo Technician	Michael Margolis
Composition	Alyssa Rusiecki, Jamie Katz
	Kathie Wells, Becky Robins, Maria Cahillane
	Marianne Walsh

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Knapp unveils high tech plan

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts should respond to the needs of the state economy and strengthen its high technology programs, UMass President David C. Knapp said Saturday.

Knapp elaborated on one part of the five-point plan he outlined before the Faculty Senate last month.

"We have a major need for trained people in areas related to the high technology industries in particular," Knapp said, "and we need to continue to step up the quantity and quality of people that we're educating in those areas, in engineering in particular."

"There's a tremendous shortage nationally at the Ph. D. level and we need to push on Ph.D. level education in engineering and computer science. That has an automatic spillover effect into the health of the economy," Knapp said.

"My basic premise is that if the economy of the state stays strong, then there's a better chance for the University to stay strong," he explained.

Knapp said that the University should work with industry, the state and the federal government.

"We've made some major moves with respect to working with industry on providing support," Knapp said. "The COINS (computer and information sciences) Department has received equipment worth somewhere in the vicinity of $3 million from industrial sources."

Knapp also stressed the importance of research to the University and the state.

"We have an economy in Massachusetts that is heavily dependent on research and development and we need to step up our efforts in those areas. We need to increase the amount of federal support which we receive — that's going to be very difficult, given this period in time — and we also have to get the state to be involved in providing research support," he said.

When asked what effect the strengthening of high technology areas at the University might have on the humanities, Knapp said he sees no necessary opposition between the two areas.

"There's no necessary oppositional relationship between strengthening technology and science, and automatically weakening the humanities or the social sciences," Knapp said.

"If you're going to train first-rate scientists and engineers, they've got to have a strong liberal education underlying that. You've got to maintain strength in the humanities and social sciences for that reason and just because they have merit in their own right within a University," he said.

Knapp said engineering has not been expanding at this University as much as it has at others.

"In a sense, what we're doing is playing catch-up," Knapp said, "Engineering was very late in developing within this University in comparison to other institutions."

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

University of Massachusetts President Davis C. Knapp speaks during half-time at last weekend's homecoming football game while Anne Wexler and Chancellor Joseph Duffey look on.

MassPIRG bikers raise funds for bottle bill

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

While most people spent their cold and rainy Columbus Day weekend eating home-cooked meals, more than 80 people biked their way across Massachusetts to raise money and support for the Bottle Bill campaign.

The three-day Bike-a-thon held over the weekend was sponsored by the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPirg) and SPOKES, a political bicyclist group. Twenty-three University of Massachusetts students participated in the course, which began in Pittsfield and ended in Boston, extending 85 miles across the state.

"The Bike-a-thon is part of the campaign to save the Bottle Bill. We're trying to get press and we're trying to get people aware that this is a referendum appeal that they can vote on," said Louise Gogel, a member of MassPirg and an organizer of the Bike-a-thon in Amherst.

"We're biking to make the whole state aware of the problem of broken glass and that means going the whole stretch of Massachusetts," she said.

"There have been eight flat tires since we left Pittsfield. You know where the broken glass comes from," said Doug Mink, 31, an astronomer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, during a break in the course on Sunday in Amherst. Sixteen cans had been collected by the time Mink had reached Amherst.

Mink collected one that he found lying on the ground from every town he passed through on the route. Mink said he found a Budweiser can right after entering Amherst. Sixteen cans had been collected by the time Mink had reached Amherst.

"The Bottle Bill will have a very positive impact on the litter problem in Massachusetts. That's the reason we're here. We want to see the litter removed from the roads," said Denise Cayer, a member of the Amherst committee of supporters of the Bottle Bill, who accepted the symbolic string of cans for the town of Amherst.

Lydia Sutherland, 22, from Hampshire College, said she was participating in the Bike-a-thon because she really supported the Bottle Bill.

"Being a biker, I don't like to see bottles all over the ground," Sutherland said.

Dana Gabriel, 14, a resident of Amherst said he was biking, "to save the Bottle Bill and to see what it's like to bike 100 miles."

Steve Creedon, 16, who was beginning the Bike-a-thon from Amherst with Gabriel, said he was doing it to save the Bottle Bill.

"But it's going to be a pain in the neck," Creedon said. Creedon and Gabriel raised 800 dollars in pledges for the Bike-a-thon.

Howard Rubinstein, coordinator for SPOKES, said SPOKES was sponsoring the Bike-a-thon because of "our experience of road trips in states with the Bottle Bill and in those without it."

"We've seen that it works," Rubinstein said.

"People can be politically active and have a good time at the same time," he said.

Many students who participated in the Bike-a-thon could not bike the entire route because of classes and homework.

"It's not that I don't have the legs, I just don't have the whole weekend," said Matt Muir, a UMass graduate student in polymer science who biked from Springfield to Amherst.

Carol May, a freshman from Clark University, had received pledges for 150 miles, but was forced to stop biking in Springfield because of a knee injury.

"I love biking and the Bottle Bill is a real good cause. Worcester needs it desperately. The streets are totally littered with broken bottles," May said.

Photo by Danny Tessier

Considering a career in juvenile justice or music, Fred Clayton takes advantage of pleasant weather and jams on bass beside the Campus Pond.

Faculty approves new minors plan

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate approved the Long Range Plan for Academic Affairs at its meeting last Thursday after attaching an amendment which calls for the elimination of the three appendices to the Plan.

The appendices dealt with the implementation of the University Writing Program, a national center for the purpose of studying reasoning skills, and the general education proposal made by the Faculty Senate Ad Hoc Committee on General Education last May.

Also at the meeting last week, the Senate approved new minors in philosophy, linguistics, and forestry and wildlife.

In a report released by the Academic Matters Council, which recommended the new minors, special guidelines were set for each of the minors.

The philosophy minor was recommended, according to the report "because philosophy has an intellectual relation to many disciplines. Its study can help illuminate a student's work in other subjects."

The requirements for the philosophy minor are, according to the report, that students must complete 15 credits in philosophy with at least 9 credits being above the 100 level.

The linguistics minor was recommended primarily because many linguistics "courses already form parts of combined majors with other departments," the report states. Only five courses are required in the minor.

The forestry and wildlife minor was created to officially recognize the many non-forestry students who are taking forestry courses, the report stated.

The requirements for the minor are that students must earn 15 credits in forestry courses. Of the five courses required, one must be dendrology, the report stated.

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

STOP & SHOP

DOUBLE MFG. COUPONS
Hadley-Amherst only see Store for Details

Sirloin Steak
Beef Top Round Steak Beef Loin without Tenderloin — Your Choice — 1.99 lb

Corner Deli — Available in stores with service deli.

Wilson Honey Baked Ham Sliced to order 3.79 lb

Processed Gruyere Cheese 1.99 lb

Carando "Grande" Pepperoni 3.29 lb

Rump Roast Beef Round USDA CHOICE "GREAT BEEF" lb 1.79

Beef Eye Round Roast USDA CHOICE "GREAT BEEF" lb 2.29

Beef Bottom Round Roast Up to 5 lbs — USDA CHOICE — 1.59 lb

USDA CHOICE Up To 5 Lbs Beef Top Round Roast lb 1.89

TOP ROUND London Broil lb 2.19

Chicken Leg Quarters "White Gem" with Back 8 to 9 lb package lb 39¢

"White Gem" Chicken Breast Split with Back 5-6 lb pkg lb .99

USDA Choice Beef Boneless Chuck Roast 1.69 lb

Consistently Juicy & Flavorful Fresh Lean Ground Beef 1.69 lb

Beef Chuck Shoulder London Broil 1.89 lb

Prices effective Hadley-Amherst only

McIntosh Apples U.S. Fancy 2¼" min. 9 lb bag 1.99

Light Bulbs G.E. 4 Pack 60, 75 or 100 watt
SAVE 2.00 — G.E. 4 Pack 60, 75 or 100 watt Light Bulbs — With Coupon — STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON C — With this coupon and a $ 50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 213

Iceberg Lettuce New Jersey Grown, Large Head
29¢ With Coupon — STOP & SHOP PRODUCE COUPON C — New Jersey Grown Iceberg Lettuce Large Head — Good Sun. Oct 10 Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 216

Large Eggs Stop & Shop Grade A Dozen White
FREE With Coupon — STOP & SHOP DAIRY COUPON C — Stop & Shop Dozen Large Eggs White Grade A — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 217

Muffins Stop & Shop English Regular or Split 12 oz pkg of 6
FREE With Coupon — STOP & SHOP BAKERY COUPON C — Stop & Shop English Muffins Reg. or Split 12 oz pkg of 6 — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 216

Orange Juice Stop & Shop Half Gallon carton from concentrate 59¢ With Coupon — STOP & SHOP DAIRY COUPON C — Stop & Shop Orange Juice Half Gallon Carton From Concentrate — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 218

Geisha Tuna Solid White in water, 7 oz. can 69¢ With Coupon — STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON C — Solid White in water Geisha Tuna 7 oz can — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 219

Hi-Dri Towels 2 Ply Roll 100 Print Sheets
39¢ With Coupon — STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON C — 2 Ply Roll Hi-Dri Towels 100 Print Sheets — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 205

Crest 8.2 oz Tube Reg., Mint or Gel Toothpaste
1.39 With Coupon — STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON C — Toothpaste Crest 8.2 oz Reg., Mint or Gel — Good Sun. Oct 10-Sat. Oct 16. Limit one per customer. 207

Plus...30 more money savings coupons in our 4 pg circular in store!

King appoints New Staff to higher ed.

BOSTON (AP) — A bill allowing Gov. Edward J. King to appoint scores of new members to state boards of higher education slipped through the Legislature last week and immediately was signed into law.

Backers of former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis had tried to hold up the process until after King was out of office. They supported expanding the boards, but wanted their candidate to choose the new members, if he is elected.

But the bill was released last week and signed by King on Thursday, within hours of its passage by the House and Senate.

The law clears the way for King to make appointments to the boards of the state's community colleges, state colleges, the University of Lowell, Southeastern Massachusetts University, and the University of Massachusetts.

Each board, according to the law, will get two new appointments.

Hypercurricula

NOTICE TO ALL HYPERCURRICULA USERS: Effective today, in order to make "Hypercurricula" more usable for our readers, the column will be printed each day. Submissions should still be made by 3 p.m. the Friday before the week of the event. Events will not be listed in advance, but only on the day they are occuring.

In addition, all "Hypercurricula" submissions should be written in the manner which they appear here. Please fill in the standard "Hypercurricula" forms as before, but write out the description of the event as it appears here, with the time and place at the end.

Everyone's cooperation is appreciated and will allow us to print as many "Hypercurricula" notices as timely as we can.

COLLEGE YEAR IN ATHENS — Meeting with representative of the program — discussion and slides. All day, fifth floor, Herter Hall.

FALASHA PROJECT — The Falashas are black Ethiopian Jews who have been faced with continual persecution in Ethiopia. Look for the Falasha information table in the Campus Center. Next meeting tomorrow at 7:00 p.m. Dukes Room, Student Union.

UBC HAPPY HOUR — The Undergraduate Business Club will hold its first student faculty happy hour. All members encouraged to attend. Bring your card. 4-6 p.m. SBA Faculty Lounge.

CONSUMER ECONOMICS CLUB MEETING — Second meeting of the Consumer Economics Club. Old members please attend, new members welcome. 6 p.m. Skinner Hall Lounge.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB MEETING — Final plans for Wine and Cheese Party and Candy Apples to be discussed. All Food Science Majors welcome. Remember, candy apples ARE coming. 6:30 p.m. Chenoweth 227.

STUDENT MEETING — UPC General Meeting. New members welcome. 6:30 p.m. 174 Campus Center.

UMASS HANGLIDING CLUB MEETING — Finalization of lesson sign ups for the 16th and 17th. Bring $75 for lessons and dues. Find out about further lesson possibilities. 7 p.m. 804 Campus Center.

HELLENIC STUDENT ASSOCIATION MEETING — Second official meeting. All students of Greek nationality or Greek descent are encouraged to attend. New members are welcome. 7 p.m. 101 Campus Center.

BICYCLE CLUB MEETING — General meeting to discuss; Bike camping trip Oct 16 and 17, Florida Tour in January, Fundraising events, On-campus bicycle race, and October day tours. Presentation on bicycle touring in Spain. 7:30 p.m. 803 Campus Center

AL-ANON — Having a problem with someone else's drinking? Join us. 8 to 9:30 p.m. Campus Center. Check schedule for room number.

Photo by Tom Kudla

University of Massachusetts new students Eve Mendelsohn and Kippy Williams study in the Indian Summer sunshine on top of a concrete vent near the Campus Center.

Stavros is dedicated to the needs of the handicapped

By JILL OKUN
Collegian Staff

The man in the wheelchair slowly maneuvers his way through the crowd toward the curb of North Pleasant Street where the car is waiting for him.

As the man approaches, the driver and his companion get out of the car and open the back door. Struggling, the pair manages to lift the man out of the wheelchair and into the back seat. They then unhinge the clasps on the chair, fold it, and place it in the trunk of the car, before pulling away.

This scene illustrates an unnecessary hassle. This individual could solve a major problem in his life by contacting a group that is especially equipped to deal with the every day annoyances in the life of a person with a physical disability.

Any individual who is physically disabled and desires a change in lifestyle may be helped by an Amherst organization called Stavros.

Stavros, located at 691 Southeast St. in Amherst, is an independent living program for disabled adults who live in Hampshire, Berkshire, Hampden and Franklin counties.

The main function of Stavros is "to help the disabled to function as much as they are able to and interested in doing within the community," said Elizabeth Gallant, director of services at Stavros.

"The world is inaccessible to people with disabilities, and our goal is to develop their independence," Gallant said.

Stavros offers a variety of programs including: peer advocacy counseling, individual and group advocacy counseling, personal care attendant evaluations, communication, education and outreach programs, as well as training for health care professions.

Stavros also works with church groups, service organizations, businesses and public schools in the area to improve attitudes toward people with disabilities, Gallant said.

Stavros allows each person to develop his or her own personal program according to his or her individual needs. The counsellors have all had first-hand experience with disabilities, whether it was their own or someone close to them, she said.

Stavros was originally funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission, Gallant said. It is now funded by federal, state and county grants as well as by the Hampshire United Way and private donations.

Stavros began in 1974 when the group's founder, Christos Palames, moved to the area with a spinal cord injury only to realize that there were no services available for disabled individuals.

Stavros deals with problems ranging from skill building, to achieving goals set by an individual, to finding more suitable transportation, to getting Medicaid to change their guidelines, Gallant said.

★ bonfire

Continued from page 1

assorted music lovers for the Eighth Annual Multiband Pops Concert.

The concert featured Jazz Ensemble I performing "Check the Oil," written and directed by Jeff Holmes. The Percussion Ensemble, directed by Peter W. Tanner, performed "Ceremonial" by Creston. The Symphony Band, conducted by Malcolm W. Rowell Jr., performed Giovanni's "Choral and Capriccio." The UMass Marimbas, under the direction of Peter H. Tanner, performed "La Comparsa" by Lecuona.

Nat. Security Correspondent to speak about peace and war

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

"Peace or War? : The Meaning of Deterrence" will be the subject of a presentation by Leslie Gelb, national security correspondent for the New York Times, at 8 tonight at the University of Massachusetts School of Business Auditorium (SBA 120).

Gelb, before his New York Times position, worked in the Defense Department and the State Department. In the late 60's he was Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for the Policy Planning and Arms Control Staff, and Director of the Secretary of Defense's Vietnam Task Force.

"We want Gelb at the start to give a synthesis of where we stand and an introduction to the whole field," said James Cooney, coordinator of the Five College Project on Disarmament and Peace.

"He has worked under Carter and a Republican presidency, so he believes strongly in deterrence. He's not the main proponent (of those who will speak). He's probably rather pro-Administration," Cooney said.

"He's a little bit hard-line," Cooney said, "and does have a unique perspective."

Gelb will be the first of a series of speakers sponsored by the committee on the subject of disarmament. Speakers this semester will probably include a Soviet diplomat and someone from the U.S. Administration. Next semester the series will be continued as critics of deterrence from the U.S. and abroad speak on the issue.

With the series, the Five College Committee hopes to "further interest and coordinate interest" in the community, according to Cooney, who noted that professors at area colleges are beginning to integrate issues into their curriculum.

"For example, one professor of post World War II U.S. history is gearing his class toward the nuclear age. That's the sort of thing we're trying to encourage," Cooney said.

Women's Week Calendar of Events

THE WOMEN'S WEEK FOR THE WEEK OF OCT. 12-17

The Women's Week is a calendar of local events for women. To place an event, contact the Women's Department of the Collegian by Friday.

TUESDAY: A support group for problem eaters-bulemics, anorexics and compulsive eaters will meet at 2:30 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center.

WEDNESDAY: A group for women with childhood experience of abuse will meet from 3-5 p.m. at the Everywoman s Center.

THURSDAY: Speaker and video: "Rights of a Foreign or Immigrant Woman in the Workplace" will be held at 7:30 in the Campus Center in rooms 811-815.

The film "Bottle Babies" will be shown from 12-1 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 801.

SATURDAY: A candlelight ceremony to remember women who suffered from domestic violence will be held at 6:30 p.m. at Veteran's Park on Dwight Street in Holyoke. The ceremony is sponsored by Womanshelter/Companeras, a shelter for abused women and their children.

ALSO: The Everywoman's Center is currently registering women for the following groups: support group for survivors of sexual assault/rape (offered in two groups - one for over 18 years and one for under 18 years), support/self-help group for widows, support group for mothers in all life situations which meets at 6:30 on Tuesdays.

TIME OUT

Two TV's — Free Popcorn

WORLD SERIES SPECIAL
Pitchers of Beer $3.00
Amherst's Biggest Little Bar
37 N Pleasant St, Amherst MA

LEVIS SALE Straight Leg Denim $18.95
V neck Men's Acrylic Sweaters $12.95
Crew Neck Sweaters $18.00
100% Cotton Turtlenecks Ladies Sweaters $7.95
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 9:30 - 6 Mon - Sat
FRIDAYS till 9 pm

TONIGHT
Hear the new music of Rack-A-Disc
Requests Welcome
Two For One 9 til 11
- All Liquor Drinks -
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Dastardly Dans
TONIGHT
25c DRAFTS No Cover
8 pm til Closing
35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 253-9286

STEREO CLEARANCE HOUSE HAS LOWEST PRICES
$24.95 FOR PAIR LIST $99.95
Tonne 6 x 9 3-way speaker pair, 40oz Magnets 120 watts max. per speaker, Metal grilles, wire & hardware included. All for only $24.95 plus $2.75 shipping Money back guarantee
Our Free Catalog has many more bargains on all major brands of home and car stereo Stereo Clearance House Dept. 154 Bedford Street Johnstown, PA 15902 Phone quotes (814) 539-3057

IMPROVE STUDY HABITS
STOP SMOKING
Lose Weight Insomnia Nail Biting
Self Confidence Sexual Problems Bed Wetting
Hypnosis can help you make it PERMANENT
Hampshire Ethical Hypnosis Center
Call or Write for Free Brochure
Milton H. Askinoss, Member A.A.E.H.
Available for Lectures/Demonstrations
The Farrick Building, Rte. 9 Hadley, MA
3/10 mile Hampshire Mall (next to Rocky's Hardware)
584-1919 by Appt. Only

OXFORD
Next Summer?
"Hear all about it"
See slides of 1982,
meet participants.
BARTLETT - 301
October 13 - (Wed)
TIME - 7:30 P.M.
Note: new law course

Restaurant/Hospitality Majors:
The Stouffer Experience...
Why Should You Be Interested In Stouffer Restaurants?
- 20% growth rate is creating substantial career opportunity
- Most comprehensive management development program in the industry
- Over a dozen diversified fine dining concepts with new ideas being developed and implemented
- Top salary progression with the benefits associated with our industry leadership position

A Restaurant Recruiter will be on campus soon to speak personally with you about the career benefits of the Stouffer Experience. For details, or an appointment for personal interview, contact the Placement Office, or write: Mr. M. Ede, Stouffer Restaurants, 29800 Bainbridge Road, Solon, Ohio 44139.
Stouffer Restaurants on campus October 20th & 21st
Stouffer Restaurants
An Equal Opportunity Employer

SATF ORIENTATION WORKSHOPS
New RSO treasurers and officers must attend an SATF Orientation Workshop prior to October 15th in order to (continue) initiate any financial documents for the Group. Workshops will be held as follows:

DATE	CAMPUS CENTER RM	TIME
Wed. - 29 Sept.	CC 168	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 30 Sept.	CC 168	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.
Wed. - 13 Oct.	CC 911	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 14 Oct.	CC 911	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.

Attendance at one session is all that is required. Sessions will review financial responsibilities and requirements placed on each RSO and respond to questions. New manuals will be distributed at the meetings.

Improve your grades, supplement your notes, with notes from STUDENT NOTE and PRINTING SERVICE

Bot 100 Shapiro	FSN 130 Bert
COINS 121 Colson	Geol 103 Brown
COINS 123 Reynolds	HRTA 100 Fletcher
Com Stu 121 Davis	Mgt 301 Odiorne
Com Stu 150 Cronan	Mktg 301 Rosenberg
Econ 103 B Resnick	Physics 100 Kofler
Econ 103 C Flamm	Physics 161 Chang
Econ 103 D Duguay	Physics 162 Quinten
Econ 103 E Flaherty	Psych 150 B Simonson
Econ 103 F Norton	Psych 150 D Feldman
Econ 104 A & D Aitken	Psych 100 B Novak
Econ 104 B Deere	Psych 150 E Royer
Econ 104 C Treyz	Soc 102 Yaukey
FSN 102 Sawyer	Zoo 102 Mange

(This is a corrected list)
The Student Note & Printing Service
403 Student Union (upstairs)
Open M-Th 10 am - 4 pm,
Fri 10 am - 3 pm
telephone 545-2271

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
COMING SOON TO THE FINE ARTS CENTER
Elly Ameling
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m.
Vienna Choir Boys
Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m.
First American Tour
THE ZAGREB GRAND BALLET
Monday, October 18 8:00 PM
Scottish National Orchestra
Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.
All shows on sale now
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F 545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

John Lee Hooker
and the
Coast To Coast Blues Band
IN CONCERT
Saturday Oct. 16th
SUB/UMass 8 pm.
Gen. ADM...$3
404 SUB UMass
Tix Unlimited--UMass
Tickets on Sale at: For More Info...545-2145
For the Record--Amherst
Main St. Records-N'ton
Commuter Office--
SPONSORED BY THE COMMUTER COLLECTIVE & the GOVERNORS PROGRAM COUNCIL

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Brave New World isn't far off target

Brave New World is set in the year A.F. 632, in what is present day England. Mother is a dirty word. People are produced in test tubes as Alpha Plus geniuses, Epsilon Semi-Morons, or anything in between. But this is all beyond our comprehension.

I was sitting in English 180 B listening to Professor Joe Frank theorize about Aldous Huxley's book, the things he says make sense.

Professor Frank points out that what we can comprehend about life in 632 A.F. is that; promiscuous sex is accepted; the dope of the future, "Soma", is taken by everyone; people play golf and go to erotic movies in their spare time; they have no commitments and they are usually happy.

Promiscuous sex, although not overwhelmingly accepted, is certainly practiced by a large cross section of this college population. Drugs and alcohol, although not legal, are used, and abused if you'd like, by most of us. And, golf and erotic movies, although not the sole source of our entertainment, are certainly typical of the activities we participate in to amuse ourselves.

Perhaps the biggest dissimilarity between college life and Huxley's 632 A.F. is our lack of commitments. In Brave New World everyone is committed to a productive society, and to the pursuit of their own happiness.

For many of us in college our only concerns are getting an education, and having a good time. Not necessarily in that order. Many of us have, or did have, someone who cooks for us or cleans up for us or even takes care of us if we're sick. Everything is here, all we have to do is take advantage of what school offers.

When I left home for UMass as a freshman I thought I was finally on my own. I was independent. But the closer I get to the real world as my time here slips away, the more I realize how foolish that impression was, or is.

Perhaps Professor Frank said it best when he told our class, "College provides a babysitting service while your mind develops."

Scott Sacco is a Collegian staff member

Scott Sacco

Shamie hurts his chances

Ray Shamie did everything at Tuesday's nuclear freeze rally that he has been accusing Ted Kennedy of in his campaign for Senate. It was the Republican who turned the platform into a political forum, not Kennedy. Throughout the campaign Shamie has been saying that Kennedy is the one who follows the cameras around and does things only for his political well being. Actions spoke louder than words for Ray Shamie at the rally.

Shamie accused his opponent of being a "professional politician", as he himself diverted from the important issue of nuclear proliferation to petty campaign rhetoric.

Richard Nangle

"I support a nuclear freeze. I oppose freezing out speakers on an American campus," Shamie said during his speech. On face value, this is of course a valid statement. If Shamie had in fact been a supporter of the nuclear freeze, he should have been allowed to speak at a rally of that size and importance. This is especially significant when you consider the controversy surrounding the issues of Kennedy's own campaign incentives despite the fact that they were largely created by this newspaper.

But Shamie is not now, nor has he ever been, a supporter of a true nuclear freeze. Not once before the rally had Shamie ever spoken in favor of a freeze. Shamie no more believes in a nuclear freeze than Ronald Reagan does. It's just that Shamie was not going to let anything get in the way of his speaking at that rally. What's even more amazing is the fact that Shamie had a golden opportunity at the rally to make a credible name for himself and perhaps pick up some sorely needed votes. Instead he made a fool not only of himself but of the entire conservative freeze viewpoint.

Shamie is among the blind flag-waving crowd of conservatives who believe that the United States can do no wrong. He wants the U.S. to catch up to Russia before initiating a nuclear freeze. The fact that Kennedy told Tuesday's enthusiastic crowd that the U.S. has 20 percent more nuclear weapons than the Soviets will do nothing to ruffle the feathers of the conservatives. One would presume that conservatives would also like to see Milwaukee catch up with California before the Brewers go to the World Series.

Earlier this week, President Reagan accused freeze proponents of letting themselves be misguided by those who wish to undermine American capitalism. More specifically, he inferred that Ted Kennedy, Mark Hatfield (R-Oregon), Mike Dukakis and all the other freeze proponents are communist sympathizers.

Congressman Barney Frank, D-Mass., hit the nail right on the head at Northeastern University's freeze rally.

"It's discouraging and depressing that the president of the United States has to resort to that kind of McCarthyite rhetoric to discredit people who are only trying to prevent nuclear holocaust," he said.

What's even more discouraging is the fact that there are people in this state and on this campus who support Shamie for U.S. Senate. His campaign squad was in full uniform at Tuesday's rally handing out literature and holding signs discrediting the freeze issue. A bumpersticker distributed by the Shamie campaign is indicative of the Bozo the Clown atmosphere the Walpole businessman has created for himself. It says "Ted Kennedy is faking it in Massachusetts." Anyone who knows anything about politics also knows that Ted Kennedy has done more important things for Massachusetts than this column has space for.

Kennedy outclassed Shamie by all but ignoring his presence. Kennedy declined to mention his senatorial and presumed presidential campaign as so many know-it-alls were so certain he would. He only cracked a smile when he noticed an airplane flying around the rally site with a banner reading support Ray Shamie for U.S. Senate. A lot of people had to eat their words when the rally was over.

Now if anyone ever deserved to lose an election by an embarrassing landslide it is Ray Shamie. Hopefully Kennedy supporters will come to the polls in droves on November 2, and hand Shamie that whopping defeat.

Ray Shamie lied when he said he would agree to the rules of the rally format and not talk politics. We don't need another liar in Washington.

Rich Nangle is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Liberal politics squelch conservative opinion at freeze rally

To the Editor:

I find it very disturbing, although not surprising, that Ray Shamie was blasted both at the nuclear freeze rally and in the Collegian for bringing politics into his speech at Tuesday's rally, while Senator Kennedy and friends made political pitches and got away with it unscathed.

The only difference between Ray Shamie and Ted Kennedy is that Ray Shamie was campaigning for 1982 and Ted Kennedy was campaigning for 1984. Anyone who says that Senator Kennedy did not have 1984 in mind when he criticized President Reagan's economic and defense policies either is very naive or thinks everyone else is.

It would have been unreasonable for anyone to expect Tuesday's rally to be totally devoid of political overtones; it should not have been the case, however, that the conservative political overtones were rejected while the liberal political overtones were tolerated and even endorsed.

J. Blake
Northeast

Random Notes

The Armed Forces Journal reports these current terms circulating the Department of Defense:

Alternative hostility — Nuclear war.
Circadian deregulation — Death.
Dynamic processing environment — Kill zone.
Enmity stimulation — Propaganda.
Hostility platform — Tank, armored personnel carrier.
Permanent prehostility — Peace.
Premature offense — Surprise attack.
Serviced — Killed in action.
Violence processing — Combat.
Violence source — Weapon.

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Amy Jenness, Associate Women's Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

TUES. OCT. 12
FREE RACK-A-DISC DANCE PARTY
Professional disc-jockeys

WED. OCT. 13
FREE MOVIE
"ROCK 'N ROLL HIGH SCHOOL"
featuring: The Ramones
8 pm/10 pm
Free Popcorn/Drink Specials

THURS. OCT. 14
FREE Local Band Night
PEAK

FRI. OCT. 15
HAPPY HOUR
WITH PAUL BROTCHI 3-6 PM
ROCK WITH
"THE NEIGHBORHOODS"
AND
"KASPAR HAUSER" $2.00 COVER

SAT. OCT. 16
"MITCH CHAKOUR"
WITH URBAN RENEWAL
sponsored by U.P.C. $2.00

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

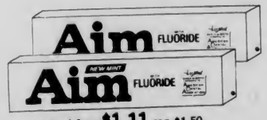
$1.14 reg $1.63
Noxzema 4 oz

$1.49
Ladys Choice Deo
Reg Unsc Fresh

$3.72 reg $6.51
Oil of Olay 4 oz

$2.22
reg $3.10
11 oz H & S shampoo

$1.61 reg $2.70
Afrin nasal spray



Aim 4.6 oz $1.11 reg $1.50
regular or mint

All sale items also available the Mini Store located in the Student Union

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center Open M-F 9-5

BLACK & WHITE SALE
$1.00 OFF DEVELOPING & PRINTING WITH COUPON

THE UNIVERSITY STORE is now an Authorized Photopatio Dealer. This means you get high quality photofinishing (we use only Kodak paper and chemicals) at low, low prices.

Bring in the coupon below with a roll of 35mm black & white print film for $1.00 off developing and printing.

The best picture prices under the sun . . . Photopatio and the University Store guarantee it.

We use Kodak paper for a good look

COUPON
$1.00 off
BLACK & WHITE PRINTS
Save $1.00 on processing and printing a roll of 35mm black and white print film with this coupon.
Coupon must be presented at the time of order.
PHOTOPATIO
THE UNIVERSITY STORE at the Campus Center
Coupon expires Oct. 31, 1982

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Shakin' down the Lane

By SAUL NATANSOHN
Collegian Correspondent

There are few vocalists in the rock world today with as distinctive a voice as Robin Lane. Harsher and more assertive than the Motels' Martha Davis but not quite as mindlessly arrogant as Joan Jett's, Lane displayed a refreshing style Friday night that is all her own. Her set reflected the wide spectrum of her musical prowess with the Shake providing the tightness and direction of a surrogate Chartbusters.

Since the break-up of the Chartbusters, Robin Lane has returned East. And after listening to some demo tapes, decided to team up with the Shake: a four-man band from Rhode Island. They've been playing together for only two months, but it seems that the Shake is filling the Chartbusters' shoes quite well. They opened their set with "Cry My Baby," reaffirming their commitment to pick up right where the Chartbusters left off. The musical complement to Lane's piercing lead vocal was solid and displayed the sense of subtle enthusiasm predominant throughout their set. Other highlights included "Send Me an Angel," a distinctive Robin Lane tune that featured cohesive background vocals and a strong guitar lead to set the crowd in the proper frame of mind. "Why Do You Tell Lies" came across as being unemotional and strained, though the funky guitar lead was playfully emphatic. An arrogant tune about lost love — "When You Were Mine" — had an upbeat tempo, strong vocals and appropriately confusing lyrics:

"...I don't care if you go with another girl...I love you more than I did when you were mine..."

The Shake opened the evening with a set of their own, just to explore the mood of the audience. They opened with a bouncy,fun song to warm up the crowd, then moved into a few Clash songs. "Brand New Cadillac" featured emphatic guitar leads and overall good adaptation. The lead guitarist, the bass player, and the keyboardist alternated as lead vocalist with the piano man coming across as a struggling Joe Strummer and the lead guitarist working on a Glenn Tilbrook imitation.

In general, the Shake sounded a lot tighter and regimented when Robin Lane was on stage. They seemed awkward and unsure of themselves when she wasn't. Perhaps if the two are bold enough to try new things musically and lyrically and if Lane can keep her enthusiasm going, they can break out of the local scene and onto some bigger and better things. Judging from their performance, they've certainly got the talent.

The Five College Dance Department will present their Fall Faculty Concert at Bowker Auditorium on October 14, 15 and 16 at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are $3.00 for students.

No place like Home

By PAM MADNICK
Collegian Staff

Bowker Auditorium was packed last Thursday night as a mob flocked to see Samm-Art William's Broadway play, Home. Home is an autobiographical story about a young black man without a country.

Cephus Miles (David Paul Stolongo) was born and raised in Crossroads, North Carolina. For years he worked the tobacco fields with his grandfather and uncle until they passed away, and Pattie Mae Wells (Debra Wether), the girl he loves, runs off to college in Virginia. Pattie Mae comes home only to tell Cephus that she is not of the same class. For she is now educated and he is not. She announces her intention to marry a rich person up north.

Severely upset, Cephus toys with the idea of leaving Crossroads after his conscience in the form of Woman Two (Andrea Smith), tells him in a dramatic narration to "Take It To The City." The young man decides to think about it. Meanwhile, the Vietnam war has just begun and his rich uncle (Uncle Sam, that is), is looking for him as he has evaded the draft.

A policeman played by Woman Two arrests him for not registering and shatters his belief in God and what he was taught about the commandment, "Love Thy Neighbor."

While Cephus is in prison, he gets a letter from one of his best friends telling him of the war and its casualties. Cephus feels awful, but he made a decision not to kill and now is forced to pay for it by remaining in prison for five years. Later, he receives a letter from his aunt back in Crossroads. She says the friend died and the land that had been in the Cephus family for generations was taken by the state because of unpaid taxes. He needn't bother about coming home.

Once again, his conscience tells him he has nothing to lose by taking it to the city. After getting out of prison, he heads for a large city up north. He meets drug dealers, boozers, prostitutes, and finally finds an employer. As soon as his boss discovers he didn't go to Vietnam, Cephus is fired.

Back to the streets Cephus goes without any money, without any friends, any hope. Suddenly a letter comes from his aunt with the deed to his land. She says someone purchased the land and wants it to be returned to its rightful owner.

Cephus hops on a Greyhound bus headed for Crossroads and walks around the beat-up place for awhile. Again, he's depressed. Pattie Mae walks in and wants another chance, after a marriage ends in divorce and unhappiness. She too is in search of a place to belong to so Cephus allows to let her move in. As she gets her bags from the cab, Cephus overhears that she bought the estate. Everyone lives happily ever after, since Cephus never really loved anyone but Pattie Mae. He regains his faith in God.

All this may sound very serious, but is actually a very light comedy about growing up, losing serious hope, and time. Overall, it was funny, enjoyable, and very sincere. The actors had demanding roles and all three, especially David Paul Stolongo, expressed a real love for acting.

Although Home was a one-night stand at UMass, it will be at Stage West in Springfield next month. I would definitely urge UMass students, especially Theatre students interested in acting, to see this production. I have never seen anyone as excited about being alive or being on stage as the actor behind Cephus, David Paul Stolongo.

Home was sponsored by the UMass Third World Series. For more information on the Third World Theater Series, contact Beth Robinson at 545-0190.

COLOR FILM DEVELOPING
39¢ on any 110-12 or 126-12 exp. Add 60¢ per roll postage & handling

OTHER SUPER VALUES!

SIZE/EXP.	PRICE	AMOUNT
110-12/126-12	39¢
35mm-12	99¢
Any 24 exp.	$3.29
Any 36 exp.	$4.99
Sub-Total
MA Residents 5% Sales Tax
60¢ per roll handling
TOTAL ENCLOSED

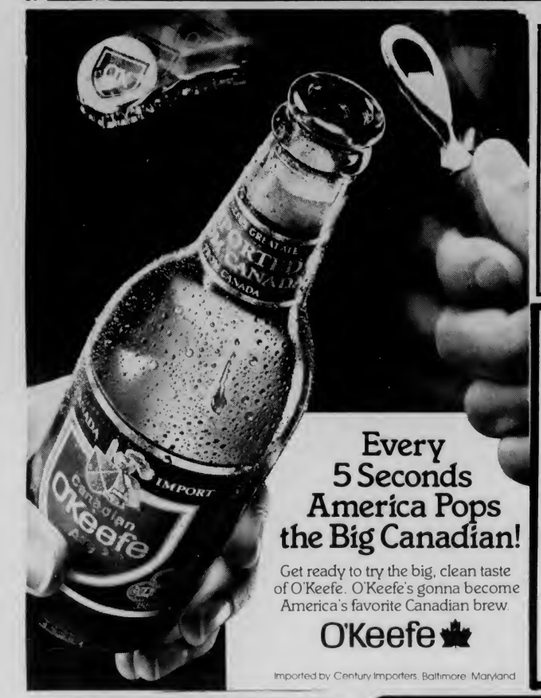
Offer expires

24 hour in plant service.
Satisfaction guaranteed!
Enclose coupon, film and check in any envelope and send to:
Mail-N-Save
P.O. Box 310
Dept. ABC
Quincy, MA 02269
Shipping Label - Please Print
Name
Address
City
State Zip

WE'VE GOT IT!
THE NEW AMERICAN SPORT
HACKY SACK® OFFICIAL FOOTBAG
100% genuine leather

Send me ____ HACKY SACK® footbags at $6.95 each, postage included.
Send money order or check payable to:
East Coast HACKY SACK® Association
P.O. Box 621, Hackensack, N.J. 07602
NAME (PRINT)
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP
HACKY SACK® footbag is a product of Kaufman Distributors
P.O. Box 621, Hackensack, N.J. 07602
ALLOW 2 WKS DELIVERY

Joey D's
All You Can Eat
Spaghetti & Meatballs
$2.25
includes bread and butter
Draft Beer 50¢ Pitchers $2.95
Well Drinks 95¢
DJ entertainment in the lounge



Every 5 Seconds America Pops the Big Canadian!

Get ready to try the big, clean taste of O'Keefe. O'Keefe's gonna become America's favorite Canadian brew.

O'Keefe

Imported by Century Importers, Baltimore, Maryland

BARSELOTTI'S
WORLD SERIES SPECIAL
FREE KEG
(at opening pitch)
Tuesday & Wednesday Night
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

★ Tuesday ★
Rumpleminze Night
Shot & $1.25 Draft
8 - 12
T-shirts and Prizes!
Drafts 35¢ $2.00 Pitchers
POOR RICHARD$ A STEP UP

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

POSTERS Largest Selection Ever
Bamboo BLINDS From $5.50!
BEDSPREADS cover walls, furniture, windows from $7.95
Paper Lampshades
Rugs & Mats colorful, durable
CARDS over 1400 designs
Greatly Expanded SKIRTS & BLOUSES lots of comfortable cotton
Brass and Sterling Jewelry earrings, rings, etc.

Clothing Sale!
T-Shirts India Print - 4.50 Solid Color - 3.50 to 5.50
Tank Tops - 3.95 to 5.95
20 - 50% OFF selected Blouses, Skirts

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

GEOLOGISTS
AMOCO PRODUCTION COMPANY, one of the Leading Oil and Gas Producers in the U. S., seeks innovative and aggressive GEOLOGISTS to expand its current level of activity.
AMOCO will be recruiting here on October 14–15, 1982.
See your DEPARTMENT Office to schedule an interview.
Positions available for M.S. and Ph.D. candidates in GEOLOGY for EXPLORATION located in the New Orleans Regional Office.
We Are An Equal Opportunity Employer
Male/Female

Patterson House Presents
The Fantini Bros
at Hangar One
Wednesday, Oct. 13th - 8-1 am
$2.50 at the door
Drink Specials Rock-A-Disc
"I live for weekends party"

adventura travel
549-1256
Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level 233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst Carriage Shops

Seniors!
Looking For A Career?
Register with the Career Placement Registry
The National Computerized Employment Searching Service
Your qualifications will be instantly available to over 6000 employers. Total cost $8. No other fees charged. Over 5000 seniors already registered. It costs nothing to find out more about CPR. Just complete and return the coupon.
For Faster Action Call Toll-Free 1-800-368-3093 In Virginia (703) 683-1085
CPR Career Placement Registry, Inc. 302 Swann Avenue Alexandria, Virginia 22301
Name
Address
City
State Zip

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENT

Louis FINE FOODS
76 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MASS.
Save on your grocery bills plus S&H Green Stamps!
SPECIALS VALID OCT. 12-16

USDA CHOICE Shoulder Clod London Broil $1.99 LB
USDA CHOICE
ARMOUR VERI-BEST PORK SALE!
EXTRA LEAN TOP QUALITY Pork Chops CENTER CUT $1.99 LB
ASSORTED FAMILY PACK Pork Chops $1.69 LB

SWEET LIFE Peanut Butter 28 OZ JAR $1.69
LA CHOY Chow Mein BI-PACK ALL VARIETIES 42 OZ CAN $1.99
SWEET LIFE Bath Tissue 4 ROLL PKG 79¢

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

LU 92 With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase excluding coupon items & cigarettes. Limit one per customer.
NABISCO Ritz Crackers 12 OZ BOX 79¢
GOOD OCT 12-16 AT LOUIS FOODS

LU 93 With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase excluding coupon items & cigarettes. Limit one per customer.
SWEET LIFE Margarine 1 LB QTRS 19¢
GOOD OCT 12-16 AT LOUIS FOODS

LU 94 With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase excluding coupon items & cigarettes. Limit one per customer.
BUMBLE BEE CHUNK Light Tuna IN OIL OR WATER 6.5 OZ CAN 59¢
GOOD OCT 12-16 AT LOUIS FOODS

SEALTEST Ice Cream ½ GAL $1.79
HOOD NUFORM PLAIN Yogurt 32 OZ 89¢
FRESH FLORIDA Oranges 12 FOR $1.49

Historic ship raised from watery berth

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — The fragile skeleton of King Henry VIII's flagship the Mary Rose was lifted from its watery grave yesterday, 437 years after it sank in battle with the French.

On July 19, 1545, Henry watched from the battlements of Portsmouth as the pride of the English fleet slipped beneath the waves and carried 660 of its 700 crewmen to the bottom of the English Channel.

More than four centuries later, in a driving rain, Henry's descendent Prince Charles and television viewers across the nation watched intently as the hulk rose from the deep at the culmination of history's most ambitious underwater archaeological excavation.

As it broke the water's surface, the Mary Rose was welcomed to the 20th century by a cannon salute from nearby Southsea Castle and the toots of fog horns from dozens of pleasure craft. Divers and some 2,000 spectators on shore cheered.

A short time after the Mary Rose appeared, a steel pin in its lifting frame sheared off, snapping a cable and causing the frame to slip and tear away a 10-foot-long chunk of timber.

"I was slightly horrified," said Charles, who has made ten dives to the wreck, including one on Sunday. "But I thought the best thing to do was to be British and not panic." The prince, chief patron of the Mary Rose Trust, sipped tea and huddled with crewmen on the deck of a diving vessel.

Officials said the damage to the framework would be repaired.

The Tudor warship was placed aboard a barge for transport into Portsmouth harbor where it goes into drydock with the HMS Victory, battleship of Lord Nelson, Britain's greatest sea hero. Eventually the Mary Rose and 17,000 artifacts reclaimed from the wreck will be the centerpiece of a new maritime museum in a Portsmouth suburb.

No one knows exactly why the Mary Rose went to the bottom. The 91-gun carrack, named after Henry's sister Mary Tudor, and flagship of the 100-ship fleet, sank during a battle with a French armada of overwhelmingly greater force. The battle was inconclusive.

Three years ago, the Mary Rose Trust was set up to raise funds — $6.84 million — and oversee the recovery and display of the vessel and contents.

Postal service union delivers ad campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Postal Workers Union, asserting that mail workers will be "America's punching bag no more," is launching a $2.7 million advertising campaign aimed at polishing the image of postal clerks.

The national advertising campaign, which has adopted the slogan "We Try To Be Letter Perfect For You," is to commence Monday in some 26 cities. However, the commercial that will be used in the campaign has been televised in the Northeast only during NCAA football games.

The union, which represents some 340,000 of the approximately 600,000 people employed by the U.S. Postal Service, is concerned that the emergence of fierce private competition for mail business will ultimately jeopardize job security.

Although the union had been talking about such an effort for years, union president Moe Biller said in an interview that the impetus was a controversial television commercial aired by Federal Express, a private competitor.

The advertisement depicted two older Postal Service clerks chatting about their pensions and other benefits while a frustrated customer sought vainly to get help in mailing a package.

Biller thundered against the commercial, which ran last spring, saying it used "prejudice and stereotype (of postal clerks) in an attempt to sell a service." Postmaster General William F. Bolger charged that the commercial "insults the integrity" of postal workers.

Federal Express, a private, overnight carrier of mail with its own fleet of airplanes, subsequently discontinued that particular advertising campaign.

Mail workers will be "America's punching bag no more," Biller said.

He went to the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency and asked for help. The Thompson agency had produced image-building commercials for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

La Raclette

WINE DOWN

AFTER CLASS
2:30-5:00
OR AFTER THE SHOW
9:00-11:00

CHEESE and WINE SAMPLER

$2.50

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY 3 OF THE FOLLOWING WINES.

FRENCH

VAL DE LOIRE
ROSE D'ANJOU
GRAND MAITRE

BORDEAUX
ENTRE DEUX MERS
BARRIERE
CHATEAU DE CLYDES

BOURGOGNE
LA VIELLE FERME
ROUGE OR BLANC

GERMAN

KANZEMER—SONNENBERG
RIESLING KABINETT 1977

CALIFORNIA VARIETALS

WENTE BROTHERS
1980 GREY RIESLING

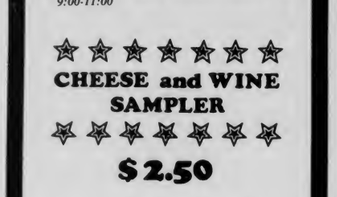
WENTE BROTHERS
1980 SAUVIGNON BLANC

BERINGER VINEYARDS
1980 CHARDONNAY

COMMONWEALTH WINES
PLYMOUTH, MASS

CRANBERRY APPLE ROSE
SEYVAL BLANC
DE CHAUNAC

AND ANY 3 SELECTIONS FROM OUR INTERNATIONAL CHEESE BOARD.



On The Boltwood Walk
103 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
253-5927

Contact: Carole Reis 546-9884
or
Maureen McIntire 546-6051

NORTH AMHERST
TIRE & AUTO CENTER

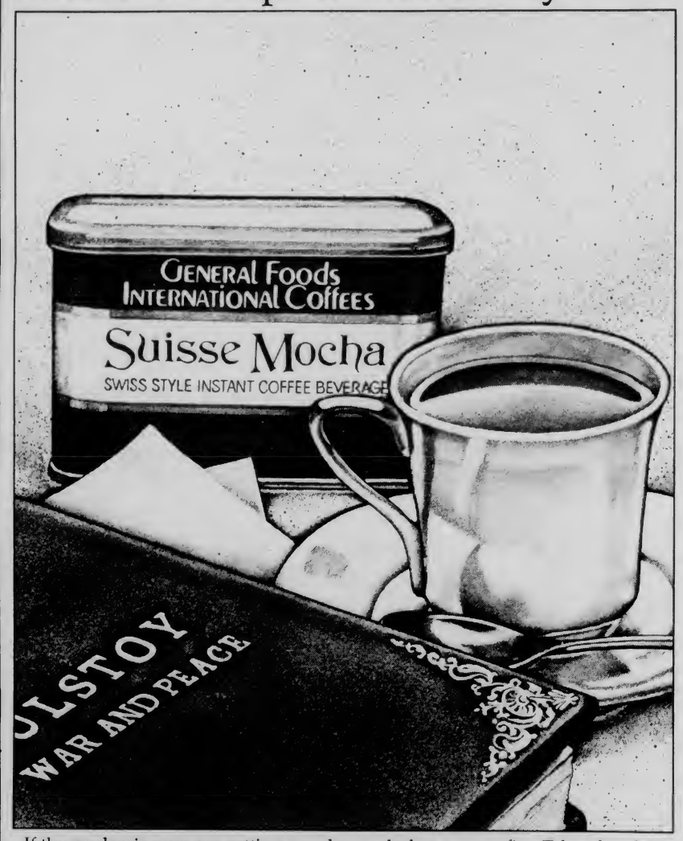
WITH THIS AD
POLYESTER BLACKWALL
$26.95
Size A78-13 FET $1.59
A FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE
- COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
- FRONT END ALIGNMENT
- BRAKES & SHOCKS

VISA MC 73 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST 549-4704
ACROSS FROM UNITRONA STORE

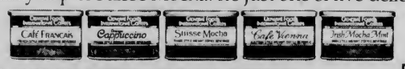
OPENING SPECIAL

25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers
Quality Words : Prompt Service
MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
OPENING SPECIAL

How to make peace with Tolstoy.



If the academic wars are getting you down, declare a cease-fire. Take a break with a rich and chocolatey cup of Suisse Mocha. It's just one of five deliciously different flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.



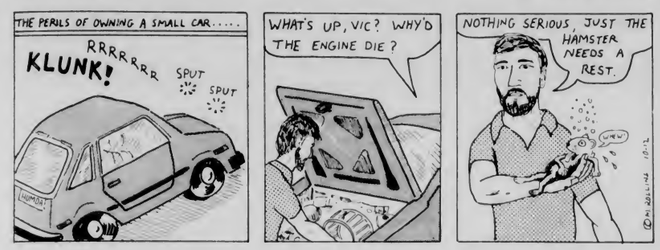
GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES.
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR

Available at: UNIVERSITY STORE

© General Foods Corporation 1982

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins



Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
D.C. BURGER DAY
Double Burger on Sesame Roll
Giant Hot Dog on Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll

BASICS LUNCH
D.C. BURGER DAY
Tofu Burger on Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll

BASICS DINNER
Roast Turkey/Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Spaghetti wth Garden Vegtables

DINNER
Roast Turkey/Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Spaghetti with Garden Vegetables

Attention Collegian Staff

Mandatory staff meeting for everyone at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Collegian newsroom. Everyone must attend. The meeting will be brief. If you cannot make it, contact your department editor or manager.

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Healing oil
5 Certain toast
10 Just average
14 Hodgepodge
15 Standoffish
16 Composer Novello
17 British gun
18 Artery near the elbow
19 "Simple Simon —— pie man..."
20 Government official
22 Sports area
24 Very, in Versailles
26 Berate
27 Relied (on)
31 Turns aside
34 Dons
35 Blackmore heroine, Lorna ——
37 Monetary initials
38 Goes astray
39 Times of day
40 Perverse
41 Abner's adjective
42 Belief
43 Regional
44 —— Lion
46 Popular game
48 Profits
50 Certain sign
51 Containing silver
54 Among
58 Type of TV program
59 Portents
61 Hematite and malachite
62 Egyptian singing girl
63 South Wind
64 Ibsen heroine
65 Swiss modernist painter
66 Antagonist
67 Coast Guard member

DOWN
1 Pear
2 Singing voice
3 Claim
4 Legendary creatures
5 Mishandled
6 Certain shape
7 Word with term or time
8 Wild hogs
9 Natives of Chad
10 Literary device
11 Features of some cars
12 —— say
13 African port
21 Samovars
23 Symbol of peace
25 Chair of a kind
27 Reside
28 Uncanny
29 Charades, for example
30 Peg
32 Geological strata
33 Room, in Paris
36 Like some beer
39 Basso's specialty
40 Conditions of wearing away
42 Common conjunction 43 Genus of plants
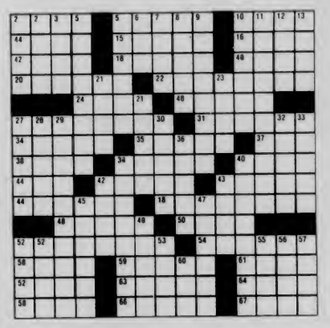
45 Home on the Plains
47 Elegant
49 Popular play wright
51 Flowering tree of tropical Asia
52 Bakery product
53 Whale
55 Something in the bucket
56 Evening, in Italia
57 Nicholas or Peter
60 Bk of the Bible



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	O	S	C	A		U	N	D	O		O	L	A	F
A	G	I	O	D		N	O	I	R		P	A	L	L
B	R	O	N	Z	E	D	A	B	Y	S	M	O	D	E
S	E	N	T		N	E	L		C	A	N	E	D
		C	A	G	N	E		G	A	L
S	C	A	M	P	I		P	O	R	T	A	L	S
C	O	P	P	E	R		O	L	I	S		G	A	T
O	A	T	U		B	O	Z	E	D		C	A	P	A
F	R	A		G	L	O	S	S	E	D	O	V	E	R
F	A	I	N	T	E	S	T		N	O	V	E	L	S
			A	S	S		O	L	A	I	E
S	P	A	S	M		G	O	E	R		R	A	T	A
T	I	N	M	O	R	N	G	A	M	P	L	E	A	S
C	I	T	T	E		O	A	I	S		A	E	R	I	C
M	A	I	D		S	T	I	R	E		S	T	O	M	A

WEATHER

Today, increasing cloudiness with a 30 percent chance of showers this afternoon. Highs 60-65. Tonight, 30 percent chance of showers, lows in the 40's. Tomorrow chance of occasional rain, highs near 60.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9 Oblivion Express with Fern Spierer
9-12 New Rock with Pauline
12-3 Positive Vibrations — The General
3-5:30 Mr. Ted's Modern Dance
5:30-6 Newswatch
6-7 Peoples' Perspectives
7-10 Live From Studio B with Bill Stepchew Featuring "Hadley Dread"
10-2 Eliot Andrew, Urban Contemporary Music
2-6 Classical Music With Mike Cevasco

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Get-it-in-Gear Video

10:30-11:30 UMass Rally for Nuclear Freeze
11:30-12:30 Preston Reed
12:30-1:00 Global Groove - by Nam June Paik
1:00-2:00 Blue Wall Bands courtesy of Bilband

Coffin shuts the lid on Maine, 2-0

By JENNIFER KUPPER
Collegian Correspondent

The women's field hockey team started Homecoming weekend off in proper spirit, defeating the University of Maine, 2-0 on Friday.

While most students had put away their books and gotten out their mugs early Friday afternoon, UMass' undefeated field hockey team was busy with flicks and scoops on a very wet field.

The team had to compensate for the inclement weather, typical of New England. Last Wednesday against Yale, the stickwomen battled against temperatures in the eighties, while Friday the temperature was down to a very cool and clammy sixty.

"I don't think the weather conditions make much difference for the team. I really don't think that it had an input to our slow first half," said coach Pam Hixon.

The first half for Mass, and for Maine as well, proved to be a game full of all effort and no reward. UMass seemed to have the passing combinations with Sue Packard and Alison Rioux getting the ball upfield to Patty Smith and company. And yet, the forward line could not find the net.

UMass saw a golden opportunity with 10:32 left in the first half fall short. Packard brought the ball up to the Maine circle and passed it off to Smith. Smith was able to get a shot off, however it was called back due to a UMass foul within the circle.

The score at halftime remained 0-0. The stats showed, however, that UMass had the offensive edge, as they outshot Maine 11-1.

With the pressure on, UMass put on their wheels in the second half. They dominated the rest of the game, allowing only an occasional breakthrough by UMaine.

Fifteen minutes into the second half, Maine pulled out of the UMass passing maze and charged up the field. They put the pressure on co-captains Carol Progulske and Ro Tudryn, who proved to be too powerful and sent the ball thrashing downfield once again.

At 12:27, UMass was awarded a corner play. Tina Coffin solidly drove the ball to Megan Donnelly. Donnelly then wound up and shot the ball past the Maine defense and into the net. It gave UMass a 1-0 lead with twelve minutes to play.

UMass continued their pressure game for another five minutes before right wing Pam Moryl fired the ball cross field to left wing Coffin. Coffin proceeded to flick the ball up toward the left top corner of the goal and the ball sailed by the Maine goalie. UMass had made a much needed security deposit, upping the score to 2-0 with 7:43 left to play.

Maine was unable to do anything with the remaining minutes and Massachusetts walked off the field the victor.

UMass will host Northeastern University today at 3:00, before leaving Thursday for two weekend games in Philadelphia.

Kickers fight back, salvage 1-1 tie with BU

By CHARISSE E. FEINERMAN
Collegian Staff

What should have been a landsliding win for the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team, ended in a stalemate with Boston University after two overtime periods, 1-1.

The Minutemen outshot Boston University 41:18, a statistic that is not reflected in the final score of the game. The booters clearly dominated the game but were just unable to capitalize on some opportunities.

Boston, on the other hand, was definitely not playing well as UMass but did manage to maximize their opportunities. Anyone who observed the game would tell you that Boston's goal was definitely on the lucky side.

Starting with a direct free kick from 18 yards out, Boston attempted to put the ball behind the wall but it didn't clear. BU's Chris Dohan's shot was block by UM goalie, Tim Searls, who dove to clear the net. But, the ball was crossed and put in off the blocked shot by BU's Steve Geraghty at 30:14 of the first half.

The Minutemen left the field after forty-five minutes of domination with a 1-0 defecit. The cold weather made the larger than anticipated crowd anxious for an exciting second half. Returning alumni could be heard telling stories of how they would have played the game, and how they would come back in the second half and tie up the score, and pull ahead in an exciting photo-finish. Those who stayed to watch the second half of play were happy with what they saw, and even the omniscient alumni cracked smiles at the final outcome.

With 28:26 showing on the clock in the second half the Minutemen pleased themselves and an anxious bunch of spectators with the tieing goal. Mike Gibbons beat a BU player and was able to come to the goal. Gibbons then pushed the ball in front of the keeper, and UM's Frederick (Fritz) Pike knocked the ball in the net to tie up the game 1-1.

When the full ninety minutes of regulation play were over the scoreboard still read 1-1. The following two ten minute periods of overtime were scoreless, however there is one play that is worth mentioning.

With only a few minutes left on the clock Pike had found himself with possession of the ball, running downfield in Boston territory. What was unusual about this was that Fritz was all by himself with the ball, in what seemed would be the goal that would end the game, and give UMass the win. When Pike came about ten yards from the net, BU's goalkeeper, Jeff Arsenault came out of the net and knocked Pike down, in what was an obvious attempt to stop Pike from scoring the inevitable goal.

With Pike down on the ground, after obviously being fouled, the referee didn't stop play until the ball was kicked out of bounds, some 60 seconds after the fact. This brought the crowd to its feet screaming and yelling, and it also brought coach Jeff Gettler out on the field to tend to his wounded player. It seems as though a foul should have been called on the Boston goalkeeper, however, one was not.

"I was pleased...we played well. We just have to learn to finish. We have great chances...one of our best games with the ball," said Gettler.

Gettler was especially pleased with the play of Tom Ushok, Mike Gibbons, Fritz Pike, Mike Rudd and Mike Runaere. "We gotta win next time," said Gettler.

The Minutemen play again on Tuesday at Providence. Hopefully they will boost their record from 4-3-1 to 5-3-1.

Sports Notices

The intramural office is still accepting rosters for its intramural ice hockey program. For more information contact the intramural office.

The Stockbridge basketball team will have an important organizational meeting tomorrow night, Wednesday October 13, at 7:00 p.m. in room 223, Boyden. If you are unable to attend, please contact Jack Leaman, room 228 Boyden, prior to the meeting.

Dean's List Students

The University News Bureau would like to send a picture and a news release about your academic achievement to your hometown paper. For a FREE photo, please go to room 168/169 in the Campus Center (downstairs).

A - L Tuesday, October 12

M - Z Wednesday, October 13

Photo sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. If you have any questions, please call Joan Ashwell at the News Bureau, 545-0444.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadiac Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Mustang new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 91,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1086

Subaru Wagon 77 engine, 76 body. AM/FM. Good condition. 549-0865

1975 red BMW ex condi $3800 or BO call after 5, 533-4960

1980 Camaro Z-28, 21k miles, T-roof, 4 spd air induction, 60 series tires and aluminum rims 549-2715

76 GMC Van, long bodied, windows all around, good condition 2500 $ tel 549-6327

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs some work 584-9040

BEAUTIFUL SINGLE

In apartment on bus route close to town and campus. Reasonable rent. 253-2872

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture--two bedrooms. $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Guild Maderia acoustic guitar excellent cond Bill 549-4718

7x4 Waterbed & liner, $15 7x6 waterbed & liner, almost new, $30. heater $25 549-3994

100% Alpaca wool sweaters from Peru $55 each Gerry 6-5612

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Earn extra cash easy Halloween sales 549-0694

LOST

Lost pale yellow stranded glass bead necklace. Laurel 6-7046

Lost brown leather wallet call Maura 6-1413 very important

Womans Seiko gold quartz watch 25$ reward 546-4941

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Adventurous-Athletic-Warmhearted Women
I'm GARY I own a PLANE and love to FLY I seek a COMPANION for FLIGHTS & FUN never too late DAY-NIGHT call 546-7812

UMMB Slike Happy Tuba Day

Paradise - Happy 18th! Get wicked psyched to celebrate! With love, Huzzah, Lena, Drive, Bones - P.S. When is Steve gonna send that tape?

Janet Lyn, Happy 20th Birthday! Love always, Linda, Lynne, JoAnn, Susan, Laurel, and Susan

Attention all SGA escorts and supporters We need you! Our voices alone are not enough. Please let us know you are with us in our attempts to continue this essential student service!! Please call and give us your input/support. Contact Laura 549-0081 or Anne 549-5404

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillia 256-0266

RALPH LAUREN POLO SHIRTS all sizes six colors call "Smitty" at 549-2631

TROY, Heres to your, Dick's and my Health - Ralph

Bill - While you were looking you saw into my heart. The poem is beautiful. Thanks, Joyce

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counseling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RELATIONSHIPS

A one day workshop for woman Oct. 16
Explore issues/problems that arise in our relationships. Work towards change and greater fullfillment with others.
For info call Estelle Gorfine 253-2822

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Philadelphia or any New Jersey turnpike exit on Oct 14 or 15. Please call 546-5556, keep trying. Will share expenses.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share house on Bay Rd 140+ 256-8058

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable on bus route furnished. Call Jeff 665-4357

Female roommate wanted ASAP please call 665-3480

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Professional Dress-Maker Amherst Area - custom made clothing alterations -repairs zippers replaced for appointment call 256-0867 evenings

Immediate cash for class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest prices paid. Call Ralph 6-8722 anytime

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6, 30 min - $8, 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29 - 31 and Nov 5 - 7, 1982 for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

WANTED

Tutor wanted for Genetics (Zoo.) 510 please call Barbara S 545-0162

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5586

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

WORD PROCESSING

Dissertations & Theses: Prompt quality preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

SAME DAY COLOR PHOTO PROCESSING

FILM IN BY 10:00 AM
BEAUTIFUL COLOR PRINTS
OUT BY 4:00 PM

The Foto Factory
A Division of HALLMARK COLOR LABS processors to the professionals

Hours: Mon.–Fri., 8–6 / Sat., 8–Noon
257 TRIANGLE STREET IN AMHERST

Do it yourself

INSTANT COPIES

Now: Copy cassette tapes yourself in any length. Fast: Copy a one-hour cassette in less than two minutes. Simple: Easy as xeroxing a letter. Inexpensive: Our remarkably low price includes the Rezound Copy Cassette.™ Accurate: Perfect Monaural copies, every time. Versatile: Make 1, 2, 3 or 100 copies.

Rezound machine is located in our Record Dept.

OPEN M-F 9-5
Thur 9-9
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 14.

UMass comeback bid falls short

Pickett goes for victory

By BILLY SHEA
Collegian Staff

When Barrett McGrath's pass to Bob Simeone for a two point conversion was batted away with 2:32 remaining in the game and Delaware Fightin' Blue Hens escaped Alumni Stadium with a 14-13 victory over the University of Massachusetts, the local scripes were sharpening their pencils, waiting to hear UMass head coach Bob Pickett explain his decision.

Instead of calling on surefooted Bob Ross to kick the extra point to tie the game, after Gary Freker made a sensational touchdown catch to bring the Minutemen within one point, Pickett decided, for the win with the two point conversion. For Pickett there wasn't much to explain.

"We had to go for the win," said Pickett simply after the game. "We play the game to win, not tie."

The win was just one play for the Minutemen. Behind some outstanding passing from McGrath and receiving from Freker and Simeone UMass scored two fourth quarter touchdowns but came up short when McGrath's roll out pass was deflected just before reaching Simeone.

"The play was designed to go to Pearson," said McGrath. "I rolled out and saw Garry covered. I saw Simeone's numbers and threw it but it just didn't get through."

McGrath was outstanding in the second half, especially in the fourth quarter when he hit Freker and Simeone on key third down plays to keep Minuteman drives alive.

But when McGrath replaced starter Dean Pecevich in the third quarter and promptly threw an interception on his first pass, it certainly didn't appear that McGrath would go on to have the finest passing half of his collegiate career, hitting 14 of 20 passes for 148 yards.

"When I came out and threw an interception the first play I just told myself to keep my confidence and I did," said McGrath. "I just wish we could have pulled it out."

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

UMass running back Garry Pearson is stopped during Saturday's Homecoming game with Delaware at Alumni Stadium. The Blue Hens nipped UMass, 14-13.

The Minutemen really couldn't mount any sort of sustained drive against Delaware in the first half as the Delaware defense showed why they are near the top in the nation in Division 1-AA rushing defense. They held UMass tailback Garry Pearson to only 34 yards in the first half and 59 yards for the entire game.

"We did a terrible job running the ball," said Pickett. "I felt we would have to throw the ball more to win the game."

With Pearson being contained by the tough Delaware "D" and finding themselves down 14-0 in the fourth quarter there wasn't a better time for McGrath and Freker to come up with their finest performances of their collegiate careers.

Freker set up McGrath's first touchdown pass to Ron Mangarelli when he made a twisting reception at the UMass 4 yardline. On the next play McGrath rolled left and threaded the needle hitting a diving Mangarelli in the end zone for Mangarelli's fourth touchdown reception of the season.

While offense was producing material for a highlight film in the fourth quarter, the UMass defense, after a shaky first half, was chasing Delaware quarterback Rick Scully all over the field.

With defensive end Todd Comeau already on the sidelines with an ankle injury and nose guard Dan Brennan (shoulder) and defensive end Joe Graham (ankle) hurt in the second quarter, defensive coach Jim Reid received some excellent defensive play from Sheldon Hardison, Don Keefer, and Paul Mangararo.

In the first half Delaware moved the ball well on the UMass defense but the UMass "D" made the big play when they had to. Twice in the first half Delaware head coach Tubby Raymond decided to go for the first down on fourth and two situations inside the Minuteman 20 yard line.

But Grady Fuller nailed Scully for a loss on the roll out for the first down and Delaware relinquished the ball. Fuller also made an interception to set up the final UMass drive in the fourth quarter.

"The defense has been playing well because they work hard," said Pickett, "I thought Manganaro played well."

The only significant defensive lapse came on the first series of the second half. Scully moved his team 76 yards on seven plays culminating when Scully found Cliff Clement on a 12 yard touchdown pass to give Delaware a 12-0 lead.

Tubby Raymond took his gamble early hoping to force Pickett's hand later by going for the two point conversion instead of the extra point.

Scully found halfback Kevin Phelan alone on the right side and he scampered in untouched, giving Delaware a 14-0 lead.

Pickett gambled, and lost.

Women booters rout Aldelphi, 9-0

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

It was a field day for the University of Massachusetts womens soccer team as they romped over Adelphi University 9-0 at Boyden field yesterday. The win raises UMass record to 6-3.

One of the squads four captains, Nina Holmsrom, contributed to the victory with a goal and three assists. Kickers Paula Stashis and Stacey Filonis scored two goals each.

The women first got on the board two and a half minutes into the game. The Adelphi goaltender came out of the net to block Holmstrom, who passed the ball to Stashis all alone in front of the net. She leisurely tapped the ball into the net.

"We have to go out and make things happen," assistant coach James Williams said, "That's what we did today."

In the next sixteen minutes UMass scored five goals. It was Stashis again in front of the net receiving a pass from Holmstrom and kicking it in to make the score 2-0.

Holmstrom scored the next UMass goal unassisted when she was tangled in front of the left corner of the net with two Adelphi players and put the ball past Adelphi goalie Roseanne Shubert.

After getting a pass from Holmstrom, Filonis ran in on Shubert and shot the ball past her for the team's fourth goal.

Nadia Komarowski scored for UMass when Shubert came out to block the shot, but Komarowski kicked the ball past her. Lynne Raymond assisted on the goal.

The final goal of the first half came from Raymond. In front of the net, Raymond kept kicking the ball until she got it in.

"The important thing today is that we played with intensity," Williams said. "We played our game and avoided lapses in concentration."

UMass' Toni Giuliano and Adelphi's Donna LaMonica compete for ball control during yesterday's 9-0 UMass win at Boyden Fields.

The second half showed two more goals for the women. Christine Taggart passed the ball to Sharon Dagget who headed the ball into the net.

With less than five minutes left Jamie Watson ran in on the goalie and kicked the ball over her hands. Taggart assisted Watson on the goal.

On Saturday the women lost a close game to Cortland State, 1-0.

Cortland was strong in the first half when it scored its goal. UMass outplayed Cortland in the second half and had many scoring chances but couldn't capitalize.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 26 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, October 13, 1982

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fiorbetti

A caricature of the Heartbeat, a character from Shakespeare's "The Tempest," hangs above the Rand Theater in a promotional effort by the Fine Arts Center to attract more people to the Theater.

Regents want increase in higher ed. budget

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — The State Board of Regents yesterday recommended a 12 percent budget increase for public higher education for next year which would include new programs and staff support, increased scholarship aid and a larger security force for the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Included in the $49.6 million increase for all 27 public colleges and universities in Massachusetts is a $1 million increase for new engineering and management programs at UMass, an additional $430,000 for increased staff support, and more than $100,000 for an additional seven police officers for UMass.

Also recommended was a 40 percent increase in the state scholarship program. The Regents proposed that the program be increased by $10 million over the present $25 million level.

The increase in the scholarship program is an attempt to replenish a grossly underfunded state support student aid, said Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff.

Last year more than 100,000 financially qualified students applied for a state scholarship, but because of lack of funds only 28,000 received aid.

Last spring the Regents unanimously endorsed a proposal, sponsored by Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, to general $29 million in student aid by subjecting cigarettes to the five percent state sales tax. Duff said the recommendation for increased scholarship aid does not mean the Regents no longer support Olver's proposal.

"The Regent's position remains the same. We hope it (the cigarette tax) passes and is signed into law," Duff said.

Also recommended by the Regents are two programs designed to increase the amount of engineers and science majors for the high-technology industry.

The first proposal is the creation of the Collaborative Engineering Program in the city of Boston. Under the proposal, students attending UMass/Boston would take two years of pre-engineering courses as freshmen and sophomores. After completing the two years at UMass, the student would transfer to one of the four Boston colleges with a full engineering program — Boston University, Northeastern, Tufts, or Wentworth — to complete their engineering education. $300,000 has been recommended to fund this program for the first year. The money would be used to underwrite the more expensive private education received during the last two years of the student's engineering program.

Also recommended was $250,000 to increase the amount of math and science teachers in secondary schools in Massachusetts. Currently, there is a national shortage of math and science teachers in kindergarten through twelth grade. Under the proposal, college math and science majors would receive a $2,500 grant provided they would teach their subject for at least one year in any public or private school in Massachusetts.

"This is a very forward looking budget," said Regent Norman Zalkind.

The Regents budget recommendation will be forwarded to the governor, who will then make his recommendation to the legislature in January. Because there will be a new governor, the budget process will be delayed one month to allow him to make new recommendations.

Gelb: 'nukes control crises'

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

The existence of nuclear weapons has ironically kept world crises under control, said the New York Times national security correspondent last night during a lecture at the University of Massachusetts.

Leslie Gelb, who has worked for both the State and Defense departments, spoke to about 150 people on "Peace or War?: The Meaning of Deterrence."

"The crises in the world have been kept under control so they don't escalate into world wars," Gelb said. "I think the most striking thing (about the post-war period) is the United States and the Soviet Union have not been at war with each other. Even with these weapons sitting at our finger tips, not one has been used."

Gelb said for most purposes, both the United States and the Soveit Union governments do not want nuclear superiority.

Gelb said "Given the determination of each country to pursue situations of at least equality, nuclear superiority has been ruled out by both countries."

The choices of what can be done in a nuclear age were best summed up by Woody Allen, Gelb said. "We are at a crossroad, down one path is utter destruction and down the second path is hopelessness and despair. 'Let us pray we can choose wisely,' Allen said."

It is too dangerous and too risky for the United States and the Soviet Union to continue acting as they have been in the past.

"It is too much of a chance to assume this situation of petrified peace is going to last," Gelb said. "We can't live with it indefinitely."

Sensible arms control is needed by both countries, he said. Treaties, however, are difficult to negotiate and be accepted.

"It's difficult to come up with a solution that is politically accepted and that makes sense," Gelb said.

Continued on page 4

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Leslie Gelb, National Security Correspondent for the New York Times, addresses more than 150 people in SBA 120 on the meaning of nuclear war deterrence.

Sharp criticism meets board appointments

By KEVIN BOWE
and PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The creation of 54 new positions on the Boards of Trustees of the 27 state colleges and universities, including two additional members to the University of Massachusetts board, has drawn sharp criticism from university and government officials who say the move is an attempt by Gov. Edward J. King to provide political rewards for his friends.

King, who signed the bill last week creating the extra positions, plans to also sign an "emergency letter" to waive the usual 90-day interim before the law takes effect, allowing him to make appointments before his term expires in January. King was defeated for re-election by former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis in the Democratic primary last month.

"Ed King is creating an army of positions to reward his friends with political appointments," said state Rep. Bruce Wetherbee, D-Pepperell, "I'd feel better if the appointments were made by a governor who will be around. It is dangerous when you do something in a lame duck session."

Wetherbee, a supporter of Dukakis, said he would prefer either Dukakis, Republican candidate John Sears or Independent candidate Frank Rich make the additional appointments.

Wetherbee said the creation of the new trustee positions is also connected with the establishment last week of the 14 new state judgeships which have drawn charges of political patronage.

"The timing is the common denominator. If they (the additional trustees and judges) were an emergency, why wasn't it done last summer?" he said.

Marie Reid, director of the office of planning and budget at UMass, Amherst, said the additions were needed because "it helps the committee structure," which she feels has been suffering since the 1980 reduction from 22 members. Reid said a number of bills have since been filed to enlarge the board.

Bruce Laurie, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, the faculty union at UMass, Amherst, agreed with Reid that the small board size has contributed to problems, but also disagreed with the timing of the addition by King.

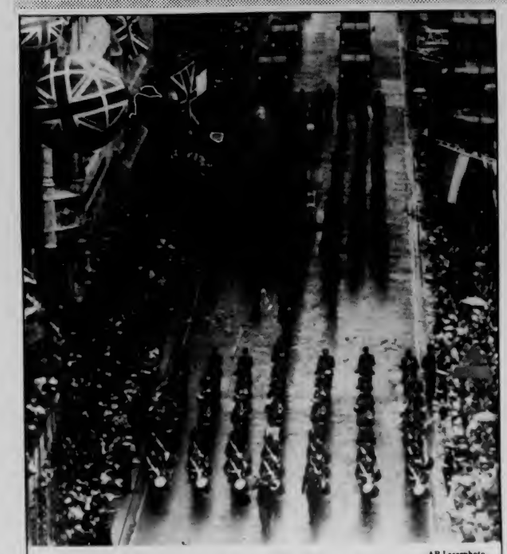
"I'm not sure that it's best for a lame duck governor to be making appointments," Laurie said. "It reeks of expediency."

Sheila Sullivan, chair of the public policy committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate, also faulted the governor's timing, and expressed displeasure with UMass Board of Trustees Chairman Robert Quinn, who said, "If you knew who appointed me (Gov. King), then you'll know why I'd like them appointed (by King)..."

"I can't believe Quinn said that," Sullivan said. "It sounds as if Quinn is trying to divide the board up into allegiances between Dukakis and King. The board should be for higher education, not for a governor."

Continued on page 4

World and national news



AP Laserphoto

Thousands of Britons line Moorgate streets as Falkland war heroes parade.

Thousands of Poles stand firm in Gdansk

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — An estimated 10,000 workers struck shipyards in Gdansk and Gdynia for the second day yesterday, and militants called for a general strike in the region to protest the ban on Solidarity, witnesses said.

They said the workers flashed V-for-victory victory signs, chanted "Solidarity Will Win!" and painted the words "Solidarity Shipyard" in blue over the V.I. Lenin shipyard sign in Gdansk.

They also left portraits of union chief Lech Walesa and Polish-born Pope John Paul II hanging on the gates of the plant named after the founder of the Soviet state.

Other workers leaving the Gdansk yard said an "underground committee" had appealed for a general strike throughout the Gdansk region. The report could not be independently confirmed.

The latest strike lasted from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m., and unlike Monday night when running battles between protesters and security forces erupted, no incidents were reported.

Riot police surrounding the shipyard in Gdansk with water cannon left before the shift change at 2 p.m., and departing workers were cheered by about 2,000 onlookers who chanted "Long Live Walesa!" and "Bravo Workers!"

Walesa has been interned since martial law was declared and Solidarity suspended Dec. 13. The union was outlawed Friday by Parliament.

Government press spokesman Jerzy Urban told foreign reporters in Warsaw that eight shipyards and factories in the tri-city area of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot were struck Monday, and that police had fought pitched battles with youths and onlookers late into the night.

Workers in Gdansk festooned the shipyard gates Tuesday with banners reading "Fighting Solidarity," and "Solidarity Strike in Defense of Union Rights." The scene was reminiscent of August 1980 protests that launched the independent union on the Baltic coast.

Western journalists reporting from Gdansk drove to nearby cities to evade a communications blackout in its second day. Szczecin, the northwestern Baltic port, also was cut off, but Western diplomatic sources reported the city calm.

There were few details on the strike in Gdynia, but witnesses said several thousand workers halted work.

The strikers' plan appeared to be to halt work by about 10,000 workers on the 6 a.m.-2 p.m. shift in Gdansk, allowing the 2 p.m.-10 p.m. shift of about 5,000 to 6,000 workers to function normally.

The plan effectively halts production, since the second shift does mostly maintenance.

Urban said only 10 to 13 percent of the workers on the day shift supported the strike in Gdansk, but workers told reporters compliance was about 80 percent, or 8,000 employees.

Reagan assures Indonesian security

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assured Indonesian President Suharto on yesterday that the United States will not let its ties with China undermine the security of American allies in Southeast Asia.

Reagan also expressed sympathy with Suharto's concern about the growing power in the region of the Soviet Union, the principal supporter of the communist government of Vietnam.

Visiting the United States for the third time since he took office in 1966, Suharto was hailed by Reagan as "a senior statesman of Asia" whose country is "an important force for peace, stability and progress."

After an elaborate welcoming ceremony and a 21-gun salute, Suharto conferred with Reagan for 90 minutes in the Oval Office. Sitting in wing chairs, they posed for pictures in front of a blazing fire.

A senior U.S. official, briefing reporters afterward, said countries in the region are concerned about "a potential threat from China, not necessarily an existing one. We understand these concerns."

The official said the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is the foundation of U.S. policy in the region. "The United States is not going to let its relations with any other country get in the way ... or in fact constitute a security threat to ASEAN," he said.

Administration officials refused to discuss whether the talks between Reagan and Suharto touched on two sensitive areas — civil unrest and alleged mass killings by security forces on East Timor, an Indonesian island, and the lack of a U.S. ambassador in Indonesia.

The senior official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified, said the United States relies on "quiet diplomatic discussions" of human rights questions. However, the official said the Indonesian government "is very much aware of administration policy on this regard."

Argument continues over tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration "has no toleration for racial discrimination" but believes that it is up to Congress — not the Internal Revenue Service — to bar tax exemptions to racially biased schools, the Supreme Court was told yesterday.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, arguing before a crowded courtroom, said the administration believes a 12-year-old ban on tax breaks for Bob Jones University and similar racially biased schools lacks congressional approval at this time.

But William T. Coleman Jr., a prominent black lawyer, told the justices during oral arguments that wiping out discrimination against blacks is such a "fundamental" national policy that tax breaks for racially biased schools should not be supported.

Blacks, civil rights groups and others were outraged by the administration's announcement last January it intended to grant tax exemptions to racially biased private schools.

The administration — in the midst of a major political embarrassment over the issue — later said the Supreme Court would have to decide whether the ban imposed by the Internal Revenue Service in 1970 was justified. The administration also called on Congress to enact a specific prohibition, but no action has been taken.

Oh Henry! It's a mouse!

By PAUL BELVAL
Collegian Staff

The people in Morrill Science Center at the University of Massachusetts aren't the only ones eating the candy in the vending machines.

Mice have somehow gotten into a candy machine on the second floor of Morrill and have been nibbling away at the candy.

Michael Leonard, a geology professor whose office is around the corner from the infested machine, said he first noticed the problem a few weeks ago when the mice started chewing on the wrappers of the candy.

"You could see where they had been getting into the candy bars," Leonard said.

He said he told an employee from Maple Hill Farms, the company that owns the machine, about the problem and since then the vendors have stopped filling the machine.

But the machine is still there, mice and all.

Leonard said there are currently a few candy bars in the machine, and the mice are enjoying a feast of these treats.

"It's really gross," he said.

Leonard said he contacted the UMass department of Environmental Health and Safety about the problem, but he doesn't think they have done anything about it.

George Reed, an environmental health specialist in the department, said he "may have" received a complaint, adding, "I don't recall."

Leonard said he thinks the mice either crawled in through a ventilation hole, or were placed in the machine through the front slot by a student.

Photo by Danny Tessier

Billy Mitch of Warner Bros. Contractors installs a new sidewalk ramp on N. Pleasant St. in front of Hasbrouck Lab.

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

The University of Massachusetts Library Tower is reflected in the campus pond on a grey day.

Exiled poet honors holiday

By KEN LUNDBERG
Collegian Staff

Renouncing the traditional celebration of Columbus Day, Dennis Brutus, a black South African poet awaiting a ruling on his possible deportation from the United States, commemorated Native American Peoples' Day on Amherst Common, Monday afternoon.

Brutus, who was a visiting professor at Amherst College last year when the two-year-old holiday first emerged, cited the massacres and colonization in the Americas led by Christopher Columbus, as events of tragedy and infamy.

After nursing a sting on the tongue by what Brutus called, a "CIA bee," he discussed before a small crowd his application for political asylum made last February and read two of his poems.

Brutus told people that the ground they were standing on was taken from the Indians by Lord Jeffrey Amherst who had the same "diseased love of possession" as Columbus.

Brutus read the ending passage of one poem saying, "I call on you by strange and wonderful names/names that are wonderful music./What should I be calling you?/I call you my fellow oppressed./I salute you my brothers, my sisters, my friends."

Brutus, who is now teaching at Northwestern University in Ill., said he has been "squeezing" in visits such as this throughout the country to inform the public of the oppression people face in South Africa and of the U.S. involvement there.

Brutus also said he is in the midst of raising money to cover legal expenses which have resulted in his struggle to beat deportation orders issued by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Arthur Serota, coordinator of the Western Massachusetts Dennis Brutus Defense Committee, said no public decision has been rendered yet on the application for political asylum Brutus submitted over six months ago.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Schwartz in Chicago continued the case so that Brutus' lawyers would have more time to consider alternatives to court-ordered deportation.

The Dennis Brutus Defense Committees in Amherst, Boston, Minneapolis and Chicago contend in leaflets that "if deported, Dennis Brutus will become a target of assassination for the South Africa secret police, because of the lifelong battle he has waged against racism and apartheid."

"The climate is getting worse," Brutus said, "for people like myself who are opposed to apartheid."

Estimated tax bill passes; new monies appropriated

By ANN CARRNS
Collegian Correspondent

The Amherst Board of Selectmen last night approved estimated tax bills for residents based on one half of last year's bills minus abatements.

James A. Lindstrom, the town's finance director and treasurer, said sending out estimated tax bills would generate cash for the town, and allow taxpayers to pay a portion of their taxes now and receive income tax credit.

"Although there will be additional costs involved in sending out the estimated tax bills, we won't have to borrow any money," Lindstrom said. "In the past, the town has had to borrow up to $2 million in tax anticipation notes. This will make that unnecessary."

Lindstrom pointed out that without the estimated tax bills, residents will receive one tax bill in February, and another in May, less than three months apart.

"With the estimated bills, they (the residents) will receive one now and one in May," Lindstrom said.

Town Assessor Ernest Anderson said an impact statement would be prepared in three weeks to help residents understand what they are being charged and how that rate was determined.

"We will review the bills case by case," Anderson said. "We have some interesting cases, and they will be reviewed individually to take abatements into account."

In other action, the selectmen borrowed a total of $910,962 in short term notes. Of that amount, notes totalling $805,425 will mature on October 14 and $105,537 will be used for road maintenance projects.

The selectmen also approved a Fair Housing Program which was adopted to comply with state affirmative action policies. The program requires the establishment of a Fair Housing Committee to oversee housing practices.

Town Planner James P. Coke, in a memorandum on the policy, said the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs affirmative action regulations require a specific committee to ensure fair housing practices.

"It creates a little more work, but it's the law," said Acting Town Manager Stanley Ziomek.

Two unidentified males assault Wheeler students

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Two students were assaulted Friday night in Wheeler dormitory by two unidentified males who slipped past dorm security, Sgt. David Grader of the University of Massachusetts police department said.

The assailants went from door to door on the third and fourth floors of Wheeler challenging residents to fights, Grader said.

A fourth floor student asked the two to leave and was struck in the face and head with fists and beer bottles. Another student who tried to break up the fracas was assaulted in the same manner, Grader said.

By the time police arrived, the assailants had fled. An unsuccessful search was then conducted, Grader said.

The two assaulted students were taken to University Health Services. One was treated with stitches above the right eye and the other was placed under observation by Health Services staff, Grader said.

One assailant was described as a tall blond white male with tan pants and a tan shirt, a blue jacket and a rugby hat. The other was described as wearing a white cowboy hat, Grader said.

Further investigations are being conducted by Officer Linda Piorun, Grader said.

Jackson poster reappears; UPC leader "really glad"

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

The Joe Jackson poster reported missing from outside the Fine Arts Center last week was returned, according to Fern Spierer, Union Program Council (UPC).

"It's back," Spierer said. "I'm really glad, too."

The University of Massachusetts Department of Public Safety received an anonymous phone call Friday saying that the person who had the poster wished to return it, and would leave it in a designated spot near the Southwest residential area, said Bill Pritchett, Talent Coordinator for UPC.

Gerald T. O'Neil, director of Public Safety, confirmed the story, saying it was "basically accurate."

★Gelb

Continued from page 1

The Reagan administration has been talking about the possibility of controlling a nuclear war after it has begun in a limited way, Gelb said. The Soviets have been saying publicly for years that they do not believe it is possible to have a limited nuclear war. However people have to look at the fact that the Soviets have large land bases and many nuclear weapons.

"You don't pay attention to words. You look at the capabilities," he said.

Eliminating weapon systems that take away time and choices from the leaders of countries is one way to lessen the risk of a nuclear war, he said. Dialogues can and must be re-established between the Soviet Union and the United States to resolve the tension between the two countries.

However, Gelb said, "I don't think we can have both peace and disarmament. We can't have disarmament. It's not going to happen and it's not safe."

"If we were to take our troops out of Europe, I would not bet against the Soviets taking advantage," he said.

Gelb said there were four different approaches that could be taken to avoid a nuclear war. One approach is what he called "wishful thinking," in which one side would make the first move to totally disarm.

"The idea of this approach isn't in the cards for any man or woman who wants to be elected," he said.

★reaction

Continued from page 1

"I would not call this (the creation of new trustees) a parallel to the judicial appointments," Quinn said in an interview Sunday. "He lost the primary and still has one-third of a year left (in his term). You shouldn't say the governor should stand still."

Wetherbee speculated that the creation of the trustees and judgeships by King are in return for the governor's approval of a legislative pay raise scheduled to be passed by the state legislature some time after the November elections.

In order for these kinds of deals to cease, the legislative rules must be radically reformed, Wetherbee said. To begin with, the power of the legislative leadership must be curbed, he said.

Rep. James G. Collins, D-Amherst, who is expected to be named chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Education next January, said he supported the move to increase the board's size.

"I'm confident the governor will make good quality appointments to the board, just as he has done in the past," he said.

Acting Vice-Chancellor for Administration and Finance John L. DeNyse, who said he could not give "an informed opinion" on the increase, refused comment.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Protective packaging for drugs ordered

BOSTON — Protective packaging is needed for non-prescription drugs sold in Massachusetts to help prevent any recurrence of the deaths linked to contaminated Tylenol, the state's public health commissioner told a legislative committee yesterday.

Meanwhile, state health officials also reported finding Tylenol capsules being sold Monday at stores in Hyannis and Boston, despite a statewide ban on sales of the pain-killing capsules. A Bay State survey of eye care products also was started following a report that Visine A.C. eyedrops in Colorado had been spiked with acid.

"Recent events have shown the need to require non-prescription, over-the-counter drugs to be sold in non-tamper packages," Commissioner Alfred L. Frechette told the Committee on Health Care during testimony on a bill to impose state packaging standards.

Retirement checks for women questioned

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court said yesterday that it will decide whether employers can give women smaller retirement checks each month because they are likely to live longer than men.

The court must judge the legality of an Arizona retirement benefit plan for state employees. But the impact of its eventual decision will be felt nationwide — affecting Americans who work for private employers as well.

The life insurance industry told the justices that banning the use of sex-based actuarial tables in retirement plans could add $2 billion a year to the costs of such plans.

"Such a judicially forced break with the past will indeed revolutionize the insurance industry," the court was told.

The Arizona plan was struck down by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which said it violates a 1964 federal law banning sex discrimination in employment.

In Arizona, men and women working for the state pay equal amounts into a deferred-compensation system. Upon retirement, they have several choices for getting their money back — including an annuity that gives them a monthly payment for life.

Debate locale search on for Ray and Ted

BOSTON — A one-hour debate between U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and his Republican challenger, Raymond Shamie of Walpole, will be held somewhere in central Massachusetts, according to a Kennedy aide.

"We really don't care where it's held as long as we can be sure it isn't a setup. But it's already been decided that it will be somewhere in the central part of the state," Kennedy spokesman Brian Delaney said Monday night after a meeting between aides for each candidate.

No date for the debate was disclosed.

Shamie aides expressed interest in holding the debate at Nichols Junior Collge in Dudley, where Shamie is a trustee, according to unidentified Kennedy aides quoted in the Worcester Telegram.

People return home; fear contamination

LIVINGSTON, La. — Hundreds of people ventured back home yesterday for the first time in two weeks, mistrustful of assurances that there would be no long-term contamination from a train fire that sent clouds of toxic smoke over the town.

"I'm not so much worried about myself and my husband, but what about my kids and our grandchildren?" said Pauline Buffy, who was concerned about long-lasting chemical contamination.

"I don't think they've really given us the assurance we wanted," she said.

Authorities warned residents not to eat vegetables from their gardens or food that was left on shelves or in refrigerators when the town's 2,700 residents were evacuated Sept. 28.

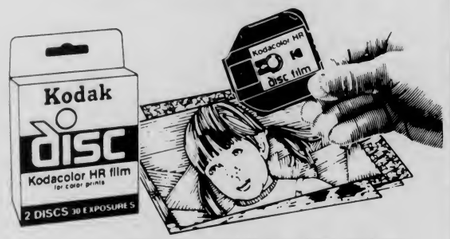
But at two quickly called town meetings, health officials said they did not expect longterm complications.

"We don't think you will have any problems," said state health officer Dr. Sarah Braud. "If we did, we wouldn't have let you back in."

Some residents — those who live in 20 homes very close to where 43 cars in a 101-car Illinois Central-Gulf States freight train derailed — were not allowed to return. Those homes were destroyed or badly damaged and now are in a roped-off area, close to the charred wrecks of the overturned rail cars where clean-up crews were still at work.

Away from that area, homes seemed to have suffered little damage other than broken windows. Trees and other plants still have their leaves.

Your first stop for disc film processing.



Bring in your KODACOLOR HR Disc Film, and get quality color processing by Kodak. You'll like the way the color comes out bright and clear . . . just the way you like it. Stop in today to order your great looking prints.

COLOR PROCESSING by Kodak

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

The Graduate
TONIGHT
7, 9, & 11 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
Admission $1.50

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Dr.
Amherst, Mass
549-5713

Good food and drink
served in a comfortable, friendly atmosphere

1.) Delicious Luncheon Specials at $2.49
Mon - Fri 11:30 - 4:00

2.) Dinner Specials for two $8.95
served with salad and baked potato
every night 5:30-9:00

3.) Pizza Party!
A free small pizza with a pitcher of beer
every evening 9:00 - closing

4.) 50¢ off our cheese dipper
during any happy hour - just mention this ad
2:00 - 5:30 daily 9:00 - closing Sun - Thurs

EDITORIAL/OPINION

US hostage to handguns

The current controversy brewing over the death penalty is truly mystifying. Indeed, that a so-called "civilized" society is even considering such a barbarous act of punishment is both insulting and embarrassing to those of us who consider ourselves reasoning animals. Besides, hasn't anyone in this state heard of the old maxim: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure"? It is obvious that prevention is gun control. Since guns are present in a majority of all homicides.

Kevin DeLuca

The cure, if one can call it that, is said to be the death penalty. However, time and time again studies have shown that far from convincing people not to murder, the death penalty does nothing of the sort. And sometime it actually stimulates an atmosphere of violence which pervades the society and results in a rise in the number of murders. So let us dismiss the silly notion that the death penalty is anything more than the invention of grasping politicians.

In reality, there is no cure for preventing murder, death being irreversible. So let us examine how to prevent murder in the first place.

Upon close scrutiny, one observes that the common denominator among most murders is the way in which they are committed, via handguns. So the obvious conclusion one draws is that if we ban handguns, their manufacture, sale, and use, we will greatly reduce the number of murders committed.

"Wait!" a National Rifle Association member will scream. "Guns don't kill people, people kill people. Besides it says in the Constitution that I have the right to bear arms."

Let us address the latter claim first. No, our dear, gun-ho friend, our Constitution does not say any such thing. It does not grant each individual the right to bear arms, but rather gives the state the right to form a militia as our venerable Supreme Court has told us more than once.

As for the idea that people kill people, not guns, our contention should be that people would kill less people if guns were not available. Facts seem to support us. For in countries such as England, West Germany, and Japan, where handguns are banned, on the average 25 people are killed by handguns a year. In the United States, that number meet their deaths every day. Indeed, the appalling statistics are as follows: 10,000 people a year are murdered by handguns; a person is shot to death every 50 minutes in this great country of ours. Now, isn't that just a bit frightening?

"Why isn't the carnage stopped?" you ask. Well for two simple reasons. The Americans psyche still seems to be caught up in the Wild West ideal, where guns, shootouts, and killing were common and accepted. America does not seem to have matured enough to give up such a ridiculous and dangerous fantasy, therefore we go on playing cowboy to the tune of 10,000 deaths a year. Quite a costly game.

Secondly, and perhaps more importantly, the people who want guns, namely the NRA, are loud, active, and effective in lobbying Congressman to see their point of view and not that of the majority, who sit back meekly and watch in fear the insanity around them.

Come on America, wake up and think: Do we want to be killed? Handguns serve no useful purpose, they are made expressly for murder. Other countries can live without them, can we live with them? Let us abolish handguns before they abolish us.

Kevin DeLuca is a Collegian staff member

Letters

Chemical war is unwinnable war

To the Editor:

I was disgusted with the "Case for Chemical Warfare" editorial that Dave McCarthy wrote. Especially striking was the line: "I contend that pacifists should opt for the Chemical option, in the name of short term arms control". Obviously McCarthy doesn't know what pacifism or disarmament means.

The point against nuclear weapons and chemical weapons is that both would be responsible for mass genocide and ecocide. His whole argument for chemical warfare rests on the assumption that we have no option but to continue an armaments race with the Soviet Union. He argues for a "chemical deterrent" against the Soviet Union, and that by not being "chemically prepared" the U.S. would have to rely more on nuclear weapons. This is the same "cold war" line that has been fed to the American people since WWII.

The disarmament movement stands in opposition to the insane reasoning that developing more weapons will make us more secure. Instead we believe that bi-lateral disarmament must be negotiated with the Soviet Union and that the resources that are now going to weapons production should go to building real security: jobs, energy self-sufficiency, health care, and education.

Of course a powerful segment of our population has a vested interest in the maintenance of the "cold war" psychology. Two thirds of the nation's top 100 firms are heavily involved inthe military market which now exceeds $50 billion annually in procurement for new weapons at 15-20 percent profit rates. The Pentagon maintains two lobbyists for every member of Congress and distributes contracts to as many congressional districts as possible.

Dave McCarthy has nothing to complain about. Reagan has been increasing chemical weapons R&D and production along with virtually every other part of the military budget.

By the way, Dave, the Soviet Union is not the only superpower who has used chemical weapons, nor the first. In violation of the Geneva Protocol against chemical weapons, the U.S. used them in Viet Nam (remember Napalm, Agent Orange, and Agent Blue?) and many suspect in Cuba during the late 1970's (though don't expect the Pentagon to admit it). Who do you think developed and marketed the barbaric phosphorus bombs used by Israel in Lebanon?

Abbe Bjorklund
UMass Students Against Militarism

BMSO article misleading

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Bilingual/Multicultural Student Organization I would like to request that the Collegian print a correction regarding the article in the October 7th issue. In the article the reporter wrote that BMSO was formed because of an increasing need to teach bilingual students more about the culture of this country and this community." There was some serious misinformation printed in the article which does not adequately reflect the goal of BMSO. Our goal is not to teach, but to serve bilingual and multicultural issues.

Primarily, the main objective of BMSO is to serve the bilingual and multicultural community in the ways which that community sees as relevant and necessary.

We wish to make clear that our objectives are aimed at the entire community, students and non-students alike. The current members of BMSO are from bilingual and culturally diverse backgrounds.

WendeLee Graves
Amherst

UMass employee charges bias

To the Editor:

I vehemently oppose the Trustees approval of a tuition waiver to university employees and their families. I am not opposed because I've had to pay to educate my children but it so happens I have been employed by the University for ten years and still am allowed only 4 credits tuition free per semester. I should think the trustees would look out for the employees interests before broadening them to spouses and children. this 4-credit tuition waiver applies only if the chairman gives you released time — if not, you have to sacrifice your lunch hour or make up the time.

Name and address witheld on request

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Beival, Associate News Editor; Amy Jenness, Associate Women's Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Read Random Notes on Friday

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Newslines...

NY Lieut. Governor sets local campaign

NEW YORK — Lt. Governor Mario M. Cuomo's campaign organization has appointed John (Andy) Hoffmeier as the coordinator responsible for organizing the more than 200 New York state voters now at the University of Massachusetts Amherst campus.

Citing Cuomo's record of achievement in education, human services, taxes and job development, Hoffmeier said he expected a very positive response from New Yorkers in Amherst.

The campaign will get underway at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the 19th floor lounge of the John Quincy Adams tower of the Southwest residential area. Interested New Yorkers and others are invited to attend the meeting. For those unable to attend, absentee ballot applications can be obtained by contacting Hoffmeier at 2107 J. Q. A., or by calling 546-8565.

Teacher hopeful to meet and discuss requirement changes

There will be an open house for Prospective secondary school teachers at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18 in Room 222 of the School of Education. Students can obtain information about the new certification guidelines and meet with student teachers who are currently in the field at this meeting.

Certification requirements were changed this fall and it is important for students to get guidance for course selection early. For more information, contact Linda Cleary at 545-0246 or 549-6087, or Dr. Verne Shelan at 545-1570.

Food Co-op to meet

A general meeting of the Amherst Food Co-op will be held at 7:30 tonight in the basement of the Amherst First Congregational Church. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Arab student group to discuss Lebanon

The Organization of Arab Students (OAS) will hold an informative of updated events in Lebanon. It will be free, and held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Thompson 102.

The presentation includes a movie on the children of Palestine, a speaker, Paul Sava of Lebanon and Mid-Eastern food supplied by group members. Solidarity messages will also be presented.

Hypercurricula...

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP — A group for women who are challenging traditional ways of experiencing spirituality. A supportive community where women can share, question, and grow toward a new understanding of ourselves, 7-9:00 p.m., Student Union.

GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM COUNCIL INTRODUCTORY MEETING — We need your input and ideas on CC/SU programming. GPC is funded by the Board of Governors, 4:30 p.m. CC 802.

STUDENTS AGAINST MILITARISM MEETING — Students Against Militarism is a UMass group working on issues of the draft and militarism, 7:30 p.m. CC 177.

OXFORD NIGHT — Meeting with director and past participants in Oxford Summer Seminar, Trinity College, Oxford. Discussion and slides, 7:30 p.m., Bartlett 301.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — Come dance to the beautiful rhythms! All welcome. 7:30 p.m. for beginners, 8:30 p.m. for all others. Commonwealth Room, Student Union.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY MEETING — Dr. Wendell Dodge will give a slide presentation on "The Black Bear in Massachusetts," 7:30 p.m. Holdsworth 312.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY — Today's topic for theological discussion is: "The Liberal Christian In Politics" facilitated by Rev. Phil Ward, 12:15 to 1:15 p.m., 428 Student Union.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — Anyone willing to help and share ideas about solving the problems of world hunger is welcome. Plans now in process for Fast for a World Harvest, 4:30-5:30 p.m., 428 Student Union.

NEWS MEETING AT WMUA — A News Department meeting for all staff and those people interested in joining the department. No experience necessary, 4 p.m., 42 Marston Hall.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Study, planning, and action toward nuclear disarmament. New participants welcome to strategize new directions, 6-8:30 p.m., CC 808.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST WEEKLY MEETING — Come for quality fellowship and a continuing series designed to stimulate you in your Christian growth, 6:30 p.m., SBA 109.

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Miller or Miller Light
35c Pub-Mugs
- OLDIES -
with
Gregg Adams
No Cover
9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

FOWL WEATHER GEAR
UMBRELLAS
RAINCOATS
SPORTO
BOOTS
PONCHOS
Located in the Campus Center
OPEN
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

La Cucina di PINOCCHIO
FREE DELIVERY
Pinocchios, with the tastiest hot Pizza and Subs in the valley, now offers fast home delivery too!
We deliver *7 days a week from 5 p.m. to 2 a.m.
Treat yourself to PINOCCHIO'S
2 sizes of Subs
12" and 16" Pizzas
Open 11 a.m. to 3 a.m.
Sunday 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.
1177 No. Pleasant St., No. Amherst
549-3669
*Limited delivery area, $3.75 minimum on delivery orders, thank you.

Arts

An appetizing Food Fright at Present Stage

Directed by Anne Bogart
Friday, October 8
Present Stage, Northampton

Barbara Harrington, Gisele Litalien, and Susan Clement are featured in the Present Stage Production of Food Fright.

By JOSEPH CAVANOUGH
Collegian Correspondent

Last Friday night's performance of Foodfright, created by Susan Clement and Barbara Harrington, defined the social and cultural constraints put upon women in a society which forces them to abuse their bodies and spirit. The problem is real and growing. As advertisements, television, movies, and music increasingly depict an ideal physical model for women to achieve, more and more women are being injured in attempts at emulating this model. No woman can achieve the slim, plastic figure of the ideal woman represented in the media. What this model promotes in women are frenzied attempts to imitate an impossible look. These attempts include over-dieting, exercising on minimum nutrition, a dangerous use of makeup, and a host of other methods to aid in supposedly looking more beautiful. When this ideal model is not achieved numerous psychological disorders often result. Some of the unpleasant results were expressed Friday night at Present Stage.

The theater itself is a converted dairy house. The very small floor space was used effectively to create the intimacy necessary in a sociological theater of this type. The action takes place in three separate stage settings: one at the front of the audience, one at the rear, and one to the left — placing the audience almost in the center of the action. The setting was very impressionistic and distracted very little from the action. The costumes were very simplistic and their value blended with the set. The only striking part of these costumes were the gloves which changed color with each scene. Here, Laura Williams provided unified support of the production.

The performance was composed of a collection of short scenes involving comedy and music as well as melodrama. The women in the play were actually performing to the audience as part of the plot, so that when they went off-stage, to another stage setting, they could talk to the audience directly. This performance-within-a-performance effect created more direct contact between the audience and the actresses. There was even one scene in which the actresses, as characters, asked questions of the audience. This breaking down of the invisible actor/audience wall is important in a performance because it reminds the audience that these are real people on stage.

Also, another great tool used in the play was the music, well researched and performed by Gisele Litalien. The music provided an odd collection of both famous and not so famous works fragmented so that Litalien, playing Ronnie, could project her points vocally as well as musically. Here the choreography fit well and the director, Anne Bogart, should be commended.

In closing, I should ask the reader to reflect upon the various devices just mentioned to understand this type of theater. The cast and concept team of Foodfright knew how to express their point to the audience through these tools and at no time did I feel that they were simply reading a book on the stage. I have referred to this type of theater as sociological, meaning that it is an educational theater dealing with an important sociological theme. Certainly, there is no better way to educate an audience than by entertaining them simultaneously. And there is no better way to make somebody laugh than by indirectly forcing them to laugh at themselves and juxtaposing comedy with melodrama. This is theater used as a medium to promote change in our society. This power is unique to theater in that the audience can identify with the performers as real people. The movie industry cannot compare with theater in this respect more often reflecting the changing society rather than promoting change.

Friday night's performance was both intellectually stimulating as well as entertaining. One did not have to be all that sensitive to understand or feel for the characters. Foodfright was direct and well worth seeing.

Play by Play
by Pam Madnick

This week is "the calm before the storm" in college and professional theater this semester. In the next few weeks, the Five College Area theatre and Boston theatre will be at its peak.

Private Lives or not so private? In Private Lives, a comedy by Noel Coward, a now divorced couple is shown on their honeymoons with their new spouses. The problem? They are staying in the same hotel, in adjacent rooms, and just happen to meet. Private Lives plays through November 21 at the Lyric Stage, 54 Charles Street, Boston. Performances are Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5 and 8:30 p.m.; Sundays at 3 p.m. Tickets are $5.50 to $8 depending on the day of the show.

Also in Boston, Bonjour, la Bonjour opens October 19 and runs through October 23 at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Avenue, Boston. Written by Canadian playwright Micheal Tremblay, Bonjour, la, Bonjour has been called "a sensitive and probing new dramatic study of the turmoil surrounding a family's relationships, loves, and hostilities," by its producers. All performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 for the public, and $2 for students and senior citizens.

GEOLOGISTS
AMOCO PRODUCTION COMPANY, one of the Leading Oil and Gas Producers in the U. S., seeks innovative and aggressive GEOLOGISTS to expand its current level of activity.
AMOCO will be recruiting here on October 14-15, 1982.
See your DEPARTMENT Office to schedule an interview.
Positions available for M.S. and Ph.D. candidates in GEOLOGY for EXPLORATION located in the New Orleans Regional Office.
AMOCO
We Are An Equal Opportunity Employer
Male/Female

Patterson House Presents
The Fantini Bros
at Hangar One
Tonight
Wednesday, Oct. 13th
8-1 am
$2.50 at the door
18 yr olds invited
Drink Specials
Rack-A-Disc
Raffle
"I live for weekends party"

OXFORD
Next Summer?
"Hear all about it"
See slides of 1982,
meet participants.
BARTLETT - 301
October 13 - (Wed)
TIME - 7:30 P.M.
Note: new law course

The rusty nail Inn presents
Saturday, October 16
— Billy Idol and the Atlantics
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

RECORD SALE

More American Graffiti original sound track
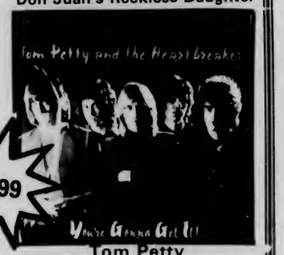
2.99

3.99
Joni Mitchell
Don Juan's Reckless Daughter

2.99
Patti Smith
Waves

3.99
Times Square
original sound track



3.99
Tom Petty
& the Heartbreakers
You're gonna get it

3.49
Utopia
Face the Music

2.99
George Thorogood
& the Destroyers
Better than the rest

4.49
The Who
original sound track/Quadrophonia

10.29
Stevie Wonder
Anthology (3 album set)

2.99
Jorma
Barbeque King

Robin Trower
BLT

3.49

Many other sale records available on our Sale Table

Ian Hunter
Short back n' sides

OPEN
M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Quantities Limited
Sale Ends 10-22-82

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Brown Derby Sandwich
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

DINNER
Baked Ham/Fruit Sauce
Fried Shrimp Dinner/ Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sandwich
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

BASICS DINNER
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu

Attention Collegian Staff

Mandatory staff meeting for everyone at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Collegian newsroom. Everyone must attend. The meeting will be brief. If you cannot make it, contact your department editor or manager.

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

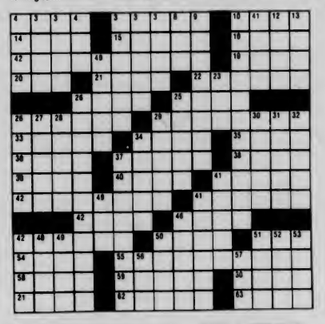
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Maize porridge
5 Library stamp
10 German admiral in Falklands battle, 1914
14 Malay canoe
15 Soap plant
16 Museum pieces
17 Forehanded ones?
19 Burden
20 JFK's predecessor
21 Scrooge's name, for short
22 Rudder brace
24 Humpty Dumpty's nemesis
25 Caliber
26 In abundance
29 Patton and Bradley, e.g.
33 Not give ——— (be careless)
34 Word with ill or well
35 Spring support
36 Vapor
37 Bedouins
38 One way to say so long
39 Night-flier
40 Trig term
41 Roman father
42 Appraised
44 —— pence (old tax)
45 At no time: Poet.
46 "The Way We ——"
47 Blemish
50 Slips
51 Legume
54 Chester —— Arthur
55 In advance
58 Not of the cloth
59 Game of chance
60 Callas role
61 Concerning
62 Ruhr center
63 College festivity

DOWN
1 Hied
2 Rumanian city
3 Claque's cry
4 Crony
5 Work superficially
6 Swiss philosopher, 1821-81
7 Rent
8 Yore
9 Echoes
10 Oklahoma
11 Pub portion
12 Jewish month
13 Existence
18 Hanker
23 Wrath
24 At present
25 American ornithologist, 1877-1962
26 Type of ray
27 See 38 Across
28 Endures
29 Banks or Rapids
30 Winged: Bot.
31 More tardy
32 Headliners
34 Prickly plant
37 Congregate
41 Intrinsically, Latin style
43 Sun. discourse
44 Outside stairway
46 Composed
47 Spanish surrealist
48 Gusto
49 Exposition
50 Newts
51 Paltry poker holding
52 Within: Prefix
53 First person
56 Greek Aurora
57 Chance



B	A	L	M		M	E	L	B	A		S	O	S	O
S	T	U	D		A	L	O	E		L	I	V	O	R
S	I	T	E	N		U	L	N	A	R		M	E	T	A
C	O	N	S	U	L		G	R	I	D	I	R	O	N
P	R	E	S	S		C	O	I	L	D
D	E	P	E	N	D	E	D		A	V	E	R	I	S
W	E	A	R	S		D	O	O	N		I	R	A
E	R	R	I	S		D	A	W	N	S		E	V	I	L
L	I	L		E	N	E	T		A	R	E	A	L
L	O	T	H	E			L	A	C	R	O	S	S	E
	R	E	A	P	S		P	L	U	S
A	R	G	E	N	T	I	N	E		A	M	I	D	S	T
S	O	A	P		O	M	E	N	S		M	O	R	E	S
A	L	M	E		N	O	U	S			N	O	R	A
K	L	E	E		E	N	E	M	Y		S	P	A	R

WEATHER

Cloudy today with chance of rain developing during the afternoon, especially the southwest portion. Highs in the 50s. Rain tonight and tomorrow. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs in the 50s tomorrow.

WMUA 91.1 FM

10-noon	Morning Music with Michelle Murray
noon	Noon Newswatch
12-3pm	Music with D.H.
3-5:30pm	New Wave with Mary Kelly
5:30-6pm	Newswatch
6-7pm	Women's Affairs
7-10pm	New Music with Paula T.
10-2am	Terpsichorean Cacophony with Jim Neil
2-6am	Glory Road Gospel

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Wednesday

Varied Video Today

10:30 - 12:30	Orchard Hill Springfest '82 with One People, Mitch Chakour, and Papa John Creach
12:30 - 1:30	Phil Donahue and the Co-ed Bathroom Scene

OPENING SPECIAL

25/50 25% off to our first 50 customers

Quality Words : Prompt Service

MDI/WORD LINK

Word Processing

. . . 253-9534 . . .

37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

(above Matthews Shoes)

Resumes & Papers

Consultations & Editing

• Theses • Dissertations

OPENING SPECIAL

SATF ORIENTATION WORKSHOPS

New RSO treasurers and officers must attend an SATF Orientation Workshop prior to October 15th in order to (continue) initiate any financial documents for the Group. Workshops will be held as follows:

DATE	CAMPUS CENTER RM	TIME
Wed. - 29 Sept.	CC 168	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 30 Sept.	CC 168	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.
Wed. - 13 Oct.	CC 911	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 14 Oct.	CC 911	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.

Attendance at one session is all that is required. Sessions will review financial responsibilities and requirements placed on each RSO and respond to questions. New manuals will be distributed at the meetings.

STEREO CLEARANCE HOUSE HAS LOWEST PRICES

$24.95 FOR PAIR LIST $99.95

Tanes 6 x 9 3-way speaker pair. 40oz. Magnets 120 watts max. per speaker. Metal grilles, wire & hardware included. All for only $24.95 plus $2.75 shipping. Money back guarantee

Our Free Catalog has many more bargains on all major brands of home and car stereo. Stereo Clearance House 934 Bedford Avenue Johnstown, PA 15902 Phone quotes (814) 539-3057

Restaurant/Hospitality Majors:

The Stouffer Experience...

Why Should You Be Interested In Stouffer Restaurants?

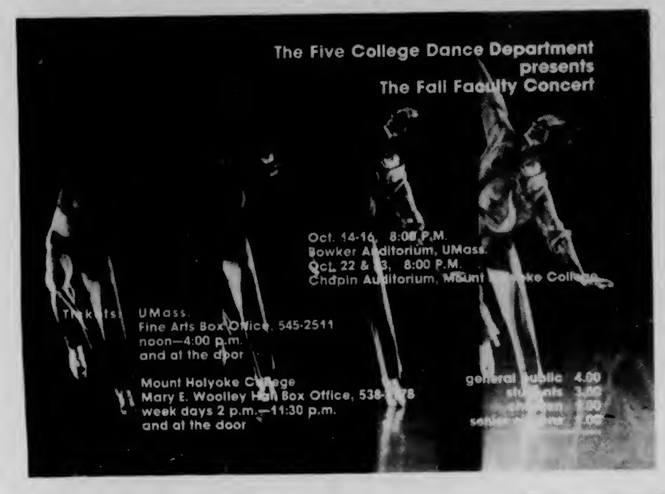
- 20% growth rate is creating substantial career opportunity
- Most comprehensive management development program in the industry
- Over a dozen diversified fine dining concepts with new ideas being developed and implemented
- Top salary progression with the benefits associated with our industry leadership position

A Restaurant Recruiter will be on campus soon to speak personally with you about the career benefits of the Stouffer Experience. For details, or an appointment for personal interview, contact the Placement Office, or write Mr. M. Ede, Stouffer Restaurants, 29600 Bainbridge Road, Solon, Ohio 44139.

Stouffer Restaurants on campus October 20th & 21st

Stouffer Restaurants

An Equal Opportunity Employer



The Sporting News

SPECIAL ISSUE: UNIVERSITY STORE EDITION

SEPTEMBER 10, 1982

NOW AVAILABLE

Tennis Rackets	Darts
Tennis Balls	Soccerballs
Racquetball Racquets	Swiming Goggles
Racquet Balls	Ear Plugs
Squash Racquets	Nose Clips
Squash Balls	Footballs
Baseballs	Nerfballs
Softballs	Inflation Needles
Wiffleballs	Sports Bags
Baseball Gloves	Sports Books
Bats	Rule Books
Basketballs	Volleyballs
Wrist Weights	Jump Ropes
Exercise Mats	Handgrips
Sweat Bands	Exercise Bars
Wrist Bands	Weights
Frisbees	Ankle Weights
Whistles

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Committee for the collegiate Education of Black and Other Minority Students

TUTORS NEEDED

Tutors needed for the following areas:

Math	Spanish	Zoology
Chemistry	Bio-chemistry	Latin
Physics	Italian	Coins

Who: The tutoring will be provided for undergraduates in the CCEBMS Program on a one-to-one basis. The number of hours per week will vary from 1-3 per student.
When: The tutoring will take place during the day or evening depending on the schedule of the tutor and tutees.
Qualifications: Graduate student or seniors; mastery of subject area, previous tutoring and/or teaching experience desired.
Applications are available in Room 217, New Africa House.
Deadline: October 22, 1982.

10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD * 10% OFF WITH THIS AD

PURVEYORS of FINE USED

SACKS

OF SOUTH AMHERST

XXX

WEARING APPAREL

located at the Grist Mill, Rt. 116, So. Amherst one mile south of Amherst Center on the So. Amherst bus route also: flannel shirts, skirts, 40's style dresses & jackets hospital drawstring panys, sweaters, etc.

Jeans & Cords $3-$8

Used Wearing Apparel

open daily 10-5 pm

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

ATTENTION UMASS BANDS

SWAG is looking for contestents for a Battle of the Bands Sat Oct 23. For info contact Jeanette or Steve 545-0960

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Mustang new trans., exhaust and 2 tires 91,000 good cond. needs 2 tire rods $1000/BO Rich 6-1086

Subaru Wagon 77 engine, 76 body. AM/FM. Good condition. 549-0865

1980 Camaro Z-28, 21k miles, T-roof, 4 spd air induction, 60 series tires and aluminum rims 549-2715

76 GMC Van, long bodied, windows all around, good condition 2500 $ tel 549-6327

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

1969 VW Camper Bus as is $1000 586-5827

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture--two bedrooms. $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

One room left. 800/semester call Sue 253-9929 after 8:30 PM

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Guild Maderia acoustic guitar excellent cond Bill 549-4718

100% Alpaca wool sweaters from Peru $55 each Gerry 6-5512

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LOST

Womans Seiko gold quartz watch 25$ reward 546-4941

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets 99. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Movie: MASH - Thurs. Oct. 14 - Eng. East Aud. 7, 9, 11 PM $1.50

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

RALPH LAUREN POLO SHIRTS all sizes six colors call "Smitty" at 549-2631

Attention all SGA escorts and supporters We need you! Our voices alone are not enough. Please let us know you are with us in our attempts to continue this essential student service!! Please call and give us your input/support. Contact Laura 549-0081 or Anne 549-5404

Jill a dollface deserves a Happy Birthday and your quite the doll Happy Birthday love you David

Montreal Trip $95 Oct 29 - 31 and Nov 5 -7, 1982 for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counseling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RECORD STORE

Dynamite Records -- New & used, buy & sell, rent. Thornes Marketplace Plus Northampton 584-1580

RELATIONSHIPS

A one day workshop for women Oct. 16 Explore issues/problems that arise in our relationships. Work towards change and greater fullfillment with others. For info call Estelle Gorfine 253-2822

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Philadelphia or any New Jersey turnpike exit on Oct 14 or 15. Please call 546-5556, keep trying. Will share expenses.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share house on Bay Rd 140 + 256-8058

Apartmentmate needed. Sunderland complex. Rent negotiable on bus route furnished. Call Jeff 665-4357

Female roommate wanted ASAP please call 665-3480

Male needed for small Northampton two bedroom 125+ Scott 584-4348 after 5

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate cash for class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest prices paid. Call Ralph 6-8722 anytime

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

UMASS WOMEN

The Sisters and Pledges of Lambda Delta Phi invite you to view an alternative way of University living. Home-cooked meals, a comfortable and informal atmosphere, community involvement, and friendship are what Lambda has to offer you. Come join us for dinner. Wed. Oct. 13 5:30 p.m. For more information call 545-0939

WANTED

Tutor wanted for Genetics (Zoo.) 510 please call Barbara S 545-0162

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5586

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Want a job you can believe in?

ACORN needs community organizers to work with low and moderate income families in 26 states (AR, SD, TX, LA, TN, MO, FL, CO, NV, PA, IA, OK, MI, AZ, NC, GA, SC, CA, CT, MA, OH, NM, MN, NJ, ND, NY) for political and economic justice. Direct action on neighborhood deterioration, utility rates, taxes, health care, hazardous wastes, etc. Tangible results. Long hours--low pay. Training provided. Contact Career Planning for interview Monday, October 18 or call Kaye Jaeger, ACORN, 117 Spring, Syracuse, NY 13208 (315) 476-0162.

Dastardly Dans

TONIGHT

2 for 1 Draft Beers 2 for 1 Bar Drinks

35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-9285

NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER

WITH THIS AD POLYESTER BLACKWALL $26.95

Size A78-13 FET $1.59

A FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE

- COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
- FRONT END ALIGNMENT
- BRAKES & SHOCKS

VISA MC 78 SUPERCLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST 549-4704 ACROSS FROM WATKINS STORE

PARTY TONIGHT

UMass Welcomes Back

THE FANTINI BROS.

at

HANGAR ONE

Drink Specials

Rack-A-Disc DJ's

ALL WELCOME

$2.50 at the door

presented by Patterson House

John Lee Hooker and the Coast To Coast Blues Band IN CONCERT

Saturday Oct. 16th
SUB/UMass 8 pm.
Gen. ADM...$3 404 SUB UMass
Tix Unlimited--UMass

Tickets on Sale at: For More Info...545-2145
For the Record--Amherst
Main St Records-N'ton
Commuter Office--

SPONSORED BY THE COMMUTER COLLECTIVE & the GOVERNORS PROGRAM COUNCIL

"A COCKEYED MASTERPIECE!" —Joseph Morgenstern, Newsweek

M·A·S·H

An Ingo Preminger Production Color by DeLuxe® Panavision® R

Thursday, Oct. 14
Eng. East Aud.
7, 9, 11 PM
Admission $1.50

Sports

Attention sports staff: There will be a mandatory Collegian staff meeting tonight, Oct. 13, in the newsroom at 7 p.m.

Stickers top NU 2-0, for eighth straight win

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team extended its unbeaten streak to eight games yesterday, as the stickers shut out an aggressive Northeastern team, 3-0.

"I want you all to go out with gusto. Press them right away," coach Pam Hixon told her team before they took the field.

The Minutewomen played with gusto, the whole game through, as they dominated NU in all aspects of play.

UMass pressured the NU defense for most of the first half, but it wasn't until 4:27 that the Minutewomen were able to capitalize.

Back Nancy Goode picked off a long NU pass, and drove it down field. After a scuffle in front of the NU goal, UMass was awarded a penalty corner. Forward Tish Stevens passed the ball to middie Megan Donnelly, who was at the top of the circle. Donnelly nailed the ball into the net, past a stunned NU goalie.

UMass came out hot at the start of the second half. It took the Minutewomen less than four minutes to up the score to 2-0.

With the Minutewomen driving downfield, Donnelly made a long pass downfield, which caught the NU defense off guard and back Carol Pregulske pushed the ball to the back of the net.

At 12:02, the stickers pulled off a very similar play.

After NU took a corner, the UMass defense pushed the ball upfield. Donnelly made another long pass upfield, well past the NU middies and backs.

Collegian photo by Jay Obe

Massachusetts' Patty Smith takes an unsuccessful shot on goal in yesterdays 3-0 win over Northeastern at the upper NOPE field.

NU goalie Sandy Ward took the slow, rolling ball, and kick-saved it to the left side of the goal. Forward Pam Moryl, sprinting ahead of an NU back, pushed the ball past goalie Ward, and put the game out of reach for Northeastern.

Despite a slow, bumpy field, the Minutewomen outnumbered NU in every statistic column.

UMass had 17 corners, while NU managed only three.

The Minutewomen outshot their opponents, 24-4, and UMass goalie Patty Shea needed only three saves to preserve the shutout.

"We played very well. Our passing was good, and our goals were good also," said Hixon.

"We kept the pressure on them, and off of us. Our game is really coming together."

The Minutewomen are on the road this weekend. They travel to play Temple on Friday, and a game with Old Dominion on Saturday.

UMass spikers struggle at tournament

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — Nothing is coming easy these days for the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team. The Minutewomen played better than they have in recent outings, according to head coach Elaine Sortino, but could only win one of four matches last weekend at the Southern Connecticut Tournament.

"We were playing better and doing some really good things, but we still lost," said Sortino. With the three losses, UMass falls to 12-11. Massachusetts has lost nine of their last 11 matches.

UMass played well in their opening match against Rhode Island College (a top ten division III team), but came up on the short end of the stick losing 15-11, 12-15, 13-15. C.W. Post also pinned another loss upon the Minutewomen, winning 13-15, 11-15.

However, UMass regrouped to topple Central Connecticut in a tough battle. The UMass spikers took the first game 15-10, but dropped the second, 9-15, to force the third and deciding game which UMass won 15-9.

The University of New Haven sent Massachusetts home early with a resounding 15-3, 15-3 defeat that eliminated the Minutewomen.

Despite the losses, Sortino was pleased with the play of the Minutewomen spikers.

"Our serves have improved a great deal. Against Central in the third game, we aced (the ball hits the ground with no return) 10 of the 15 points we scored. That was 60 percent of our serves," said Sortino.

Captain Patti Philbin, the only senior on the team, played very well throughout the tournament. Philbin had no problems with her serves and kept UMass alive against C.W. Post with some outstanding plays.

Sortino also had success in a lineup change she instituted. Sortino started freshman Leslie Smith in place of Ann Ringrose giving Sortino more of a chance to use hitter/blocker Julie McMurtie and Ringrose on defense.

The Minutewomen cannot rest upon their laurels as they face the University of New Haven, again for the third time this season, tonight in New Haven. Central Connecticut will also be there. UMass and UNH split their two previous matches.

Collegian Player-of-the-Game

By BILLY SHEA
Collegian Staff

When a team loses a tough game like the one the University of Massachusetts lost to Delaware, 14-13 Homecoming Day, after the initial emotional lows blow over both the team and the fans look to salvage something positive from the loss.

The obvious positive aspect of the loss was that it was not a Yankee Conference game, therefore bearing no significance on any postseason aspirations the Minutemen might possess.

As far as individual player performances are concerned, both Gary Freker (4 catches, 63 yards, 1 TD) and Bob Simeone (5 catches, 57 yards) as receiving threats joining the already dangerous Ron Mangarelli, who has four touchdown receptions this year.

But the player who was the main force behind the fourth quarter Minuteman comeback was junior quarterback Barrett McGrath, who hit 14 of 20 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns in the second half and for these exploits is this weeks recipient of Collegian Player-of-the-Game award.

McGrath replaced starting quarterback Dean Pecevich in the third quarter and immediately threw an interception but the southpaw from Milford was right on target in the fourth quarter.

McGrath started his Ken Stabler imitation on the first series of the fourth quarter. He moved the Minutemen 37 yards in just four plays, the big play being a twisting grab by the 6'4" 230 lb. Freeker at the four yard line. McGrath then hit Mangarelli with a bullet over the middle for McGrath's first touchdown pass of the year.

But McGrath wasn't done yet. He engineered a mammouth UMass-like drive encompassing 16 plays and 76 yards and culminating when McGrath found a streaking Freker in the endzone with only 2:32 left in the game.

But when UMass head coach Bob Pickett decided to go for the win with the two point conversion instead of having Bob Ross kick the tying extra point, there was one more big play for McGrath to put the finishing touch on his most productive half as a UMass quarterback.

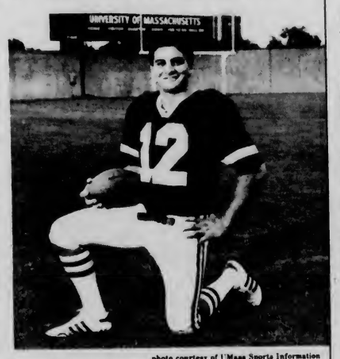

photo courtesy of UMass Sports Information

Barrett McGrath

But when McGrath rolled right looking for Garry Pearson in the endzone and saw the All-American tailback covered, he fired over the middle looking for Simeone. But it never reached Simeone. Delaware linebacker Greg Robertson, the same man Freker beat for his touchdown one play earlier, batted the pass into the ground preserving Delaware's 14-13 lead.

With the all important Yankee Conference schedule continuing next week against the Maine Black Bears, at Maine, at least Pickett can be happy with the Minuteman offensive production displayed in the fourth quarter Saturday and hope that the trend continues through the Yankee Conference season.

UM tops BU, 5-4

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

It is matches like these from which dreams are made. It is a time when fantasies come alive and miracles no longer are only wishful thinking. For the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team, even their wildest hallucinations could not have foreseen Monday's stunning 5-4 victory over highly-regarded Boston University.

Doing their version of the Harry Houdini Great Escape act, UMass, after seemingly being hopelessly behind following the singles matches, roared back to sweep the doubles and pull out the victory.

Neal Mackertich and Steve Jordan, at number one and four, respectively, registered the only singles triumphs for the netmen. Mackertich continued his unbeated play with a 1-6, 6-1, 6-3 comeback victory over Dave Katz. After quickly falling behind 0-5, Mackertich rebounded to garner 14 of the last 18 games.

Jordan toppled Alan Leathers, 7-5, 6-3 in one of only two singles matches that lasted two sets.

Nick Julian lost to BU's Larry Field at number two 7-5, 6-1, Stuart Goodman was edged by Sam Harper 7-6, 4-6, 6-4 at number three, Rich Lindgren was beated by Woody Freeman 6-4, 6-7, 6-3, at number five and Dave Salem was downed by Steve Kapiloff at number six, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 as UMass found themselves down 4-2 after singles play.

It was in the doubles, however, that UMass did itself proud. Mackertich-Julian, playing together for the first time this year, stunned Field-Leathers, the number four ranked doubles tandem in the East, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

"Neal and I played the best doubles of the season. It was the greatest victory of the year," said Julian.

"We played real well. We moved as a team. Nick played great," said Mackertich.

Goodman-Salem rebounded to conquer Freeman-Kapiloff, 3-6, 7-6, 7-5. Jordan-Lindgren, 7-0 as a doubles combination this season, survived Katz-Harper 5-7, 6-3, 7-5. They were down triple match point at 3-5 in the third set before pulling off their impressive comeback.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 27 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, October 14, 1982

AP Laserphoto

Republican gubernatorial candidate John Sears is being scheduled to speak at the University of Massachusetts some time next week. Sears will be facing Democratic candidate Michael S. Dukakis in November's gubernatorial race.

GOP nominee Sears to speak here next week

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

John Sears, Republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts, has announced either he or his running mate, Leon Lombardi, will visit the University of Massachusetts at Amherst next week.

Either Sears or Lombardi, or both, will come to UMass "just to talk to the students," said Elana Govostes, Sears campaign campus coordinator for western Massachusetts.

"He (Sears) is anxious to come out," said Jeff Kelley, chairman of the UMass College Republicans, who announced last week Sears would appear, but was contradicted this week by Govostes, who said only Lombardi might come.

Kelley is also the organizer of the Conservative Campaign Committee, formed as a Recognized Student Organization to obtain Campus Center rooms for speechs by Sears and Republican senatorial candidate Ray Shamie. The planned speech by Shamie was canceled when he was invited to speak at the October 5 nuclear freeze rally.

Govostes said Sears also held a rally yesterday at Harvard University, which followed a debate the previous evening between Lombardi and the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor John Kerry.

Although the appearance here does not include plans for a debate with any of the other gubernatorial candidates, it is "a very big night at UMass that I'm planning," Govostes said. She said students from the Five Colleges, as well as other western Massachusetts citizens, will be invited to the free event.

Kelley said Sears, who "has a very positive stance on higher education," has stated his position that "higher education would be available to all capable students regardless of need, if his proposal for state tuition advances, which are paid back through the state tax collecting mechanism, is established."

A date and location for the event will not be announced until tomorrow, Govostes said, as the "major problem" has been in obtaining a Campus Center room.

Spokespersons for the other gubernatorial contenders yesterday said their candidates had no plans to speak at UMass before the Nov. 2 election.

Terry Dolan, a press worker for the Michael Dukakis campaign, said the Democrat's tentative schedule for the next two weeks includes no UMass visit, but said plans for dates until the election had not yet been set. Dukakis also appeared briefly at the recent nuclear freeze rally, but did not speak on his candidacy.

James Dalton, western Massachusetts coordinator for Independent gubernatorial candidate Frank Rich, said Rich has no plans for a UMass visit when he comes to the Springfield area on Oct. 26, but said his schedule was not final either.

Sandra Cohen, campaign manager for Libertarian Party candidate Rebecca Shipman, said, "I know she is interested in coming out to UMass," but said she is unable to find a campus sponsor for such a visit.

SGA sets goal commitment guidelines for RSO groups

By ANNE CHAPMAN
Collegian Correspondent

The Student Senate last night moved to approve a proposal that will require Recognized Student Organizations (RSO) funded by the Student Government Association (SGA) to commit themselves to common goals and objectives. Each organization's progress toward reaching these goals will be evaluated on a monthly basis by the SGA and student governing boards.

The "Management by Objectives" process was developed over the summer by the SGA in conjunction with students and professionals from campus organizations.

"The goals and objectives process was developed over the summer. It was decided that there was a need for a process by which organizations funded by the SGA could establish goals and evaluate their own progress at the end of every month," said Sharon Davies, speaker of the Student Senate.

The SGA decided to create a goal evaluating system coined the "Student Government and Activities System" (SGAS). This system requires all SGA funded organizations to implement seven goals and objectives. These goals include: implementing methods for exposing and combatting human oppression; establishing and enforcing affirmative action policies; promotion and support of student decision making.

The purpose of this system, said Davies, is to establish common goals among all the RSO groups in order to establish continuity among the organizations.

"These goals are intended to unify the members of the Student Government Activities System. We want to have common, delineated goals in order to work more effectively as a governmental body," she said.

A further purpose of such a system is to provide a formal procedure for evaluating the progress these organizations are making towards reaching these common goals. Each organization needs to administer these common goals according to their own individual objectives, Davies said.

The SGA Budget Committee will observe the progress of these organizations within the context of the SGAS. Funding for these organizations may depend on their

Continued on page 14

New director of Third World Affairs to help students

By PHIL JENNINGS
Collegian Staff

Acting Director of the Office of Third World Affairs Gary Lee said he is looking forward to working for the students and the Third World community.

"My concept of the Office of Third World Affairs and its relationship to the Third World community is to aid students and their Recognized Student Organizations (RSO) groups in wherever their objectives lie.

"If you want to raise money, bring a speaker to campus or just hold an event under a certain theme or idea, I'm here to assist you," Lee said.

Lee, 24, and a native of Boston studied Afro-American history and political science at the University of Massachusetts. Lee was considered by many to be one of the more favorable candidates to fill the postion of Third World Affairs director since the departure of the former Director Tony Crayton.

Anticipating collaboration with the Student Senate and the Third World caucus, Lee said he hopes to build stronger coalitions between the two.

"I get my mandate from the Third World community. These are my so called constituents. I represent their interests as well as their (RSO) groups. These groups include: Ahora, Nummo News, Black Mass Communications Project (BMCP) and the Center for Women of Color," Lee said.

"I represent these groups in the Student Senate and the Third World caucus and help them to deal with the bureaucracy when they try to carry off programs to benefit the community," Lee said.

"So basically my job is to help the community do what it wants, which in effect helps us all. I see that as my main objective as office director, and to make sure things run as smoothly as possible," he said.

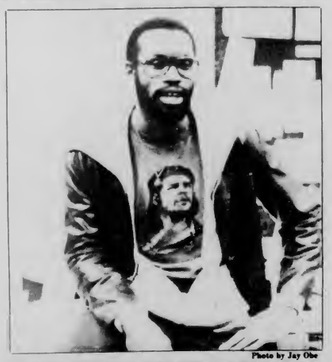

Photo by Jay Obe

Acting Director of the Office of Third World Affairs Gary Lee, after filling the position left vacant by Tony Crayton, is ready to assist the UMass community by representing the interests of his constituents.

As an undergraduate, Lee lived in both John F. Kennedy and Cance dormatories in the Southwest residential area and later escaped to a quiet apartment off campus.

As an upperclassman, Lee became involved in the Student Senate, was a member of the Third World caucus and is an active member of BMCP.

Gary Lee, better known on the radio as "The General" hosts the Black classical and Jazz music show called "Positive Vibrations" on WMUA 91.1 F.M. Amherst.

"I have basically concentrated on radio even though my major is political science. I have worked more with BMCP during my college career, particularly because with radio I find it easier to interact with different people and organizations," Lee said.

"To me it's something significant. It has not translated into material possessions like it has for others on the radio but I feel good about it," said Lee.

Lee has also interviewed celebrities like Gil Scot-Heron, Angela Davis, Dick Gregory and Andrew Young.

When asked about student involvement in Third World organizations Lee said, "Participation in Third World organizations seems to fluctuate because there are only a few people doing a lot of the work and many not doing anything for the organizations."

"I think during my early years at the University (1976) support for groups was a little bit stronger. Now it seems as if there is a nucleus of people doing a lot of the work but sometimes not seeing the fruits of their labor," Lee said.

Lee added the organizations should direct their efforts toward educating other people as well as themselves.

World and national news

Reagan tries to convince America that policies are working

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said last night that despite a "pounding economic hangover" that has left 11 million Americans unemployed, the nation is "recovery-bound and the world knows it."

He had billed his televised speech as a non-partisan report on the economy, then concluded it with the 1982 Republican campaign theme, urging: "We can do it, my fellow Americans, by staying the course."

The president said his economic programs will bring a resurgence "built to last" because it will create new jobs without rekindling inflation.

"This time we are going to keep inflation, interest rates and government spending, taxing and borrowing down — and get Americans back on the job," Reagan said.

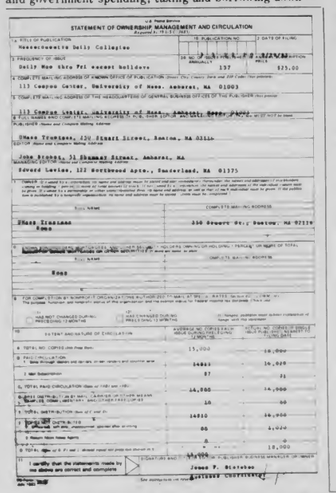
In the Democratic response, Sen. Donald M. Riegle of Michigan said, "The truth is that this administration has created two courses ... one of them a very fast economic track for a few, the other filled with potholes and road-blocks for the rest of us."

The Democrats had protested the decision by two networks to grant Reagan free airtime just three weeks before the Nov. 2 elections, insisting that Reagan was merely using television to campaign for GOP candidates blistered by the unemployment issue.

The speech was added to Reagan's schedule after unemployment rose to 10.1 percent in September. NBC and CBS carried it live; ABC did not, saying it could adequately cover Reagan's speech and the Democratic response in its regular news shows.

"Unemployment is the problem uppermost on many people's minds," Reagan said. "Getting Americans back to work is an urgent priority for all of us, and especially for this administration."

"The pounding economic hangover America is suffering from didn't come about overnight and there is no single, instant cure," Reagan said. He said "there's plenty of blame to go around," for the economic morass, but claimed none for himself or his economic program.



STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP MANAGEMENT AND CIRCULATION

1A. TITLE OF PUBLICATION: Massachusetts Daily Collegian
1B. PUBLICATION NO.
2. DATE OF FILING
3. FREQUENCY OF ISSUE: Daily Mon thru Fri except holidays
3A. NO. OF ISSUES PUBLISHED ANNUALLY: 197
3B. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: $25.00
4. COMPLETE MAILING ADDRESS OF KNOWN OFFICE OF PUBLICATION (Street, city, county, state and ZIP+4 Code) (Not printers): 113 Campus Center, University of Mass. Amherst, MA 01003
5. COMPLETE MAILING ADDRESS OF THE HEADQUARTERS OR GENERAL BUSINESS OFFICES OF THE PUBLISHER (Not printer): 113 Campus Center, University of Mass., Amherst, Hampshire, 545-3500
6. FULL NAMES AND COMPLETE MAILING ADDRESSES OF PUBLISHER, EDITOR, AND MANAGING EDITOR (This item MUST NOT be blank)
PUBLISHER (Name and Complete Mailing Address): Shaun Trudeau, 230 Stuart Street, Boston, MA 02116
EDITOR (Name and Complete Mailing Address): John Hickey, 31 Shamrock Street, Amherst, MA
MANAGING EDITOR (Name and Complete Mailing Address): Edward Levine, 122 Northwood Apts., Easterland, MA 01375
7. OWNER (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereafter the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a partnership or other unincorporated firm, its name and address, as well as that of each individual must be given. If the publication is published by a nonprofit organization, its name and address must be stated.) (Item must be completed.)
FULL NAME: Shaun Trudeau
COMPLETE MAILING ADDRESS: 230 Stuart St., Boston, MA 02116
8. KNOWN BONDHOLDERS, MORTGAGEES, AND OTHER SECURITY HOLDERS OWNING OR HOLDING 1 PERCENT OR MORE OF TOTAL AMOUNT OF BONDS, MORTGAGES OR OTHER SECURITIES (If there are none, so state): NONE
9. FOR COMPLETION BY NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS AUTHORIZED TO MAIL AT SPECIAL RATES (Section 411.3, DMM only): The purpose, function, and nonprofit status of this organization and the exempt status for Federal income tax purposes: HAS NOT CHANGED DURING PRECEDING 12 MONTHS / HAS CHANGED DURING PRECEDING 12 MONTHS (If changed, publisher must submit explanation of change with this statement)

10. EXTENT AND NATURE OF CIRCULATION	AVERAGE NO. COPIES EACH ISSUE DURING PRECEDING 12 MONTHS	ACTUAL NO. COPIES OF SINGLE ISSUE PUBLISHED NEAREST TO FILING DATE
A. TOTAL NO. COPIES (Net Press Run)	15,000	18,000
B. PAID CIRCULATION
1. Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales	14841	16,000
2. Mail Subscription	87	21
C. TOTAL PAID CIRCULATION (Sum of 10B1 and 10B2)	14,000	16,000
D. FREE DISTRIBUTION (By Mail, Carrier or Other Means) Samples, complimentary, and other free copies	10	50
E. TOTAL DISTRIBUTION (Sum of 10C and 10D)	14810	16,050
F. COPIES NOT DISTRIBUTED 1. Office use, left over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing	90	1,950
2. Return from News Agents	0	0
G. TOTAL (Sum of 10E, F1 and 2 — should equal net press run shown in A)	15,000	18,000

11. I certify that the statements made by me above are correct and complete. — James F. Bleiwas, Business Controller

Disarmament crusaders get peace prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Two longtime crusaders for world disarmament — Alva Myrdal of Sweden and Alfonso Garcia Robles of Mexico — were awarded the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize yesterday.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee said it selected the pair in hopes of spurring the growing worldwide movement against nuclear arms.

"Millions of people are joining the fight against nuclear weapons," the 80-year-old Mrs. Myrdal said in Stockholm after the announcement. "I hope that after we have received the peace prize, even greater numbers will stand up in the fight."

Garcia Robles, a former Mexican foreign minister, described the award as "perhaps a little late but welcome recognition of the importance and the urgency" of disarmament efforts.

He spoke with reporters in Geneva, Switzerland, where he leads the Mexican delegation to the United Nations disarmament talks.

Both Mrs. Myrdal, a sociologist and former diplomat and politician, and the 71-year-old Garcia Robles have put years of work into the U.N. process of arms control negotiations based in Geneva.

She headed the Swedish delegation to the Geneva talks in 1962-73, and Garcia Robles has been chief Mexican delegate to the United Nations in Geneva since 1977. The Nobel Committee also took special note of his key role in negotiating a 1967 treaty declaring Latin America a nuclear-free zone.

Alva Myrdal and her husband, noted economist-sociologist Gunnar Myrdal, are the fourth couple to both win Nobel Prizes. He shared the economics prize in 1974. Garcia Robles is the first Mexican to win a Nobel in the 81-year history of the awards.

The prize carries a stipend of 1.15 million Swedish kronor, equivalent to $157,000, which the two will split.

The disarmament campaigners were among a record 79 candidates — 60 individuals and 19 organizations — nominated for the peace prize.

Other candidates included detained Polish labor leader Lech Walesa and U.S. Middle East mediator Philip C. Habib. But veteran observers of the Nobel selection process had considered them unlikely winners — Walesa because the award would appear politically motivated, and Habib because the Lebanon situation is still unstable.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Diane Kadzis
Copy Editor	Richard Nangle
Layout Technician	Brad Eden
Photo Technician	Drew Ogier
Composition	Lauri Neely, Laura Shanahan
	Adrianne Dufor, Gail Tanzer, Joy McCarthy
	Scott Stockwell, Sue Hawkins, Laurie Frank
	Jenny Winslow, Andrea Repass, Becky Robins
	Jamie Katz, Will Hopkins

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Interested in TV? Video?
COME TO:
Union Video Ctr.

General Meeting
TONITE, Thurs. 10/14
7:00 pm #216 SUB
New Members Welcome
Workshops and Access Available
Call UVC for more info 545-1336

O'Keefe Ale — MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE — O'Keefe Ale

The Only Place To Be On Thursday Night In Amherst
O'KEEFE NIGHT
12 oz Bottles .95
plus
Two For One Bar Liquor Drinks
Three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25

VALUABLE COUPONS
from McManus's
GOOD THRU OCT. 15, 1982
STOP a SHOP CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-6829

BREAKFAST SPECIAL
2 EGGS, 2 PANCAKES, 2 STRIPS BACON, 2 LINKS SAUSAGE
Reg. $2.25 With This Coupon — 2 For $2.95
Please present coupon when ordering. coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982
SERVED ALL DAY ANYTIME

DELI-MELT
Oversized 1/3 LB. Chopped Beef With Sautéed Onions, Melted Zesty Cheddar Cheese On Grilled Pumpernickel Served With French Fries
Reg. $2.85 With this coupon — 2 For $4.25
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982. SERVED 11 A.M.-10 P.M.

FISH DINNER
Our Famous Batter-Dipped Fillets English Style — Served with French Fries, or Baked Potato, Cole Slaw, Roll & Butter
Reg. $3.25 With This Coupon — 2 For $4.95
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Oct. 15, 1982. SERVED 11 A.M.-10 P.M.

HOURS OPEN 24 HOURS Fri. & Sat. Sun. thru Thurs. 7 a.m.-3 p.m.
James H. McManus eating place
Senior Citizen Discounts 2.5 p.m. 20% All other times 10% Does not apply to specials

SWEATER SALE!

• Ladies Crew Neck
$18.
•Men's Acrylic
$12.95
• Ragg Wool
reg $36 now $25
Saturday Clothes
(behind Silverscape) 266 N. Pleasant
9:30 - 6 Mon-Sat Fri till 9 pm

SGA snatches control of TIX; better management sought

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

As the result of a summer audit conducted by the Student Government Treasurer's Office, Tickets Unlimited has been placed under the control of the Student Government Association (SGA).

The audit showed many deficiencies in the controlling of ticket sales, said Lisa Potter, treasurer of SGA.

"The audit showed that Tix (previously named Tickets Unlimited) was not being adequatley run. One of the major problems was an inadequate control of ticket receipts," she said.

The history of Tix and Tickets Unlimited has been rocky at best. Potter said former president of the SGA Larry Kocot issued an executive order last February relinquishing control of Tix from a student co-op to Union Records Unlimited. The order came after it was found that Tix was being mismanaged, Potter said.

One problem occured last year after the Bob Marley concert was cancelled, she said. Tix did not have a list of tickets sold. As a result, many difficulties arose in refunding tickets.

"Before, no one was watching the ticket receipts. Now they are," Potter said.

"There was a great deal of room for abuse," said Potter. "There were just too many problems with their policy."

The executive order expired last May. The SGA then decided to separate Tickets Unlimited from Union Records Unlimited.

As a result of the summer audit, a new policy regarding tickets and ticket receipts has been devised.

The first order of business was to appoint Lynn M. Eady, a junior business major from Wilbraham, the new ticket manager.

"Our main goal is accountability. We want to be accountable for everything we do," Eady said.

New guidelines have been set down for Tickets Unlimited and students to follow. First, all groups showing movies on campus must sign a contract with Tickets Unlimited.

"Any movies, raffles, or dorm parties must be approved by the Treasurer's office. And then the group must come to me to sign a contract," Eady said.

"We make sure that all tickets being sold are consecutively numbered. This allows us to make sure that all money, as well as tickets, have been accounted for," she said.

Although groups are not required to purchase their tickets from Tickets Unlimited, Eady said they still must have their tickets checked by the office.

"We also serve as a middleman for ordering tickets. We print a number of presale tickets and that's where we make most of our money," she said.

Although Tickets Unlimited has not yet made a profit, Eady said she expects it to take in some returns in the near future.

"Once we get rolling, we should make something. But we are not really out to make a profit. I would rather see us be more accountable for the things we do," she said.

"We know that Tix had a bad reputation," said Eady. "Right now we are trying to rebuild our image. We want people to know we are here to provide students with a place to get tickets that is going to be accountable for those tickets."

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Tightroping across a babbling brook with the greatest of ease, David Cramb, a junior Entomology major at UMass, explores the rope course behind the Southwest playing fields.

'Never Another Battered Woman Week' to prevent violence

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Every eighteen seconds a woman in the United States is beaten by her husband and in Massachusetts alone 53,000 women are battered yearly.

"Never Another Battered Woman Week" is being observed this week in Massachusetts to mourn the women who have suffered from violence and to hope for all those women who have survived the abuse, said Heather Johnson, a staff member at Womanshelter/Companeras, a Holyoke home for abused women.

"The week is to draw attention to the problem of battering," said Johnson. "The women who come to our shelter are in danger of physical abuse, but mental abuse comes along with the physical abuse."

Last year Womanshelter/Companeras helped nearly 1,000 women. Their 24 hour hotline received 738 calls and 289 women and children stayed in the shelter.

The week has been planned by the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women Service Groups to coincide with the National Day of Unity. Events are being planned throughout the state to raise the level of awareness about the issue of battering, said Carol Greenwald, a volunteer at the coalition's main office in Boston.

"No matter how high the level of awareness is, there's always a lot of people who still have to learn about the battered women's issue," Greenwald said.

"Massachusetts is lucky it has so many shelters, but every shelter is always full. It's very rare to find empty rooms in a shelter and the rooms don't stay empty for very long," she said.

In Boston City Hospital, 70 percent of the patients in the emergency room are victims of violence in the home, Greenwald said. In one study funded by the National Institute of Mental Health, spouse abuse was found to occur in 69 percent of all marriages.

Necessities/Necesidades, a shelter for abused women in Northampton, has assisted more than 400 women since it first opened in 1979, said Diedre McLaughlin, the administrative coordinator of the shelter. As well as shelter, Necessities also offers a 24 hour hotline and counseling services for abused women.

Scientist makes important brain mechanism discovery

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Amidst sympathizers and hecklers in the Campus Center concourse, Kenneth Collins yesterday began a protest of the scientific community which has ignored his dramatic brain theories.

"Evolution dynamics have left a fundamental flaw within the brain's neural mechanism. This flaw is responsible for negative behavorial dynamics. However, my theory shows rigorously that this flaw can be transcended by incorporating within the brain knowledge of the manner in which the brain processes information," Collins said.

Collins, 35, of Chicopee, who has a general studies degree from Springfield College, apparently won some of the attention he was looking for.

Thomas Grimley, president of the Council of Undergraduate Students in Psychology (CUSP), told Collins at about 1:30 p.m. he could speak to an audience of 100 psychology students and professors from 7 to 10 p.m. on Oct. 26 in Tobin Hall 204.

Collins plans to continue his protest however, and remain in the Campus Center until the hour of presentation to the CUSP.

"I will remain here until I am able to convey my message to the world," he said.

Trisha Taugher, the student building supervisor of the Campus Center, said Collins will not be allowed to stay in the building after closing because it would be against Campus Center Policy.

"They (the scientific community) are treating me like a crackpot. If I didn't do this no one would listen to me. I have no shame. You've got to have no shame to wear a hat like this," he said.

Collins, in a white hat with "Human Understanding, let's get tuit," written on the front of it, said his protest was not a sudden decision on his part.

"This isn't a spur of the moment thing. I've planned it since 1979," he said.

"I have lived the last 11 years of my life in complete devotion to this project," said Collins. "The work has almost killed me. I've gone for weeks only having bread and water. I've lost friends. My engagement went down the tubes. I wouldn't be doing this if I didn't have complete confidence in my work."

Collins said he believes his theory can aid the scientific community in finding a solution to child abuse and other social problems.

"Understanding why it (child abuse) occurs, in terms of rigorous biological functions, will create the basis for a solution to the dynamics of child abuse," Collins said.

"One of the interesting problems that the theory resolves is why decussation (crossing of nerve fibers passing to and from the brains higher levels) occurs. That's been a problem that the neuroscientific community, as a whole, has just thrown up its arms in frustration about," he said.

Collins said he had been approached all day by a lot of sincere, as well as insincere, people.

"I have really been heartened by the number of sincerely interested people I've talked to today," he said.

James Jaworsky, 19, a nuro-anthropology major, said he agreed with Collin's theory and is now doing research along the same lines.

"At this point, as I review his manuscript, I see it is a valid manuscript. It gives a holographic image of the brain as a totality," he said. "It is a unified theory of brain function and human behavior."

"In the long range view brain theory may save mankind from destruction," he said.

Most of the crowd, which numbered up to 30 people, that gathered around Collins' table just outside of the University Store, doubted Collins' claim but agreed with his right to express his opinions.

"I think that primarily his claims are unfounded and probably have no scientific basis, but he should be allowed to express his views," said Stuart Press, a senior from Newton.

"Of course he should be allowed to talk. It's ridiculous that he can't," said Laura Garner, a senior from Brookline.

Some students were not so sympathetic:

"Give it out on the lawn man," said Mathew Suey, a senior from Chelsea.

"My theory predicts the sort of reaction I've had to deal with in rigorous biological terms," he said.

Collins is no stranger to unsympathetic people.

"I once went to one of my professors and said I'm penniless. I haven't eaten for days. What can I do to communicate this theory to the world? The professor said, 'Why don't you go home.'"

Collins will not go home until his battle is won. Until the scientific community listens to his theory, Collins expects to live day and night in the Campus Center.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

In an effort to bring attention to his scientific brain theory, Kenneth Collins positioned himself on the Campus Center concourse yesterday to discuss with interested students his speculations on the brain and human behavior.

WINE DOWN
AFTER CLASS
2:30-5:00
OR AFTER THE SHOW
9:00-11:00

CHEESE and WINE SAMPLER

$2.50

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY 3 OF THE FOLLOWING WINES.

FRENCH

VAL DE LOIRE
ROSE D'ANJOU
GRAND MAITRE

BORDEAUX
ENTRE DEUX MERS
BARRIERE
CHATEAU DE CLYDES

BOURGOGNE
LA VIELLE FERME
ROUGE OR BLANC

GERMAN

KANZEMER—SONNENBERG
RIESLING KABINETT 1977

CALIFORNIA VARIETALS

WENTE BROTHERS
1980 GREY RIESLING

WENTE BROTHERS
1980 SAUVIGNON BLANC

BERINGER VINEYARDS
1980 CHARDONNAY

COMMONWEALTH WINES
PLYMOUTH, MASS

CRANBERRY APPLE ROSE
SEYVAL BLANC
DE CHAUNAC

AND ANY 3 SELECTIONS FROM OUR INTERNATIONAL CHEESE BOARD.

On The Boltwood Walk
103 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
253-5927

"A COCKEYED MASTERPIECE!" —Joseph Morgenstern, Newsweek

MASH

An Ingo Preminger Production
Color by DeLuxe® Panavision® R

Thursday, Oct. 14
Eng. East Aud.
7, 9, 11 PM
Admission $1.50

Newslines . . .

Rhetoric exemption test offered once again

Anyone needing a rhetoric writing course 190A who has not yet taken the Writing Program placement test should take the test Saturday, Oct. 16. It will be given both at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

If you cannot attend, call Marcia Curtis at 545-3667.

WMUA to air Parents For Peace discussion

WMUA (91.1 FM) will air a live discussion with members of Parents for Peace at 6 tonight. The group is seeking to gain votes on the "jobs for peace" referendum on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The referendum will ask voters to "choose between increased military spending or cuts in social jobs or social programs," according to the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the Boston-based Jobs for Peace organization.

The feature will be a special presentation of the "Focus" series.

Deadline approaching for spring internships

Anyone interested in participating in internships next semester must have applications in by Oct. 22. Students who have not done so yet should contact their advisors or the Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727.

Voter registration largest in history

By GUS MARTIN
Collegian Staff

Last October 4 and 5 saw students at the University of Massachusetts and universities throughout the state participated in the largest voter registration drive in the history of Massachusetts state schools.

Sponsored by the Office of Third World Affairs in conjunction with the Massachusetts' Association of State Students Organization, about 6,000 students across the state filled out registration forms.

State student coordinator, Mike Ferrigne, who worked closely with former Director of Third World Affairs Tony Crayton on the planning of the project, said he was very happy with the number of students who turned out.

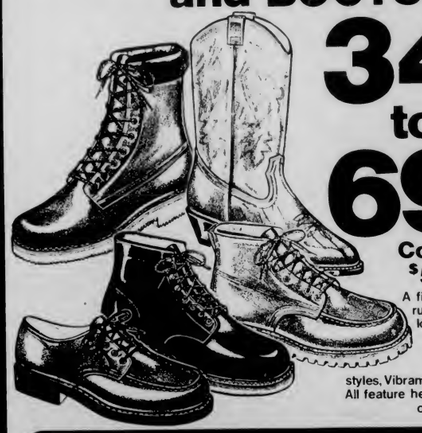
"The 6,000 statewide students who turned out represented the largest voter registration drive in the history of Massachusetts. Out of the 28 state institutions of higher learning, 25 of them had drives," Ferrigne said.

"What this demonstrates is that student activism is on the rise again. It appears that we're coming out of a stage of student apathy, and politicians will only be able to ignore this at their peril," said Ferrigno.

Over 1,800 students here at UMass registered to vote on Oct. 4 and 5 — the largest registration turn-out of any single institution.

This drive was preceded by another sponsored by Sheila Sullivan and the Public Policy team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) where over 1,000 students registered to vote.

Special Purchase!
From one of America's most respected names in men's rugged footwear since 1879.
Men's Famous Name LEATHER WORK SHOES and BOOTS



34.99 to 69.99

Compare at $58 to $116

A first quality assortment of rugged leathers priced so low we can't mention the famous manufacturer's name. Group includes many fully insulated styles, Vibram and oil-resistant soles. All feature heavy-duty Goodyear welt construction. Men's sizes.

Tagway Shoes
Famous brand footwear for Less
Hampshire Mall
Holyoke Mall at Ingleside

Black Affairs

Libel suit puts Pryor under fire again

OAKLAND (AP) — A lawyer has filed a libel suit against comedian Richard Pryor, claiming his feelings and reputation were hurt by a line Pryor delivered before an audience and repeated in a film.

Michael R. Ashburne of Oakland said in his Alameda County Superior Court suit that he was damaged when Pryor quipped before 1,000 people in Los Angeles: "I used to have a black lawyer ... he took me for hook, line and sinker."

The event was taped and made into the film "Richard Pryor, Alive on Sunset Strip."

"The film is clearly libelous on its face," Ashburne's suit claims, and many of the people who saw the film "understood" Pryor was talking about him.

The suit also names Indigo Inc., Raystar Films and Columbia Pictures, the companies involved in the staging of the event and distribution of the film.

Ashburne, who said he had represented Pryor for five years, is seeking unspecified damages from those named in his suit.

The Los Angeles law firm representing Pryor declined comment.

Reagan rolls dice for profits

By SATYA GABRIEL
Special to Black Affairs

Like a happy-go-lucky ex-actor playing the tables in Atlantic City, Ronald Reagan keeps on smiling and hoping the magic will work. In the meanwhile, just in case magic isn't enough, the Reagan administration has worked hard to load the dice. The jackpot they're searching for is a new era of economic expansion.

The Reagan recipe for economic growth is simple. It is based on making doing business in America profitable again. Any school boy knows that a businessman worth his salt won't invest in anything that doesn't promise to turn his small pile of money into a bigger pile (of course how much bigger is a relative question).

The Reagan administration has attacked the problem from at least four directions. Firstly, the Reagan government has gone after the most improtant input to the production process, labor. Get down wages! is always a rallying cry of business. Reagan has helped to moderate wage demands by increasing unemployment and taking an aggressive stand against unions.

Secondly, the Reagan team has moved to take the shackles from around businesses neck, so to speak. That is, it has virtually stopped regulating business activity in a number of areas. This allows for more profits to be made.

Thirdly, Reagan has moved to eliminate corporate taxes and to lower the income taxes of the rich (while effectively raising the total tax burden of middle and low income folks).

And fourthly, the current administration has begun a military build-up designed to restore Pax Americana, i.e. to make the U.S.A. powerful enough to terrorize the rest of the world, keep international markets "free" for U.S. business, and stop Europe's drift to more independence (including its renegade deals with the Soviets).

Will this program result in higher profits? I would think so. Wall Street (which is much more important to gamblers than Atlantic City and Las Vegas combined) thinks so. Will it also lead to a new economic expansion, more jobs, and a chicken in every pot? Who knows. It all depends on whether the increased profits go to productive investments or to mergers, luxury automobiles (they're standing in line for new Mercedes), and villas in Cape Town. It also depends on where the productive investments take place (if they take place). It makes a difference whether the new profits are put into new plants in Muncie or new plants in Johannesburg.

But then its all one big crap game, isn't it? Besides I'm not sure all the millions out of work really care if Reagan's plan will ultimately work. By then a lot of foreclosures and bankruptcies will have been processed. By then a lot of ulcers, heart attacks, and suicides will have been registered.

As Robert Kennedy once said, "If you say republicans and recession in one breath you're being redundant."

Commentary

AP Laserphoto

— Waiting — A young Haitian refugee leans against a fence at a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service detention camp at Krome Eve., near Miami in July 1982. Now all but two of the Haitian refugees have left Krome. Last summer advocate attorneys fought the federal government successfully to gain a court order freeing 1,910 Haitians in 14 federal detention facilities — refugees now known to federal bureaucrats as "Spellman Haitians" for the federal judge who ordered their release.

record town
FRI., OCT. 15, 3:30 PM to 9 PM (Hadley only) - A SPECIAL OFFER

maxell
UD XL II
90 Minute Blank Cassettes
Only $2.88 EACH, LIMIT 6

Cash Only
No checks or charges

See our other ad for more details on our Spectacular One Day Sale

HAMPSHIRE MALL
HADLEY
record town

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH

NEW WAVE & DESIGN HAIRCUTS

$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appoin'ment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
expires 10/30/82 C

The rusty nail Inn presents
Saturday, October 16
Billy Idol and the Atlantics
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

Polish journalist is skeptical of Solidarity

By JILL OKUN
Collegian Staff

Andrzej K. Wroblewski, a former staff member of the Warsaw weekly newspaper Polityka, said in a lecture given Tuesday night he was skeptical of Solidarity from the time it came into power and was quick to criticize.

"I can fall only once in life. I couldn't repeat the act of blind, naive acceptance as I did with the socialist government (under Solidarity). I always tried to keep a distance in my articles."

"To be or not to be: The Dilemma of a Journalist in Contemporary Poland" was the issue discussed Tuesday night by Wroblewski to an audience of about 50 people at Herter Hall.

When martial law seized control of Poland on January 13, 1982, the Polityka was temporarily disbanded. It resumed publication at the end of February, but many journalists chose to part from the paper due to the political transformation. Wroblewski was one of these journalists.

Wroblewski said he felt that human existence was at stake. "You either had to be in or to be out. The choice was one of everything or nothing. One either supported the government or was completely against it," he said.

"When the Socialist government took control of Poland I had no illusions that our system was better than that of western society, but I felt it was more just," said Wroblewski. "Later I realized that it was not more just, but I felt obligated to support it through my articles. I felt that something could be done either for the better or for the worse through journalism. If they read my articles, I knew I could ease their minds."

In the mid-1970's, Wroblewski was appointed head of the home section of the Polityka. His dilemma, he said, was how to present information about the government to the public. A satisfactory answer was never found.

"I felt the best way would be to reveal the roots of the system by learning how it works. I first had to discover the individual motivations of the people," he said.

In July of 1980 the strikes in Poland began, accompanied by Solidarity, which brought a wave of optimism and a general mode of enthusiasm to the country.

Solidarity soon became a political organization. There was not enough room in Poland for both the existing government and Solidarity and both sides were fed up with one another, he said.

"Hypothetically, if Solidarity could be more patient, Poland could be a country that has both food and drink and life wouldn't be so terribly hard as it is now," Wroblewski said.

Wroblewski said he feels no government could ever fill both the internal and external needs of Poland.

When confronted with the prospect of leaving the Polityka, Wroblewski said, "I don't think the choice was clear-cut. The temptation to stay and communicate with the readers is worthwhile — some things could be saved. Being a journalist can work toward making things better."

"It is a complicated situation that Poland must go through, and I don't want to take part in it. I feel there is no chance for any radical improvement," he said.

Wroblewski questioned how much his presence on the newspaper would convey about his political views compared with his absence.

"I feel that a voice lacking on the Polish political stage can speak very loudly," he said.

CHIROPRACTIC
FOR BETTER HEALTH

Dr. Virginia Harper DC
Dr. Howard Ewert DC
CHIROPRACTORS

Treatment for Stiff Neck

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it.

Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck. None are moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

In the interest of better health from the office of:
Amherst Chiropractic Center
190 University Drive at Route 9 256-6700

SCERA to protest Curry Hicks fee: says it wants to avoid a precedent

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Correspondent

Now that University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp has made it clear the $20 fee to fund the renovation of the Curry Hicks Cage is imminent, members of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) are predicting a debate between students and the administration over who should pick up the tab for the project.

"Twenty dollars might not seem like a lot of money but with all the other additions that are made yearly, it makes a difference," said Mitch Gaslin, chair of the SCERA Rents and Fees Committee.

On the Student Government Association's (SGA) October 4 ballot, a referendum question appeared dealing with the issue. Seventy percent of the students polled voted against the $20 fee increase. Knapp ignored the vote and said, "What else did you expect."

Knapp said he feels there is no other way to subsidize the project. "I think I would have to raise the further question: does anybody want the cage renovated. If you don't want it renovated, if you don't want a basketball team to be proud of, then we can

Continued on page 14

SALADS SUBMARINES SYRIANS
the sub
11 AM TO 2 AM / 7 DAYS
33 E PLEASANT ST AMHERST 549-5160

Friends and neighbors lend us your ears (and your stomach)!

The SUB would like to offer you a coupon special. Buy any two subs and get a third* absolutely FREE! This coupon is good from now thru Nov. 9, 1982, on any Sunday or Tuesday between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.
We hope to see you soon and don't forget to bring a friend.

FREE 1 FREE sub with a purchase of any two whole subs when purchased along with this coupon.
coupon good til November 9, 1982 any Sun. or Tues. 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. FREE

*You will of equal or less value than most expensive sub purchased

Yoey D's

Thurs.
Ladies nite.
60¢ Drinks
9 to 11:30
No Cover

You are cordially invited to an

SCERA
Thurs., Oct. 14 4-7 p.m.
Rm. 420 Student Union

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Letters

People should take a greater role in nuclear energy future.

To the Editor:

The facts behind Question #3, the Nuclear Referendum, are quite clear and straight forward. The bill, if passed in November, would give the voters of Massachusetts the right to approve or veto any proposed nuclear power plant or low-level radioactive waste facility. Such proposals would first have to have the approval of the state legislature before being brought before the people.

Within the last several weeks, a group calling itself the Committee for Responsible Policy on Low-Level Nuclear Waste has arisen to oppose Question #3 on the grounds that medical costs will rise, scientific research will be hampered, and that it sets up a "cumbersome, unworkable process". However, this represents a deliberate attempt to confuse and deceive. Question #3 clearly exempts all wastes generated through bio-research or medical applications. Plus, if the process is so "unworkable" then why have many eminent legislators, like Sen. Kennedy, former Gov. Michael Dukakis, Reps. Nagle and Collins, and State Sen. Olver, endorsed the measure?

A closer examination of the Committee for Responsible Policy reveals some interesting facts. The chairman of the group is also the chairman of the New England Nuclear Corp. Much of the funding for the group has come from New England Nuclear, Yankee Atomic Electric Co., and Boston Edison — three of the four largest radwaste producers in Massachusetts. The fact is that this group that espouses the need for a "responsible policy" is a front organization for the nuclear industry. I hope that the voters will keep that piece of important information in mind when they view the inevitable television ads between now and Election Day. Weigh the motivations. An industry that is struggling for survival will think nothing of deceiving and confusing the voters in an effort to prevent the people from taking a greater role in the determination of their energy future.

Cliff McCarthy
Amherst

Amherst resident expresses dismay over her sons beating

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to the Editor because I have reached the point where silence is becoming deafening to me. The silence of allowing some of the people within this University make life very difficult for high school kids in this town. The attitudes and philosophies you bring with you from your secluded, bigoted, intolerant suburban towns is more than I can bear.

There are many of us, who have lived for some time in Amherst, who have tried to raise our young people to be open minded, caring people. We have done them a severe injustice!! We have taught them they are unique; they are individuals; that there is no one quite like them; that they can be themselves. Well, I have a son who believes that...He feels everyone is entitled to be different, to be his/her own person; to have thoughts of one's own; to dress as one pleases and to tolerate other people's choices. He has been taught that all of this goes with being an individual. And what did it get him — a beating outside of Hunan Gardens last Saturday night.

What makes some of you think that you have the right, (and I do believe you feel so righteous that you are not even aware that beating him up was wrong) to go after someone because he doesn't conform to what you believe. Your dehumanizing attitudes are reminiscent of the many dictatorships typified by Adolf Hitler who destroyed either mentally, physically or both anyone who didn't conform with his standards. Your drunkenness is no excuse for your behavior. The interesting part is that I have raised a son who respects other human beings enough and has enough faith in his fellow "man" that even through bumps and bruises he feels you will some day realize what you did to him was wrong.

Name and address witheld by request

Bottle bill expensive solution to litter problem

To the Editor:

The well-meaning people who are for the so-called Bottle Bill would have you believe it's going to clean up the state and do even more.

Now, despite the fact that they're totally wrong — because bottles and cans make up only 12 per cent of the litter problem and a total anti-litter program is the solution — there's a lot of danger here. There's the danger of higher taxes in towns with recycling projects. Towns with such programs bring in significant revenues from recycled bottles and cans. Without those revenues for dump maintenance and waste collection, the money to run the dump has to come from somewhere else. You guessed it: it will raise your taxes.

You'll also pay dangerous price increases when you go to buy soda or beer at the store — just as customers in Connecticut, Michigan and every other state where there's been such a law have paid. Beverages will cost at least $1.00 more a case, according to Secretary of Environmental Affairs Bewick, plus the $1.20 forced deposit. That's $160 million a year, based on 1981 sales.

During this time of dangerously high levels of unemployment and inflation, a law that will make the situation worse is the last thing we need. The danger to our rapidly dwindling water supply is perhaps the greatest danger of all. Hundreds of millions of gallons of drinking water will now be required to wash returned bottles and cans.

Vote "NO" on Referendum Question 4 on November 2.

John H. Webster
Chairman, Voter Education Committee, Inc.

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Ray just as guilty as Ted

"Ted Kennedy is faking it in Massachusetts" reads the bumper sticker plastered on the wall above where I am writing this. It has a thumb pointed downward and a prominent union logo on it. Presumably it's author, Ray Shamie, does not want to appear anti-labor.

I am considerably farther to the left than Kennedy on most issues, and I am not a particular fan of his by any means. However I will probably vote for him, based on the character of the race his opponent is running.

Brooke States

Ray "sham" Shamie is not running for political position based on what he can do for the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He is running on what Ted Kennedy cannot do. The problem is not so much his politics, but the way he puts them forward. His campaign is busy attacking his opponents' bad points rather than defending and expounding his own. In short he is running an anti-campaign.

An example of this is the full page ad that appeared in the Boston Globe on Tuesday. Practically the entire page is devoted to the flip and flop side of Kennedy's positions, using various specifics. Down at the bottom in samll print we find the general points that Shamie supports. Not suprisingly the nuclear freeze is not among them; but then he is a politician.

He is in good historical company in running this type of campaign. Richard Nixon spent much of his career maligning and slinging mud at his opponents. Spiro Agnew later elevated this to a fine art. George Wallace, lacking specific programs, ran around the country demolishing straw men like: briefcase toting politicians, limousine liberals, pointy headed intellectuals, etc. The Democrats have also been prone to this tactic. Lyndon Johnson red-baited the peace movement much as Reagan has the freeze movement. While this is emotionally satisfying, gets some votes and more press, it does little to solve the problems or gain respect for public officials.

It is time to hear less about the problems of Tedanomics, and more about what Shamienomics can do for the state. Ray Shamie should spend less time making political capital out of his opponents perceived faults, and more time putting his own stuff on the table and in the public eye.

This state is in trouble and the voters and general public deserve more than catchword rhetoric and demagoguery. As we go to the polls in a few weeks, it is not a question only of which political viewpoint that one agrees with. It is also a question of the character of the person and how they put their political program into effect. At the bottom of Ray Shamie's ad he says that "Leadership and accomplishment begin with principle, not publicity. Perhaps he should apply these criteria to himself.

Brooke States is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Amy Jenness, Associate Women's Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

LATCH HOOK · CROCHETING · MACRAME · KNITTING
NATURALS · FELT · VOGART PAINTS · RINGS
DRIED FLOWERS · BEADS · SILK FLOWERS · RAFFIA
We make it · We stock it · We teach it!
Handicrafters Haven
Largest craft supply store in the 5-college area.
288 Pleasant Street
Northampton, MA
586-5316
* Come in and inquire * about our classes

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

Hypercurricula...

THIRD WORLD WOMEN IN LIBERATION STRUGGLES-Bottle Babies — A documentary about the marketing of infant formula by the Nestle Corp. in Kenya and other Third World countries. Amrita Bason, political science professor at Amherst College speaking. Noon — 1 p.m. Campus Center 801.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL MEETING — All sorority members, especially pledges, are encouraged to attend these informative, weekly meetings. Find out more about the statewide "Fraternity and Sorority Service Day" to benefit the Kennedy-Shriver Institute for the Mentally Retarded. 6:30 p.m., Delta Zeta, 11 Phillips Street, Amherst.

CC/SU BOARD OF GOVERNORS MEETING - Plan to discuss the development of a student-run book store. The general public is always urged to attend and provide input/

PRE-MED CLUB MEETING — Pre-Med Club Meeting, 7:00 p.m. The Duke's Room, Student Union.

UMASS SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB — The club is holding a first jump course. The cost is $85.00 inclusive. Bring it to the class. 7:00 p.m. Campus Center 903.

UMASS HANG GLIDING CLUB — The club still has openings for this weekend's group lesson at Claremont, N.H. The cost of $65 includes instruction inside and outside, and camping facilities. Contact Ben Jessup at 546-4746 for further details.

SAI MEETING — The Student Alliance for Israel is an action-oriented group doing the important work of bringing Israel's case to the campus. Join us for Thursday's meeting. 6:30 p.m. Hillel Office, Student Union 302.

Associate Women's Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Malave's little black shift with a flip of teal in wool jersey $110.

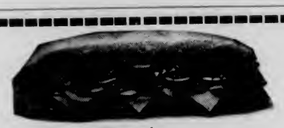
Chona
CHONA CONTEMPORARY FASHION · THORNES MARKET · NORTHAMPTON

NATURAL FIBER CLOTHING
NEXT TO YOU IT'S THE BEST

Fisherman Knit Turtleneck Pullover
This great sweater may be worn next to your skin or as a layer under a jacket. Ladder-stitch construction of 2 ply medium weight cotton yarn.
Sizes: S, M, L, XL.
Colors: natural • navy • kelly green • red.
Machine Washable and dryable.
Preshrunk.
100% Cotton

Leg Warmers
These leg warmers are ribbed at the ankle, have elastic the at thigh. May be worn full-length or "crushed" over the calf.
One Size fits all.

A WORKER'S COOPERATIVE good things collective inc
52 Main St., Northampton • 586-5403



99¢ SALE
With this coupon you'll receive any foot-long sandwich for 99¢ when you purchase another of comparable value at the usual listed price. (Offer good through 10/31/82.)
Redeem At
SUBWAY
America's Famous Foot Long Sandwich
Hampshire Mall Hadley · 90 King St. Northampton · 214 Exchange St. Chicopee

Northampton Days are every Thursday in the Collegian

Arts

Gabriel's album secure

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Correspondent

SECURITY (Geffen)
Peter Gabriel

"The rhythm is around me
The rhythm has control
The rhythm is inside me
The rhythm has my soul"
Peter Gabriel

The new Peter Gabriel album is really very good. While the lyrics aren't as blatently political as those in his last album, they are directed towards a more subtle form of politics: the ritual of the human search for security. The album deals with two different forms of ritual; ancient (or tribal more accurately) and modern ritual, which involves the participants and their victims. While Gabriel never actually comes out and says which type of ritual he prefers, all one has to do is to listen to know. Listen to the joyous rhythms of "Kiss of Life" and compare it to the slow requium of "The Family and the Fishing Net," a song about the modern ritual of marriage. While I question his theory that one ritual is better than another, I have to admit that he fills the songs of ancient ritual with a life all its own. A liveliness that would make the most dogmatic Grateful Dead dancer go wild, particularly in "The Rhythm of the Heat."

With the advent of techno-pop and Loverboy it becomes more and more rare that we come up with an album that gives us hummable tunes that speak of hope for those in insane asylums. Of course speaking of the insane invites comparison with Pink Floyd. Gabriel's two songs, "Wallflower" and "Shock the Monkey" surpass four albums worth of Roger Waters' dissertations on those who chose to deal with inner reality. Gabriel sums it up very concisely; no howling at the moon, no grabbing for the cold steel rail. People who are in asylums are urged to persevere in the face of torture as we are given insight into the torture itself.

How do these rituals fit in with the idea of security? Gabriel condemns today's rituals fo security: marriage, church, clinging to love to stave off isolation. The security they offer is of a bleak sort; a longing for happiness and a need to identify with and fit into society. But I don't know. I just don't see how identifying with love of the ancient rituals of music, rhythm and women offer us more than the modern rituals. It all seems equally bleak to me; they both provide a happiness that is self-induced. Why didn't Gabriel go for it and try and show the inherent joy of today's rituals as Bach did in his 'Wedding Cantata.' Why not make the best of all possible worlds?

But really, this is a great album (nobody asked me to choose the thematic content). Tony Levin's bass playing shines per usual, as does the entire percussion section. The album has that Genesis keyboard sound; and while there are no solos, the guitars also sound excellent.

I strongly recommend this album, particularly the song "I Have the Touch." For those people who saw last semester's King Crimson concert but were disappointed by Beat, this album is everything that Beat should have been. It's really worth hearing.

Peter Gabriel will be playing in Boston on November 12.

The deadline for submissions for the Arts Council's logo contest has been extended to Tuesday, October 19. Entries should be brought to the Arts Council daily at 125 Herter Hall.

Hooker to perform at S·U·B

By PHILLIP PLANTE
Collegian Staff

It would be difficult to underestimate John Lee Hooker's contributions to popular music. The Doors, Elvin Bishop, Van Morrison, Jimi Hendrix, Canned Heat, and the Rolling Stones have copied or borrowed from Hooker's swinging rolling style of blues, a style which provided many early models for rock and roll. The Rolling Stones were even John Lee's opening act nineteen years ago in Europe.

Born on August 12, 1917 in Mississippi, Hooker learned to play guitar at an early age from his stepfather. His parent's preference for gospel over blues (blues was considered "devil's music" by some) eventually led him to run away from home to Memphis. Hooker's disagreements with his parents are sung out in Hooker's first hit "Boogie Chillun."

"I heard Papa tell Mama, Let that boy boogie-woogie. It's in'm and it's got to come out."

Since recording this first hit in Detroit, Hooker has recorded over 100 LPs to join the ranks of such legendary bluesmen as Howling Wolf, Lightning Hopkins and Muddy Waters. At 65, Hooker still tours and like some of his aging contemporaries such as J.B. Hutto and Muddy Waters, he represents a vanishing breed of bluesmen. "I've sat down and thought about it," says Hooker, "There ain't many of us left . . . Maybe five or six. We ain't going to be around always. When we're gone, they'll still be people playing the blues, but not the way we play it."

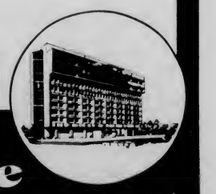
Hooker's performance in the Student Union Ballroom Saturday night will be an opportunity to experience one of the few original American music forms — the Blues — and witness one of it's most original artists.

Photo by Chris Harden

Master bluesman John Lee Hooker will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Student Union Ballroom.

Every 5 Seconds America Pops the Big Canadian!
Get ready to try the big, clean taste of O'Keefe. O'Keefe's gonna become America's favorite Canadian brew.
O'Keefe
Imported by Century Importers, Baltimore, Maryland

"2 for 1" Happy Hour
3-6 MON.-FRI.
Luncheon: Monday-Friday/11:30 am-2 pm
Dinner: Tuesday-Thursday/5 pm-8 pm
Friday & Saturday/5 pm-9 pm
For Reservations, Please Call 549-6000, ext. 639
Lounge Hours:
Monday-Friday/11:30 am-1 am
Saturday & Sunday/5 pm-1 am



TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor · Campus Center · UMass

VALLEY BICYCLES

BICYCLE SALE!

We have just purchased a limited selection of non-current FUJI models.

Now is your chance to own a new FUJI at a Bargain Price!

89 Main St.
Amherst
256-0880
Behind the Cheese Shop & Valley Farms Dairy Store

FUJI Time		$189.00
FUJI Sports 12 SX	was $245.00	Now $189.00
FUJI Grand Tourer	was $265.00	Now $219.00
FUJI Royale	was $345.00	Now $319.00
PLUS OUR 1982 FUJI STAR LINE-UP
Montereys	29 lbs.	$215.00
Supremes	26 lbs.	$259.00
Del Reys	25.5 lbs.	$289.00

All above include our Fall Special Discount of 20% off
all accessories purchased with your new bike

FOTOMAT camera stores

Semi-Annual Clearance Sale!

Quarrymaster Macro Zoom
80-200mm f-5.5
- Ideal for candid and portrait photography
- Macro focusing

Save $30.00
Sale $89.99

Quarrymaster 2x Tele-Converter
- Your standard lens becomes a telephoto!
- Four element, multi-coated

Save $10.00
Sale $29.99

Up to 30% off other selected wide angle, telephoto, zoom lenses and tele-converters.
Available for most popular SLR cameras

- Special savings on selected 35mm SLR's, Viewfinders and Instant Cameras
- 25% off selected electronic flash
- Save 20-25% on Coast Camera "Shock" bags
Available in Tan, Blue and Green
- Coast 35XC Enlarger
Save $30.00 Sale $59.95
- 30% off selected dark room chemicals, paper and accessories

Sale expires 10/31/82

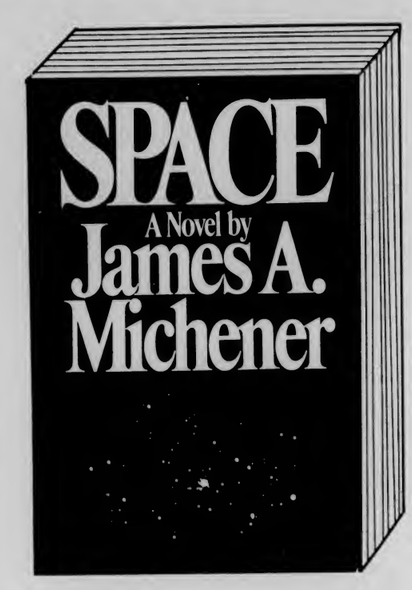
FOTOMAT camera stores
Quality Film Developing
Large Custom prints, reprints, enlargements, slides, Custom Preview Slides, duplicate slides and movies.

Downtown Amherst
25 N. Pleasant St. 9-7 M-F 9-5:30 Sat
256-8109

Hampshire Mall
Hadley 10-9:30 Mon-Sat
586-8560

We accept MasterCard VISA and American Express

NOW AVAILABLE



Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

La Cuchina

Serving a Variety of Pasta Dishes, Pizza, and Italian Specialties.

Featuring the PASTA BAR:
the Pasta of Your Choice Topped with Our Delightful Sauces

Monday-Friday 11 am-2 pm
Monday-Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

THE VINEYARD

A Large and Surprising Selection of Wine & Beer, in Bottles or on Tap

Monday-Friday 11 am-11 pm
Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENT

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

adventure travel
549-1256

Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. OCT. 14
FREE Local Band Night
PEAK

FRI. OCT. 15
HAPPY HOUR
WITH Steve Spellman 3-6 PM
ROCK WITH
"THE NEIGHBORHOODS"
AND
"KASPAR HAUSER" $2.00 COVER

SAT. OCT. 16
"MITCH CHAKOUR"
WITH URBAN RENEWAL
sponsored by U.P.C. $2.00

Committee for the collegiate Education of Black and Other Minority Students
TUTORS NEEDED

Tutors needed for the following areas:

Math	Spanish	Zoology
Chemistry	Bio-chemistry	Latin
Physics	Italian	Coins

Who: The tutoring will be provided for undergraduates in the CCEBMS Program on a one-to-one basis. The number of hours per week will vary from 1-3 per student.
When: The tutoring will take place during the day or evening depending on the schedule of the tutor and tutees.
Qualifications: Graduate student or seniors; mastery of subject area, previous tutoring and/or teaching experience desired.
Applications are available in Room 217, New Africa House.
Deadline: October 22, 1982.

RECORD ACCESSORIES

- Ionizer Cleaner
- Stobe Disc
- Wisk-A-Disk Cleaner
- Phono Jacks
- FM Antenna Wire
- Phono Plugs
- Speaker Wire
- Pillow Speaker
- Record Cleaning Kit
- Tape Head Cleaner
- Microphones
- Recorder Service Kit
- Record Brush w/Lift
- Cleaning Cloth
- Tape Splicer
- Stylus Pressure Gauge
- Tape Maintenance Kit
- Ear Phone

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

record town

FRI., OCT. 15, 10 AM to 9 PM - we're having a

ONE DAY SALE

- HADLEY ONLY -

our entire inventory of 5.98, 8.98, & 9.98 series LP's & cassettes will be marked down for terrific savings!

JUST LOOK AT THESE VALUES

SERIES PRICE	SALE PRICE
5.98	$3.99
8.98	$5.99
9.98	$6.99

AND - from 10 am to 3:30 pm, we've got a special surprise for you - ONLY MEMOREX gives you the V-100 VHS Storage Case with every VHS CASSETTE

MEMOREX T-120 PREMIUM VHS SALE
Only $9.99 ea. Limit 6
Get L-750 Beta cassettes at this same low price!

(* see our other ad for our 3:30 PM to 9 PM special!)
Choose from hits like these! We've got Pop, Rock, Jazz, & Country as well as a superb Classical selection, all at music lover's prices! Don't miss it!
*CASH ONLY, NO CHECKS OR CARGES

COMBAT ROCK by The Clash — Clash Combat Rock

THE MOTELS All Four One — Motels All Four One

ABC The Lexicon Of Love — ABC Lexicon of Love

KIM CARNES VOYEUR — Kim Carnes Voyeur

LINDA RONSTADT Get Closer — Linda Ronstadt Get Closer

THE STEVE MILLER BAND Abracadabra — Steve Miller Abracadabra

RUSH SIGNALS — Rush Signals

DIRE STRAITS Love Over Gold — Dire Straits Love Over Gold

PETER GABRIEL SECURITY Includes Shock The Monkey / I Have The Touch / Lay Your Hands On Me / Wallflower — Peter Gabriel Security

record town
HAMPSHIRE MALL, HADLEY

RUN FOR IT!

CONVERSE

$16 Hi Cut Boys sizes 2½ - 6

$19 Hi and Lo Cut Men's Sizes 6½ - 12

$15 Lo Cut Boys sizes 2½ - 6

$19 Women's sizes 5 - 10 Boys sizes 2½ - 6 Men's sizes 6½ - 12

At Olympian™ we have what it takes to win.
Top quality.
Brandname styles.
Competitive spirit.
On the court or around the campus, Olympian lets you meet the competition, comfortably.

Receive a colorful superstar athletic poster with every purchase. Offer good while quantities last, so come in now!

Hi and Lo Cut PONY® Canvas $18
Men's sizes 6½ - 12
Boys Sizes 2½ - 6

Hi and Lo PONY® Leathers $28
Men's sizes 6½ - 12
Boys sizes 2½ - 6

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Risotto Italiano
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

BASICS DINNER
Nutty Noodles
Fried Chicken
Cranberry Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese on Sprouted Wheat
Soybean, Corn, Tomato Casserole

DINNER
Fried Chicken
Cranberry Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

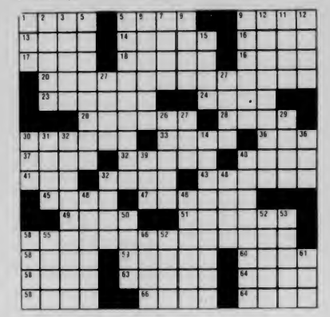
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Order at Archie's
5 Spring happening
9 "Streetcar" hero
13 Grease of a sort
14 Eloper with Paris
16 Like a bird
17 Slow down on the downhill, in skiing
18 Abadan resident
19 Musical tone
20 Casino feature
23 Kappa's follower
24 Seaside flier
25 Army headgear
28 Engrave
30 Money, in Madrid
33 Satirists
35 Patriotic composer
37 Abdul the Bulbul's title
38 Hackneyed
40 Withered
41 Kind of stripe
42 Lima
43 Native soda ash
45 Far- Prefix
47 Scanty
49 Hops for brewing
51 Ranch rope
54 Lucky find
58 Otherwise
59 Drivel
60 Certain curtain material
62 Exploit
63 Automatic mechanism
64 Blue or green color
65 Not so hot
66 The end
67 Moola

DOWN
1 Relief in sculpture
2 Glorify
3 Name for a senorita
4 Word with the Alamo
5 Inferior
6 Greek pillars
7 Wings
8 Proceed on (one's way)
9 Shakespeare opus
10 Bus along Piccadilly
11 Word with meter
12 Negative, UN style
15 His —
21 Resting
22 Iowa college town
26 String
27 Pose
29 Katt's TV role
30 Face, slangily
31 Pass by
32 Clio, Erato, et al
34 Like a buckaroo's hat
36 Desire
39 Aries
40 Doing one's best
42 Liberty or dinner
44 Prefix for space
46 City on the Rio Grande
48 Breakfast nook
50 Mack and Knight
52 Eagle's nest
53 Brownie, in Icelandic myth
54 Gmen
55 Bread spread
56 Three-digit code
57 Kind of letter
61 Tennis need



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	A	M	P	■	D	A	T	E	R	■	S	P	E	I
P	R	O	A	■	A	M	O	L	E	■	D	O	L	S
E	A	R	L	Y	B	I	R	D	S	■	O	N	U	S
O	D	E	■	B	E	■	P	I	N	T	L	E	■	■
■	■	■	C	A	L	■	S	O	R	E	■	■	■	■
G	A	L	O	R	E	■	G	E	N	E	R	A	L	S
A	D	A	R	N	■	R	E	D	■	S	L	A	T	■
M	I	S	T	■	A	R	A	B	■	S	A	T	A	■
M	O	T	H	■	S	I	N	E	■	P	A	T	E	R
A	S	I	S	■	S	E	D	■	P	E	T	E	R	S
■	■	■	N	E	■	R	■	W	E	R	E	■	■	■
D	E	F	O	R	M	■	E	R	R	S	■	P	E	A
A	L	A	I	N	■	B	E	F	O	R	E	H	A	N	D
L	A	I	C	■	L	O	T	T	O	■	A	I	D	A
I	N	R	E	■	S	S	E	N	■	P	R	O	M	■

WEATHER

Rain ending this morning. Becoming partly sunny this afternoon. High's in the 60's.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Concepto Latino
9-noon	AM Radio with Steve Diamond
noon	Newswatch
12:15-3pm	Folk and Blues with Ed Berk
3-5:30pm	Funk with D.R.
5:30-6pm	Newswatch
6-7pm	Focus — Ken Mosakowski
7-10pm	Women's Media Project
10-2am	Pan Afrique with Kari Njiiri
2-6am	More Music

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

10:30 - 12:00	G. Gordon Liddy Talks at UMass
12:00 - 12:30	Global Groove: Video Art by Nam June Paik
12:30 - 1:00	Suite 212: More Video Art
1:00 - 2:00	Rock Video

★SCERA

Continued from page 6

chuck the whole proposal," Knapp said.

"The main problems with the cage according to the renovation proposal are as follows: it currently has a dirt floor which needs to be replaced by concrete with a synthetic surface; the locker rooms need to be modernized; more and new seating is needed; fire and safety modifications need to be updated. Add all these together and costs run into the millions of dollars.

The Rents and Fees committee is currently organizing a campaign to inform students about the cage renovation proposal.

The Cage has been the object of continued criticism. In a statement made by George Washington University's Basketball play-by-play announcer during a live broadcast, the Cage was said to be the worst Division I basketball facility he had ever seen.

The students have made it clear in past surveys they would like to see the Cage renovated too, but not at such a high cost. In a 1979 survey done by the Student Affairs Research and Education Office (SAREO), 66 percent of the students polled favored a renovation. In this particular survey, students even favored a $5 to $10 fee to pay for it if necessary.

SCERA members said they feel athletics should not be so high on the administration's list of priorities. "$59 a year is already included in the students tuition for the athletic program. That is enough," Gaslin said.

★SGA

Continued from page 1

success at reaching these overall goals.

"This system gives the Budget Committee of the SGA a means by which they can measure the progress of the organization so that they can determine the budget for the following year," Davies said.

Senators who have been working on this system feel it is a positive system for managing organizations' activities. The consensus expressed at last night's meeting was that the goals of all organizations should be condensed into a common direction.

"This system normalizes and legitamizes all different areas so they're working towards the same goals," said Chris Sullivan, Student Senator of Central.

"Implementation of the process has been given a lot of careful consideration," said Student Senator Mimi Turchinetz.

"People should not get the impression that we just threw this together. It took a long time to put together. But it is a good system that we feel clearly represents the goals of all the organizations," said Turchinetz.

innovations by joyce®

in·no·va·tions (in'ə vā'shənz) n. (L..L. innovatio) 1. newly introduced events; new methods, customs, devices, etc. 2. a beautiful selection of Fall fashions by Joyce 3. a specially priced group of flats, wedges and heels in women's sizes

Special purchase price

12.99 to 24.99

Compare at 22.95 to 37.95

Tagway Shoes

Famous brand footwear for Less

Hampshire Mall

Holyoke Mall at Ingleside

STEREO CLEARANCE HOUSE HAS LOWEST PRICES

$24.95 FOR PAIR

LIST $99.95

Tanna 6 x 9 3-way speaker pair. 40oz Magnets 120 watts max. per speaker. Metal grilles, wire & hardware included All for only $24.95 plus $2.75 shipping Money back guarantee

Our Free Catalog has many more bargains on all major brands of home and car stereo. Stereo Clearance House Dept. 554 Bedford Street Johnstown PA 15902 Phone quotes (814) 539-3057

John Lee Hooker and the Coast To Coast Blues Band IN CONCERT

Saturday Oct. 16th
SUB/UMass 8 pm.
Gen. ADM...$3
404 SUB UMass
Tix Unlimited--UMass
Tickets on Sale at:
For the Record--Amherst
Main St. Records-N'ton
Commuter Office--
For More Info...545-2145
SPONSORED BY THE COMMUTER COLLECTIVE & the GOVERNORS PROGRAM COUNCIL

Dastardly Dans

THURSDAY
All the Draft Beer You Can Drink
$3. Cover 9 - Close
35 E. Pleasant St.. Amherst, MA 253-9286

家酒園南湖

Hunan Garden Restaurant

MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE

"The Best Chinese Food"

Luncheon Specials
Take-Out Service

Sunday Brunch
$5.25 per person
All You Can Eat
11:30-3:00

Dinner Specials
Full Cocktail Menu

Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.

10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 256-0252

YOUR BSN IS WORTH AN OFFICER'S COMMISSION IN THE ARMY.

Your BSN means you're a professional. In the Army, it also means you're an officer. You start as a full-fledged member of our medical team. Write: Army Nurse Opportunities, P.O. Box 7713, Burbank, CA 91510.

ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

ATTENTION UMASS BANDS

SWAG is looking for contestents for a Battle of the Bands Sat Oct 23. For info contact Jeanette or Steve 545-0960

AUTO FOR SALE

76 GMC Van, long bodied, windows all around, good condition 2500 $ tel 549-6327

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

1969 VW Camper Bus as is $1000 586-5827

Audi Fox 76 looks, runs, like new. Must see, after 5 pm 253-3519

Toyota Celica 74 runs but needs some work BO Sue 549-1463

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

CHAMOIS SHIRT

LOST between Campus Center and Lot 65 on Sunday, October 10. Can identify -- sentimental value. Please call Terri at 545-3500 and/or 549-4621 anytime. Thanks

COM-STU CLUB MEETING

Very important general meeting today at 4 PM in Machmer E-37

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

David Weidenfeld and Lee Piscioneri ar back! Original acoustic music at the TOC Fri-Sat 9:00 PM

FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture--two bedrooms. $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

One room left. 800/semester call Sue 253-9929 after 8:30 PM

Room for rent in downtown Amherst clean & private 253-3833

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Guild Maderia acoustic guitar excellent cond Bill 549-4718

EMS Down Parka large very warm worn once $70.00 EMS Backpack "Adirondack" high quality X Large, welded-extension frame $70.00 546-7120 (Mike)

Pentax ME-Super 35mm camera with autowinder. $225. 253-2660

FOUND

Found: 10/8 adorable black female puppy about 4 mos old. Call 6-6055 anytime keep trying

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections, Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Amway distributors part-time 549-5358

Responsible people needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LOST

Womans Seiko gold quartz watch 25$ reward 546-4941

Reward for one lost book bag. Bag contains one Cast Acct some keys one TI30 The bag is blue Reward $15 call Kevin 256-0854

Lost dungaree jacket w/silver buttons very old - extremely sentimental $20.00 reward please return!! 665-4248

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Movie: MASH - Thurs. Oct. 14 - Eng. East Aud. 7, 9, 11 PM $1.50

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Northampton woman who found my wallet please call again; I haven't got it yet Jim 586-0814

Sally Ann Happy 20th! No more fake ID's! Love, Lori, Laura & Kelly

To the Brothers and Pledges of DU--Thanks for making this homecoming weekend the wildest and best ever. We look forward to many many more awesome times!!! XOXO--The Sisters and Pledges of AXO

Coley Happy Birthday Seetie I love you Emma

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a
Collegian classified!

Uni-Sex Haircuts by Cindy has moved 256-0506 $5.00

Coalition for Environmental Quality film "Tragedy of the Commons" Oct 14 at 7:30 in Student Union new members welcome

Jewles - Guido's foul dead woman. What's up for the w/e? Where's Kim? Stick tight gaslight! Thanx for whatever. D's willdog alias slick Nick see ya

Happy Birthday Randy from R & R

Memory, concentration, study skills takin, exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

Tha Dukakis organization is looking foi volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

RALPH LAUREN POLO SHIRTS all sizes six colors call "Smitty" at 549-2631

Attention all SGA escorts and supporters We need you! Our voices alone are not enough. Please let us know you are with us in our attempts to continue this essential student service!! Please call and give us your input/support. Contact Laura 549-0081 or Anne 549-5404

Congratulations to the new big and little sisters of KKG. . .We are family!

KINGBID -- I would like to have an intimate conversation with Roscoe.
Queenie

Lisa Corbett - Welcome to my family love, ya - your big sis, Jane

Anital Happy Birthday my twinkle toe. May all your dreams become realities! With all my love, Candee

Zionists & those interested in Israel Student Alliance for Israel Thurs 6:30 Hillel 302 SU 545-2526

Congratulations Melinda! I'll be listening to you tonight from 7:00-10:00 pm on WMUA 91.1 FM Good luck roomie! OXOX Sabina

Dear Jeff, I am one lucky girl. Thanks for being everything that you are! I love you - lisa

Dan, Rich - Where were you? One more chance - this Friday! Be there! Patti, Nancye, Stacy

LS Mahal - Kita D-

POOLA AND RICKER

Aren't you two getting a bit old to be students? Have a happy birthday anyhow! from us

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counseling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Philadelphia or any New Jersey turnpike exit on Oct 14 or 15. Please call 546-5556, keep trying. Will share expenses.

Round trip to NYC, will share expenses. From Friday 15th - return Sunday 17th Please contact Moe 549-1863

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share house on Bay Rd 140 + 256-8058

Female roommate wanted ASAP please call 665-3480

Male needed for small Northampton two bedroom 125+ Scott 584-4348 after 5

Apt wanted to share Amherst $180 max Paul 549-3733

Housemate needed - 4 bed house in Leverett - female pref. 100/month + call Wendy 549-2628

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate cash for class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest prices paid. Call Ralph 6-8722 anytime

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

Tutor wanted for Genetics (Zoo.) 510 please call Barbara S 545-0162

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5686

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

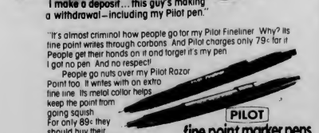
"Pilot pens! You have to hold onto them with two hands."

– Rodney Dangerfield

I make a deposit... this guy's making a withdrawal – including my Pilot pen."

"It's almost criminal how people go for my Pilot Fineliner. Why? Its fine point writes through carbons. And Pilot charges only 79¢ for it. People get their hands on it and forget it's my pen. I got no pen. And no respect!

People go nuts over my Pilot Razor Point too. It writes with an extra fine line. Its metal collar helps keep the point from going squish. For only 89¢ they should buy their own pen—and show some respect for my property.



PILOT fine point marker pens

People take to a Pilot like it's their own.

SATF ORIENTATION WORKSHOPS

New RSO treasurers and officers must attend an SATF Orientation Workshop prior to October 15th in order to (continue) initiate any financial documents for the Group. Workshops will be held as follows:

DATE	CAMPUS CENTER RM	TIME
Wed. - 29 Sept.	CC 168	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 30 Sept.	CC 168	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.
Wed. - 13 Oct.	CC 911	3:30 - 4:30 P.M.
Thurs. - 14 Oct.	CC 911	6:00 - 7:00 P.M.

Attendance at one session is all that is required. Sessions will review financial responsibilities and requirements placed on each RSO and respond to questions. New manuals will be distribuited at the meetings.

CEQ

The Coalition for Environmental Quality presents the film:

"Tragedy of the Commons"

Thurs. Oct. 14 7:30 PM

Rm 306 Student Union

FREE! All are Welcome

THURSDAY

ROCK NIGHT

with

Al Stoner

2 for 1 all liquor drinks

9 til 11

no cover charge

THE PUB

15 East Pleasant St.

AMHERST

NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER

WITH THIS AD POLYESTER BLACKWALL $26.95

Size A78-13 FET $1.59

A FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE

• COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
• FRONT END ALIGNMENT
• BRAKES & SHOCKS

VISA MC 78 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST ACROSS FROM NATIONAL STORE 549-4704

Sports

ATTENTION HOCKEY PLAYERS

The intramural office has extended the registration deadline for intramural hockey to Monday, October 18.

JV booters slip past Amherst College, 2-1

By GEORGE MARTIN
Collegian Correspondent

Matt Dowd drove home a rebound of a Rich Fortescue shot with six minutes left in regulation time to give the UMass junior varsity soccer team a 2-1 victory over Amherst College yesterday.

This game at times showed why soccer hasn't caught on in America. The first half and twenty minutes of the second half consisted of boring soccer with few scoring opportunities.

UMass goaltender Ricardo Sanchez saved the few scoring chances directed toward him before being replaced in the second half by Don Donahue.

While the major portion of the game lacked just about everything necessary for good soccer, the final ten minutes were action packed. There were several good scoring opportunities, with UMass getting the majority of them.

Forward John Metzger got UMass on the board with an unassisted goal at the 30:00 minute mark of the second half. The lead appeared as if it would hold up as the game had been a defensive struggle up to this point. But this game was about to break wide open.

Metzger almost put UMass up by two at the 32:00 minute when he broke in alone down the right side and fired a shot just wide of the post.

Amherst tied the score at 1-1 at the 34:00 minute mark on a goal by Tyler McClay. McClay pounced on a free ball in the UMass penalty area and drove it past Donahue.

This set the stage for Dowd's game winner. Rich Fortescue set up the score with an excellent run down the right sideline. Fortescue beat two Amherst defenders and cut in on the goal.

"I made the run then took a shot," said Fortescue. It hit the goalie then deflected off the post."

The ball rolled along the goaline where Dowd was in perfect position to score what may have been the easiest goal of his career.

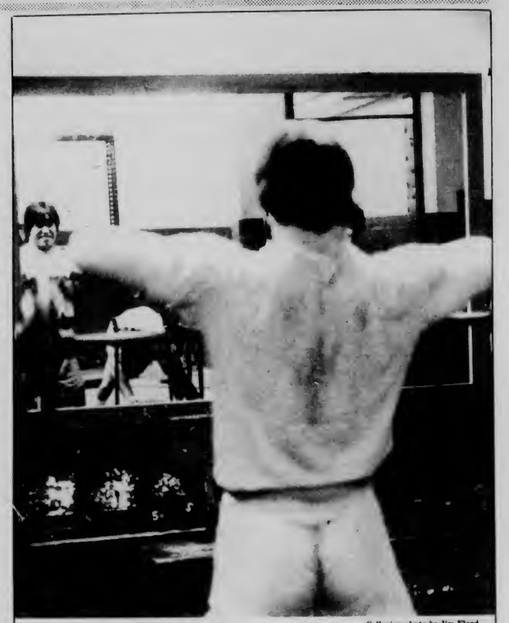
"It was a sloppy game but we won," said Metzger.

Coach Dave Sawaid was impressed with Amherst's play. "We scrimmaged them in pre-season and they were not nearly as effective as they were today," Sawaid said.

The game was played under adverse conditions due to a steady rain that fell at the start of the second half and continued throughout the game.

"I don't think we adapted to the conditions quickly. Our offense was disappointing for the most part," said Sawaid.

Sawaid stressed the performances of Fortescue and fullback Henry Hoff as keys to the victory. The JV's play their next game on Tuesday Nov. 19 against Holyoke C.C. at Lower Boyden field.



Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Mark Hausser checks his form pumping iron in the weight room in Boyden yesterday.

Brewers looking tough in World Series play

By ELLIOTT KALB
Collegian Staff

If the Milwaukee Brewers were a boxer, they would be Gerry Cooney. If they were a food, they would be steak and potatoes. If they were a movie, they would either be Patton or The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly.

This team orders drinks out of dirty glasses, and probably never puts paper down on public toilet seats. We're talking tough. There just aren't any quiche eaters on the Brewers. These animals hit 216 homeruns in 1982 — or 149 more than their World Series opponent, the St. Louis Cardinals.

Milwaukee is managed by Harvey Kuenn, a walking advertisement for Budweiser if ever there was one. This guy lives in a Milwaukee bar that makes the Drake in Amherst look like Studio 54.

Keunn is the perfect manager for his ballclub. Under former skipper Buck Rodgers, the Brewers were a tight, tense ballclub. Keunn took over in May and told the ballplayers to relax and just hit like they know how.

Cecil Cooper (a Rod Carew with power) hit over .300 for the sixth straight year and hit over 30 HR's. Robin Yount (a Rick Burleson with power) fielded brilliantly and led the league in hits, doubles, triples, and slugging percentage, while hitting .331. Paul Melitor hit 19 HR's from the leadoff spot in the batting order and scored more times (136) than anyone in baseball since 1957.

There has not been a lineup like the Milwaukee club since the 1961 Yankees hit a record 240 home runs led by Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle, and Yogi Berra. There have been better teams (the 1970 Baltimore team, the 1973 Oakland club, the 1976 Reds and the 1978 Yankees), but no one has had the power output this club has.

The Brewers have never been in a World Series. Two Brewers who do figure to play prominent roles in the Series that have Series experience, have never won in the fall classic: Either Don Sutton or Cecil Cooper appeared in the 1974, 75, 77, and 78 versions of the Series. The only Brewers in uniform who have been part of a World's Championship are relief ace Rollie Fingers and special assistant to the general manager (and now cheerleader) Sal Bando,(both of whom played with the 72-74 Oakland Athletics).

For Brewers like Sutton, Ted Simmons, and Charlie Moore, this could be the last shot at a World Championship ring. They have waited a long time, and aren't about to let it out of their grasp after they won tug-of-wars with Baltimore and then California to get this far.

Milwaukee fans have waited a long time, too. They live in a great sports town, but have gone 25 years without a baseball championship. (The Milwaukee Braves won in 1957 led by MVP Hank Aaron and third-baseman Eddie Mathews.)

Since then, Wisconsin's sports diehards have been blessed with the greatest football coach and the greatest college basketball coach (Green Bay's Vince Lombardi and Marquette's Al McGuire) of all time, and the Milwaukee Bucks won a coin toss with the Phoenix Suns in 1970 for Lewis Alcindor (later Kareem Abdul-Jabbar).

The Packers last won in the mid-1960's, and have not made the playoffs since 1972. The Bucks traded away Jabbar in 1975, and haven't come close since. The Brewers moved from Seattle in 1970, and have only been contenders since 1978.

The Brewers are worthy representatives of the American League. They are in fact one of the few teams in the American League that could play even with the senior circuit. The last American League team to win the World Series was the Yankees in 1978, the last American League team to win the All-Star Game won in 1971.

The Cardinals are a good, correction, a very good ballclub. Maybe it is in the Cards for St. Louis in 1982. However, they're not an overpowering team. They hit fewer homeruns and struck out fewer batters than any team in baseball. They are a team of precision and execution, of defense and pitching, of playing for one run and holding baserunners. They are a team of patience, of managing, of wining and dining.

The Brewers are the team of the one-night stand. If the Brewers were a beer, they would be Old Milwaukee — nothing flashy, nothing fancy, but they get the job done.

Crew opens fall season

By STEVE FITZ
Collegian Correspondent

The UMass men's and women's crew teams did well this past weekend in their first competition of the fall season.

Both the men's and women's teams competed in the Head of the Connecticut, held Sunday in Middleton, Connecticut. The crewwomen also competed in the Women's Invitational Regatta on Saturday, held in Holyoke.

At the Women's Invitational Regatta, the varsity four crew won gold medals, beating eight other teams. The varsity eight crew advanced to the finals, also receiving medals.

The qualifying heats for the regatta were 2800 meters long, while the finals were a shorter 2000 meters.

"We have been practicing for a month and half now, and we're just getting ready to race," said coach Dave Kumlin.

"All teams raced very well, we have six months to get ready for nationals in May," said Kumlin.

At the Head of the Connecticut, the men's varsity eight finished eighth out of 17 teams in the three and a half mile race. The men's junior varsity eight finished 13th out of 37 teams.

"In the fall we are competing against Harvard and many other tough division one crew teams," said Kumlin.

"We were beat by good teams."

The women's varsity four finished 13th at Head of the Connecticut, while the women's varsity eight is waiting for its place finish, because of a controversy in the race.

"Spring racing is geared toward division two schools, we compare with teams that we will be racing in the spring," said Kumlin.

"We did very well for our division."

This Sunday the crew teams will compete against UMass alumni crew teams in the Hadley Henley.

UM women bow to SC

By JIM SAMIA
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's golf team, playing without two of its top players, lost to Springfield College at Hickory Ridge Country Club Tuesday afternoon. The Minutewomen were without All-American Marlen Susienka and Judy Guzy.

Despite the handicap, the Minutewomen hung tough throughout the entire match.

"I thought the team played very well," said golf coach Jack Leaman. "It was very close down to the last three or four holes."

This is where Springfield showed their consistency as three players shot under 100. Leading the way was Sue Witters with a 90.

Junior Jane Egan was the UMass medalist with a superb 91. This is the fifth straight match in which she has shot under 100. Although she has been overshadowed most of the year by Susienka, Egan has been playing better as the season progresses.

Nola Eddy came in fifth place with a 102. Rounding out the score for the Minutewomen was Theresa Collins with a 111 and Mary Ann Lombardi with a 115.

The EAIAW's were held at Dartmouth on October 9 and 10 and to nobody's surprise Susienka was an easy winner.

On Saturday she was one under par on the first nine holes. She then let up a bit and finished the day with a five stroke lead and a score of 80.

There was no letting up on Sunday as Susienka shot an 83 and won easily by 10 strokes. She finished the tournament at 163. She just ran away from the very competitive field.

This is the third straight big victory for Marlene Susienka. She continues to live up to her All-American status as she leads the Minutewomen golf team through another successful season.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 28 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, October 15, 1982

Residence hall access restricted for Halloween

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

As part of this year's Halloween weekend policy, which was approved Wednesday by the executive staff of the Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, the University of Massachusett's residence hall system will be closed to all non-students, and student visitors must have a valid University I.D.

This policy is different in that last year, only on-campus students were allowed to be guests in the dorms. Each resident may have only two guests, said Joe Zannini, executive director for Housing Services.

The University campus will be closed to the general public on the evenings of Friday, Oct. 29, and Saturday, Oct. 30. Events which have already been scheduled for those night will still take place.

The Campus Center/Student Union Complex will close on Friday at 7 p.m. and on Saturday at 6 p.m.

The Housing Security Office will provide 24-hour security through the weekend, running from 5 p.m. Friday to 5 a.m. Sunday. The office estimated the extra security would cost an additional $4,800.

Small dorm-centered "theme" activities are being encouraged this year, but large scale events will not be allowed, as these are likely to attract unwanted guests, Zannini said.

Area governments will be sponsoring area-wide costume competitions in cooperation with the Food Services and Housing Services staffs. Additional information on these competitions will be published in the Collegian.

The recommendation was put forth by a committee comprised of representatives from student and area government associations, the Environmental Health and Safety Department, UMass police, and Housing services. The committee also had representatives from the Union Program Council Advisory Committee, the inter-fraternity council, the Legal Affairs Office, and the Campus Center Board of Governors.

"The policy is basically the same one that was enforced last year," Zannini said. "With the policy in effect, we managed to avoid most of the disruptive behavior of a few years ago and we ended up having a fairly quiet weekend."

The basic principle behind the policy is to insure the safety of the students and staff that make up the University community.

"University activities draw people from local communities as well as other colleges, but we'd like to restrict the activities of Halloween weekend to the students and staff who live and work here," Zannini said. "We don't want to open up the campus to unwanted guests."

"I invited all kinds of people from different areas of the University to be on the committee so that we could have input on the feasibility of various ideas proposed for the weekend," Zannini said. "This diversity helped us realize that a number of ideas that were suggested had the potential to be difficult to control."

Photo by Peter Marks

Thomas Yarrows of Westfield stands behind the variety of goods he sells in the Amherst Center produce market.

Textbook Annex issue begins heating up again in BOG

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

The issue concerning the financial status of the Campus Center and its relationship with the Textbook Annex is looming into an inevitable clash between students and the University of Massachusetts Administration.

The Board of Governors (BOG) primarily, has announced that the problem over the Annex profits and what to do with them will be its major issue of the semester because they feel a positive result from the issue would be beneficial to all students.

Ron Keefe, BOG chair, said last night the board is trying to create a situation where in the long run the Campus Center can be completely self-supporting instead of relying on student fees and other sources of income, in particular the profits of the Textbook Annex.

Acting Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance John L. DeNyse, who is going to be involved in the committee between members of the BOG and the Administration to further discuss the issue, said the Annex is one part of a total problem in the Campus Center and the main aim of the committee will come to a reasonable solution of the problem by looking at the Campus Center as a whole and examining all the parts that go into makng the building.

"Money has got to come from somewhere to pay for maintenance and operation of the building, and you can not just take away a large sum of money like the Annex profits and expect the building to run effectively," DeNyse said. "You have to look at the total entity and figure out a solution from there."

BOG Financial Coordinator Craig Freedman said that due to the price markup in textbooks the Textbook Annex profits have been increasing $2 - $3 per student per year over the last three vears.

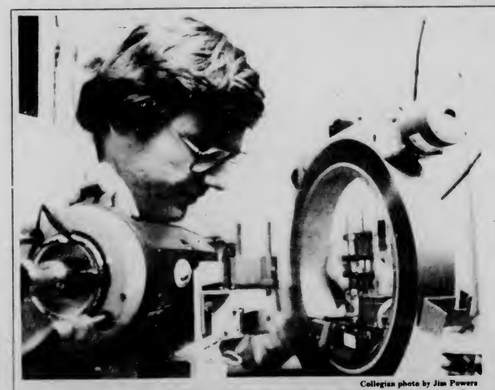
"The Annex is currently making $13 each on every student and is winding up with roughly $250,000 which is being used to subsidize Maintenance and Operations in the Campus Center, and this is where most of the problem lies," Freedman said.

Freedman also said that as well as paying for the textbook, students are paying money to fund certain operations in the Campus Center that are losing money.

"It is a hidden fee and students are being ripped off," Keefe said. "We want the Annex profits used to help pay off the debt service because this will reveal that the Campus Center is a poorly managed building and force the Administration to come to terms and try and correct the problem by really working on it."

"If the building is adequately run, it should be at least earning $242,000 more dollars than it currently is, and then when you compare that to the $250,000 from Annex profits it is not so bad."

Continued on page 6



Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Professor Richard S. Stein, director of the Polymer Research Institute, makes adjustments to an x-ray diffractometer yesterday. The device is used to study the molecular structure of various substances.

World-famous polymer group performs research at UMass

By RUSSEL TURNER
Collegian Correspondent

Lightweight plastics stronger than steel, solar powered engines, time-released drug carriers, and plastics which conduct electricity are some of the goal being conducted at the world-famous polymer science group here at the University of Massachusetts. With more than 150 people at the University working in polymer science, it is one of the five largest groups of its kind in the world and probably the largest in this country.

Polymers are any natural or synthetic compounds consisting of repeated, linked chemical units. Ever since the DuPont corporation developed nylon in the 1930's, synthetic polymers have been an important part of industry and a highly profitable area of scientific research. Not surprisingly, the financial rewards of polymer research have tended to restrict it to the competitive world of industrial research, unlike the less applied scientific disciplines such as physics and astronomy, which have always had their principal research carried out in the university environment.

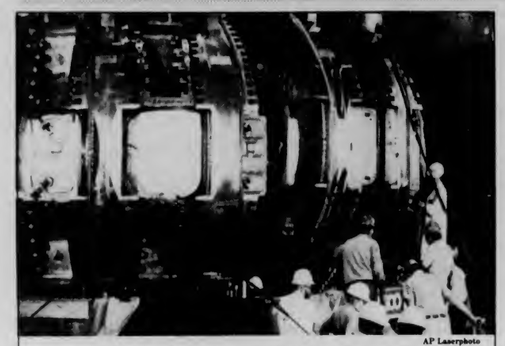
UMass' exception to this has been primarily due to the efforts of Professor Richard S. Stein, director of the Polymer Research Institute, who has his doctorate from Princeton University. Professor Stein came to the UMass chemistry department in 1951, and in 1961, formed the Institute, which split off from the chemistry department. In 1974, the polymer science and engineering department which gives graduate degrees, was formed at the University. It has no undergraduate program.

One of the main areas of research going on at the University is in developing plastics which can replace metal parts in cars or planes, according to Professor Stein.

Continued on page 14

World and national news

See Digest on page 4



AP Laserphoto

Gruman Aerospace technicians align the final section of the doughnut-shaped vacuum vessel of the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor at Princeton University in Princeton, N.J. When the reactor becomes operational, atomic nuclei traveling at high speeds on the circular path will fuse together, creating clean, economical energy, as well as temperatures reaching 100 million degrees Celsius; six times the energy of the sun. Scientists plan to turn on the experimental reactor next year.

Support for Solidarity shown by Polish workers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Worker anger about the ban on Solidarity was reported spreading to Poland's coal and steel heartland yesterday and the riots claimed their first victim, a 20-year-old man shot by police.

The official PAP news agency said Bodgan Wlosik died Thursday in a hospital after being shot Wednesday during fierce street fighting in the Krakow steel-making suburb of Nowa Huta.

It was the first officially acknowledged death in the riots spawned by the outlawing of Solidarity last week.

Unconfirmed reports attributed to a Polish ham radio operator said two others died in Gdansk Tuesday evening, and a government journalist claimed a worker depressed by the upheavals killed himself by diving into a vat of molten steel.

The Communist Party newspaper warned that new riots and strikes could extend martial law, and the official information service Interpress said leaflets urging street protests and a boycott of pro-government unions set up in place of Solidarity have appeared in factories in Katowice province.

Miners at the Jankowice coal mine near Rybnik refused to work for one hour Wednesday despite the martial law ban on strikes, but had gone to work after talks with management and party officials, Interpress said.

The new unrest followed riots and strikes in Gdansk Monday and Tuesday and street protests Wednesday in Wroclaw and Nowa Huta. The government reported 148 arrests in Gdansk and 170 in Wroclaw.

Blaming the Solidarity underground for the strikes and riots, the Communist Party daily Trybuna Ludu said yesterday that such actions could "extend, contrary to the government's intentions, the period of extraordinary measures."

Poland's martial law chief and Communist Party leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, said after Parliament outlawed Solidarity Friday that protests had slowed the government's plan to lift military rule by the end of this year but not "crossed it out."

Reagan launches new offensive against drug trafficking

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan vowed yesterday to "end the drug menace and cripple organized crime" with a $200 million program that will blanket the nation with federal narcotics task forces.

Reagan, criticized in Congress last year for scaling back the fight against drug traffickers, said the government will hire up to 1,200 more agents and investigators for a dozen task forces. The illicit drug business in the United States is worth an estimated $80 billion.

"The time has come to cripple the power of the mob in America," Reagan told more than 300 people at the Justice Department.

Administration officials said the task forces will try to infiltrate the drug mobs, concentrating on long-range investigations aimed at breaking up networks rather than street pushers. They will be modeled after the task force, headed by Vice President George Bush, that was formed to combat the drug trade in South Florida.

Although Congress must approve permanent financing for the plan, the administration intends to begin the operation by shifting available funds from other programs.

The $200 million cost of the program also includes up to $34 million to expand prisons to make room for some 1,260 additional inmates.

The administration also is backing legislation to deny bail to accused people who are considered dangerous, to impose stiffer jail terms for drug offenders and to restrict parole.

U.S. assurance sought by Israel on security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's foreign minister, Yitzhak Shamir, met for four hours yesterday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz to push Israel's demand for iron-clad protection of its northern border with Lebanon.

The Israelis are demanding a security agreement with Lebanon before withdrawing their troops, which have been in Lebanon since the June 6 invasion.

Shamir told reporters, "I hope it is possible " to arrange a withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon this year, although the feeling is growing here that this is unlikely.

Shamir said his talks with Shultz were conducted "in a spirit of friendly consultations and our common goal to seek common solutions as soon as possible."

He indicated they make some progress in coordinating the Israeli and American views of how to obtain a troop withdrawal and ensure border protection.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said he was not aware of any plans to station American troops in southern Lebanon as part of a multinational force. Asked why Reagan was not meeting with Shamir, Speakes said it's "just not on his schedule."

Shamir said after his meeting with Shultz that a joint U.S.-Israeli working group would meet later to "elaborate the various details of the proposed solutions.

"Both parties have agreed that we have to make efforts to get a solution as promptly as possible," he said. "The goal is to get a withdrawal of all foreign forces from all parts of Lebanon, including the southern part of Lebanon."

U.S. officials had not expected that agreements would be worked out here, since they also would involve the governments of Lebanon and Syria, and Palestinian forces in Lebanon.

AP Laserphoto

Flamboyant pianist "Liberace," who was hit yesterday with a $113 million "palimony" suit by a 23-year-old aspiring dancer. The man claimed an "intimate sexual, emotional and business relationship" ended last April when Liberace had him thrown out of the house they shared.

El Salvador troops vie with rebels for control

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government sent 5,000 troops backed by artillery, fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships into northern El Salvador yesterday to counterattack the strongest guerrilla drive in six months.

Stiff guerrilla resistance was reported and a national guard commander in northern Chalatenango province, where the massive counteroffensive was concentrated, reported government casualties were heavy.

He said at least 10 soldiers were wounded yesterday morning at El Jicaro. "The situation is pretty critical," he said. "They've brought in a lot of wounded."

The commander, who did not want to be identified, said reinforcements continued to arrive because of unexpectedly strong resistance at Las Vueltas, a town of 5,000 people 50 miles north of the capital that about 700 rebels overran Sunday night.

The leftist rebels are trying to topple the U.S.-backed rightist government of El Salvador.

South and east of the capital, the army searched for guerillas who attacked three military outposts and brought transportation to a standstill with warnings of heavy attacks to come.

The army's three U.S.-trained battalions were sent into Chalatenango province with other ground forces. Four Americanmade .A-37 "Dragonfly" fighterbombers were bombing and strafing rebel positions at Las Vueltas, said the commander.

In addition, American-made UH-1H "Huey" helicopters buzzed through the hills, firing on guerrillas with machine-guns. Ground forces were pounding rebel positions with 105mm cannon set up on a soccer field on the northern side of Chalatenango City, he said.

Andes survivors: not heroes and not ashamed

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — In the decade since they survived 70 days in the Andes Mountains on determination, faith and the flesh of their dead comrades, 16 young men have blended into everyday life.

They work as lawyers, doctors, lawyers, businessmen and engineers and get together often — bound by "total tranquility" about how they stayed alive after their plane crashed in the Andes, and by the memory of dead friends and loved ones.

Some of the survivors are now confronting the problem of telling the story to their children.

"Some of his classmates are nephews of those who died and we're afraid one of these days one of the kids is going to say something like 'Your daddy ate up my uncle,' and we don't want him to find out that way," Soledad Inciarte said of her 8- year-old son.

"I don't want to give him the idea his father is either a hero or ashamed. I'm just going to try to explain honestly how it was — something I did not go looking for, but that happened and that I got out of as I was able to," said her husband, Jose Luis Inciarte, one of four plane crash survivors interviewed by The Associated Press.

Correction

In yesterday's Collegian, in the story on renovation to the Curry Hicks Cage, it was incorrectly reported that a survey conducted by the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office (SAREO) in 1979 indicted students favored renovations and were willing to pay a small fee to cover the cost. The SAREO survey, in fact, was questioning placing a dome over Alumni Stadium and not renovating the Cage.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Bill Wall
Layout Technician — Brad Eden
Assistant Photo Editor — Jim Powers
Composition — June Cleaver, The Liz Ward
The Jackie Femino, Alan Steinberg, Dano Welsh
Fredey, Terri Cooper, Scott Stockwell
Gail Tanzer, Margy Hochman, Sheryl Silver
Lynn Eisenberg, Adrianne Dufour

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster. Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Candidate Sears scheduled to speak tomorrow

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

John Sears, Republican candidate for governor, will speak at the University of Massachusetts from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Campus Center Room 101. He will take questions from the audience after his speech.

"I haven't been informed of the specific makeup of the speech," said Jeff Kelley, chairman of the UMass College Republicans. "I think anything that hasn't been said the students can put it to him."

The announcement of Sears' speech comes after it was originally announced by his campaign office that either he or his running mate, Leon Lombardi, would speak on campus sometime next week.

"Everyone regrets the problems it caused, but it couldn't be avoided," Kelly said.

Kelly, in discussing the candidate's position on student aid, said Sears feels that any student who has been accepted into a college or university should not be prevented from attending because of financial problems. Higher education should and would be available to all students regardless of need if Sears' proposal for state tuition advances is established, Kelley said.

Sears' UMass appearance is being sponsored by the Conservative Campaign Committee, which Kelly formed because the UMass College Republicans, as part of a national organization, is not allowed a Recognized Student Organization classification. RSO status is required in order to reserve a room in the Campus Center. The committee was originally formed to accomodate a speech by Ray Shamie, which was cancelled due to his Nuclear Freeze Rally appearance.

Before his arrival at UMass, Sears will be in Northampton campaigning for Jim Tripp, the Republican candidate for state senator from that area.

Next Friday, Sears will debate Democratic opponent Michael S. Dukakis in Worcester.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Maureen Hall, a freshman environmental health major, is framed by one tire as she swings by another from a tree in the woods near the Southwest Residential College.

Psychology students' efforts give Chicopee man chance to present theory to faculty

By PAUL BELVAL
Collegian Staff

Thanks to students at the University of Massachusetts, Kenneth Collins will have a chance to present his theory on brain function to a faculty audience.

Collins, 35, of Chicopee spent Tuesday in the Campus Center concourse in an attempt to force the scientific community to recognize his theory on brain function, and because of the efforts of Thomas Grinley, the president of the Council of Undergraduate Psychology, he will have a chance to present his theory.

Grinley, along with other members of the council, have arranged for Collins to present his theory to faculty and students in the computer information science and physics departments on Oct. 26.

Collins claims his theory "reduces the basic drives and the phenomena of creativity, curiosity, conscience, decisions and volition to concrete biological processes."

Collins had much praise for the students who stopped by to talk to him during his protest, as well as for Campus Center officials and the UMass police.

"I thought this place was a callous place, a big university and all, but no," he said.

While he was on the concourse, Collins said one woman brought him lunch and another offered to buy him dinner last night.

"There was a real cream of the crop that showed itself," Collins said. "The students came and said 'give it to us and we'll go with it.'"

Collins said Dudley Bridges, director of operations at the Campus Center, was also a great help to him by allowing him to stay in the Campus Center and getting him a table.

"He bent over backwards. He could have had me thrown out. He could have had me arrested. He really went out of his way for me, though," he said.

Collins said the UMass police were especially courteous to him. They asked him to leave at 2 a.m. when the building closed instead of arresting him, and they rode by every 20 minutes to check on him while he slept on the sidewalk outside the Campus Center.

"One cop stopped by in the middle of the night and started talking about the theory with me," he said.

Collins said he now can depend on only himself to successfully present the theory.

"Now it's up to me to make my point," he said. "The theory is blisteringly complex. I've never been able to deal with it in less than four hours, and this presentation runs three hours."

Collins also said he hopes this presentation is just a beginning for his theory.

"I hope it rings some bells somewhere and someone says, 'Let's hear it again.'"

Radical Student Union emphasizes social issue activism

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Correspondent

A "new and improved" product has been advertised on campus this year called "Economox." It is "fortified by big business, enriched by your dollars," and sponsored by President Reagan.

"Economox" is a promotional gimmick of the University of Massachusetts Radical Student Union (RSU). The RSU is a multi-issue activist student organization working to rebuild the student movement.

"We do things that are really fun...to be a political activist you have to have a sense of humor," said Becky Lautman of the RSU. Lautman, 23, an economics major, used the "Economox" campaign and the annual "disorientation pamphlet" as examples.

The "disorientation pamphlet," which can be picked up in the Student Union, Room 413A, sarcastically expresses the group's opinions, such as "nuclear madness," "the Whitmore shuffle," and administrative incompetence, which is paid tribute by tongue-in-cheek awards.

But the members of the RSU said they are serious about the issues they fight for. The Union is a diverse group of people with no group ideology. There is, however, a basic level of agreement among members, according to Brooke States, 24, even though they have different views on socialism, communism, anarchy, and other concepts typically related to radical thought.

"We concentrate on activism in lots of social issues," said States, a photojournalism major. "Our long-term goal is to provide a different point of view than they (the students of UMass) would normally get."

The RSU has supported labor struggles in the Valley, and feels that these are important. Two years ago, the group supported laborers in the Amherst Nursing Home and the Sterling Radiator Co. in Westfield.

"The huge student population can easily be exploited by management, and this carries through to regular working people in the valley," States said.

Some other projects have included bringing Sean Sands (the brother of Bobby Sands, an Irish political hunger striker) to speak at UMass, helping to form the Progressive Student Alliance of the Student Government Association, and participating in the Seabrook, N.H. anti-nuclear demonstrations.

This weekend, the RSU is sending a group of students to Detroit for the third annual Progressive Student Network (PSN) Conference. The PSN is a nationwide network of student organizations, and the conference, scheduled for Oct. 15-17, is to be held at Wayne State University.

Most of the student government funds that the RSU receives are for such special events or for guest speakers on campus. As an example, $712 was allocated to the group last week by the Undergraduate Student Senate to cover the costs of transportation to and from Detroit. The RSU has a budget for this year of $1,665.

"Early in our history," States said, "we didn't get much money."

"We work for the human rights of people all over the world," Lautman said. "The RSU is definitely against U.S. intervention in third world countries, especially El Salvador."

There are few requirements for membership in the RSU.

"We try to get people to come to the meetings often," States said, "but we only want people to be politically active. They should see that things are wrong, and be willing to try to change them. That's the bottom line."

Collegian photo by Sam Millett

Linda Cohen, Sr., a social thought and political economy major and member of the Radical Student Union, advertises herself while posing as a box of "EconoMax" in front of the Student Union Building.

Klan leader attacked on live Boston show

BOSTON — As startled television viewers watched, demonstrators broke up a talkshow appearance by Ku Klux Klan leader Bill Wilkinson yesterday, waving "death to the Klan" signs and ridiculing Wilkinson as "the great lizard."

Some witnesses said eggs and fists were thrown at the Klan leader before order was restored.

Members of the studio audience at WBZ-TV said the outburst began when a half-dozen demonstrators jumped up and began shouting, "Latin Americans black and white, all together we must fight." They said the protesters included both blacks and whites.

Wilkinson, from Denham Springs, La., is imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, one of several klans in the country. Wilkinson is one of the most vocal Klan leaders and has urged his followers to arm themselves for what he views as a coming race war.

The demonstration broke out while Wilkinson was answering questions on "People Are Talking," a live interview and talk program that uses a studio audience.

Demonstrators, who apparently had mingled with a group of high school students at the show, held up signs reading, "Death to the Klan." One began calling Wilkinson "the great lizard."

The witnesses said Wilkinson was struck at least once by a demonstrator before order was restored. Police were called, but it could not be determined immediately whether there were any arrests.

"People ran down the aisle and were throwing punches. Somebody hit him," said Victoria Miles, a student from Canton High School who was attending the show with classmates. "He pulled his fist back to hit back, but then he stopped."

Digest

By the Associated Press

Draft resister refuses to enter plea in court

BOSTON — An accused draft resister refused to enter a plea at his arraignment yesterday and four of his supporters were hauled from the courtroom after they tried to read a statement.

U.S. Magistrate Joyce Landon Alexander entered an innocent plea for Edward Hasbrouck, 22, of Wellesley.

Hasbrouck was indicted last week for failing to register for the draft, as required by the Selective Service System.

During the brief but contentious court hearing, Hasbrouck refused to enter a plea, declined to stand unless the magistrate also stood and insisted on taking an oath with his left hand instead of his right.

"I have not done anything for which I feel it necessary to plead," he told the magistrate.

Two men and two women stood up during the hearing and attempted to read a statement supporting Hasbrouck. They were quickly hustled from the courtroom by marshals who carried one of the women when she refused to move.

Hasbrouck acted as his own attorney. When asked to swear that he would tell the truth, he raised his left hand and said, "To the extent that the court will allow me to tell the whole truth, I so affirm."

Mrs. Alexander refused his request to allow news cameras into the small, packed courtroom and declined to move the hearing to a bigger room.

Gubernatorial hopeful objects to ballot name

BOSTON — Responding to a legal challenge by a Libertarian candidate for governor, the state argued yesterday that it would cost more than $1 million to change ballots already printed for the November election.

Suffolk Superior Court Judge William Young took under advisement the claim by the candidate's attorney, Michael Reilly, that the Nov. 2 ballots violate state law by failing to include the full name of Libertarian Rebecca Shipman.

As the only woman running for governor, "Miss Shipman has a very substantial right to have that fact put before the voters," Reilly said. As the already printed ballots read now, only her last name appears, along with the last names of the other candidates.

Reilly said a 1970 law, calling for the use of surnames on state ballots, was amended in 1972 to provide for the use of candidates "names."

"Names means full names," he said.

Paul Matthews, assistant attorney general representing the state, said the 1972 amendment is open to interpretation and that the secretary of state's interpretation should carry greater weight than a candidate's.

Matthews said Ms. Shipman would have to prove that she would be substantially harmed for the court to risk disrupting the election. Such disruption, he added, is a "distinct possibility."

"We have ample evidence that it is physically impossible (to change the ballots)," Matthews said.

He said it would take a minimum of five weeks to recall the current ballots and reprint and redistribute new ones. The election is 2¼ weeks away.

Outside the courtroom, Goldman said political experts agree that "the name Rebecca (on a ballot) could in fact influence certain people."

Yankee nuclear plant shut down by a leak

VERNON, Vt. — Wisps of leaking radioactive steam prompted the shutdown of the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant early yesterday.

But repairs to the leaking line were expected to be completed — and the 540-megawatt reactor restarted — sometime today.

The reactor went off-line at 3:30 a.m. yesterday, according to Steve Bravar, a plant spokesman.

The steam leak in a moisture-separator drain line was noticed late Wednesday on a routine inspection tour, Bravar said.

The moisture separator is located in the turbine building of the power plant. It removes moisture from the steam as it goes into the huge turbines that actually generate the power at the facility.

The moisture pulled from the pressurized system by the separator is then drained into a holding tank. The line from the tank to a heater was where the leak was discovered, according to officials.

Vermont Yankee's last shutdown was Aug. 27, when the reactor was idled to allow workers to perform general maintenance. That shutdown was scheduled for two weeks, but lasted just a few days.

The Vernon reactor has been experiencing one of its best years ever, as far as performance.

74-year-old church closes in Greenfield

GREENFIELD — The Second Baptist Church, Franklin County's first and only church founded by and for blacks, will be quiet this weekend after 74 years of services.

"The old timers just got old and began to die off, while the young people moved away or joined other churches," said James O'Neal, who now lives at a home for the elderly.

The single-level, wooden church will be torn down to make room for a larger yard for Diane and Paul Tolan's house.

"The members were really dedicated. You'd see them all there every Sunday," Mrs. Tolan said. The last service was held last Sunday with the parish's six members plus a few other people in attendance.

"I don't think there's 100 blacks left in Greenfield, maybe not in central Franklin County. The young people didn't find anything to keep them here in recent years, so they got educated," O'Neal said.

The parish was founded in 1907 as part of the American Methodist Episcopal Conference. The church became a Baptist parish during the depression.

The parish had as many as 40 families during World War II after blacks settled in the area, many of them to work at a once-thriving hotel, O'Neal said.

The Rev. Calvin Fletcher of Springfield traveled 40 miles to Greenfield each week in recent years to lead services.

How far away is your tomorrow? The challenges of working with sophisticated technology? The rewards that come when you're a visible element in a high-level environment? The recognition for a job well done? And the satisfaction ..?

At Computervision, tomorrow is here today.

CAD/CAM (Computer-Aided Design/Computer-Aided Manufacturing) has ushered in the Productivity Revolution. It's set industry on a fast track. Automating design and manufacturing. Tearing down time barriers in all areas. From plant design and construction, to microelectronics and aerospace development. With an annual growth rate exceeding 30%, it's the technology for the present and the future.

Computervision pioneered CAD/CAM 13 years ago, and we're still the technical leader in the field. With the widest range of industrial applications, and the highest level of vertical integration in the industry.

Clearly, the work we do today will, one way or another, impact on the life you enjoy tomorrow. If your career objectives include one of the following areas, think seriously about your tomorrow today.

Think seriously about Computervision.

Opportunities currently exist in the following areas:

Hardware Engineering
Software Engineering
Diagnostic Engineering
Manufacturing
Sales/Marketing
Customer Service

University of Mass.
Campus Interviews
Wednesday
October 27, 1982

Contact your Placement Office to arrange an interview, or send your resume to: Director of College Relations, Computervision Corporation, 14-3 Crosby Drive, Bedford, MA 01730. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Changing Imagination Into Reality. COMPUTERVISION

Photo by David May

Bob Blanchard, a Campus Center mask vendor, holds the mirror to let Paul Gravel model his Ronald Reagan model yesterday.

Anti-draft meeting planned for tonight

By WILLA WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

Those considering not registering for the draft or signing-up as a conscientious objector are invited to a meeting at 8 tonight, and workshop beginning at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Mt. Toby Friends Meeting in Leverett.

Jim Seldman from the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors will speak tonight on the status of registration in the draft.

Tomorrow's workshop will inform counselors about the steps one must take after signing-up as a conscientious objector. However, all interested are welcome, Mt. Toby Friends Meeting member Karen Bertstrom said.

Vince O'Connor of North Amherst, who was sentenced to two years in prison for not registering in the Sixties, will speak both days.

"There are a lot of men in the Valley who have not registered," Bertstrom said. "He will let them know what they are risking."

Congress is working on a bill that would refuse federal financial aid and federally financed jobs to non-registers, Bertstrom said. In light of the recent prosecuting of non-registers, and the probability that the draft will be reinstated, these meetings will help men decide how they want to register, she said.

Mt. Toby Friends Meeting is a Quaker organization in Leverett. Those who want to attend either day may call Karen Bertstrom at 253-3457.

Battered women's shelter schedules events for Unity Day

By LISA PEDULLA
Collegian Staff

Necessities, an organization in Northampton which has helped more than 400 battered women, will hold a series of local events tomorrow in conjunction with the National Day of Unity in recognition of the Battered Women's Movement.

This event is sponsored by the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence and was first held in 1981. The Day of Unity is held "to recognize the reality of the lives of women who have been abused" according to a Necessities press release. The event is used as a means to inform the public of the severity of the problem and to seek their input on solutions.

The press release also states that the second purpose of the event is to "acknowledge the contributions of programs like Necessities which work to end violence against women."

Necessities has been in existence since June 1979. The shelter actually opened a year before, but it was more of an informal task force at the time, said Diedre McLaughlin, a Necessities staff member.

"Necessities was started by a group of women in Hampden county who realized the area did not have any type of battered women's shelter," McLaughlin said.

Last year at this time, Necessities put on a skit for the rally for Day of Unity in Springfield. This year, the shelter has spent a month planning events for the day, McLaughlin said. There will be a showing of films by and about women from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Pleasant St. Theatre in Northampton. The films to be shown will include: Size 10, which is about how women's body images have been influenced by advertising; We All Have Our Reasons, in which women discuss the role alcohol has played in their lives; Karen, about a young women's struggle for acceptance by her peers; We Will Not Be Beaten, about a shelter where women talk about the abuse they have lived with.

A memorial walk, will follow a route from Pulaski Park to "the places a woman must go to seek protection (the police department, Necessities and the Hampshire County courthouse)." There will be a candlelight vigil in Pulaski Park following the march in mourning for the women who have been injured and killed as a result of abuse. A potluck supper will follow the vigil at 6:30 p.m. at St. John's Episcopal Church in Northampton. The public is invited to attend.

Union Video Center offers variety of video programming

By STEVEN VOGELSANG
Collegian Correspondent

A small group of people responsible for the wide variety of video programming that can be seen on remote television sets in the Student Union can be found in a small room near the Commuter Lounge.

The Union Video Center (UVC), said Dennis Martin general manager, serves to "provide access to video equipment, and to document various events on campus," especially "significant social issues which will promote awareness."

The 15 active members of the UVC are mostly communiation studies majors, although a few art majors said they are becoming interested in the video aspect of art. A coordinating committee of five do most of the administrative work and a lot of other people come down to the UVC "once in a while," said Jim Nelson of the coordinating committee.

One of UVC's main concerns is getting onto video tape any gatherings of social importance on campus. This includes, Nelson said, speakers involved with the Distinguished Visitors Program, Student Senate meetings, and performances produced by the Union Program Council, including band performances at the Blue Wall.

During the next few weeks, UVC will be concentrating on "upgrading" the present cable system throughout the Student Union, Martin said. The "technical aspects" and an overall remodeling of the daily programs will be their focus, he said.

Martin said he believes this effort to upgrade the video system at UMass is important since video, especially video art, is a rapidly growing field. Because of its growing popularity and importance, Martin said, the UVC wants to bring better "video art to UMass."

Annually, in the spring semester, UVC conducts workshops and classes during the arts festival. This spring, UVC is attempting to have video artist Nam June Paik conduct a workshop, Nelson said, but at this point she said the plans are still tentative.

During the spring festival, UVC also conducts a video competition which usually attracts 25 to 30 entrees, Martin said. Preparation for the spring arts festival is already beginning, Nelson said.

Workshops are conducted on a regular basis at the UVC for anyone interested in video production, Nelson said. There are four different workshops that each student must take when beginning the program. For $35, everyone goes through "basic video," where basic use and understanding of black and white video equipment is taught.

This introduction is followed by Advanced Video. Color Video is, as the name implies, the use of the color equipment, and Electronic Editing is the final workshop, in which students are taught how to use the electronic editing machine purchased last year. When all the workshops have been completed, students will know how to use cameras, both color and black and white, the editing machine, the decks, audio equipment and the studio, Nelson said.

With $21,000 from the Student Activities Trust Fund, UVC can manage the daily operating costs and pay two people. A full-time production supervisor and a part-time technical person are the two paid positions which are both open right now. UVC also has the help of two work study people which help out around the center, Nelson said.

As far as reaction from the college community goes, Nelson said, there has been a "positive feedback on services" from everyone. Nelson added that many people enjoy and take advantage of the video tape library that the UVC maintains and adds to daily. The UVC has hundreds of hours of video tape in its library which is available to people or groups and can be signed out. Events from the last three years can be viewed again through the library. "We've had a very positive response to the professional video taping we've done," Nelson said.

FRIDAY MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE HAPPY HOUR

Mike's Smorgy is back!
"All you can eat for $1.00"
Still the best happy hour in town
three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25
Bar drinks - 95¢
4:00 - 7:00

— EVERYTHING FOR HALLOWEEN —

MAKE UP •
MASKS •
COSTUMES

HALLOWEEN DISCOUNT FACTORY
JACKSON FLEA MARKET
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
HADLEY, MASS.
--- EVERY SUNDAY ---
8 A.M. - 5 P.M.
Oct. 17, 24 & 31

Blue Wall continues its success; has various attractions for students

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

The Blue Wall in the Campus Center is off to a good start this semester, relying on a variety of programming that has proven to be successful in past years.

"Preliminary figures for the month of September show that the Blue Wall is currently making a profit and taking in more money than it did last semester," said Mohammad Idrees, Financial Manager of the Campus Center.

"Happy hours on Friday afternoons and concerts on Friday nights, as always, are very popular this semester," said Mary Bourret, assistant manager of the Blue Wall.

Richard Ellis, director of Food Services in the Campus Center, said, "the Blue Wall is taking the things that went well last year and the year before and expounding on them."

So far this year, the Blue Wall has featured student talent nights, comedy nights and free movies which have all been successful in stimulating an increased turnout on some of the slower nights during the beginning of the week.

"Although the ideas are old, the entertainment will all be new and varying," Bourret said. "We are also going to start having Happy Hours on Thursday afternoons with a student entertainer."

On Thursday and Friday nights, the Blue Wall presents top quality bands that are booked by two members of Union Program [UPC] working for the Food Service Department, hiring the majority of entertainment in the Blue Wall. UPC also books afew of its own shows in the Blue Wall as well. Periodically, the Blue Wall presents concerts on Saturday nights, although Saturday has traditionally been the slowest night of the week in the Blue Wall because people like to go off campus.

Newslines . . .

Writing placement test planned for tomorrow

A mandatory test for freshman who have not yet taken the writing program placement test will be given at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in Mahar Auditorium.

The test is a prerequisite for English 190A, which will be offered this spring. Anyone who cannot take the test should call Marcia Curtis at 545-3667.

UMassPIRG to hold clean-a-thon for funds

The University of Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (UMassPIRG) will be picking up litter in the Amherst and Northampton area on Saturday, October 16.

The clean-a-thon is an attempt by UMassPIRG to raise funds for the Bottle Bill campaign. The group will be collecting pledges for every bag of litter they collect. To participate in the Vote Yes on #4 Clean-a-thon, contact the UMassPIRG office at 545-0199.

★Annex

Continued from page 1

In another response on the subject, Campus Center Director William Harris said that issue is not as straight forward as the BOG claims it to be.

As far as the Textbook Annex is concerned, Harris said he would like to see a survey that compares University's prices with those of similar institutions in the area or in the country.

"I think that this would be an important first step in actually evaluting any criticism about the Annex," he said.

BOOK NOW AND TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THESE LOW PRICES

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

RIO DE JANEIRO inc. air, hotel & extras from JFK — from $399.00

LONDON R.T. air from Boston — $439.00

FLORIDA R.T. air from Hartford to various cities — $208.00 Monday-Friday; $250.00 Saturday & Sunday

SPECIALISTS FOR ALL YOUR TRAVEL NEEDS
545-0500
Campus Center 2nd floor
UMass Amherst 01003

"Duchess" by Dexter tan bordovan

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

THE whole wheat PIZZA FACTORY

"WEEK-END SPECIAL"

FRIDAY-SUNDAY:
FROM 7:00pm-3:00am
GET ANY SIZE PIZZA
WITH ALL TOPPINGS
AT ONLY 35¢ EACH

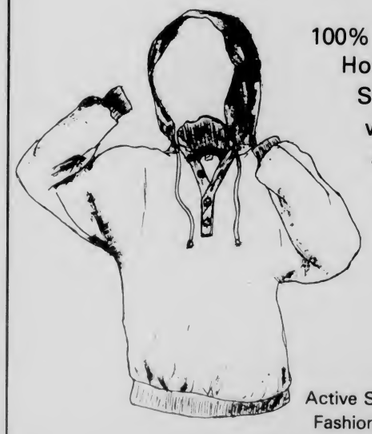
STORE HOURS: (EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1st)
MON.-THUR. 4:00PM - 2:00AM
FRI.-SUN. NOON - 3:00AM
(AMHERST STORE ONLY)

WHOLE WHEAT OR WHITE DOUGH AVAILABLE!
FAST FREE DELIVERY IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS,
AND PICK-UPS IN 15 MINUTES OR LESS.

THE WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA FACTORY CALL 256-8587

Special Purchase

$15.95



100% Acrylic
Hooded
Sweatshirt with Collar
4 buttons

Active Sportswear in Fashion Fall Colors
S - M - L - XL sizes
Limited Quantities

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

FOUR SEASONS

Busch	cans	cs $7.99
Lite	cans	cs $8.99
Tuborg	lite/dark btls	cs $7.99
McGregor Scotch	750 ml.	$5.59
Skol Vodka & Gin	1.75 litre	$8.99
Calvert Whiskey	1.75 L.	$13.99
Gallo Table Wines	1.5 L.	$3.99
Ciriaco Lambrusco	1.5 litre	$3.49
	750 ml.	$1.79

Kegs Free Delivery

Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley,ma./584-8174

Hypercurricula...

Today

CONCERT — Dutch soprano Emily Ameling will perform in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Tickets are still available. 8 p.m., FAC.

UNDERSTANDING RACISM AND SEXISM — One credit colloq will run all day. To register, call 545-0472 or 545-2803. Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Center for Racial Studies, Moore House, Southwest.

Sunday

VIENNA CHOIR BOYS — The Vienna Choir Boys, directed by Franz Farnberger, will perform pieces by Shubert, Mozart and Strauss. They will also perform a comic opera in one act. 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

HOUSE CHURCH — Student group engaged in mutual ministry, bible study, personal sharing and encounter. 7 to 9 p.m., 428 Student Union Building.

SEX AND DRUGS AND ROCKS AND ROLES — Health and Sexualtiy film series sponsored by University Health Services Peer Educators Series. A discussion will follow the film. Film "Condom Sense" will be shown followed by a discussion. 7:30 p.m., Hampden Dining Commons.

CHURCH BUS — Coffee and Donuts served in Grayson lounge at 9 a.m. Bus leaves at 9:30 a.m. Stops at Cashin Dormitory at 9:35 a.m. and NOPE at 9:40 a.m. for Amherst area churches.

Tomorrow

JOHN LEE HOOKER — The world famous bluesman and his Coast to Coast Blues Band will perform in concert sponsored by the Commuter Collective. 8 p.m., Student Union Ballroom.

Remember...

When patronizing our advertisers, make sure to tell them that you saw their ads in the Collegian.

La Cucina di PINOCCHIO

FREE DELIVERY

Pinocchios, with the tastiest hot Pizza and Subs in the valley, now offers fast home delivery too!

We deliver *7 days a week from 5 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Treat yourself to PINOCCHIO'S
2 sizes of Subs
12" and 16" Pizzas
Open 11 a.m. to 3 a.m.
Sunday 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

1177 No. Pleasant St., No. Amherst
549-3669

*Limited delivery area, $3.75 minimum on delivery orders, thank you.

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, OCT. 16
20% OFF ALL STOCK
TIGHTS
LEGWARMERS
LEOTARDS
BODYSUITS
SKIRTS
DANSKIN
Fall Fashion Colors
SAT. ONLY...
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

The rusty nail Inn presents
Saturday, October 16
Billy Idol and the Atlantics
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

THINK DICK'S
FRIDAYS & SATURDAYS
Buy 1
Get 1 FREE
8-10:30
COME ON AND DANCE TO THE BEAT
POOR RICHARDS ASHFUP

Committee for the collegiate Education of Black and Other Minority Students
TUTORS NEEDED

Tutors needed for the following areas:

Math	Spanish	Zoology
Chemistry	Bio-chemistry	Latin
Physics	Italian	Coins

Who: The tutoring will be provided for undergraduates in the CCEBMS Program on a one-to-one basis. The number of hours per week will vary from 1-3 per student.
When: The tutoring will take place during the day or evening depending on the schedule of the tutor and tutees.
Qualifications: Graduate student or seniors; mastery of subject area, previous tutoring and/or teaching experience desired.
Applications are available in Room 217, New Africa House.
Deadline: October 22, 1982.

amc THEATRES
Matinee & Twilite $2.00 Reduced prices for students with an AMC Discount Card
amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL
E.T. the EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL
He is afraid. He is totally alone.
Sat (1:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
Sun (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 8:00, 8:15
PG Fri (4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
PINK FLOYD THE WALL
Fri (4:30 @$2.00) 7:15, 9:55
Sat (1:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:55
Sun (1:30 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 6:15, 8:45
R
RICHARD GERE
AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sat (2:15 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sun (1:00 & 3:30 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
R
The other side of World War II.
Das Boot
Fri (4:15 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:30
Sat (1:15 & 4:15 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:30
R Sun (2:00 & 5:45 @ $2.00) 8:30
amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
THE YEAR THE DREAMS CAME TRUE
PETER O'TOOLE
MY FAVORITE YEAR
Fri (4:45 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
Sat (2:15 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
Sun (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 6:15, 8:15
PG
THE SOLDIER
HE'S OUR GOVERNMENT'S MOST GUARDED SECRET.
Fri (5:15 @ $2.00) 7:30, 10:15
Sat (2:30 & 5:15 @ $2.00) 7:30, 10:15
Sun (1:30 & 4:00 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
ALL NEW
RICHARD PRYOR LIVE ON THE SUNSET STRIP
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 8:00, 10:15
Sat (2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 8:00, 10:15
Sun (1:30 & 4:00 @ $2.00) 6:30, 8:45
ROBIN WILLIAMS
He's got a funny way of looking at life
THE WORLD ACCORDING TO Garp
Fri (4:30 & $2.00) 7:15, 9:55
Sat (1:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:55
Sun (12:45 & 3:30 @ $2.00) 6:15, 9:00
MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY 12:15 AM ALL SEATS
amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
50¢ off to anyone in costume
R
Apocalypse Now
R
THE MONSTER MOVIE
AN AMERICAN WEREWOLF IN LONDON
R
PINK FLOYD: the Wall
R

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
FRI.
HAPPY HOUR/3-6 PM
with Steve Spellman
ROCK WITH THE NEIGHBORHOODS
AND KASPAR HAUSER
$2.00 COVER
SAT. MITCH CHAKOUR WITH URBAN RENEWAL
sponsored by U.P.C. $2.00

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The art of being your own parents

One of the most challenging things about making the transition of living at home to living away from home is learning to be your own parents. How often, now that we're all "college adults", have we heard the popular threat, "You're not going anywhere until you eat your breakfast?" Probably never, or at least less than we would hear it at home.

Steve Becker

I'm sure many of us can relate to the jar of hard coffee and sour milk which is always an instant breakfast standby, or the pretty green oranges that could never quite decide which fruit to be, or the frosting covered cinderblocks that Grandma tried to pass off as birthday cake.

In short, when Mom and Dad aren't around, anything and everything will pass as adequate breakfast material. In fact, only yesterday a burst of goodwill and generosity came over me, and I sat in my room eating half a container of Cheez Balls just to let someone else take my place in the D.C.

No doubt, some very independant young adults find the task of becoming their own parents a relatively painless one. Others very quickly realize that Mommy and Daddy are not going to be there to tuck them in at night, or to pick out tomorrow's clothes, or to take them to see Aunt Bertha's new zinnia collection. I nearly caused one desperately homesick freshman to break down in tears simply by mentioning the words "mother" and "father". I immediately apologized, and reassured him that Northampton is only a few minutes away, and his parents would probably love to have him for the weekend. So, he took my advice and went home. Permanently. Never heard from him again. However, his roommate did call to thank me for the single.

As most of us know, there are certain modes of living which have some parental input at home, but get much less stringent treatment when applied to the unrestrained college student.

As those of us who live in a dorm know, a typical room here has a unique flavor all its own. Some popular styles include Early American Budweiser and 20th Century Lacrosse Stick, styles that inevitably set trends in other rooms as well. other innovative motifs I've noticed are Modern Dirty Laundry, Contemporary Bar & Grill (mostly bar), Progressive 24 hr. Drug store, Multi-Colored Party Ornaments, Take-Out Chinese Restaurant, Traditional Stolen Road Sign, and of course, Overdone Garfield Poster and Accesories. (Incidentally, I need not mention that Resident Assistant pasted to Ceiling is definitely a no-no in most dorms.)

At this point, many of you may be wondering to yourselves, "O.K. I'm living away from home (possibly for the first time), I've acquired a great amount of independance, and freedom to live the way I choose — what would my parents think if they could see the way I'm living here at UMass?" Well, forget it. Put aside all those useless rules you were force fed at home. You know, the ones like "Don't run with the scissors," and "Don't pick your nose at the table." They're history now. Just look ahead and remember: You can't live under your parents' wings forever. Whether they want to believe it or not, you're on your own now — adult, independant, your own parents.

Now, about the way you've been eating lately...

Steve Becker is a UMass student.

School outside the classroom

In the struggle for good grades and, ultimately, good jobs, too many college students neglect to take time to think about those things which aren't found in classrooms or textbooks. It has become a cliche on this campus to get involved with "social issues" such as racism and sexism, but too many students fail to realize that these problems aren't going to diminish or disappear entirely after graduation. Students have a prime opportunity to learn about the background and theory of these social concerns while they are in school, so that when they leave here they will have the skills with which to make changes. Unfortunately, given the current job market, a large number of students are choosing to spend all of their free time cramming for the best grades they can get, in the hope that this alone will make them an "educated person." This is a dangerous trend.

Beverly Davis

It is so easy for first year students to develop a kind of academic paranoia. Courses are difficult and classwork is heavy; it often seems that the only way to survive is to study constantly. Many say that they'll wait till next year to get involved; after all, these problems aren't going away. What can the average freshman gain from extra-curricular activities — a much better perspective on their classes. What students choose to do is only slightly more important than getting involved and gaining experience.

Sophomores and juniors have probably realized by now the importance of taking breaks from the academic world. Declaring one's major often emphasizes the need for practical learning experiences as well as theoretical study. Now is the perfect time for these students to devote some of their energy to the pursuit of tangible goals, especially if graduation still seems far away and slightly irrelevant to their lives. There are many things they can do that will not only better their life as a student but will also have permanent benefits to the community. (Supporting a grievance procedure for students who have been sexually harassed and lobbying for continued financial aid are two examples. The learning gained through working on these issues will be a lifelong benefit.

This is a particularly grim year to be a senior. The pleasures of one's last year on campus are being overshadowed by fears of unemployment after graduation, and many seniors are missing their last chance to take that fascinating course or join that interesting organization because they are too frightened to do anything but worry about higher grades and better jobs. They should be careful — high grades don't always guarantee good jobs. By taking that chance and getting involved before it's too late, seniors will make the transition to the working world easier. For many it could be their most exciting and enriching experience here.

An undergraduate degree means that one is considered an "educated person." To be a truly educated person requires learning many things outside of classrooms. Hopefully all students won't miss out on the finer points of a well-rounded education by worrying only about their grade point average. No one gets graded on life.

Beverly Davis is a UMass student

Letters

Individual's right to bear arms supported by majority of nation

To the Editor:

I do not wish to kill, I am not the National Rifle Association, and I'm not "gun-ho" as Kevin DeLuca ("U.S. Hostage To Handguns", October 13, 1982) might be led to believe. However, I do believe in the individual's right to keep and bear arms, as do 88 percent of the American electorate (based on date from the 1978 Decision Making Information Polls). This, Mr. DeLuca, is the majority. 93 percent of these same people favor strict mandatory penalties for use of firearms in violent crime (shootouts and killings are not accepted by the American public, and are far from their idea of a fantasy come true), and 57 percent feel more gun control laws would not reduce crime.

This last point is supported by research conducted by Professors James D. Wright and Peter Rossi of the Social and Demographic Research Institute of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, funded by a grant from the National Institute of Justice. Among their findings was that "there is 'no persuasive evidence' to support the commonly expressed view that 'much homocide would not occur where firearms are generally less available'."

Ilse M. Boebel
Chicopee

Random Notes

To the Editor:

As advocates of democracy and free choice, we have a bone to pick.

We would like to know how the candidates for the Look calendar, being sold in the University Store, were selected. Admittedly, they are worthy specimens, but we feel cheated out of our fair chance to compete. All our buddies say we are just as handsome (maybe better) than the winners. We feel we should have been among the luscious pool of contestants.

We hope in the future this honorable publication will give more widespread publicity to the competition so that we "closet cuties" can emerge and get a piece of the pinup pie.

Names and address witheld for the sake of good taste

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Bill Shea, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karnasik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Arts

The Neighborhoods (above) along with Kasper Hauser will be playing tonight at Blue Wall.

live wire

by Phil Plante

Has your skin turned a sickly greenish color from the fluorescent lights in the Tower? Do your friends call you the mole because they never see you? Have they all deserted you because you study so much. Loosen up! Get out of your burrow! Things are getting a little better musically each week in the Valley Area.

Friday night The Neighborhoods and Kaspar Hausar (a techno-new wave band composed of UMass students), are playing at the Blue Wall. "We're cerebral," says Dave Wildman of Kaspar Hausar. Kaspar Hausar's new single, produced by none other than David Minahan of the 'Hoods, is due for release soon. If you think New Wave smells funny, Fountainhead is wicked psyched to provide some kickass rock 'n roll at Hangar One in Hadley. Claire Arenius who drummed last year for Marion Brown at Sheehan's is playing with the Art Matthews Quartet at the Iron Horse in Noho. The Race is playing at the Rusty Nail in Sunderland supposedly as a new band.

Saturday night finds us with a mix of the old and the new. Billy Idol, formerly of Generation X, will appear Saturday night with the Atlantics at the Rusty Nail. Tickets are available at the door only. The show starts at 7 p.m. Also on Saturday night, bluesman John Lee Hooker will bring his blues legacy to the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets may be purchased at The Commuter Collective. And at $3, they're a steal. Mitch Chakour (a la Petey Frampton) along with Urban Renewal are at the Blue Wall. Admission is half price with a John Lee Hooker tix stub.

Tickets for jazz guitarist Herb Ellis performance at the Iron Horse Sunday night are still on sale. They're on sale at the door. Once again, Hangar One will holding a New Wave Dance Party Sundy night and once again 8th Route Army and the Exiles are featured.

feast & folly restaurant
SPECIALIZING IN CHICKEN, FISH & VEGETARIAN ENTREES $3.25 $4.95
DINNER IS SOMETHING SPECIAL
111 PLEASANT ST.
NORTHAMPTON — 586-8387
BYOB CLOSED TUES.

For women
DISTRESSED by PREGNANCY...
Services that are confidential, helpful, caring and free.
Birthright
Amherst area 549-1906
Hadley area 732-6184

$12.95
Men's Acrylic V-Neck
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant
Fri till 9 pm
(behind Silverscape)
Sat 10 - 6
253-9729

Take Charge At 22.

In most jobs, at 22 you're near the bottom of the ladder.

In the Navy, at 22 you can be a leader. After just 16 weeks of leadership training, you're an officer. You'll have the kind of job your education and training prepared you for, and the decision-making authority you need to make the most of it.

As a college graduate and officer candidate, your Navy training is geared to making you a leader. There is no boot camp. Instead, you receive professional training to help you build the technical and management skills you'll need as a Navy officer.

This training is designed to instill confidence by first-hand experience. You learn by doing. On your first sea tour, you're responsible for managing the work of up to 30 men and the care of sophisticated equipment worth millions of dollars.

It's a bigger challenge and a lot more responsibility than most corporations give you at 22. The rewards are bigger, too. There's a comprehensive package of benefits, including special duty pay. The starting salary is $16,400—more than most companies would pay you right out of college. After four years, with regular promotions and pay increases, your salary will have increased to as much as $29,800.

As a Navy officer, you grow, through new challenges, new tests of your skills, and new opportunities to advance your education, including the possibility of attending graduate school while you're in the Navy.

Don't just take a job. Become a Navy officer, and take charge. Even at 22.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER W 212
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015
☐ I'm ready to take charge. Tell me more about the Navy's officer programs. (OG)
Name (First) (Please Print) (Last)
Address Apt #
City State Zip
Age *College/University
†Year in College •GPA
▲Major/Minor
Phone Number (Area Code) Best Time to Call
This is for general recruitment information. You do not have to furnish any of the information requested. Of course, the more we know, the more we can help to determine the kinds of Navy positions for which you qualify.

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

Arts

Year a favorite

My Favorite Year
Directed by Richard Benjamin
Mountain Farms 4

By JANE BUCHBINDER
Collegian Staff

The modern day Don Quixote lives, though this film is in no way a literary masterpiece. Our knight-errante is called Alan Swann (Peter O'Toole). He is chivalrous, laughable, and lost in his attempt to separate reality from the illusions he creates as a movie star hero. He comes to us complete with provacative English accent, wiseacre delineated features, and sword.

But, as he tells us, his status allows him to "get away with murder" and he does, riding out his illusion and losing himself in the wave. He is equipped at all times with a bottle pacifier in case a situation gets difficult, or if he just feels like escaping from his continuous subconscious battle to sustain his public image.

The film revolves around this actor idol and a comedy writer idolizer who shows him around New York City attempting to keep him out of trouble until the day of their live T.V. boradcast. Benji Stone (Mark Linn-Baker) is our writer who, not so different from Jimmy Olsen, helps Swann to find truth without losing the American way.

The movie is chock full of over used gimmicks, occasionally adding an original twist. But if tired or defenseless enough, a viewer can fall for these stops once again.

There are Benji Stone's (alias Benjamin Steinberg) middle-class parents; his typical bussomy Brooklyn Jewish mother and her not-so-typical Filipino, ex-boxer husband who cooks parrot "Meatloaf", and dusts at the command of his loud, domineering wife.

There is, again, the aging movie star who repeatedly gets the girl (even if she does sleep with stuffed animals) and charms old women by kissing their hands. The swordsman with his transient reality surprises us as he reinacts nobel movie duels and Tarzan swings. He even has his token sun-bound horseride, complete with "Hi-ho Silver" leap. His companion, however, is no fair maiden, it is Tanto Steinberg!

Steinberg battles to keep Swann in line at the same time trying to win his own girl. He is our identifiable hero. But we must suffer through an out-of-place, out-of-character love scene where boy gets girl over a container of Chinese food and a "Swani" film clip. Benji follows the words and actions of the star until they are simultaneously kissing their objectified trophies.

But there is sweetness in this movie also. One does feel for Mr. Swann as he fumbles in trying to attain decency and dependability. He has been unpredictable to the business that created and owns him, indecent to himself, and most painfully, unfaithful to his blonde cherubic daughter.

And what would be a film like this without a happy ending? It's all a nice neat semi-predictable package but not a waste of time. My Favorite Year provides a willing audience with an occational chuckle and plastered amused grin. The characters, though at times straining for a laugh, are easily likeable. The do survive, though they tell us "dying is easy, comedy is difficult."

Jessica Harper and Mark-Linn Baker in My Favorite Year's obligatory romance.

Palace a smash

SMASH PALACE
Directed by Roger Donaldson
Pleasant St. Theatre

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Correspondent

Smash Palace is director Roger Donaldson's moving and often humorous depiction of the break-up of a family.

Bruno Lawrence plays Alan Shaw, a former race car driver who leaves the circuit to run the family business in New Zealand. The business is an auto graveyard from which the film gets its name. It is here that Alan settles with his French wife, Jacqui, and their eight year-old daughter, Georgie, into a domestic life.

But after eight years of this calm existence, Jacqui, played by Anna Jemison, begins to grow bored. She longs for the glamorous life she had before marrying Alan. Anna Jemison portrays Jacqui's boredom with a coolness that, as the film progresses, translates into a sensous need for her own identity.

Alan is at a loss as to how to deal with his wife's deepening dissatisfaction with their life. It is this frustration that sparks some of the film's hilarious moments. Also confused is Georgie, played by Greer Robson. One of the poignant aspects of Smash Palace is watching Georgie's face as it changes from mere confusion to grim tragedy as the tension mounts between her parents.

As the alienation widens between Alan and Jacqui, Ray Foley, a local police officer, is the close friend that both husband and wife turn to for advice. Foley, played by Keith Aberdein, tries to remain calm even though he is drawn into the situation by his romantic involvement with Jacqui. Foley feels that he has betrayed his best friend and has added to the problem.

When Jacqui leaves, taking Georgie with her, Alan cannot accept the new state of affairs. At first he tries reason to win them back. But he is unable to communicate with them. Finally he resorts to a desperate act that marks all of them for tragedy. The tension explodes onto the screen as we follow Alan into the New Zealand bush country.

Smash Palace is a film that centers on a common problem that touches families everywhere. Director Roger Donaldson shows that it can affect people even in the most isolated places. Bruno Lawrence cannot be praised enough in bringing to the screen the tragedy of a husband whose whole world is falling apart. Smash Palace is a striking portrait of a now universal problem.

Keith Aberdein and Anna Jemison in Roger Donaldson's Smash Palace.

trailers

by Andy Gordon

Dan O'Herlihy is a diabolical maskmaster in Universal's Halloween III.

This week's Trailers is dedicated to Universal Pictures, who has just released its production schedule through next September.

First on the list is Moonlighting, which is due for local release in the coming weeks. Winner of the Cannes Film Festival award for best screenplay, the movie tells the story of four builders who travel from their homeland in Poland to renovate the London residence of a wealthy countryman of theirs. While in London, the Polish military coup of December, 1981, takes place. Only one of the builders speaks English, and he makes a conscious decision not to tell the others what is going on back in their country. The films stars Jeremy Irons.

Then of course there's Halloween III, about Halloween, witchcraft, Stonehenge's ancient powers and a diabolical maskmaker with a fiendish doomsday machine. Dan O'Herlihy and Stacey Nelkin star in the film, Jamie Lee Curtis does not. The picture will open on October 22.

Several films are scheduled to open on December 17. The first is a tearjerky love story starring Mary Tyler Moore and Dudley Moore. Six Weeks also stars Katherine Healy as Moore's daughter, who serves as a catalyst for the couple's unexpected romance. The press release doesn't say so, but I think the daughter has a terminal disease or something.

The Pirates of Penzance is the film version of the recent Broadway production by Joseph Papp. The Gilbert and Sullivan classic reunites the original Broadway cast, which includes Kevin Kline, Angela Lansbury, Linda Ronstadt and Rex Smith.

Also opening the 17th is The Dark Crystal, a fantasy from Gary Kurtz, Frank Oz, and Jim Henson. Based on these men's past achievements, the megabudgeted picture shouldn't be missed, though it's plotline sounds confusing. Part of the release reads as follows: "Unless Jen, a Gelfling, a can journey through hostile wilderness to fulfill a prophecy, the rule of the Skeksi will be confirmed forever."

Getting a one week jump on these films is Sophie's Choice and The Sting II. The former is based on the acclaimed novel by William Styron, about a young man, aspiring to be a writer, who falls in love with the beautiful, enigmatic Sophie. Meryl Streep plays the title character, a Catholic who was imprisoned at Auschwitz by the Germans and has been living with the tremendous guilt of having survived the death camp while everyone she loved had perished. Kevin Kline plays the writer who is changed by the experience. Alan J. Pakula directed the film.

The Sting II was written by David Ward, who authored the original. Again set in New York in 1940, the main characters are now played by Jackie Gleason and Mac Davis. The film is purported to be "much funnier" than the last one. Teri Garr and Karl Malden also star.

More Universal coming attractions next week.

Local Best Bet: My Dinner with Andre will play tonight and tomorrow at the Amherst Cinema and shouldn't be missed. Also, the Calvin has a double feature of Blue Collar and Mean Streets, two brilliant early films by Paul Schrader and Martin Scorsese, respectively.

TRAILERS Trivia: Christopher Lloyd and Danny DeVito (Jim and Louie in "Taxi") starred together in a film years ago. Name the film and the characters they portrayed (club: the film won best picture that year). Answer to last week's question: Bill Haley and the Comets wrote and recorded the soundtrack to Rebel Without a Cause.

BE PART OF THE TRADITION

UMASS SKI CLUB

MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15

11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 18 - 21
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH

11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83

NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

INFO & SIGN-UP MEETINGS

OCT. 19 HAMDEN THEATER 7:00

OCT. 20 PUBLIC HEALTH 3:00

OCT 21 CAMPUS CENTER Room 101 4:00

INFO TABLE CAMPUS CENTER CONCORSE EVERY W,TH,F 9-3

or OFFICE 430A STUDENT UNION 5-3437

"2 for 1" Happy Hour
3-6 MON.-FRI.

Luncheon: Monday-Friday/11:30 am-2 pm
Dinner: Tuesday-Thursday/5 pm-8 pm
Friday & Saturday/5 pm-9 pm

For Reservations,
Please Call 549-6000, ext. 639

Lounge Hours:
Monday-Friday/11:30 am-1 am
Saturday & Sunday/5 pm-1 am

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Show Your Colors in Style

Imprinted Winterwear

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

★polymers

Continued from page 1

"Professor (Roger S.) Porter is doing some interesting work in ultra-strong polymers," he said. "These are polymers that have strength greater than steel."

Research in this area is also being conducted by Professors Robert W. Lenz and Edwin L. Thomas, who is studying materials like Kevlar under a U.S. Air Force grant, for potential use in airplane construction.

"It used to be that the cost of fuel was something like 10 to 20 percent of the cost of operating an airline, and now it's risen to 50 percent — so reducing weight is a very important thing to do," Professor Stein said.

Professor Otto Vogl is working on polymers which could be attached to drugs in order to keep them from reaching certain parts of the body. This would be particularly useful in chemotherapy, where extremely toxic drugs are used.

"By attaching the drug to a polymer molecule, you can prevent that drug from diffusing through biological membranes," Professor Stein said. If that polymer slowly degrades with time, then a time-release means of administering a drug is possible. This would be useful in drugs which have to be taken regularly over long periods of time such as contraceptives and insulin for diabetics.

Professor James C.W. Chien is working on developing electrically conducting polymers. These could be cheaper and lighter than the metals such as copper which are currently used in wiring. This could be very useful in constructing light-weight batteries for use in electric cars.

Professor Richard J. Farris is studying materials that could be used to construct a rubber heat engine. This would be a rather simple device, looking like a bicycle wheel with rubber spokes. Differential heating would cause the spokes to expand and contract and turn the wheel. Any source of heating, such as the sun, could be used to drive this machine and it might have particular use for irrigation in developing countries.

Associate professor Shaw Ling Hsu is working on polymer resists sensitive to electrons. Resists are an essential part in the silicon chip manufacturing process which allow electronic circuits to be photoreduced to microscopic sizes. As the size of these chip components becomes increasingly small, electron beams have to be used to etch out the patterns on the silicon, and resists sensitive to electrons are necessary.

Hsu, born in Shanghai, is a physicist, and is representative of the increasing number of scientists from other disciplines getting involved in polymers.

"This field has been dominated by chemists but the percentage of engineers and physicists has been increasing in recent years," he said. Hsu, who is involved with some of the more abstract theories of polymer behavior, emphasizes the importance of polymers in industry.

"There's no doubt in my mind that most chemists and chem engineers in private industry are involved in polymer chemistry," he said.

The polymer science and engineering department has been headed since 1976 by Professor William J. MacKnight, formerly of the chemistry department, who said he has seen polymer research at UMass continue its rapid growth. Last year's funding for the entire polymer program totaled more than $3.7 million plus general overhead support by the university. While the bulk of this funding comes from government sources, an unusually large 25 percent comes from private industry grants, reflecting the strong ties this program has with the chemical industries. According to MacKnight, private industry is generally reluctant to fund University research and this high level of funding "took a lot of work."

FALL AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER

Elly Ameling
Friday, October 15 8:00 p.m.

Vienna Choir Boys
Saturday, October 16 8:00 p.m.

Monday, October 18 8:00 PM
THE ZAGREB GRAND BALLET

Scottish National Orchestra
Monday, October 25, 8:00 p. m.

The Intimate P.D.Q. BACH
Sunday, October 31 8:00 p.m.

Siamsa
The National Folk Theatre of Ireland
Tuesday, November 2 8:00 p.m.

All shows on sale now
MC, VISA - CHARGE YOUR TICKETS TODAY
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F
545-2511

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Ross University
Schools of Medicine and Veterinary Medicine

Now accepting applications for study leading to degree in both Medicine and Veterinary Medicine. Courses taught in English. Programs under guidance of American Dean utilizing American curriculum. Transfer students accepted. Semester begins March 1983. We are an accredited school and listed in W.H.O. and affiliated with U.S. hospitals for clinical rotation. Direct inquiries to:

Ross University
Portsmouth, Dominica, W.I. Attention: Mr. Butler or Caribbean Admissions, Inc
16 West 32 Street, New York, N.Y. 10001

Halloween Novelty and Theatrical Supplies
Open Daily & Sat 9 to 5:15
Thurs. Nights till 9
Fri. Oct. 29 till 9
Check Our Low Prices
H.L. Childs & Son
25 State Street Northampton
584-2604

THE WEEKENDER
Opening ~ Oct. 17th in Hampshire
Continuing in Worcester, with
"STEAK MENU" new hours: 4:30-7:30pm
$2.00 plus Board Plan I.D.
"A Special Alternative" to Sundays at Franklin & Berkshire

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

VANITIES and DARK OF THE MOON
In Repertory Oct. 22-Nov. 20
(Call 545-3511 for Student Rates)

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

The Distinguished Visitors Program presents:

Harvey Wasserman:

Killing Our Own:

The Disaster of Americas

Experience with Atomic Radiation

Student Union Ballroom

Tuesday, October 19, at 8 p.m.

Free with valid ID

John Lee Hooker
and the Coast To Coast
Blues Band
IN CONCERT

Saturday Oct. 16th
SUB/UMass 8 pm.
Gen. ADM...$3
404 SUB UMass
Tix Unlimited--UMass
Tickets on Sale at:
For the Record--Amherst
Main St. Records-Nton
Commuter Office--
For More Info...545-2145
SPONSORED BY THE COMMUTER COLLECTIVE & the GOVERNORS PROGRAM COUNCIL

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

安城中國餐店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

The largest selection of hard aluminum MEASURING TOOLS in the country!

FAIRGATE

STRAIGHT EDGES/T-SQUARES
METRIC RULES/L-SQUARES
CENTERING RULES
TRIANGLES/CURVE STICKS
INKING RULES
and many others...

SEE THEM AT YOUR BOOKSTORE or SEND FOR CATALOG

FAIRGATE RULE CO., INC.
27 Adams Ave.
P.O. Box 278
COLD SPRING, N.Y.
U.S.A. 10516

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Pizza
Tuna Oriental

BASICS LUNCH
Pizza
Tuna Oriental

DINNER
Savory Beef Strudel
Mushroom Sauce
Baked Fish
Herb Crumb Topping
Fruit Plate
with Saltines

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Baked Fish
Herb Crumb Topping

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

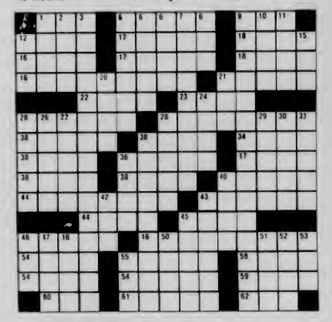
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Urgent appeal
4 Part of a car
9 '—— walks in beauty'
12 Gainer
13 Playwright Loos
14 Mike or Thelma
16 All tied up
17 B.S.A. unit
18 Certain canal
19 Desert danger
21 Freshet
22 Arrow poison
23 Foot part
25 Button Gwinnett, for one
28 Arctic threats
32 Mother's kinsmen
33 Hyde Park vehicle
34 Palindromic time
35 English spa
36 'All About Eve' character
37 F.D.R.'s mother
38 Bet
39 Of anger: Lat.
40 Kind of system
41 Scones
43 Source of light
44 Encumbrance
45 Word with in or out
46 Billiards shot
49 Incisive
54 Cultivate
55 Stone heap
56 Writer Wiesel
57 Type of shark
58 Lithe
59 That one: Lat.
60 Letters
61 Acceptances
62 Marsh of movie fame

DOWN
1 God of the Hindu trinity
2 Dutch ——
3 Song hit by 9 Down
4 Jargon
5 John Mc——, tennis star
6 Christian of fashion
7 Twentieth century phenomenon
8 Portable seat, in a way
9 "West Side Story" lyricist
10 Hour: Sp.
11 Redact
12 —— Plains, NW of Chicago
15 Fourth in a series
20 Ko-Ko's weapon
21 College deg.
24 Jules Verne character
25 Hebrew month
26 Empty
27 Cat. in Catania
28 Former star of light opera Petina, et al.
29 Norwegian explorer Amundsen
30 Goat antelope of SE Asia
31 Involve
33 Extraction
36 Wallace of TV
40 Levantine ketch
42 Purpose
43 Riviera resort
45 Hostess Mesta
46 NCO
47 Perennial plant
48 Red horse
50 Danish-American journalist 1849-1914
51 Nazimova
52 Africa's longest river
53 Where golfers meet
55 Islet



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

B	E	E	R		T	H	A	W		S	T	A
A	K	I	L	E		H	E	L	E	N	O	W
S	T	E	M		I	R	A	N		N	O	T
	O	N	E	A	R	M	E	D	B	A	N	D
L	A	M	B	D	A		S	M	E	E
	B	E	R		J	S		S	T	H
M	O	N	E	D	A		W	I	S	K	E	Y
A	M	I	R		T	R	I	E		S	E	R
P	I	N		B	E	A	N		N	A	I	R
	T	E	L	E	M	A	G	E	R
S	M	A	L	T		L	A	R	I	A	T
F	O	U	R	L	E	A	F	C	L	O	V	E
E	L	S	E		B	R	O	D	L		R	O
D	E	E	D		S	E	R	V	O		N	I
S	O	S	O		A	M	E	N		G	E	T

WEATHER

Mostly cloudy today with a chance of a shower, high about 60. Sunny and breezy and cool tomorrow, with highs in the 50s.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Wake up with Bettina
9-noon	Concepto Latino
12-3pm	The Rhythm Section with Carl Lowman
3-5:30pm	Jim McDee
5:30-6pm	Newswatch
6-7pm	Athena's Web with Don Cerow
7-10pm	T.K.
10-2am	Radical Dance Faction with Mercedes
2-6am	New Music with Avandel

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Thursday

I'm going home this weekend Video

10:30 - 11:00	A weekend with Wendalin Glatzel
11:00 - 12:30	Beau Bolero (The sounds of Steely Dan from the Wall)
12:30 - 1:30	Spyro Gyro music and the men
1:30 - 1:45	Last Great Americans
1:45 - 2:00	Parachutting

Jayvee football in the red

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD, MA. — Following the University of Massachusetts JV football loss to Harvard, 7-6, JV coach Steve Telander had high hopes for the next game against AIC.

Those hopes were very quickly shattered.

What was a closely contested contest in the first half turned into a runaway as AIC ran away with a 33-7 victory over the struggling Minutemen.

Playing without the services of starting quarterback Mark Tabor, the jayvee's got off to an early lead as replacement quarterback Shawn O'Rourke hit wide receiver Abe Yacteen with a 40 yard bomb. But, the Minutemen couldn't protect their lead and by halftime, it was 14-7 in favor of AIC.

The offense had trouble moving the ball in the second half, giving the defense poor field position. AIC took advantage of this and posted 19 more points in the second half to register their 33-7 victory.

"They weren't any better than Harvard," said Telander. "We just didn't move the ball. The kids are still getting the game experience they need. We even had two kids playing offense and defense."

Yacteen was the star of the game, making several talented catches, including the touchdown reception. Also playing well on offense was tailback Frankie Fay, who gained 50 yards rushing. On defense, Jim Kane and Dave Almedia played well.

This leaves the Minutemen with an 0-2 record. More bad news ensues when it was learned that fullback Rich Garcia would be out for the season with a broken leg.

The JV's next game is Sunday against Brown, who, according to Telander, was near the best JV team they have faced the past 3 or 4 years.

"We have to be better offensively. We have to give the defense better field position. If we can put together some kind of offense, we can make things tough," said Telander.

Roundball Rap looks at new faces in the NBA

By BRIAN C. MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

The Celtics have lost two of their first three games this season but there's nothing to be worried about, the rookies have been playing most of the second half, plus, Kevin McHale hasn't played yet due to an injury.

Don't be surprised if John Schweitz makes the squad, he's an excellent shooter. Danny Ainge hasn't shot well up to date, and no one can understand why.

The Celts are on TV tonight against the Lakers at Hartford. It's on Ch. 56. Don't expect to see James Worthy, he's hurt and probably won't play.

The Utah Jazz are going to put some points up on the board. With a squad that includes Adrian Dantley, Darrell Griffith, Freeman Williams and John Drew they'll be able to fill it up. Too bad defense is an integral part of the game.

Down at the Meadowlands, backboards were being shattered again. This time the culprit was James Bailey, not Darryl from Lovetron. Bailey played his school ball at Xaverian High School in Attleboro and his college ball at Rutgers University.

The Knicks have loads of talent this year with the acquisition of Truck Robinson and the re-signing of Paul Westphal. If and when Michael Ray Richardson plays using a brain instead of a pea, he'll be phenomenal. Bill Cartwright has been such a disappointment since he has turned pro.

Reportedly Reggie Theus is still available for any takers....One of the big guns for Utah mentioned earlier is also available, with Dantley's name coming up more than once. Terry Cummings still might find his way into the NBA.

Athletes in Action has a very good shot at going broke by the end of this year, and Donald Sterling won't be around much longer. The NBA was going to take the franchise away from him in the best interest of the sport, but it seems as if a buyer is almost ready. Sterling was supposedly dripping in money when he bought the team, but a local San Diego paper has discovered that Sterling has been under litigation in 61 cases in the last 10 years for his business dealings. And to think John Y. Brown was a bad owner.

Speaking of John Y., he should trade his wife, Phyllis George for Robin Young. Bill Robinzine, who just committed suicide because he felt no one was interested in him anymore, was being seriously considered by the Seattle Supersonics.

Bruce Atkins of Duguesne has an excellent shot at making the Sixer team.

Noteworthy cuts by NBA teams....Perry Moss, from Northeastern and who lives in Amherst for those of you who were caught in a time warp, was cut by the Celtics yesterday. You know he didn't have much of a future when Bill Fitch told him he should spend a year in the Continental Basketball Association.

Also cut by the Celts yesterday were Tony Guy, a second rounder from Kansas, and Panagotti Giannakis, a ninth rounder from Hellenic College....

Mike McKay from UConn was cut by the Utah Jazz...Eddie Thurman, who started at Lynn Classical and was the MVP of the 1977 Boston Shootout, was cut by the Dallas Maverick. Thurman spent the first two years of his college career at Wake Forest before transferring to Holy Cross his junior year....

Dwight Anderson of USC, who hit that remarkable behind the backboard shot last year was cut by the Washington Bullets. By the way, that amazing shot should've been nullified. A shot cannot be good if it crosses over the top of the backboard. Poncho Wright of Louisville was released by Kansas City...Kenny Arnold of Iowa was let go by Dallas...

TIME OUT

Friday is

Two TV's

Great Juke and Stereo

FUN NIGHT at Amherst's Biggest Little Bar

37 N Pleasant St, Amherst MA

Baseball Style Jacket

Special Purchase 19.95

Printed Back

Color - maroon/white

Sizes S-M-L-XL
Limited Quantities Available

Located in the Clothing Department
Open M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

WHOLE WHEAT AND WHITE DOUGH THE

whole wheat PIZZA FACTORY

"SUPER DAYTIME SPECIAL"
FRIDAY-SUNDAY*

A SMALL (12") PIZZA
WITH ANY TWO TOPPINGS
FROM OUR WIDE MENU
FOR JUST $3.75

FAST FREE DELIVERY
IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS
(PICK-UPS IN 10 MIN.)

HOURS
MON.-THUR.
4:00pm-2:00am
FRI.-SUN.
NOON-3:00am.

* Noon-5:00pm

CALL: 256-8587

THE WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA FACTORY 363 MAIN ST. AMHERST

Sports

The men's tennis team droped a 6-3 match to Clark University yesterday making their record 7-2. They play again on Monday at West Point in their final match of the fall season.

Big, big weekend for field hockey

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team will be putting its eight game unbeaten streak on the line this weekend when the stickers face their toughest competition thus far this season in Temple and Old Dominion University.

"We've moved up to sixth since last week," said coach Pam Hixon. "Temple is fifth, and ODU third. In other words, we have nothing to lose and all to gain if we beat either or both of these two teams."

Both games, Temple today, and ODU tomorrow, will be played on the artificial turf at Temple in Philadelphia.

In preparation for this hard fast surface, Hixon had her team practicing on the floor in NOPE gym Wednesday night, and on the turf at Westfield State Thursday before departing for Phillie.

The practice at NOPE was an intense one, with the stickers repeating drills for twenty minutes at a time. Between criticisms and encouragements, Hixon spoke highly of her team.

"The girls have a good attitude. These two teams have big reputations, so the games will be exciting and needless to say the competition will be still," Hixon said.

"We are going to play our very best without worrying about tomorrow," Hixon said. "We're going in there with a spoiler attitude. Temple and ODU have bigger reputations than we have," she said.

"The turf will definitely help our game," said Hixon. "We want to play on a surface like this because it will allow us to use skills which are not as strong on the grass."

Forward Patti Smith agrees with Hixon.

"It is easier to field the ball on the turf," she said. "The quickness of the turf will help our forward line play a more controlled game."

Hixon noted that these two games are important not only because of the caliber of each team, but also because a team's ranking in the tournament at the end of the season depends upon its final record.

"Each team is under the same roof. This is one of the bigger weekends in field hockey, and there are a lot of people that will be watching the outcome of these games," Hixon said.

The general feeling among the stickers themselves is one of eagerness and anticipation.

"We are looking forward to two great games," said middie Megan Donnelly.

Donnelly summed it all up when she said, "We want to win these games, there is no question about that."

After the stickers face ODU on Saturday, they will return home for a days rest, a days practice, and than a home game against Westfield State on Tuesday.

UM plays 'the big guys'

By JERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

This week and next week, the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team will be going to school and learning. This weekend and the next the UMass spikers will learn how they play volleyball in the big leagues, top 20, division I style.

Tonight, UMass will be competing in the University of Delaware tournament, even though Delaware is division I and UM is division II. The tournament, which will feature such schools as North Carolina, Providence College, Georgetown, and William and Mary, will finish up tomorrow.

"It will be a good learning experience for us," said Minutewomen head coach Elaine Sortino. "We will have the chance to see what top 20 volleyball looks like. We're also going to videotape some of the matches."

The taping of the matches will enable UM to review their mistakes and also see how some of the more successful division I teams are playing.

This week's learning experience began Wednesday night in New Haven, Ct., as the Minutewomen were mauled by the University of New Haven 15-3, 15-3 before UMass came back to topple Central Connecticut 15-9, 15-8.

Against New Haven, the Minutewomen were "dull and listless" and didn't accomplish too much. It was a different story against Central, though, as Massachusetts took control of the match.

"We controlled the flow of the game (Central) and we didn't let them have anything," explained Sortino. "We played well."

Captain Patti Philbin, Sue Mudry, and freshman Sally Mahar all played well in the UMass win.

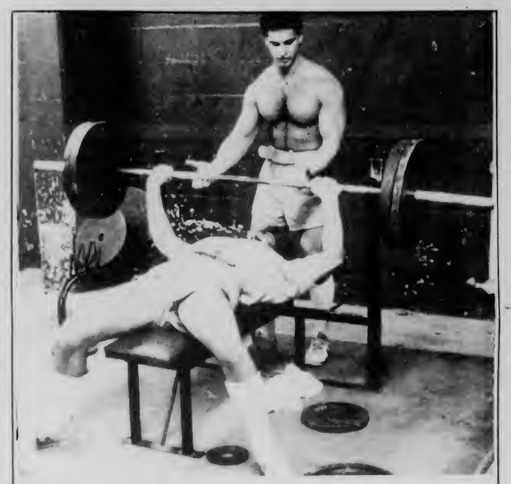
For Massachusetts to win some matches in Delaware, they will have to play well consistently and make very few errors. And, UM will have to accomplish this despite nagging injuries that are slowing down the squad.

The injury that would hurt the most right now is if Kirsten Smith had to sit out the weekend. Smith hurt her foot against New Haven when she went up for a block and landed on her foot wrong. Smith finished the NH match and played the entire Central match, but sat out yesterday's practice to rest her foot.

Patti Philbin and Julie McMurtie are suffering from tendonitis, but are "living with the pain" and playing. Optomistic news is that setter Patty Grant may be able to return to play next week.

"For the next two weeks, we will be going up against some top competition," said Sortino, "it will be hard not to do your best." It's an old saying: Playing better teams will make you better.

This weekend's Delaware tournament and next weekend's University of Maryland tourney will match the Minutewomen with some of the better teams on the East coast, and for UMass not to get blown off the court, they will have to rise to the level of their competition.



Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Scott Newmark spots Harry Marshall on the bench press in the free-weight room in Boyden.

Timely Writer makes his final deadline

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Correspondent

It just wasn't supposed to end like this. A few more minutes. Just a few more lousy minutes and an always promising, but usually unlucky career would be over. One more run, one more trip to the post and Timely Writer would retire to stud.

The scene of that finale would be the Gold Cup at Belmont and Timely Writer's people were confident. A win would mean a shot at Horse of the Year honors. With the stallion that had become the Rocky Balboa of horse racing coming off an easy 7½ length victory at Belmont, only a week before, they had good reason.

You know, the stuff storybooks are written about and movies are made of. The horse that had burst onto the national picture in mid 1981, winning the Mayflower, Hopeful and Champagne Stakes before fate started pounding on the door.

The first blow was throat surgery, but after a sixth place finish two victories put him back on track. Then came strike two when deadly gastroenteritis required emergency surgery. Timely Writer survived and recuperated while the Triple Crown races, the ones he was supposed to rule, went to others.

That he had survived the surgery was a blessing but racing again was thought by most to be out of the question. This horse wasn't done yet though, and when two wins followed Timely Writer was running on the comeback trail once again.

A scratched entry for medication showing up in a blood test, followed by a poor finish at Marlboro, might have been strike three but then came the aforementioned 7½ length win.

It was Timely Writer on the half-mile turn and moving in on the leaders. Start writing the book. Start rolling the cameras.

But fate would make its final curtain call. Timely Writer's left leg snapped. Just like that, shattered, gone. As the horrified crowd watched three other horses fall, he struggled to hobble on three legs.

Everyone knew, but as the smiles were wiped away and the cheers became tears, no one wanted to believe it. No hope for repair and no more comebacks. Within a couple of moments Timely Writer was asleep forever.

Everything was frozen. It wasn't supposed to end like this, but it had. One last hurrah for Timely Writer had crashed. Suddenly, a few minutes had become eternity

UMass netwomen lose to the UConn Huskies

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

STORRS, Conn — The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team lost a tough and disappointing match to the University of Connecticut Tuesday, by a score of 7-2, to bring their record to 3-6.

"We played a good team effort, and the score could have been a lot closer if we had won some more of the matches," said Coach John Beal. "This was the toughest competition of the year for us, and the strongest UConn team I've seen in four years."

The netwomen began the match on a losing note, as first singles player Elizabeth Sullivan lost another hard fought three set match by a score of 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

They came back to capture the next two singles matches, which unfortunately turned out to be the only victories of the afternoon. Second singles player Ariel Fowler won once again in straight sets, 7-6, 6-1, and third singles Chris Frazier won her match by a score of 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The Minutewomen then lost the last three singles matches, all in straight sets. Fourth singles player Patricia Sullivan lost 6-0, 6-3, fifth singles Karen Orlowski lost 6-2, 6-3, and sixth singles player Anne-Marie Mackertich lost her match 6-3, 6-0.

The doubles teams suffered a temporary setback to their recent winning ways as all three teams lost their matches.

First doubles team of Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli lost a three set match by scores of 6-4, 2-6, 6-1. Second doubles team of Laura Kaufmann and Jillian Nesgos lost 6-2, 7-5, while the third doubles team of Tina Eglin and Bonnie Lechten also lost, by a score of 7-5, 6-2.

The Minutewomen face Tufts University today on the Boyden courts. Beal said the team is ready for the match, and that it will be a confidence builder.

They will then travel to Wellesley College after the match to participate in the Massachusetts state championships, on Saturday and Sunday. UMass is one of six teams from the state to play in the Class A section.

Each position in singles and doubles will have its own tournament, obtaining a certain number of points for advancing each round, and the team with the highest total of points from all of the individual tournaments will win the event.

"Last year we were second, but I will be pleased if we can get third or fourth place this year," said Beal. "There are a lot of strong teams, and there will be no easy matches in this tournament."

Jayvee football in the red

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD, MA. — Following the University of Massachusetts JV football loss to Harvard, 7-6, JV coach Steve Tolander had high hopes for the next game against AIC.

Those hopes were very quickly shattered.

What was a closely contested contest in the first half turned into a runaway as AIC ran away with a 33-7 victory over the struggling Minutemen.

Playing without the services of starting quarterback Mark Tabor, the jayvee's got off to an early lead as replacement quarterback Shawn O'Rourke hit wide receiver Abe Yacteen with a 40 yard bomb. But, the Minutemen couldn't protect their lead and by halftime, it was 14-7 in favor of AIC.

The offense had trouble moving the ball in the second half, giving the defense poor field position. AIC took advantage of this and posted 19 more points in the second half to register their 33-7 victory.

"They weren't any better than Harvard," said Telander. "We just didn't move the ball. The kids are still getting the game experience they need. We even had two kids playing offense and defense."

Yacteen was the star of the game, making several talented catches, including the touchdown reception. Also playing well on offense was tailback Frankie Fay, who gained 50 yards rushing. On defense, Jim Kane and Dave Almedia played well.

This leaves the Minutemen with an 0-2 record. More bad news ensues when it was learned that fullback Rich Garcia would be out for the season with a broken leg.

The JV's next game is Sunday against Brown, who, according to Telander, was near the best JV team they have faced the past 3 or 4 years.

"We have to be better offensively. We have to give the defense better field position. If we can put together some kind of offense, we can make things tough," said Telander.

Roundball Rap looks at new faces in the NBA

By BRIAN C. MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

The Celtics have lost two of their first three games this season but there's nothing to be worried about, the rookies have been playing most of the second half, plus, Kevin McHale hasn't played yet due to an injury.

Don't be surprised if John Schweitz makes the squad, he's an excellent shooter. Danny Ainge hasn't shot well up to date, and no one can understand why.

The Celts are on TV tonight against the Lakers at Hartford. It's on Ch. 56. Don't expect to see James Worthy, he's hurt and probably won't play.

The Utah Jazz are going to put some points up on the board. With a squad that includes Adrian Dantley, Darrell Griffith, Freeman Williams and John Drew they'll be able to fill it up. Too bad defense is an integral part of the game.

Down at the Meadowlands, backboards were being shattered again. This time the culprit was James Bailey, not Darryl from Lovetron. Bailey played his school ball at Xaverian High School in Attleboro and his college ball at Rutgers University.

The Knicks have loads of talent this year with the acquisition of Truck Robinson and the re-signing of Paul Westphal. If and when Michael Ray Richardson plays using a brain instead of a pea, he'll be phenomenal. Bill Cartwright has been such a disappointment since he has turned pro.

Reportedly Reggie Theus is still available for any takers...One of the big guns for Utah mentioned earlier is also available, with Dantley's name coming up more than once. Terry Cummings still might find his way into the NBA.

Athletes in Action has a very good shot at going broke by the end of this year, and Donald Sterling won't be around much longer. The NBA was going to take the franchise away from him in the best interest of the sport, but it seems as if a buyer is almost ready. Sterling was supposedly dripping in money when he bought the team, but a local San Diego paper has discovered that Sterling has been under litigation in 61 cases in the last 10 years for his business dealings. And to think John Y. Brown was a bad owner.

Speaking of John Y., he should trade his wife, Phyllis George for Robin Young. Bill Robinzine, who just committed suicide because he felt no one was interested in him anymore, was being seriously considered by the Seattle Supersonics.

Bruce Atkins of Duquesne has an excellent shot at making the Sixer team.

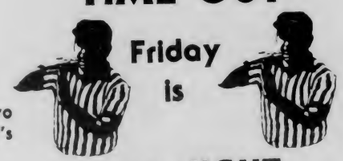
Noteworthy cuts by NBA teams....Perry Moss, from Northeastern and who lives in Amherst for those of you who were caught in a time warp, was cut by the Celtics yesterday. You know he didn't have much of a future when Bill Fitch told him he should spend a year in the Continental Basketball Association.

Also cut by the Celts yesterday were Tony Guy, a second rounder from Kansas, and Panagotti Giannakis, a ninth rounder from Hellenic College....

Mike McKay from UConn was cut by the Utah Jazz...Eddie Thurman, who started at Lynn Classical and was the MVP of the 1977 Boston Shootout, was cut by the Dallas Maverick. Thurman spent the first two years of his college career at Wake Forest before transferring to Holy Cross his junior year....

Dwight Anderson of USC, who hit that remarkable behind the backboard shot last year was cut by the Washington Bullets. By the way, that amazing shot should've been nullified. A shot cannot be good if it crosses over the top of the backboard. Poncho Wright of Louisville was released by Kansas City...Kenny Arnold of Iowa was let go by Dallas...

TIME OUT



Friday is
Two TV's
Great Juke and Stereo

FUN NIGHT at
Amherst's Biggest Little Bar
37 N Pleasant St, Amherst MA

Baseball Style Jacket
Special Purchase 19.95

Printed Back
Color - maroon/white
Sizes S-M-L-XL
Limited Quantities Available
Located in the Clothing Department
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE

WHOLE WHEAT AND WHITE DOUGH
THE
whole wheat
PIZZA FACTORY

"SUPER DAYTIME SPECIAL"
FRIDAY-SUNDAY*
A SMALL (12") PIZZA
WITH ANY TWO TOPPINGS
FROM OUR WIDE MENU
FOR JUST $3.75

FAST FREE DELIVERY
IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS
(PICK-UPS IN 10 MIN.)

HOURS
MON.-THUR.
4:00pm-2:00am.
FRI.-SUN.
NOON-3:00am.

* Noon-5:00pm

CALL: 256-8587

THE WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA FACTORY 363 MAIN ST. AMHERST

Sports

The men's tennis team droped a 6-3 match to Clark University yesterday making their record 7-2 They play again on Monday at West Point in their final match of the fall season.

Big, big weekend for field hockey

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team will be putting its eight game unbeaten streak on the line this weekend when the stickers face their toughest competition thus far this season in Temple and Old Dominion University.

"We've moved up to sixth since last week," said coach Pam Hixon. "Temple is fifth, and ODU third. In other words, we have nothing to lose and all to gain if we beat either or both of these two teams."

Both games, Temple today, and ODU tomorrow, will be played on the artificial turf at Temple in Philadelphia.

In preparation for this hard fast surface, Hixon had her team practicing on the floor in NOPE gym Wednesday night, and on the turf at Westfield State Thursday before departing for Phillie.

The practice at NOPE was an intense one, with the stickers repeating drills for twenty minutes at a time. Between criticisms and encouragements, Hixon spoke highly of her team.

"The girls have a good attitude. These two teams have big reputations, so the games will be exciting and needless to say the competition will be still," Hixon said.

"We are going to play our very best without worrying about tomorrow," Hixon said. "We're going in there with a spoiler attitude. Temple and ODU have bigger reputations than we have," she said.

"The turf will definitely help our game," said Hixon. "We want to play on a surface like this because it will allow us to use skills which are not as strong on the grass."

Forward Patti Smith agrees with Hixon.

"It is easier to field the ball on the turf," she said. "The quickness of the turf will help our forward line play a more controlled game."

Hixon noted that these two games are important not only because of the caliber of each team, but also because a team's ranking in the tournament at the end of the season depends upon its final record.

"Each team is under the same roof. This is one of the bigger weekends in field hockey, and there are a lot of people that will be watching the outcome of these games," Hixon said.

The general feeling among the stickers themselves is one of eagerness and anticipation.

"We are looking forward to two great games," said middie Megan Donnelly.

Donnelly summed it all up when she said, "We want to win these games, there is no question about that."

After the stickers face ODU on Saturday, they will return home for a days rest, a days practice, and than a home game against Westfield State on Tuesday.

UM plays 'the big guys'

By JERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

This week and next week, the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team will be going to school and learning. This weekend and the next the UMass spikers will learn how they play volleyball in the big leagues, top 20, division I style.

Tonight, UMass will be competing in the University of Delaware tournament, even though Delaware is division I and UM is division II. The tournament, which will feature such schools as North Carolina, Providence College, Georgetown, and William and Mary, will finish up tomorrow.

"It will be a good learning experience for us," said Minutewomen head coach Elaine Sortino. "We will have the chance to see what top 20 volleyball looks like. We're also going to videotape some of the matches."

The taping of the matches will enable UM to review their mistakes and also see how some of the more successful division I teams are playing.

This week's learning experience began Wednesday night in New Haven, Ct., as the Minutewomen were mauled by the University of New Haven 15-3, 15-3 before UMass came back to topple Central Connecticut 15-9, 15-8.

Against New Haven, the Minutewomen were "dull and listless" and didn't accomplish too much. It was a different story against Central, though, as Massachusetts took control of the match.

"We controlled the flow of the game (Central) and we didn't let them have anything," explained Sortino. "We played well."

Captain Patti Philbin, Sue Mudry, and freshman Sally Mahar all played well in the UMass win.

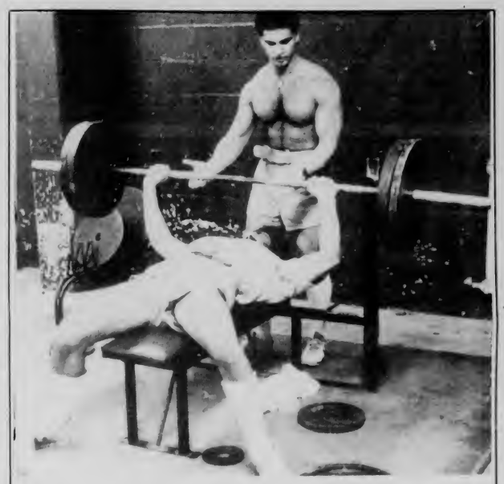
For Massachusetts to win some matches in Delaware, they will have to play well consistently and make very few errors. And, UM will have to accomplish this despite nagging injuries that are slowing down the squad.

The injury that would hurt the most right now is if Kirsten Smith had to sit out the weekend. Smith hurt her foot against New Haven when she went up for a block and landed on her foot wrong. Smith finished the NH match and played the entire Central match, but sat out yesterday's practice to rest her foot.

Patti Philbin and Julie McMurtie are suffering from tendonitis, but are "living with the pain" and playing. Optomistic news is that setter Patty Grant may be able to return to play next week.

"For the next two weeks, we will be going up against some top competition," said Sortino, "it will be hard not to do your best." It's an old saying: Playing better teams will make you better.

This weekend's Delaware tournament and next weekend's University of Maryland tourney will match the Minutewomen with some of the better teams on the East coast, and for UMass not to get blown off the court, they will have to rise to the level of their competition.



Collegian photo by Jim Floyd
Scott Newmark spots Harry Marshall on the bench press in the free-weight room in Boyden.

Timely Writer makes his final deadline

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Correspondent

It just wasn't supposed to end like this. A few more minutes. Just a few more lousy minutes and an always promising, but usually unlucky career would be over. One more run, one more trip to the post and Timely Writer would retire to stud.

The scene of that finale would be the Gold Cup at Belmont and Timely Writer's people were confident. A win would mean a shot at Horse of the Year honors. With the stallion that had become the Rocky Balboa of horse racing coming off an easy 7½ length victory at Belmont, only a week before, they had good reason.

You know, the stuff storybooks are written about and movies are made of. The horse that had burst onto the national picture in mid 1981, winning the Mayflower, Hopeful and Champagne Stakes before fate started pounding on the door.

The first blow was throat surgery, but after a sixth place finish two victories put him back on track. Then came strike two when deadly gastroenteritis required emergency surgery. Timely Writer survived and recuperated while the Triple Crown races, the ones he was supposed to rule, went to others.

That he had survived the surgery was a blessing but racing again was thought by most to be out of the question. This horse wasn't done yet though, and when two wins followed Timely Writer was running on the comeback trail once again.

A scratched entry for medication showing up in a blood test, followed by a poor finish at Marlboro, might have been strike three but then came the aforementioned 7½ length win.

It was Timely Writer on the half-mile turn and moving in on the leaders. Start writing the book. Start rolling the cameras.

But fate would make its final curtain call. Timely Writer's left leg snapped. Just like that, shattered, gone. As the horrified crowd watched three other horses fall, he struggled to hobble on three legs.

Everyone knew, but as the smiles were wiped away and the cheers became tears, no one wanted to believe it. No hope for repair and no more comebacks. Within a couple of moments Timely Writer was asleep forever.

Everything was frozen. It wasn't supposed to end like this, but it had. One last hurrah for Timely Writer had crashed. Suddenly, a few minutes had become eternity

UMass netwomen lose to the UConn Huskies

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

STORRS, Conn — The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team lost a tough and disappointing match to the University of Connecticut Tuesday, by a score of 7-2, to bring their record to 3-6.

"We played a good team effort, and the score could have been a lot closer if we had won some more of the matches," said Coach John Beal. "This was the toughest competition of the year for us, and the strongest UConn team I've seen in four years."

The netwomen began the match on a losing note, as first singles player Elizabeth Sullivan lost another hard fought three set match by a score of 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

They came back to capture the next two singles matches, which unfortunately turned out to be the only victories of the afternoon. Second singles player Ariel Fowler won once again in straight sets, 7-6, 6-1, and third singles Chris Frazier won her match by a score of 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The Minutewomen then lost the last three singles matches, all in straight sets. Fourth singles player Patricia Sullivan lost 6-0, 6-3, fifth singles Karen Orlowski lost 6-2, 6-3, and sixth singles player Anne-Marie Mackertich lost her match 6-3, 6-0.

The doubles teams suffered a temporary setback to their recent winning ways as all three teams lost their matches.

First doubles team of Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli lost a three set match by scores of 6-4, 2-6, 6-1. Second doubles team of Laura Kaufmann and Jillian Nesgos lost 6-2, 7-5, while the third doubles team of Tina Eglin and Bonnie Lechten also lost, by a score of 7-5, 6-2.

The Minutewomen face Tufts University today on the Boyden courts. Beal said the team is ready for the match, and that it will be a confidence builder.

They will then travel to Wellesley College after the match to participate in the Massachusetts state championships, on Saturday and Sunday. UMass is one of six teams from the state to play in the Class A section.

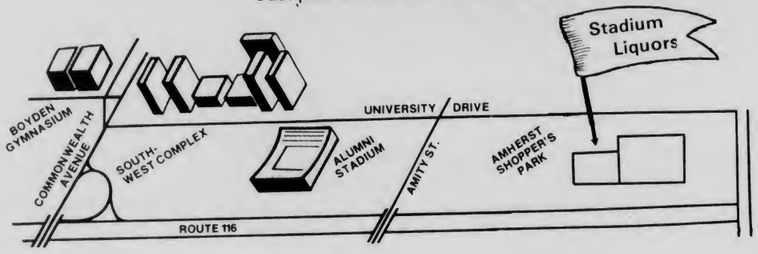
Each position in singles and doubles will have its own tournament, obtaining a certain number of points for advancing each round, and the team with the highest total of points from all of the individual tournaments will win the event.

"Last year we were second, but I will be pleased if we can get third or fourth place this year," said Beal. "There are a lot of strong teams, and there will be no easy matches in this tournament."

STADIUM LIQUORS
U. Mass. Amherst
Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms



Bud 12 oz loose bottles..... $8.95
Rolling Rock 12 oz cans..... $4.00 12 pk
Busch 12 oz cans..... $7.95
Carling 12 pk cans..... $3.25 12 pack

Cossack Vodka 1.75..... $8.20
McGregor Scotch 1.75..... $10.95
Capt. Morgan Rum 1.75..... $11.99
Castillo Rum 1.75..... $9.95
Beam 8 Star Blend 1.75..... $9.95

Almaden 3 L..... $6.95
Los Hermanos 1.5..... $4.29
Tavola 4 L..... $5.45
Mondavi 1.5..... $4.95

Catch Our Weekly Specials

DORITOS ½ lb. .99¢

253-5595
not responsible for typographical errors

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackedisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

ANNIVERSARY

Eileen - Wow! A whole year! Are we crazy? Of course not. We love each other. I bet we last forever. I love you! JT

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

ATTENTION UMASS BANDS

SWAG is looking for contestents for a Battle of the Bands Sat Oct 23. For info contact Jeanette or Steve 545-0960

AUTO FOR SALE

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

1969 VW Camper Bus as is $1000 586-5827

Audi Fox 76 looks, runs, like new. Must see, after 5 pm 253-3519

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

CHAMOIS SHIRT

LOST between Campus Center and Lot 65 on Sunday, October 10. Can identify -- sentimental value. Please call Terri at 545-3500 and/or 549-4621 anytime. Thanks

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

David Weidenfeld and Lee Pisciones! ar back! Original acoustic music at the TOC Fri-Sat 9:00 PM

FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture--two bedrooms. $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

One room left. $00/semester call Sue 253-9929 after 8:30 PM

Room for rent in downtown Amherst clean & private 253-3833

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

Graduate Student for quiet home one bedroom left, $225 includes utilities 665-8144

Female wanted to share apartment with one other. South Deerfield. Bus stop across street. 137.50 utilities included. 665-2964

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Guild Maderie acoustic guiter excellent cond Bill 549-4718

EMS Down Parke large very warm worn once $70.00 EMS Backpack "Adirondack" high quality X Large, welded-extension frame $70.00 546-7120 (Mike)

Pentax ME-Super 35mm camera with autowinder. $225. 253-2660

Genuine brown leather jacket, almost new 45.00 546-4456

1961 Gibson EBO Bass (SG body) with case $225 or BO Steve 549-5039

1976 Fender Telecester Bass. Very good cond. 275.00 Paul or Wes 584-2679

Womens, large, maroon leather jacket with removable hood. $40 or BO call Maria 256-0179

FOUND

Found: 10/8 adorable black female puppy about 4 mos old. Call 6-8055 anytime keep trying

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $180-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Amway distributors part-time 549-5358

Responsible peopls needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

LOST

Reward for one lost book bag. Bag contains one Cast Acct some keys one TI30 The bag is blue Reward $15 call Kevin 256-0854

Lost dungaree jacket w/silver buttons very old - extremely sentimental $20.00 reward please return!! 665-4248

I've got your yellow raincoat - you've got mine important Time Out Fri Oct 8 Kristin 256-6877

Glasses. Silver-grey rims, brown case. Please call Jim, 6-4733

Diary, left on phone booth at Spirit Haus, Rt 9. Rusty 323-5526

Brown cable knit sweaer $10 reward call 546-6871

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Northampton woman who found my wellet please call again; I haven't got it yet Jim 586-0814

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a
Collegian classified!

Bebe, you mean the world to me and, believe me, my love is forever! Yours, Christine Congretulations to the KKG Pledge class officers . . .Lisa, Dena, Terri!

Heppy B-dey Lee, Love Brita

Heppy Birthday Annetta! Where have you been kiddo? I see Merie but never you; let's celebrate! My love and my smiles Candee

Clements turns 21!

News Flash - J.F.H. announced today his admission that, "I forgot to wish Elaine a happy birthday. I forgot to tell her what a special person she is to me and many others." Mr. Hudson later remarked Miss Clements was entitled to one free drink at the location of her choice. Film at 11

PSE for women who are gay or think they are. For more info call 549-2641 or come to Rm 304 Health Serv on 10-18-82

Tony - Happy Birthday to our favorite male whore. We've been comparing notes and we decided that if you don't already have a social disease you sure deserved one. University women beware!

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

The Dukekis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

RALPH LAUREN POLO SHIRTS all sizes six colors call "Smitty" at 549-2631

Attention all SGA escorts and supporters We need you! Our voices alone are not enough. Please let us know you are with us in our attempts to continue this essential student service!! Please call and give us your input/support. Contact Laura 549-0081 or Anne 549-5404

Dan, Rich - Where were you? One more chance - this Friday! Be there! Patti, Nancye, Stacy

HRTA students resume workshop Tuesday, October 19 7-9 pm sign up Flint Lounge

Alpha Epsilon Pi
is here
catch us!

Squatt or is it Scott? Hope your birthday is as good as our seats. Love Debia and Gail

LOST black UMass datebook Wed Oct 6. Owner lost w/o it. Nina 253-5137

Get Psyched UMass Ruggers New England Collegiate Rugby Tournament October 23-24

Sigme Alpha Mu does it again! 2 live bands BYOB cans only Saturday nite $1 cover

Dopey. . .and like a bridge over troubled water I will lay me down (on the desk) have a cool, cool day! Yeee! Love you a wicked lot. Eli

Cerolyn, Happy Birthday you eggroll. You are my cup of tea. HA. Karina Kid

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Counseling in friendly non-institutional setting, confidential, sliding scale fees call the Synthesis Center 256-0772 or 253-7022

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Philedelphia or any New Jersey turnpike exit on Oct 14 or 15. Please call 546-5556, keep trying. Will share expenses.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted ASAP please call 665-3480

Male needed for small Northampton two bedroom 125+ Scott 584-4348 after 5

Apt wanted to share Amherst $180 max Paul 549-3733

Housemate needed - 4 bed house in Leverett - female pref. 100/month + call Wendy 549-2628

Need immediately Women to share room in Southwood Apt. $91.25 call Trecia 256-0354 leave message

SERVICES

Sensory isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Immediate cash for class rings, gold and silver jewelry. Highest prices paid. Call Ralph 6-8722 anytime

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WALLET

Maureen Glenn your wallet has been found call 546-9294

WANTED

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Geil 549-5686

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

STUDY WHERE YOUR CLASSROOM IS A COUNTRY.

Tel Aviv University

Programs for American and Canadian Undergraduate Students

Join a very special international student community reaching out to touch the past, present and future of a people.

Earn full credit for a wide range of courses taught in English by TAU's distinguished faculty.

Study for a full year, a semester or a summer.

Select from courses in Judaica and Jewish Studies; Israel Studies; Middle East Studies; General Studies.

Fees are moderate. Scholarships are available.

For more information about TAU, where your classroom is a country, send coupon now or call: American Friends of Tel Aviv University (212) 687-5651.

American Friends of Tel Aviv University
Office of Academic Affairs
342 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017

Please send information about:
One Year Program
Semester Program
Summer Session
Other

Name
Address
City
State Zip
University

DELANO'S

OCTOBER'S HAPPY HOUR SPECIAL
2 for 1
Beck's Beer
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10 - midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St
253-5141

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGES 16 & 17

UM boots Smith back to Northampton

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

For the second game in a row, the University of Massachusetts womens soccer team went off on a scoring spree when it overthrew Smith College, 13-0.

UMass, which raised its record to 7-3, is ranked third in New England and first in the Northeast region.

The top scorers for the day were Stacey Filenis and Ellen Taggart who both scored two goals each. Susan Bird scored a goal and added three assists, and Debbie Harackiewicz scored two goals and had two assists.

"I told them to try and keep the score down," said coach Kalekeni Banda, "but the ball is there and you have to shoot it."

Smith did not get a shot on goal all game compared to UMass' 33. This was the second time in a row that the women kept its opponent from taking any shots on goal.

UMass scored eight goals in the first half, including five in the last eight minutes. Lori Stukes started off the scoring for the women two and a half minutes into the game with a hard shot from in front of the net.

Susan Bird scored off of a corner kick and Debbie Harackiewicz scored five minutes after to start the ball rolling in the women's direction.

Smith continually tried to steal the ball from UMass but couldn't capitalize when they did. The UMass squad passed the ball a lot in the first half and Smith did their best to try to block it but as the score indicates UMass finally overpowered them.

In the final eight minutes of the half, the women bombarded the Smith net with shots. Paula Stashis, Lynne Raymond, Christine Taggart, Toni Giuliano and Ellen Taggart scored in the last minutes to give UMass the 8-0 advantage.

"It's very difficult to say go back in the second half and play hard," Banda said. "Ball control is important."

The women did go out in the second half and out play Smith. Smith slowed down and UMass stepped right in to score five more goals.

The team scored three of the goals in the first 11 minutes, two of which were by Harackiewicz and Nina Holmstrom.

UMass will take its 7-3 record to Springfield on Saturday and fight to keep its top ranking. The game will be a tough one as the two teams will be playing on turf and not grass.

"We will spend one hour tonight (Thursday) and another tomorrow afternoon practicing for it," Banda said. "We can't afford to lose to Springfield or else they will become number one in the region."

UMass will have to at least tie Springfield and beat Harvard, who is currently ranked second in the Northeast, in order to keep its first ranking.

Collegian photo by David May

Susan Bird blasts a shot past Julie Hooks and an unidentified Smith defender during yesterday's game.

Minutemen ready for a Bear hunt in Maine

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Staff

After five games this year, the University of Massachusetts' football team's record stands at an unimpressive 2-3.

However, due to UMass' 1-0 record in the Yankee Conference, a conference championship and, consequentially, a Division I-AA playoff berth, are well within the improving Minutemen's reach.

"We are still in control of our own destiny," observed UMass coach Bob Picket.

So, the importance of this week's game at Orono, Maine against the University of Maine Black Bears (the first of three consecutive Yankee Conference games) cannot be over-emphasized.

The University of Maine team has had an extremely frustrating season, losing three games by three points each time, on the last play of each game. Maine could easily be 6-0 instead of 3-3.

Two of those losses came in multiple overtimes against Yankee Conference opponents, a 58-55 loss to the University of Rhode Island in six overtimes and a 48-45 loss to Boston University in four overtimes, respectively. (The high-scoring overtimes are due to the new Yankee Conference tie-breaking rules, whereby each team starts at their opponents' 20 yard line and take turns trying to score. The first team to fail to score, while its opponent does, loses.)

Another setback has struck the hard-luck Black Bears, in the form of a leg injury to their star running back, Lorenzo Bouier. He will be sidelined for at least four weeks. Bouier was only 49 yards short of the New England university career rushing record of 3,773 yards.

Despite the loss of Bouier's services, Maine is still a good football team, a fact not lost on Pickett.

"Maine has an excellent football team. They are an experienced, a senior-dominated team that should be able to overcome the loss of Bouier. Their offense is well-balanced, with the offensive line being their major strength," pointed out Pickett.

On the UMass side of the field, the team is basically intact after last week's exciting 14-13 loss to Delaware.

The one major change will be at quarterback, where Barrett McGrath, who played so well in bringing UMass back from a 14-0 deficit against Delaware, will start in place of Dean Peecevich.

"It's not that we are displeased with Dean's play. We just feel that Barrett has done such a fine job coming off the bench that he has earned the top position," explained Pickett.

All in all, both Maine coach Ron Rogerson and Pickett expect a well-fought contest.

"Once again Massachusetts appears to be one of the toughest teams on our schedule. They have a very explosive offense headed by an outstanding running back in Gary Pearson. Defensively, they are extremely quick and hard-nosed. I expect this to be another exciting Yankee Conference game," remarked Rogerson.

"This is one of Maine's strongest teams in years. We must maintain a high level of intensity. I expect us to have a good game," said Pickett.

In the series, UMass holds a commanding 23-4-1 lead, having won the last 16 in a row.

For students unable to get to Orono this Saturday, one can listen to the game on WMUA (91.7) starting at 1:30 p.m.

Runners in New Englands

By JOHN WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

The UMass mens' cross-country team has enjoyed a basically strong season this year. Although their first meet of the year resulted in a loss to a more experienced Boston College squad, coach Ken O'Briens' team lasted victory the next week, narrowly defeating the University of Rhode Island.

With two solid performances under their belts, the UMass team travalled down to the Atlantic Ten Championships in Philadelphia. There they were met by some of the stiffest competition in the East, with such teams as Penn State and St. Josephs participating.

All the hard work and practice that the team had done had paid off. UMass came in fifth place overall, paced by Rick Doirons' third place finish.

That brings us to last weeks' 10,000 meter race down at the Lehigh Invitationals. Navy, Penn State, and Villanova took the first three places, respectively. UMass came in 12th place overall, in what O'Brien called, "our most disappointing performance this year."

"They were mentally prepared that week in practice but I believe that the race the week before down at the A.T.C.'s at a very demanding Belmont Plateau course took its toll on them," said O'Brien.

"Also, my team had been used to running a distance of five miles all year, so the 10,000 meters was a factor in their performance," added O'Brien.

O'Brien is hoping that his team will put on a better showing this week against one of the strongest teams in New England, Northeastern University.

"Northeastern is ranked number 3 in New England and rightfully so. They probably have about ten runners that could finish in the top five, and that puts us at a definate disadvantage because of lack of experience," said O'Brien.

UM hoop tryouts in Cage

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

People of Lovetron, ready your NIKE's, Ponies and Converses for battle. Tryouts for the hoop team have crept up quietly behind you while a screen of grunts and shoulders pads kept you preoccupied.

It's a one night and one night only show tonight at 6:45 p.m. in the mecca of collegiate hoopdom, the Curry Hicks Cage, and you are invited to star in the show, if you can.

The audience will consist of UMass head basketball coach Tom McLaughlin, his assistants, some casual basketball fanatics, friends, family and injured potential hoopsters who will have to wait until next year to try and run, jump and shoot their way into a Minutemen uniform.

The requirements for trying out are a pair of sneakers (shoes ruin the floor) and the desire to try.

"It's going to be a thing where we just look to see if there is somebody out there that can make us a better basketball team," said McLaughlin. "If someone can make us a better team then we'll take him."

McLaughlin expects somewhere between 50-60 people to show up and plans to put them through some drills and play some full court, but he stresses that it won't be a high pressure atmosphere at all.

"It should be a fun thing. They should go out there and enjoy themselves and show the basketball staff what they have," said McLaughlin.

Show indeed. Last years tryouts featured a go-for-the-dunk event if you can't [illegible] ment and it's quite possible that another Luke Skywalker act will be in the show again this year.

So, Larry Bird and Julius Erving prototypes, lace up your shoes, pull out the old high school game shirt that the coach never got back and muster up some funk. Hoop has arrived.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 29 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, October 18, 1982

Sears warns tough times are ahead for next Gov.

By RALPH C. HYBELS
Collegian Staff

John Sears, Republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts, told a group of students and campaign workers in the Campus Center Saturday that things "will be very tough for the next couple of years" no matter who is elected.

Sears made no promises to improve higher education in Massachusetts, saying "I cannot con you." New investments in higher education would have to wait until the Massachusetts economy improves, he said.

During the course of his speech and question and answer session with students, Sears criticized corruption, supported a nuclear freeze while warning against trusting Soviets, suggested a state loan system to help hard pressed students, gave qualified support to Reagan's New Federalism plan and promised to improve the Boston MBTA.

"I am absolutely determined to preserve high quality public education," said Sears. "It's a passion."

Sears began his speech outlining emotional commitment to public education. Massachusetts is dependent on its human resources, lacking the resources of some of the sunbelt states, Sears said.

Asked how he would cut taxes and improve education at the same time, Sears expressed hope that the economy might improve in the next couple of years.

"My greatest defect as a candidate is that I cannot con you," he said. "Next year is going to be lousy, no matter who is governor."

"For the same reasons we're all mad at the president now, a couple of years down the road things are going to boom — things will brighten in Massachusetts," Sears said.

Sears said he would support setting up a financial aid system of student loans guaranteed by the state. The system would remain solvent because collection on the loans would be enforced by the state, he said.

He said he regretted the 13 to 14 percent default rate on federal student loans in past years. "The world is angry with your older brothers and sisters," he said.

College graduates will be worth an average more than $200,000 over their life time, Sears said. They could pay back the loans once they "get on their feet," he said.

Sears assailed corruption in state government.

"Water (from Quabbin reservoir) flows from West to East. Corruption flows East to West," he said.

"We pay an intolerable cost for corruption," he said. As an example he criticized the "behind closed doors" appointment of the assistant of the Senate President to a life-time position as head of the state convention authority at $75,000 a year.

Sears did not endorse the nuclear moratorium referendum on the Nov. 2 ballot, but also did not state any opposition to the goals of the nuclear freeze movement.

"Nuclear freeze is fine with me," he said. "But you must always watch the Soviets. You must inspect and reinspect. Their record is lousy."

Sears said he agrees with the principles of Reagan's New Federalism, but criticized the hastiness with which the proposed redistribution of responsibilites were to be imposed.

Reagan did not focus well enough on the problems of big cities, and the return of power to the states and local governments would have to be accompanied by a substantial return of revenues, Sears said.

"New Federalism? Sure. But I would extend it," Sears said, stating he would demand jurisdiction over monies returned as closely to the local level as possible.

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Republican candidate for governor John W. Sears makes a point during his speech Saturday at the UMass Campus Center.

Sears said he wanted to see block grants of funds go to "true neighborhood councils and committees, and not to poltical power centers like Kevin White's mayoral office in Boston." Sears characterized White as "one of the most public officials in the United States."

Sears proposed turning sales tax revenues over to local governments, allowing local officials to decide how to utilize funds, and holding them accountable for abuses.

Jim Tripp, Republican candidate for Franklin and Hampshire county district state senator, echoed Sears in his criticisms of the state legislature. Tripp was especially critical of the state Senate President's control over committee chairmanships, now occupied almost exclusively by Democrats.

Sears responded to a question concerning his running mate, Leon Lombardi, Republican candiuate for lieutenant governor, who promised to spend part of each week in Western Massachusetts.

Sears said Lombardi committed himself to one day per week away from Boston at most.

Sears said because Lombardi is a "member of the current rogues in the legislature," while Sears is only a former member, Lombardi would make "an ideal ambassador" as lieutenant governor.

Amherst booklet answers 'iffy' crisis questions

By ANN CARRNS
and RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

If if if.

Everytime nuclear war is mentioned, whether by disarmament coalitions or civil defense committees, the big question is 'if.'

What if prime targets for nuclear bombardment such as Springfield and Westover Air Force Base were hit, annihilating an area three-quarters the size of Massachusetts? What could residents of Amherst, a small western Massachusetts community, do?

In an attempt to answer these and other questions, the Amherst Board of Selectmen have prepared a pamphlet entitled "Nuclear War, Crisis Relocation, and Amherst." The selectmen Friday presented the pamphlet to Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, during a meeting at the Amherst Town Hall.

The pamphlet explains why the selectmen voted against participation in a state crisis relocation plan which would make Amherst the host site for 162,000 people from Springfield, South Hadley, and Granby in the event of a nuclear attack. Copies of the pamphlet, which also outlines the possible effects of the plan on Amherst, were mailed to town residents.

"We feel it is appropriate and absolutely necessary to take the stand which we have taken," Selectman Francesca Maltese told the 20 people in attendance.

Maltese, who had presided over the February 8 hearing attended more than 200 Amherst residents, said the plan was rejected on two levels.

"On the first level, the crisis relocation plan is a hoax trying to persuade people that a nuclear war is inevitable and survivable; and on another level, it was found not to be pragmatically drawn. It is absurd to think of moving over 100,000 people into a small area during a major crisis. The details are senseless," she said.

It reads: "The designation of Amherst as a 'host' does not conform to crisis relocation guidelines. These call for the relocation of evacuees a distance of at least 50 miles and for the dispersion of all populations over 50,000. Evacuees to Amherst would travel at most only 20 miles; and with our own residents, they would form a new population of 194,000 and hence a new target."

The pamphlet also rhetorically asks if Amherst can support the almost 200,000 people expected during relocation. The answer, according to the pamphlet is no. Water could be exhausted within 36 hours. Medical services could not be properly administered and the safety of the public could be endangered.

Whether or not the selectmen's action constitutes a final decision on Amherst's involvement with the plan remains to be seen.

Even if Amherst's involvement is unsure, State Civil Defense Planner Douglas Forbes, in a telephone interview last Thursday, said state officials are still proceeding with the relocation plan, "although we're not getting much help from the towns."

Forbes said it is "patently stupid" and "short-sighted" for towns such as Amherst not to cooperate with civil defense plans.

The authors of the pamphlet said they intended "no unneighborliness" to neighboring communities in the south. "It would be false hospitality — and grossly irresponsible — to offer what is not in our power to deliver," the pamphlet says.

"Amherst would get the people anyway," Forbes said. "News is out that Amherst is a fairly safe place to go in case of a nuclear disaster. It makes sense to plan to receive them in an orderly fashion."

Collins said he thinks "the town has taken an important step on behalf of our New England traditions and common sense. It is important for the people to review the issues and tell our bureaucracies 'wait a minute' if they feel something isn't right."

He said he intended to follow up this step in the legislature, "looking for practicality and honesty" as the state and towns take a stand in the demand for a halt on nuclear arms build-up.

The idea for the pamphlet was adopted last February, after members of a local disarmament coalition brought the plan to the selectmen's attention. On Feb. 22, the Board unanimously rejected involvement with the plans. At the May 19 Town Meeting, $2,000 was appropriated for the printing and distribution of the pamphlet.

"We felt the issue raised some serious questions," said Nancy Foster, chairperson of the Amherst Disarmament Coalition's civil defense committee. "We also were impressed by the action of the Cambridge City Council, which distributed (in March 1981) a pamphlet describing the plan's effects on the city instead of adopting it."

The Amherst pamphlet briefly describes the crisis relocation plan as drawn up by federal and state authorities. It further elaborates on the deficiencies of the plan — including the designation of Amherst as a "host" community to potential "risk" communities.

Forbes also said the Amherst selectmen refused to discuss the pamphlet with him, despite his telephoned and written requests.

"We've tried to sit down and talk about this (the pamphlet) with them, but they wouldn't allow it," Forbes said. "We were not asked to review it, or participate in any way, and we're the ones with the information. With their help, we could make the plan better."

Selectmen Chairman Edith Wilkinson said Forbes had not contacted the selectmen at all. In addition, she said Forbes and two other civil defense representatives participated in defense of the relocation plan at the February public hearing.

Forbes also said facts being used to debate the issue are incorrect. Specifically, he said the pamphlet's statement that relocation guidelines call for host sites to be at least 50 miles away from evacuation sites is not true.

"That is not, and never has been, a condition of the relocation guidelines," Forbes said.

Selectman Richard Minear, who coordinated the committee that produced the pamphlet, refuted that statement, saying the 50 mile distance was a part of the general guidelines for relocation as they were presented to the selectmen last February.

The selectmen took action based on the content of those guidelines, Minear said, but the final plan which state officials decide on may be different.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Lavoris laced with acid; search continues for leads

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Authorities pulled Lavoris mouthwash from the shelves of a store after four bottles were found laced with acid, the latest contamination of a consumer product since seven people died from Tylenol capsules containing cyanide.

Meanwhile, officials in Palm Beach County, Fla., were checking Visine A.C. eye drops for possible contamination following complaints from four women that their eyes burned after using the product. A Grand Junction, Colo., man suffered corneal burns Oct. 11 after using Visine A.C. eye drops that contained hydrochloric acid.

A teen-ager was arrested in Kentucky yesterday after authorities received a letter warning that some food products had been poisoned, and in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a rural couple was accused of threating to inject insecticide into grocery items.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Scott Hersey
Copy Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Layout Technician — Stephen Anderson
Photo Technician — Bradford Hammer
Composition — Lauri Neely, Laura Shanahan
Adrianne Dufor, Donna Maurice, Laurie Frank
Scott Stockwell, Gail Tanzer, James Shanahan
Sheryl Silver, Nancy Gagne, Janet Buch, Liz Ward

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Death penalty issue poses a major referendum draw

BOSTON — In a referendum that may be one of the main drawing cards in the Massachusetts election Nov. 2, voters will decide whether to authorize the Legislature to put the death penalty back on the books.

"There is no more conservative issue," said State Secretary Michael J. Connolly, who predicted a large turnout of liberals and conservatives next month to settle one of the major perennial issues at the Statehouse of the past decade.

There is no organized group supporting passage, but opponents are hoping to raise and spend about $200,000 to defeat the question.

Supporters see capital punishment as justice and a deterrent to murder.

"It's society's right of self defense," says Gov. Edward J. King.

The opposition, led by the Campaign Against Restoration of the Death Penalty, disputes the deterrent argument and claims an imperfect criminal justice system leaves too great a risk that innocent defendants will be executed.

"To vote yes kind of puts blood on your hand, which I don't think any citizens of this state want," Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young said last week during a Boston appearance to speak against the amendment.

Lull in Salvadoran offensive after week-long battling

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Leftist guerrillas controlled five remote towns yesterday and took a break in their biggest and best-coordinated offensive in six months after a week of bloody fighting.

Despite the lull in battling the U.S.-backed government, the rebels' clandestine Radio Venceremos said army troops were advancing to the north and warned residents of small towns throughout northeastern Morazan province that heavy fighting would resume soon.

The government, which confirmed the calm, has closed the area to journalists and firsthand reports were unavailable.

A flurry of guerrilla attacks in and around the capital tapered off although three powerful bomb blasts shook the city of 800,000 late Saturday as guerrillas sabotaged commercial and telephone installations for the fourth consecutive night.

Guerrillas attacked a government telephone office in San Juan Opico, 25 miles northwest of the capital, but were driven off yesterday morning by army troops. There were no reports of casualties.

AP Laserphoto

Two skiers enjoy a run down an upper slope at Killington ski resort in Vermont on Sunday. Killington became the first New England ski area to open for the season this weekend. See story on page six.

Cat outclimbs crazed canine

SPOKANE, Wash. — A German shepherd intent on catching a cat forgot protocol and followed the feline up a pine tree for about 20 feet before getting stuck between two branches.

The canine was not only trapped, but the cat was still five feet out of reach.

Spokane Fire Department rules forbid rescues of animals from trees for at least 24 hours, "but we'd never seen a dog in a tree before," a firefighter said of the hour-long rescue Friday.

"Besides, a cat's light weight. That dog could've fallen out of the tree and landed hard on somebody."

Feline and canine were lowered to the ground uninjured.

The discoveries continue . . .

Hughes Story

In 1947 a man flew the Flying Boat, "Hercules" — the largest airplane in the world.

The man was Howard Robard Hughes.

His ingenious ideas and explorations brought new discoveries in aerodynamics, communications, avionics, electronics.

And the early years of Hughes Aircraft Company.

Today, Hughes no longer builds airplanes but the discoveries and exploration of ideas continue.

The company's long history of technological firsts, including the first working laser, first 3-D radar, and first synchronous-orbit spacecraft, position Hughes as a world leader in today's electronics industry. If your degree is in:

- Electrical, Mechanical, Manufacturing or Industrial Engineering
- Materials
- Computer Science
- Physics
- Industrial/Electronic Technology

Find out how you can be part of the continuing Hughes Story in twelve Southern California locations and Tucson, Arizona.

Hughes Story. Write yourself in.

Hughes Corporate College Relations
P.O. Box 90515, Dept. NC
Los Angeles, CA 90009

Hughes representatives will be on campus November 3
(See your placement office for an appointment.)

Equal Opportunity Employer
U.S. Citizenship Required

Write yourself in. Creating a new world with electronics HUGHES
HUGHES AIRCRAFT COMPANY

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

VANITIES and
DARK OF THE MOON
In Repertory Oct. 22-Nov. 20
(Call 545-3511 for Student Rates)

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

Education council Board of Directors elect Duffey

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey was elected Thursday to the Board of Directors of the American Council of Education at the group's annual convention held in Minneapolis, Minn.

The council is an umbrella organization for higher education associations around the country. With 1600 members, an annual budget of $23 million and 225 employees, the group works to anticipate problems and issues on the future of higher education.

The group conducts lobbying on behalf of higher education institutions, researches issues affecting its members, and provides a network of support services to those members, said Ruthann Abdouch, executive secretary to the board.

"I am honored to serve this important organization, both personally and as a representative of the University of Massachusetts," Duffey said Friday. "I have long admired the record and work of the council."

Duffey will serve on the 36-member board of directors that guides the council and makes policy decisions, for three years.

"The council is considered the most prestigious speaking group for higher education in the United States," said Mario Fantini, dean of the UMass School of Education.

"When they speak, people listen,"Fantini said. "Even elected officials listen."

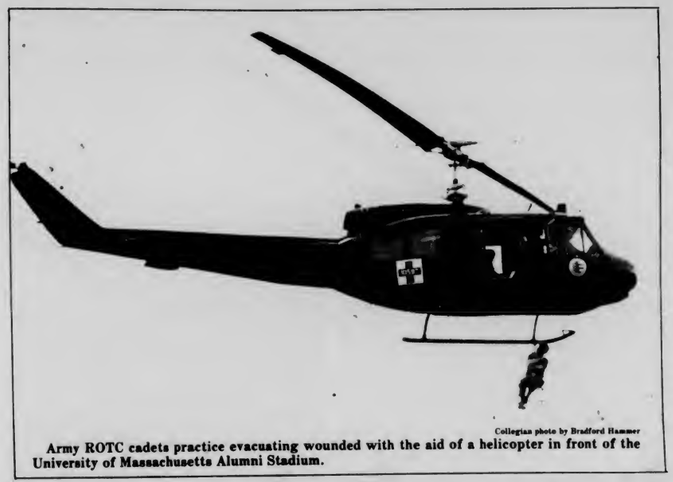
Duffey said he hopes his experience on the board of directors will increase the prestige of UMass. "I will try to behave myself in such a way that it will be a credit to the University," he said.

The council participates in many programs intended to promote the future of higher education, said Abdouch.

One of these pregrams is a fellowship study in which deans and professors are trained for top administrative jobs at colleges and universities. The fellows work closely with presidents and chancellors of about 200 participating universities while enrolled in the program.

Abdouch said the program is extremely successful. Many of the fellows are now working as presidents and chancellors throughout the country, she said.

Abdouch said the council is currently making a lobbying effort to preserve financial aid for students. In addition to informing legislators about the importance of maintaining financial aid funding, the council keeps its members informed of current proposed legislation affecting financial aid, she said.



Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Army ROTC cadets practice evacuating wounded with the aid of a helicopter in front of the University of Massachusetts Alumni Stadium.

Massachusetts politicians support plus in federal and student aid

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

Several prominent Massachusetts politicians assembled on the Boston Common lat Friday in support of increased student aid from both state and federal sources.

Among the speakers were United States Senator Paul Tsongas, D-Mass; Congressmen James Shannon, D-Lowell; Joseph Moakley, D-Boston; and Barney Frank, D-Newton; State Senator Gerald D'Amico, D-Worcester; State Senator Francis Doris; and John Kerry, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor. They addressed students from several institutions about President Reagan's attempt to cut federal student aid and the need for the passage of a plan proposed by Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, that will more than double the amount of state assistance given to students.

"There are literally milions of students who are getting hurt (from federal budget cutbacks) and aren't doing anything about it...and in a democratic society, who is to blame for that?" Tsongas said, pointing out that students must become more politically active in order to prevent further cutbacks.

"Why is it rational to cut student loans and spend $13 to 14 billion on farm subsidies. Why deny access to higher education and spend money to refurbish mothballed battleships. We're not talking about spending more money, we're talking about spending it more wisely," Frank said.

"Talk is cheap now we need the votes in the House and Senate," D'Amico said — referring to the proposal to generate $29 million in state student assistance which has been stalled in the House Ways and Means Committee for six months.

The proposal would subject the sale of cigarettes to the state sales tax and would repeal a fixed pricing clause presently in effect in an effort to minimize price increases to consumers. The tobacco industry is stronger than the higher education lobby, then this is North Carolina and not Massachusetts," D'Amico said.

Several of the speakers spoke of the victories students have won in the past.

"We've won...the battles. This didn't happen by accident, it happened by making your desires known. We can't relax because the Reagan administration will be back with the same dose of medicine (budget cuts) next year," Moakley said.

Kerry was supportive of the effort to increase state scholarships but would not commit his running mate, Michael Dukakis, to supporting a $10 million increase in the scholarship program recommended by the Board of Regents last week.

Twilight vigil in N'hampton unites women

By DIANE KADZIS
Collegian Staff

Light was cast into Saturday night's dusk by a group of women gathered at Pulaski Park in Northampton in a candlelight vigil. The vigil was held as part of National Unity Day in recognition of the Battered Women's Movement.

Singing "We Shall Overcome," the crowd of about 50 women mourned for women killed by violence and for those whose lives have been threatened by it. Some somber and some contented, the women then stood in silent acknowledgement of the growing problems, with only the sound of church bells breaking the silence.

Sponsored by Necessities, a Northampton based organization that has provided counseling and shelter to more than 400 battered women in Hampshire County, the event was also an effort to draw attention to the magnitude of the problem of domestic violence and the work being done to end it.

National statistics reveal that a woman is beaten every 18 seconds in this country. Necessities' statistics reveal in Massachusetts alone, 27,000 women approached the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Service Groups to receive counseling and shelter in 1981.

Karen Lederer, a volunteer counselor at Necessities, said an added purpose of the candlelight vigil was to set aside a "time to feel the overwhelming sadness," which accompanies the struggle against violence. The subtle statement made during the vigil, she said, showed "political demonstrations aren't meant to be angry all the time. In this case, it was a time to feel sadness and to hear it."

The vigil was preceded by a memorial walk routed along the Northampton path a woman might take to seek legal action against violent abuse. Lederer said marchers walked past the Probate Court on King Street where divorce and custody cases are filed; past the District Court on Gothic Street where criminal complaints are registered; and past the police station on Center Street where a third party is the first to intervene.

"The steps taken along the walk were symbolic of the process, which can be very empowering and frustrating at the same time," she said.

At a potluck dinner following the vigil, Patricia Wieland, a co-founder of Necessities, spoke to the participants of the day's events urging them not to tolerate domestic violence."

In the face of Reaganomics, "women are getting in touch with power. That's how we started Necessities," she said. "We do have more power than we ever think we do. It's our strength we're here to celebrate too — strength to end domestic and all violence."

Emphasizing the purpose of the day — the second to be designated in national recognition of women's efforts to combat violent abuse — Wieland said: "We are here today in a time of mourning and to be aware of women who have been victims of domestic violence — women who have died."

Woman's Week

THE WOMEN'S WEEK FOR THE WEEK OF OCT. 18-24

The Women's Week is a calendar of local events for women. To place an event, contact the Women's Department of the Collegian by Friday.

TUESDAY: The Third World Women's Task Force will sponsor speaker Charita Planas from the Phillipines. She will speak on the recent visit of President Marcos to the U.S., the current situation of national emergency in the Phillipines, and the people's resistance movement against tyranny and oppression of Marcos. The talk will be held at 7 p.m. in rooms 811-815 of the Campus Center. Childcare will be provided at the Everywoman's Center (EWC).

WEDNESDAY: "Women with Childhood Experience of Abuse," group will meet from 3-5 p.m. at EWC.

"Women Exploring Spirituality" will meet from 7-9 p.m. at 428 Student Union.

THURSDAY: The Southwest Women's Center (SWWC) will be showing the film "Killing Us Softly," from 4-5 p.m. at the SWWC. All are invited.

"The myth of the Establishment in British Perspective," a lecture by Ronald Hindmarsh, will be held at 4:30 p.m., in Wright Hall common room at Smith College. Hindmarsh taught at Smith College from 1964-1968. He is presently a senior lecturer at the University of Heidelburg.

Local author Susan Snively, will give a poetry reading from her book "From This Distance," at 8 p.m. in the Neilson Library browsing room of Smith College. Snively is an English lecturer at Smith College.

SATURDAY: "We're All Gonna Die Someday Anyway," a comedy about women's occupational health and safety, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. in the Hampden Theatre at UMass. The play uses humor and music along with factual information to explore the choices women face about jobs, health and their futures. The play, which is made possible by a grant from the Art Council, is sponsored by: The Labor Center, the Working Women's Task Force of EWC, Women Organizing for Occupational Safety and Health and the Women's Studies department. Tickets are $2.50 and are available at EWC, the Labor Center in Draper Hall and the Women's Studies department in Bartlett Hall.

SUNDAY: Singer Holly Near will be appearing at 7 p.m., at J.M. Greene Hall, Smith College. Near will be accompanied by Adrienne Torf on piano, Carrie Barton on bass, and Susan Freundlich will interprete for the hearing impaired. Nancy Vogl and Susanne P. Shanbaum will appear in an opening set. Tickets are $6, $7.50, and $8.50, under 16 and over 60 half price and low income tickets are available by mail for $5. All seats are reserved. Tickets are available at: Womonfyre Books and Country Comfort in Northampton, and Food for Thought and For the Record in Amherst. The hall is wheelchair accessible, the restrooms are not. Childcare is available by reservation. For information and childcare reservations call 584-2637.

Hypercurricula...

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — Anyone willing to help and share ideas about solving the problems of world hunger is welcome. Work now in process for Fast for a World Harvest. 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., 428 Student Union.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Ron Mazur, a University health service employee and teacher, will talk about his experience in the Soviet Union this summer studying the health system there. All are welcome. 6 to 8 p.m. 811-15 Campus Center.

UMASS FLYCASTERS CLUB — First meeting. All interested students, faculty, employees, etc. are welcome to attend. No experience is needed to join. Clinics will be run. Think trout. 7 to 9:30 p.m. 168 Campus Center.

UMOC MEETING — Presentation: "Rock climbing in the western United States." Also trip announcements and business meeting. All are welcome. 7 p.m. 101 Campus Center.

BDIC INFORMATIONAL MEETING — Explanation of the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) Program, a degree granting program which allows a student the opportunity to design his/her own major. 7 p.m. Main Lounge, Dickinson, Orchard hill.

OPEN HOUSE FOR PROSPECTIVE SECONDARY TEACHERS — Academic Disciplines of The School of Education will hold an Open House for students interested in becoming teachers in the middle and high school classroom. Attendees will be able to talk with this term's student teachers. 7:30 p.m. 222 School of Education.

RECITAL — Matthew Roehrig, Baritone, assisted by Albert Huettenan on piano will perform Schumann's Dichterliebe and works by Handel, Mozart, Donizetti and Gilbert and Sullivan. 7:30 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

ZAGREB GRAND BALLET — The Zagreb Grand Ballet of the National Croatian Theatre will perform tonight at the Fine Arts Center. Tickets are still available and may be purchased one hour before the performance at the Box Office. 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

Newslines...

Intern deadline is Friday

Deadline for applications for Washington D.C. spring internships is October 22. A planning session will be held for the Washington Center for Learning Alternative at the Office of Internships in Curry Hicks that day. Anyone interested in that or any other spring internship should call the office at 545-0727. Daily planning sessions for people considering other programs are being held daily.

BDIC info. meeting tonight

The first two informational meetings of the semester on the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) program are being held at 7 tonight in Dickinson Main Lounge in Orchard Hill, and Wednesday in the Chadbourne Seminar Room in Central. Anyone interested in designing a field of study not offered through any single University department should attend one of these meetings.

Mount Snow Vermont Tours
"Presents"
SKI SEMESTER
Collegiate Ski Weeks
6 Days 5 Nights
Jan. 2-7, 1983 Jan. 16-21, 1983
Jan. 9-14, 1983 Jan. 23-28, 1983
at Mount Snow Vermont
$179.00 per person Quad occupancy
$50.00 deposit required
Package includes:
* 5 nights lodging
* A gala welcome party
* Five day lift tickets at Mt Snow ski area
* Five full skiers' breakfasts
* Four full course dinners
* Ski tour guide & host
* And so much more!
* Welcome Get-Together Party * Beer Bash
Wine & Cheese Party * Fondue Party * Horse-Drawn Sleigh Ride * Movies * And so much more
"The Mountain of Fun, MT Snow Vermont"
All Rates Subject to 5% State Tax and 15% Hotel Gratuity Service Charge
Mount Snow Vermont Tours
PO Box 571, Route 100
West Dover, Vermont 05356
802-464-2076

MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
TRY OUR RESUME SERVICES

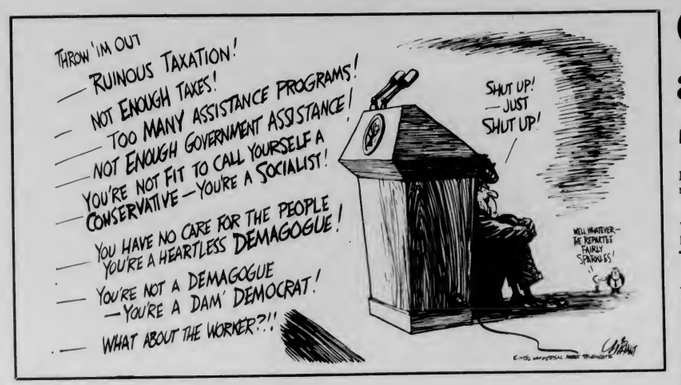
Going to Washington?
Better get going!
Application deadline for Spring 1983 internships in Washington DC:
Friday, October 22
Contact:
Office of Internships
16 Curry Hicks 545-0727

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437
INFO & SIGN-UP MEETINGS
OCT. 19 HAMDEN THEATER 7:00
OCT. 20 PUBLIC HEALTH 3:00
OCT 21 CAMPUS CENTER Room 101 4:00
INFO TABLE CAMPUS CENTER CONCORSE EVERY W,TH,F 9-3
or OFFICE 430A STUDENT UNION 5-3437

THE FINE ARTS CENTER HAS IT ALL
Scottish National Orchestra — Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.
The Intimate P.D.Q. BACH — Sunday, October 31, 8:00 p.m.
Siamsa The National Folk Theatre of Ireland — Tuesday, November 2 8:00 p.m.
Thursday, November 4 8:00 p.m. PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND
Music and Dance of the Silk Route from the People's Republic of China
Tuesday, November 9, 8:00 p.m.
All shows on sale now
MC, VISA - CHARGE YOUR TICKETS TODAY
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F
545-2511
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

The Career of the 80's
THE LAWYER'S ASSISTANT
The Lawyer's Assistant Program at Adelphi University is the largest and oldest ABA-approved program of its kind in New York State, with more than 4,000 graduates.
Salaries at all levels have increased with the extraordinary growth of this profession, and top lawyer's assistants earn as much as $32,000.
Come To an Information Session and Learn:
...Why 85% of our graduates who seek paralegal employment have found it
...Why hundreds of lawyers and other employers send us their requests for our graduates
...Why Adelphi graduates have been hired by more than 650 law firms, corporations and governmental agencies throughout the greater New York metropolitan area.
Courses offered in: GARDEN CITY, L.I., HUNTINGTON, L.I., and MANHATTAN.
For a catalog and an invitation to the next information session, mail this coupon today, or telephone right now: (516) 663-1004
The Lawyer's Assistant Program
Adelphi University
Garden City, L.I., N.Y. 11530
ADELPHI
Approved for VA and NYS Higher Education Loans

EDITORIAL/OPINION



Letters

Amherst water situation is not as simple as Meyer thinks

To the Editor:

Recently (Oct. 7) Josh Meyer authored a column which was extremely inaccurate, and while seemingly intended to be 'cute' was just plain irresponsible. In consideration of the numbers of people with genuine concern for their health, and the drinking water role therein, who could be upset by Mr. Meyer's column, I feel a response is necessary.

The lead paragraph offered the suggestion that drinking Amherst water could make us sick, and carried on about bacteria and lead. Everyone should know that no fecal coliforms were found in the water last Summer, as stated. Mr. Meyer demonstrates his knowledge of the subject when he attempted to educate those of us who are "uninitiated", "...fecal coliform bacteria is a nicer word for human waste, which in this case came from gypsy moths". Now, really.

Discussing the water treatment plant, Mr. Meyer used the word "sludge" in reference to the filtration process. This was probably a deliberate choice on his part for most people know that a sludge is solids present in and removed from wastewater and give it a negative connotation. At the drinking water treatment plant, a floc is purposely formed in the water to effect a reduction in turbidity, among other things. This is a well-established practice that should be viewed positively. Without seeing a sample, I would give heavy odds that the "cute little devils" that Mr. Meyer sees in his glass of water are nothing more sinister than sinister air bubbles. Occasionally, water drawn from the tap can be quite milky due to air bubbles; if the glass is set aside the opacity will slowly rise and disappear.

The corrosion of copper plumbing, and potentially the lead-based solder, is a universal world-wide problem. Amherst was one of the first water departments in the country to become aware of the primary cause of this corrosion and responded promptly and responsibly to minimize it. Any lead found at the tap has originated in the building plumbing and not from the water supply. The recent elevated lead levels at Wildwood School occurred while corrosion treatment was discontinued to start up the treatment plant, not after the plant was in operation as stated in the editorial.

A number of people choose to purchase bottled water for ingestion rather than use the tap water. Many bottled water suppliers provide no refereed analysis; some sold in the Amherst area contain as much as 250 ppm of sodium, a health hazard far worse than the worst possible Amherst water. I hope no one is worried into switching to bottled water solely on the basis of the editorial.

All in all, Mr. Meyer had a near perfect record on the Amherst water supply — inaccurate. I strongly urge that before he ventures into a subject of such great importance and concern to the public well-being, he does his homework.

O. T. Zajicek
Assoc. Prof. of Chemistry — UMass

ABC charges inaccuracy in recent Collegian rape article

To the Editor:

We, the staff of ABC program in Amherst, are appalled by the recent report of an alleged rape of a UMass woman. In these days of increasing "rapes", we find it necessary to condemn such violent acts.

Our program here in Amherst is designed to increase the participation of minorities in building an equitable society by providing access to education centers of excellence to promising students who displaying ambition, merit, motivation, talent, creativity, curiosity, and other academic potential. The Amherst Committee for ABC consists of a unique blend of community families and community workers that work very hard to make the goals and principles of our program a reality.

We therefore make strong objections to your recent (Tues. September 28th, 1982) front page article which insinuated that the alleged rapist "had been occasionally sheltered at the A Better Chance (ABC) House, which provides an educational program for disadvantaged youngsters, on North Prospect Street in Amherst." It is such slanderous reporting based on unresearched information that seeks to defeat and destroy the good work that we the staff, the students and the supporting community strive for everyday. We feel it was a journalistic error on your part to report such a charge without first consulting with or double checking with an ABC program staff member. Thus we completely disassociate ourselves from your article although we condemn the alleged act of violence.

Mitchell Smith
Robin Khosah
Jeff Miller
ABC Staff

RSO funding should not be a leash on political groups

To the Editor:

Look out students, it's happening again! That group of budding politicians known as the SGA is proving once again that using political power for furthering personal ideas is an easy thing to learn. Soon, only RSO organizations that are politically active will be able to get any funds. If an RSO group does not happen to support the "common goals" that the SGA has determined they should, the Budget Committee will determine that they do not deserve student funding. This, regardless of the fact that there exist RSO groups which are not politically oriented, politically active, yet serve the student population using SATF funds; one of these has the largest membership of any student organization (and owing to its political inactivity, one of the smallest budgets).

If the SGA really wants to support student decision making, it should realize that the goals and objectives of any RSO group should be set by that RSO group, not by a group trying to force their own political ideas on others and using funding as the choker to keep people in line.

Leslie J. Quinn
Montague

Read
John Hudson
on American Foreign Policy
beginning on Wednesday

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Our advances are superficial

Steve Masse

The other day I was browsing through Faces, and I picked up a booklet called Why I Hate Men. Two of the major complaints repeated throughout were (1) Men never put the toilet seat cover down and (2) they never take their hair out of the shower drain.

I had to admit it was true. But suppose these problems were solved. If all men took their hair out of the drain and put the seat cover down, then a third and even more important human advancement would result. There would be less friction and more true awareness between men and women.

I was thinking about these vast advances of mankind this morning as I pissed into a ceramic bowl full of clear drinking water. Somehow, even after I put the cover down, and then took my twenty minute leisurely shower and rinsed myself sud by sud, remembering to take the hair out of the drain, I got the peculiar feeling that my own manners and social advancement were terribly superficial.

Perhaps I am not to blame that I was brought up to piss in clear water. No other arrangements had been made for me to get rid of waste, despite the so-called advances of mankind. But I could be to blame for the permanently threatened condition of the drinking water supply, regardless of what it's used for. When I overstay my shower time, or keep the water running while I shave or brush my teeth or wash dishes, then I'm guilty. So why don't I feel guilty?

There are always films, lectures and articles designed to raise consciousness and bring back all those contrite vows we made after high school pollution films. In Amherst we even go a step futher and run out of water occasionally, to dramatize the lessons in conservation. But even with the aquatic show and tell, do we respond? Well, maybe for a day or two, I may conserve water most carefully, appreciating every droplet that flows so freely from my faucet. I can be thrilled with the clear cold flavor of the precious liquid every time I take a drink.

Why can't we be trained in this vital appreciation when we are children, to be careful of water as we are careful of our lives and health? Must we conserve only when there's a crisis? Our bodies are composed primarily of water — it is the main ingredient of life, it is holy. All religions respect it, all peoples base their settlements and societies upon its availability. If all the water around us is sullied, then of course some of it is going to get into us and sully us, too. If the water goes away, so must we.

It's a terribly simple fact of nature, yet it's the simplest things that get taken for granted first. The sad thing about all this is that today, many readers will save a few hundred gallons of water, and tomorrow, everybody will be back to their wasteful habits. Even me.

And men will still be leaving the seat up, and forgetting to take their hair out of the shower drain.

Steve Masse is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Bill Shea, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Louis FINE FOODS
76 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MASS.

Save on your grocery bills plus S&H Green Stamps!

S&H GREEN STAMPS

SPECIALS VALID OCT. 18-23

LAMB SALE!
GENUINE SPRING AMERICAN
Whole or Half Legs of Lamb
$1.99 LB
LAMB Shoulder Chops $1.99 LB
LAMB Rib Chops $2.99 LB

USDA CHOICE

FREEZER SPECIAL!
WHOLE Beef Tenderloins
CUT INTO ROASTS OR STEAKS
$3.69 LB
6-7 LB AVG

LIPTON Tea Bags
$1.69 100 CT

OLD WORLD STYLE Ragu Sauce
$1.39 32 OZ JAR

SWEET LIFE 25 OZ Apple Sauce 49¢
SWEET LIFE Soda ALL FLAV. 2 LITER 69¢
PFEIFFER ASST'D Dressings 8 OZ 49¢
PILLSBURY FUDGE 22.5 OZ Brownie Mix $1.09

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

FROZEN
SEALTEST Ice Cream Polar Bars $1.79 6 CT PKG
SWEET LIFE Orange Juice 79¢ 12 OZ CAN

LU 81 With this coupon and $7.50 purchase excluding coupon items and cigarettes. Limit one per customer
SWEET LIFE BIG White Bread 20 OZ LOAF Free
VALID OCT. 18-23 AT LOUIS FOODS

LU 82 With this coupon and $7.50 purchase excluding coupon items and cigarettes. Limit one per customer
SWEET LIFE 5 LB BAG Granulated Sugar 99¢
VALID OCT. 18-23 AT LOUIS FOODS

FRESH PAMPERED Produce
THE PERFECT FLA. EATING Naval Oranges
12 FOR $1.49

PURDUE OVEN STUFFER ROASTING CHICKENS
69¢ LB

Killington receives first snow

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — While many Vermonters were stumbling out of bed yesterday to marvel at the early snowfall, skiers were already lined up at the slopes of Killington Mountain for their first run of the season.

Vermont's famous ski resort, which prides itself in being the first New England ski resort to open in the past 20 years, is officially open for the season.

"We're making tons of snow up there," an excited Leo Denis, skiing manager at Killington, said Sunday morning.

"The snow making crews will continue to blow snow as long as the temperatures remain below freezing."

And below freezing it was at Killington, where the mercury dipped to a bitter 14 degrees opening day.

Crews began blowing manmade snow at around midnight Friday, working all day Saturday to build a 1¼ foot base. During that time, two inches of natural snow fell.

"It's like winter up there," Denis reported Sunday.

Only one major trail was open as of Sunday afternoon — a half-mile run for advanced skiers called Upper Cascade. Officials said the high elevation run is always the first to open each fall.

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

$12.95 Men's Acrylic V-Neck
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant
Fri till 9 pm
(behind Silverscape)
Sat 10 - 6
253-9729

Arts

Entrancin' street Dancin'

DANCIN' IN THE STREET!
Next Move Theatre, Boston
October 10-November 17

By PAM MADNICK
Collegian Staff

"People moving in, moving out because of the color of their skin," were words originally sung by the Temptations in their 1970 Motown smash, "Ball of Confusion." Those words were sung with equal exuberance by the cast of Boston's longest running musical, Dancin' in the Street!

In a tribute to Motown's greatest hits of the Sixties and Seventies, the multi-talented cast includes Jasmine Guy, Ronell Seay and Lore Shelton. The band, too, is excellent, with Deena Anderson on piano and keyboards; Jackie Beard on percussion; Lenny Bradford playing bass; Sipho Kunene on drums; and Keith Robinson on guitar.

Jasmine Guy stole the show, playing games with her eyes to provoke the audience. Her facial expressions belie that she is more actor than dancer or singer, though Guy is proficient at all three. For instance, during the song, "Please Mr. Postman", she rushed over to the mailman and turned into a little girl waiting for a letter from her boyfriend. She then got larger as a woman keeping the postman from leaving the stage. Her high-pitched voice made her stand out from the rest of the cast.

Another powerful newcomer is 17-year-old Darcel Spear, making her debut with this show. Singing Stevie Wonders hit, "My Cheri Amour," Spear's version was at least as good as the original, if not an improvement. She seems to have unlimited vocal abilities.

Jackie Beard's saxaphone stood out with a passion. But it was Keith Robinson's acoustic guitar that really made the Lewis Robinson and Ronell Seay duo on "The Tracks of My Tears," light up.

The costumes were colorful, especially wearing mini-skirts and men wearing white t-shirts and jeans, typical of the 60's. But there was a strange feeling after intermission, when the cast, that appeared desheveled before, came out in evening gowns with gold caps and cream suits.

If you want to see top-notch entertainment and can get to Boston, see Dancin' in the Street! at the Next Move Theatre One Charles Place, Boston. Performances are Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday 6 and 9:30 p.m., and Sunday at 3 and 6:30 p.m.

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Sophomore art major Kelli Wilding created this purse and shoe out of cardboard for the recent exhibit at Herter gallery. Other student pieces included a lamp, a dorm and a castle.

Everett Gibson, Edna Davis, Teresa Reese, Lore Shelton and Darcel Spear star in Dancin' In the Street through November 7 at the Next Move Theatre.

An illuminating Shadow

THE SHADOW KNOWS
By Diane Johnson
Vintage Books, 254 pages, $3.50

By CHRISTINE MARINI
Collegian Staff

Violence has become an intergral, if repugnant, part of modern life and society. One reads about it, hears about it, even sees it in the streets. But if one is lucky enough to be a part of the white middle-class in the United States, that is usually as close as the cold reality comes. Usually.

In her latest novel, Diane Johnson probes a sensitive point; what happens when a member of the upper-class "immune" gives up (or loses) her special status? Is the exchange of security for freedom always the best move?

Johnson's heroine, Ms. N. Hexam, struggles to balance freedom and responsibility as she finds her life turned into a textbook (or popular magazine?) case. She has a lawyer ex-husband, four small children, a married lover, college degree . . . all seems lovely and secure until one scratches the surface. We, and Hexam, then see the facade collapse, for the "perfect" modern lifestyle proved no better than the ideal marriage Hexam left behind. There is no money, little free time, few friends, and, at the center of the story, one other slight problem — someone is trying to viciously to kill her.

At this point, The shadow Knows moves from the realms of popular sociology to the sphere of the psychology of fear. Hexam strives to keep her life in order as she and her family become entangled in a web of slashed tires, midnight phone calls, and mysterious attacks. The obvious questions come up — who is doing it, and why? In her mind Hexam goes through the list of people she knows and sometimes loves, and comes to the terrifying conclusion that, indeed, it could be anyone.

"I suppose if you ask anyone who it is trying to murder them, they will straightaway name loved ones without hesitation. Anyway people they know," Hexam realizes, for no one is truly safe, and no one can be trusted.

Johnson's skillful writing gives The Shadow Knows a sense of tension and immediacy that captures the reader from the start. Her prose, though sometimes a bit full-blown, is beautiful and even a little poetic, in an unassuming way. The pace of the story and flow of Johnson's writing carry the reader to a fitting and disconcerting conclusion, which is not so much a question of solutions as one of compromise. And something must be compromised in the exchanges of daily life, according to Johnson, when a person tries to have it all.

The Distinguished Visitors Program presents:
Harvey Wasserman:
Killing Our Own:
The Disaster of Americas
Experience with Atomic Radiation
Student Union Ballroom
Tuesday, October 19, at 8 p.m.
Free with valid ID

Let the sun shine in!
HAIR THE FILM
PG DOLBY STEREO United Artists
Wed. Oct. 20 at S.U.B.

Dastardly Dans
Mon - Thurs
$3.00 Cover
FREE DRAFT
9 - closing
50¢ Highballs
50¢ Domestic Beers
Pool Table - Pinball - Video Games
POOL TOURNAMENT TONIGHT

NOMINATIONS

for Distinguished Teachers Awards Program

any TA or Professor that has taught a course over the past two semesters

is eligible

Send your letter of recommendation to:

Distinguished Teachers Awards Committee
Graduate Student Senate
917 Campus Center
Deadline: Friday, Nov. 5th

WANTED

Southwest Resident Assistants for Spring 1983

How to Apply:

All those interested in applying must attend an information session. R.A. applications are available at information sessions only.

Information Sessions:

Mon - 10/18 - 9:00 pm Washington 5th floor lounge
3rd world applicants
Mon - 10/18 - 9:00 pm Washington 12th floor lounge
all applicants
Tues - 10/19 - 7:30 pm Thoreau (Main lounge)
All applicants (sign language for hearing impaired)
Wed - 10/20 - 7:30 pm Coolidge 12th floor lounge
all applicants

Pirates' Feast

AHOY MATES!

Don't miss the many treasures drawn from our Pirates' Chest! One lucky buccaneer will win a

SONY WALKMAN!

featuring:

- Vegetable Beef Soup
- Fish & Chips
- Sweet & Sour Pork
- First Mates Green Salad
- Gold Doubloon Zucchini
- Coconut Macaroons

WED.
OCT. 20

BLUEWALL
11:30-1:30

Shape Your Own Future

by designing a major specifically suited to your goals

Some examples: European Art & Literature, Dance Anatomy, Political Behaviorism, Advertising, Bilingual Social Work, Documentary Film & Video Production, Computer Applications in Design.

Come to an introductory meeting of the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) Program, and discover the choices available to you.

Monday, October 18
Dickinson Main Lounge
7:00 PM

Wednesday, October 20
Chadbourne Seminar Room
7:00 PM

STUDY WHERE YOUR CLASSROOM IS A COUNTRY.

JANE DID. AT TEL AVIV UNIVERSITY.

"Israel is a living history book, and I was right there, studying the Middle East at TAU. I attended courses given by some of the people who are making the history and foreign policy that will affect us for years to come. This kind of first-hand information gave me a perspective I couldn't get back home."

Find your own perspective. In the Overseas Student Program.

Full year, semester or summer. Moderate fees. Scholarships are available.

For more information, send coupon now or call American Friends of Tel Aviv University (212)687-5651.

American Friends of Tel Aviv University
Office of Academic Affairs
342 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017

Please send information about:
- One Year Program
- Semester Program
- Summer Session
- Other _____

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
University _____

Celebrate!

With a Diamond College Ring from ArtCarved.

Your college years are ending and your career is about to begin. Celebrate! With a college ring that makes all your efforts worthwhile. Come and see the beautiful and affordable Designer Diamond Collection exclusively from ArtCarved. Choose from three exquisitely styled rings, handcrafted in 10K or 14K gold, and set with genuine diamonds. (All styles are also available in the elegant diamond-substitute Cubic Zirconia). Let your ArtCarved representative show you how you can celebrate these times... for a lifetime.

This Week!

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS, INC

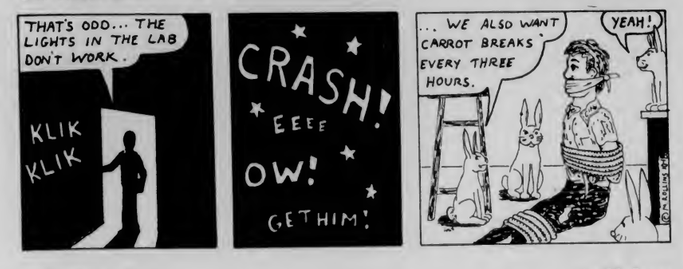
DATE: Oct. 18, 19, 20
TIME: 10-4
PLACE: Campus Center UNIVERSITY STORE

DEPOSIT REQUIRED. MASTERCARD OR VISA ACCEPTED.

©1982 ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS, INC

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins



Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. Menu

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Hot Pot
Humus Vegetable
Pocket Sandwich

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Nut Loaf/
Mushroom Sauce
Baked Chicken/
Supreme Sauce,
Cranberry Sauce

LUNCH
Open Face Ham
Swiss Sandwich
American Chop Suey

DINNER
Baked Chicken/
Supreme Sauce,
Cranberry Sauce
Roast Lamb/Gravy,
Mint Jelly
Antipasto Cold Plate
with Saltines

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

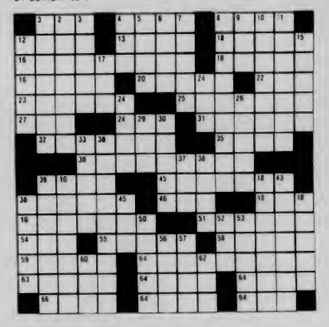
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Army men
4 Nothing, in Seville
8 Like the ocean
12 Virginian willow
13 Like central Australia
14 Quechuan
16 Relative of the buttercup
18 Chili con ——
19 Do a tailor's job
20 Writer Jong
22 Having a pseudonym, for short
23 Sleek
25 Candy ——
27 Poetic time: Contr.
28 Guido's high note
31 Forty ——
32 Pesters
35 Bireme necessity
36 Restful
39 Festive
41 Maroons
44 Greek physician's family
46 Quentin or Pedro
47 Asphalt
49 Made a stockpile
51 Be munificent
54 Hebrew letter
55 City in Yorkshire
58 Member of the nettle family
59 Native of New Zealand
61 Honey-eating bird of Australia
63 Home of the llama
64 Lampreys
65 Units
66 Handy
67 Nerve network
68 Egyptian god of pleasure

DOWN
1 Kuchen of a kind
2 French vacation spot
3 "—— alive!"
4 Terse negative
5 Indonesian Islands
6 Fashion name
7 —— Ababa
8 Delegated
9 Prescription measure
10 Painter's tool
11 Oilers
12 Mirror reflection
15 Approaches
17 Col. men
21 Container: Abbr.
24 Cry of pain
26 All ——
29 Name of several Popes
30 Jennies
33 Namesakes of Della's creator
34 Prestigious thing to be on
37 Alfonso's queen
38 Serendipity, for one
39 —— set (tennis call)
40 Menu offering
42 Worsted fabric
43 Rabelais products
44 Ruy
45 Bishopric
48 Rex and Donna
50 Delay
52 Hockey's Bobby
53 Indian V.I.P.
56 Woe, in Glasgow
57 Feature of Ganges delta
60 Ump's relative
62 Peer Gynt's mother



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	O	S	P	E	D	A	L	■	S	H	E
D	I	V	E	■	A	N	I	T	A	■	T	O	D	D
E	V	E	N	■	T	R	O	O	P	■	E	R	I	E
S	A	N	D	S	■	T	O	M	■	S	P	A	T	E
■	■	■	I	N	C	H	■	■	■	■	■	■	■	■
S	I	G	N	E	R	■	I	C	E	B	E	R	G	S
E	N	A	T	E	■	P	R	A	M	■	N	O	O	N
B	A	T	H	■	M	A	R	O	O	■	S	A	R	A
A	N	T	E	■	I	R	A	E	■	S	O	L	A	R
T	E	A	C	A	K	E	S	■	C	A	N	D	L	E
■	■	■	L	I	E	N	■	P	A	I	D	■	■	■
C	A	R	O	M	■	T	A	E	N	C	H	A	N	T
P	L	O	W	■	C	A	I	R	N	■	E	L	L	E
L	O	A	N	■	A	G	I	L	E	■	L	L	E
E	N	S	■	Y	E	S	E	S	■	M	A	E

WEATHER

Monday — Mostly sunny, light winds, high temp. 55-60°.
Monday night — Clear, lows in the 40's.
Tuesday — Sunny, breezy and warmer, highs in upper 60's.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	R 'n' B Wake-up with Ken Johnston
9-noon	Jazz with Dave Hart
12-3pm	Free as the Wind with Mahogony
3-5:30	Black Contemporary with Merritt Anthony
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	People's Perspective
7-10	Concepto Latino
10-2am	Special Edition of Trip to What Next with Ed Berk
2-6	Night Club with Evan Abramowitz

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Monday Oct. 18

Get in the Groove Video

10:30 - 11:30	Bill Russell at the FAC
11:30 - 1:00	Tornado Alley from Spr ingfest '82
1:00 - 2:00	The Doors (no one here gets out alive)

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
In Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon C9 — Golden Quarters Mrs. Filberts Margarine One pound package 29¢ — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase Good Oct 17-23, 1982 Limit one per customer — Stop & Shop

Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon C7 — 5 Pound bag Pillsbury Flour All purpose 29¢ — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase Good Oct 17-23, 1982 Limit one per customer — Stop & Shop

Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon C6 — Cream of Mushroom or Cream of Chicken Soup 10½ oz can FREE — Stop & Shop — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase Good Sun., Oct 17-23 Limit one per customer

Stop & Shop Frozen Coupon C5 — 12 ounce can Stop & Shop Orange Juice Frozen FREE — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase Good Sun., Oct 17-23 Limit one per customer

STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON C4 — 26 ounce container Diamond Salt Plain or Iodized FREE — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase Good Sun., Oct 17-23 Limit one per customer

Beef Top Round Steak USDA CHOICE 1.99 lb

Fresh Lean Ground Beef 3 lb pkg or more 1.59 lb

Top Round London Broil	USDA CHOICE	lb 2.19
Beef Top Round Roast	USDA CHOICE	lb 1.89
Beef Top Round Steak	Butterfly USDA CHOICE	lb 2.49
Cube Steak Beef Round	USDA CHOICE	lb 2.49
Boneless Beef Chuck Roast	USDA CHOICE	lb 1.69
Boneless Beef Chuck Steak	USDA CHOICE	lb 1.89
Boneless Blade Steak	Beef Chuck USDA CHOICE	lb 2.49
Chuck Stewing Beef	USDA CHOICE	lb 1.89
Shoulder London Broil	Beef Chuck USDA CHOICE	lb 1.99
Beef Tenderloin Whole	Untrimmed 6 to 7 lbs	lb 3.69

DOUBLE MFG. COUPONS
Hadley-Amherst only
see Store for Details
STOP & SHOP

corner deli Available in stores featuring a service deli.

Stop & Shop Corned Beef Round 2.99 lb
Colonial Chopped Ham Sliced to your order! 2.29 lb

2½ oz pkg All varieties Buddig Meats 2 for 89¢
Weaver Chicken Batter Dipped or Dutch Frye Thighs & Drumsticks 28 oz pkg. Frozen 2.69
Weaver Rondelets Chicken, All Var. 12 oz pkg Frozen 1.99
Jones Sausage Dinner, 1lb pkg. Frozen 2.09
Fresh Cod Fillets Scrod 1.99 lb
Fresh Haddock Dressed 1.99 lb
Fresh Scallops Florida Calico 3.99 lb
Arnold Bread Country White 24 ounce loaf 99¢
Colgate Toothpaste Regular 9 ounce tube or Gel 8.2 ounce tube 1.49

White Gem' Chickens
Whole 2½-3 lbs White Gem 44¢ lb
Perdue Whole Chicken lb 49¢
Chicken Leg Quarters with Back 'White Gem' 8-9 lb pkg lb 49¢
Chicken Breast Split with Back White Gem 5 6 lb pkg lb 89¢
Perdue Chicken Breast Whole lb 99¢
Perdue Chicken Legs lb 69¢
Perdue Chicken Wings lb 59¢

Pick and choose the values that are perfect for you!

Variety Apple Sale All Large Sizes and Fancy Grades.
McIntosh, Cortland, Red Delicious, Golden Delicious, Macoun, Jonathan, Rome, Empire Mutsu, Northern Spy, Molly's Delicious, Spencer and more to choose from lb 39¢
Extra Large Broccoli California bunch 79¢
Fresh Kale or Collards bunch 59¢
Fresh Washed Spinach 10 oz pkg 69¢
Fresh Turnip Mustard Greens or Fresh Green Swiss Chard bunch 59¢
Fresh Dandelions bunch 59¢
Fresh Apple Cider Half Gallon container 1.19
Fresh Walnut Meats Store Packed lb 2.99

C & C Cola 2 Liter Regular or Diet Plus Conn. Deposit bottle 89¢
Mott's Apple Sauce 25 ounce jar 69¢
Stop & Shop Tuna Chunk Light in Oil or Water 6½ ounce can 75¢
Clorox Liquid Bleach New Splash-Less Spout Half Gallon container 59¢
Nine Lives Cat Food Buffet size 6½ ounce can 3 for $1
Ragu Spaghetti Sauce All varieties 32 ounce jar 1.39
Scott Big Roll Towels Assorted 1 ply 119 sheet roll 69¢
Hood Orange Juice from concentrate Half Gallon container 1.09
Mrs. Filberts Margarine Golden Quarters 1lb package 2 for $1

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

North Amherst. Freshly painted, new furniture - two bedrooms $375/month. D.H. Jones Real Estate 549-3700

AUTO FOR SALE

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

1969 VW Camper Bus as is $1000 586-5827

Audi Fox 76 looks, runs, like new. Must see, after 5 pm 253-3519

VW Squareback, 1971, very good engine, $600. 549-3994

Rabbit front air dam and rear shocks A1 condition Dave 256-0543

1973 VW Bug new paint stereo good cond 665-2077 after 5:00

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniagrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

CHAMOIS SHIRT

LOST between Campus Center and Lot 65 on Sunday, October 10. Can identify -- sentimental value. Please call Terri at 545-3500 and/or 549-4621 anytime. Thanks

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

King of Clubs Band promo & info call Dave 297-1880 or Ralph 249-9786

FOR RENT

Room for rent in downtown Amherst clean & private 253-3833

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

Graduate Student for quiet home one bedroom left, $225 includes utilities 665-8144

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Pentax ME-Super 35mm camera with autowinder. $225. 253-2660

Ganuina brown leather jacket, almost new 45.00 546-4456

1961 Gibson EBO Bass (SG body) with case $225 or BO Steve 549-5039

1976 Fender Telecastar Bass. Very good cond. 275.00 Paul or Wes 584-2679

Atari Game Computar Pacman, Space Invaders, four other cartridges - a 260 value for 210 or BO like new 665-3862

Electric typewriters used Olivetti & Remington $150 ea 549-6889

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train, $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Amway distributors part-time 549-5358

Responsible people needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

LOST

Glasses. Silver-gray rims, brown case. Please call Jim, 6-4733

Diary, left on phone booth at Spirit Haus, Rt 9. Rusty 323-5526

Brown cable knit sweaar $10 reward call 546-6871

Green baracuda taken from the Pub 10/9. Film in the pocket is important! Please return to Leslie 549-1376

Reward for lost book bag bag contains one Cost Acct book some keys one TI30 The bag is blue Reward $15 call Kevin 256-0854

Lost Rayban sunglasses please return 253-9426

MAGGI

Happy 20th you're legal in MA now Have a great birthday, Gail

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a Collegian classified!

PSE for women who are gay or think they are. For more info call 549-2641 or come to Rm 304 Health Serv on 10-18-82

TONIGHT 5:00 all university women invited to dinner at Chi Omega sorority. Come and explore another living option. Located in Fraternity/Sorority Park - take Orchard Hill bus. Any questions call 545-0162

Pumpkin Sale - get ready for Halloween with a pumpkin - on sale at the Campus Center Concourse 10/18 today! Sponsored by Eta Sigma Delta (HRTA honor society)

Lesbian opening in pyschotherapy group run by Estelle Gorfine. Sliding fees. 253-2822

Amy Happy Birthday to a great roomie Thanks for everything Love ya Sue

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

HRTA students resume workshop Tuesday, October 19 7-9 pm sign up Flint Lounge

Alpha Epsilon Pi
is here
catch us!

LOST black UMass datebook Wed Oct 6. Owner lost w/o it. Nina 253-5137

Mark 7 we're expecting you soon.

Marcus Happy Birthday, whenever

Happy Halloween say it with a pumpkin cookie order at the Mortarboard Table Oct 20, 21, 22 on concourse

Happy 20th B-day Annie - time to hit the happy hours! I love you P.S.

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

ROOMMATE WANTED

Male needed for small Northampton two bedroom 125+ Scott 584-4348 after 5

Housemate needed - 4 bed house in Leverett - female pref. 100/month + call Wendy 549-2628

Need immediately Women to share room in Southwood Apt. $91.25 call Trecie 256-0354 leave message

Female roommate wanted 5 min walk to campus $140 call 549-6048

Female to share bedroom in Rolling Green immediate opening $106 month verything included

Apartmentmate needed $150/mo on bus route furnished call Jeff 665-4357

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Beat vidao available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WALLET

Maureen Glann your wallet has been found call 546-9294

WANTED

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5586

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

"2 for 1" Happy Hour
3-6 MON.-FRI.
Luncheon: Monday-Friday/11:30 am-2 pm
Dinner: Tuesday-Thursday/5 pm-8 pm
Friday & Saturday/5 pm-9 pm
For Reservations, Please Call 549-6000, ext. 639
Lounge Hours:
Monday-Friday/11:30 am-1 am
Saturday & Sunday/5 pm-1 am

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

NRBO
with The Pousette-Dart Band
Fri. Oct. 22nd at 8 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
$4.00 General Admission Fee
Tickets available at:
Faces of Earth, Amherst
Platterpus Records, Northampton
Please no alcohol, smoking, cameras or tape recorders
Doors open at 7 PM

SPAIN
Intensive Spanish Course in Sevilla
Beginners thru Advanced
Monday thru Friday, 4 hrs./day
Room and Board with Spanish Family
Flight: Chicago/New York/Spain Round Trip $2,697
Spring Semester Feb. 1 thru June 1, 1983
Group limited to 60
For our brochure and more information
Act now, call collect:
Mr. George Bonfe (612) 433-3985 or write
Mr. George Bonfe
Interschool
9469 N. Shore Trail N.
Forest Lake, Minn. 55025

Sports

The UMass boxing club is having an additional membership drive. Old and new fighters are welcome to come to the 19th floor of Washington Monday through Friday between 3 and 5 p.m.

Minutemen clawed by Black Bears

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Correspondent

ORONO, ME — After a scintillating first half for both teams, the University of Massachusetts sputtered while Maine continued its explosive play, all of which resulted in a 42-24 Homecoming Day victory for the Black Bears before 9800 fans at Orono.

Throughout the game, the Minutemen's defense, depleted by injuries, was unable to contian the confusing, effective wing-T attack which Maine deployed.

Black Bear quarterback Rich LaBonte played an excellent game, rushing for 72 yards and three touchdowns and passing for 150 yards and one touchdown.

Maine halfback Nick DiPaolo was also superb in filling in for injured star Lorenzo Boujer. DiPaolo gained 81 yards on 12 carries and scored twice. He also caught two passes for 69 yards.

The UMass offense, in the meantime, was not able to keep up with the Black Bear's, despite the heroic efforts of star running back Gary Pearson, who tied a school record with 35 carries, which produced 170 yards. Pearson also scored two touchdowns and returned a kickoff 57 yards to set up a UMass score.

The first half was a fan's dream as big play after big play occurred.

After UMass' opening game drive stalled, Maine left end and punter, Dave Sanzaro blocked fellow punter Dene Dreugas' kick, which the Black Bears recovered at the UMass 47.

From there Maine drove for their first score, with LaBonte bootlegging it into the endzone from the 20.

After exchanging punts, UMass quarterback Barrett McGrath was sacked and fumbled. Maine recovered on the UMass 48.

It was to be a rough day for McGrath, who had 4 completions in 14 attempts for 51 yards and had to leave the game in the third quarter.

"McGrath reinjured the same knee he hurt last spring. We don't know the seriousness of the injury yet," said UMass coach Bob Pickett.

With the ball on the Umass 47 and facing third down and nine, Maine decided to show the fans some razzle-dazzle. LaBonte handed-off to DiPaolo, who gave the ball to the other halfback, Paul Phelan, who then proceeded to run down the right sideline for 14 yards. When it appeared he was about to be tackled, Phelan lateraled to LaBonte, who ran the last 33 yards untouched for the touchdown. Maine then led 14-0.

The Umass offense answered back by taking the kick-off and going 87 yards in 12 plays with Pearson going over from the four.

However, Maine responded with another score of its own, this time through the air. Phelan beat the UMass defense deep and caught LaBonte's 62-yard aerial to make the score 21-7 Maine.

Just when the Black Bear fans were wondering what further football highlights were in the offing Rich Jenkins ran back the ensuing kickoff 97 yards for six more points.

That play seemed to inspire UMass but Maine would not be denied.

After getting to their own 49, Maine ran another counter criss-cross (inside reverse), this time without the lateral, and DiPaolo went 51 yards for still another touchdown, the fifth one of the second quarter.

UMass then made it six straight touchdowns on their next possession. Pearson bobbled the kickoff but recovered and appeared to be duplicating Jenkin's feat as he took the ball 57 yards before being tackled. From the Maine 33 it was a short march to another Minuteman touchdown with just 33 seconds left in the half when Pearson scored from the two.

After one of the most exciting halves of football this year, the score was 28-21.

The second half was basically anticlimatic.

After UMass closed to 28-24 on a 23-yard Bob Ross field goal, Maine scored two unanswered touchdowns, putting the game away.

The UMass offense just could never get a passing attack going to compliment Pearson's running. Also, Maine took away the kickoff return from UMass by employing the squib (short) kick, which forced the likes of 6'6", 265 pound tackle Dan Brennan to return the ball instead of Pearson or Jenkins.

Maine, on the otherhand, was able to continue to score and, therefore, won the contest.

It was Maine's first victory over UMass in 17 years and second year Maine coach Ron Rogerson was ecstatic.

"For me, for the coaches, for the players, for the program, it was the biggest win since I've been here," said Rogerson.

Pickett, who lost to his alma mater for the first time, was obviously disappointed, but gracious, in defeat.

"To say they are the same team without Boulier is not true. I admire the way they hung in there and did the job;" commented Pickett.

The Minutemen travel to Boston next week to take on Boston University.

Gettler's troops downed

By CHARISSE E. FEINERMAN
Collegian Staff

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — On Friday, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team lost their fifth game of the season against the University of Rhode Island, 2-0. Although the Minutemen have not seen a win in their last five games, including a stalemate with Boston University, spirits were still quite high when the team had practice yesterday.

The kickers started the game well and left the first half with no score on the board, after clearly dominating the period. The trouble started for the booters with the start of the second half.

With approximately ten minutes gone on the clock the ball was stopped because of a dangerous play. (UM lost control of the ball). URI was given posession and an indirect free kick off of a UMass wall. The kick went off the wall, then through the wall to the net. The goal was scored by URI's Geza Heni.

UMass continued to play well after that. Coach Jeff Gettler pulled a sweeper and put another man upfront in an attempt to get UMass on the scoreboard. But, with two minutes left on the clock, URI scored again to ice the game at 2-0. Gettler attributes this goal to the fact that he was pressuring his team.

"The game should have been 1-0. We just can't seem to finish," said Gettler.

Gettler was pleased with the performance of Fritz Pike, Tom Uschok, Jeff Smith, Brian McHugh, and Keven Flynn.

"Flynn had his best game," said Gettler.

"Technically we had a good game," said Gettler.

The Minutemen, now 4-5-1, are no longer a part of the New England rankings, due to their losing record.

The booters face the University of Connecticut on Wednesday at 3:00 p.m. UConn has won 32 straight games against New England contenders. There is no doubt that they will prove to be very worthy opponents.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

UMass alumni oarsmen, (from left to right) Scott Finch, Steve Westra, Bob Norton and Jim Clair, row in the Hadley Henley against other UMass alumni and varsity boats yesterday.

UM women booters win

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD — On Thursday, the coach of the UMass women's soccer team, Kalekeni Banda, said his team couldn't afford to lose to Springfield on Saturday or else they might lose their number one ranking in the Northeast region.

The women kept their top ranking, however, when they shut out Springfield on their own turf 1-0, with the only goal of the game coming from a penalty kick.

UMass, which raises its record to 8-3 has shutout eight of the 11 teams they've played, six of which came at home. The team has surrendered only five goals, and all of them have been given up on the road.

The UMass women, who are ranked fifth in the nation, outplayed Springfield and kept the ball down their end for most of the game. The team was fired up from the beginning and never stopped playing its game.

Senior Jackie Gaw scored the lone goal for UMass. The score came 15 minutes into the game and two minutes after a goal scored by UMass had been called because the team was offside.

Springfield did have a moment when it came close to tying up the score. With less than one minute left in the game, a Springfield penalty kick resulted in the ball hitting the left goalpost and a lot of groans from the Springfield crowd.

The women will take their three game winning streak to Boyden field tomorrow when they play Dartmouth at 3:00 p.m.

Milwaukee leads series 3-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Robin Yount capped a record second four-hit game with a home run, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and a one-game edge in the 79th World Series.

Responding to the cheers of "MVP, MVP" from the crowd of 56,562, Yount had a double and two singles along with his solo homer in the seventh inning. He scored twice and figured in two of Milwaukee's other runs.

Yount, who also had four hits in Game 1, is the first player in Series history to have two fourhit games. He now has 11 hits and six RBI in 21 at-bats in the Series. The Brewers lead the best-of-seven championship three games to two.

For winning pitcher Mike Caldwell, the game was in stark contrast to his three-hit, 10-0 masterpiece in Game 1. This time, the Cardinals battled Caldwell in each inning, banging out 14 hits and finally chasing him with one out in the top of the ninth.

Tough losses for stickers

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA, PENN. — If attitude and spirit could win field hockey games, then the University of Massachusetts Minutewomen would have come home from Philadelphia with two more wins under their belts.

But, as reality dictates, it takes more than a winning attitude to be a winning team, especially when you're up against some of the highest ranked teams in the nation.

On Friday afternoon, the Minutewomen lost a heartbreaker to Temple, 2-1 in the fourth overtime period.

UMass led 1-0 at the half, on a goal by forward Pam Moryl. Moryl took a rebound off the pads of the Temple goalie, and nailed the ball to the right side of the goal.

Temple tied the game midway through the second half, and the two teams battled for the remainder of the half, and through almost four complete overtime periods before Temple found the net again.

The game was just as close as the score indicates, as Temple outshot the Minutewomen by only a 5-3 margin. In corner statistics, that margin was even slimmer: Temple had 12 corners, to UMass' 11.

"Both teams were playing extremely well," said coach Pam Hixon. "It was a very even match...our shots were similar to theirs, and both teams took almost identical corners."

Against Old Dominion University on Saturday, the Minutewomen found themselves being outplayed in a 5-1 loss.

The game was tied at 1-1 at the half. UMass' goal came minutes after ODU took a 1-0 lead as Moryl scored her second goal of the weekend unassisted.

The second half saw ODU run away with the game, as they tallied four more goals.

"ODU was definitely a better team," said Hixon. "One of the best I've seen in my coaching career.

"We were tired and drained from the game with Temple. The turf took its toll on us. ODU simply dominated the game from start to finish," Hixon said.

UMass managed only two shots on goal and two corners for the entire game.

"We have to regroup now, and do the best we possible can for the rest of the season," said Hixon.

"These two games will have an affect on our position in the national standings, but how much of a factor cannot really be determined," she said.

The Minutewomen are at home this afternoon against Westfield State. Game time is 3:30 p.m. on the upper NOPE field.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday October 18, 1982 VOLUME 11 ISSUE 63

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

Port Chicago:The First Atomic Bomb?

The Last Wave From Port Chicago Part I By Peter Vogel

RECENT MONTHS HAVE SEEN A SPATE OF LAW SUITS BY VARIOUS INDIVIDUALS AND ORGANIZATIONS CHARGING GOVERNMENT MALFEASANCE IN ITS ATOMIC TESTING PROGRAM:

In Salt Lake City, Utah some 1200 plaintiffs representing more than 300 cancer cases have charged the government with negligence in detonating over 100 atomic bombs in the Nevada desert in the 1950's without informing the residents of the danger or providing them with adequate safeguards.

Next year Senate hearings have been promised to the Association of Atomic Veterans which represents the 250,000 veterans who took part in the more than 200 atmospheric tests from 1945 to 1963. Many of these veterans have developed an alarming number of illnesses, including cancer, which they feel are linked to their radiation exposure.

In Dugway, Utah a federal judge ruled on August 4th that the government engaged in fraud and deception in a 1956 trial when it denied that its nuclear testing was responsible for the deaths of some 4500 sheep in 1953.

But prior to all these claims, indeed prior to the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, was the great explosion of Port Chicago, California in July, 1944. Despite the fact that it was the greatest home front disaster of World War II, Port Chicago has been generally overlooked by history except for the subsequent "mutiny" trial of fifty black sailors who refused to return to their segregated stevedore chores of ammunition-bading.

Now, nearly forty years later, Peter Vogel has stumbled across evidence that strongly suggests that the Port Chicago explosion may have been atomic in nature. If this is so, the implications are staggering. Among other things it means that American citizens, mostly black, may have been the first victims of the atomic age; that long before Watergate, Koreagate, COINTELPRO and the Pentagon Papers, the government may have been engaged in a cover-up too monstrous to contemplate; that the safety of American citizens, whether black or white, soldiers or sailors, veterans or civilians, sheep farmers or housewives, may be of indifferent concern to the Washington policymakers. If that is sobering to think about for 1944, how more sobering is that possibility today?

To help you make up your mind, NUMMO is reprinting Peter Vogel's essay, "Last Wave at Port Chicago," as it appeared in the Spring, 1982 issue of 3LACK SCHOLAR.

On the morning of August 6, 1945, during the hour when most employed residents of the Japanese city of Hiroshima were on their way to work, a single B-29 bomber appeared high in the sky above the city. Those who observed the plane concluded that a single observation flight was passing overhead. Suddenly, a brilliant white flash cut across the sky; the city was destroyed, and more than 80,000 men, women and children died...some quickly, some slowly. On August 9th, the same disaster struck Nagasaki, with the same results. The atomic bombs that were exploded in the air over those two cities were firecrackers compared to the atomic nuclear fission and fusion weapons which have since been developed.

Over a year earlier in July, 1944, a huge explosion had occurred at the naval ammunition facility at Port Chicago, California. All public reports described this disaster as an accident due to conventional explosives. However, a chance discovery led me to wonder if the Port Chicago disaster might have been caused by a nuclear detonation...indeed, a detonation of a nuclear fussion devise of the same basic type as that dropped on Hiroshima.

It was a simple twist of fate that got me involved in the study of the history of the early atomic bombs which were developed at Los Alamos, New Mexico, across the Rio Grande from the town where I live and work: Santa Fe, originally named The Royal City of the Holy Faith of Saint Francis, by its Spanish founders. Here, in the Spring of 1980, I obtained at a rummage sale conducted by the Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, a document which had been taken from the Los Alamos Laboratories in the Autumn of 1944. I found the document at the bottom of a box of unused photographic supplies and equipment that had been donated to the church.

Continued on page 1

Part I

Last Wave, Continued from page 1

The document is entitled, "History of 10,000 ton gadget". I traced the document to a Mr. Paul Masters, now a resident of Santa Fe, who told me that it was in a box of materials he donated to the rummage sale. Masters said he was employed at the Laboratories as a photographic darkroom technician and phototgrapher. Part of his duties was to operate a large blueprint-type machine upon which were made copies of bomb drawings and other originals too large for conventional copying machines. The original from which the copy was made is lost, probably destroyed when superceded by subsequent documents.

If nothing else, the "History" is important because it is apparently the earliest known description of the progression of the explosion of an atomic bomb. It is very concise and contains previously top secret information about the actual design of an atomic bomb. However, apart from the general historical interest of the "History," the bottom line, Step 11, reads "Ball of fire mushroom out at 18,000 ft. in typical Port Chicago fashion."

This line caught my attention, and subsequently I learned of the disastrous explosion at Port Chicago in 1944. That explosion, according to eyewitness accounts, was characterized by a brilliant white flash, and a ball of fire which mushroomed out above the Suisun Bay north of San Francisco to an observed altitude of 10,000 feet before its ascent was obscured by the dark of night.

The document that I had found, comparing a hypothetical nuclear explosion to the actual explosion at Port Chicago, implied that the Port Chicago disaster itself may have been due to a nuclear detonation. If this were true it was of major significance. It meant that the first victims of an atomic disaster were Americans, and that for all these years government personnel had concealed this fact.

In thinking about the possibility that a nuclear devise was involved at Port Chicago, several questions come to mind.

† Did the U.S. in fact have the capability to build a nuclear fission weapon as early as July, 1944? Was there suffricient U-235 available?

† Had the bomb been specified by July, 1944? That is, were the technical details of its design drawn up in final form by that time?

† Was there any evidence that the Port Chicago explosion was nuclear in origin?

In my subsequent research I discovered that the U.S. did have the capability to build a U-235 weapon at that time, that the bomb design was specified as early as February, 1944, and that there is evidence indicating that the explosion at Port Chicago was nuclear.

CAPABILITY

In establishing the fact of the United States' early, unannounced nuclear fission weapon capability, I was guided initially by the reference in the "History" to the Port Chicago disaster, which indicated a 1944 time frame. The first officially acknowledged nuclear detonation was the July 16, 1945, test at Trinity Site, Alamogordo Bombing Range, New Mexico, a year after the Port Chicago explosion. If the "History" had been prepared after the Alamogordo detonation certainly the formation of the ball of fire of a nuclear device would have been described as "typical of the Trinity Site detonation."

The "History," in my opinion, was prepared in September, 1944, by a group at the Los Alamos Laboratories under the direction of Joseph O. Hirschfelder, currently affiliated with the University of Wisconsin at Madison and the University of California, Santa Barbara. An account of the work of the group, Group T-7, is found in the Manhattan District History, Project Y, The Los Alamos Project, Vol. I, LAMS-2532, Los Alamos, 1961. Paragraph 11.20 in this account, which refers to work accomplished at Los Alamos immediately following August 1, 1944, contains a description which parallels almost point for point the process described in the "History of 10,000 ton gadget.":

> Much more extensive investigation of the behavior and effects of a nuclear explosion were made during this period than had been possible before, tracing the history of the process from the initial expansion of the active material and tamper [Tuballoy, an inert neutron reflective material] through the final stages. These investigations included the formation of the shock wave in the air, the radiation history of the early stages of the explosion, the formation of the "ball of fire," the attenuation of the blast wave in air at greater distances, and the effects of blast and radiations of [sic] human beings and structures....General responsiblity for this work was given to Group T-7, with the advice and assistance of [the British Mission consultant] W.G. Penney.

Los Alamos Laboratories Theoretical Divison Group T-7 (Damage) had been formed in November, 1944, by a change of name. Group T-7 had been the former Group 0-5 (Calculations) of the Ordnance Divison. Both 0-5 and T-7 were led by Hirschfelder. In November, 1944, according to the Manhattan District History, Group T-7 was given the responsiblity for completing the earlier investigations of damage and of the general phenomenology of a nuclear explosion. Given the nature of the work assigned to the two groups that Hirschfelder headed before and after the Port Chicago explosion, and given the parallels between the paragraph quoted above and the description in the "History," it is reasonable to conclude that Hirschfelder was linked with the preparation of the "History". However, at this time Dr. Hirschfelder declines to comment on the "History".

Shortly after the disaster at Port Chicago, the Los Alamos Laboratories were radically re-organized in structure, organization and effort, effective August 1, 1944. This re-organization had, as its most substantial effect, the curtailment of all Laboratories' work on the uranium-235 gun assembly weapon which was to be detonated at Hiroshima. The decision was made to expedite the development of the plutonium-239 implosion weapon which was subsequently tested at Trinity Site and detonated at Nagasaki.

There were two very different nuclear fission weapons detonated above Japan. The weapon detonated at Hiroshima employed the uranium isotope U-235 as the active material and the weapon was detonated by firing one mass of U-235 (60 pound projectile) down an unrifled, 5 inch naval gun barrel toward a second mass of U-235 disposed at the opposite end of the gun as a target. Thus, the U-235 weapon detonated at Hiroshima was called "the gun".

It has been maintained by government histories since the end of the War that the gun had not been tested prior to the Hiroshima delivery. The reason given for the detonation of an untested weapon is that insufficient U-235 had been produced to allow both a test and the Hiroshima detonation.

The weapon detonated at Nagasaki employed plutonium 239 as the active material and was detonated by compressing a mass of Pu-239 located at the center of conventional high explosive charges shaped so that the force of the explosion of those charges was directed inward with the implosive force. This weapon was known as the "Fat Man", because of its porky appearance. The gun weapon was known as the "Little Boy".

Continued on page 4

October 11: Celebrating Justice, Not Columbus

By Athena Sethares

Approaching the green and brown expanse of the Amherst Commons, the orange of the fallen leaves awakens one's sensibility to the phenomenon of nature's innocence with regard to the Indian spirit that inhabited this fertile land not too many years ago.

Approximately one hundred people were gathered under an azure sky to celebrate Native American Peoples Day. The annual event opened this year with the words of singer and guitarist Marta Rodriguez; a woman who holds "the highest support for the struggle of Native Americans" and who offered songs to commemorate "the unity of people who are colonized and oppressed" all the world over. She sang "The Harder They Come" and "Palestine's A'Risin" but it was when she introduced the reality of ten year old Clifford Glover that the collective face of the audience was covered with a blanket of thoughtful silence. Clifford Glover was shot by a man "looking for a burglar" and because all Blacks "looked the same to him", he shot and killed the innocent youth. The man was later acquitted by a jury who sympathized with his inability to recognize one Black person from another and pronounced the professed killer free.

The next speaker was John Peter "the Supreme Medicine Man of the Wanapong Nation" as introduced by a representative of the Dennis Brutus Defense Committee in the Pioneer Valley, which sponsored the event. Mr. Peter, upon taking the stand, stated his discomfort at being in a town named after the infamous Lord Jeffrey Amherst, "who devised a scheme of getting rid of Indians with small pox blankets". With respect to the "plight of human beings" he said "I feel uncomfortable here, in the land setting of Jeffrey Amherst. How do you discover a land which has been inhabited for thousands of years?" he asked. The claim that this land was begotton "through an act of discovery is like saying, 'I've discovered your home here....I'll take it over. My people were considered strange because they were free, because they had no church; because they were big and good-looking....they were called Indians, after Indos, meaning god-like."

Real "democracy was here before the Europeans came, my people were democratic; the establishment of the United States tore a page out of the Indian book." He made reference to the search for Nazi war criminals in this country while ignoring that "the genocide of the Indian people has been ongoing for 400 years; the denial of human rights continues and we realize it hurts not only us: we are beginning to stop looking at ourselves and have started to examine the suffering of other peoples and the effects of environmental damage; water pollution, air pollution, food that is chemically destroyed and the billions of dollars that are spent correcting idiotic mistakes hurts not only us but all of you."

He said that in the establishment of this country they left out the two most essential ingredients of spirituality: "respect and love". "I hope I get into your minds so that you will have that respect and love and rule your own lives and stop the government from allowing these qualities from being run into the ground....open your eyes and ears and take account of what is going on around you."

Dennis Brutus, noted poet of South Africa, who in his youth was a member of the South African Olympics and used that leverage to bring attention to the apartheid policies governing his unjust nation, took the stand on the Amherst Commons. It is well known that because of his political resistance he was excommunicated from the Olympics by the South African Olympic Committee and spent 18 months at Robin Prison where South African freedom-fighter Nelson Mandela is also jailed. He was subsequently shot by the South African police and went to England in exile. In England he continued his political work against apartheid with the International Defense & Aid Committee in London. He came to the United States in 1970 and currently holds a professorship at Northwestern University. Last year he was a visiting professor in the English Department at Amherst College. He has recently been ordered by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to depart from this country and it was in response to this deportation order that the Dennis Brutus Defense Committee was founded in the Pioneer Valley.

In his Native American Peoples Day speech Mr. Brutus stressed the fact that the "struggle is not over"; he called on "all peoples of the world to join with us in seeking peace to insure survival for all indigenous people and all of the earth's creatures who have suffered persecution" and have the strength of concern not only for themselves but "concern for all peoples of the world who are confronted by the same enemy", an enemy "willing to kill people for the sake of things."

Mr. Brutus read a statement by Sitting Bull, a 19th century Indian chief spoken to his people in 1877: "Behold, my brothers and sisters, the season has come and the Earth has received the embraces of the sun, every seed has awakened and in this mysterious power, we too, have our power. These people who seek to rob us of our land are small and feeble, but not great, not overbearing; the love of possessions is a disease with them and they claim this Mother of ours, this Earth as their own and I say: First kill me then take away my Fatherland" to which the audience responded with enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Brutus ended his speech in his own words:

I Speak To A People

I speak to a people
A wonderful people
A people scattered across a land
You once owned, once roamed...
By what single name are you known?
All your names are strange and wonderful
Sioux, Mohawk, Apache...
What shall I call you?
I call you my fellow oppressed
My resilient allies...
I salute you, my brothers, my sisters
My Friends.

O'Jays Support Cultural Boycott of Apartheid South Africa

O'Jays Say No To Apartheid.... The popular Black American singing group, the O'Jays, have agreed to sponsor a conference this fall to discourage Black entertainers from performing in South Africa, as a result of pressure from a National Black United Front campaign.

The regional NBUF chapter in Philadelphia had threatened to picket and possibly boycott a concert the O'Jays had scheduled for June in Philadelphia, because of a trip to South Africa the group made last year. On the eve of the concert NBUF representatives met with the band's managers and, when the O'Jays announced that they regretted having performed in South Africa, NBUF called off the protest. The group's lawyers later announced that the band would not play in South Africa in the future.

Sonia Sanchez, noted Black American poet and NBUF member involved in the protests, lauded the action, asserting: "we need to have a joining of forces between (activists) and people who can get to large audiences and get the word out." Sanchez went on to suggest that the performers take time between their songs to tell people about their experiences in South Africa. Philadelphia NBUF members are planning a campaign against Black performers who go to South Africa in conjunction with a local Black music association.

Black American entertainers, who are popular in South Africa, have long been coveted by the regime as a means for placating opposition, internally and internationally. The lure of exceptionally high profits and lack of information on the part of entertainers has hurt efforts to discourage such visits. "The lifestyle (of popular entertainers)," said Vincent Thomas of WRTI, Philadelphia, "does not lend itself to political analysis..it's an inherent contradiction."

The O'Jays later announced, at a joint press conference with the Washington-based Africa lobby TransAfrica, that they would be sponsoring a conference in Hollywood in September to help build the entertainment boycott of South Africa

Apartheid Links Expand.... Encouraged by the Reagan administration's recent advances towards the apartheid regime, South African Airways recently applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to launch a new air route between Houston, Texas and Johannesburg. The Houston Chamber of Commerce, the local business community, and sympathetic US Senators have expressed substantial support for the proposition. The Lawyer's Committee For Civil Rights Under Law has urged that letters of dissent be sent to the Civil Aeronautics Board (1825 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20428) in an effort to put a halt to this new link in the chain of US support for the apartheid regime.

The following artists are a few of the many performers who have toured South Africa in the past year (1981). Their company in business-relations with South Africa includes such notables as Frank Sinatra, Goldi Hawn, the Beach Boys and Village People. The list includes popular Afro American performing artists, many of whom insist upon having integrated audiences. But, their services continue to uphold a fundamentally racist and repressive regime in South Africa.

PERFORMERS WHO TOURED SOUTH AFRICA IN 1981:

Isaac Hayes
Millie Jackson
Curtis Mayfield
Dakota Staton
O'Jays
Tina Turner
Ray Charles
Chick Corea
Stephanie Mills

Spotlight on the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center

By Keith W. Johnson

The Martin Luther King, Jr. Cultural Center is located in Dickinson House in the Orchard Hill Residence Area. The Center provides academic, social and cultural services for students who live in the Orchard Hill and Central Residence Areas.

The center was revitalized last year after a long period of virtual inactivity. At that time it was known as the Orchard Hill Cultural Center but last spring, area students dedicated the Center in the name of Martin Luther King, Jr.

The King Center is equipped with a typewriter, stereo, library, and office space. There are also ping-pong and pool tables just outside the Center in the dorm lounge. The soft lounge chairs and magazines make the Center a great lounge area where minority students can come to relax and exchange experiences. Most nights it is a quiet study lounge.

In the past year the Center has put on numerous events such as movies, poetry readings, and dinners. Last semester there was even a jazz bandperformance.There have also been social gatherings that have been enjoyed by students from across campus.

The Center has been funded by Orchard Hill and Central Area Governments and is run collectively by a number of students who live in the area. Soon a part-time coordinator will be selected to assist with the administration of the Center.

The Center is now planning its next event and wants to do something for Black Homecoming. Center events and activities are open to all students. We hope to see you there.

Update On The NFL STRIKE.. By Keith W. Johnson

Last week in studying the NFL strike we took a look at the millions that the owners of NFL teams make each year. The players have asked for a greater share in some of the profits made from the sport they play in. But the management council has rejected most of the offers of the players' union. To this date the owners and the players are as much in disagreement as they were at the beginning of the strike. No solution has come from any of the recent meetings.

The players are not just asking for money. Some of their others demands are attempts to improve their job situation. Just like any other worker is entitled to. The players have asked for a return to natural grass for reasons of safety. (Anybody who has played on artificial turf realizes that God has cornered the market with the real thing and if your going to fall, grass is your best bet.) They have also asked for a second opinion on injuries by doctors of their choice and for a joint committee of players and owners to discuss game rules. They would like transition pay in the form of severance allowance which would be paid to players as they go from football to post-football careers. They would like $15,000 for each year of play and since the NFL also has the most restrictive free agent rules in sports, the players also want the right to negotiate with a team after three years.

In answer to this management has not addressed the issue of artificial turf; is opposed to a joint rules committee; offers $10,000 a year in transition fees; does not agree with free agency, and is willing to negotiate on team doctors. They opposed the first union offer of fifty five percent of gross revenues, the second offer of fifty-percent of the television revenues, and any idea of a wage scale.

What we have in professional football is a booming sub-economy within the depressed economy of our larger society. The football economy is so good that there are rumors that management may soon have its own space program with an NFL satellite orbiting the earth. And the way television technology is advancing, that is not too outlandish or far away. The workers (players) in this society have asked for an improvement of their working conditions. They wish a voice in the society of football; a society in which they sacrifice their time and bodies during their youth in order to have a career estimated at 4.2 years.

In this football society, like our own, there is a class system in which some people are more important than others. But the ruling class in this society is not really the high-salary quarterback, runningbacks or receivers who, incidentally, have nothing to gain from the strike since they are well paid already. Not even the coaches are the generals in this simulated game of war. The ruling class is the corporate structure of owners. The idea of destroying a class system based on the workers is out of the question as far as the owners are concerned. For the player to have part control over the society, in this case football, is to some owners, unAmerican. But aren't striking unions part of American history? If not, we must ban the AFL-CIO, tell the Polish government and the Soviet Union that they are correct in supressing Solidarity, and that President Reagan was just in destroying the air traffic controllers PATCO union.

Some people are in favor of the Players Union. The International United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union has endorsed the strike. Also, the day the strike began the union filed eight unfair labor practice charges against the owners with the National Labor Relations Board. The Board ruled in favor of the players on two of the charges. So the government seems to believe that the union in not too far out-of-line.

So the next time you watch a professional football game, whenever that may be, think of the millions that are earned. How much from tickets, television, and other articles that go with the game. For instance, the Tampa vs. Detroit game at Pontiac Stadium on September 26 was to have grossed $1,007,975. That's just from tickets of one game. Remember the owners get most of that money. If you get a chance remember the men on the field are the worst-paid athletes in major sports. They don't get much of the millions that are made. And for those people who think this is just a game, ask Joe Namath about his knees, or George Rogers about his drug problem or talk to Darryl Stingley about his paralysis. Do they earn their during their average 4.2 year careers or not?

Black Coach Wins 300th Game

By Keith W. Johnson

Grambling State University played in Tallahasse, Florida on Saturday, September 25 against arch-rival Florida A&M. Despite the electrifying rhythm of their fabulous marching bands and the fact that these are two of the finest Black College football teams in the country, the overshadowing drama of this game was the fact that Eddie Robinson, coach of the Grambling Tigers, who had won 299 games was on the verge of winning his 300th. A win against Florida A&M would give Robinson 300 victories and make him the fourth winningest coach in college football history.

Robinson grew up in south Baton Rouge, Louisiana and since the age of four had wanted to coach football. By the time he had graduated from the now closed Leland College where he was a single wing tailback, he had decided that coaching would be his life career. After working in a feed mill for a while, he met with the president of Grambling College who offered him the job. That was in 1941 when Robinson was 22 years old and the population of the school was 900. There are now 4,200 students at Grambling.

The Grambling Tigers have come a long way with Eddie Robinson as the only coach the school has ever had. In 1941 the Tigers had a record of 3-5. In those days Robinson's assistant coach was the night watchman. Since then the Grambling Tigers have been one of the premier Black College football schools in the country. The Tigers were one of the first college football teams to play in Tokyo, Japan and were the first college team to play in the Superdome in New Orleans, La,; they have made regular appearances at Yankee Stadium in New York City and have played in more major football stadiums than any other college team in history.

Grambling is considered just as much of a football factory as Ohio State and USC since the school has produced 250 players who went on to the NFL. Seventy five of those players have become All-Pros. Frank Lewis, Charlie Smith and Tampa Bay Buccaneer quarterback Doug Williams are but a few names of Grambling Alumni in the NFL.

Yet Grambling does not get as much recognition as other football powers. That is because most people rarely see Grambling or any other Black College team on nationwide television. The last Black College team on national television was Florida A&M playing against UMass in the 1979 Pioneer Bowl. This year Grambling is gaining national recognition because of its fantastic receiver Truman Johnson who, like Doug Williams in 1977, is a bono fide Heisman Trophy candidate.

With Doug Williams and other alumni on the sidelines, Eddie Robinson was at it again last month, coaching Grambling toward another victory. But with a minute gone in the last quarter and the Florida home crowd yelling "Not in Tallahassee Eddie, not in Tallahasseel", Grambling was trailing the Florida A&M Rattlers 21-14. But with Robinson's strategy and Truman Johnson's talent, Grambling scored three times in five minutes and won 43-21.

With Bear Bryant being the only other active coach with 300 wins there is a good chance that Robinson may soon catch up with Bryant and become the winningest coach in college football history.

Announcements

The Third World Women's Task Force is sponsoring a film series this autumn semester, 1982, entitled. Third World Women in Liberation Struggles. In concert with each film presentation, there will also be a faculty member from the five college area to speak, answer questions, fill in gaps, update the film, and help lead a discussion. It is the hope of the Third World Women's Task Force that these presentations will provide a forum of discussion as well as education around topics of concern to the Third World, and specifically to the women of the Third World.

This is a lunchtime film series to be held every-other Thursday at noon until 1 p.m. These presentations are free of charge and open to all.

Due to the nature of the organization, and to the extremely limited budget we are working with, we are asking those groups and individuals like yourselves who share common interests to co-sponosr the series by making a monetary contribution, if possible. Any amount is both welcome and appreciated. We thank you for your interest in our program.

October 28th Women in Arms
A vivid account of the role of women in the Nicaraguan Revolutionary forces, and their post-revolution situation. Carmen Diana Deere, Prof. of Economics at U.Mass and member of the NCOCA, will be speaking in conjunction with the film. Thursday noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 904-08.

November 4th Chile:Four Women's Stories
Four women speak in their own words about their lives in Chile before and after the September 11, 1973 military coup. Their stories touch on Chile's history, economic conditions, the worker's movement under Allende, the Chilean women's movement, repression after the coup, and commitment to the new Chilean revolution. Susan Triolo, member of the NCOCA, will be speaking in conjunction with the slide presentation. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 917.

November 18th Women Under Siege
A brand new film which looks at the participation of the women of a small Palestinian village located just six miles north of the Israeli border in their unique and often overlooked struggle * Speaker TBA. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock U.Mass Campus Center. Room 903.

December 2nd A Vieled Revolution
From the same woman who produced Women Under Siege, comes this very recent account of the women's movement in Egypt. *Speaker TBA. Thursday, noon - 1 o'clock. U.Mass Campus Center. Room 904-08.

* Indicates that the speaker has not yet formally confirmed. TBA:to be arranged.

The Malcolm X Center
The Malcolm X Center announces its current hours as being Monday through Friday from 12:00 p.m. -10:00 p.m. and Sunday from 2:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. and invite everyone to drop by!

Third World Caucas Meeting

There will be a mandatory Third World Caucas meeting on Wednesday, October 20th at 6:00 p.m. in the office of Third World Affairs, Room 308 in the Student Union Building.

All campus Third World organizations are urged to send representatives. All are welcome. For more information please call Otwa at 545.2571.

The Third World Women's Task Force is sponsoring a speaker on the Phillipines. The speaker, Charito Planas, will speak on the recent visit of President Marcos to the U.S., the current situation of national emergency in the Phillipines, and the people's resistance movement against the tyranny and oppression of Marcos.

The talk will be held on October 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 811-815. The event is open and free for all. Childcare will be provided at the Everywoman's Center. For more information, call Panna Putnam at 545-0883.

Bernadette Devlin-McAliskey, Irish Activist To Speak At UMass

On Monday, October 25, Bernadette Devlin-McAliskey, long-time activist in the Irish freedeom struggle, will speak at noon in the Student Union Ballroom. Devlin-McAliskey is a former member of the British Parliament for 5 years. Presently she is a spokesperson for the National H-Block/Armagh Committee, a coalition which supports the demands of political prisoners in Northern Ireland.

In 1979, as a candidate in the elections for the European parliament, her campaign focused on two basic issues: release of political prisoners and amnesty; and for the immediate withdrawal of British troops from the North. She exposed the 800 year British occupation of Ireland as imperialist in character, subjugating the indigenous population politically, economically and socially.

In a speech given in New York last November, she said: "Many people ask me why there is so much reluctance by any government in the world to take up the cause of the Irish people. I believe it is because we play a crucial political role that spans the whole spectrum of world politics.

We are a gateway between the struggles of what is called the Third World and the internal struggles of Western capitalism. We are a people whose strongest links are and always have been with the culturally, socially, politically, and nationally oppressed of the world.

When I came here eleven years ago, it was fair enough that I was young, articulate, female and Irish, but people found it hard to accept then that I was radical, a leftist, and I had too damn much to say about Black people.

But eleven years ago the very people in this country who had no problem understanding exactly what I was saying were the people who were Black, who were Puerto Rican, who were Chicano, and who were oppressed.

And today, after a decade of struggle we see that the brotherhood and sisterhood of the Irish people lies with the people who are suffering today in South Africa, in Poland, in Iran, in El Salvador.

Because of the position we in Ireland occupy, we are also an integral part of that struggle which recognizes the basic power of organized labor. We are part of that struggle that is an internal part of Western Europe and America: the struggle between those who produce the wealth of the world and those who benefit from that wealth and use it to persecute those who produce it.

That is why the American government, above all others, wants to avoid the question of Ireland. That is why the American media talk rubbish, reporting that a Protestant soldier was killed yesterday. How do they know where, if anywhere, he worshipped? He was not killed because of the church he did nor did not go to on a Sunday. He was killed because of the uniform he wore on his back, because he was a British soldier. If the media posed it in those terms it might just make it meaningful and understandable, not glorious or wonderful, but understandable to too many people...."

In January 1981 Bernadette and her husband Michael McAliskey were severely wounded by three pro-British assassins who broke into their home in Coalisland. Bernadette is a vibrant dynamic speaker who will not be silenced, and should not be missed.

For further information, please call the Irish Solidarity Committee at 256.8690.

Continued from page 2

There are many indications that the Pu-239 implosion weapon could not have been detonated at Port Chicago in July, 1944. Significant among these is the fact that the molded explosive lenses, which were essential to the detonation of that weapon, were not reliably tested until early Spring, 1945. Therefore, if a nuclear weapon had been detonated at Port Chicago, it must have been the U-235 gun weapon.

The government had contended that not enough U-235 had been produced and purified to allow a test before the bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, but no one had ever verified the production statistic. I realized that the production statistics for U-235 for the years 1943 through 1949 had never been published. The contention that the U-235 gun weapon could not have been tested was therefore unsupported.

In fact, my research revealed that at the time of the Port Chicago disaster there was enough active material in existence to produce several weapons of the Hiroshima type. On December 5, 1980, I requested and obtained from two offices of the United States Department of Energy the U-235 production statistics for the years 1943 through 1949 (See Table 1). * According to the Classification Office of the Los Alamos National Laboratory, the minimum critical mass for U-235 (that amount of U-235 which will, if accumulated in a sphere result in a spontaneous, uncontrolled nuclear fission reaction) is approximately 15.5 kilograms, assuming that the mass is tampered with material which reflects back into the mass those neutrons which would otherwise escape and not contribute to the initiation and sustaining of the nuclear fission reaction.

Depending on the geometries of the target and the projectile components of the gun weapon, and the configuration of the tampering, the active nuclear component of the weapon detonated at Hiroshima could have been as much as 60 kilograms of U-235. More probably, however, the total U-235 component of that weapon was nearer to 45 kilograms. It may thus be seen from Table 1 that sufficient U-235 existed at the end of 1943 to allow the detonation of a weapon with the yield of the Hiroshima weapon, or the detonation of several minimum critical mass devices.

As a matter of note, the end of World War II would have tended to end the secrecy which governed the dissemination of information about these bombs and their manufacture, but a memorandum from the military commander of the Army's Manhattan Project, General Leslie Groves, to the Director of the Bureau of Public Relations on August 31, 1945, directs the Bureau to exclude from any information disseminated reference to "the quality and quantity of production of active material and atomic bombs."

To Be continued in next weeks issue

Watch for continuation in next weeks issue

Just A Vibe

Sometimes I think about the sadness in my life
And the extreme realities of my world.
Then I look at our world
And wonder
How selfish could I be

Deanna L. McRae

African Forum

African Forum, New England's leading African Affairs show, is broadcast from 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. every Saturday. African Forum is the only program in the nation where you can hear Liberation News which provides a regular update on the African Liberation Movement. So far the best in reportage on African Affairs, be sure to listen to African Forum every Saturday on WMUA 91.1 FM.

Announcements policy: All announcements must be submitted in writing by the Friday before date of issue.

Life in the Fast Lane, a one man tour-de-force by Japanese-Hawaiian poet Lane Nishikawa. Presented by the Sansei Theatre Company on Thursday, October 28th at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Homeland by Steve Friedman and Selaelo Maredi, a domestic comedy about South Africa and the United States. An original presentation on Thursday, Friday, Saturday on November 18, 19, and 20 and on December 2, 3, and 4 in Hampden Theatre Southwest, all performances are at 8 p.m.

Ticket Information: The Third World Theater Series strives to make quality theater available to all people. Single event tickets are 2.00 for students and 3.00 for the general public. Tickets will be sold at the box office on the evening of the performance. Group Discounts are available. For further information call 545-3604.

Nummo Staff

Roxana Bell — Co-Editor
Angela Brown — Co-Editor
Brynne Clarke — Lay-Out
John Wright — Photo Editor
Jennifer Bayne — Researcher
Donna Davis — Business Manager
Angela Siscamanis — Typesetter
Deanna McRae — Administrative Assistant

Contributing Reporters/Photographers

Keith Johnson
Tracey Bryant
Sheila Smith

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 30 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, October 19, 1982

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., fields questions at an "Open Town Meeting" held last night in Amherst at the Bangs Community Center.

Sen. Tsongas warns U.S. technology not maintaining world leadership level

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Senator Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., last night told a full house at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst that the Japanese challenge to the high technology industry is one of the most serious challenges ever to the Massachusetts economy and that immediate re-emphasis on it is critical.

Tsongas' comments came during a two-hour "open Town Meeting" with more than 120 persons attending.

Tsongas, in detailing views on the need for a re-examination of the U.S. role in the high technology field, said the country is in a technological war against the Japanese and a military "war" against the Soviets.

But, "if you go after the Soviets," Tsongas said, "you lose to Japan," explaining the problems he perceives being created by the Reagan Administration's increased emphasis on military spending combined with a lessening of educational support.

Tsongas proposed a division of funding sources for applied research -- 20 percent by industry, 30 percent by the state, and 50 percent by the federal government -- which he said would both provide needed government support while assuring the practicality a business would employ.

While Tsongas, who gave no opening speech before beginning the question and answer session, tried on several occasions to elaborate more fully on the technology issue, questioners repeatedly drew him back to one other subject -- nuclear war.

"You want some advice?" Tsongas responded to a question on the nuclear civil defense relocation planning which would send all residents of the Springfield area to Amherst in the event of an imminent nuclear confrontation. "Stay home. I don't know where they plan to send me -- but I ain't goin'."

Tsongas also warned of a trend of neutrality he forsees beginning in European countries as a result both of American arms control policies and actions such as the recent Soviet pipeline embargo imposed by President Reagan.

"Anti-Americanism is now fashionable in Europe," Tsongas said, where our country is seen as "the rankist kind of hypocrites."

In continuing with foreign policy, Tsongas said, "The U.S. has a tradition of supporting juntas that in no way support our own values."

"I'm anti-Communist," Tsongas said is the essence of a pitch given to our government. Then reaching into his pocket, he mimicked the responses, "How much do you want?"

However, although "I don't think the government (in El Salvador) is moving in the right direction," Tsongas responded to one specific question, "if they turned that (land reform, human rights violations) around, I'd have no trouble supporting them."

In regards to South Africa, Tsongas said Reagan considers its apartheid policy "a bulwark against Communism," while he perceived it to be "an entry to Communism."

Although Tsongas hoped for "evolution, not revolution" to peacefully change that nation, he lamented, "you'll not see serious change until there's violence."

In addressing domestic political matters, Tsongas expressed his "hope the country will realize the difference between the New Right and classical conservative idealogy."

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

The breakdown of negotiations between Gnomon Copy owners and workers has not diminished the determination of workers to bring an end to the lingering dispute. But after 41 days on the picket line, union members say they are beginning to experience the economic repercussions of the strike.

Two Gnomon strikers have acquired part-time employment while four others are working at jobs they held before the strike began, said Mary-Erin Cook, a striking employee.

"I don't play as much Pac-Man as I used to," Cook said. "I don't buy books like I used to and I probably don't see as many movies."

"It will be quite a while before I'll change my lifestyle. I tend to spend conservatively any way," striker Tobi Saisa, said.

Ila O'Brien, 27, a striking employee who worked part-time at Gnomon, said she is living "week by week" and is supporting herself through free-lance writing. She said some other strikers have been very kind to her by taking her out to the movies and ocassionally out to eat.

"I don't have any income. I'm relying on savings which are dwindling," she said. "I can't get my car inspected until the strike is over."

Brian Sabel, 28, is a striker working as a teacher's aid in a nursery at the Common School in South Amherst 32 hours a week. Sabel said he worked at Gnomon for three years but began working part-time last summer when he started working at the nursery. From the strike's outset, Sabel said he has gone out less frequently because he is not taking in the extra income from Gnomon.

"The job doesn't cover the nice things in life like going out or buying clothes," Sabel said.

Some strikers said the dispute has lasted longer than expected but are determined to remain on strike until a settlement is reached.

"It's an unfortunate necessity," O'Brien said.

Strikers said they are still waiting for their union benefits to be processed. The benefits will be added to the striker's fund which contains about $1,000.

The fund is a collection of donations which includes $300 raised at a benefit dance party at Smith College last Saturday night. The benefit was sponsored by students at the University of Massachusetts Labor Center.

The fund is being managed by a committee of three strikers. The money from the fund will be allocated on the basis of need. None of the funds have been allocated at this time, said Saisa, a committee member.

Although there have been no formal negotiations, Saisa said that David Cohen, the representative for the union, and John Sytek, vice-president of the Gnomon Copy stores, have talked informally by phone but have not set a date for new negotiations. Sytek is advising Catherine Iannacchino and Roland Wetherbee, co-owners of the Amherst franchise, in the labor dispute.

Saisa said Cohen and Sytek discussed the company's last proposal to base wages with employee productivity. The strikers said they rejected the company's offer on the basis that workers cannot control other factors determining productivity such as business fluctuations and machine maintenance.

Crook said the plan would actually result in a pay decrease. She said the owners selected the three busiest months of 1981 as the standard on which productivity would be based and is unfair because the slower business months are not included in the plan.

The plan, Crook said, would result in a wage increase only when current production exceeds levels in the three busiest months of 1981. If the plan was in effect last year, the year's total payroll would have been $9,000 less than it was, according to a strike pamphlet.

The workers have been on strike since Sept. 8. Four negotiation sessions held since then have produced agreements on only minor points before talks ended Oct. 5. Negotiations failed to produce anything substantial in aspects such as wages and the union's demand to require new workers join the union.

Workers from the Amherst Nursing Home union will sponsor a Halloween dance to raise money to help the Gnomon strikers, said Karl Myer, a member of the union. The dance is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Oct. 30 at North Hadley Hall in North Hadley Center.

Strikers said a coffee house to help raise funds is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Oct. 29 at the Unitarian Church on North Pleasant Street.

Photo by Peter Marks

University of Massachusetts physics and Chinese major Ton Stoddart practices clarinet in his off-campus apartment.

Duffey's staff shake-up may result in legal action

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey last week announced new staff assignments for Whitmore personnel which have left one administrator unclear about her duties, and considering legal action against the University.

In a memorandum to the University last week, Duffey announced that Marie Reid would serve as associate to Jack Denyse, vice chancellor for Administration and Finance, and oversee the campus' operating budget. The appointment is a demotion for Reid, who in her 2½ years at UMass has served as assistant to former Chancellor Henry Koffler, director of planning and budget and overseer in the area of University Relations and Development.

Reid said yesterday she has sought legal advice during the last two weeks because of the lack of clarity in her appointment.

"This demotion has put a line of personal and professional strain on myself, my office staff and my family," she said, "I feel it's so unclear."

Duffey could not be reached yesterday, but according to another source the appointment is within University regulations.

Duffey has also appointed Deirdre Ling as assistant chancellor. Ling has served as dean of academic support services and acting assistant Chancellor under Loren Baritz.

Louis Fischer will serve as associate to the chancellor and will be liaison with the Massachusetts Society of Professors and the other campus governments. Richard Nolan will continue his work in long range planning.

World and national news

National unemployment is at 10 percent but Indians experience 70 percent jobless

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The nation's 10.1 percent unemployment rate failed to impress Indian officials here — they put the jobless rate on the reservations at up to 70 percent.

"It's bad out here," said Isleta Pueblo Gov. Frank Jojola, who estimates two-thirds of the 3,500 residents of his pueblo — a local tribal unit — are out of work. "And a couple of months from now, my God, what's going to happen?"

Many state and tribal officials blame Reagan administration budget cuts for the skyrocketing unemployment rate among Indians here, including the nation's largest tribe — the 170,000-member Navajos.

Officials say winter is likely to make matters worse as the snow halts cattle grazing and crop production.

High unemployment is a chronic problem for Indians, who comprise 10 percent of New Mexico's population but only 2 percent of the state's work force. Within the past four years, the jobless rate for Indians in New Mexico has soared from some 10 percent to 20 percent, said John Olguin, director of the state Indian Affairs Commission.

And, said Olguin, "things are going to get worse." He says continued high unemployment among Indians can be attributed to many factors, including their lower educational levels and unwillingness to leave reservations where jobs are scarce.

Officials say they are looking for jobs for the Indians, but little improvement is expected until farm work resumes in spring.

The vice chairman of the Navajo Tribe, Frank Paul of Window Rock, Ariz., said his people have been struggling with an unemployment rate of between 40 percent and 70 percent for almost a year.

"We hit 70 percent last spring when college students and university students were out for the summer and were home here on the reservation looking for employment," he said. "Right now, we're faced with about 65 percent unemployment."

AP Laserphoto

A man who is possibly a "prime suspect" in the cyanide poisoning of seven people, according to a Chicago television station, is pictured (beneath arrow) watching a woman purchase the bottle of capsules which killed her.

Klan demonstrators claim police brutality in Boston

BOSTON — Groups opposed to the Ku Klux Klan gathered at the steps of City Hall yesterday to denounce police actions in breaking up an antiKlan demonstration and to appeal for a probe of officers who took part.

Two people said police hurt them in unprovoked attacks at the demonstration Saturday. Loreen Kastberg, 35, of Brookline, wept as she told of being slammed to the ground by a policeman as she tried to get away from the disturbance.

"I wanted to get out of the way," she said. "I was trying to get across the street. All of a sudden there was this big policeman and he threw me down. He had no reason to throw me on the ground. I told him I was trying to get out of the way."

Ms. Kastberg said she had come alone to show her opposition to the Klan and was far from the confrontation between robed Klan members and demonstrators. She said she tried to leave because she was scared.

"I came here to march peacefully and carry a sign," she said. "I wouldn't attack anybody. I wouldn't even attack the Klan. I'm not ashamed to be here."

Then she walked away in tears from the news conference microphones.

John Snyder, 25, a Winthrop travel agent, said he was watching the disorder when a uniformed officer hit him over the right eye with a nightstick.

"I was not a demonstrator," he said. "I was here because I'm opposed to the Klan. I was simply watching two people being beaten on the ground...This was long after the Klan was taken away in paddy wagons.

"I did not see any attack on police. Everybody seemed to be very afraid of police. I saw (police) motorcycles run down several people."

He said he saw demonstrators throwing bottles, tomatoes, eggs and other things.

Spokesmen for organizations at the news conference asked for demonstrators to picket a police station near City Hall this afternoon and asked for support for an anti-Klan rally scheduled Nov. 6 in Washington.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Residents of Voltage St. and Ampere Ave. zap WMECO

LUDLOW — The residents on Voltage Street and Ampere Avenue in what once was a model all-electric subdivision are sending smoke signals to Western Massachusetts Electric Co. these crisp fall mornings.

With the pungent smell of wood smoke rising from the chimneys and solar collectors hanging off roofs, the 100-home Electric Park subdivision, built two decades ago in the halcyon days of "all-electric" construction, now resembles an "Alternative Energy Park."

That is because there is no joy over WMECO's proposed $24.1 million rate hike along the tree-lined streets, which are proudly named Voltage, Circuit, Watt and Ampere after the cheap, clean, safe and efficient power that residents once enjoyed.

Clean, safe and efficient, it may be, but Electric Park residents know well that electricity is cheap no longer.

"It's devastating," said John Scheurich of Edison Drive, whose reaction to WMECO's third rate increase request in two years "is something you couldn't print."

The utility re-structured its rates this fall to eliminate some of the breaks given to owners of all-electric homes. Under its proposed rate increase, the monthly bills of all electric residential customers would rise nine percent compared to sixpercent for other residential users.

Scheurich, who has lived in Electric Park since it was built in 1961, says the rates held steady for the first 10 to 15 years, "but the last five to ten years they have been hitting the hell out of us."

Bottle Bill battle is reaching final deadline on Nov. 2nd

BOSTON — The ten-year fight between business and environmentalists over a returnable bottle law has moved from the Statehouse corridors to the ballot for a final decision.

Voters Nov. 2 will decide whether the as-yet untried Massachusetts bottle law will ever take effect.

After years of failed attempts, the law was passed by the 1981 Legislature over the veto of Gov. Edward J. King, who said it would mean increased costs to consumers and "unnecessary incursion by government in the marketplace."

He said it would cost consumers $100 million a year. When King vetoed a similar bill in 1979 — a veto that stuck — he also cited jobs loss as a reason.

The Legislature overrode the 1981 veto, and the law is due to take effect Jan. 17.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Michelle Murray
Copy Editor — Kevin Bowe
Layout Technician — Kelley Riley
Photo Technician — Michael Margolis
Composition — Alyssa Rusiecki, Jamie Katz
Kathie Wells, Becky Robins, Jennifer Winslow
Marianne Walsh, Laurie Frank, Terri Cooper
Adrianne Dufour, Lynn Eisenberg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Housing Exemptions

Frosh, Sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for Spring Semester 1983 should apply.
Spring 1983
Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore
Applications are due no later than
Monday, November 1, 1982.
Applications will not be accepted after this date.
Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore
Thank you.

Contact: Carole Reis 546-9884
or
Maureen McIntire 546-6051

Amherst selectman discuss fiscal budget, "U.N. Day"

By ANN CARRNS
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Selectmen last night met with both the Finance Committee and the School Committee to discuss whether the Town should strive for a five or ten percent increase in the fiscal year 1984 budget.

The selectmen also announced a candle light vigil to commemorate the 37th birthday of the United Nations.

Based on projections from a review of fiscal year 1982, the selectmen had suggested a ten percent increase in the budget guidelines for fiscal year 1984.

Members of the Finance Committee last night questioned that figure, suggesting that the five percent increase may be reasonable, since the rate of inflation has decreased.

However, Acting Town Manager Stanley Ziomek said in a memorandum on the guidelines that the Town would have to use 40 percent of its free cash if the increase was only five percent.

In addition, Chairman Edith Wilkinson said "I think a lot of them (provisions in the budget guidelines) could not be met with a five percent increase."

Selectman Francesca Maltese read an announcement of a candle light vigil to commemorate the 37th birthday of the United Nations. It will be held from 7 until 7:30 p.m. Sunday on Amherst Common. It is being sponsored by the Amherst Chapter of the United Nations Association, and is billed as "UN Day".

In other action, the selectmen approved a warrant to notify registered voters where they may vote on Nov. 2, and referred a request for a bus stop in front of the town Boys Club to the Town planner.

Arts Council funds events, gives experience to students

By TIM MACPHEE
Collegian Staff

University students wondering how their annual $8 arts fee is spent will find the answer in the University Arts Council, an organization comprised of students, faculty and professional staff which sponsors films, concerts and lectures throughout the semester.

The largest chunk of the fee money, which totals some $180,000 yearly, supports the five major galleries on campus, the University, Student Union, Herter, Hampden, and Savage galleries. The remaining money is used for grants to fund student proposals and University organizations.

"The main objective of the Arts Council is to be able to give students more education in how the arts function," said Evie Duston, a graduate student in the school of Business Administration, and council member.

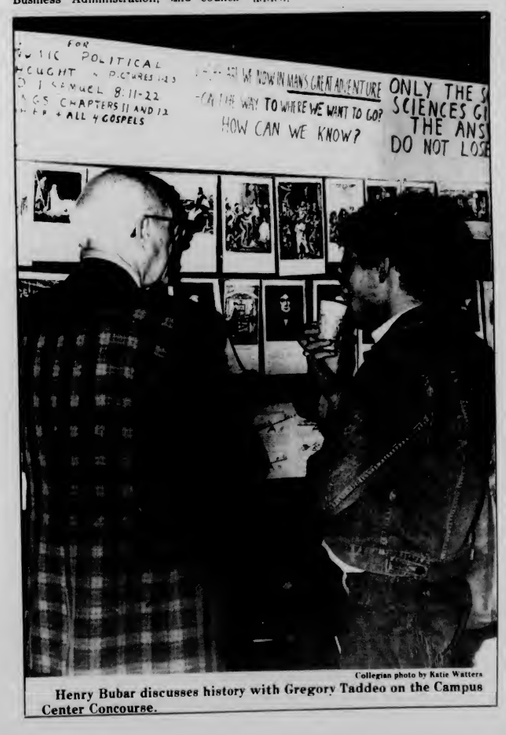
"We also encourage students to participate in organizing and managing these events," she said.

The council supports the arts and cultural activities produced by other University organizations such as Hillel and the Third World Theater Series.

This semester, the Arts Council has provided grants to University Program Council (UPC), and the University Video Center (UVC). They have also helped to purchase a new light board which flashes colored lights during performances for Bowker Auditorium.

"The Arts Council was originally formed as the scheduling agent for performing artists visiting the campus," Duston said.

"When the Fine Arts Center opened and took over this function we re-organized. Our main function now is to get students involved in the arts around campus," she added.



Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Henry Bubar discusses history with Gregory Tadeo on the Campus Center Concourse.

Photo by Tom Kudla

Mark Donfried, Shira Abercrom, Joshua Feinman and Ethan Karson from the Grass Roots Day School pose in front of a sculpture of Southwest in the Herter Art Gallery.

The marathon begins again '83 budget planning starts

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Planning for next year's budget at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which will exceed $2000,000,000 has already begun and will last through next July, said a spokeswoman for the Office of Planning and Budget.

Rosemarie F. Strohter, associate director of the Office of Planning and Budget, said planning the budget for fiscal year 1984 will involve the production of three separate documents. These documents are: the state maintenance budget, the fee request and revenue-based budget and the operating budget summary.

The state maintenance request budget, which Strohter said accounts for about 48 percent of the campus' budget, includes all state funds appropriated to the University. Since this request must go through the lengthy legislative process that any state budget request must undergo, it is prepared one year in advance of when it will go into effect Strohter said. The state maintenance request that will go into effect on July 1, 1983 was prepared by the budget office this past July. This request for next year is $118,912,000.

Once the state maintenance budget request has been approved by Chancellor Joseph Duffey, UMass President David C. Knapp and the UMass Board of Trustees, it is sent to the Board of Regents of Higher Education. The Board of Regents includes this document in their request to the governor for funding of the 28-state-school system.

When the Governor makes his budget request to the Massachusetts Legislature, lobbying begins to affect the legislative process, Strohter said. After the state budget is completed and the governor signs it into law, the state maintenance summary is finalized.

The revenue based budget request is a summary of all fees and revenues the University collects.

This document is prepared under the guidelines of UMass President Knapp, Strohter said. She added that the Rents and Fees Committee of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) has "considerable input" into the setting of student fees.

The final budget document, the operating budget summary, will be prepared next summer. This document will come out at about the same time the state maintenance request budget for fiscal year 1985 is released.

Notary service for ballots will be availible on campus next week

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Various University of Massachusetts staff and faculty members will provide notary service for two days next week for student wishing to vote by absentee ballot in the Nov. 2 election.

Absentee ballots for the statewide election can be used by voters unable to be in the city or town in which they are registered on election day. The ballots must be signed by either a notary public or some other approved official, such as the registrar or assistant registrar of the college the voter may attend.

"To alleviate the pressure on the offices," Ken Burnham of the Academic Support Services said, notaries who work in assorted University offices will be in Memorial Hall next Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 27 and 28, to perform the service otherwise relegated to the Registrar's office. Students who need ballots signed earlier, however, such as those whose voting address may be more than five days away by mail, will continue to be served by the Registrar's office.

Burnham said a similar service was provided at Memorial Hall two years earlier for the Presidential election. That year, he said, about 5,000 students had their ballots notarized, but said he expects "maybe 1,000" this year due to the off-year and the "considerable amount" of students who are now registered locally, rather than in their hometowns.

The service will be held both days from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Registered voters wishing to obtain an absentee ballot should send an application to their town or city hall. The application must include: name, as registered; address where registered; ward and precinct numbers, if known; address to which ballot should be sent; and signature.

THE FINE ARTS CENTER HAS IT ALL

Scottish National Orchestra — Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.

The Intimate P.D.Q. BACH — Sunday, October 31, 8:00 p.m.

Siamsa — Tuesday, November 2 8:00 p.m.
The National Folk Theatre of Ireland

Thursday, November 4 8:00 p.m. PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND

Music and Dance of the Silk Route
from the People's Republic of China
Tuesday, November 9, 8:00 p.m.

All shows on sale now
MC, VISA - CHARGE YOUR TICKETS TODAY
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F
545-2511

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Supreme Court will not hear case on free-speech right

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, warned by its senior member that it was sanctioning political "censorship pure and simple," left intact yesterday two Communists' convictions for burning a U.S. flag.

By an 8-1 vote, the high court refused to hear arguments that the convictions violated freespeech rights.

"I am confident," Justice William J. Brennan wrote in his lone dissent, "the court after argument would reverse these convictions and uphold the vital constitutional principle forbidding government censorship of unpopular political views."

Teresa Kime and Donald Bonwell were convicted and sentenced to eight months in jail for burning a flag, owned by Ms. Kime, during a demonstration in Greensboro, N.C., two years ago.

The two were prosecuted under a federal law imposing penalties on anyone who "knowingly casts contempt upon any flag of the United States by publicly mutilating, defacing, defiling, burning or trampling upon it."

Ms. Kime and Bonwell, avowed members of the Revolutionary Communist Party, never denied having burned the flag. Instead, they argued that the burning was a form of political protest protected by the Constitution.

Florida man severely burned by acid-laced mouthwash

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A Plymouth, Mass., man who burned his lip and tongue when he gargled with acid-contaminated mouthwash probably would have died had he swallowed the stuff, police said yesterday.

The bottle and three others were at least half-filled with deadly hydrochloric acid, but officers said the contamination was a local problem.

"It was a very good thing for him that he spit it out in a hurry," Clearwater police Lt. Wayne Meissner said of the victim, James Balzotti.

Balzotti, a businessman, bought a 6-ounce bottle of cinnamon-flavored Lavoris mouthfreshener on Friday and gargled with it. He immediately felt the stinging and burning and spit it out, but suffered first-and second-degree burns of his lip and tongue.

"From the contamination level, someone would have to have poured out half to three-quarters of the bottle of mouthwash and filled it back up with acid," Meissner said.

After the tampering was discovered, authorities confiscated 26 bottles of the mouthwash from the shelves of Albertsons, the Bellair Bluffs supermarket where Balzotti made his purchase.

They discovered that four of the bottles had been laced with liquid hydrochloric acid, also known as muriatic acid, a product used to bleach rust spots from driveways and treat swimming pool water.

Halloween Novelty and Theatrical Supplies
Open Daily & Sat 9 to 5:15
Thurs. Nights till 9
Fri. Oct. 29 till 9
Check Our Low Prices
H.L. Childs & Son
25 State Street Northampton
584-2604

Quiet court decision results in victory for prisoner rights

BOSTON (AP) — A little noticed Superior Court ruling that the transfer of some prison inmates to out-of-state jails was illegal could result in the return of dozens of prisoners to Massachusetts, state Sen. Jack H. Backman said yesterday.

"It's a major decision...that reaffirms prisoners' rights to due process," said Backman, D-Brookline, an advocate for prison reform and Senate chairman of the Human Services and Elderly Affairs Committee.

"It is clearly an undue hardship to transfer prisoners across the country with no reason," he said.

"It makes no sense to isolate them from their lawyers, friends and loved ones, and then expect them to reintegrate into their home communities when their sentences are complete."

Judge Paul G. Garrity ruled Oct. 6 that the state Department of Corrections had "failed to abide by their own procedural regulations" and transferred eight inmates unlawfully. The judge ordered the inmates returned to Massachusetts.

Joseph Landolfi, a spokesman for the state Correction Department, could not comment yesterday on the ruling until he learned more about it, his secretary said.

SAME DAY COLOR PHOTO PROCESSING

FILM IN BY 10:00 AM
BEAUTIFUL COLOR PRINTS
OUT BY 4:00 PM

The Foto Factory
A division of HALLMARK COLOR LABS processing by professionals

Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8-6 Sat., 8-Noon
257 TRIANGLE STREET IN AMHERST

GRADUATE TO GOLD.

Now Save $25. on 14K gold College Rings.

You're ready! For the biggest and the best that life has to offer. And for the college ring that will speak volumes about you—and your achievements—for years to come.

What's more—you can afford it! Because now, for a limited time you can order from the entire ArtCarved collection of 14K gold college rings and save $25. Come and see the exquisitely crafted styles—from the classic to the contemporary. And choose the ring and custom options that most eloquently express you.

Now is your time to get what you deserve. And remember—nothing else feels like real gold.

ARTCARVED® CLASS RINGS INC

Date: Oct. 18, 19, 20
Time: 10-4
Place: Located in the Campus Center

$15 deposit

UNIVERSITY STORE

Deposit Required. MasterCard or Visa Accepted

1982 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc

Newslines...

Nuclear expert to speak

Harvey Wasserman, specialist in the field of nuclear energy and the detrimental effects of radiation, is speaking at 8 p.m. tonight in the Student Union Ballroom on "America's experience with Radiation." Admission is free for students with a valid UMass ID.

Wasserman is currently the media coordinator for the Clamshell Alliance and the Musicians United for Safe Energy Concerts for a Non-Nuclear Future and author of "Killing Our Own: The Disaster of America's Experience with Atomic Radiation."

Free reception for Olver

The entire University of Massachusetts community is invited to a reception today for State Senator John Olver, D-Amherst, to be held in Memorial Hall from 4-6 p.m. The reception is being sponsored by the various labor unions on the UMass campus.

Several state representatives and state senators will be in attendance. Refreshments will be served.

'Wagon Women' lecture topic

"How About The Wagon Women" will be the topic of a lecture given by Professor John Mack Farragher at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College. Farragher is from the history department at Mount Holyoke College.

'Women and Alcohol' panel

A panel discussion on "Women, Work and Drugs: Experiences with Alcohol and Recovery from Alcohol" will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the New York Room of the Woolley Student Center at Mount Holyoke College. Guest speakers from the local community will participate in the panel.

Lecture on Feminism

Vera Schwartz from the history department of Wesleyan College will speak on "Chinese Feminism: A Thorn in the Side of the Revolution at 8 p.m. on Thursday at Mount Holyoke College. The lecture will be held in the Wiese-Merriwether Room in the Willits-Hallowell Building.

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and the surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

HAZARDOUS WASTE PROJECT MEETING — For those interested in possible ground water pollution caused by faulty gas and oil storage. 7 p.m. MassPIRG office, 423 Student Union.

PSI CHI MEETING — Applications will be available. Basic Issues will be discussed along with plans for Halloween Party. 4 p.m. 304 Tobin.

SGA RENTS AND FEES COMMITTEE — The Committee works to stop unwarranted fee increases. Help stop the $20 cage renovation fee. 5 p.m. 420 Student Union.

STUDENT MEETING — UPC General meeting. New members welcome. 6:30 p.m. 804 Campus Center.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB WINE AND CHEESE PARTY — All food service majors (grads and undergrads) invited to party with the faculty. Remember: candy apples are coming! 4:30 p.m. Chenoweth Pilot Plant.

ALPHA ZETA MEETING — There will be a mandatory meeting for all members. Attendance will be taken. If you can not attend, you must contact one of the officers immediately. 6:30 p.m. 311 Stockbridge.

Photo by Danny Tessier

John Bruso, University of Massachusetts employee, sweeps up glass around the Southwest pyramids last week.

THE "BE SMART, BUY YOURSELF SILLY" BOOK SALE!

60-85% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

☐ HISTORY ☐ PSYCHOLOGY ☐ HEALTH
☐ SCIENCE ☐ MUSIC ☐ ART ☐ AMERICANA
☐ LITERATURE ☐ PHILOSOPHY
☐ BUSINESS ☐ LANGUAGES ☐ SOCIOLOGY
☐ LAW ☐ HOW TO ☐ BIOGRAPHIES
☐ CRAFTS ☐ HOBBIES ☐ SPORTS
☐ GARDENING ☐ COOKING ☐ RELIGION
☐ POLITICS ☐ MATHEMATICS
☐ REFERENCE ☐ THE OCCULT ☐ NATURE
☐ ECONOMICS ☐ AND LOTS MORE

Sale Priced 99¢ to 5.99
Come Early for Best Selection

Books are on Special Sale Tables in the Trade Book Department

OPEN M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

La Cuchina

Serving a Variety of Pasta Dishes, Pizza, and Italian Specialties.

Featuring the PASTA BAR: the Pasta of Your Choice Topped with Our Delightful Sauces

Monday-Friday 11 am-2 pm
Monday-Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

THE VINEYARD

A Large and Surprising Selection of Wine & Beer, in Bottles or on Tap

Monday-Friday 11 am-11 pm
Saturday 5 pm-11 pm

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

TONIGHT
OLDIES
and
ROCK and ROLL
Rack-A-Disc
Requests Welcome
Two For One 9 til 11
- All Liquor Drinks -
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437
INFO & SIGN-UP MEETINGS
OCT. 19 HAMDEN THEATER 7:00
OCT. 20 PUBLIC HEALTH 3:00
OCT 21 CAMPUS CENTER Room 101 4:00
INFO TABLE CAMPUS CENTER CONCORSE EVERY W,TH,F 9-3
or OFFICE 430A STUDENT UNION 5-3437

Let the sun shine in!
HAIR
PG DOLBY STEREO THE FILM United Artists
Wed. Oct. 20 at S.U.B.

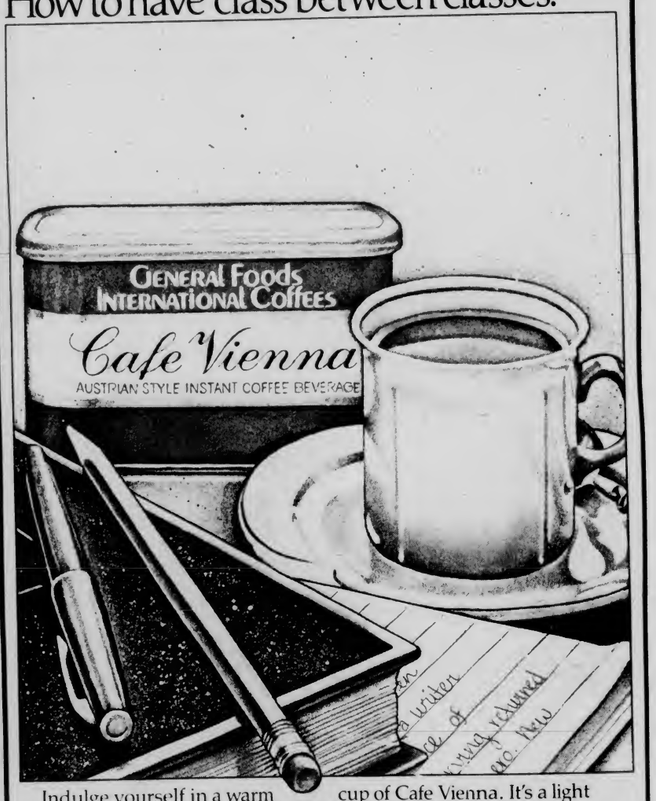
NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

NRBO
with The Pousette-Dart Band
Fri. Oct. 22nd at 8 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
$4.00 General Admission Fee
Tickets available at:
Faces of Earth, Amherst
Platterpus Records, Northampton
Please no alcohol, smoking, cameras or tape recorders
Doors open at 7 PM

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

For women
DISTRESSED by PREGNANCY...
Services that are confidential, helpful, caring and free.
Birthright
Amherst area: 549-1906
Hyde. area: 732-6194

How to have class between classes.



Indulge yourself in a warm cup of Cafe Vienna. It's a light and cinnamony touch of class. And just one of five deliciously different flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.
GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR
Available at: UNIVERSITY STORE
© General Foods Corporation 1982

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Letters

Gelb treats audience as niave

To the Editor:

I am responding to your article on Leslie Gelb's address on deterrence. While the story covers Gelb's main points, it misses the way in which he made his points.

His joking manner undercut the seriousness of the issue; not only did Gelb joke about his own role in our nuclear policies, he also joked about his role in the Vietnam War, not a laughing matter. Gelb's response the the Five-College Peace and Disarmament Group who sponsored the lecture was to refute their goal and purpose. Moreover, he questioned the "seriousness" of the Nuclear Freeze movement which in fact is most sincere and earnest.

Gelb failed to discuss the arms race in economic terms avoiding an evaluation of the effects of military spending on both the U.S. and U.S.S.R. economies. He also ignored the moral and ethical basis for arms proliferation never analyzing his own might makes right theory.

Gelb did offer a global perspective, however it was limited to the same old superpower struggle. He justified superpower intervention with self-determining countries by claiming other nations would only be fighting each other anyway, "beating their own drums."

Allusions, such as the one just quoted, were riddled throughout his talk without any corresponding context, merely using others' ideas to illustrate his own view. I'm sure Thoreau and Masefield would disprove and never intended such interpretations. For instance, Gelb concluded with a quote from Hegel on the human spirit. One can easily see why we are in such dangerous straits, when an ex-security advisor reveals an affinity to a philosopher who was contemporary with Napolean and died before the advent of nuclear warfare.

Instead of shedding light on the issues, Gelb further mystified them, frequently stating that the audience was incapable of understanding the arms race and peace strategy.

When we are treated so ignominiously and condescended to by a view which in itself lacked credibility, then we must call attention to the way in which we are treated. I don't need to discredit Gelb, Gelb discredits himself with his sickly yellow journalism approach.

Charles Francis Carroll
Sunderland

PLO film a propaganda film

To the Editor:

Last Thursday night the students of this campus had to choose between two movies; the James Dean movie, or a propaganda film produced by the PLO. Most people made the intelligent choice. Still, some exchanged Dean's heroism for the PLO's cowardice.

The room had an impression of hatred in it, hatred towards the U.S., as well as the usual hatred towards Israel. Before the movie began, a young man introduced simply as "Mike" denounced Zionism as terrorism and racism. Next week our friend "Mike" will probably denounce intellect as vacuity and idiocy.

While watching this movie which was over three years old, I recieved first hand experience of PLO misrepresentation. The world has seen, though it abhors admitting, that the PLO had miles of concrete tunnels connecting major cities with the Palestinian refugee camps. Missiles, bombs, and shells of Soviet, American, and North Korean origin were discovered in the eight entrances to the tunnels in Sabra and Chatilla. I do not challenge the Palestinians' suffering, however, through supporting the PLO, the Arabs Thursday night support the deaths of the Palestinian civilians as well. It is through the rape of Lebanon by PLO and Syrian forces that civilians throughout much of Lebanon are suffering.

I call on the PLO sympathizers to receive serious speakers in the future.

Howard Glantz
Amherst

Indifferent attitudes towards animals must now be changed

To the Editor:

In response to Bill Thomas' Collegian editorial, "The Suffering Must Stop Now", and on behalf of myself and countless mistreated members of the so-called "inferior" species, I have only one word to say -- thank you.

Finally, someone has the genius and unselfishness to speak out against vivisection and unnecessary experimentation. Such cruelty is more common than is realized or believed. However, as was stressed before, we can take action to fight this inhumane treatment.

I only hope that Bill Thomas' declaration will begin to open some of the closed or indifferent eyes of persons ignorant to such a tragedy. Only then will we be able to really look at ourselves and start moving toward a kinder, less wasteful solution.

Jaimee Brooks
Central

We're always looking for columnists!
Drop by with a piece or an idea
113 Campus Center

Modified laws for freshman

When I first arrived at college, I faced a great number of new situations. Not only did I have to adjust to dorm living, cafeteria style dining, unfamiliar people, and a tremendous workload, I also lacked a general knowledge of the "rules" at UMass. Now that I've been here for six weeks, taken a few exams, met a few people, and basically settled in, I've figured out the tacit regulations, hereafter referred to as "Fundamental Laws for Freshmen:"

Elizabeth Luciano

The Fire Drill Law: Late-night fire drills will occur if and only if, the temperature falls below 10 degrees F, there is snow on the ground, or you and your overnight guest are "busy".

The Phone Call Law: 1) If the phone rings, it's probably for your roommate. (Unless you live in a single room, in which case it's a wrong number).

2) If the phone rings and it's for you, the caller is either your mother or somebody you don't like.

The Good Neighbor Law: Partying loudly at midnight is okay-people will learn to "filter out" the noise. Partying loudly during the weekend is okay-people know what it's like to have a tough week. Partying loudly at 6 a.m. on any given day is unappreciated, inexcusable and just plain not nice. Your previously understanding neighbors will get fed up and call Campus Police.

Corollaries: Blasting Van Halen's "Pretty Woman" between the hours of 11 p.m. and 10 a.m. is not being a good neighbor. Football players who walk through Southwest yelling, "Wake up, UMass! There's a football game today!" are not being good neighbors, either.

The Decent Meal Law: You will invariably miss dinner every night the D.C. serves chicken cutlets.

The Laundry Law: You will never be able to find a washing machine available, and if you do, you won't find an extra dime for the dryer. Your clothing will be clean, soggy and cold.

The Pedestrian Law: The cars on Massachusetts Avenue will slow down and stop for pedestrians, causing students from Boston and Manhattan to go into shock, and/or suffer coronary attacks.

The I'm-Finally-Free Law: 1) You will party less than you did in high school. This is because you will have one weekend in which to memorize Webster's Unabridged Dictionary in five languages, write a best-selling novel, tame a crazed Bengal tiger, and construct a 1982 Camaro out of toothpicks.

2) You'll miss your parents.

The Lecture Law: The day you have to leave the lecture quickly in order to get to an exam, you will wind up sitting in the middle of a 75-person row.

The Minor Miracle Law: If, by some minor miracle, a gorgeous person sits next to you in class, you'll be too shy to say two words to him/her. (Like "Hello, there", "Nice day", or "I'm Liz".) This will cause them to think you're a snob and never look at you again.

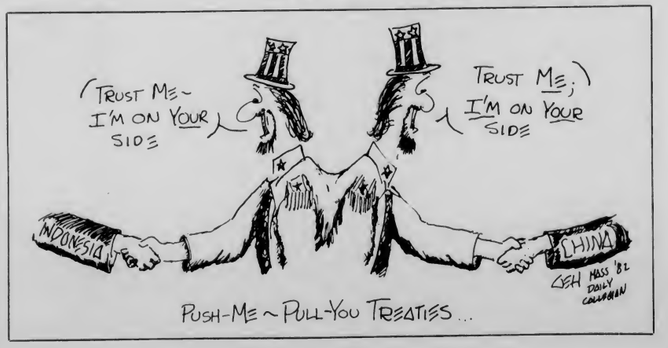
The Add Drop Law: You will repeatedly bump into the T.A. who hates you because you dropped his class.

The Fluctuating Mood Law: When you're in a bright, cheery and rowdy mood, your roommate will be studying, like a stick-in-the mud. Conversely, when you'd like some peace and quite, your roommate will babble on like an obnoxious fool.

The "Significant Other" Law: You are inordinately fond of the same amiable R.A. whom every other man/woman in the dorm is inordinately fond of.

The Editorial Law: If you have your opinion published, chances are excellent that you will make a great many enemies in a very short time span.

Elizabeth Luciano is a UMass student



Shop Downtown Amherst

Lap Desks
help you to study everywhere
only $14.95
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

OUR WEEKLY SPECIALS
WEDNESDAY • THURSDAY • FRIDAY • SATURDAY
DINNER for TWO
9.95
New York Top Choice Sirloin
Denver Style Barbeque Spare Ribs
Broiled Scrod, lemon butter
Served with tossed salad, potato or rice pilaf, rolls & butter, and a glass of rose, burgundy or chablis wine
Dinner
4:30-9:30
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

There is only ONE
TIME OUT
Two TV's

Come and

Great Juke and Stereo
DOUBLE YOUR FUN
Amherst's Biggest Little Bar
37 N. Pleasant St, Amherst MA

SALADS SUBMARINES SYRIANS
the sub
11 AM TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST 549-5160

Friends and neighbors lend us your ears (and your stomach)!

The SUB would like to offer you a coupon special. Buy any two subs and get a third* absolutely FREE! This coupon is good from now thru Nov. 9, 1982 on any Sunday or Tuesday between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.
We hope to see you soon and don't forget to bring a friend

FREE 1 FREE sub with a purchase of any two whole subs when purchased along with this coupon.
coupon good til November 9, 1982
any Sun. or Tues. 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.
FREE
*Free sub is of equal or less value than most expensive sub purchased

Bart's ICE CREAM Corner
Homemade Ice Cream Emporium
NORTHAMPTON · Main & Masonic – AMHERST · Bolrwood Walk
Fabulous Baked Goods · Breakfast

VALLEY BICYCLES
89 Main St.
Amherst
256-0880
Behind the Cheese Shop & Valley Farms Dairy Store

Can you. . .
Fix a flat?
Oil your chain?
True your wheels?
Learn how to at our bicycle workshops.
Introductory & Sign Up Session
Free*Free
How to Fix a Flat Tire
Bring a flat if you have one. A review of preventive maintenance.

Monday Oct. 25	4-5 pm 6-7 pm	or	Tuesday Oct. 26	4-5 pm 6-7 pm

Sign up at this session for:
WORKSHOP A: Adjustments, riding technique, safety tips, maintenance through tune-up.
Meets 3 Tuesdays 6:30-8:30 Enrollment 6-8 Cost $18.
WORKSHOP B: Hands-on. Bring your own bike. Maintenance through over haul.
Meets 6 Wednesdays 6:30-8:30 Enrollment 4-5 Cost $44.
Everyone enrolled receives a 10% discount on all tools, parts & books purchased during the class.

SWEATER SALE!

• Ladies Crew Neck
$18.
•Men's Acrylic
$12.95
• Ragg Wool
reg $36 now $25
Saturday Clothes
(behind Silverscape) 266 N. Pleasant
9:30 - 6 Mon-Sat Fri till 9 pm

It All Happens

MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
TRY OUR RESUME SERVICES

IN DOWNTOWN AMHERST

the month for opals is October. . . with colors as vivid as the Autumn
Fine jewelry set with Australian white and black opals.
14k gold and opal studs from $35 - 50
silverscape designs
264 n. pleasant st. amherst
253-3324

HALLOWEEN!
masks
make-up costumes
& more

FAGES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst

Amherst Carriage Shops

PETAL PUSHERS
NOW APPEARING
flowers, plants, fruit, vegetables, baked goods & gifts
BEST PRICES IN TOWN
Open Air Cart at
549-5841 We deliver Main & Pleasant

adventura travel
549-1256

Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

Chinese Shoes
many styles and colors
$5.50 - $14.95

POSTERS
Largest Selection Ever

Bamboo BLINDS

BEDSPREADS
cover walls, furniture, windows

dozens and dozens print, stripe, solid

Rugs & Mats
colorful, durable

CARDS
over 1400 unusual designs

SKIRTS & BLOUSES
lots of comfortable cotton

Baskets

Imported Soaps
a real treat for your skin

BOXES & TINS
plain & fancy

Sterling Chains, Pendants, Lampshades, Earrings, Paper Mobiles, Candles

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

In the Amherst CARRIAGE SHOPS
OPEN 9 AM
549-6314

Quality Resale Clothing
ONCE MORE WITH FEELING
Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant
Amherst, MA
549-3772
Build your own
HALLOWEEN
Costumes

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

Black Affairs

Bostonian's say no way to the KKK

By GUS MARTIN
Collegian Staff

Last Saturday's aborted Ku Klux Klan rally at Government Center in Boston served as a testament to what can be achieved when progressive people come together.

Although what started as peaceful and organized demonstration by a number of organized parties and unions, ended in confusion and violence. It would have been particularly disturbing had the people of Boston greeted the Klan in any other fashion.

While hundreds if not thousands attended an anti-Klan rally an hour before the KKK nonsense was to begin, the Klan led by their leader Bill Wilkinson never reached their destination.

Instead they were met by jeering epithets, eggs, rocks, bottles, and thousands of angry demonstrators. Given the results of the last Klan rally in Boston who could have anticipated anything else?

When the Boston policemen began ushering the Klan members into police wagons, there was a triumphant feeling in the air. This feeling was only interrupted by the policemen themselves, when they continued to assault demonstrators after the Klan was driven away.

Commentary

Violence may not be the answer, particularly in this situation. But it was a great feeling to see the source of violence on the other foot for a change.

The Klan is not unaccustomed to violence. Many of us are, but they certainly are not. One look into their history, past and recent, and we can see how they could fill the opening chapters of any study on this subject.

So it is particularly encouraging that the progressive radical elements of Boston took such a strong stand against the KKK.

In a city where racially motivated incidences occur far to frequently, at the moment things seem to be quiet. The last thing that the people of Boston need are the separatist and racist espousals of the KKK, who perhaps are the most extreme terrorist group in the history of this country.

What is quite confusing though, is how the Reagan Administration and previous ones are so quick to denounce guerrilla movements, and call them terrorist groups. When it seems as though the KKK has been given Carte Blanche to operate as they see fit.

If this government ever put a fraction of the money and effort toward effectively dissolving the KKK, as it does in sponsoring the destruction of the guerrillas in Latin America and in parts of Africa, the KKK would be a thing of the past.

At a time when unemployment is at post-war highs, the people of this country don't need extremist groups such as the Klan to distort the reality of the problems that plague us all.

We need unity and not separatist decrees that seek to undermine our already dubious state of being.

For this we should be appreciative for the progressive elements that seemingly are undying, and thank the progressive people of Boston for what could hopefully become a national trend.

Announcements

SOUL FUSION

The National Black Theatre, headquartered in Harlem, New York, will be bringing the musical celebration called Soul Fusion to Buckley Recital Hall on the Amherst College campus on Saturday, October 23, 1982 at 9:00 p.m.

Soul Fusion is a musical tribute to the individual. It dramatizes the fact that when the power within oneself is tapped, no problem is unsolvable.

The tickets are $2.00 for students with I.D.'s and $4.00 for all others. Tickets may be purchased at the door starting at 8:00 p.m. or by calling the Gerald Penny Memorial Center at 542-2385 between 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. during the week of October 18.

This presentation is sponsored by the Black Student Union and is part of Black Alumni Weekend. Another B.A.W. event which may be of interest is a worship service on Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. featuring Dr. Thomas Gibbs, St. Thomas, VI, and Dr. Horace Boyer, pianist.

NOTICE

The Third World Caucus of the Student Government association and the Office of Third World Affairs invite all current and prospective members of all Third World Organizations to attend an informational gathering on Tuesday October 26, 1982 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. For more information call 545-2517.

LODESTONE
13 North Pleasant St
Amherst, Massachusetts
256-0591

The Lodestone and John Dellaria Salon request the pleasure of your company
at its Annual Holiday Fashion Collaborative
on
Monday, October 25, 1982
8:30 P.M.
at
Hanger I Route 9
Hadley, Massachusetts
$3.00
JOHN DELLARIA SALON
26 MAIN ST., AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS
253-9271

Pirates' Feast
AHOY MATES!
Don't miss the many treasures drawn from our Pirates' Chest! One lucky buccaneer will win a SONY WALKMAN!
featuring:
- Vegetable Beef Soup
- Fish & Chips
- Sweet & Sour Pork
- First Mates Green Salad
- Gold Doubloon Zucchini
- Coconut Macaroons

WED. OCT. 20
BLUEWALL
11:30-1:30

Arts

There go The Neighborhoods

By JIM FEIN
Collegian Correspondent

True rock and roll, the way it was meant to be, was heard by a large and very enthusiastic crowd at The Bluewall Friday evening, care of the Neighborhoods and Kaspar Hauser.

The Hoods, in their first University of Massachusetts appearance since February, came with a new and changed line-up. The Neighborhoods are David Minehan (guitar, lead vocals), "Careful" Mike Quaglia (drums), and new bass player Lee Harrington (ex- Future Dads), who replaces Tim Green.

The Neighborhoods came with a score to settle. Their last Bluewall show earned them a poor, unwarranted review which they seemed determined to disprove. Well, the score was settled. The Hoods played two sets of strong songs which kept the dance floor packed all evening. The crowd was won over. The material consisted of relatively new songs ("Real Stories," "Rhyme, Rhyme," "The Limbo," and "Witness."), and older songs dating back to when the Hoods won the Boston Battle of the Bands in 1979 ("No Place Like Home," "Electricity," "The Patriot," and "Mr. Reeves"). The crowd got them back on for two encores including decent covers of "Can't Explain," and "Twist and Shout."

David Minehan, the Hoods front man, commanded the full attention of the crowd. When he was not singing or running around the stage like a madman possessed, he was feeling out the crowd with clever remarks.

Drummer "Careful" Mike was a figure of consistency. A competent drummer, he added background vocals in the right spots.

New bassist Lee Harrington had some big shoes to fill. Former Hoods bassist Tim Green was outstanding, often taking the lead with great bass lines. Harrington's performance was quite good, not limiting the band in any way, and this after playing only a few shows with the Hoods thus far.

What does the future hold in store for the Neighborhoods, who have been called one of the best rock and roll bands around today? Uncertainty, at best. They have been one of the top local bands in New England for the past three years, playing throughout New England, with occasional appearance in New York City. They have a sizeable, devoted following. I prefer them over nearly anything I hear over the radio. Yet they seem to have reached a limit.

They have a limited exposure due to the fact that they have released only one record (a single) in their three years of existence. That was "Prettiest Girl" b/w "No Place Like Home," which got heavy airplay and remains one of the biggest selling, independent records by a local band in New England. Rumor has it they have been approached by a national label in the past. Fortunately, they have remained independent, not selling out to corporate interests, choosing to wait for a reasonable offer.

Collegian photo by Nancy Nutile

David Minehan at the Neighborhood's Friday night Bluewall performance.

However, it would have been to the Neighborhood's advantage to record another record on an independent label in the meantime. There has been talk of an EP over the past year and a half, but nothing has been released. When reached for comment about a future release, the band replied that plans were uncertain. Until they release another record, their popularity will remain limited to this region.

In the meantime, the only real exposure to the Neighborhood's music will be through their live show, which, on Friday night, was quite an experience.

Opening for the Neighborhoods was Kaspar Hauser, a popular local band consisting of Dave Wildman (keyboards and lead vocals), Steve Traiger (guitar), Tim Power (bass), and Ted Selke (drums). The band played a complete set of originals which sounded quite convincing. Two of the songs they played, "Living with Fire," and "Personal Space," are from their forthcoming, three song E.P., produced by the Neighborhoods David Minehan. Kaspar Hauser has already established themselves locally and their record is to be distributed nationally.

(A release party will be held Sunday at the Hangar).

5 College Dance at Bowker

Five College Dance Concert
Bowker Auditorium

By JULIE PROCOPIOW
Collegian Staff

Anyone with any sort of interest in dance would have enjoyed the Five College Dance Department's Fall Faculty Concert that was held at 8 p.m. last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights in Bowker Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts. From my position in the relatively empty auditorium I observed samples of ballet, modern, and jazz dance in a series of short presentations.

The first set of dancers presented four movements of brief ballet sequences to the classical music of Faure played by solo-pianist Joann Robin. The all-female group donned light-pink tights, ballet shoes and nylon slip-like dresses. I was rather disappointed by the first group of dancers. The dancers themselves had obvious talent, as evidenced simply in their complicated maneuvers. However, the dancers did not seem quite comfortable in their presentation. Their moves did not flow very smoothly and seemed somewhat forced although their attempt at grace was wholehearted.

"Through the Edge," an abstract modern dance, was the name of the second dance presentation. Choreographed by Andrea Watkins, the dance consisted of five members dressed in striking red tights and leg warmers. The somewhat spiritualistic music of Leos Janacek was a perfect accessory to the dance without which the solemn mood and sacred overtones would have meant nothing.

The third set of dancing, titled "Canonic Waltz Studies" and choreographed by Mark Morris, involved numerous playful and somewhat silly waltz sequences seemingly spoofing dance itself. With the women dancers dressed in either mini-skirts or shorts and tights with leg warmers, and the men in black, the dancers held their serious expressions throughout the various sets, which made the performance that much more funny and entertaining.

After a brief intermission, the fourth sequence began, titled "Three Ways Revisited," which entailed a presentation of various ways of expressing movement through the use of mostly modern dance. A number of different types of music were used for accompaniment, ranging from a tribe-like style of music to a pseudo-square dance type music.

The final set, entitled "Snout," was the only jazz-oriented sequence, which was performed to the jubilant music of Duke Ellington and choreographed by faculty member Richard Jones. The women wore silk-like dresses with hats atop their heads and the men donned flashy pants and ties, as the 11-member ensemble went "all out" in showing the audience what jazz and the art of unrestraint and exuberance in dancing is all about.

Book Notes

By ROGER ATWOOD
Collegian Staff

HEARTS OF DARKNESS
By Don McCullin
Knopf, 156 pages ($12.95)

Don McCullin was an art school drop-out and ex-R.A.F. flyer when he finally picked up a camera. 24 years and thousands of photos later, he is now a photojournalist of world-wide stature who has just come out with a collection of 120 of his most powerful images.

Many of these war photos are as familiar as the morning paper. The wailing widows in Beirut, British soldiers charging down a street in Londonderry — they all form a kind of crude idiom for our troubled time. His subjects range from wars in Vietnam and Biafra, to the hauntingly beautiful British countryside. All in all, this is a lyric and brutally honest collection.

THE COLLECTED POEMS
By Wallace Stevens
Vintage Books, 534 pages ($8.95)

OPUS POSTHUMOUS
(Poems, Plays, Prose)
By Wallace Stevens
Vintage Books, 306 pages ($6.95)

There seem to be 13 ways of looking at Wallace Stevens, as his poetry appears in yet another volume. If ever a poet has been over-anthologized, it is Stevens. This new pair of books includes two plays, twenty prose pieces, and critical views by William Carlos Williams, Paul Valery and others.

Pardon me for not saying a word about Stevens' work. But to repeat here what critics have been saying since 1954, when the first Collected Poems appeared, seems as tautological as this latest collection.

NOMINATIONS
for Distinguished Teachers Awards Program
any TA or Professor that has taught a course over the past two semesters
is eligible
Send your letter of recommendation to:
Distinguished Teachers Awards Committee
Graduate Student Senate
917 Campus Center
Deadline: Friday, Nov. 5th

Joey D's
DJ entertainment in the lounge
Tonight 5:00 - 9:00
All You Can Eat
Spaghetti & Meatballs
$2.25 Homemade Sauce
includes bread and butter
Draft Beer 50¢ Pitchers $2.95 Well Drinks 95¢
Beat the Joey D's record of 4 helpings!

NORTH AMHERST TIRE & AUTO CENTER

WITH THIS AD
POLYESTER BLACKWALL
$26.95
Size A78-13 FET $1.59
A FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE
- COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
- FRONT END ALIGNMENT
- BRAKES & SHOCKS

VISA MC 71 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST ACROSS FROM VICTORIA STORE 5494704

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

TUES. OCT. 19
COMEDY NIGHT
2 comedians &
M.C. Terry Slagle
FREE!! open-mike
Sponsored by G.P.C.

WED. OCT. 20
PINK PANTHER DOUBLE FEATURE
8pm "Pink Panther Strikes Again"
10 pm "Return of the Pink Panther"
No Admission/Free Popcorn

THURS. OCT. 21
PINK PANTHER DOUBLE FEATURE
8pm "Return of the Pink Panther"
10pm "Pink Panther Strikes Again"

FRI. OCT. 22
HAPPY HOUR
with the
ARMSTRONG BROTHERS
THE ORBITS
"A 5 member dance band" from Orbitron. . ."
with
R COMPLEX
$2.00 cover

The Distinguished Visitors Program presents:

Harvey Wasserman:
Killing Our Own:
The Disaster of Americas Experience with Atomic Radiation
Student Union Ballroom
Tuesday, October 19, at 8 p.m.
Free with valid ID

SERVE IN APPALACHIA

December 26, 1982-January 1, 1983
January 3-9, 1983

NEEDED: Catholic men to work with the Glenmary Home Missioners, a society of Catholic priests and Brothers, serving the poor of Appalachia.

☐ Please send information about your winter volunteer programs.
☐ Please send information about Glenmary's work with the rural people of Appalachia and the South.

Reverend John Garvey
Glenmary Home Missioners Room 119
Box 46404
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

VANITIES and
DARK OF THE MOON
In Repertory Oct. 22-Nov. 20
(Call 545-3511 for Student Rates)

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. MENU

BASICS
Oatburgers
Garden Medley Casserole

LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll
Liver and Onions

BASICS DINNER
Fried Shrimp Dinner/ Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Caponota Spaghetti

DINNER
Turkey Club Sandwich
Fried Shrimp Dinner/ Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Caponota Spaghetti

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Siren
5 Betty Grable asset
9 Ward off
14 "I cannot tell ——"
15 Type of exam
16 Like some floors
17 Companion of pound foolish
19 Like an old woman
20 Empty-headed
21 "—— your thoughts"
23 Streetcar on Broadway
25 Solar year excess
26 Hebrews' legendary ancestor
28 Oriental entertainer
32 Manages
37 Slanderous attack
38 Arabian cloak
39 Pintail ducks
41 Carney
42 Pentateuch
45 Unimportant transaction
48 Begins
50 Digits
51 Ready' Set' Go'
54 Little ones
58 Sometime place to shop
62 Night patrol, in Madrid
63 Member of a star's entourage
64 Literature of a sort
66 Name in detective fiction
67 Wading bird
68 ——cal ridge
69 Weather-beaten
70 Certain sports equipment
71 Spanish ladies, for short

DOWN
1 Spiritless
2 Coeur d' —— Idaho
3 Grackles
4 Pocket pieces
5 Sound from the pasture
6 Silkworm
7 Canadian peninsula
8 Kind of walker
9 Positions
10 Dickens character
11 Arabic letter
12 Veil in Granada
13 Fulda tributary
18 —— buena, ever green herb
22 Find fault
24 Lampreys
27 Win easily
29 Connery
30 Male animal
31 Johnson of comedy
32 Channels
33 Oil-yielding tree
34 Pastry
35 Born with the name of 36 Fellow
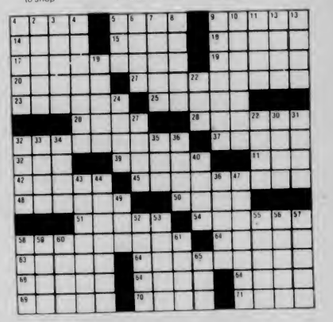
40 High hat one
43 Acquiesces
44 —— road (departs)
46 Have an itch for
47 'Men may be read, as well —— too much'
49 Cole of song
52 Creator of 'The Thinker'
53 Erie or Huron
55 Iron-nickel alloy
56 Plant problem
57 Merchandising events
58 Borge, for one
59 Stravinsky
60 Grouper of warm seas
61 Throw off
65 Letter



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WEATHER

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Mostly sunny today. Highs 60 to 65. Tonight, clear. Lows in the 40s except in the upper 30s in the western hills. A sunny start, then increasing cloudiness. Highs in the low and mid 60s.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Oblivion Express with Fern Spierer
9-noon	Hell Comes to Your House with Pauline
12-3	Positive Vibrations with The General
3-5:30	Mr. Ted in the Modern Dance Tradition
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	Sportdscafe
7-10	New Music with Miss Priss
10-2am	Eliot Andrew — Urban Contemporary
2-6	More Music

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Same Old Gig Video Today

10:30 - 12:00	Katherine Brady, the noted feminist speaks at U Mass
12:00 - 1:00	Comedy in the Blue Wall with Bobby Darling
1:00 - 2:00	The Atlantics, also from the Wall

OPEN MIKE COMEDY NIGHT

(3rd Installment)

FREE! FREE!

AT THE BLUE WALL

★★★★★★★★★★STARRING★★★★★★★★★★★★

★★★★DANA GOULD – HOT SHOT PRO★★★★

★★★★MARC COHEN – No.1 AMATEUR ★★★★

★★★★and ME, the M.C., TERRY SLAGLE★★★

ON TUES. OCT. 19

FREE! CASH PRIZE AWARDED TO BEST AMATEUR FREE!

SIGN UP w/M.C. BY 8:30

SPONSORED BY

Governor's Program Council

Netmen in comeback win

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

For those of you (which constitutes the overwhelming majority) who failed to witness a University of Massachusetts men's varsity tennis match this fall, one thing is certain: You definitely missed a good show.

Yesterday at West Point, N.Y. the netmen closed the curtains on the most successful UMass tennis campaign (8-2) in many years by squeaking past Army 5-4. After losing their opening match to Rhode Island, the Minutemen then proceeded to win eight of their last nine matches, including a seven-match winning streak.

The netmen brought back sweet memories of last week's stunning upset of BU by rallying in the doubles to win after seemingly falling hopelessly behind in the singles.

Neal Mackertich suffered his only defeat of the campaign at the hands of Ted Wilson 7-5, 6-4, in number one singles. Nick Julian also fell at number two, being victimized by Grant Hayne 6-1, 6-0. Stuart Goodman and Rich Lindgren registered the only Minutemen victories in the singles at number three and four respectively. Goodman got by Chris Wilson (Brother of Ted) 6-3, 3-6, 7-6. Lindgren nailed George Geczy 6-2, 6-4.

Dave Singer was outplayed by Charles Deal at number five 6-3, 6-0. Ditto for Mike Duseau, who suffered a 6-0, 7-5 loss to Scott Poirier.

UMass again came through in the doubles. When anything short of a sweep would be no good, the netmen responded to the pressure in high style.

With the doubles matches shortened because of darkness, UMass pulled through in two tiebreakers to win. Lindgren-Duseau squeaked by Hayne-Geczy 8-7. Dave Salem-Goodman got past Poirier-Dwight Beach by the same score. Mackertich-Julian finished up with a 8-6 triumph over the Wilson brothers.

"We pulled it out in the doubles again. From my point of view, I don't like that. The kids shouldn't think they can pull it out like this everytime. Otherwise it was a pretty good match," said Szlosek.

The only blemish on the Minutemen's slate after the opening match came last Thursday in Worcester to Clark University, 6-3.

"It was a classic letdown," said Szlosek. "We were coming off our biggest win of the year (the BU match) and for them this was the biggest match of the year. We were flat and they were skyhigh."

Candidates Night for Senator John Olver

Tuesday, October 19, from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m., in Memorial Hall

This event is being sponsored by the Massachusetts Society of Professors, the University Staff Association, the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Local 1776, the International Brotherhood of Police, Units A and B, and the Friends of John Olver.

No charge. Cider, coffee, and doughnuts will be served.

Senator Olver will be on hand, as will representatives William Benson, William Carey, James Collins, William Nagle, and Jonathan Healy.

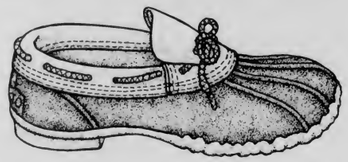
For over a decade John Olver has been our voice in the state senate. He has taken the lead in ensuring good budgets in periods of fiscal constraint and has helped make the University a better place to work for us all.

It is fitting that this evening brings together such a broad spectrum of the university community. The Senator has stood up for us; this is our way of showing appreciation for him and for area representatives who have befriended and supported the campus.

Do plan to attend. Bring a friend.

(This ad paid for by the Olver Committee)

Priced Right, from the start.



Women's Sporto® Mud Mocs

$24.95 • Waterproof rubber soles • Leather trim • In 4 colors

Made better than ever and priced better than ever, right from the start.

Route 9, Hadley. 584-9690. Monday to Saturday, 10:00-9:00

Eastfield Mall, Springfield. 543-5978. Monday to Saturday, 10:00-9:30.

THE LODGE at harvard square

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

2.19 Reg B & L 12 oz Saline Sol. 3.23

Playtex Tampon 28's reg super

2.44 reg

1.56 reg 2.35 24's Pamprin

1.19 reg 1.64 Murine Plus ½ oz

Ponds Cocoa Butter

1.41 reg 2.11

Comtrex 2.08

2.19 reg 2.50 Sudafed 24's

1.41 Reg 2.15

Finesse conditioner Reg & X-Body 7 oz.

76¢ reg 1.13 Lime Menthol Regular

1.28 3 oz Right Guard reg 2.05

Special Value 1.14

Close-up 4.6 oz.

All sale items also available the Mini Store located in the Student Union

UNIVERSITY STORE

Located in the Campus Center Open M-F 9-5

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUTO FOR SALE

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

Audi Fox 76 looks, runs, like new. Must see, after 5 pm 253-3519

VW Squareback, 1971, very good engine, $600. 549-3994

Rabbit front air dam and rear shocks A1 condition Dave 256-0543

1973 VW Bug new paint stereo good cond 665-2077 after 5:00

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

Come see UMass bands compete for the best band on campus at the Southwest's Annual Battle of the Bands, Saturday, October 23 noon to 7 pm Hampden Student Center free admission

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

CHAMOIS SHIRT

LOST between Campus Center and Lot 65 on Sunday, October 10. Can identify -- sentimental value. Please call Terri at 545-3500 and/or 549-4621 anytime. Thanks

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

King of Clubs Band promo & info call Dave 297-1880 or Ralph 249-9786

FLYNNTON

Happy 3rd Anniversary! Yours always and forever. H.P.

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

Graduate Student for quiet home one bedroom left, $225 includes utilities 665-8144

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

1961 Gibson EBO Bass (SG body) with case $225 or BO Steve 549-5039

Electric typewriters used Olivetti & Remington $150 ea 549-8889

Leather jacket, wine, size 6, worn once, $80 negotiable 549-6459

Thermo-Fax copy machine $75 Westinghouse refrigerator, white left hinge, 65 in high, Doors-Used - 24, 30, 32 inch wide, $10 ea. Gas stove white 21 inch $200 call after 6 pm 586-1827 N'ton

Hi-Fi Speakers 120 watt Aultra Acoustic systems $375 BO John 546-9046

Canoe 12 ft American Fiberlite 1 yr excellent 160.00 323-4964

FOUND

Deborah Woodward. I found your Marx notebook in Herter Hall. Call 256-8785 and ask for Dan

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Responsible people needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

Help wanted for Mike Dukakis campaign meeting tomorrow 803 Campus Center 586-6427

Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

LOST

Glasses. Silver-gray rims, brown case. Please call Jim, 6-4733

Reward for lost book bag bag contains one Cost Acct book some keys one T130

The bag is blue Reward $15 call Kevin 256-0854

In Orchard Hill Lounge: black acrylic sweater, Lord and Taylor label, sentimental value 253-9459

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles too! 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a
Collegian classified!

Lesbian opening in pyschotherapy group run by Estelle Gorfine. Sliding fees. 253-2822

GET PSYCHED FOR HALLOWEEN!! The Great Pumpkin Sale is coming Thursday and Friday!

HHP - 3 years and you still give me the willies! DMF

Happy Birthday, Laurie!! You're the nicest STRANGO BOFFO I've ever met. . . Guess Who??

DISTRIBUTOR OPPORTUNITIES Texas Instruments home computer ground floor multi level marketing money making opportunities - no risk, no inventory investments Demonstration Tues 10/26 7:30 CC room 169 call Grace or Paul after 5 665-2494

Jeffrey V. You're a great friend. I love you and have now beat you! Lauren

Oh sweet D. You are so wonderful. Oh Dave, I want to caress your thighs. I want to be your slave tonight. Love, your not-so-secret admirer

Memory, concentration, study skills taking exams. Monday-Thursday 6:30-7:30 PM. $10./session University Hypnosis Center 358 N. Pleasant Amherst 549-4645 all welcome

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

LOST black UMass datebook Wed Oct 6. Owner lost w/o it. Nina 253-5137

SUGARBUSH SKI HOUSE room available over intersession 546-5891 546-5890

Bumps, Happy Birthday!

Happy 21st Chris! Good luck with your goddess (Boozer)

Lucy: Here is your personal. Did you really think that I would forget? I'm waiting! Love Jesus

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

ROOMMATE WANTED

Male needed for small Northampton two bedroom 125+ Scott 584-4348 after 5

Housemate needed - 4 bed house in Leverett - female pref. 100/month + call Wendy 549-2628

Female to share bedroom in Rolling Green immediate opening $106 month verything included 256-8335 or 256-0165

Apartmentmate needed $150/mo on bus route furnished call Jeff 665-4357

Roommate wanted to share 5 room townhouse in Easthampton just over N'ton line. Male or female. Own room. Call Sue 527-6690

SERVICES

Sensory Isolation Tank available for rental. Group rates 584-1627 evenings

Overnight typing service
I will do your typing for you overnight. I have professional experience, but very reasonable rates. Call Jim at 546-7042

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5586

Wanted: Joe Jackson tickets 2 (two) best price paid call after 6:00 PM keep trying 253-3643

Ride needed to South Shore area Friday 10/22 return Sun 10/24 Will share expenses call Andrea 549-0064

Ride needed to Framingham, Natick area Friday 10/22 at 1:00ish. Will share expenses. Call Laurie 549-1511

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

EXCELLENCE IN MANAGEMENT

JOIN STAR MARKET

IF YOU HAVE
The willingness to work hard
A strong desire to succeed

IF YOU ENJOY
A fast paced environment, exciting and dynamic people...

A CAREER WITH STAR PROVIDES
An excellent starting salary
A profit sharing program
And many other benefits

MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITES
Great on the job training with Star's management team.
STAR MARKET WILL BE ON CAMPUS MONDAY, OCT. 25th

INTERVIEWING MIDYEAR GRADUATES FOR IMMEDIATE PLACEMENT

STAR

One of the Jewel Companies

If you are unable to see us on campus, forward your resume to: Personnel Department Star Market Company 625 Mt. Auburn Street Cambridge, MA 02138

LOOK FOR THE COLLEGIAN Dining Out Special WED. OCT. 27th!

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH

NEW WAVE & DESIGN HAIRCUTS

$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry

Free Consultations
please call for an appointment

STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
expires 10-30-82 C

Sports

More Sports on page 14

Smith leads assault, UM wins, 8-0

By JILL LANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team was back to its winning ways yesterday, as the stickers routed Westfield State 8-0.

The Minutewomen had a field day on the upper NOPE field, as they outshot, outpassed and outplayed Westfield.

Pam Meryl began the UMass onslaught at 27:33 of the first half, when she followed up on a shot taken by Patty Smith.

Megan Donnelly capped the Minutewomen's first half scoring at 14:43 when she took a shot straight at Westfield goalie Victoria Borque that hit the top right of the net.

The stickers had 35 minutes of target practice in the second half. Within 15 minutes UMass had scored four of its six goals for the half.

Two minutes after the whistle, Donnelly struck again. On a corner, Donnelly took another straight shot on goal and this one also completely eluded Borque.

Less than two minutes later, Smith, who figured in five of UMass' eight goals, took a pass from Meryl and swept it into the left corner of the net.

Smith struck again at 22:59, when she took a rebound from her own shot and pushed it into the goal.

At 20:46, Smith teamed up with Allyson Rioux to up the score to 6-0.

On a corner, Smith fed a pass to Rioux who tapped the ball past the right post.

Smith picked up the hot trick at 10:59 when she followed a Tish Stevens free hit and blasted a shot on goal that simply went past the entire Westfield defense.

Rioux finished the Minutewomen's scoring spree at 7:09, when she scored on a pass from Stevens.

UMass outshot Westfield 26-8, and goalie Patty Shea needed only four saves to preserve the shutout.

As the team gathered around coach Pam Hixon to hear her comments on the game, everyone was all smiles.

"Today was super," Hixon told her team. "Take tomorrow off, put your feet up, relax. You all deserve it."

This win was definitely a boost for the stickers, especially after the outcome of their weekend in Philadelphia.

"We needed a game like this," said Hixon. "We needed to show ourselves that we are capable of scoring. We needed to do a job, and we did it."

"These girls had to explode after this weekend," Hixon said. "We put it all together against Westfield. We scored a variety of ways. I think the girls will be more comfortable in the circle from now on."

Thursday, the stickers travel to Harvard. Saturday, the Minutewomen are at home against the University of New Hampshire.

Collegian photo by Joy Ohe

UMass captain Ro Tudryn fights for possession during the Minutewomen's 8-0 rout of Westfield State yesterday at upper NOPE field.

Spikers get experience

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

NEWARK, DE. – Improvement was the name of the game for the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team this past weekend at the University of Delaware tournament. And with a tad bit more experience the Minutewomen could've pulled off some major upsets.

The Massachusetts spikers played very well and as they defeated Southern Connecticut decisively, came close to toppling division I powerhouses Delaware and Providence College and pushing every team they faced to the limit.

"Our play definitely improved," said UM head coach Elaine Sortino. "We went up against some of the best and we played with a lot more poise than I expected. I was really pleased."

After playing competitively against William and Mary and bowing 8-15, 8-15, Massachusetts came close to beating Providence. UMass led the Lady Friars 14-13 in the first game, but faltered losing 16-14. PC eked a win out the second game 12-15 to take the match. UMass also had tournament champion Delaware in the same predictament that they had PC in and the result ended up the same.

Against the Mountaineers of West Virginia, the smaller UM team gave the taller WV women a tough match before losing 13-15, 12-15.

"We had our chances (against PC, Delaware and WV)," said Sortino. "We needed and lacked a little experience." And that lack of experience gave UMass' opponents an advantage.

Experience was no problem as UM wiped out Southern CT. 15-1, 15-6 for the first UMass win over SC in over two years. Then, UMass played the University of New Haven for the umpteenth time this season (it was really only the fourth time). UMass improved their play against the number one ranked division II team in the Northeast (NH) losing 12-15, 13-15. It was great improvement for the Minutewomen over the 15-1, 15-1 shellacking that UM endured last Wednesday.

"Some of those top teams had to be scared of us," remarked Sortino. "We surprised a lot of people down there."

Massachusetts performed well on the court, serving and passing very well. And everyone played well. Kirsten Smith, who injured her foot against New Haven last Wednesday, played well despite favoring that foot.

Sortino used her bench strength to help the team's performance. Mary Ellen Normen was used quite a bit off the bench. Ann Ringrose was being used to fill three different positions at various times. Julie McMurtie played well serving and blocking and Leslie Smith also played well.

The Minutewomen have a week off to prepare for their next encounter, another division I tournament, the University of Maryland tournament. UMass will be the only division II school in the tournament.

Women fifth in tourney

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team placed fifth at the state championships over the weekend after losing a disappointing match to Tufts University Friday at the Boyden courts by a score of 6-3.

The netwomen travelled to Wellesley College Friday after the Tufts match to participate in the Massachusetts Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Tournament.

"It was a very close tournament and the teams were very even as far as the competition went," said Coach John Beal.

"Overall the team played well. They had their chances to win more matches and could have even won the tournament," said Beal.

Smith College won the tournament with 11 points, followed by Northeastern University and Tufts University who tied for second place with ten points each. Tournament host, Wellesley College, placed fourth with nine points, followed by UMass with eight points, Harvard University was sixth with seven points, Springfield College seventh with five points, and Holy Cross was last with four points.

Points were awarded for each time an individual in their particular tournament advanced a round, and added up at the end to decide the final point totals.

In the first singles tournament, Elizabeth Sullivan won in the first round, 6-3, 6-0, but lost in the second round, 6-1, 6-0, to earn one point for UMass.

Ariel Fowler, seeded number two, won the second singles tournament, earning three points for UMass. She won her first two matches in straight sets, and then won in the final by a score of 6-3, 6-1. Beal thought she played extremely well.

In the third singles tournament, Chris Frazier lost in the first round by a score of 6-1, 6-2.

Patricia Sullivan lost in the finals of the fourth singles tournament. She defeated the number two seed 6-3, 6-2, in the first round, then won in the second round 1-6, 6-2, 6-1, but lost in the final by a score of 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 earning two points for UMass. Beal said she played her best tennis of the fall.

In the fifth singles tournament, Diana Biagioli lost in the first round in straight sets, 7-6, 6-0. In the sixth singles, Laura Kaufmann lost to the number one seed in three sets, 4-6, 7-5, 6-1.

In the first doubles tournament, Elizabeth Sullivan and Chris Frazier lost in three sets by a score of 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Second doubles team of Ariel Fowler and Laura Kaufmann made it to the finals of their tournament before losing to the number one seeds. They won their first round match 6-4, 6-3, won in the second round, 6-2, 6-7, 6-1, and then lost in the final 6-3, 7-6, to earn two points for UMass.

The third doubles team of Maureen Hanlon and Diana Biagioli lost to the number two seeds in the first round of their tournament by a score of 6-3, 6-4.

"The results were not very predictable, but I expected the doubles teams to win more points than they did," said Beal.

The Minutewomen will take a little break before travelling to Yale University for the New England Championships on October 29-31.

Sports Notices Sports Notices Sports Notices

The UMass Boxing Club is having an additional membership drive. Anyone interested is urged to come to 19th floor of Washington Tower Monday through Friday between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. for further information. Both experience and non-experienced fighters are welcome.

Women track team hopefuls will get their chance Friday, October 29. The women's track team will hold their time trials at the Derby track between 3:30 and 5 p.m. on that day.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 31 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, October 20, 1982

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Pacheti

University of Massachusetts power plant which will have a filter system installed nearby to lower fly ash emissions into the air.

$4.5M for 'baghouse'

By DAVE SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

A $4.5 million pollution control system funded by the state will be installed next semester at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst to filter smoke coming from the on-campus power plant.

A small building called a baghouse will be constructed next to the power plant to control fly ash and smoke emissions coming out of the boiler before it goes out the smokestacks.

The facility is designed to be a vacuum that draws the fly ash into large bags and traps it so that only gas and not particulate matter, is dispersed into the air.

Construction of the project will disrupt traffic on Campus Center Way leading to the Campus Center Circle. Pedestrians will still be able to pass by but the road will be closed to motor vehicles in order to allow enough space for construction. The bus stop at the Campus Center Circle will be moved to the Haigis Mall, which is between Whitmore and the School of Business Administration (SBA). Cars traveling to the garage will have to drive around by parking lot 65 and enter the upper section of the campus center way by Flint and Chenoworth Laboratories, Jack Littlefield, director of facilities Planning said.

"The Campus Physical Planning Committee recommended the Haigis Mall as a temporary bus stop because it is relatively close to the Campus Center and it has the least amount of disadvantages to it compared with other sites proposed," Littlefield said.

The other places considered for bus stops were parking lot 65 and North Pleasant street between Hasbrouck Laboratory and the West Experiment Station but these were both found to be disruptive to traffic and pedestrians.

"Haigis Mall is a reasonable compromise to a situation that has no easy choices," Littlefield said. "It has its advantages and its disadvantages."

"While the construction is going on it is going to be an inconvenience for everyone but we have to do it because we have no other choice," Littlefield said.

The baghouse is being built in order to meet the standards of division of environmental protection in the attorney general's office. Without it the University will be forced to close.

"The University burns coal to save millions of dollars a year but with it, you have a pollution problem," Littlefield said. "To solve the problem you have to build a baghouse and it must be built close to where coal is burned."

In 1972, the lower Pioneer Valley air pollution control district cited the University for emissions that were over environmental protection standards but granted the University a variance from the regulations upon the promise that a baghouse would be built.

It has taken ten years for the details and the funding of the building to be worked out. The project is now up for bid from contractors. As soon as all the contracts are in, the University will award the contract to the lowest bidder

Anti-nuke activist reveals shocking documented facts

By ANN CARRNS
Collegian Staff

Imagine looking out your dorm window at night and seeing two 600-foot high nuclear power plant cooling towers glowing brightly in the distance.

Or imagine being an American soldier so close to a nuclear bomb test that the light from the explosion lights up the bones in your hand like an x-ray photograph.

These are just two of the disturbing images evoked by anti-nuclear activist Harvey Wasserman last night in his presentation on "America's Experience with Radiation."

More than 65 people were present in the Student Union Ballroom as Wasserman detailed the detrimental effects of radiation on humans, read testimonials of people suffering from those effects and told of government unwillingness to investigate the issue.

"I want to say that there is no safe dose of radiation and there is no such thing as a safe, economic nuclear power plant," Wasserman said. "As far as I am concerned, the debate (over nuclear weapons and power plants) is over. We have to get rid of them."

Wasserman, 36, is the author of several books on nuclear power and the problems caused by exposure to radiation. The most recent is "Killing Our Own: The Disaster of America's Experience With Atomic Radiation."

Wasserman said he became an anti-nuclear activist in 1973 when Northeast Utilities announced plans for a nuclear power plant in Montague, Massachusetts, just 10 miles north of Amherst.

Wasserman had led a "peaceful existence" on a farm there for 14 years and organized a group to fight the plant, he said.

"We got together and blew them away," he said. "Two years ago, they officially announced that they had dropped the plans."

"The biggest problem in America today is pessimism, the feeling that you can't fight city hall," he said. "Well, we did and we won, and others have too."

Wasserman, who received his masters degree in American history from the University of Chicago in 1967, supports a unilateral freeze on nuclear weapon production.

"Having those weapons around doesn't make me feel secure," he said. "It's like apes beating their chests in the jungle. When tensions escalate, both the United States and the Soviet Union blow up test bombs on their own soil."

Commenting on crisis relocation plans such as the ones proposed for Amherst, Wasserman said, "It's pure idiocy. I'd advocate that the entire country be evacuated to Reagan's ranch in California."

UMass budget increased more than five percent

By SCOTT HERSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts in Amherst will receive 5.5 percent more in its annual budget for fiscal year 1984 if the state Board of Regents' recommendations are approved by the legislature early next year.

Recommendations from the Board of Regents of Higher Education for the UMass campus totaled $115,377,895 for fiscal year 1984, up from the fiscal year 1983 figure of $109,318,459, John L. DeNyse, acting vice-chancellor for administration and finance, said Monday.

"We are very pleased about the total recommendations," DeNyse said.

The recommendations from the regents were very near the school's total request of $118,912,466, DeNyse said.

Major recipients of increased funding included various engineering and computer programs, which will receive new equipment and staff.

Over $1 million in increases were recommended for instructional programs with high tech subjects being a major recipient.

Five hundred thousand dollars was recommended for the expansion of the electrical engineering and computer science departments, $300,000 in graduate assistant stipends and $65,000 for new faculty members in the School of Business, DeNyse said.

A math center was also recommended to be funded at around $200,000, DeNyse said.

Other new programs funded were: $438,000 for instructional support, which will include computer terminals, computer equipment and staff, $71,000 for administrative management and $1.5 million for new instructional equipment.

One hundred and eight thousand dollars was also specifically prescribed for increased security, which will mean five to seven new officers for UMass.

UMass Director of Public Safety Gerald T. O'Neil said yesterday he was "delighted" by the increased funds.

The UMass Police Department currently has 41 officers on the force. "I've been keeping my fingers crossed for this for a long time," he said.

A 7 percent across-the-board inflation adjustment was also recommended added to the budget.

DeNyse said he did not have exact figures on what this adjustment amounted to in dollars.

This is also the first year that the Regents has specifically prescribed where certain program funds will go.

In previous years money had been allocated in lump sums for different programs, said Joseph M. Finnegan, higher education vice-chancellor for fiscal affairs and management.

This year, however, program funds were specifically allotted for different accounts with transfers of these funds forbidden, Finnegan said.

This action by the Regents has brought fierce reaction from University officials, who fear the policy will hurt the school by preventing any flexibility or transfer of funds.

Continued on page 3

UMass officials upset over funds designation

By SCOTT HERSEY
Collegian Staff

In the budget recently recommended by the state Board of Regents of Higher Education, the regents perscribed in advance where the funds given to the University for certain programs will be spent.

University of Massachusetts officials said yesterday they were upset with the state board of regents new policy of pinpointing where budget funds will go, because it will give the school no flexibility."

"There can be shifts in demand," said John L. Denyse, acting vice-chancellor for administration and finance. "Having no flexibility in funding can hurt us."

This is the first time the state has told UMass where the money will be spent.

The reason this was done, according to Joseph M. Finnegan, vice-chancellor of higher education for fiscal affairs and management, was because "last years budget was too narrowly focused."

Finnegan said certain priorities of the regents needed to be addressed. When the schools were dividing up monies themselves, these priorities - such as some computer and engineering programs were not being given proper funding, thus the regents decision to channel funds into certain areas.

DeNyse explained that with constantly changing shifts in student demand, having to spend money on one subject over another, possibly more popular subject could hurt the University.

"The recommendation flys in the face of fiscal autonomy," said Bruce Laurie, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors and associate professor of history. "We fought hard for fiscal autonomy, which is very important."

Laurie said because the regents recommended so much money be put into high-tech programs, the school is "running the risk of distorting the mission of the institution."

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Pacheti

Author Harvey Wasserman expresses his concern over the possibility of nuclear war during a lecture last night.

World and national news

Sexual activity on rise among teens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sexual activity among adolescents is increasing throughout the world, and the result is more and more medically risky and socially expensive pregnancies among teen-agers, an international family-planning authority said yesterday.

Across many geographical and cultural boundaries, within and without marriage, "these girls are producing babies when they're still babies themselves," said Dr. Pramilla Senanayake, medical director of the International Planned Parenthood Federation in London.

"I see pregnant girls as young as 13 or 14. This is a girl who is producing a child with the first or second or third egg she has ever produced," she said in an interview before addressing the 10th World Congress of Gynecology and Obstetrics.

Presenting an overview of the problem rather than results of research, she said, "Sexual activity is increasing all over the world. And with that there is an increase in adolescent pregnancy and an increase in sexually transmitted diseases.

"Yet there is little attention paid to this problem," she said. "It's a whole neglected area."

Mrs. Senanayake, a native of Sri Lanka, said solving the problem will be "a very long and slow and tedious process" of carefully crafted education programs aimed at specific cultures.

"Adolescents need to feel part of their society, not an intrusion upon it," she said. "Neither the adolescents nor sex are, in themselves, the problem ... . It's how society copes with them."

In the United States in 1978, there were 29,547 births to women under age 15 and 428,202 births in the 15-17 age group, according to Planned Parenthood.

AP Laserphoto

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mennonite draft resister Mark Schmucker talks to reporters in Cleveland yesterday where he was convicted of failing to register for the draft. Schmucker received a $4,000 fine and a five year prison sentence, three years of which were suspended and two to be served by working in a mental institution in Missouri.

Digest By the Associated Press

Hampshire will continue non-traditional ways despite consultants' warnings

AMHERST — Hampshire College, in its second decade of teaching students in non-traditional ways, should shed its image as a counterculture haven and raise admissions standards, a consultant says.

However, college President Adele Simmons, says the school will continue allowing students fulfill degree requirements by completing individual research projects — without the traditional academic trappings of credits, mandatory classes or grades.

She calls Hampshire a "graduate school for undergraduates."

But consultants at Krukowski Associates of New York said high school counselors and others view the school as "academically second rate."

"Hampshire's educational mission is badly misunderstood. In the college's earlier years, its distinctiveness was an exceptional marketing advantage because it seemed in harmony with many of the hopes and aspirations of the generation of students who went to college in the late 1960s and early 1970s. The distinction is now a recruitment liability," the consulants wrote.

"If Hampshire's perceived academic quality was beyond question, prospective students and counselors would more readily accept the college's seeming eccentricities. With the college's academic quality in doubt, Hampshire's unoxrthodoxy is a problem," consultants said, adding that the school, which costs about $11,000 a year, now "is forced to admit all but the weakest applicants."

Hampshire officials commissioned the consultants' study in March after admissions applications dropped from 2,780 in 1972, the school's second year of existence, to 1,024 in 1981.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Michelle Murray
Copy Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Kevin Fachetti
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Jackie Femino, Nancy Gallo, Ken Kalinowski, Fredey Janet Buch, Terri Cooper, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver, Lynn Eisenberg, Marge Hochman, Scott Stockwell, Adrianne Dufour, Laurie Frank

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Miller or Miller Light
35¢ Beers
PUB MUGS
This Week
MUSIC
by
RACK-A-DISC
No Cover
9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

THE BEST IN LIVE ENTERTAINMENT.
VANITIES and
DARK OF THE MOON
In Repertory Oct. 22-Nov. 20
(Call 545-3511 for Student Rates)
THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

The rusty nail presents
Wed. oct. 20 MAX CREEK
Thurs. Oct. 21 B. Willie Smith
Fri. Oct. 22 The Stompers
Sat. Oct. 23 The Busboys & The Neighborhoods
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

Photo by Tom Kudla

Bob Grybko enjoys his lunchbreak underneath the shade of an oak tree in front of Hasbrouck Lab. Grybko, a Warner Bros. Construction Co. employee, was working on the sidewalk there.

Alright, all you ghouls: treats ok, but no tricks

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

Ghosts and ghouls, vampires and bats will have to keep it in line during bewitching hours next weekend now that plans have been finalized to insure the safety of the University of Massachusetts campus community over Halloween.

A plan similar to guidelines followed over the past two years, was prepared by the UMass Housing Services. It was formulated by a representative group of University staff members and student leaders in an attempt to avoid the destructive incidents of Halloween 1979.

Housing Services decided to stick with the guidelines because "they were successful in the past two years," said Joseph A. Zannini, executive director of Housing Services.

Two general principles form the base of the policies, Zannini said. The principles are: that the campus and its facilities are primarily for the use of students and staff that work and live here and that the members of the campus community should be able to enjoy their Halloween activities with a reasonable assurance of security.

The following policy will be in effect this Halloween weekend:

- The campus will be closed to the public during the evening hours on Friday, Oct. 29 and Saturday, Oct. 30, with the exception of previously scheduled events for which special arrangements have been made.
- The Campus Center/Student Union Complex will close at 7 p.m., the 29th and 6 p.m. on the 30th.
- Residence halls will be open only to invited guests presenting a valid University ID card. Each resident will be allowed a maximum of two guests.

"We want to make the campus available to our students. As we reviewed last year's policy we saw no need to ban University students as guests," Zannini said.

- Twenty-four hour security will be in effect in the residence halls throughout the weekend.
- Small dorm-centered functions are encouraged, but large-scale events likely to draw uninvited guests will not be permitted.
- The residential area governments will be sponsoring costume competitions in cooperation with the Food Services and Housing Services. Details of the competition will be made available later in the week, Zannini said.

"Nineteen seventy-nine was a horror show, absolutely horrendous," said Kathy Meade, a spokeswoman for Housing Security.

"There was a lot of trashing, broken glass, vandalism, unwanted visitors and uncontrolled crowds," she said. The policy of the last two years, she said, has been very effective in preventing such behavior from happening again.

More than 100 security personnel will be used, Meade said, "beginning 5 p.m. Friday and ending at 5 a.m. Sunday."

"Between one and four or five will be in any given building at any time," she said, which is "essentially the same as last year."

Duffey clarifies change in staff organization

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph Duffey yesterday clarified a staff change that caused one administrator to consider taking legal action against the University of Massachusetts.

Duffey, who appointed Marie Reid to the position of associate vice chancellor under Administration and Finance last Thursday, said yesterday the change was made to make the administrative structure of the University consistent with that of other universities.

Duffey said giving final budget authority to the vice chancellor of Administration and Planning would reduce the number of administrators reporting directly to the chancellor. The change will also make the vice chancellor's position, temporarily filled by John L. DeNyse, more attractive to highly qualified and experienced administrators, Duffey said.

Reid, who in her 2 ½ years at UMass served as director of the Office of Planning and Budget, assistant to former Chancellor Henry Koffler and as overseer in the area of University Relations and Development, said the appointment was a demotion and may be in violation of the policies of the UMass Board of Trustees.

Although Reid said she agreed with Duffey's reasoning in making the organizational change, she said she objected to the way the decision was made. "It was the way it was done," Reid said.

Reid said with half of her responsibilities taken away from her she does not have enough work to do.

She also said she has not received a revised job description since her job was changed last week. "I'm not even sure what I can do," Reid said. "This kind of situation is too cumbersome."

Reid said she is currently seeking the advice of legal counsel to find out what her rights are.

The search committee for the vice chancellor of Administration and Finance completed its search last May, according to Carl Swanson, the director of that committee. Swanson said Chancellor Duffey is currently reviewing the seven finalists the committee recommended.

Student discipline system video shown to grad senate

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

A videotape explaining the student discipline system was last night presented to the University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate by the UMass Legal Services Office, Student Attorney General's Office and the Dean of Students Office.

The presentation, entitled "The Discipline System at UMass," was prepared to give students a basic overview of the discipline system because students have been generally unaware in the past.

The offices feel that a videotape will be more effective in reaching a larger number of people than oral or written presentation, said Julia Santiago of LSO. The videtape is also scheduled to appear on the Amherst and Northampton community cable systems.

The presentation explained that the courts mandate that students facing disciplinary action in a public educational institution must be given the full rights that the Constitution guarantees any citizen.

The videotape noted that before there was a uniform disciplinary system at the University, students did not have to receive a notice stating that action was about to be taken against them, nor did they have the right to a hearing. The new system assures these rights and also guarantees a student's right to legal counsel if the offense makes the student liable to off-campus prosecution.

★ budget

Continued from page 1

The recommendation will now go to the incoming governor — either Michael S. Dukakis or John W. Sears, who are now running for the position — who will then make his own recommendation to the state legislature in January, DeNyse said.

Public hearings will be held for the proposed budget, after which both the House and Senate Ways and Means Committee will weigh the governor's recommendation and make their own recommendations to the legislature.

The House will vote first on one lump sum for all the state schools, DeNyse said, once the bill passes through the House, the Senate will also vote.

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Amherst democratic incumbent John Olver speaks with guests at yesterday evenings candidate's open house at Memorial Hall.

Olver says state's fortunate for upbeat economic climate

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts should consider itself fortunate because its economic climate is upbeat relative to the rest of the country, said State Senator John Olver, D-Amherst.

Olver spoke yesterday at a candidate's night at Memorial Hall on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. The event was sponsored by the Massachusetts Society of Professors, member of the University Professional staff, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the International Brotherhood of Police, and the friends of John Olver. About 50 people attended.

Olver's speech focused on what he perceived as a positive working relationship between University faculty, staff, alumni and students. He also praised the Board of Regents for recommending a 40 percent increase in student aid. Following his speech Olver spoke to individuals separately.

One bill Olver cited for its importance to education is the increase in the state cigarette tax in order to double the amount of financial aid that comes from the state. Olver said he is one of the prime sponsors of that bill.

Olver supported a proposed telecommunications system that would be instrumental in linking various departments in state colleges and universities. He said he believes it is ironic that a state as strong as Massachusetts in the high technology field is not using technology to its full potential.

He also stressed the repair of the high pressure steamlines in the Southwest Residential Area dormitories. If these "notoriously bad" systems are not repaired Southwest could literally fall apart in a few years, Olver said.

Olver also commented on some of the upcoming state elections including his own.

He said his opponent, Jim Tripp, told the Greenfield Recorder in August that he intended to spend $20,000 to $30,000 in the election.

"Anybody can cause a lot of damage in a senatorial district with that kind of money," Olver said, adding that he has not as of yet seen any evidence to that kind of expenditure.

Olver said he responded to the story in the Recorder by building a campaign "as if my life was on the line," by coming out with literature and a direct mail system.

Governor Edward J. King created a problem for liberal legislators because of his opposition to pro-choice legislation, support of raising the drinking age and his belief that new prisons should be built in order to increase the prison population, Olver said.

King's support of capital punishment and mandatory sentences "don't work and aren't likely to work in the future," he said.

Olver added that he expects Michael S. Dukakis to become the state's next governor.

He also expressed his view on the race between Barney Frank and Margaret Heckler in the state's fourth district.

"I think that Barney Frank will carry it but that's just a matter of faith," he said.

Hypercurricula...

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY — "Death Penalty" is the topic of this theological discussion facilitated by Rev. Phil Ward. 12:15 p.m., 428 Student Union.

UMASS EXCHANGES TO GREAT BRITAIN — An informational meeting will be held for students interested in attending UMass exchanges to Great Britain in 1983-84. 3 p.m., Third Floor Lounge, Herter Hall.

GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM COUNCIL — We need student input with our CC/SU entertainment. Bring your ideas. 4:30 p.m., 802 Campus Center.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST WEEKLY MEETING — Come for quality Christian fellowship and a continuing series designed to stimulate growth in Christ. 6:30 p.m., SBA 109.

BDIC INFORMATIONAL MEETING — explanation of the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Conteentration (BDIC) Program, a degree granting program which allows a student the opportunity top design his/her own major. 7 p.m., Chadbourne Seminar Room.

BIOCHEMISTRY CLUB MEETING — All are welcome. 7:30 p.m., 1020 Graduate Research Tower.

FREIBURG ABEND — An informational meeting will be held for students interested in attending the University of Freiburg (Germany) exchange program next year. 7:30 p.m., Third Floor Lounge, Herter Hall.

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP — A group of women who are challenging traditional ways of experiencing spirituality. A supportive community where women can share, question, and grow toward a new understanding of themselves. 7 p.m., 428 Student Union.

FILM: THE LAST SEA — Documentary about Jewish survivors who emigrated to Israel after World War II. Contains rare footage of the period. A major film in the Jewish film festival in N.Y. Free. 8 p.m., 106 Thompson.

FREE CONCERT: JAZZ ENSEMBLE I — 25 UMass students, directed by Jeff Holmes, will perform music from the bands of Duke Ellington, Basie and Thad Jones. Guest soloists: saxophonist Fred Tillis and trombonist David Sporny. 8 p.m., Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

SPANISH CLUB — General meeting. 8 p.m., sixth floor lounge, Herter Hall.

Newslines...

NOW conference to air on WMUA

There will be a panel discussion on the National Organization of Women (NOW) Conference held in Indianapolis two weeks ago from 6 to 7 tonight on WMUA. The leading speaker will be Pat McGuire.

DeJean to lecture at Amherst

Professor Joan DeJean will speak on "The Paradoxes of Female Authorship: Mme de Lafayette and La Princesse de Cleves," at 4 p.m. today in the Alumni House at Amherst College. The lecture will be given in English and there will be a reception following the lecture.

THE BELLS ARE RINGING "3 YEARS" 549-1211 OR 253-9051

OCT. 1967 — OCT. 1982

THE BELL FAMILY INVITES YOU TO COME CELEBRATE 15 YEARS OF BEING THE OLDEST PIZZA ESTABLISHMENT IN AMHERST.

FOR THE ENTIRE MONTH OF OCT:

$1 OFF ANY LARGE PIZZA $.50 OFF ANY SMALL PIZZA (NO COUPONS NECESSARY)

CONSISTENCY • QUALITY • QUANTITY

BELLS PIZZA • 65 UNIVERSITY DRIVE, AMHERST, MA

"YOU RANG ?!!"

Student Telephone directories will be available in the Campus Center Concourse beginning "today," Oct. 20th, for "off-campus" students.

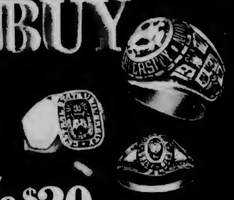
Dormitory Residents will be receiving their copies in the Residence Halls, and are asked not to pick theirs up in the Concourse.

IDB TIPS

a Service of the Dean of Students Office

Final Day!

THE BEAUTIFUL BUY



Now Save $20 on Siladium College Rings.

With the price of fine jewelry today, it's good to know that a jewelry-quality Siladium ring is now more affordable than ever. Save—and choose from a variety of beautiful styles. Then personalize your ring with custom options that express your tastes, your interests, your achievements.

Every fine Siladium ring is crafted with careful attention to detail, and backed by the ArtCarved Full Lifetime Warranty. Now, at these special savings, the value is exceptional! Don't miss this opportunity to get a beautiful buy on a fine Siladium ring. Visit the ArtCarved Ring Table soon.

Date Oct. 18, 19, 20 Time 10-4 Place Campus Center

Deposit Required MasterCard or Visa Accepted $15 Deposit

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS INC

© 1982 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc

UNIVERSITY STORE

FACULTY:

The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP.

Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester!!

We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.

Please Send Us Your Orders By

October 25th

1. Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails.
2. We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them. If we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester.
3. Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex.

We appreciate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call. (5-3570-1-2)

Justina Kielec
Faculty Liaison

Textbook Annex
Hours
M-F 9 am - 4 pm

Russ Evans
Textbook Manager

Returns to publisher will begin November 1st. Please inform your students.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Letters

Is the campus oblivious to past Crayton's anti-semetic letter?

To the Editor:

I hesitate, briefly, to disparage a man whom so many on this campus seem to look to as an enlightened and compassionate social organizer. Frankly, I'm amazed at some of the stuff printed in the Collegian in recent weeks about Tony Crayton and his much lamented departure from UMass. I am unable to forget a letter by Mr. Crayton "about" the Jews, which appeared some years ago in Black Affairs (Nummo News anti-Semitic?, Dec. 6, 1978).

"I'm tired of this Zionist belly aching over the plight of the Jews," railed Crayton. "You continue to count your six million casualties under Germany. Have you tried to count how many Africans you Europeans murdered to build America? And don't start that crap about you Jews had nothing to do with it. Even if we discount all your vile merchants who took part, you still are responsible for receiving stolen goods..."

According to Crayton, the Jewish people were also responsible for bringing his people"...ghettoes, bantustans, and refugee camps..." His letter further accused Jews of "economically exploiting (Blacks) and removing all the money profits from (their) community," and offered to stop exposing all these injustices "when (Jews) use the media they control to dispel the stigmas that are still prevalent today..."

If Crayton had directed equally bigoted remarks toward another of society's scapegoats — such as Hispanics, or women — his career as a campus organizer would (and should) have never recovered. But he leaves UMass with flying colors, hailed for his dedication and his enlightened social perspective. It is tragic that Crayton believes in these medieval anti-Semitic myths. It is frightening that so many others on this campus don't seem to mind.

Seth Minkoff
Amherst

Amherst selectmen's decision not responsible or intelligent

To the Editor:

In response to the October 18, front page article "Amherst booklet answers 'iffy' questions" by Ann Carrns and Ray Beauchemin, I would like to make a few comments.

It is true that Amherst will be one of the host communities during crisis relocation, but the town will not be on its own as alluded to. Monies will be appropriated to obtain foodstocks, cots, medical supplies, and other items that will be provided to host towns to take care of the population influx. Distribution will be through the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency which will receive assistance from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) at a later phase in a total emergency plan of which crisis relocatir . planning is only a part.

No one is advocating nuclear war, or even saying that if people follow the relocation plan they will survive, but any plan is better than no plan. If the situation exists, we must have some idea of what to do. If there is the slightest chance that by relocating people may survive, a segment of the population will take that chance. The option is there for those who want it. At least its better than the alternative.

Cooperation at all levels is essential. I am disappointed in the Amherst selectmen. Did any official from the town attend the Governor's Conference on Civil Preparedness in Framingham (all communities were invited) that was held a few months ago to discuss such issues? From the actions taken, I would say not. Let's get all the information from both sides before making a decision. Why not give Doug Forbes a chance to address the community in person?

Mark Hickox
Central

Alumnus applauds Davis' article as insightful and important

To the Editor:

Bravo to Beverly Davis for her insightful article entitled "School Outside the Classroom." I found it remarkable that a student would have such a handle on the twin realms of learning and involvement in social causes.

It seems we are confronted with two paradoxes, which I have experienced in my nine years since leaving the University: 1) the more a student treats the outside world as illusory, irrelevant and not to be dealt with, to that extent will that world treat you similarly when you enter it. In a more simplified language, one must deal with social issues while at the University for, in fact, one's future and the planet's, are dependent upon this awareness. 2) A corollary of the above, and yet on one level, seemingly contradictory, is the insights, the knowledge, the vision one nurtures and develops during one's first time in college, the energies and ideas the world thirsts for, it often rejects. And in so doing blames "the messenger for the message." Perhaps, to paraphrase the poet, e.e. cummings, the entire world is determined to prevent you from becoming yourself. Yet who, once filled with the craving for Truth and Justice, could abandon that noble path?

R. Jay Allain
Easthampton

Reagan breaks from past ways

John F. Hudson

Since the end of World War II, President after President has tried, with mixed results, to control growing worldwide Soviet influence. Under Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson containment represented a U.S. willingness to go to war, if necessary, to prevent the spread of worldwide communism. With Nixon, Ford and Carter detente became the watchword. This policy openly acknowledged the position of the Soviet Union as a world power and encouraged peaceful coexistence between the two countries through negotiation and cooperation. In contrast to these two policies of the past, the Reagan administration has embarked on a new foreign policy course, one which threatens to isolate the two nations even further from one another. This new policy and the marked differences it produces in comparison to past U.S. tactics in dealing with Russia will be examined in this two part essay.

"We believe the free world can prevail," Thomas C. Reed, a special assistant to President Reagan, said in a recent speech. "Prevailing with pride is the primary objective." In what was considered the primary foreign policy speech since the beginning of his term, President Reagn last spring proclaimed that an important objective is, "...a Soviet leadership devoted to improving its people's lives rather than expanding its armed conquests."

This policy differs from past policies in many ways. Unlike past American foreign policy, Reagan's idea of prevailing indirectly precludes the Soviets from dealing with the U.S. on any level other than adversarial. Although under containment U.S. and Russian interests clashed frequently, (most notably during the 1962 missile crisis), dialogue and positive advancement were seen in improving superpower relations. During the Kennedy administration for example, establishment of a hotline between the Kremlin and Washington and the signing of the Atmospheric Test Ban Treaty, showed the two superpowers could still advance diplomatically while ideologically competitive. Also during detente, this phenomenom was again demonstrated. While the Strategic Arms Limitation agreement was being negotiated, America was at the height of its involvement in the Vietnam War, a war heavily criticized by the Kremlin. Moscow was the main supplier of arms and money the North Vietnamese and they considered the war pivitol in its quest to spread its worldwide influence. In spite of this, the U.S. and Russia signed the first extensive arms limitation treaty in 1972.

In contrast to this marked progress in negotiation during times of thaw and warming in U.S.-Soviet relations, the twenty-one months since Reagan has taken office is devoid of any significant diplomatic advances towards Russia. During this time the U.S. has made negligible progress at best in its only positive overture to the Soviets. The Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) are a proposal to significantly reduce the number of Soviet and American missiles currently stationed in Eastern and Western Europe. Perhaps Reagan's appointment of a general to head the negotiating team has something to do with the apparent stagnation of the talks at this time.

More importantly, though, by diplomatically distancing the U.S. from the Soviets, the President risks polarizing even more already abysmal relations. Its a case of going from bad to worst to intolerable. Also, the chance of a communications slip-up, misconstrued messages, or downright crude exchanges increases with each step the superpowers take away from one another. In the nuclear age, mistakes like these rarely go unforgiven. Tomorrow the issue of Reagan's policy of prevailing its effect on Allied relations, and a general overview of future prospects will be examined.

John F. Hudson is a Collegian Assoc. Exec. Editor

Correction

This sentence was deleted from a letter published yesterday (PLO film is propaganda) by Howard Glantz.

"After the movie, the evening took on a comic nature as rhetoric spilled from the mouth of Paul Saba, a lawyer. He ridiculously accused Jews of America and Israel of believing Arabs to be "inferior" and "smelly". I call on the PLO sympathizers to receive serious speakers in the future.

We're always looking for columnists!

Drop by with a piece or an idea
113 Campus Center

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

FREE ENVELOPES!!!

TYPE-RITE will word process your letters --1 or 100--and you'll get the envelopes free of charge.
Reports, manuscripts, term papers, theses, etc. typed.
Same or next day service in many cases.
TYPE-RITE, 321R Main Street, Amherst
253-5111

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Drive
Amherst, Mass
549-5713
Fine food and drink at affordable prices
extensive happy hours
Thursday night is Kaludie night
(inside out pizza!)
Kaludie and a draft beer — $3.25
a wide variety of fillings available
9:00 - close - Thursday
Happy Hours 2:00-5:30 daily

Sears $30 OFF

2196
Sale ends 10/30/82
AM/FM boom box stereo recorder
• Automatic program selection system
• Metal tape capability • Variable monitor
• Stereo wide switch • Four speakers
169.99 Regular $199.99
AC line cord included • Batteries extra
This advertised item is readily available for sale as advertised.
FREE: Your choice of any Maxell, TDK, or Memorex 90 minute blank cassette when you fill out a SearsCharge application*
Name _____ School _____
Student _____ Faculty _____ Other _____
*SearsCharge application and FREE blank tape are available at Customer Convenience Center
Coupon must be presented for FREE item. Coupon expires 10/30/82
You can count on Sears
ALBANY, N.Y. FAIRMOUNT FAIR, N.Y. FAYETTEVILLE, N.Y. MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. N. SYRACUSE, N.Y. POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. AUBURN, N.Y. EASTFIELD MALL, MA. HOLYOKE, MA. NEW LONDON, CT. BRIDGEPORT, CT. HAMDEN, CT. NEW LONDON, CT. ORANGE, CT. W. HARTFORD, CT. BURLINGTON, VT.
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
BOOK NOW AND TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THESE LOW PRICES

RIO DE JANEIRO inc. air, hotel & extras from JFK	from $399.00
LONDON R.T. air from Boston	$439.00	SPECIALISTS FOR ALL YOUR TRAVEL NEEDS 545-0500
FLORIDA R.T. air from Hartford to various cities	$208.00 $250.00	Monday-Friday Saturday & Sunday

Campus Center 2nd floor UMass Amherst 01003

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
fine dining ...a meal with a view
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES
584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!
TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD FALL COURSE BOOKS.
RETURNS START NOVEMBER 1st
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK— YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX @ physical plant bldg

Arts

Collegian photo by David May
Crowds waiting out for Joe Jackson tickets two weeks ago.

Joe Jackson Preview

The Joe Jackson concert date has finally come and a lot of people are excited about it. After long hours of sleeping out for tickets and recent worries that a cold might prevent the concert, tomorrow night's performance will go on as scheduled.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center. There will be no opening group, although many believed that Marshall Crenshaw and The Motels had been signed; but if Jackson can bring the power and raw energy to the University of Massachusetts that he puts into his albums, it is doubtful that anyone will be left disappointed by the evening.

Joe Jackson will presumable play mostly cuts from his new album, "Night and Day." The album, his fifth, is reflective of the time he spent in New York City. While the "Day side" tracks concern themselves with everyday thoughts, emotions and insecurities, the "Night side" is pure dance music — "the hot music that blazes out of shadowy windows and darkened doorways in the late hours on sultry city nights" as the liner notes phrase it.

A five member band will back him during his North American tour, which will continue through December.

Tomorrow night should be a good time. — Andy Gordon

Joe Jackson, who will play to a sold out FAC crowd tomorrow night.

Alan Arenius plays the Conjure Man in the University Ensemble production of Dark of the Moon which opens at 8 p.m. this Friday evening

Play by Play by Pam Madnick

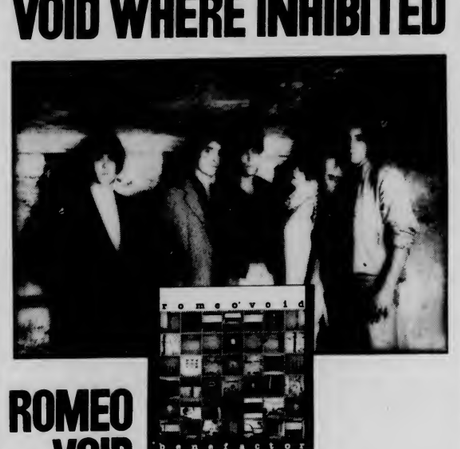
You say you've never seen a witch? In William Berney and Howard Richardson's Dark of the Moon a witchboy is given human form and marries Barbara Allen. The conflict between Barbara and her witch husband and the superstitious town is controlled by a fundamentalist preacher. He uses superstition, sexual repression, and old time religion to save souls. Dark of the Moon is a classic drama based on the Appalachian folk ballad of Barbara Allen. Performances by the University Ensemble Theater are in the Rand Theater at the FAC October 22, 23 and November 3, 4, 11, 12, 17, and 18 at 8 p.m. Dark of the Moon will be performed in repetory with Jack Heifner's Vanities, which opens October 29.

Playwright-poet Lane Kiyomi Nishikawa performs in a one man production, Life in the Fast Lane. Written by Nishikawa, this play relates his experiences as artist caught between a Japanese and an American world. Sponsored by the Third World Theatre Series, the play is Thursday, October 28 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for the public.

Yentl: The Yeshiva Boy is the story of a young Jewish girl, fed up with the traditional expectations for Jewish women in the late 1880's, who takes an active role in Judaism by disguising herself as a boy. Yentl plays Theatre 14, Smith College Oct. 28, 29, 30 and Nov. 4, 5 and 6 at 8 p.m. tickets are $4 for the general public, $2 for students and senior citizens. Dollar nights are Oct. 28 and Nov. 4.

In West Springfield at Stage West, The Crucifer of Blood by Paul Giovanni runs through October 21 through November 13. Crucifer of Blood is a mosiac of true adventures by Arthur Conan Doyle, a character similar to Sherlock Holmes. Curtain goes up at on Tuesdays through Thursday at 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 7:30 p.m.

VOID WHERE INHIBITED



ROMEO VOID

"...the sort of album, rare in any era, that rewards repeated close listening ... stylish stuff..." Musician

Romeo Void. "Benefactor." Including "Never Say Never." New, on Columbia Records and Cassettes.

 available at
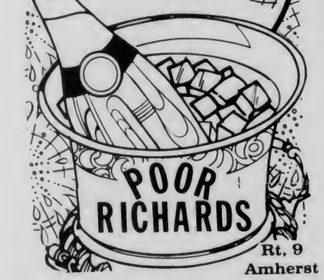
Union Records Unlimited
$4.99

Every Wednesday
LADIES NIGHT
FREE CHAMPAGNE
For the Ladies
8 - 10:30
75c DRINKS
For Everyone
All Nite



Rt. 9
Amherst

NRBO
with The Pousette-Dart Band
Fri. Oct. 22nd at 8 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
$4.00 General Admission Fee
Tickets available at:
Faces of Earth, Amherst
Platterpus Records, Northampton
Please no alcohol, smoking, cameras or tape recorders
Doors open at 7 PM

Recycle the Collegian

STAR TREK LIVES!
Club Meeting
Oct. 25
Time 7-11 pm
Room 174
Campus Ctr.
Films, Info
for ST & SF fans
All Welcome!

PURVEYORS of FINE USED
SACKS
OF SOUTH AMHERST
XXX
WEARING APPAREL
located at the Grist Mill, Rt. 116, So. Amherst
one mile south of Amherst Center
on the So. Amherst bus route
25% OFF
fall Clearance
Used Wearing Apparel
open daily 11 - 5 pm
Clip • Save

CHIROPRACTIC
FOR BETTER HEALTH
Dr. Virginia Harper DC
Dr. Howard Ewert DC
CHIROPRACTORS

Tension Headache

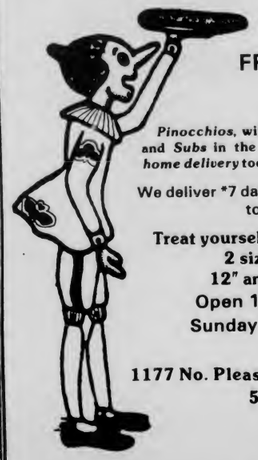
If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure or dysfunction of the neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other pain-killers may give you temporary relief--but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you need.

La Cucina di
PINOCCHIO



FREE DELIVERY

Pinocchios, with the tastiest hot Pizza and Subs in the valley, now offers fast home delivery too!

We deliver *7 days a week from 5 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Treat yourself to PINOCCHIO'S
2 sizes of Subs
12" and 16" Pizzas
Open 11 a.m. to 3 a.m.
Sunday 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

1177 No. Pleasant St., No. Amherst
549-3669

*Limited delivery area, $3.75 minimum on delivery orders, thank you.

CALCULATOR CENTER
Basic Business Scientific

Become A Logic Master With The HP-16C.

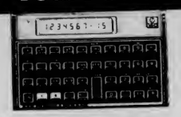
See how the Hewlett-Packard HP-16C can save you time with its built in functions and advanced programmability.

- Binary, octal, decimal, hexadecimal conversions and operations
- Boolean AND, OR, NOT, XOR
- 203 program lines or 101 16-bit data registers
- Sets word size 1's and 2's complement unsigned modes
- Floating point decimal mode
- RPN logic. Continuous Memory and liquid crystal display

HP-16C . . . $000.00

$134.00 List $150.00
Now Available

The HP-15C.
Your Power Over Numbers.



HP-15C . . . $000.00

Let the Hewlett-Packard HP-15C with its powerful functions and advanced programmability eliminate your most tedious calculations

- Matrix operations
- Complex functions
- Solve and Integrate
- 448 program lines
- Insert/delete editing
- RPN logic, Continuous Memory, and liquid-crystal display

$115. List $135.

Now Available
Open 9-5 M-F
11-4 Sat

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Angel's instrument
5 Weight
9 Food fish
13 Plain to see
15 A double curve
16 —— and Hounds (game)
17 Skinflint
18 Brownstone, for one
20 Architect's delights
22 Fix up, in a way
23 Mexican yucca plant
24 Enervate
25 —— out (extended)
27 Inner circle
28 Anglo-Saxon laborer
29 Mild oath
31 Delineation
35 "Le —— des Cygnes" ("Swan Lake")
36 Babbled
38 —— in the sky
39 Stiff-backed
42 Love, in tennis
43 Place for a dance
44 Expectations
46 House feature
48 Lists of candidates
50 Ornamental edging
51 —— of Liberty
52 "Her eyes —— of silent prayer...": Tennyson
55 Base runner's goal
57 Concealed: Comb. form
58 Sutherland specialty
59 Son of Aphrodite
60 Subscribe again
61 Carte
62 Knocks
63 Sts.

DOWN
1 "...the —— of the brave"
2 Grasping
3 Home
4 Prologue
5 Home to some salesman
6 Parts of one's character
7 Scarcely any
8 Ministered to 9 Horror movie
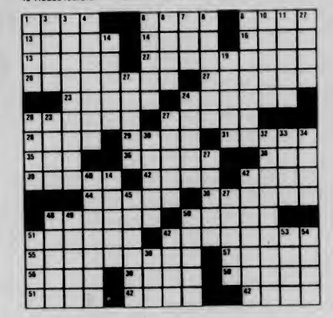
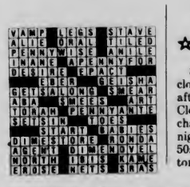
10 —— cuisine
11 Urban problem
12 Forest creature
14 Banal
19 Reserve, stockpile
21 Expressed juice of apples
24 Crane or heron
25 Polynesian goddess of volcanoes
26 Bavarian river, Danube tributary
27 Troglodytes' homes
30 Stares
32 Home to some
33 Word with exit or door
34 Camper's home
37 Motherless calf
40 Duc's home
41 Compute
43 Home for chicks
45 Kitchen utensil
47 Salt relish of India
48 Word with house or keeper
49 Prefix meaning thin plate
50 Goad; spur
51 Imitation
52 At the apex
53 Confederate Gen Rgbert ——
54 Sty wallowers
56 Altar, to Augustus





WEATHER

★★★★★★★★

Sunny tomorrow with clouds coming in during afternoon. Highs 65 to 70. Cloudy tonight with a chance of showers late at night. Low mid 40s to low 50s. A chance of showers tomorrow. Highs 60 to 65.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Good Morning with Teresa
9-noon ,	Rock 'n' Roll with Mike Malone
12-3pm	Progressive Music with Michelle
3-5:30	The Beat Escape with Mary Kelly
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	Women's Affairs
7-10	Paula T.
10-2am	Terpsichorean Cacophony with James Neill
2-6	Glory Gospel Road with Rev. Pearson

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Wednesday

Video to get you over the hump

10:30 - 12:30	Springfest '82 with One People, Mitch Chakour, and Papa John Creach
12:30 - 2:00	Comedy, comedy, comedy, all from the Wall.

D.C. MENU

BASICS LUNCH
Swiss and Sprout Sandwich
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

BASICS DINNER
STEAK NIGHT
Vegetable Kabobs
Trout with Lemon Almond Butter
Sweet and Sour Chicken Fingers

LUNCH
Reuben Sandwich
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

DINNER
STEAK NIGHT
Sirloin Strip Steak/ Mushroom Sauce
Trout with Lemon Almond Butter
Sweet and Sour Chicken Fingers

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

NORTH AMHERST
TIRE & AUTO CENTER

WITH THIS AD
POLYESTER
BLACKWELL
$26.95
Size A78-13 FET $1.59
A FULL SERVICE
TIRE STORE
• COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
• FRONT END ALIGNMENT
• BRAKES & SHOCKS
VISA MC 70 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST ACROSS FROM WATKINS STORE 5494704

MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
TRY OUR RESUME SERVICES

A Class Act
High Notes
Singing Telegrams and Balloons
Delivered by Tuxedoed Messenger for any and All Occasions
Student Discounts
"Send A Song"
Call 665-7664
VISA/MC

Dastardly Dans
Mon - Thurs
$3.00 Cover
FREE DRAFT
9 - closing
50¢ Highballs
50¢ Domestic Beers
Pool Table - Pinball - Video Games

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437
INFO & SIGN-UP MEETINGS
OCT. 19 HAMDEN THEATER 7:00
OCT. 20 PUBLIC HEALTH 3:00
OCT 21 CAMPUS CENTER Room 101 4:00
INFO TABLE CAMPUS CENTER CONCORSE EVERY W,TH,F 9-3
OR OFFICE 430A STUDENT UNION M-F 3437

Discount Photo Processing by Berkey
Archer Kent
Prices Effective Oct. 2o thru Oct. 24
SPOOKTACULAR BARGAINS

Maximum Strength ANACIN 30 capsules
$1.69
reg $2.69

Cepacol 18 oz
$1.88
reg $2.69
For a Fresh & Clean-Feeling Mouth

Rave Soft Perm Refill regular or extra curly
$2.99
reg $4.59

Clairol condition Beauty Pack Treatment
Clairol Condition Beauty Pack Treatment
$1.88
Extra Body Formula For Fine, Limp Hair 2 oz.
Regular Formula 2 oz.
reg. $2.75

Ultra Ban II
3 oz.
$1.19
reg $2.19

Sun-Maid Raisins
bag of 14 miniature boxes
98¢

Snickers or Milky Way
$1.89
16 oz bag - snack size

Junior Mints
Bags of Miniatures
• Junior Mints 9 oz
• Charleston Chew 7 oz
• Sugar Daddy Jr. 10½ oz
• Chuckles 14 oz.
your choice
$1.79
Good & Plenty 10 oz. . . . . 99¢
Switzer Licorice 16 oz. . . .$1.29
Reese's Cups 10 count tray
95¢

191 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA
253-3534
Quantity Rights Reserved

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUDIO

Odyssey studio monitors, professional quality 4-way speaker system with 5th passive radiator. $350 or BO Vic 549-0469

AUTO FOR SALE

Pontiac Catelina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

Audi Fox 76 looks, runs, like new. Must see, after 5 pm 253-3519

Rabbit front air dam and rear shocks A1 condition Dave 256-0543

1973 VW Bug new paint stereo good cond 665-2077 after 5:00

1971 Ford Torino exc cond $950 or BO call 549-4147

70 Olds 88 exl. mech. cond. $400 or BO 256-0765

VW Squareback 68 inspected for Fall 82 $700 Eby 256-6050 after 6 PM

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

Come see UMass bands compete for the best band on campus at the Southwest's Annual Battle of the Bands, Saturday, October 23 noon to 7 pm Hampden Student Center free admission

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

King of Clubs Band promo & info call Dave 297-1880 or Ralph 249-9766

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

Graduate Student for quiet home one bedroom left, $225 includes utilities 665-8144

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

1961 Gibson EBO Bass (SG body) with case $225 or BO Steve 549-5039

Electric typewriters used Olivetti & Remington $150 ea 549-6889

Leather jacket, wine, size 6, worn once, $80 negotiable 549-6459

Thermo-Fax copy machine $75 Westinghouse refrigerator, white left hinge, 65 in high, Doors-Used - 24, 30, 32 inch wide, $10 ea. Gas stove white 21 inch $200 call after 6 pm 586-1827 N'ton

Canoe 12 ft American Fiberlite 1 yr excellent 160.00 323-4964

Pioneer integrated amp 75 w/ch $145 Akai top of line reel to reel w/autorev $265 6-6954

'82 Olin Mark VII skis. Never used. Great deal $175.00 David 253-3588

Toyota Corona 1974 reliable $500 or best offer 584-6065

Sweaterladies are back! 40% off retail this Thurs from 12-5 cash only

Ampeg bass amp see Charlie at Greenough - 3:00 PM

Woman's large maroon leather jacket with removable hood, good condition, $40.00 call Maria 256-0179

I have 2 Joe Jackson tickets best offer call Lisa 546-9290

Convertible - 1973 VW new top, snows. AM/FM $3500. 617-544-6555

FOUND

Deborah Woodward. I found your Marx notebook in Herter Hall. Call 256-8785 and ask for Dan

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Responsible people needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

Help wanted for Mike Dukakis campaign meeting tonight 803 Campus Center 586-6427

INSTRUCTION

Math Tutoring 549-6612

LOST

In Orchard Hill Lounge: black acrylic sweater, Lord and Taylor label, sentimental value 253-9459

Wallet and Yellow raincoat important Timeout Fri Oct 8 Call Kristin 256-6877

Sweater Stolen From Van Meter 418 off white icelandic grey/black yoke design heartbroken reward! 546-1422

Harmonica Honner Special brown case 10/14 546-1422

Eye Glasses gold lost near Hampshire Bank return to Amherst Police Reward

LOST: Maroon/White/dk Green Wool Scarf-"Ingham" Label nr pond? Help-Rob 6-6273 Reward.

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a
Collegian classified!

GET PSYCHED FOR HALLOWEEN!!! The Great Pumpkin Sale is coming Thursday and Friday!

DISTRIBUTOR OPPORTUNITIES Texas Instruments home computer ground floor multi level marketing money making opportunities - no risk, no inventory investments Demonstration Tues 10/26 7:30 CC room 169 call Grace or Paul after 5 665-2494

Oh sweet D. You are so wonderful. Oh Dave, I want to caress your thighs. I want to be your slave tonight. Love, your not-so-secret admirer

All University women are invited to Alpha Chi Omega's rush dinner 10/20, 10/26, 10/27 at 5:00 call Jennifer 545-2152

To the pledges of Chi Omega You're Awesome! XO.

Nancy Happy Hour JD's Tonight? Take it "easy"

Brad, Cheryle, Kelly, Brenda, Jim and Co, and especially Paul. Thanks for a fantastic weekend in the White Mountains. It was a great time with a great bunch of friends. Let's do it again real soon. Mary.

Happy Halloween Say it with a pumpkin cookie. Order one at the Mortarboard Table Oct. 20, 21, 22 on Concourse

UM Boot Boys - Basically, turn it on against UCONN

Bubbles - come back you bag - with love from Crissy and the Arts Dudes

You too Spunky

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

SUGARBUSH SKI HOUSE room available over intersession 546-5891 546-5890

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Individual, couples, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

ROOMMATE WANTED

Housemate needed - 4 bed house in Leverett - female pref. 100/month + call Wendy 549-2628

Female to share bedroom in Rolling Green immediate opening $106 month verything included 256-8335 or 256-0165

Apartmentmate needed $150/mo on bus route furnished call Jeff 665-4357

Roommate wanted to share 5 room townhouse in Easthampton just over N'ton line. Male or female. Own room. Call Sue 527-6690

RUSH

RUSHRUSHRUSHRUSHRUSHRU
U S
S H
H R
R U
U S
S H
H R
R U
USHRUSHRUSHRUSHRUSHRUSH

Alpha Epsilon Pi
Rush Meeting
Wednesday, October 20, 8:00 pm
call 546-8629 or 546-6021
for more info
Don't delay! Call today!

SERVICES

Overnight typing service
I will do your typing for you overnight. I have professional experience, but very reasonable rates. Call Jim at 546-7042

SKIING

It snowed TWO FEET!!! Saturday night in STOWE. It's going to be an awesome year

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

A.S.A. Bustrip to New York City Nov. 6, Saturday 7 am CC cost 18.00 in advance contact Gwen Umansky 253-5511

WANTED

Looking for 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call Gail 549-5586

Wanted: Joe Jackson tickets 2 (two) best price paid call after 6:00 PM keep trying 253-3643

Ride needed to South Shore area Friday 10/22 return Sun 10/24 Will share expenses call Andrea 549-0064

Ride needed to Framingham, Natick area Friday 10/22 at 1:00ish. Will share expenses. Call Laurie 549-1511

Attention: two friendly female companions needed for Joe Jackson concert. Section two. Early risers need not apply. Call Steev this evening at 549-6636

Someone for light, routine typing approx 3 hrs - $15 call 253-2842

Joe Jackson tix That's right I will pay $$$$ Brian 253-3588

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

STUDY WHERE YOUR CLASSROOM IS A COUNTRY.
JAY DID.
AT TEL AVIV UNIVERSITY.

"I was excited by all of my courses. Most rewarding was the Community Involvement course. I worked with underprivileged children and got to know them, their families and their environment. It gave me a fresh insight into Israeli society—what it is, and what it can become."

See for yourself. In the Overseas Student Program. Full year, single semester or summer. Moderate fees. Scholarships are available. For more information, send coupon now or call: American Friends of Tel Aviv University (212) 687-5651.

American Friends of Tel Aviv University
Office of Academic Affairs
342 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017
Please send information about
☐ One-Year Program
☐ Semester Program
☐ Summer Session
☐ Other _____
Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
University _____

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH

NEW WAVE
&
DESIGN HAIRCUTS
$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 C
expires 10/30/82

Sports

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Downpours halted play in Game Six of the World Series yesterday with the St. Louis Cardinals leading the Milwaukee Brewers 8-0.

Kickers host national champions

By GUS MARTINS
Collegian Staff

When the defending national Collegiate soccer champions, the University of Connecticut, comes to Amherst today for a match with the University of Massachusetts, they will be arriving without the likes of Pedro Debrito, Elvis Comrie, and Carlos Carlos, three star players who brought them to such monumental heights a year ago in California. Game time is at 3 p.m. at Boyden Field.

Although the absence of these three players has resulted in a somewhat less explosive team, the eighth ranked Connecticut Huskies have more than enough talent to go around.

The Huskies are led by striker Graziano Cornolo, midfielders Eric Myren and Bill Morrone (the son of head coach Joe Morrone), and Matt Addington, a freshman from Seattle, WA., who is their leading scorer.

University of Massachusetts' coach Jeff Gettler thinks of Cornolo as "probably the best striker in New England." While sophomore midfielder Eric Myren from Virginia according to Gettler is "their best overall player."

Senior midfielder Bill Morrone has received all everything honors but Gettler feels that those honors may be a little exaggerated.

"He may be All-American, but not in my book," said Gettler,"I'm more worried about their depth because they can use 20 guys, and during the course of the game that can wear you down."

The Huskies, owners of an 10-1-3 record are currently on a 32 game winning streak against New England competition, and surely are looking to increase this with a win.

Gettler's strategy for today's match is one designed to throw the Huskies off balance.

"In the first half we're going to try and frustrate them," said Gettler, "We can't play a full game with them. In the second half we'll play soccer with them and hopefully we can beat them in a 45 minute game."

Although the Minutemen booters have slipped in their last four games, salvaging only a tie against Boston University on Alumni weekend, the team's record of late is a deceptive one.

For the most part they've played well enough over two-thirds of the field to defeat anyone. The apparent weakness seems to come when the ball is in the attacking end of play.

"We tend to slow down in the attacking third of the field." This is due more to a mentality thing than it is technical and what this does is allow players to recover on defense," said Gettler.

This problem was all the more visible against Boston University a week and a half ago, when the booters time and time again were able to shut down the BU attack at their own 35 yard mark, but were far less effective in the transition from defense to offense.

While they may have outplayed the Terriers from Boston, and certainly deserved to win, their play in the attacking end of the field needed to be more instinctive, rather than conscious.

The Minutemen, 4-5-1, feel that after today's game with Connecticut the toughest part of the schedule will have been played. Probably, their most difficult contest besides UConn will be against Boston College, on October 29th.

Before the team can move on to the upcoming matches, it will be interesting to see how they'll do against Connecticut, one of the most consistent, talent-laden teams in collegiate soccer over the past six years or so.

Women booters waltz by Dartmouth, 8-0

By PETER SODERBERG
Collegian Correspondent

"We played our style of game today and stuck with it all the way to win", said UMass women's soccer coach Kalekeni Banda, after his teams 8-0 route of Dartmouth at Boyden field yesterday. The win increased their record to 9-3.

Natalie Prosser started the scoring assault at seven and a half minutes into the game on when she took a pass from Nina Holmstrom and then lured the goalie out of the net, waited for her to commit herself. Then she drove the ball by the sprawling defender.

Lynne Raymond, who had been camping in front of the Dartmouth goal all day and harassing their goalie, scored the second goal. Christine Taggart crossed the ball through the middle and found Raymond alone and she put it into the lower left corner.

Susan Bird and Paula Stasish each added plays. Bird was credited with the goal when she and three other UMass players were clustered in front of the net heading the ball up and taking shots at will. After more than three rebounds, Bird finally put it by the goalie to make it 3-0. Stashis caught the Dartmouth goalie out of position when she took a pass cross field from Sharon Daggett and had only to tap it by the surprised goalie.

Photo by Tom Kudla

UMass' Elaine Bourbeau chases Dartmouth's Gail Garner during yesterday's game at Boyden. UMass walloped the Big Green, 8-0.

The score at half-time was 4-0 UMass.

Throughout the game, coach Banda shouted, "Talk, talk to each other." After the game, he said the team has had a problem communicating with each other on the field.

"Everytime we talked to each other, we played comfortable, when we didn't talk, no one knew who or where to pass to," said Banda. The coach saw improvement on this part of the game in the second half and will stress it in future games.

The score would have been higher had not Dartmouth had in Estey Tichnor in goal. The tall and rangy goalie stopped several point blank shots and put in a great effort throughout the first half. The UMass players were swarming in front of the net constantly, but Tichnor would not be intimidated. Banda said Tichnor was one of the toughest goalies that his team has faced all year.

In the second half, the Minutewomen displayed their long ball capabilities with three of the four goals coming from blasts 25 feet or more out.

Nina Holmstrom scored the first two goals of the second half by getting good position in front of the net. The second goal came on a corner kick by Debbie Harackiewicz. Harackiewicz rifled a shot at the goal which was slightly deflected by Holmstrom and past the Dartmouth goalie. The final two goals came from the long distance shots because the Dartmouth defense was collapsing around the goal.

Natalie Prosser scored her second goal of the game, and the seventh of the contest on a 25 foot blast that just cleared the Tichnor's fingers and under the crossbar. Nadia Komarowski got the last tally on a shot from 35-40 feet out, on a fading hit that was high and just inside the post. Debbie Pickett and Lori Stukes assisted on the final two goals, respectively.

Ruggers top BC

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Correspondent

Things did not look too promising for the UMass A and B side rugby teams this past weekend at Boston College. Before they came back to win, they both trailed and played somewhat below par.

The B, 5-0-1, side started off the afternoons playing tough. The B's backfield also made the first half memorable because they couldn'g get a handle on the ball. BC had no real scoring opportunities in the first half.

After a scoreless opening forty minutes, BC opened the scoring in the second half when Rick Clott stepped in front of a UMass toss and carried the ball untouched into the end zone. The conversion was wide of the mark. The score seemed to wake up the B's to the fact that they were trailing, with only twenty minutes to play. The action was soon contained in the BC end of the field. Mark Sullivan led the attack, shutting off three BC rushes.

Fullback Bruce Cooper and Pat Sabbs tied the score up when they combined on the equalizer. Sabbs was tackled near the BC goal line and as Cooper came up from behind to take the ball, Cooper was tackled, but before he hit the ground, Sabbs pushed him and the ball over the line.

With time running out, the tie became a memory. Simon Bunce had control of the ball with seconds left and dished the ball off to Mike Holmes, who skipped into the end zone as time expired. Bunce made the conversion for the final 10-4 score. Lacking the necessary intensity early in their game the A side fell behind 11-0. BC was moving the ball close to the try area, and UMass just held tight with a few feet to spare. The first of George Economou's three trys and a Joe Kennedy conversion made the score 11-6.

The A's, now 5-1, moved out to a 19-11 advantage before BC scored a try and a kick to pull within two at 19-17. UMass forwards Stefan Rutherford, Al Wojo, and Dave Dzlewski, filling in for the injured Craig Ahrens, stopped the BC rushers and held onto their two point lead until the final whistle.

Collegian Player-of-the-Game

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Staff

During last Saturday's University of Massachusetts' 42-24 loss to the University of Maine, many big plays were made by players on both teams, especially during the first half when the contest was still in doubt.

However, as far as UMass is concerned, no play was bigger than Rich Jenkins' 97-yard kickoff return for a touchdown, which brought the Minutemen within seven points of Maine.

For this feat, Rich Jenkins is the recipient of this week's Collegian Player-of-the-Game award.

Jenkins' return was no fluke. He has been superlative on kickoffs all year, returning seven for 216 yards; an average of 30.8 yards per return.

The timing of Jenkins' touchdown run could not have been better. Maine had just taken a 21-7 lead and with the momentum and a capacity crowd behind them, the Black Bears seemed on the verge of breaking the game open.

It was at that point that Jenkins took the kickoff and ran through the heart of Maine's coverage, effectively silencing the crowd while keeping UMass in the game.

That return, tied for fifth longest in UMass history, clearly showcased the ability of Jenkins, who has been overshadowed most of his career at UMass by super-back Garry Pearson, who turned in another stellar performance Saturday.

Jenkins, who gained over 1000 yards and was All-Western Mass. as a high school senior at Springfield Cathedral, is a senior this year. However, due to an ankle injury in his sophomore year, Jenkins was redshirted. Therefore, he has one more season of football eligibility left. So, Minutemen fans, you may get to see this talented tailback for one more fall.

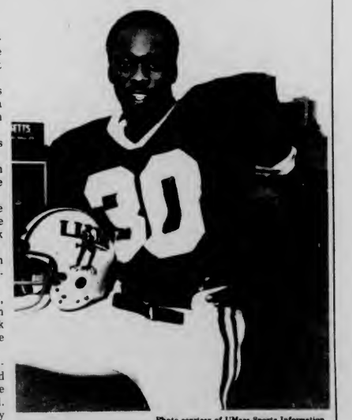

Photo courtesy of UMass Sports Information

Rich Jenkins

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 32 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, October 21, 1982

Photo by David Dreher

Visiting the valley from McLean Virginia, Bob Nealon, a Virginia Tech Graduate, catches the fall breeze with his sail to go windsurfing across the Connecticut River as the UMass crew team takes a more strenuous route up the river.

Campus Center vendor sues BOG claims civil rights violated

By DAVE SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student and flower vendor on the Campus Center concourse is taking legal action against the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) for what she claims to be various acts of discrimination.

Laura Gamer, a junior education major, said she is sueing John Furbish, vendor certification coordinator on the BOG for $1,200 charging Furbish and the BOG with violation of her civil rights and the illegal revocation of her vendor's license to sell flowers in the Campus Center.

"I have civil rights to be able to work. This is a privilege for everyone, but they have taken my privilege away," Gamer said. "I can barely pay for my education and selling flowers is the only way I can earn money. Why can other people work when I can't? It's just not fair."

"I acknowledge that I received a certified letter from Hampshire District court concerning a lawsuit against me that I regard as an action for punitive damages by Ms. Laura Gamer," said Furbish.

Gamer said she had a successful business in the past by selling low priced bunches of flowers as a convenience to the public. She had built up a good reputation around campus because she said none of the other vendors were as cordial to people as she was.

But last year Gamer claims the BOG "came down" on her personally and made several changes in policy that hurt the flower vendors in general. The BOG, she said, moved the flower people into the lowest vending category called priority 6A — a classification for full-time students selling manufactured goods. Under the 6A classification, a fee of $35.00 a day to rent table space, compared to $5 a day for priority 2 which the flower people were previously in, is required.

"This was a move designed to hurt the flower people because we were so successful. But they made it justifiable by including other vendors who sold bags and gloves," Gamer said. "This was obvious discrimination because shirts and jewelry were still priority two for crafts and we were priority 6A."

While she was fighting the priority issue, Gamer said the BOG revoked her vending license several times for having an invalid tax number. Gamer said they used this violation along with a petition signed by other vendors in the concourse who she said resented her complaints about the priorities, to revoke her license permanently.

"Scott Freedman, then vendor certification coordinator on the BOG said I could never sell flowers in the Campus Center for the rest of my collegiate career," Gamer said.

Gamer said she then appealed to Campus Center Director Bill Harris. "Bill Harris said I could sell in the fall of 1982," she said.

But this semester, Furbish went along with Scott Freedman's policies and denied her a vending license, she said.

'Jobs With Peace' may help economy

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Due to local efforts of Parents for Peace, referendum question 6 "Jobs with Peace" will appear on the Nov. 2 ballot in districts one and three, which include Amherst, Northampton and other area towns.

Jobs with Peace is a nationwide effort to obtain cuts in spending on nuclear weapons and foreign military intervention in order to make more jobs available.

"This is the very big question coming up. It addresses why we have such a horrible economy and no jobs," said Meg Simon, a member of Parents for Peace, which is sponsoring the referendum question in Hampshire County.

The referendum question reads: "Shall the representative from this district be instructed to vote in favor of a resolution calling on the U.S. Congress to make more funds available for equal opportunity jobs and programs in education, public transportation, energy efficient housing, health care, and other services and to obtain the funds by significantly reducing the amount spent on nuclear weapons and programs of foreign military intervention?"

Jobs with Peace has been on various city referenda for four years across the nation, Simon said. It will appear on ballots for 41 towns and cities in Massachusetts on November 2.

In order to get on the ballot, 200 signatures were needed and 500 were collected.

"We just stood out on the street with petitions. 90 percent of the people we approached said it was a good idea," she said.

"Students who vote yes are saying they want jobs and financial aid. Those voting no have decided they would rather live with bombs," she said. "Either they're saying they want wartime economy or they want a peacetime economy."

For every one job which will be created by tax dollars for missile production, four jobs could be created in Massachusetts for education for the same amount of money, she said.

"It's pretty amazing and people don't realize it," said Simon. "You can't ride a F-15 to work, you can't eat it. It just sits there."

Rent Control's pros and cons to be weighed

By TOM SEXTON
Collegian Correspondent

The controversial subject of rent control will be the subject of an Amherst town meeting this spring. Tenants believe the issue is of supreme importance during the current recession. Naturally, landlords don't agree with their tenants on this case.

Rent Control Article 70 defines rent control as "a method of regulating the maximum reasonable amount of rent tenants may pay while insuring a reasonable profit for the landlords based on their costs."

Amherst has the option, as do all cities and towns in Massachusetts, of enacting a rent control board.

The board, said Joanne Levenson, coordinator of the Off Campus Housing Office and member of the Community Coalition for Rent Control, would be made up of five members from the town of Amherst either elected or appointed by the board of selectmen.

She said each rental unit or complex would be reviewed separately by the board which would then establish maximum rents and increases. Their decisions would be based on how old the unit is, the level of maintenance and improvements that have been made.

"It's important to determine whether the improvements are capital, increasing the unit's value, or just routine maintenance," Levenson said. "I can categorically say that landlords have been lying about expenses and improvements.

"Rent has increased an average of 15 percent this fall and some (rents) on D.H. Jones' property, for example, has increased 30 percent. These increases have forced low income families out of Amherst and into surrounding communities, allowing them to raise their rents also," said Levenson.

Landlords know students will overcrowd in order to meet rising costs, she said.

Arguing rent increases are a necessity, Denison W. Jones, owner of D.H. Jones Real Estate Agency said, "Joanne Levenson is being mean to us when she says 'D.H. Jones has gone up 30 percent.' Now it's true that some of our units have gone up that much, but only on new purchases."

Jones said because of higher mortgage rates on new purchases, rents must be increased in order to make a profit.

"In Mill Hollow we raised some apartments by 33 percent, but only on new people coming in. We only hit the old tenants for 10 percent," he said.

Jones said he "hasn't seen that much overcrowding," and added, "There are 150 vacancies in Amherst right now" because "the kids are teaming up."

As a realtor, Jones said he doesn't like the idea of controls placed on his business.

He speculates that rent control will not pass "because the homeowners have woken up. Rent control would decrease the value of rental property, lowering the taxes landlords would have to pay. The homeowners would have to take up the slack."

When asked why rent control would lower property value, Jones said, "Everyone agrees that rent control lowers property value. That's just the way it works. The town assessor will tell you that."

"Basically, if rent goes down, valuation goes down because valuation of rental property is based on income," said Robert Anderson, Amherst town assessor.

However, Amherst Selectman Richard Minear said, "If rents were frozen it would result in the landlords paying less taxes. But if the board established percentage increases in rents, the tax base wouldn't be affected."

A chart contained in literature published by the Community Coalition for Rent Control, a local pro-rent control group, supports Minear's position.

The chart lists five cities — Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Lynn and Somerville — where the tax rate increased an average of $40 over a five year period following the implementation of rent control.

"There's no evidence that rent control affects a city's tax rate," Levenson said.

The Student Rent Control Network, a coalition of Recognized Student Organization (RSO) groups coordinated by the Off Campus Housing Office, has been formed to publicize the housing crisis.

Levenson said of the Rent Control Network: "They're trying to show students they can work within the structure of town government."

To counter efforts of pro-rent control groups, Jones said landlords are "trying to keep the rents down. The prices won't go up next year in my opinion."

World and national news

Thousands of Poles protest unionist's death

AP Laserphoto

A youth holding a Solidarity banner spattered with paint to symbolize blood was among the thousands of Polish mourners who gathered in Nowa Huta, Poland yesterday at the funeral of Bogdan Wlosik, killed during a police riot set off by a government ban on the independent Solidarity union.

NOWA HUTA, Poland (AP) — Marching slowly to Chopin's funeral dirge under banners declaring "Solidarity Lives," thousands of angry and despairing Poles yesterday buried a yound unionist killed by police in riots set off by a government ban on the independent union.

Hundreds of riot police backed by helmeted paratroopers kept a tight grip on Nowa Huta to prevent new unrest as an estimated 10,000 mourners and at least 21 Roman Catholic priests left the funeral of 20-year-old Bogdan Wlosik.

"My son, oh my son," cried Irena Wlosik as she threw herself twice onto her son's coffin. Her husband Jozef and their daughter Malgorzata wept as the coffin was lowered slowly into the ground by friends.

"My son, sleep calmly in our Polish earth on which you were not permitted to live in peace," said a banner on one of about 60 wreaths placed amid flowers piled over six feet high on Wlosik's grave.

Wlosik was killed by a plainclothes policeman during riots Oct. 15 sparked by the outlawing of Solidarity on Oct. 8. He was the 15th Pole killed in demonstrations since authorities imposed martial law Dec. 13 and suspended Solidarity, the first union in the Soviet bloc free of Communist Party control.

"We shall avenge you," was scrawled on one of several black-bordered funeral notices appearing around the city announcing the burial.

The official PAP news agency carried a one-paragraph item on the funeral and said it was attended by his family and fellow workers from the Lenin steelworks.

"They have turned a blind eye," said one of many workers who showed up in grimy work clothes and removed their hard hats before entering the cemetery. The worker said factory of

"They have turned a blind eye," said one of many workers who showed up in grimy work clothes and removed their hard hats before entering the cemetery. The worker said factory officials knew men were leaving the plant to attend the funeral during working hours.

"We would rather launch a new strike Nov. 10 to mark the anniversary of court registration of Solidarity," one worker said, referring to the four-hour nationwide strike called for by the union's fugitive underground leaders.

"It should be done in every factory in Krakow because scattered protests gain nothing," the worker added.

Farmers are granted cheaper loans

CHAPIN, Ill. (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning across economically distressed sections of the Midwest, chose the occasion yesterday to deliver some pre-election help to farmers.

At a 2,000-acre farm owned by the Illinois agriculture director, the president announced a reduction in federal loan rates for farmers and new credits to spur agricultural exports.

Even though the announcements came less than two weeks before the Nov. 2 election, hite House officials insisted they were not politically motivated.

Reagan said Farmer Home Administration loan rates will be reduced to 11.5 percent, from 13.25 percent, and that the government will make $100 million available in credits — at zero interest — to promote agricuttural exports.

The $100 million will be "blended" with $400 million in guaranteed credits already authorized at regular commercial rates, he said.

Five towns ban Halloween in response to Tylenol scare

Children in at least five Massachusetts communities will not be allowed on the streets for trick or treating Halloween night as municipal officials hope to avoid problems similar to the seven Tylenol deaths in Illinois.

"Our concern is for the youngsters," Palmer Police Chief Harold L. Olson said yesterday after the town's selectmen voted unanimously to ban Halloween begging. "It's not to punish the kids."

Palmer in the western part of the state, Fitchburg in north-central Massachusetts, Metheun in the northeast and Dudley and Holland located 15 miles apart along the Connecticut border have voted trick-or-treat bans.

New Bedford city councilors were scheduled to consider a ban at their Oct. 28 meeting. The Fitchburg resolution, approved Tuesday night by a 9-1 City Council vote, reads in part:

"Whereas the recent rash of incidents across the country resulting in many deaths has a great many people upset and terrified and the safety of our children at stake ... be it resolved ... that the Halloween event commonly known as trick or treat be banned in its entirety from the city of Fitchburg."

"It's like banning Santa Claus but keeping Christmas," Fitchburg City Council President Bernard Chartrand said.

The dissenting vote was cast by councilor John Naylor.

"I just can't vote for that," he said. "Who's going to put the parties on? Who's going to take care of the kids? Kids look forward to that begging."

Shamie rips Kennedy again; says business is suffering

BROCKTON — Republican senatorial candidate Raymond Shamie charged yesterday that in 20 years in the Senate, Democrat Edward M. Kennedy has done little to encourage business to create new jobs and aid the economy.

Shamie, a self-made millionnaire businessman, said his experience has made him better equipped than Kennedy to help generate private industry jobs and help the plight of poor people.

"He keeps the poor poor. That's not my idea," Shamie told a friendly audience of about 50 businessmen at a Greater Brockton Chamber of Commerce luncheon. "I want to help the poor out of poverty, become independent, selfreliant people.

"You would think any legislator would bend over backwards to make creative, useful jobs."

But the National Federation of Independent Businesses rated Kennedy last of the 100 members of the Senate on business votes, he said.

Meanwhile, Kennedy received the endorsement of several Massachusetts district attorneys yesterday in a ceremony at the Suffolk County Courthouse.

Digest

By the Associated Press

AP Laserphoto

It was business as usual for postman Stacy Snetsinger last Tuesday, despite the snowstorm that swept through Sioux Falls, S.D. where he continued to make his rounds.

Psychologist sent to prison in welfare department fraud

BOSTON — A West Springfield psychologist has been sentenced to Walpole State Prison in what authorities call the biggest Medicaid fraud in Massachusetts history.

Dr. Irwin L. Klepper, 39, was charged with bilking the state welfare department out of half a million dollars in fraudulent claims during a 13-month period between October 1980 and November 1981. He pleaded guilty to charges of larceny and conspiracy to commit larceny before Suffolk Superior Judge Paul Connolly and was sentenced yesterday to four to five years in prison.

Klepper, a clinical psychologist with an office in the Springfield suburb of East Longmeadow, was accused of defrauding the state of $510,883 for six-hour psychological and vocational tests he never performed.

Grassroots freeze campaign has no organized opposition

BOSTON — Although there is no organized opposition to a Nov. 2 referendum question supporting a nuclear weapons freeze, supporters are waging a statewide grass roots campaign in favor of it.

Ken Brociner, spokesman for the Massachusetts Nuclear Weapons Freeze Referendum Committee, said freeze groups throughout the state are distributing literature, appearing on radio talk shows and getting interviewed by newspaper and television reporters.

The 115 local freeze groups also plan an intensive campaign for Oct. 31, the Sunday before election day, Brociner said. The activities will include sermons in churches where ministers back the freeze and widespread distribution of profreeze literature.

On election day, freeze supporters will continue to pass out literature and urge support for the ballot question, he said.

Brociner said the campaign is being helped by the support of other statewide organizations, such as the Massachusetts Council of Churches, the consumer group Massachusetts Fair Share and several labor unions.

"We have the support of many, many organizations throughout the state," he said.

Brociner said the Massachusetts effort is only a part of a nationwide campaign to limit the production of nuclear weapons.

"On Nov. 2, over 25 percent of the nation's electorate will have a chance to vote on a freeze, making it the closest thing to a national referendum we've ever had," he said.

The other states where the freeze is on the ballot are Arizona, California, Oregon, Michigan, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Montana and North Dakota.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Diane Kadzis
Copy Editor — Rich Nangle
Layout Technician — Ed Levine
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Composition — Jenny Winslow, Annie Gardner, Andrea Repass, Marianne Walsh, Sheryl Silver, Gail Tanzer, Adrianne Dufour, Laurie Frank, Scott Stockwell, Joy McCarthy, Jamie Katz, Sue Hawkins, Lisa Jalbert

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

Senate endorses Olver; SGA President Murphy praises the incumbent

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

An endorsement for Senator John D. Olver, D-Amherst, in the upcoming state elections was passed by nearly a three-fifths vote by the Undergraduate Student Senate at last night's meeting.

Olver, running against Republican James Tripp, has "consistently supported student interests," said senate Speaker Sharon Davies.

"The thing that hurts us most in lobbying efforts is the perception that we don't care. People really should think about endorsing Olver not only for what he's done, but as a practical necessity for the students we represent," said Student Government Association (SGA) President Jim Murphy.

Some members of the senate opposed the motion as they said issues, not political candidates, should be supported by the students. A counter-amendment was proposed to simply thank Olver for his efforts supporting higher education, but was voted down by a majority of the group.

Senator Quentin Donohue also proposed waiting a week to vote on the motion, saying time was needed to analyze both candidates and make a fair decision.

"Senator Olver has come a number of times to speak to us," Davies said. With the election this close, if he (Tripp) had a great commitment he should have come to campus."

Murphy agreed, saying Tripp had not "set foot on campus," and that he would have if the candidate had any interest in higher education, because the University of Massachusetts is the largest voting group in the district.

Treasurer Lisa Potter said the issue at stake was not a question of what the candidates actually stand for, but that a body such as the senate should not be endorsing candidates for state senate.

"It's like the state legislature endorsing a candidate for Congress," she said.

Other business at the meeting included a report by Murphy, including a statement on the Sexual Harrassment Grievance Procedure, which is before the Faculty Senate this afternoon.

"I'd say that it will pass. However, nothing is guaranteed and I urge all who can make it to come and show support," he said.

Murphy also discussed the recent decision by the Board of Regents ordering each public college and university to decide on admissions standards based "almost exclusively" on Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores and class rank.

"Something is going on right now however," Murphy said, "and the admissions office was going to give us a little more flexibility."

The major argument against the Regents' order was problems in school systems like Boston's would tend to discriminate against poor and minority students.

Potter also gave the senate a financial statement of the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) as of Oct. 12, listing revenue as $1,312,920 and expenses as $796,386. In addition, she delivered an update on the investment account, through which the senate invested in a certificate of deposit providing interest for use by student groups.

"We had $10,000 free cash last year to lend to students," she said.

Half of the amount goes toward capital equipment grants, and half of it may be allocated to student groups by a two-thirds vote of the senate.

Collegian Photo by Drew Ogier

Kathy Bruce, a sophomore CASIAC major, looks out to the surrounding mountains from the top of a dirt mound behind Southwest.

UMassPIRG fights to avoid bottle bill repeal

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (Mass PIRG) is heading into the homestretch of the race to save the proposed Bottle Bill with both optimism and apprehension.

The bill, which is strongly being opposed by bottling companies and supermarkets, appears on the Nov. 2 election ballot as referendum question four.

The Bottle Bill has been defeated several times over the past seven years, primarily due to heavy anti-bill campaigning by bottling companies. Lisa DeCarolis, chairperson of UMass PIRG, said unless MassPIRG works "extra hard," the companies may again be successful.

MassPIRG is pulling out all the stops in one final attempt to gain public support for the controversial bill.

DeCarolis said the drive to save the bottle bill over the next two weeks will only be successful if the group continues to maintain the determination it has shown over the last 10 years fighting the opponents of the bill.

"In the next few weeks, everywhere we turn we will be seeing the media blitz. The industries have waited until now to start their advertising and in the next two weeks, they will be everywhere," she said.

On Tuesday, UMassPIRG held its final meeting before the November elections, and DeCarolis urged the members in attendence to campaign harder than ever.

At the meeting, the group outlined its strategy for the next two weeks. As in the past, visibility will be the groups major goal, said DeCarolis.

"This weekend MassPIRG will be handing out leaflets door to door across the state. We hope to pass out close to one million leaflets," she said. "It has proven to be an extremely effective way of reaching people."

Grocery and liquor stores have already started distributing anti-Bottle Bill literature. These stores are spending a great deal of money on anti-bill measures. DeCarolis said MassPIRG's major problem is that the group does not have the money the bottle industry does.

"Our aim isn't so much to combat their leaflets, but rather it is to show how inappropriate it is for them to spend the consumer's money for these (leaflets) rather than to lower prices," she said.

UMassPIRG will be going around to area stores asking the small business owners to put up pro-bottle bill signs in their front windows, she said.

As has been the case in the past, DeCarolis said MassPIRG's biggest obstacle in fighting the industries against the bottle bill, is the lack of money to successfully wage a campaign that is equal to, or better than, the bottling industry's campaign.

"The industries have an awful lot of money to spend," she said. "They haven't spent it yet, but in the next two weeks everywhere you turn you will see a lot of anti bottle bill stuff."

In one final attempt at raising money, MassPIRG is holding a very unique raffle. MassPIRG volunteers are selling $1 raffle tickets. The person who guesses nearest the actual amount of votes the Bottle Bill will get in the election may win a color television or a complete camping gear set, she said.

MassPIRG will also spend much of the time remaining before the election in telephoning past, present and potential supporters of the Bottle Bill.

"It is extremely important that we contact every person who has shown the least bit of interest in the Bottle Bill," she said.

Collegian Photo by Drew Ogier

The assortment of plants housed in one of Smith College's green houses provides Jenny Park, a UMass graduate candidate for a masters of fine arts, with a green way of seeing things.

Crusader for a United Ireland to speak Monday in SUB

By BRIAN K. SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Bernadette Devline McAliskey, the highly visible crusader for a united Ireland, will be speaking at noon on Monday in the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts.

McAliskey, who has been involved in the modern Irish civil rights movement since it began in 1968, will concentrate the main part of her speech on basic human rights, said Eillen Small, representative for the Irish Solidarity Committee (ISC) based here at UMass.

"Human rights is a universal issue which should concern all people," Small said. "This speech is not just for Irish Americans, but everyone concerned about the issue."

Small said she expects McAliskey to present her views on the cause of the trouble in Ulster and possible solutions to those problems.

McAliskey presently serves as Press Relations Officer of the National H-Block/Armagh Committee. The Committee is a coalition formed to support the demands of political prisoners held by the English in Ulster.

McAliskey and her husband escaped death in 1981 when they were severely wounded in a botched assassination attempt by pro-British gunmen.

In 1979, McAliskey ran for the European parliament. Her campaign was based on the British occupation of Northern Ireland which she labeled imperialistic and she called for the immediate release of all political prisoners held by Great Britain.

McAliskey first became involved in the Irish civil rights movement when she was a student at Queen's University at Belfast in 1968. In 1969 she was elected to the British Parliament from mid-Ulster. She continued to serve as a Member of Parliament until 1974.

Devline McAliskey will be brought to campus by the ISC and the Radical Student Union, Small said. Small said financial support has been provided by many of the area governments and other student organizations on campus.

The ISC, a student group formed at UMass five years ago by Mairead Casey, a teachers aid working in Amherst and an Irish citizen, and Bill Dorris, a former professor at UMass, has not yet attained RSO status and has had to rely on the Radical Student Union for sponsership and support for Monday's speech.

To Enter: Use Official Form and Call Toll Free 800-223-1177*
for Questions about Cuervo Tequila. Answers appear on bottle back label.
*In New York State 800-442-3550

Grand Prize: Private jet transportation to and from any continental U.S.A. destination for 6 people. Includes lodging, food and $2,500 expense money.
10 2nd Prizes: 3-piece sets of Hartmann luggage.
100 3rd Prizes: Designer one-piece "Cuervo Party Line" telephones.
200 4th Prizes: Duffle-style tote bags.
1,000 5th Prizes: Leather luggage tags with gold Cuervo imprint.

Offer expires Dec. 31, 1982
JOSE CUERVO TEQUILA SWEEPSTAKES OFFICIAL RULES
No Purchase Necessary

1. To enter, use the official entry form and call toll free 800 223-1177 (in New York State call 800 442-3550). You'll hear a recorded message with three questions about Jose Cuervo. To answer the questions, simply pick up a bottle and look at the label.
2. Print your answers along with your complete name and address on the official entry blank or a 3" x 5" piece of paper and mail to:
Jose Cuervo Tequila Sweepstakes
P.O. Box 24 New York, New York 10046
Each entry must be mailed separately and no mechanically reproduced entries will be accepted. All entries must be received by December 31, 1982.
3. Winners will be selected in random drawings from all entries with the correct answer by Marden-Kane, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Winners will be notified by mail. Taxes are the sole responsibility of the winners. Only one prize per household will be awarded. All prizes will be awarded and the odds of winning are dependent upon the number of entries received. The Grand Prize winner will be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release which must be returned to Marden-Kane within 14 days of date of mailing. Winners grant permission for use of their name, city and state and photograph for advertising and promotional purposes without compensation.
4. Sweepstakes is open to all U.S. residents who are of legal drinking age under the laws of their home state, except employees and their immediate families of Heublein, Inc., its affiliates, home state, except employees and their immediate families of Heublein, Inc., its affiliates, subsidiaries, retailers, distributors, advertising agencies, promotion agency and Marden-Kane, Inc. Void where prohibited by law. All federal, State and local regulations apply.
5. Prize Structure: (1) Grand Prize: All expense paid vacation for you and five friends anywhere in the U.S.A. Trip includes air transportation to and from your destination and private air hotel accommodations and means up to $15,000 or you may take the $15,000 cash. (10) 2nd Prizes of 3 piece Hartmann Luggage sets, (100) 3rd Prizes of a Designer Compact Telephone, (200) 4th prizes of a Jose Cuervo Tote Bag and (1,000) 5th Prizes of Jose Cuervo Luggage Tags. Except for Grand Prize, no prize substitutions permitted nor are they transferable.
6. For a list of the Grand Prize and 2nd prize winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Jose Cuervo Winners, P.O. Box 319, New York, New York 10046.
7. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.

Cuervo Especial® Tequila, 80 proof. © 1982, Heublein, Inc., Hartford, Conn.

JOSE CUERVO® TEQUILA OFFICIAL ENTRY FORM
Here's how to enter the Ultimate Vacation Sweepstakes. Call our special toll-free telephone number, 800 223-1177 (New York State residents call toll-free 800-442-3550) to obtain the three sweepstakes qualifying questions. Answers to the questions can be found on Jose Cuervo® Tequila bottle labels. Print your answers in the appropriate spaces below.

ANSWER #1
ANSWER #2
ANSWER #3
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Mail your completed entry to: Jose Cuervo® Tequila Ultimate Vacation Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 24, New York, NY 10046. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

PI SIGMA ALPHA — POLITICAL SCIENCE HONORS — There will be an introductory meeting for all students interested in joining Pi Sigma Alpha — the National Political Science Honors Society. Requirements are: 3.0 overall cum; 3.2 Political Science cum; and 3 Political Science courses. 4 p.m. 168 Campus Center.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS — Constituencies — Fill your membership slots on the B.O.G. so that your area government is represented when discussing Textbook Annex issues. Make sure your area government attends this meeting. 6 p.m. 804 Campus Center.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL — Halloween planning now in progress. All sisters and pledges are urged to attend on a regular basis. These meetings are fun, relaxing and informative. Refreshments provided. 6:30 p.m. Iota Gamma Upsilon.

WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM MEETING — The Women's Issues Team will be meeting to continue future plans and discussion of issues concerning women. 6:30 p.m. 902 Campus Center.

SAI MEETING — An action-oriented group doing the important work of bringing Israel's case to the campus. 6:30 p.m. Dukes Room, Student Union Building.

UMASS SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB — First jump course. Bring $85 for the class that night. For more info call 545-0829 or stop by the office Rm. 309 S.U.B. 7 p.m.

MIDDLE EAST FORUM — Lebanon and Prospects for Israeli-Palestinian Peace: How Can Self-Determination for Jews and Palestinian Arabs Be Achieved? 7:30 p.m., Room 168 Campus Center.

Register at James H. McManus for WHMP's
Jamaica Holiday Give-a-way
Celebrating National Restaurant Month
You could be the winner of dinner for 2 at James H. McManus or YOU could win the Grand Prize of
One Week Paid Vacation in Sunny Jamaica
BREAKFAST SPECIAL — Valuable Coupon
2 EGGS, 2 PANCAKES, 2 STRIPS BACON, 2 LINKS SAUSAGE
Reg. $2.55 — With This Coupon 2 For $3.25
Please present coupon when ordering.
SERVED ALL DAY ANYTIME
Coupon Expires Nov. 8, 1982
James H. McManus eating place
HOURS: OPEN 24 HOURS Fri. & Sat. Sun. thru Thurs. 7 a.m.-9 p.m.
CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-6889 STOP & SHOP
Senior Citizen Discounts 2-5 p.m. 20% All other times 10% Does not apply to specials.

A Talk By
Bernadette Devlin McAliskey
on
Human Rights in Ireland
Mon. Oct. 25
12:00 Noon
Student Union Ballroom
Sponsored by:
Irish Solidarity Committee
Radical Student Union
UMass Student Senate
Graduate Student Senate
Newman Club
Southwest Area Govt
Commuter Collective
partial list

The rusty nail Inn presents
Thurs. Oct. 21 B. Willie Smith
Fri. Oct. 22 The Stompers
Sat. Oct. 23 The Busboys & The Neighborhoods
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

FAC Rand Theatre mural an attention grabber

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Correspondent

The striking mural hanging on the Fine Art Center's south wall and the enormous puppet overlooking the Campus Pond have not been hung for visual pleasure only. Both have been strategically placed to publicize the Rand Theater and its productions.

The promotional campaign at the Fine Arts Center is "an effort to get students into the (Rand) theatre," said David Knauf, director of publicity for the Rand Theatre.

While about 400 of the theatre's 600 seats are filled at any given performance, only about one quarter of the audience are students, Knauf said. The publicity is to encourage students to experience "live theatre," he said.

Two productions currently underway are "Vanities" and "Dark of the Moon." Both will open within the next two weeks, and will be performed alternately through the end of November.

Auditions for the two plays were held during the first week of the semester and were open to actors from both the Five College Area and the community.

A "cross section" of actors representing varying degrees of experience are included in the cast, said Harry Mahnken, chairman of the Theatre Department and director of "Dark of the Moon."

Rehearsals run between three and four hours a night, six nights a week, said Knauf, also director of "Vanities." About five weeks have been spent preparing the plays, and rehearsals will continue throughout the performance period.

Students interviewed, however, did not find the time commitment a problem. "You have to rearrange your schedule," said Laureen Kapir, a sophomore english major appearing in "Dark of the Moon." "It's worth it," she added, calling participation in the play a "challenging and fulfilling" experience.

Competition was rough for roles in the two upcoming plays. Over a hundred women auditioned for the three parts in "Vanities", while 200 to 300 people tried out for the 26 roles in "Dark of the Moon."

"Auditions are what you make of them — (in this case,) very competitive, but not hard," said Bob Walker, 20, a junior theatre major also in "Dark of the Moon." Performing in the play "Is a good way to meet people," he said, mentioning "exposure" and "good experience" as additional benefits.

Opportunities exist for stage design as well as acting in the theatre. "You can do (almost) anything," Knauf said.

Rand Theatre productions are usually directed by theatre department staff, Knauf said, although occasionally professionals are hired. Plays are funded by ticket sales and a portion of the theatre department's budget, he said.

The theatre department also offers a "studio series," performed in the Curtain Theatre which seats 100. "Joe Egg," the next piece to be performed there, will be having auditions Sunday, Oct. 31 and Monday, Nov. 1.

People who want sporting fun play frisbee

Collegian Photo by Kevin Fachetti
UMass student Johanna Linnehan flings a frisbee up on Orchard Hill.

By BILL THOMAS
Collegian Correspondent

The existence of three frisbee classes, two ultimate frisbee teams and an 18 team intramural league at the University of Massachusetts is indicative of the growing popularity of the sport of frisbee. The sport is beginning to earn some respect.

Jeremy Seeger, a sophomore frisbee instructor and member of UMass ultimate frisbee team Zoo Disc, said "Its (frisbee's) image used to be that of a party or a beach sport. But I think a new breed of athlete is getting into it now and the intensity, quality and competition of the game has improved immensely over the past four or five years."

Seeger said the philosophical approach of those who participate in the sport of frisbee is unique. "For example, all the players make their own foul calls. It's a gentleman's game but as the competition increases, it's getting much harder to settle disputes this way," he said. "Arguments break out and sometimes it becomes no fun to watch or play."

Andy Meffen, supervisor of officials for the UMass intramural program, said of the intramural ultimate frisbee program: "It's the most relaxed intramural team sport that I've seen. The players are out there having a good time — it's not as cut-throat as football."

In addition to the unique philosophical approach to the game, the disc itself sets the sport apart from more conventional games.

"In most sports the object is a round ball which can't do nearly as much as a frisbee can do," said Seeger. "They (frisbees) do different things for sure. A frisbee can bounce on air, float, curve, hover. It's much easier to catch than a round ball. That makes it easier to dive for the frisbee. Those are unique aspects of the sport."

Seeger, who came to UMass from Manhattan partly because its frisbee team is "one of the top four in the region," instructs a class in Boyden Gymnasium in which himself and fellow ZooDisc member Kenneth Boardman instruct 25 students in basic throws before moving on to frisbee golf, ultimate frisbee and freestyle techniques.

Andy's Pizza Restaurant
Beer & Wine

Grand Opening Special
* $2.00 pitchers *
* Complimentary glass of wine or soda *
The Best Pizza in Town
Variety of Salads, Grinders, & Dinner
TAKE OUT SERVICE
Open Daily 10 - 1:30 AM
Located at 175 University Drive
(next to Stadium Liquors)
256-8147

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, OCT. 23
100% COTTON
TURTLENECKS
in a dozen dazzling colors
REG. 8.95
SAT. ONLY
6.95
3 FOR 19.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

THE LANDING ZONE
"A Geniune Army/Navy Store"

Nylon Oxford
Reg. $29.95 less 30%
$20.95

Nylon Oxford
Reg. $15.95 less 50%
$7.95

Fanny Pack convertible to Day Pack Two-in-One
Reg. $15.95 less 10%
$14.40

We are pleased to introduce a line of imported quality packs made exclusively for the Landing Zone. Choose from 52 different styles including bike packs, children's packs, child carriers & ski cases in over a dozen colors. Many available in Cordura, heavy water-proof nylon. All at special 10-50% savings!!!

Nylon Oxford
Reg. 39.95 less 35%
$25.95

Frame Pack with convertible Seat Reg. $54.95 less 20%
$43.95

11 Chapman St., Greenfield, MA 774-3472
25 King St., Northampton, MA 584-1373

Remember . . .
When patronizing our advertisers, make sure you tell them you saw their ads in the Collegian.

NORTH AMHERST
TIRE & AUTO CENTER

WITH THIS AD
POLYESTER BLACKWALL
$26.95
Size A78-13 FET $1.59
A FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE
• COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
• FRONT END ALIGNMENT
• BRAKES & SHOCKS
VISA MC 78 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST 5494704
ACROSS FROM WATKINS STORE

This book could stop the drift to self-destruction.

"Timely and eloquent...challenges both the politics and the psychology of the nuclear arms race." —Ronald Steel

"This book should be read by all those who wish to involve themselves in a struggle to prevent a nuclear holocaust." —John Mack, M.D.

INDEFENSIBLE WEAPONS
The Political and Psychological Case Against Nuclearism
Robert Jay Lifton and Richard Falk
$6.95 paperback

Now available in paperback:

HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI
The Physical, Medical, and Social Effects of the Atomic Bombings
The Committee for the Compilation of Materials on Damage Caused by the Atomic Bombs in Hiroshima and Nagasaki $15.95

DEATH IN LIFE
Survivors of Hiroshima
Robert Jay Lifton $7.50

At your college bookstore
BASIC BOOKS, INC. 10 East 53rd Street New York 10022

Please! Recycle this Collegian.

Thurs.
Joey D's
9-11:30
Ladies Nite.
60¢
Drinks for all the ladies.
No Cover.
Relaxed Dress Code

SAVE $1.00
with coupon

Reg. $4.50
8½ oz. wine glass w/multi colored seal
Coupon valid thru Nov. 1, 1982

$1.00 off Bring Me Back To University Store Campus Center $1.00 off
Reg. $4.50 8½ oz. wine glass w/multi colored seal quantity — valid thru Nov. 1, 1982
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

THURSDAY
ROCK NIGHT
with
Al Stoner
2 for 1 all liquor drinks
9 til 11
no cover charge
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

LODESTONE
13 North Pleasant St
Amherst, Massachusetts
256-0591

The Lodestone and John Dellaria Salon request the pleasure of your company at its Annual Holiday Fashion Collaborative on Monday, October 25, 1982 8:30 P.M. at Hanger I Route 9 Hadley, Massachusetts
$3.00

JOHN DELLARIA SALON
26 MAIN ST., AMHERST MASSACHUSETTS
253-9271

Newslines . . .

Kennedy to appear at Smith at Oxfam-America conference

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will be in Northampton at 4 p.m., Monday October 25, at Sage Hall, Smith College as part of the Northampton conference on World Hunger.

The conference was organized with the cooperation of Oxfam-America and will be co-chaired by Northampton Mayor David B. Musante, D, and Jill K. Conway, president of Smith College.

Director of Policy Analysis for Oxfam-America, Larry Simon will be speaking on "The United States' Role in World Development," at 7:15 p.m. in McConnell Hall Auditorium.

The conference and speakers will be open to the public.

Cambridge history professor speaks tonight in Herter Hall

Dr. Mary Hesse will speak on the subject of "Science, Metaphor and the Construction of Reality" at 8 p.m. Nov. 8 in Herter Hall room 231 at the University of Massachusetts.

Hess is a professor of history and philosopher of science at Cambridge University and is a fellow of the British Academy. She is known for her studies in history and on the concepts of physics.

The lecture is sponsored by the Institute for the Advanced Study in the Humanities and is free and open to the public.

'Lou Salome Reconsidered' at Mount Holyoke tonight

The lecture: "Lou Salome Reconsidered: Feminist, Femme Fatale, and Friend to Freud, Nietzsche, and Rilke" will be presented by Professor Rudolph Binion of Brandeis University and of the College de France (Sorbonne) from 4:45 to 6 p.m. today. The lecture will be held in the New York Room of Mary E. Woolley Hall at Mount Holyoke College.

Collegian Photo by Bryan Lashway

"The Silver Eagle," a hot air balloon navigated by an Amherst resident, rests on the grounds next to Alumni Stadium before being launched into flight.

Splish-Splashin' Fashion!
Women's Famous Name Waterproof Assortment
9.99 to 14.99
Compare at $17.95 to $23.95

Foul weather treats from a famous name we can't mention. Choose high or half boots with warm lining, or unlined step-ins. In a rainbow of bright colors. Women's sizes.

Tagway Shoes
Famous brand footwear for Less
Hampshire Mall
Holyoke Mall at Ingleside

Shop Downtown Amherst

Lap Desks
help you to study everywhere
only $14.95
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

OUR WEEKLY SPECIALS
WEDNESDAY • THURSDAY • FRIDAY • SATURDAY
DINNER for TWO 9.95
New York Top Choice Sirloin
Denver Style Barbeque Spare Ribs
Broiled Scrod, lemon butter
Served with tossed salad, potato or rice pilaf, rolls & butter, and a glass of rose, burgundy or chablis wine
Dinner 4:30-9:30
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St. AMHERST

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Friends and neighbors lend us your ears (and your stomach)!

The SUB would like to offer you a coupon special. Buy any two subs and get a third* absolutely FREE! This coupon is good from now thru Nov. 9, 1982, on any Sunday or Tuesday between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.
We hope to see you soon and don't forget to bring a friend.

FREE 1 FREE sub with a purchase of any two whole subs when purchased along with this coupon.
coupon good til November 9, 1982
any Sun. or Tues 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.
FREE
*Free cola or equal or less value than an equivalent sub item baked

There is only ONE
TIME OUT

Two TV's Come and Great Juke and Stereo

DOUBLE YOUR FUN
Amherst's Biggest Little Bar
37 N. Pleasant St, Amherst MA

Bart's ICE CREAM Corner
Homemade Ice Cream Emporium
NORTHAMPTON · Main & Masonic – AMHERST · Boltwood Walk
Fabulous Baked Goods · Breakfast

VALLEY BICYCLES
89 Main St
Amherst
256-0880
Behind the Cheese Shop & Valley Farms Dairy Store

Can you. . .
Fix a flat?
Oil your chain?
True your wheels?
Learn how to at our bicycle workshops.
Introductory & Sign Up Session
Free*Free
How to Fix a Flat Tire
Bring a flat if you have one. A review of preventive maintenance.

Monday Oct. 25	4-5 pm 6-7 pm	or	Tuesday Oct. 26	4-5 pm 6-7 pm

Sign up at this session for:
WORKSHOP A: Adjustments, riding technique, safety tips, maintenance through tune-up.
Meets 3 Tuesdays 6:30-8:30 Enrollment 6-8 Cost $18.
WORKSHOP B: Hands-on. Bring your own bike. Maintenance through over haul.
Meets 6 Wednesdays 6:30-8:30 Enrollment 4-5 Cost $44.
Everyone enrolled receives a 10% discount on all tools, parts & books purchased during the class.

SWEATER SALE!

• Ladies Crew Neck
$18.
•Men's Acrylic
$12.95
• Ragg Wool
reg $36 now $25

Saturday Clothes
(behind Silverscape) 266 N. Pleasant
9:30 - 6 Mon-Sat Fri till 9 pm

It All Happens . . . IN DOWNTOWN AMHERST

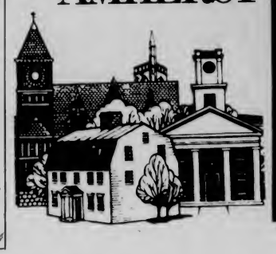
the month for opals is October. . . with colors as vivid as the Autumn
Fine jewelry set with Australian white and black opals. 14k gold and opal studs from $35.50
silverscape designs
264 n. pleasant st. amherst
253-3324



HALLOWEEN!
masks
make-up costumes
& more

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst

Amherst Carriage Shops

PETAL PUSHERS
NOW APPEARING
flowers, plants, fruit, vegetables, baked goods & gifts
BEST PRICES IN TOWN
Open Air Cart at
549-5841 We deliver Main & Pleasant

adventura travel
549-1256

Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

This Fall We've Got It All!
Great Prices Too!

Chinese Shoes
many styles and colors
$5.50 - $14.95

POSTERS
Largest Selection Ever

Bamboo BLINDS

BEDSPREADS
cover walls, furniture, windows

dozens and dozens print, stripe, solid

Rugs & Mats
colorful, durable

CARDS
over 1400 unusual designs

SKIRTS & BLOUSES
lots of comfortable cotton

Baskets

Imported Soaps
a real treat for your skin

BOXES & TINS
plain & fancy

Sterling Chains, Pendants, Lampshades, Earrings, Paper Mobiles, Candles

Daily 10 am - 6 pm
Use the BUS STOP our front
Great Gifts - Great Prices
Fri Night - 9 pm - Sunday 12 - 5 pm
MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

In the Amherst CARRIAGE SHOPS
OPEN 9 AM
549-6314

Quality Resale Clothing
ONCE MORE WITH FEELING
Carriage Shops 233 N. Pleasant
Amherst, MA 549-3772
Build your own
HALLOWEEN
Costumes

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Western allies pay unfair price

(Editors note — this is the second in a three part series which examines American foreign policy towards Russia and its development since the Second World War. Todays essay deals with Reagan's new policy and its effect on Allied relationships.)

President Reagan's new foreign policy towards Russia insists the free world will prevail over the Soviet Union. Along the way, though, it may seriously damage already touchy relations within the Western Alliance. In past policy, such as detente, relations between the Soviet Union and Western Europe prospered. With U.S. help and encouragement, West Europe moved closer to its monolithic, potentially threatening neighbor. By promoting this policy of detente, the U.S. also guaranteed itself a closer alliance with W. Europe, both economically and militarily. Our allies were more able to fully develop their market in the Soviet Union, taking advantage of thawing superpower relations to fully exploit the economic opportunities of increased East-West trade. Through the policy of detente all three partners prospered economically with the U.S. exporting large amounts of wheat, West Europe cashing in on the lack of a technilogical hardware in Russia, and the Soviets, in turn, planning on exporting large amounts of natural gas to Europe.

John F. Hudson

Unfortunately this bubble of sorts burst rather abruptly with President Reagan's announcement of his ban and sanction program against supplying companies for the Siberian-W.European natural gas pipeline. Though Reagan had been openly antagonistic towards the Soviets since taking office, he had held back from taking such drastic economic steps. In his view, though, this action was bound to force the Soviets to relieve martial-law torn Poland. Also he reasoned that some time in the future the Soviets could, theoretically, exert political pressure on West Europe by threatening to cut off the flow of natural gas. By carrying out this ban, Reagan has alienated the U.S. from its Allies and even further from Russia. The effects of this action and its obvious break from past U.S. policy are, in the end, far-reaching and detrimental to our own interests.

Militarily, the President's actions could not have come at a worse time. Beginning in 1983, the U.S. was to begin deployment of 108 Pershing II missiles and 464 cruise missiles in italy, Germany and Britain. Though these plans were having difficulty already, Reagan's sanctions hurt the chances for placement of the missiles even more. Tactically these missiles are of great importance in that the Soviets have over 650 missiles already in place on or near its borders with Western Europe. NATO's hope was that these allied missiles would act as a deterrent of sorts towards Soviet nuclear capabilities in the European theatre. Obviously, the chances for missile deployment by the U.S. have been significantly hurt by Reagan's decision to carry out sanctions against the West European companies who chose or were forced by there government to sell the parts for the pipeline to the Soviets.

On another level, NATO's long term stability and strength is threatened by the President's actions. In the past few years European governments have come under increasingly vocal attacks by opponents of U.S. defense presence in West Europe. Before the announcement of the ban this problem was serious, but workable — now it would seem Reagan has played directly into the hands of those who argue for the withdrawal of U.S. forces and weapons from West Europe.

The most obvious problem in Mr. Reagan's policy of prevailing is its unworkability of the allies are not willing to go along with it. How can European leaders deal on an equal level with the U.S.? While European companies are asked by the U.S. to sacrifice economic benefits, America pompously, and hypocritically, sells millions of tons of wheat to the Soviet Union without a second thought. Europeans must think President Reagan is either very unintelligent or very uncompassionate. When the support for the Western Alliance, and more specifically the U.S.'s role in it, is undermined by selfish policy and unequal sacrifice, how is the average West European to feel? America, on the one hand asks these people to stand side by side with them on the battle field but in the same breath insists they go without so the U.S. can "prevail". Once again Reagan's policy of prevailing ironically hurt its unintended victim, the Western Alliance, and therefore helped its intended victim, the Soviet Union. Tomorrow the U.S.'s new policy towards the Soviet Union will be examined within the context of the nuclear age as will its overall effect on future prospects for U.S.-Soviet relations.

John F. Hudson is the Collegian Assoc. Exec. Editor

Third party needed for US economy

Downtown Detroit is clean and modern. The Renaissance Center rises like a giant beehive into the sky. But try and find a place to eat on Sunday morning. You can't. This is not because people in Detroit do not like to eat out. It is because there is no money to eat out. Detroit is in the heart of the depression in this country. The official unemployment rate in Detroit is about 12 percent. The actual rate is much higher.

What is happening in Detroit is happening all over the country. Capital is fleeing the country and seeking cheaper labor markets and less restrictive business climates. The great mills and factories where thousands made their living are silent. In place of them we have automation, permanent unemployment and a growing service economy.

Brooke States

The Republicans claim that their programs will help get America moving again. But they have done nothing to halt the flight of industry, except to tell us that we must do with less to keep America working. In the long run this will not work. We cannot lower our standards to the wages that are being paid in other countries, and still exist. The Democrats say that the cheese lines of the Reagan administration are like the bread lines of the Hoover Presidency. This is true but beside the point. While they would keep many of the social programs, they would do little to remove the crushing burden of taxation on the middle and working class.

Both parties are operating on stale rhetoric and rusted ideas. It is time for warp speed and more power in the engine room. We need a viable national third party in this country.

Third parties have a long history in the United States. The Socialist Party was large enough during the early 1900s, up to 1920, to elect mayors and representatives in many cities. In the late 1800s the Populist Party and the Grange both had tremendous strength in the farm belts of the South and West.

For a third party to have any meaning it must grow in a grassroots way, and out of a major social issue. Barry Commoners Citizen Party was an attempt at that by using the anti-nuke issue as a jumping off point. A third party would also have to include a large chunk of the organized labor movement and Third World people. These are two of the groups most directly affected by Reagan's economic plans.

The third party must have the daring and imagination to put a program radically different than the other two platforms. The many different groups that have fought against Reagan on their own have to get together under a different platform other than the Democratic party, which was rejected by a sizable minority of the American electorate.

Perhaps when that happens, we can go on a four year mission, where none of us have been before and revitalize not only the auto industry in Detroit but the entire ailing U.S. economic base as well.

Brooke States is a UMass student

We're always looking for columnists!

Drop by with a piece or an idea
113 Campus Center

Letters

Students are not homogeneous

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter that appeared in the October 14 issue of the Collegian entitled "Amherst resident expresses dismay over her sons beating."

Although I can understand this woman's anger over the abuse of her son, I vehemently oppose her generalizations made of the population of this University. I feel that she passed the limits of fairness when she commented about our "attitudes and philosophies" brought with us from our "secluded, bigoted, intolerant suburban towns." I take exception to her criticisms of our backgrounds, especially when she was obviously speaking out of anger and ignorance.

I agree whole-heartedly with her feelings on the need for respect of individualism, and I also admire her son for staying with this belief even through his ordeal, but in making the statements that she did she managed to go against this principle. She quite ably classified twenty-four thousand individuals into the mental forms of a few.

I do not condone the actions of the people involved, but neither do I feel that the wrongful deeds of these individuals can be considered symbolic of the whole student body.

Margaret Ricker
Orchard Hill

Should humans rule over an innocent animal kingdom

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the article written by Bill Thomas concerning animal experimentation and animal suffering. I too am an advocate for anti-vivisection, and am strongly opposed to the wanton abuse and destruction of laboratory animals for so-called "scientific research." Far too often, research is conducted by eager individuals who are primarily motivated by profit, or by gaining recognition in scientific circles at the expense of ruthless brutality and inhumane treatment of helpless creatures.

The issue of animal rights is a real issue and must be taken seriously. It is ironic that the Collegian printed on its front page the same day that Bill Thomas' editorial appeared, the wording of the Equal Rights Amendment. "Section 1 states: Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex." Why not extend this amendment to take into account not only equality of women but also equality of all living creatures?

We live in a society that not only discriminates against women and blacks, but which discriminates against those with a smaller brain size. We live in an age where liberal ideas and attitudes are praised, or at least tolerated. We admirably pat ourselves on the back and reassure ourselves that we are open-minded and non-prejudicial. But, in reality, we are nothing but selfish, narrow minded, discriminatory and backward in our thinking. Today's society has not progressed beyond the Renaissance idea of man as the center of the universe. We may have a larger brain capacity and possess the ability to communicate with others of our own kind, but does that give us the right to be totalitarian rulers over the animal kingdom?

Human beings must unite with all living creatures, and live together as an integrated whole. Together, all of us share our existence on the planet Earth. Therefore, all living creatures, no matter how large or how small, deserve to live. When we make decisions as to what is is to live and what it is to die, we, in effect, jeopardize our own futures.

Vera Fowkes
Sylvan

The Bottle Bill must pass

To the Editor:

Last week you carried a letter from the chairman of a group named The Voter Education Committee, which urged all registered voters — in this case, UMass students — to vote against the implementation of the not-yet-in-action bottle bill. He gave several reasons: I differ from him on most of them. His big argument was that it would cost money.

I fail to see why saving a resource and using it again is going to cost more than single-time use. We are known as the most wasteful nation on earth; this bill will help to stop much waste. Other states have it and it works; thus I expect it will work for us. I fail to see why a bill which will cut down litter along highways, thus requiring us to employ workers solely to pick up such litter, is going to cost us more. It seems to me that the workers can then be used for productive employment. Even on the campus here such jobs can be eliminated — this does not cost more, does it?

He also says that such a bill will destroy the recycling programs. I only wish he were right. I belong to one (Leverett) and I'd like to find that the program was no longer necessary. I've been active in recycling for over ten years now, and we know very well that we are only bandaids. But we are the only people — so far — who are returning to use this particular earth resource. It would be just great if all bottles and jars were returned to the glass recycling factories without having to go thru our hands! From the store to the home to the store again. That's what we want! The gentleman's threat is no threat; it's a hope.

And finally: the Voter Education committee. It is a committee of manufacturers, wholesalers, and others who find it more profitable for Americans to waste after one use all the objects they sell to us. They make quite a bit of money making new containers to replace the ones we throw away along our streets. No wonder they want the bill scrapped.

William M. Davis
Leverett

Those who play must pay

While walking through the Campus Center the other day, I stopped at the "Students Against Militarism" table. The woman sitting at the table asked me to read some of their literature. One of their pamphlets concerned the amendment to the Department of Defense Authorization Act which denies financial assistance to male students who fail to register for the draft. Though the reasons S.A.M. gives for opposing the amendment are valid, they fail to recognize the major flaws in this new registration enforcement policy.

According to the ditto handed to me, Amendment 1113 to the Department of Defense Authorization Act states that a man getting financial aid must inform his college that he has registered for the draft. If the Department of Education disputes his claim, he must then present a letter from the Selective Service confirming his compliance within thirty days of this dispute.

Dave McCarthy

On paper, this amendment is opposed by the "Students Against Militarism" because of "...the bureaucracy involved in enforcing it." They feel that record-keeping mistakes could cause anyone to be denied financial aid. S.A.M. is especially disturbed over the thirty day compliance time. They feel a month's time is too short to settle a dispute with the U.S. Government.

On the time factor, the "Students Against Militarism" could be right. Congress may have to lengthen the time period given to prove registration. But this is a peripheral argument. When compared to the fact that through this amendment, the government has raised the stakes of draft resistance. Moral convictions of resisters will not be put to the test by denying the civily disobedient the ability to freeload off the system. Freeloading is meant, not in the mere sense of accepting aid, but in doing so while declining the concurrent responsibilities of citizenship.

In the case of evaders who need financial assistance to remain in school, Amendment 1113 will separate the truly conscientious objectors from the less than sincere who evade registration believing that they will never be caught or punished. The strong objectors would be likely to leave school rather than be bullied by Congressional legislation. On the other hand, economic coersion will, more often than not, persuade the less than sincere evader to register. As it stands now, the attitude of the cowardly resister is similar to the guy who avoids paying into the purchase of a keg, but has his glass ready when the beer starts flowing.

In no way is Amendment 1113 to the Department of Defense Authorization perfect. This amendment could have been drafted better (without changing its intent) by shifting the objective to one of reward instead of punishment. By giving preferential financial aid treatment to those who registered, the amendment could rectify the inequity of penalizing the poor draft evader while letting the rich resister, who needs no financial aid, get off scott-free.

I believe that what really motivates many in the resistance movement to oppose amendment 1113 is a "have your cake and eat it too" attitude, where you resist the law, yet expect the government to do nothing about it. It is time that those who are against registration and refuse to comply with the law face the fact that civil disobedience has historically been accompanied by hardship. Refusal to accept this truism only cheapens their cause.

With the implementation of this amendment, the "Students Against Militarism" and other left-wing groups supporting resistance will have to face the decision of registration with a new realization of the cost of civil disobedience. Those that then decide to avoid registration in full cognizance of the consequences should be commended on their determination and sense of morality. It is that suspicion of government, and independence of spirit which have made our country unique in the world.

Dave McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

Spots of sordid splendor on campus

Here on this campus there are places of unnoticeable splendor. Have you found these nooks of exquisite blandness, crannies of spectacular uninterest? To us, this October, they have become our favorite haunts, but they are passed daily by our collegiate fellows, unnoticed.

Let us draw their attention, hither and thither, to the delightfully mundane in our environs. Imagine the poor students, perhaps with some academic ability, but fully ignorant of the anti-aesthetic treasures that surround them. They daily traverse the SU-CC corridor and never realize the beauty of linoleum fissure and eruption which is their heritage as much as it is ours, who have appreciation of it.

Ralph Hybels

And what of South-West stairwells? — the cracked and crumbling concrete waffles of the parking garage? — light socket stalactites in the library?: these are the institutions of which romantic ruins are made. P-lots — whole regions devoted to the pursuit of apathy; telephone poles tilting against windmills; and rusting cast-off metal sculpture. Soda machines which have received all the rancor of those disillusioned masses who have yearned for carbonated release. There is a neon cross on the Neuman Center. There is a stagnant spot in the campus pond! And, oh, the anti-gothic verticals of the Graduate Research Center, soaring into nothing! Such a shame that the 'periscope' should be denied to pilgrims who would offer up their empty pints of Southern Comfort.

"Bejeweled and bedecked, she is a sentry to our larger monuments, the old chapel, from which worship has been drummed out..."

Steaming manholes! Have you not found these images of post-modern decline? Go now to the little shrine of the goddess Hydrantia. She squats, serenely invulnerable to the whims of pissant canines, distanced from the world by a small decorative fence (symbolic tribute to her inviolate purity, given by devoted, if consciously indifferent worshippers). Bejeweled and bedecked, she is a sentry to our larger monuments, the old chapel, from which worship has been drummed out, and Memorial Hall, stuffed beyond the capacity to accept names of those who will make the ultimate sacrifice in the future. Her hexoganally hippled breasts are full with anticipation and rectitude, awaiting the inferno which must soon engulf our most venerable institutions.

We have felt the peculiarly moving vibrations of that which is static and culturally void in our lives, let us beckon to those who have not yet been bathed in the bright white light! There are spots of fantastic dullness here, resplendent in orgiastic blight, to which those with uncultivated taste are spiritually immune. Let us educate our fellow travellers, that they too may experience pleasures of the ordinary, empathy with that which is uniquely the same, perhaps even — the highest attainment — oneness with normality.

Ralph Hybels is a Collegian staff member

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Bill Shea, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maris Karasik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Arts

Cooper ages gracelessly

BY MIKE RIFF
Collegian Staff

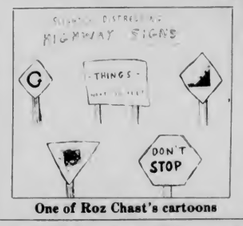
First the bad news. Everyone knows that Alice has seen his heyday as a top draw rock performer but you've got to admire the guy for his perseverance. He blatantly refuses to give it all up even though he lost it years ago. Ever since his "Billion Dollar Babies" era of almost ten years past, his albums have been consistently semi-lame, drawing from previous LPs for too many ideas.

The obvious lack of musical progression comes from his writing. Once the strong point of his messages came across loud and clear but now he tries to balance them out with the musical end. He comes across so tame on over half of this album that you may feel you're listening to Barry Manilow on a bad day. Fortunately there are no ballads except for the sappy "No Baloney, Homosapiens" which is dedicated to E.T. and sounds a lot like Kiss' "Beth", complete with quasi-horn section.

Now for the good news. Yes, there is some good news and it even outweighs the bad. The guitar work of former Iron Butterfly guitarist Mike Pinera has definitely made its mark. Since joining up with Alice several albums back his playing has always been deeply buried in the mix. This time around new producer and bassist Erik Scott just refuses to let it happen. Two of the best cuts, "Adaptable", with Flo & Eddie singing back up and "I Like Girls" contain solid chunks of rhythm with some of the searing lead guitar work that 1980's surprising Flush the Fashion LP hinted at.

Alice, like one of his current alumni Iggy Pop, brings competent veteran musicians into the studio with him. His problem revolves around half album burn-out. He just runs out of ideas. I do like this album though. You can make a lot of mean faces when you sing along with the better cuts. This LP would have made an excellent EP. The back cover features a picture of Alice in a rather conservative pose proving that we all get older. I give it a B.

Alice Cooper



One of Roz Chast's cartoons

UNSCIENTIFIC AMERICANS
By Roz Chast
Dial, 126 cartoons, ($7.95)

By ROGER ATWOOD
Collegian Staff

Roz Chast is the youngest and only woman cartoonist on the New Yorker's permanent staff. What can you say about her work, except that it's very, very funny? One critic put it well by saying she makes "the mundane exotic, then the exotic ridiculous." I'll leave it at that.

FOTOMAT camera stores

Semi-Annual Clearance Sale!

Quarrymaster Macro Zoom
80-200mm f-5.5
■ Ideal for candid and portrait photography
■ Macro focusing

Save $30.00
Sale $89.99

Quarrymaster
2x Tele-Converter
■ Your standard lens becomes a telephoto!
■ Four element, multi-coated
Save $10.00
Sale $29.99

Up to 30% off other selected wide angle, telephoto, zoom lenses and tele-converters.
Available for most popular SLR cameras

■ Special savings on selected 35mm SLR's, Viewfinders and Instant Cameras

■ 25% off selected electronic flash

■ Save 20-25% on Coast Camera "Shock" bags
Available in Tan, Blue and Green

■ Coast 35XC Enlarger
Save $30.00 Sale $59.95

■ 30% off selected dark room chemicals, paper and accessories

Sale expires 10/31/82

FOTOMAT camera stores
Quality Film Developing
Large Custom prints, reprints, enlargements, slides, Custom Preview Slides, duplicate slides and movies.

Downtown Amherst
25 N. Pleasant St. 9-7 M-F 9-5:30 Sat
256-8109

Hampshire Mall
Hadley 10-9:30 Mon-Sat
586-8560

We accept MasterCard, VISA and American Express

Athletes and Active People:
WEIGHT TRAINING and/or BODY BUILDING
• Women and Men
• Individually Designed Routines
• Continuously Monitored
• Initial Cardiovascular Test Included
Monthly memberships now available for a limited time only at:
THE HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER
Rt. 9, Hadley, Ma. 586-6336

Every 5 Seconds America Pops the Big Canadian!

Get ready to try the big, clean taste of O'Keefe. O'Keefe's gonna become America's favorite Canadian brew.

O'Keefe

Imported by Century Importers, Baltimore, Maryland

Arts

A taste of superb dance

ZAGREB GRAND BALLET
Monday, October 18
Fine Arts Center

By JULIE PROCOPIOW
Collegian Staff

Words cannot describe powerfully enough the exquisite performance the Zagreb Grand Ballet (of the Croatian National Theater) treated an audience to the evening of October 18 in the Fine Arts Center.

The Yugoslavian troupe, established in 1870 in Zagreb (the capital city of Croatia), made its appearance at UMass as part of its first American tour. The troupe's excellence and superior reputation has grown tremendously in Europe and all over the world.

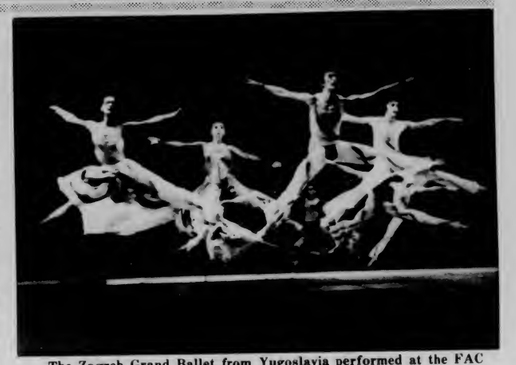
As the audience sat back to watch the show, the enhancing music of Beethoven filled the air as the stage was enlivened by dancers dressed in striking white leotards. "Prometheus," the opening number choreographed by Milko Sparemblek, was an exciting representation of the actual myth of Prometheus performed in the most precise manner of modern ballet. The troupe worked beautifully together in total synchronization as the dancers flitted gracefully across the floor.

"Pas de Deux" from "Le Corsaire" followed, enabling two members of the troupe to present to the audience a flourish of graceful and exuberant ballet sequences. As the male/female team took turns at "having the floor to themselves," the audience sat in awe while the couple leaped, turned, and plied across the stage to the music of Adolphe Adam.

The third piece involved a series of "Symphonic Dances" in which the entire company, dressed in a variety of colorful apparel, illustrated a bit of its cultural approach to dance. Accompanied by the tantalizing music of Jakov Gotovac, the troupe exhibited great energy and pride in this traditional dance presentation.

An astounding interpretation of Act III from "Swan Lake" concluded the performance after a brief intermission. The mood was more than adequately set by the fast-moving and provocative music of Tchaikovsky, as the seemingly weightless dancers hypnotized the audience with endless endurance and strength. The two principle dancers, noticeably dressed in black, stole the show, however, in an absolutely breathtaking performance of highly complicated and sophisticated ballet.

The Zagreb Grand Ballet more than sufficiently satisfied the hunger of all those starving for a taste of superb dance Monday evening as the FAC prepares for the continuance of a great dance series.



The Zagreb Grand Ballet from Yugoslavia performed at the FAC Monday night.

Idol worship at the Nail

BILLY IDOL
Saturday, October 16
Rusty Nail

By DOUGLAS MUISE
Collegian Staff

Billy Idol is a total sex machine. Really. Just look at him: carefully coiffured blonde hair, open red leather vest to let us count the hairs on his chest, snug satin trousers, and a generous assortment of spikes and chain throughout. A rock and roll Adonis. And his performance last Saturday at the Rusty Nail? ...one of subliminal sleaziness. But don't get me wrong, we all loved it! Besides, who ever said rock was a well-spring of virtue.

This is the second time I've seen Idol this semester, and the second time I've been totally blown away by his musical blitzkrieg. Talk about a devastating performance, I limped home from this one folks! Idol grappled the mike as if it were my throat, and refused to let go as he stormed through a grab-bag of old Gen X tunes and assorted bits from his new LP. His ass-kicking frenzy escaped no one. Idol, as most of us know by now, was front-man for volatile quartet of bratty british rockers — Generation X. During 1977-78 when the punk firestorm was first catching in England, Gen X was on the forefront of the explosion. But 1982 finds Idol literally dancing with himself. The anger has been put in check, and the angst subdued as his music drifts into a more pop-oriented framework. But Idol re-captured that anthemic spirit of the ole' Gen X Saturday and put us straight — Tiger Beat material he is not.

Idol has added Judy Dozier's kinetic keyboards and competent backing vocals and she really complements his shift to a more stable pop sound. The lead guitarist, on the other hand has got to go. What a total scuzzball. I'm uncertain of his name, but he somehow seemed to think he was riffing for Aerosmith or something. That's not to say he wasn't good, he was. It's just that I've nothing but contempt for a performer who spits at the audience whilst in the midst of a solo.

But overall the show was a smash, the audience riotous in its adoration. Last time I saw the Nail this packed the GO-GO's played, and you know what happened to them.

The Roche sisters — Maggie, Terre, and Suzzy — along with Robert Fripp, croon with a vengence in concert.

A double helping of wins[illegible]olk

KEEP ON DOING (Warner Bros.)
The Roches
COUNTRY DOWN (Fretless)
Country Down
By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Correspondent

Keep on Doing is the Roches' third album. And once again they have succeeded in putting together a collection of really fine songs. The Roches offer a clear, positive outlook on life. "You work too hard to take this abuse/be on your guard jerks on the loose," exclaims the title song. Robert Fripp's "Wall of Sound" production technique works perfectly here. The voices weave a fine tapestry around the guitars, complimenting the lyrics perfectly. The album starts out with a complete rendition of the "Hallelujah Chorus" and the harmonies only improve after that. The three sisters Maggie, Terre and Suzzy all contribute songs to the album. Maggie's songs are more serious while Terre and Suzzy's songs are more like conversations about people they meet. The Roches motto is basically be goofy and be smart and they are. In some ways they could almost be considered a folk version of the Go-Go's. Their spirit is limitless as is their talent.

Country Down takes a more serious approach to the music they play. Unlike the Roches, they insist that everything on their album be done live. No overdubs. Their debut album offers a variety of songs and styles, from traditional folk tunes like "Wedding Dress" and "How Long" to Sarah Erlich's "He's Got the Shelter." The group features Sarah Erlich on guitar, Anne Zimmerman on guitar and dulcimer and Debbie Suran on guitar, dulcimer, banjo and bokwhistle. Their singing style is traditional folk; little songs with nice harmonies and strong picking.

Country Down will be playing at 8 p.m. tonight at the Red Barn, Hampshire College.

live wire

By Phil Pfanto

To clear up any unclearness about tonight's Joe Jackson concert: yes, the concert is happening, and no, Marshal Crenshaw is not opening. Jackson has cancelled a few of his shows on his current tour due to illness but tomorrow's show at the FAC is still on. Though Marshall Crenshaw has opened for Jackson on other stops during the current tour, his rumoured appearance is a rumour, nothing more nothing less. The concert starts at 7:30 p.m..

Also tonights B. Willie Smith will be at The Rusty Nail. "Through the Doors" will make fools of themselves at The Rusty Nail by trying to impersonate The Doors

Tickets for Grateful Dead lyrisist-songwriter Robert Hunter, appearing at the club with the airplane sticking out of it Friday night, are on sale at Faces, Main St. Records in Northhampton and at the club with the airplane sticking out of it. There are two shows, at 8 and 11 p.m., and Carl Dematteo is the opening special guest. The Stompers and Redy are at the Rusty Nail and The Orbits, "a 5 member dance band from Orbitron," will beam themselves to the Blue Wall Friday night. The Pat Metheny Group will appear in concert at John M. Greene Hall at Smith College in Northampton. Tickets are on sale at The Iron Horse Coffee House in Northhampton, Food For Thought in Amherst and all Ticketron Outlets. The price is an outrageous $8.50.

"Minimum Wage rock and roll" with The Bus Boys is featured at the Rusty Nail Saturday Night. The revamped Neighborhoods are special guests.

Local favorites Kaspar Hausar are having a "record release" party at the club with the airplane sticking out of it in Hadley. Along with Kaspar Hausar, Da Stupids and The Junior Hostesses are featured. Free copies of Kaspar Hausar's new EP, made under Techno-tunes, will be given away. Feminist musician and songwriter Holly Near will be appearing Sunday at 7 p.m. at John M. Greene Hall at Smith College in Northampton. Appearing with Near will be Adrienne Torf, Carrie Barton, and Susan Freudlich.

If you've got a ear or a thumb, The Psychedelic Furs are at the Angora Ballroom in West Hartford. Tickets are available at all Strawberries outlets and Platterpuss Record in Northampton. The Scottish National Orchestra will be appearing at The Fine Arts Center also on Monday.

Kasper Hausar's new EP is to be released next week.

AEROBIC DANCE
8 week course
beginning October 25th
Call the Hampshire Fitness Center
586-6336
for registration information

feast & folly restaurant
SPECIALIZING IN CHICKEN, FISH, & VEGETARIAN ENTREES: $3.25 - $4.95
DINNER 5:30-10:00 M-S 5-10
111 PLEASANT ST. NORTHAMPTON — 586-8387
BYOB CLOSED TUES.

JAZZ DANCE
intermediate level
8 week course
Beginning October 26th
call the Hampshire Fitness Center
at 586-6336
for registration information

NORTHWOOD APARTMENTS
Rt. 47 Sunderland
Close to Amherst, on bus line
1, 2, and 3 bedroom gardens
immediate occupancy available
students welcome
665-3856
office open from 10-7 weekdays, Saturdays 1-4

NEW POLITICS
MASS FAIR SHARE
a statewide citizen's action organization
Has full and part time positions available to do fundraising, outreach, and to develop a citizen's lobby that can shape and influence the political and economic decisions in this state.
Hours are 2-10 pm; pay $175-225/week
call 586-8713
will train, college credits available
11 am - 1 pm Mon-Fri

YOUR BSN IS WORTH AN OFFICER'S COMMISSION IN THE ARMY.
Your BSN means you're a professional. In the Army, it also means you're an officer. You start as a full-fledged member of our medical team. Write: Army Nurse Opportunities, P.O. Box 7713, Burbank, CA 91510.
ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
THURS. OCT. 21
PINK PANTHER
DOUBLE FEATURE
8pm "Return of the Pink Panther"
10pm "Pink Panther Strikes Again"
FRI. OCT. 22
HAPPY HOUR
with the
ARMSTRONG BROTHERS
THE ORBITS
"A 5 member dance band" from Orbitron. . ."
with
R COMPLEX $2.00 cover

NRBO
with The Pousette-Dart Band
Fri. Oct. 22nd at 8 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
$4.00 General Admission Fee
Tickets available at:
Faces of Earth, Amherst
Platterpus Records, Northampton
Please no alcohol, smoking, cameras or tape recorders
Doors open at 7 PM

EXCELLENCE IN MANAGEMENT
JOIN STAR MARKET
IF YOU HAVE
The willingness to work hard.
A strong desire to succeed
IF YOU ENJOY
A fast paced environment, exciting and dynamic people...
A CAREER WITH STAR PROVIDES
An excellent starting salary
A profit sharing program
And many other benefits
MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITES
Great on the job training with Star's management team.
STAR MARKET WILL BE ON CAMPUS MONDAY, OCT. 25th
INTERVIEWING MIDYEAR GRADUATES FOR IMMEDIATE PLACEMENT
STAR
One of the Jewel Companies
If you are unable to see us on campus, forward your resume to:
Personnel Department
Star Market Company
625 Mt. Auburn Street
Cambridge, MA 02138

Black Affairs

Grad school information day to be eventful

By PHIL JENNINGS
Collegian Staff

U.Mass — 75-100 representatives from colleges and graduate schools nationwide including administrators, faculty and graduate schools are scheduled to attend the first annual Five College Graduate and Professional Schools Information Day to be held Wednesday November 3, 1982 at 11:30 in the Campus Center.

The event which is sponsored by (CCEBMS) Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and Minority Students, (BCP) Bilingual Collegiate Program and the Five College Minority Graduate School Advisors, is not only geared toward seniors but sophomores and juniors alike. All students from the five college area are urged to attend with special emphasis on the area's minority student population.

"As a part of our effort for the graduate school day we are doing panel discussions, GRE and GMET workshops. Four panel discussions including law school, business, math and engineering, medicine and health sciences, and liberal arts will all be given," John Lopes, career advisor for CCEBMS said.

Administrators, deans, assistant deans as well as people in the industry will be there to offer their advice, Lopes said.

"This is a very good opportunity for students to make personal contact on a formal and informal basis with administrators and recruiters who have direct decision input in their respective graduate school programs.

"We urge all students to participate in the workshops, panels and in graduate school day as a whole," Lopes said.

Paul Barrows, director of CCEBMS said, "The event will give students the chance to listen to some very influential people and to plug into knowledge they have accumulated over the years. Ways of approaching admissions, financial aid and career expectations will also be covered."

Scheduled to attend the event are representatives from Atlanta University, Bentley College, Clark University, Columbia University, Dartmouth University, Harvard Medical School, Northeastern University, Penn State, Simmons College, New York State University, University of Southern California, Temple and Yale Universities just to name a few.

Art Hillson, director of placement here at the university said, "We want to expose not only minority students but all students of the five colleges, and to discuss career and graduate school opportunities.

"The response we have had from these colleges and universities is overwhelming. We literally had to turn possible participants away because of the large turnout," Hillson said.

Student participation during the organizational fair as well as other graduate school days held in the past have had relatively poor attendance. Many of the businesses and organizations which have participated in the past are reluctant to come again because of the lack of student input.

Many people including faculty and student organizations have worked extremely hard to bring this event to campus to benefit the students of the Five College Community. Let's not disappoint them again. Your attendance is most welcome. See you there!

Career advisor John Lopes (top) would like to invite all students of the Five college area to attend Grad School day on November 3, 1982.

New CCEBMS director has plenty to add

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Correspondent

Paul Barrows, a 30 year old University of Massachusetts alumni is the new director of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and Minority Students (CCEBMS). Mr. Barrows, a native of Springfield, Mass graduated in June, 1974 with a degree in Afro American studies.

"I am very pleased to be here," Barrows said. "I never realized how critical the board or staff was to the program. They are a group of people situated in the most influential places within the University serving as the eyes and ears of the program. They (the board) inspire me to pursue things I wouldn't think of," Barrows said.

His priorities for the program is the expansion of students to other parts of the university where less access is present; improvement of student retention; development of new sources of funding for academic and student programs (graduate and professional programs as well as undergraduate); continuing the progress of the WEB Bubois Department of Afro-American Studies and offer contemporary African History courses in the Black studies curriculum.

As director of CCEBMS, his future goals are to expand the size of the incoming classes and to find new sources of financial aid. His main priority is to work with the University funding and to generate new sources of income for scholarships and other programs.

Also as director of CCEBMS, Barrows wants to strengthen the recruitment and outreach program at the University and the implementation of studies.

Barrows also wishes to take an active role to insure better high school preparation for incoming freshmen, after viewing the success of the High School Intervention Program done in the Midwest.

When asked about the CCEBMS program today compared to when he was active with the committee before leaving Amherst Barrows said,"Students tend not to be as politically oriented as they were years ago," but on the other hand, "although there is less time being spent in political activities, I see an increase in academic attention," Barrows said.

Barrows said that he also sees a "wider margin in student capability than before." On the whole said Barrows "the incoming freshmen are little better prepared academically then when I was an undergraduate." Speaking on the class of 1986 he said that they're "a good group."

As a student Barrows was very active. The most significant activity he was involved in was being the student representative of the Five College Black Studies Program. Formed in 1970, this committee drew up plans for the implimentation of Black studies in the five college area.

"The most rewarding activity while being here at UMass was working for Drum Magazine.;: Barrows said. Starting as a delivery boy, Barrows worked with Drum from 1970 until 1974. By his senior year he became editor of the magazine and the last issue published that year won a national award.

Among other activities, Barrows was also the chairman of the Social Activities Committee which brought concerts to the University. He was also a CCEBMS, and UMass dormitory counselor.

After leaving UMass in 1974, Barrows went to Albany State University in New York to do his master's program in Afro American studies.

When he left Albany State in 1976, Barrows went to St. Olaf college in North Field, Minnesota where he was an instructor in the department of History and Political Science.

While in St. Olaf, Barrows created the American Minority Studies Program.

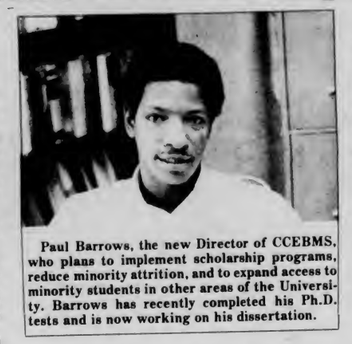
Barrows then enrolled in a PHD program of African History at the University of Minnesota, after leaving St. Olaf in 1977. Barrows subsequently was hired as an administrator in a graduate student program where he developed an equal opportunity program for minorities.

While serving there four years, he became the special assistant to the dean of the graduate school. He traveled to campuses around the country recruiting minorities, especially in the Black colleges of the South.

Other than recruiting, he was also responsible for the scholarship program.

In the recruitment area, Barrows kept close contact with some UMass faculty members. In addition he made available to students of UMass brochures that showed what Minnesota University had to offer.

Barrows is presently working on his PHD.



Paul Barrows, the new Director of CCEBMS, who plans to implement scholarship programs, reduce minority attrition, and to expand access to minority students in other areas of the University. Barrows has recently completed his Ph.D. tests and is now working on his dissertation.

LUTHER By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

Announcements

The Third World Caucus of the Student Government Association and the Office of Third World Affairs invites all current and prospective members of all Third World Organizations to attend an informational get together on Tuesday, October 26, 1982 at the Malcolm X Center (Southwest) from 6:30 PM-8:00PM.

DANCE THEATRE — SPECTRUM IN MOTION
Spectrum in Motion, a dance theatre ensemble dedicated and committed to people of color and their American experience will hold a performance on:
When: October 28th and 29th
Time: 8:00 p.m.
Where: Performing Arts Center
Hampden Theatre
Southwest
$1- general admission.
For further information call 584-5885

African Forum, New England's leading African Affairs show, is broadcast from 5:00-6:00p.m. every Saturday. African Forum is the only program in the nation where you can hear Liberation News which provides a regular update on the African Liberation Movement. So for the best in reportage on African Affairs, be sure to listen to African Forum every Saturday from 5:00-6:00 p.m. WMUA 911 FM.

Malcolm X will have a general meeting on Sunday October 24th at 5:00. Topics to be discussed will be finalizing Black Home Coming, Kwanza Black History Month and Martin Luther King Week.

◆◆◆

This is the last week for tutors from the CCEBMS department.

◆◆◆

1st Annual Five College
Graduate and Professionals Schools
Information Day-Wed., Nov. 3, 1982
Fifty-plus Graduate Schools Participating
Afternoon Workshops and Discussion

Workshop I: Taking the GRE, GMAT, and Test taking Skills
Panel I: Business, Engineering and Mathematics
Panel II: Health Sciences and Medicine
Panel III: Liberal Arts and Education
Panel IV: Law School
Time: Workshop I at 11:30 a.m.
Panels I-IV at 3:30 p.m.
Approx 2 Hours
Place: Campus Center — 1st Level

Sponsored by CCEBMS, BCP, and Five College Minority Graduate School Advisors.

TACO VILLA
SPECIALS
ALL DAY AND NIGHT
Monday thru Thursday:
COMPLETE MEALS (Including Drink) 2.15-2.60
With prices like these, why eat at home?
NORTHAMPTON — 21 Center St.
AMHERST — 41 Boltwood Walk
HOURS: Mon.-Thurs., 11-10
Fri. & Sat., 11-11...Sun. 3-9

CASPER'S Pizza & Brew
Friday, October 22
Country Castaways
8:30 - 12:30
45¢ Drafts
Most Bottle Beer 75¢
Most Mixed Drinks 75¢
Happy Hours Daily 4 - 7
Rt. 5 Hatfield
exit 22 off I-91N
312 West St., N. Hatfield 247-9005

The Pub 40 is Here!
ORDER MILLER OR MILLER LITE IN
THE PUB 40*
$3.95 you KEEP the MUG!
THE PUB AMHERST
*40 OUNCES
THE AMHERST PUB
REFILLS $2.25
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

99¢ SALE
With this coupon you'll receive any foot-long sandwich for 99¢ when you purchase another of comparable value at the usual listed price. (Offer good through 10/31/82.)
Redeem At
SUBWAY
America's Famous Foot Long Sandwich
Hampshire Mall Hadley
90 King St. Northampton
214 Exchange St. Chicopee

Spook someone with a Halloween Greeting Card!
AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

ADVERTISEMENT — This is a reprint of an article in Collegian, September 19, 1980.

Hypnosis aids study

By KEVIN McDONOUGH
Collegian Correspondent

Faced with strenuous work loads, more and more students are turning to hypnosis to help them overcome learning difficulties in concentration, recall, and retention.

Milton Askinoss, a hypnotist practicing in Hadley, said hypnotism is a technique that "allows the subconcious part of the mind to surface, giving you a greater sense of suggestibility."

Askinoss has used hypnosis to help cure people of hard-to-break habits such nail biting, smoking, and over-eating. He has also treated people for discomfort from back pain, phobias, and other psychosomatic illnesses, he said.

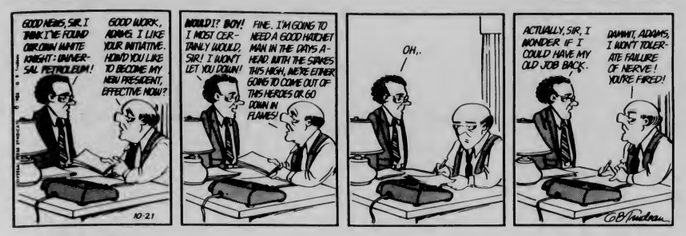
Askinoss said hypnotism is not a kind of mind control. Contrary to popular belief, a hypnotist cannot not force you to do anything against your will, he said.

"We show you the way to help yourself because whatever your mind caused, your mind can cure," he said. Although hypnotism is a positive tool for behavior modification it is "in no way a substitute for sleep, medicine, or medical attention," Askinoss added.

The students and faculty who visit Askinoss do so primarily to increase their studying efficiency or to quit smoking, he said. Askinoss added that only one visit is usually necessary to improve study skills. He claims a success rate of 90 percent.

Mr. Askinoss's office is located on Rte. 9 in the Ferrick Building, next to Rocky's Home Center. Appointments are necessary, call 584-1919.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau



The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. MENU

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Grinder
Cheese Strata

LUNCH
Cheese Strata
Swiss Turkey Sandwich

BASICS DINNER
Polynesian Vegetables
Italian Tofu Balls and Sauce

DINNER
Meatballs with Tomato Sauce
Roast Pork/Gravy, Applesauce
Egg Salad Plate with Saltines

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

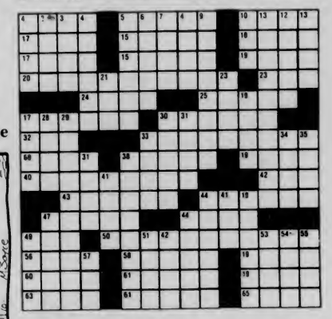
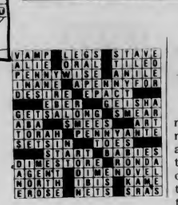
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Toppers
5 Church proclamation
10 Near Eastern state
14 A Dillon
15 Steaming
16 Prefix with space of sol
17 Island of the 49th State
18 Koran supplement
19 Cookbook word
20 Symbol of cleanliness
23 Surround (with "in")
24 Connections
25 Egyptian sun god
27 Pamper
30 —— suzette
32 Mountain
33 Reeds
36 "Volume of forgotten ——," in "The Raven"
38 Water birds
39 Dash
40 Garment of the good old days
42 Amigo, in Amiens
43 What U.S. women had before 1920
44 Official seal
47 Eyes
48 Lady of myth
49 Take measures
50 Symbol of innocence
56 Leveling piece
58 Pickles
59 Political alliance
60 Weather abbr.
61 Bring together
62 For fear that
63 God of war
64 Famed diarist
65 Resonance

DOWN
1 Eastern baby-sitter
2 Roman statesman
3 Caesarean remark
4 Acts of daring
5 Horn or hound
6 Touches, as property
7 Prohibition
8 Small boy, in Baja
9 Lays on thickly
10 Western alliance, for short
11 Symbol of longevity
12 Zodiac word
13 Usual condition
21 Metal shaper
22 Indian of the Southwest
26 Descartes
27 Having lime: Prefix
28 Swan genus
29 Symbol of youth, in "South Pacific"
30 Living duplicate
31 Deserve: Colloq
33 San Francisco tower on Telegraph Hill
34 Unexciting
35 Fit of pique, in current lingo
37 Chemical compound
38 Shut
41 Symbol of heat
44 Some oaths
45 —— Arbor
46 Paving block
47 Dark yellow clay
48 Like some buggy rides
49 Cinema dog
51 Product of California
52 Radar signal
53 Name for a Scot
54 Word of derision
55 On the surface: Prefix
57 Brit. lawmakers





WEATHER

★★★★★★★★

Showers ending this morning becoming partly sunny, breezy and cool by this afternoon. High temperatures in the 60s, dropping to the 50s later in the day. Clear and cold tonight.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Concepto Latino
9-noon	AM Radio with Steve Diamond
12-3pm	Trip to What Next with Ed Berk
3-5:30	DR — Black Contemporary
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	Focus with Ken Mosakowski
7-10	Women's Media Project
10-2am	Kari Njiiri — Pan Afrique
2-6	More Music

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

10:30 - 12:00	G. Gordon Liddy Talks at UMass
12:00 - 12:30	Global Groove: Video Art by Nam June Paik
12:30 - 1:00	Suite 212: More Video Art
1:00 - 2:00	Rock Video

Sports

The Paper Ballhandler takes to the hardwood

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

As I walked into the Curry Hicks Cage on Friday night a sense of pure fear crept over me for two reasons.

The first reason was UMass basketball coach Tom McLaughlin, who was in the middle of screaming at the regular hoopsters for not touching every line in a line-to line drill. He wasn't just screaming, he was livid, and I was intimidated.

The second reason was an inherent fear of making a fool of myself in front of an audience of any size. Granted, I have made a fool of myself many times before, but not on such a voluntary basis. After all, nobody was forcing me to attend tryouts for the Minuteman basketball team.

I glanced into the stands and sure enough, there were people there that I knew, a whole hand full of them in fact. Some were there just to watch the tryouts and others were there because I had been stupid enough to let the secret out that I intended to try out. (They were there to laugh at me.)

No chance to back out now though, since everybody had seen me. I pulled my socks up (I wanted to wear black ones just for fun but figured that nobody would pass to me if I did) and tied the shoelaces on my ragged, old Nike's.

I had strategically worn a Boyden grey and an old tank top together to hide the trophy that I had earned at UMass parties and local Amherst bars (also known as a beer belly) and prayed that I wouldn't be called upon to play on a skin team.

With my attire now properly in place, I headed for the basket to shoot, since the regulars were now in the showers and the other "hopefuls" were already shooting.

A couple of airballs and two layups later, the rhythm hit me. I hit two shots in a row and decided that maybe I would make the team. Then tryouts started.

McLaughlin opened tryouts with a quick talk thanking everyone for coming down on a Friday night ("Oh my God," I thought. "I forgot about Happy Hour in all the confusion!"), and that we would be put through some drills and would then play some full court.

We started with right handed layups, my specialty. I felt good. I was flowing. Left handed layups? No problem, I could handle that. Cross over dribble, pivot and drive in for the layup? Whoops, hope he didn't see that one, I thought as I struggled to remove the ball from my crotch courtesy of a mishandled dribble.

Then came the moment I had been waiting for; dunk it time. I was convinced that I would be able to throw one because I had gotten one down at Boyden the day before. I could show the coach something here.

I advanced through the rebound line, skied (I must have been about 12 feet in the air for that rebound," I thought.) for the rebound, and trucked on over to the whamma-jamma line. Not too many guys could dunk and I was ready. The adrenaline was pumping as I was five guys away from being handed the ball. Four, three ... George Plimpton, the Paper Lion, eat your heart out ... two, one ... here we go ...

"That's all," McLaughlin yelled, "next drill, toss the balls over here."

Psssssss ... the air didn't come out of the ball, but it did come out of me. Odds are I probably wouldn't have dunked it, but I wanted to try. Oh well, what's next?

Running was next. If right handed layups were my forte, then running was my debacle. I sputtered as everyone else cruised back and forth with ease. My stomach suddenly wasn't too happy with my activities and let me know with a sharp jab that stuck around for a while (also known as a cramp) in the lower section of my tum tum.

All of a sudden, tryouts weren't fun anymore. Running, nobody had told me that you had to run.

"I don't want to run," my body told my brain. "Why run when you can sit and watch the Celties on TV with a pretty acquaintance, drink beer and talk about playing basketball. Run, oh what the hell, but only for a while."

The cramp went away, but I knew it would return if I got too out of hand and ran for too long.

After an eternity of running and dribbling while-running drills, we got to the scrimmage part of the night.

Unfortunately, by this time the old body had all but packed it in. Scrimmaging was fun because there was an audience present and every basketball player likes an audience, but I was more worried about having enough energy to go out on my big date later on by this point in the evening.

After the scrimmages, McLaughlin got us together for a talk.

"Don't settle for anything less than a half scholarship," I told myself. "Don't sell yourself short."

"I'm cutting all of you," McLaughlin said.

"Let's kill him," I involuntarily said out loud and some of the hopefuls near me laughed.

McLaughlin explained the reasons for his decision and it was all very rational, but my mind was already in the showers, relieved that tryouts come but once a year.

"Thank you all for coming," McLaughlin said, but I was already gone.

Whoever said that it was better to have tried and failed obviously didn't go through hoop tryouts. Tired, sore and cut, I headed out to pick up my date later on that night, thoroughly contented with the knowledge that I wasn't going to be up early in the morning on Saturday for basketball practice.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Floyd's next man-on-the-scene assignment will be to do Ben Gay commercials.

Philbin flies high for UM

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Correspondent

A few times during each match you can see her leaping high and sending one of her booming spikes toward the helpless opposing team. She is constantly moving around the court setting up plays and shouting encouragement to her teammates. She is Patti Philbin, the ace of the University of Massachusetts women's varisty volleyball team.

At 21 years old, Philbin is the lone senior on a squad made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores. She says that although they are a young team she has complete confidence in everyone.

"I really can depend on everybody, they are all good," she says.

Incredibly, before coming to UMass, Philbin never played organized volleyball. The Worcester native's sport during her years at Doherty High School was gymnastics.

"I started gymnastics in the sixth grade and continued with it all through high school," she said.

"I think gymnastics helped me a lot," she added, referring to the fact that both sports involve leaping. Philbin played her freshman year at UMass on the junior varsity team before moving up to the varsity level the following year. Philbin believes the volleyball program here is first-rate, and she has nothing but high praise for head coach Elaine Sortino and assistant coach Sarah Bonthius.

"Elaine is an excellent coach," said Philbin. "It's the best coaching I've ever had." Philbin is also quick to point out the important contributions of assistant coach Bonthius.

"She really pushes us and gives us alot of encouragement," she said. "She is another Elaine," she says.

As far as this season is concerned, Patti is happy about the way her team has played so far this year.

"We have a lot of talent and we could go far if we could put everything together," she said. Philbin says they have faced some pretty good competition this year, most notably C.W. Post College. "They are really tough," she said.

Philbin is somewhat disappointed with the low attendance at home matches at NOPE gym. She feels that if people would take a little time out to watch a game, they would walk away from the match impressed. She also believes that volleyball will become more popular at UMass.

What does senior Physical Education major Patti Philbin plan to do after graduation this coming May?

"I definitely want to go to graduate school and get my Master's degree, then I'd like to become a coach at the intercollegiate level," she replies.

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team is definitely a spirited squad. Constant "high-fives" between points and shouts of, "Go Mass," are evidence enough. Leading these spirited players is Patti Philbin.

AP Laserphoto

The St. Louis Cardinals begin to party following their victory in the seventh game of the World Series.

It was game six, it was very late, and it was John Stuper

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

It was the test of a true sports fan, and being a true sports fan in this test meant staying by your respective television set, watching the news or listening to Joe Garagiola babble, while you waited for a downpour to dispate and allow game six of the World Series to finish up.

Commentary

That the St. Louis Cardinals were crowned the world champions last night was almost anticlimatic. Anyone can take the time to watch the definite final game of a series. What set this game apart was the total devotion to the series that you have to have in order to forego any chance of making an 8 o'clock class in favor of seeing Cardinal starter John Stuper (an All-Name nominee) go all the way in a rain drenched marathon.

And what a game. What a series, for that matter. Everyone was saying that the Milwaukee firepower at the plate was just too overpowering. The Brewers would walk away with the championship and there was little, if anything, that St. Louis could do about it.

The Cardinals would have nothing of that pre-series hype, however, as they fought tooth and nail with the Brewers and were one-half of what amounted to be a classic World Series.

And in the classic World Series, the classic game was the sixth. True, it was a 13-1 game that never seemed to be in doubt, but there was still that lingering feeling that Milwaukee could come back (or has the seventh inning of game four been forgotten?), that kept people watching.

And it was a special treat for the diehards when the final inning did come around. Only a couple of thousand St. Louis fans had been able to bear the elements huddled under the multicolored umbrellas, but they made sure their presence was felt.

"Stuper, Stuper, Stuper, Stuper..." they screamed at the top of lungs throughout the entire last stanza. There was a walk given up, but they refused to let the star of the show lose support.

"Stuper, Stuper...," they knew how difficult a task it was for a pitcher, especially a National League one, to come in and out of the game amid numerous delays and still consistently mow down one of the most powerful hitting lineups ever assembled.

"Stuper, Stuper, Stuper...," even after Milwaukee had scored a run and ruined Big John's bid for a shutout, the noise did not wane, in fact, it seemed to increase.

"Stuper, Stuper...," he finally did it, the final out. The place was in a mini-pandamonium. The few remaining filled seats were rocking.

The Series would continue, one more game, one last hurrah. John Stuper had gone the distance. He'd beaten the Milwaukee Brewers, the weather and time all in one night. he was a bona-fide hero on this longest of nights.

Bowie Kuhn had said he would wait all night to get game six played. All he had to do was wait until 1:22 a.m. Amherst time for this one and it had been worth it.

The pitcher of the night had not been the much heralded Bruce Sutton, it had been John Stuper, a pitcher who had had his troubles with the Brewers already.

And as the telecast came to a close and the name of Cardinal ace Joaquin Andujar was being tossed about for a game number seven starter, John Stuper untied his cleats as his name continued to echo throughout Busch Stadium..."Stuper, Stuper, Stuper..."

And the real sports fans in Amherst clicked off their television sets and headed for bed and pleasant dreams of weekends and nightmares of unstudied for Food Science and Nutrition exams.

Good night Andy.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUDIO

Odyssey studio monitors, professional quality 4-way speaker system with 5th passive radiator. $350 or BO Vic 549-0469

AUTO FOR SALE

Pontiac Catalina '66 great transpo blue big and comfortable is running needs work $200. 584-9040

Rabbit front air dam and rear shocks A1 condition Dave 256-0543

1971 Ford Torino exc cond $950 or BO call 549-4147

70 Olds 88 exl. mech. cond. $400 or BO 256-0765

VW Squareback 68 inspected for Fall 82 $700 Eby 256-6050 after 6 PM

1976 Dodge Aspen station wagon fine condition $1200 call 256-6679

1975 Toyota Celica, radials, stereo, trunk rack $1500 549-5515

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

Come see UMass bands compete for the best band on campus at the Southwest's Annual Battle of the Bands, Saturday, October 23 noon to 7 pm Hampden Student Center free admission

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional ballydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

FOUND

Found keys on Lincoln penny ring found on N Pleasant across from Sub Monday afternoon call 253-9303 nites

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Responsible people needed for newspaper delivery. Early morning 7 days on campus call 253-7009

Childcare for 9 month and 2½ year old in our Amherst home. Sometimes housecleaning instead. 12-5 pm twice a week. Must have car 253-7388/256-8105

Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt in Southwood for sublet 256-0166 253-5896

Graduate Student for quiet home one bedroom left, $225 includes utilities 665-8144

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Electric typewriters used Olivetti & Remington $150 ea 549-6889

Leather jacket, wine, size 6, worn once, $80 negotiable 549-6459

Thermo-Fax copy machine $75 Westinghouse refrigerator, white left hinge, 65 in high, Doors-Used - 24, 30, 32 inch wide, $10 ea. Gas stove white 21 inch $200 call after 6 pm 586-1827 N'ton

Pioneer integrated amp 75 w/ch $145 Akai top of line reel to reel w/autorev $265 6-6954

'82 Olin Mark VII skis. Never used. Great deal $175.00 David 253-3588

Toyota Corona 1974 reliable $500 or best offer 584-6065

Ampeg bass amp see Charlie at Greenough - 3:00 PM

Woman's large maroon leather jacket with removable hood, good condition, $40.00 call Maria 256-0179

Convertible - 1973 VW new top, snows. AM/FM $3500. 617-544-6555

Shogun 1000 Racing Bike, paid $450, never ridden. $350 or BO Call for more info 546-1125

For Sale two PA speakers Cerwin Vega V-35 in new condition must be heard call Jeff 549-6637 between 3 & 4

Lovers! Size 6½ engagement diamond. New. Half price. 253-9358 Kathy

Artists! 24x36 drawing board. New. Cheap. 253-9358 Kathy

INSTRUCTION

Math Tutoring 549-8612

LEACH

Leach it is your birthday - Are you pent? Let us walk the sands of time in search of the Lollies!

LOST

Wallet and Yallow raincoat important Timeout Fri Oct 8 Call Kristin 256-6877

Swaatar Stolen From Van Meter 418 off white icelandic grey/black yoke design heartbroken reward! 546-1422

Harmonica Honner Special brown case 10/14 546-1422

Eye Glasses gold lost near Hampshire Bank return to Amherst Police Reward

Yonex Cougus tannis racquet at Boyden courts Saturday 253-5950

Large reward for a black & gold cross pen lost around SBA very sentimental please return 6-4670

Silver chain with flower pendant 10/18 very sentimental - reward! Sue 253-7890

MOVIE

Halloween - the movie Thurs 21st 5, 7, 9, 11 S.U.B.

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a
Collegian classified!

DISTRIBUTOR OPPORTUNITIES Texas Instruments home computer ground floor multi level marketing money making opportunities - no risk, no inventory investments Demonstration Tues 10/26 7:30 CC room 169 call Grace or Paul after 5 665-2494

All University women are invited to Alpha Chi Omega's rush dinner 10/20, 10/26, 10/27 at 5:00 call Jennifer 545-2152

Happy Hallowaan Say it with a pumpkin cookie. Order one at the Mortarboard Table Oct. 20, 21, 22 on Concourse

Je t'aime roses
A perfect rose, babies breath & fern $1

The perfect start to the perfect weekend

Fridays 11-4 at the Student Union
KARIN, I LOVE YOU

Sigma Kappa Open Rush
Come join us for dinner at 5:00
Tues. Oct. 26
Wed. Oct. 27
Thurs. Oct. 28
19 Allen St. behind BKO
RSVP at 256-6887

AB - Happy 21st! Have a great day! Here's to more crazy times. Love ya, C.A.

Happy 23rd birthday, brother Jimmy. . . I hope it's a blast! From your favorite little sister. . .Janet

Ken we know your life is hell without us but have a Happy Birthday anyway we miss you love and hugs and kisses Greg Lisa Sue Steve Sarah Paul Mateus

MMG - What's your shoesize? Happy Birthday! I love you - LAW

Love ya Max - the women of 1-South Happy Birthday

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

SUGARBUSH SKI HOUSE room available over intersession 546-5891 546-5890

Sabina: You're the BEST roommate! You've put up with much crap and I realize, appreciate, and apologize for it. Since we're not into brave, let's cope (not control) together, K? Love you! XOXO Lidda

Happy Birthday AB! Your the best have a great day luv ya Karen

Want to win some money? Show your costume at NEAG/Sylvan Costume Dance Saturday 10/23/82 at 9:00 pm CCA Prizes: original, funniest, scariest, most avant-garde

Val or Bonnie call Steve 586-4512 584-6940

Phil - Happy Birthday!! (one day late) Hope last night was what you expected. You're finally legal, how does it feel? P.S. How's your sticky neck? Love Liz PUMPKIN SALE TODAY!! 9 to 5 in the CC Concourse and at the SUB circle. Be prepared for Halloween, get a pumpkin!

POLITICAL SCIENCE MAJORS

Political Science Majors - Join Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Political Science Honors Society. The first meeting is Thurs. Oct 21 in CC room 168. Those interested must have 3.0 overall and 3.2 departmental cum. Minors and non-majors with 3 PoliSci course welcome

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Individual, coupias, family. Sliding fee scale. Psychological Services Center 545-0041

ROOM WANTED

Young couple looking for room or one bdrm apt for next semester 523-5249 Martha

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share badroom in Rolling Green immediate opening $106 month verything included 256-8335 or 256-0165

Apartmentmate needed $150/mo on bus route furnished call Jeff 665-4357

SKIING

It snowed TWO FEET!!! Saturday night in STOWE. It's going to be an awesome year

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

Wanted: Joe Jackson tickets 2 (two) best price paid call after 6:00 PM keep trying 253-3643

Someone for light, routine typing approx 3 hrs - $15 call 253-2842

Wanted 2 Joe Jackson tickets please call 256-6612

Immediately - intermediate accounting book call now! Tom at 253-5482

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Buy a classified... THEY WORK!

O'Keefe Ale — MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE — O'Keefe Ale

O'Keefe and Rolling Rock Night

12 oz bottles 95¢
plus
Two for One
Bar Liquor Drinks

Three 7 oz
Rolling Rocks $1.25
Rolling Rock Drafts 50¢
60 oz Pitcher $2.95

YOU'D BE A FOOL
Not to check out this week's sale at U.R.U.

John Cougar. . .American Fool
Peter Gabriel. . .Security
English Beat. . .Special Service
Kool & the Gang. . .As One

ALL $5.99 EACH AT

Your Student-Run Record Store

Union Records Unlimited

201 Student Union
Mon-Fri 10 - 5
Sat 11 - 3

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 18

Minutemen tie UConn 2-2 in a thriller

Huskies tie with 0:26 remaining

By GUS MARTINS
Collegian Staff

The most definite thing about the sport of soccer is that a given team has to play a full 90 minutes before they can claim a victory.

At the same time it also takes that long before the opponent is officially defeated. Unfortunately for the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team this reality proved to their detriment as the University of Connecticut scored a goal with just 26 seconds remaining in yesterday's match, to tie the game up at 2-2 and send it into overtime.

The two rivals struggled through two ten-minute overtimes that changed nothing. The final score ended up 2-2.

It had seemed too good to be true. That the Minutemen could be leading the defending division I national champions after 89 and one half minutes of play seemed incredible.

Things appeared to be locked up for UMass but Connecticut's relentless pressure cracked Massachusetts' defense and finally with only 26 seconds left in regulation, UConn's Matthew Addington came up with the equalizer.

By midway through the first half, the scrappy Minutemen began to get a lid on their emotions. They not only started to believe they could play good soccer against Connecticut, they were playing it.

Goalie Jeff Smith was called upon time and again to make the big play, and he did. At the end of the first half with only 32 seconds to go, he was able to grab a rebounded shot at point blank range after a corner kick that he had deflected originally.

The first half ended in a scoreless tie. While they continued to improve with every passing minute, the only real UMass scoring threat came late in the first half when senior forward Mike Gibbons stole the ball from a defender at midfield, dribbled past two Huskie defenders and blasted a shot to the far left corner of the goal from the right side of the 18 yard line. The ball rebounded off a diving keeper and was cleared by a Husky defender.

The second half was better played and full of excitement. The booters scoring first at with 31:50 left to play. The Minuteman goal came when the Huskies began an all-out attack and were left vulnerable, defensively. When a UConn defender tried to loft a pass to a teammate the play was broken up by midfielder Mike Rudd.

Rudd then carefully passed the ball past the sole Connecticut defender to foward Kayvan Khatami and the race was on. Khatami won the race but was forced to pull the ball back because of a recovering defender. He beat the Husky defender did this successfully and went on to beat the Connecticut goalie with a low shot on the far side.

Photo by Flavia Smith

UMass' Michael Mahoney and Michael Runeare (6) attempt to stop UConn's Graziano Cornolo (9) as Thouskis Stavrianidis (6) of UConn moves in to help during yesterday's game at Boyden. UMass tied the 6th ranked Huskies, 2-2.

Connecticut's Bill Morrone tied the score at 24:28 off a corner kick that had struck someone previously. Morrone kicked the ball in a half bicycle motion backwards into the left upper corner to tie it up 1-1.

UMass went ahead again with 12:20 to go to lead 2-1. In something that appeared to be almost a carbon copy of the first goal, UMass' was able to win the ball in the midfield and advance it to the racing Khatani Gibbons who outgunned the Connecticut defender and scored.

Gibbons played an outstanding game and gave the Minutemen the dimension that was needed to keep Connecticut honest on defense.

Kevin Flynn, while playing a strong two-way game deserves some credit on the second goal. After Khatami advanced the ball to Gibbons, Flynn ran a pattern up the right wing and took a Connecticut defender with him, allowing Gibbons more space and easier access to the Connecticut goal. Gibbons shot, a left-footed kick that went low to the far corner.

UMass coach Jeff Gettler was pleased with the team's performance but felt the team was tired out.

"We played well but like I said earlier, we only have 14 players that are ready to play and I think we got tired," said Gettler.

JV soccer team romps in 4-0 win over HCC

By GEORGE MARTINS
Collegian Correspondent

The UMass junior varsity soccer team remained undefeated, boosting their record to 2 wins, no losses, and one tie, with a convincing 4-0 whitewashing of Holyoke Community College, Tuesday.

UMass scored two goals early in the first half and coasted the rest of the way.

Bob McIntosh put UMass on the scoreboard at the 15 minute mark of the first half, with the assist going to Ricardo Sanchez. This scoring play sounds innocent enough until one is notified that Sanchez is a goalie, and goalies don't get assists in soccer too often.

Chris Gift put the Minutemen ahead 2-0 on a pass from John Ingiatto 20 minutes into the first half. This would be the last of the scoring, and the remainder of the half consisted of very uninspiring soccer.

"The first half was disappointing, a horror show. Our two goals were scored on long through balls played by the wind," said UMass coach Dave Saward.

The second half was much more interesting as UMass got their act in gear. The midfielders moved the ball with more authority than they had in the first half and the team appeared determined.

John Metzger gave the Minutemen a three goal lead when he took a pass from Chris Gift and broke down the right sideline before drilling a close range shot past Holyoke netminder Tom Lingenberg.

Less than one minute later, Rich Fortescue scored his first goal of the year. Gift started the play by directing a cross towards the left portion of the penalty area. The ball was deflected by a Holyoke defender and misplayed by the keeper. Fortescue found himself in perfect position to register the fourth UMass goal.

UMass dominated the rest of the game but could not capitalize on well developed plays. The final score could have easily been 8-0.

Don Donahue replaced Sanchez in the UMass net in the second half and "played well" according to Coach Saward. Saward was also impressed with the play of midfielder Greg Short.

UMass will attempt to keep their unbeaten string alive when they travel to Amherst College next Monday. It will be their first real game of the season.

UM wins Head of Merrimack

By STEVE FITZ
Collegian Correspondent

Last Saturday the UMass men's and women's crew teams traveled to Nashua, New Hampshire to compete in the Head of the Merrimack.

It was the first year that they competed in the three mile race.

They made a very good first showing, capturing two first places, and two second places.

"We are definitely favorites going in. It's the first time we were there, and the race was a lot smaller than we expected," said coach Dave Kumlin.

The men's varsity eight came in first place, beating five other teams by five seconds, while the men's varsity four finished fourth.

The men's junior varsity eight overpowered the opposition, winning by 32 seconds.

"I was very pleased with the outcome. The men's varsity eight didn't row well, but managed to pull it out. The junior varsity eight rowed exceptionally well and dominated the competition," said Kumlin.

The women's varsity eight finished second behind the University of Rhode Island, as did the women's varsity four team.

"The race was a good indication to tell how we'll do in the spring, because we raced against teams that we will be racing in the spring," said Kumlin.

Other teams competing in the race were the University of Rhode Island, Clark University, Worcester Polytechnical Institute, Assumption College, and the New Haven Boat Club.

The Head of the Charles race this Sunday is the last race of the fall season. After that, the team will move to indoor workouts until the spring.

Cardinals over Brewers 6-3

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals, molded by Manager Whitey Herzog in his own feisty image and driven by the persistent bats of Keith Hernandez and George Hendrick, ended 15 years of frustration last night by beating the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3 to win baseball's 79th World Series.

The Cardinals won their ninth Series and the fourth straight by a National League team with three runs in the sixth inning of the decisive seventh game, on RBI hits by Hernandez and Hendrick and the seven-hit pitching of Joaquin Andujar and Bruce Sutter. The Cards pounded 15 hits.

They were the speed-crazed Cardinals — a replica of Herzog's three American League West Division champions in Kansas City, with perhaps a little less power.

They were the Mississippi riverboat gamblers, unafraid to risk the present for the future either in the front office or on the field. Eight of the 25 players on the World Series roster were not on the team when Herzog became manager before the 1981 season.

Perhaps the most daring of them all was Andujar, who came back from a painful leg injury to pitch seven innings for his second victory of the Series.

He was not perfect, but he had help, and he made the big pitches when it was necessary. Sutter pitched the last two innings for his second save.

Sutter retired Gorman Thomas for the last out on a strikeout with the crowd shouting "Bruce, Bruce." As fireworks exploded over the stadium, Cardinal players mobbed the ace reliever at the pitcher's mound and fans poured onto the field despite the attempts of security men to hold them back.

When the lights were turned on at Busch Stadium Wednesday night, they shone on a new era of baseball in St. Louis, which had been in 12 previous World Series.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 33 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, October 22, 1982

Photo by B. Nasdin

A worker on the Fine Arts Center crawls along its roof yesterday afternoon.

Physicist warns of leaks to Soviets

By RUSSELL TURNER
Collegian Correspondent

Technological secrets are leaking from the scientific community in the United States and are being absorbed by the Soviet Union, said Dr. Allan R. Hoffman, executive director of the National Academy of Science's Committee on Science, Engineering and Public Policy.

"It is very clear that the Soviet Union has a very major effort to gather information from the West," said Hoffman, former director of Solar Energy Policy for the Department of Energy, speaking Wednesday in Hasbrouck Laboratory at a colloquium sponsored by the University of Massachusetts' physics department.

The subject of Hoffman's talk was a report released last month by his committee on Scientific Communication and National Security."

"It (the report) deals with an issue that touches upon fundamental values in our society. It touches upon issues that affect everybody in the academic and research community," Hoffman said.

"The first conclusion is that there really is a serious technological transfer problem. The Russians are getting a lot of information from the United States, they're getting a lot of information from our allies," he said. "In comparison with other channels of technology transfer, that arriving from scientific communication in universities and research laboratoris is minimal."

Dr. Hoffman, who was once a faculty member in the UMass physics department, made the analogy of technological transfer to a "leaky bucket" in which scientific communication is only a "pinhole".

The subject of Dr. Hoffman's talk was timely for members of the UMass research community. Two months ago, Professor Hajime Sakai of the UMass physics department was told by the Department of Defense not to publish two papers on intra-red optics for national security reasons (see related story).

"Clearly the government is not in a very organized state, and they have to get their act together," Hoffman said in reference to the incident.

"I think it's a clear feeling that there is a very high price to pay for controls," he said. "The best way to insure the long term national security of the United States is not by imposing controls, but by a strategy of accomplishment — if you want to get ahead, stay ahead," Hoffman said. "However, where there are research activities that are basically applied and have direct military relevance, and they must be kept secret, then they must be classified under the authority of the U.S. Government."

Pentagon suppresses UMass professor's research

By RUSSELL TURNER
Collegian Correspondent

The US Department of Defense suppressed two papers by a University of Massachusetts researcher last August for national security reasons, in direct conflict with University policy.

The papers, written by Professor Hajime Sakai of the UMass Physics and Astronomy Department, were two of 92 papers due to be presented at an international optical engineering symposium in San Diego, California last August but which were blocked by Pentagon officials at the last minute.

"This decision emanating from the Department of Defense is a very serious one. It is clearly inconsistent with the traditional attitudes of academic scholarship and freedom," wrote Dr. Leroy F. Cook, head of the physics and astronomy department.

The defense department action directly conflicts with UMass policy. The policy since 1972 has been to "undertake only those research projects in which the purpose, scope, methods, and results can be fully and freely disclosed," and all research grants are accepted with this stipulation.

Professor Sakai's research, which concerns infra-red radiation in the upper atmosphere, has been financed by the US Air Force for several years in accordance with this policy.

On August 19, Professor Sakai was informed by the Air Force that he was not to present either of his two papers until they had been "cleared." The following day he was informed that his "clearance" had been denied.

This abrupt action not only appeared to be in direct violation of the Air Force's research contract, but presented Sakai with a dilemma: publish his papers and risk having his funding cut off by the Pentagon, or not publish and risk being cut off by the University.

Sakai chose to withdraw his papers, and as of October 1, his contract with the Air Force has been renewed. The issue of UMass policy has not yet been resolved, however, and the future of Professor Sakai's research remains clouded.

"I felt sadness, not to mention a severe blow to my ego, in that the government wished to expand its censorship authority to the scientific communications which should be in a category of free, uninhibited exchange," Sakai wrote in August 26 memo to Cook.

Proposal for new admission policy rapped

By JEFF POTTER
Collegian Correspondent

Student government leaders and minority groups yesterday said they are concerned that a proposal to toughen admission standards at the University of Massachusetts will make it more difficult for minority students to study here.

The Board of Regents, the governing board for higher education in Massachusetts, has met twice to formulate the new policy which will raise the required Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) score, said Dave Taggart, director of admissions at the University.

No criteria has yet been established, however, and probably will not be until later in the academic year, Taggart said. It is not the intention of the board to discriminate against minorities, merely to revise and update the criteria for admissions, he said.

Despite the fact that the board has no written proposal on the new admissions policy, many people said they are concerned with the policy's impact when it is finalized.

Rick Townes of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and minority Students (CCEBMS) said the minority faculty has been hearing rumors about the changing admission standards at UMass. It has caused a "very heightened sense of anxiety" in the minority community, he said.

"By cutting financial aid and changing the admission standards, the feeling of minorities is that there will be fewer of us around," is a form of "subtle institutional racism."

"We (minorities) do not do as well as others on the SATs," Townes said. The SAT is not accurate in testing minorities, and therefore raising the admission standards based on it will discriminate against them, he said.

The minority faculty has been asking the King administration, and gubernatorial candidates Michael Dukakis and John Sears to have minority support on the board so the rights of minorities may be heard, Townes said. There is only one minority member on the Board of Regents, and that person has not been reappointed for another term, he said.

Jim Murphy, president of the Student Government Association, said the Board of Regents is raising the scores on the SATs to draw a particular student to the University. He said the type of student the board wants may not necessarily be a minority.

The Board of Regents "doesn't care if it's discriminating against minorities, but the new criteria will hurt the admission of those people, he said.

Ruth Washington of the Everywoman's Center at UMass said the SATs are "culturally and racially biased."

Raising the test scores for admission would cut back on the cultural diversity of the University, she said.

Washington said the University officials should seriously address the revising of admission standards because if they are enacted, the university will be lacking culturally and racially.

The Board of Regents is scheduled to meet on Oct. 29 to discuss the formation of the criteria for admission and its implementation. The standards, when finalized, will not take affect for another two years.

Former UMass education professor found murdered

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

A former professor of the University of Massachusetts school of education and Rhodes Scholar was found dead in Stamford, Conn. over the weekend. Police said he died from a stab wound to the neck.

Daniel C. Jordan, 50, a concert pianist who was the first American to receive a Rhodes Scholarship for music, was well known nationally and internationally for the development of the Anisa theory of early childhood education. The theory dealt with the physical, educational and spiritual aspects of human development. He was also a high ranking leader in the Bahai' religion in the United States. In addition, he was head of the education department at National University in Vista, Calif.

While teaching at UMass he and his wife and three children lived at 409 Prospect St. in Northampton. He was currently living in Escondito, Calif.

His body was discovered at 11 a.m. Saturday in a trash pile at the rear of a paved parking lot of a local store, Stamford police said. Police said they believe he was killed somewhere else and then brought to the parking lot. Deputy Police Chief George Mayer of Stamford said police have no motive and no leads for the killing.

Jordan was a professor at UMass from 1968 to 1981. His theory of grade advancement is currently used in elementary school in Fall River, in Granby, Suffield, and Windsor, Conn., and in Hampden, Maine.

Just before his death, Jordan had been incorporating his theory into computers in Kansas City, said dean of the school of education Mario Fantini. Fantini said the theory was being seriously considered by parochial schools partly because of its spiritual aspects.

According to New York City police, Jordan flew to LaGuardia Airport in New York City from California last Friday to speak the following morning at a conference at the New York University Club in Manhattan. Police said he had phoned an associate in New York to say he would be staying with friends. He never appeared at the conference, police said.

Jordan contributed to a book written by Fantini called "Parenting In a Multi-Civilized Society." The chapter has to do with universal privileges of human development that cut across all cultures, Fantini said.

Fantini added that he believes the significance of Jordan's accomplishment will become apparant to most people in the near future.

Jordan had been elected co-chairman of the Bahai' faith's nine-member governing assembly in August. He has also been active in Bahai' affairs in the Pioneer Valley.

"This place is in a state of shock, said Fantini, who called Jordan a caring and decent person.

Police said a full investigation is underway in the case.

World and national news

AP Laserphoto

Margaret Truman Daniel (center, wearing pearl necklace), the daughter of the later Bess Truman, is escorted by her husband, Clifton Daniel, behind the casket of the former first lady as they leave funeral services for Bess Truman in Independence, Mo. yesterday.

Arab delegates to meet with Reagan, swap peace plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will tell Arab leaders that the road to peace in the Middle East requires them to "come out of the closet" and openly recognize Israel, a senior State Department official said yesterday.

Briefing reporters on a visit by a six-nation delegation from the Arab League, the official said there are some "constructive elements" in an Arab peace plan adopted last month at Fez, Morocco.

But he also said it is essential that moderate Arab nations, especially Saudi Arabia, give Jordan a mandate to negotiate with Israel on behalf of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. He said he thinks King Hussein of Jordan would negotiate if he has Arab backing.

The Arab League delegation is headed by Morocco's King Hassan and includes the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Algeria, Syria and Tunisia. A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization is attached to the group, but will not be received here, U.S. officials said.

House report alleges Administration ignores rightist death squads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite twice certifying human rights progress in El Salvador, the Reagan administration has done little to investigate allegations that Salvadoran security forces have killed thousands of unarmed civilians, according to U.S. officials and a House report.

These sources say U.S. intelligence agencies have developed scant information on the government's alleged involvement in rightist death squads and charges that Salvadoran troops fire on non-combatants during sweeps through the countryside.

But while there is a general consensus on the lack of information, the reasons suggested for it vary.

Some say scarce intelligence resources had to be devoted to studying the leftist insurgency. Others cite the ban on U.S. military advisers going with troops into combat areas and the difficulty of assessing criminal cases in another country.

Still others suggest the administration does not want information that could embarrass the U.S.-backed government.

Retired Adm. Bobby R. Inman, who stepped down as deputy CIA director in June, said the absence of intelligence on the right resulted from a decision to concentrate the few U.S. intelligence "assets" in El Salvador on the actions of leftist guerrillas.

"You go back to the '79-80 time frame, the answer is that there were almost no assets, and then as the assets were built up, they were concentrated on what was judged to be the highest priority problem," the guerrilla threat, Inman said in an interview.

However, a House intelligence committee staff report issued last month claims the "dearth of firm information" on El Salvador's rightwing death squads stems from an apparent lack of interest among U.S. policymakers and intelligence analysts.

The report noted that when documents on rightist activity were captured from former Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson in 1980, they were "virtually ignored not only by policymakers ... but more importantly by the intelligence community."

The documents, including arms lists and a log of meetings, were seized when D'Aubuisson and other rightists were arrested and charged with plotting a coup. The House report said that after the documents were turned over to the CIA, "their whereabouts is unknown."

The CIA has refused comment on the House report. D'Aubuisson is now head of El Salvador's Constituent Assembly.

About 38,000 people — mostly unarmed civilians — have died in the political violence that has wracked El Salvador the past three years. Some human rights groups have blamed government forces and right-wing paramilitary groups for up to 80 percent of the killings.

Few of the murders are investigated, but probes into the December 1980 slayings of four American churchwomen and the January 1981 killings of two U.S. land reform advisors led ultimately to confessions by Salvadorian national guardsmen.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Out-of-state officials support Massachusetts Bottle Bill

BOSTON — Consumers may pay a couple of pennies more for a bottle of beer or a can of soda, but bottle laws mean less roadside litter and lower waste disposal costs, officials from three states said yesterday.

Top environmental officials from Michigan, Maine and Connecticut, where beverage container deposit laws have been in effect for some time, joined Massachusetts Environmental Affairs Secretary John A. Bewick in urging voters on Nov. 2 to retain the law.

Massachusetts' bottle bill, passed by the Legislature last year over Gov. Edward J. King's veto, would require consumers to pay a refundable deposit of at least a nickel on all beer and soda containers they bought after Jan. 17, 1983.

Opponents have mounted a repeal effort, which, if successful, would keep the law from taking effect.

The opponents have said the bill will result in loss of jobs in the container industry and in increased prices on grocery and package store shelves.

But Howard Tanner, director of the Michigan Natural Resources Department, said the bottle bill in that state cost about 250 jobs, but resulted in a net gain of about 4,500 workers.

"The people of Michigan love it," Tanner said. "Any way you look at it, the law has been an unqualified success."

Tanner, Maine Environmental Secretary Richard Anderson and William Delaney, director of information for Connecticut's environmental agency, all said at a Statehouse news conference that the measure resulted in dramatic decreases in roadside litter.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Ed Levine
Assistant Photo Editor — Jim Powers
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Donna Maurice
Suzanne Erickson, Janet Buch, Kyle Cooper
Terri Cooper, Scott Stockwell, Gail Tanzer
Adrianne Dufour, Sheryl Silver, Lynn Eisenberg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Workers bewildered as town's only factory plans shutdown

CHESTER — The ill economic winds blowing for the big steel mills and auto plants of the Midwest, have sent a bitter chill through this tiny Berkshire Hills community best known as the state's coldest spot.

Baystate Abrasives, the only industrial employer in the town of 1,100 people in a deep mountain valley, announced Wednesday that it is closing its plant Nov. 15. The shut down will put 65 people out of work.

"People were too plain shocked to say much," said Eugene Trudeau, who worked at the plant for 31 years. "What can you say? It's better than half my life down the drain.

"My chances of getting a good job at 58 are nill. And there are a lot of us in the same boat."

"We're isolated out here and it will cost all of us a lot of money to travel where the jobs are — if there are any," said another worker, who declined to give his name, as the men gathered in the Longhorn Saloon and the Park Cafe.

"We can't afford the transportation to Pittsfield or Springfield and we can't afford to live here on unemployment," he said.

AP Laserphoto

Patricia Clifford of Topsham, Maine takes 18-month-old for a morning stroll yesterday over the suspension bridge that spans the Androscoggin River between Topsham and Brunswick.

Legislature votes to enlarge planned high-tech board

BOSTON — A bill expanding the yet-to-be appointed board of the Massachusetts Technology Park Corp. won committee approval and then quick House passage yesterday.

The corporation is charged with selecting a site and overseeing construction of a $40 million microelectronics center to prepare Massachusetts workers for high technology jobs.

Under a recently-passed law, the board of directors is to include 19 people, most of whom must be either company presidents, academics or engineers.

The new bill would add four members without the requirement that they have any particular affiliation.

Rep. Timothy Bassett, House chairman of the Legislature's Commerce and Labor Committee, said Thursday that "additional people will be appointed with a broader perspective" under the new bill.

The measure was approved without discussion in the House and now goes to the Senate.

The Legislature recently expanded the judiciary and state college and university boards, creating many new posts, although most unpaid, for out-going Gov. Edward J. King to fill.

King hasn't yet filled any of the slots on the technology park board.

Opponents dump on nuclear referendum question

BOSTON — While 11 northeastern states are discussing a regional solution to low-level nuclear waste disposal problems, Massachusetts voters will decide Nov. 2 how much leeway to give this state's negotiators.

Opponents of the ballot question that, if passed, would require a statewide vote before a low-level waste treatment facility could be built in this state say passage would undermine negotiations and force Massachusetts to go it alone.

"We would be forced into only one alternative, to build a low-level radioactive waste disposal facility in Massachusetts," said Sen. Carol Amick, D-Bedford, head of a legislative commission tackling the issue.

Environmental Affairs Secretary John A. Bewick says the complex 1,400 word ballot proposal is "unworkable, unnecessary and unrealistic."

On the other side, Albert M. Giordano, campaign manager for the Massachusetts Nuclear Referendum Campaign, said, "there is an implied invitation to dump it in Massachusetts" underlying the regional negotiations.

"No radiation without representation" is the campaign's oft-used slogan.

SGA endorsement draws charge of slander

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Jim Tripp, the Republican nominee for the state senate seat currently held by Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, yesterday reacted angrily to an endorsement of his opponent the previous day by the Undergraduate Student Senate of the University of Massachusetts, saying he will "absolutely insist on a full apology."

The endorsement for the Nov. 2 election by a nearly three-fifths vote came after a debate in which Student Government Association President Jim Murphy said Tripp had not "set foot on campus" and would have had he sufficient interest in higher education.

Saying he was "misrepresented so badly as to be slandered," Tripp, a 1970 UMass graduate and himself a former student senator, said the senate was presented with "very false, false information."

"I am horrified that someone under the auspices of the University would endorse a candidate, whether myself or Mr. Olver," Tripp said, explaining his belief that a publicly funded organization should not be making political endorsements.

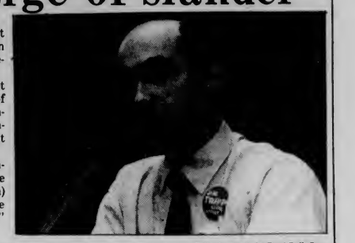
While admitting "there were a couple of things said (at the meeting) that weren't true," senate Speaker Sharon Davies yesterday defended the vote, saying "the endorsement had nothing to do with Tripp."

Although Davies said neither she nor Murphy had met Tripp, she said the endorsement was made on the basis of Olver's record of past support of the University and its interests in the legislature. She said Tripp would have contacted the senate had he considered their endorsement "so important."

Tripp said the motion, "engineered by the Olver campaign," was "railroaded through by the leadership of the student senate, just as they do in (the State House in) Boston," and called Davies "abusive of her position." He said he was portrayed as "not a friend of the University" by the "lackeys for Mr. Olver."

Sheila Sullivan, chair of the senate's public policy committee, which introduced the motion, was in Washington yesterday and thus unavailable for comment.

Davies said she had not been contacted by Tripp concerning his demand for an apology, and declined to speculate on future senate actions concerning it.



Collegian photo by Terri Bellaflore

Jim Tripp, Republican nominee for the state senate seat now held by Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, speaks in the Campus Center this weekend at an appearnace with his party's gubernatorial candidate, John Sears.

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Children from the North Village Children's Center in Amherst go for a jog while enjoying a field trip to the Campus Center pond.

Campus Center cable TV disk considered

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
and LAURIE FISCHER
Collegian Staff

The purchase of a $6,000 cable satellite reception system for the Campus Center is being considered by the Campus Center Department of Food Services and the Department of Accommodations.

The proposal, awaiting the approval of the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG), is to install a satellite disc on the roof of the Campus Center so the Blue Wall, the Top of the Campus Restaurant and Lounge and the hotel can receive two or more major cable stations and greatly improve television reception.

The BOG is currently setting up a committee to do research on the system by reviewing its advantages and limitations and will eventually pass a motion on the issue.

Campus Center Director William Harris said that after the initial cost of the disc is covered, savings on entertainment in the Blue Wall would increase.

"The Blue Wall would only stand to gain from this because they could provide top rate movie and sports entertainment at a minimal cost every day instead of always going out and hiring comedians and entertainers at a much greater price," Harris said. "I think being able to show Boston Red Sox and Boston Celtic's games would attract large crowds in the Blue Wall and improve sales on drinks. We are all for it."

Last night at their weekly meeting, the BOG voted to hire paid coordinators to overlook building operations, special projects and conference services for the Campus Center.

"There were not a large number of candidates applying for the coordinators position, however, the three people chosen would have surfaced from any application pool, regardless of the size," said BOG Chair Ron Keefe.

In other business, the BOG granted "incubator space" for three groups including the Pioneer Valley Scholars Association.

Incubator space provides the group with a desk and an optional phone in the Campus Center and the opportunity to grow as an organized group within the University.

"The scholars association attempts to bridge the gap between people and resources. Students and the surrounding community often have no idea what events are going on," said Frank Donovan, a representative from the association.

Donovan, 67, an undergraduate student in the school of education, said, "Presently, there are four undergraduate students over 60. By 1987, we want to have 2,000. There are a series of workshops, The Second Life Workshops, offering programs on alternative ways of living and political awareness."

Trustee chair pledges UMass support

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Robert Quinn, chairman of the University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees, spoke to the Faculty Senate yesterday and pledged his support to the continuance of strong public higher education.

Saying that public higher education was not measuring up to the standards of years ago, Quinn promised to fight on behalf of UMass to keep standards high. He said this will be difficult because of some of the actions of the Board of Regents in the past several years.

"The first thing that the Board of Regents did after they were formed a few years ago was to wipe out Boston State College. There was nothing gracious about it. It was very tough, and very bloody. This reflects on all of higher education when we act on a matter that looks so crass or severe," Quinn said.

Looking back at his college days at both Boston College and Harvard Law School, Quinn said students should have the same opportunities today that he had when he was younger.

"If we don't have a strong public institution, students today will not have the opportunity that we had," he said.

Quinn expressed the need for the Faculty Senate and the Trustees to work together to "fulfill the purpose and goal that all deserving applicants will have the opportunity to go to college."

"I have a conviction that this University should be encouraged, he said. "I know the Regents know more about this University now than ever before."

"We started to find out how good this College was last year. Then, (former Chancellor) Henry Koffler came to us and said 'I'm heading for Arizona'," he said.

Commenting on the new Chancellor of the Amherst campus, Joseph Duffey, Quinn said, "He's a very fine person. But he's going to have to prove himself."

Now that Duffey has taken office, Quinn said the Trustees can now start to look closely at UMass again.

"We are now ready to look at the University and all its parts to make sure it is continuing its goal of excellence it has had in the past," he said.

Reflecting on his career before becoming a trustee, Quinn said he loved the UMass, Amherst campus. He said of all the things about this campus he admires most, the "challenge professors put to students in academic excellence" is the one that sticks out in his mind.

Interviews continue for vice chancellor hopefuls

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

A search committee is currently interviewing applicants for the newly created position of vice chancellor of community relations at the University of Massachusetts.

This new vice chancellor will oversee public, state and alumni relations at UMass, said Harry T. Allan, director of the committee and dean of the School of Business Administration.

The new administrator will also coordinate fundraising from alumni, private companies and government sources and oversee the University Publications Office. The publications office prints all UMass publications including admissions catalogs, administration documents and Fine Arts Center advertisements.

Allan said the position, which was first conceived in 1970, is late in finally being filled.

"We're catching up with the rest of the world," he said.

Kenneth moore, a June graduate of UMass who continues to serve as student representataive on the search committee, said coordination of government and media relations will be centralized under this position.

"Our state and media relations have always been a point of contention," he said. "We're light years behind the rest of the country."

The committee is currently interviewing seven candidates from a pool of over 200 applicants, Moore said.

Last year, the committee extended its search after would leave UMass for the University of Arizona. The search was extended "to give the new chancellor the opportunity to have more input into the process, Moore said.

UMass Chancellor Joseph Duffey said Tuesday he is excited about the position because the new vice chancellor will work extensively with the alumni board.

Mentioning that alumni contributions to the University have increased over the past few years, Duffey said, "I am impressed with the loyalty and enthusiasm of the alumni board. This next step will provide us with an even greater opportunity to work with the alumni."

Yesterday, Allan declined to release the names of those applicants being interviewd for the position. He said some applicants have not yet told their current employers they have applied for the position.

Allan said the search would reach the "short list situation" within the next six weeks, which "will result in formal visits to campus."

Hypercurricula...

Today

STUDENT RENT CONTROL NETWORK — is offering a workshop and informative meeting open to anyone interested in learning about rent control in Amherst. For more info. call 5-1245 and ask for Nina 10 a.m. 801 Campus Center.

SHABBAT SERVICES — Shabbat is a chance to be a part of an expressive community, recall experiences of the week, and receive and give lots of good energy. 7 p.m. Dukes Room, Student Union.

STUDENT RETREAT — An opportunity to meet UCF people and become familiar with programs. No strings attached! Contact UCF office, 545-2661, for more information or to sign up. Transportation and meals provided. 5 p.m. today to 7 p.m. tomorrow.

Tomorrow

HARVEST NIPPER DANCE — Annual Dinner & Contra Dance sponsored by the UMass Outing Club. Cider, food, dancing & fun! Cost $1.00 for dinner and $2 for the dance. 7 p.m. Grinnel Arena.

Sunday

CHURCH BUS — Coffee and donuts are served in Grayson Main Lounge at 9:00 a.m. Bus leaves from Grayson at 9:30, stops at Cashin Dorm at 9:35, and at NOPE at 9:40 a.m. for Amherst churches.

HOUSE CHURCH — A student group engaged in mutual ministry, Bible study, personal sharing and encounter, and a simple closing Communion which reflects the spirit of the group. 7 p.m. 428 Student Union.

Renaming to honor Furcolo

By BILL WALL
Collegian Staff

The School of Education located on North Pleasant Street is to be renamed in honor of Foster Furcolo, former governor of Massachusetts, former member of Congress and present member of the Board of Regents, at a ceremony, November 13 in conjunction with the annual Legislator's Day at the University of Massachusetts.

The decision to honor Furcolo was made by the Board of Trustees in recognition of Furcolo's contribution to the development of higher education in Massachusetts said Cheryl Walsh, assistant director of community relations for the University.

Furcolo, while governor of Massachusetts from 1957 to 1961, pushed for legislation to establish the community college system in the state as well as creating the Massachusetts Scholarship Foundation and the Board of Educational Assistance, and organizing the first statewide conference on public higher education, said Robert Brooks, associate dean of students.

"He was the father of the community college system in the Commonwealth and his support for UMass far exceeds that of any previous governor," Brooks said. "His recommendations for budget support for UMass was eight times that of the previous administration."

Janet Gorman Murphy, president of Lyndon State College in Vermont, will deliver a personal tribute to Furcolo. Chancellor Joseph Duffey will preside over the affair with UMass President David C. Knapp also scheduled to attend, Walsh said. Governor Edward J. King may also attend, he said.

Mario Fantini, dean of the school of Education, said he felt the tribute to Furcolo was appropriate.

"He was a friend of higher education in two ways: the establishment of the community college system in Massachusetts along with his work for higher education in the state and his efforts as a congressman to promote national student aid and the idea of equalizing access to higher education. He really is one of the architects of (national) student aid," Fantini said.

NRBO
with The Pousette-Dart Band
Fri. Oct. 22nd at 8 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
$4.00 General Admission Fee
Tickets available at:
Faces of Earth, Amherst
Platterpus Records, Northampton
Please no alcohol, smoking, cameras or tape recorders
Doors open at 7 PM

Buy this diamond initial charm now and get a $19.95 "S" chain as a bonus!

Alone, this two-diamond initial charm in 14 karat gold is one beautiful buy at $39.95

But, when you add our 16-inch 14 karat gold "S" chain (valued at $19.95) as your fabulous bonus with each diamond initial charm purchase, that's an absolutely fantastic buy. A super value too! But hurry! Quantities are limited.

90 day Grand Policy
ZALES
The Diamond Store is all you need to know.
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
584-7770
Fairfield Mall
Chicopee, MA
593-6426
ZALES CREDIT INCLUDING "90-DAY PLAN—SAME AS CASH"
MasterCard • VISA • American Express • Carte Blanche • Diners Club • Illustrations enlarged.

HAMPDEN THEATER
presents
A COMEDY
by
Word of Mouth Productions
Sat. Oct. 23 8:00 pm
Tickets $2.50

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD FALL COURSE BOOKS.
RETURNS START
NOVEMBER 1st
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK— YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Concourse sales put vendors through school

By JULIE LANZA
Collegian Correspondent

In response to present economic hardships, some students here on campus are taking the initiative to make the system work for them.

These students, either through selling their crafts or services on the Campus Center concourse or out of their own rooms, have found an easy, effective and profitable way to provide themselves with important income.

Some student vendors see this income as a "necessity," while others consider it "just spending money," but to nearly all it demonstrates a way of turning the economic system around to help themselves and others.

Chris Madow, a part-time continuing education student and a mother of three, has a jewelry stand set up two days a week on the concourse.

Madow says she feels she can offer "a nice, inexpensive product to the student," while providing for herself a way to stay in school.

"I enjoy this because I have an opportunity to learn a craft and the money I make pays for all my college expenses. It's really the only way I can get through school," Madow said.

Shaw Taylor, another part-time student, who sells prints on the concourse, said the vending table system is an "alternative to retail stores."

"I think most people like the idea, even in a country with production controlled by huge corporations, there are still these vending stands," Taylor said. Taylor said he usually works an eight hour day and a good day is when he takes in $40.

He said being a vendor has definitely helped financially. Taylor also said he thinks the students benefit from this, in that, "the more alternatives, information and competition there is, the better the system is."

Aside from students who work on the concourse, there are some who sell goods out of their own room or offer services for a fee.

One of these students, who goes by the name of "Thereza," is a professional belly dancer and for a fee will send "bellygrams."

Thereza, a senior business major, said the money she makes from dancing goes toward college costs such as books, supplies, food and other necessities.

"I wouldn't be as comfortable as I am or do half the things I do without this extra income," she said.

Thereza also said she enjoys the freedom to make her own hours.

"I think that by working long hours at a job, a lot of students take a lot away from their education," she said.

Gerry Lempicki, a sophomore engineering major who sells handmade sweaters out of his own room, said the money he gets from this is put aside for college costs and also for spending money.

Lempicki said he agrees it is hard for people to find jobs because of the economy and this is "a good way of putting money aside."

He also said his sales benefit the students who are getting these goods at a reasonable price.

"A lot of people I know work over winter break to earn money for school. This way, even if I don't get a job, then I'll still have money and won't have to worry," Lempicki said. He added that "most student wages do not increase with tuition."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers
Fallen leaves gather on the hedges and sidewalk beside Rt. 116 in South Amherst this weekend as a lone runner heads down the path through them.

Newslines . . .

Sign up deadline today for Washington, D.C. internships

Today is the last day to sign up for Spring 1982 internships in Washington, D.C. Those people interested should contact the Office of Internships at 545-0727 or drop by the office in Room 16 of the Curry Hicks building.

Swim course for handicapped to be offered next weekend

A 24-hour Adapted Aquatic course — swimming for the handicapped — will be offered from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Oct. 30 and 31 and Nov. 6. All three sessions are required for certification and the course itself is free. The prerequisite is a Water Safety Instructor rating. Information is available from the secretary in NOPE gymnasium.

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

SHOWCASE CINEMAS
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE ROAD
WEST SPRINGFIELD
24 HR. TELEPHONE 733-5131
BARGAIN MATINEE DAILY
FIRST SHOW ONLY $2.50

MONSIGNOR
A FRANK YABLANS Presentation
A FRANK PERRY Film
CHRISTOPHER REEVE in MONSIGNOR
starring GENEVIEVE BUJOLD
FERNANDO REY JASON MILLER
JOE CORTESE ADOLFO CELI with TOMAS MILIAN as Francisco
BILLY WILLIAMS, B.S.C.
JOHN WILLIAMS
FRANK YABLANS
DAVID SIVEN, JR.
ABRAHAM POLONSKY
WENDELL MAYES
JACK ALAIN LEGER
FRANK PERRY
R RESTRICTED
20th Century Fox
STARTS TODAY!

FOUR SEASONS

Rolling Rock.....16 oz cans.....$9.99
Busch.....12 oz cans.....$7.99
Tuborg.....lite or dark btls.....$7.99
Grolsch.....12 oz btls.....$12.99

Kahlua.....500 ml.....$7.69
McGregor Scotch.....750 ml.....$5.59
Gilbeys Gin.....1.75 L.....$11.99
Southern Comfort.....1 L.....$8.99

Mondavi Table Wine.....1.5 L.....$5.99
NEW ITEM - CIRIACO WINES
..Lambrusco or Bianco 750 ml..$1.79..1.5..$3.49

Kegs Free Delivery

Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174

You Dirty Rat:
To the person who stole my Cliffs Notes: You can steal my car, steal my watch, even steal my date! But to steal my Cliffs Notes is a low blow indeed. Just because they give a great review and make those tough lit assignments easy to understand is no excuse. Next time, go to the bookstore and buy your own Cliffs Notes. May the bird of paradise nest in your bookbag.! Ripped Off

Please...
Recycle this paper

FRIDAY MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE HAPPY HOUR

Mike's Smorgy is back!
"All you can eat for $1.00"
Still the best happy hour in town
three 7 oz Rolling Rocks $1.25
Bar drinks - 95¢
4:00 - 7:00

amc THEATRES
$2.00 matinee & twilite Reduced prices for stuuents with an AMC Discount Card

amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL

E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL
He is afraid. He is lonely. He is alone.
Fri at (4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
Sat (1:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
Sun (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
PG

They started a war they couldn't finish.
Sylvester Stallone in FIRST BLOOD
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sat (2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sun (1:30 & 4:00 @ $2.00)6:15, 8:15
R

RICHARD GERE
AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sat (2:15 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sun (1:00 & 3:30 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
R

Forgive me Father, for I have sinned
Christopher Reeves in MONSIGNOR
Fri (4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
Sat (1:45 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:30
Sun (1:00 & 3:30 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
R

amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

THE YEAR THE DREAMS CAME TRUE.
PETER O'TOOLE
MY FAVORITE YEAR
Fri (5:15 @ $2.00) 8:00, 10:15
Sat (2:30 & 5:15 @ $2.00) 8:00, 10:15
Sun (1:30 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 6:30, 8:45
PG

The night no one comes home.
HALLOWEEN III SEASON OF THE WITCH
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sat (2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
Sun (1:15 & 3:30 @ $2.00) 6:00, 8:30
R

THE SENDER
Fri (5:30 @ $2.00) 7:45, 10:15
Sat (2:15 & 5:30 @ $2.00) 7:45, 10:15
Sun (1:30 & 4:00 @ $2.00) 6:15, 8:45
R

BETTE MIDLER
JINXED
Fri (5:15 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
Sat (2:30 & 5:15 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
Sun (1:15 & 3:45 @ $2.00) 6:15, 8:30
R

MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY 12:15 AM ALL SEATS $3.00
amc HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
50¢ off to anyone in costume
R

Apocalypse Now
R
THE MONSTER MOVIE
AN AMERICAN WEREWOLF IN LONDON
R
THE EXORCIST
R

Candy it aint!

Mr. Boston Schnapps.

Look for Mr. Boston's two new cookbooks, the Cordial Cooking Guide and the Spirited Dessert Guide. Available at bookstores or through Warner Books, 75 Rockefeller Plaza, Special Sales Dept. B, New York, New York 10019
Mr. Boston Schnapps 54, 80, and 100 proof. Produced by Mr. Boston Distiller, Owensboro, KY, Albany, GA • 1982

EDITORIAL/OPINION

How unreal is our sheltered reality?

I normally shy away from lengthy discussions, especially on a Friday night at the local Pub, however, quite by accident I found myself in the middle of a heated discussion of which I wanted no part.

"Basically, what I am trying to get at," my friend began, "is whether we live here at UMass in a real environment, or do we just exist from day to day in a sheltered, unrealistic, hedonistic world?" I was taken aback. Not only had I never seen this side of my friend, but the effects of the two gin and tonics were slowly altering my state of awareness.

Charisse Feinerman

In the instant that it takes to return an answer, many thoughts rushed through my semi-pickled brain. While I was thinking, I stumbled on some hidden feelings that I had on this subject. I agreed with some things that he had been saying, but I disagreed with others. I knew that I could not come into the conversation with a wishy-washy attitude. I had to be firm with what I thought, and stick to it, regardless. But I hadn't made up my mind yet.

The instant was quickly coming to an end, and my friend was waiting for an answer. I stalled for some more time by taking another sip from my drink. (This would help me either way). I decided that I would pose my ideas, and attempt to muster all the drama of a Clark Gable-Vivian Leigh scene as I stated my final conclusions.

"You could look at this in many ways," I began. "Sure we live in a sheltered atmosphere. We are sheltered from the pressures of the 'real' world. We don't have to worry about going to work from 9 to 5 and most of us don't have families to support. You are right in that respect." Feeling a certain amount of dominance I continued.

"About us living a life of 'unreality', well with this I am afraid I would have to disagree. There are academic as well as social realities that we must face everyday. The reality that after a certain number of years (for most of us it amounts to four) there is a 'real' world, or perhaps graduate or professional school, is a fact that must be dealt with and not taken lightly. Sorry," I said to my opponent, "but my life here at UMass is certainly one of reality."

I was psyched, I had gotten two points across, and not even as much as an interruption. But as I thought on (hearing the wheels and cogs of my brain squeaking from lack of use) my toughest challenge was coming up: hedonism. What did I know about hedonism? All I could remember was learning that hedonism was the cause of the fall of some empire. Looking at my G & T for some insight and wisdom I continued.

"Hedonism," I said, "is a very strong word. You really don't believe that the students of UMass are wanting only the pleasures of life. Do you really believe," I continued, "that people here believe that the sole good in life is the acquisition of pleasure, that moral duty is fulfilled in the gratification of pleasure-seeking instincts and dispositions?"

I received nothing but a blank stare. I reflected at what I had just said, and we both began to laugh. Well, I thought, two out of three ain't bad.

Charisse Feinerman is a Collegian staff member.

Letters

Rent Control may be an issue

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the Collegian for it's excellent coverage (10/12/82) on the rental crisis in Amherst. However, for the record, I have never stated categorically that rent control will be on the agenda at the spring 83 town meeting in Amherst. Given the excessive rents that landlords are charging, I would certainly not be surprised if this happened. Two additional points of information: the student housing network is called The Tenant Organizing Project (T.O.P.) and three out of five members of the Board of Selectmen supported the rent control articles previously brought before the town meeting. The top priority for us at OCHO this year is educating the community and the campus about the plight of the local renter and we look forward to reporting on the student commuter population in the future.

Joanne Levenson
Off Campus Housing Office

Stockbridge deserves respect

To the Editor:

To the Girl I Overhead Calling Stockbridge Students "Stupid": I graduated from Stockbridge last spring, and I was angered by your comments.

Like myself, many of the Stockbridge students have come to college after a number of years working in their respective job fields. This doesn't mean they are less intelligent, rather it's indicative of the high motivation levels of these men and women. If you don't think it takes a lot of motivation to begin, and complete, a college education after six years of independent living, I can tell you otherwise. It's damned difficult.

When I enrolled in Stockbridge, I didn't know what kind of people I would be studying with. I was impressed to find that the Stockbridge students, as a whole, are some of the most motivating and well-adjusted students on this campus. These students are in school specifically to get the education they want. I think many of the University students could learn from their attitudes.

The Stockbridge School of Agriculture is one of the finest of its kind in the world. Its Turfgrass Management program is the oldest in the country, and a Stockbridge degree in this major is widely regarded as the best.

At the Stockbridge commencement last June, Dean Denison asked for a show of hands from the graduates who had already secured jobs. Every graduate, in every major, in that class of some 350 had secured a job, and many had already started working. Can any department in the University make that claim? I doubt it. Is there such a demand for "stupid" students? Again, I doubt it.

Les Adams
Amherst

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 lines may be condensed due to space limitations.

In prevailings no one wins

(Editor's note — This is the third article in a three part series which examines President Reagan's new policy toward Russia and its effect on various aspects of the world political scene.)

President Reagan's new foreign policy of prevailing over Russia is dangerous for many reasons. In the past two articles, it has been shown to be dangerous because of already shaky allied relationships. Dangerous because of the possibility of mis-communications, slip-ups and economic longterm effects. Yet all of these threats pale in comparison when one realizes Reagan is pushing this aggressive policy at a time when actions of this type are most dangerous. Levels in both the U.S. and the Soviet Union of nuclear weapons are at their highest ever. Also policy-makers within the Administration are actually intimating that a nuclear war could possibly be winnable. Both of these concepts will be discussed below.

John F. Hudson

Before President Reagan took office, the general nuclear strategy of the U.S. had been MAD or Mutually Assured Destruction. This policy acted on the idea of deterrence as a threat, the idea of mass annihilation on each side as too much for either to rationally stomach. The first mention by any Administration official of the possibility of a winnable nuclear war came during the 1980 Presidential election. Then candidate George Bush put forth his theory that the U.S. could actually "win" a nuclear war. This was the first inkling of a change in attitude toward nuclear battle that any member of "the powers that be" in U.S. policy formulation had stated. A second remark surfaced earlier this year as a part of the then ongoing battle between Defense Secretary Weinberger and former Secretary of State Haig. Before a Congressional committee Mr. Weinberger discussed the possibility of a nuclear warning shot being fired in Western Europe as a deterrent to Soviet troop movements. An open policy debate, well covered by the media, ensued between the two. More importantly though, it seemed that the administration was moving towards the unthinkable prospect of victory through nuclear U.S. arsenals.

By coupling these remarks by two of the most powerful men in U.S. policy formulation (Bush and Weinberger) with the new administration policy of prevailing, one can see the dangers associated with discussing such radical ideas. Firstly it sends off a dangerous signal to the Soviets, ever paranoid about their own security, that the U.S. actually believes it can win a nuclear war. Secondly it paints us as crazy war mongerers in the eyes of our allies, a picture which we cannot afford to paint at this time.

On a broader level, President Reagan's new policy is absurd, if not suicidal, in this time of record nuclear stockpiles and rigid U.S.-Soviet relations. It is truly tragic Reagan seeks to prevail over the Soviets when an acceptance of their power and an effort by both to negotiate their differences would seem far more logical and safer. Both sides in this dispute have to realize that in this nuclear age, all countries on this planet will in one way or another become involved in any nuclear exchange.

In the end Mr. Reagan has too realize that answers to difficulties in this day and age do not come as easily as they did in the many movies in which he found himself an actor. For the sake of our own country and the rest of the world, Mr. Reagan must realize that on the post-nuclear war earth, no one will prevail.

John F. Hudson is the Collegian Assoc. Exec. Editor

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Johanna Hosom News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Beival, Associate News Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Bill Shea, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

全城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7636

Halloween Novelty and Theatrical Supplies
Open Daily & Sat 9 to 5:15
Thurs. Nights till 9
Fri. Oct. 29 till 9
Check Our Low Prices
H.L. Childs & Son
25 State Street Northampton
584-2604

Willie Colon
and his orchestra
Sunday, October 24, 6 pm
Amherst College New Gym
Tickets $4.00 in advance available at:
For the Record at Faces of Earth, Amherst and Main St. Records, Northampton or $ at the door

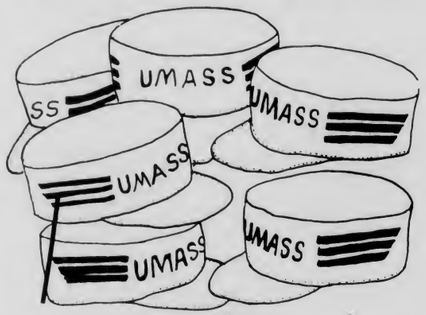
Read the Collegian everyday.

The largest selection of hard aluminum MEASURING TOOLS in the country!
FAIRGATE
STRAIGHT EDGES/T-SQUARES
METRIC RULES/L-SQUARES
CENTERING RULES
TRIANGLES/CURVE STICKS
INKING RULES
and many others..
SEE THEM AT YOUR BOOKSTORE or SEND FOR CATALOG
FAIRGATE RULE CO., INC.
22 Adams Ave.
P.O. Box 278
COLD SPRING, N.Y.
U.S.A. 10516

THE WARRIORS
TONIGHT AT CCA
TIMES: 7, 9, & 11 PM

DELANO'S
OCTOBER'S HAPPY HOUR SPECIAL
2 for 1
Beck's Beer
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10 - midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St
253-5141

PAINTERS' CAPS



99¢
Wear your pride to all events.
Located in the Campus Center
OPEN
M-f 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

THE
whole wheat PIZZA FACTORY
"WEEK-END SPECIAL"
FRIDAY-SUNDAY:
FROM 7:00pm-3:00am
GET ANY SIZE PIZZA
WITH ALL TOPPINGS
AT ONLY 35¢ EACH
STORE HOURS: (EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1st)
MON.-THUR. 4:00PM - 2:00AM
FRI.-SUN. NOON - 3:00AM
(AMHERST STORE ONLY)
WHOLE WHEAT OR WHITE DOUGH AVAILABLE!
FAST FREE DELIVERY IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS,
AND PICK-UPS IN 15
MINUTES OR LESS.
THE WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA FACTORY CALL 256-8587

Arts

Soldier of misfortune

THE SOLDIER
Directed by James Glickenhaus
Mountain Farms Mall

By ANDREW GORDON
Collegian Staff

Imagine trying to figure out Mission Impossible without seeing the first thirty minutes. Now imagine a film as aesthetically appealing as Terror Train, as technically competent as Plan 9 From Outer Space and with as much political integrity as Megaforce; you might end up with something with an overall entertainment value equivalent to James Glickenhaus' 1980 flick, The Exterminator. That was bad enough, but now Glickenhaus has made a new film, The Soldier, and it isn't even as good. To call The Soldier crap is to exaggerate it's worth.

It's hard to pigeonhole The Soldier to any particular shortcoming, but let's start with the "plot." Now, I consider myself to be a reasonably intelligent person. I graduated high school and its entirely possible that I'll graduate college, but at no point during this film was I ever totally confident that I knew what was going on. In fact, for most of the picture, I didn't have a clue. This much I gather: the Russians have stolen 180 pounds of plutonium and they will blow up Saudi Arabia unless the United States forces Israel off the left bank. Why, you may ask? I know I did. As it turns out, the president is not sure how to deal with the Russkies, but one man is; he's a C.I.A. trained agent who knows everyone and everything. His nickname: the soldier.

Okay, maybe Sean Connery, or Richard Harris, or even Hardy Kruger, but in the title role they have a young Brooklyn actor named Ken Wahl who's not even remotely convincing. In other ridiculous casting coups there's a group of Russian agents with thicker Brooklyn accents than Wahl and a female Israeli agent whose constant ultra-seriousness gets to be a real drag fast. The film's obligatory love scene between her and Wahl comes so out of nowhere that it provoked hearty laughs from the audience.

The one major casting scam is the film's claim to be "co-starring Klaus Kinski as Dachau, the killer." Well, Kinski's character may be named Dachau and he may be a killer, but it must also be noted that the acclaimed European actor appears in three (3) shots and probably took less time to shoot than it takes to boil water.

I suppose the film's major detriment is its complete and utter implausibility (or should I say impossibility). If it were played campy, tongue-in-cheek, it might have had a chance, but the film really expects you to believe that (1) 180 pounds of plutonium will fit into a metal case the size of a baseball bat; (2) that a Russian spy can kill the head of the C.I.A. by dressing up as a cleaning woman and walking into his office late at night to build and plant a light bomb; (3) that three soldiers can completely take over a missile silo by posing as repairmen and (4) that the solution to any problem is to threaten to nuke Russia ("I do not sink zay are bluffing comrade, dismantle zee bomb.").

Admittedly, the picture features some great action — car chases, fist fights, explosions and a ski jump gun battle that paralyzed a stuntman — but you can see most of these scenes on the T.V. commercial; Pass on the movie.

Klaus Kinski is Dachau the killer in The Soldier.

Funky, funky but Xica

Altair Lima and Zeze Motta in Carlos Diegues' Xica.

XICA
Pleasant St. Theatre
Oct. 13-26

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Correspondent

Xica is director Carlos Diegues campy tribute to the legendary black slave Xica da Silva who rose to notoriety during the colonization of Brazil.

The film is set in Arraial do Tijuco, the principal center of Brazil's diamond region, during the second half of the 18th century. Xica (pronouced shee-ka] is a slave in the household of the Military Chief of Tijuco, Sargento-Mor. But she sets her ambitions on the new Contractor, Joao Fernandes, who has just arrived in the region.

Zeze Motta as Xica sweeps you off your feet as she reaches for her dream of freedom and power. She begins by seducing the Contractor, played by Wimor Chagas. The Contractor is fascinated by her and buys Xica in order to have her as his mistress. Chagas' Joao Fernandes is the anchor to Zeze Motta's Xica. He projects the only calm presence in the entire film.

But when it comes to fulfilling Xica's wishes, the Contractor knows no restraint. He shocks the local white society by having her set at dinner with the white aristocracy. But when Xica is barred from worshipping in the local Catholic church even though she is now a free woman, she is determined to take her revenge on the white population.

She achieves this in part by having Joao Fernandes build a lake for her and construct a full-size galley so she can sail in it with her attendants. It is here that we see Xica at the peak of her power. Overshadowing her though is the threat of interference from the King of Portugal.

Stories about Xica and Joao Fernandes have caused an incredible scandal in the Court. As a result, the King sends an Inspector, played by Jose Wilker with appropriate snobbishness, to find out if these stories are true. In order to prevent the Inspector from removing Joao Fernandes, Xica plots to overthrow the Portugese government in Tijuco. But as with such speedy rises to power and intrigue, both she and Fernandes lose.

Xica is an exuberant portrayal of the Evita Peron of Brazil. Director Carlos Diegues makes the film enjoyable to watch because the characters all seem to be having a wonderful time on screen. There is a joy in the atmosphere of this film that makes it a real pleasure. Although some of the mysterious power that Xica has over Joao Fernandes is hard to believe, these scenes add to the film's overall hilaritoverall hilarity.

Zeze Motta as Xica should not be missed. She helps to really let the film take off into its own reality. At times it seem incredible that one person could have so much power over an entire society. But she reigned over the most opulent and exotic societies ever seen in Brazil. Xica is a rich portrayal that does justice to the legend that inspired it.

trailers

By Andy Gordon

Universal Pictures Production Schedule — Part II

March 25 will be the release date for two new films. The first is Cross Creek, based on the autobiography of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings. Oscar-winning actress Mary Steenburgen will portray the indomitable author, who penned the classic The Yearling. Filming has just finished on the Martin Ritt production, which also stars Rip Torn, Peter Coyote and Malcolm McDowell (Steenburgen's husband).

Going Berserk will also premiere that day. The film, which has also tentatively been titled Drums Over Malta and Tirebiter, will be the first film from the Second City Television troupe. John Candy stars as a limousine driver who is brainwashed by a religious aerobics cult into assassinating his future father-in-law. From there, the press release states, the film gets really outlandish. Joe Flaherty and Eugene Levy also appear in the film. David Steinberg directed it.

On the more serious side, Sean Penn plays a 16 year old gang member, on a collision course with both society and a rival in another gang. Penn, who played Jeff Spicoli in Fast Times at Ridgemont High, will co-star wih close to 40 real gang members who are housed at the reformatory where the film was shot. Rick Rosenthal, who made last years awful Halloween II, is director of the drama, which also stars Reni Santoni (Clint's partner in Dirty Harry) and Eric Gurry (Pacino's son in Author, Author). The picture is set to be released on April 15 with the title Bad Boys.

In May, Dan Aykroyd will hit the screen as Dr. Detroit, a wild pimp. Actually, he is Cliff Skirdlow, a mild mannered college professor who is conned into becoming the fictitious mobster to protect a stable of "working girls," (Sound like Night Shift?). Also starring in the film are Howard Hesseman and Donna Dixon. Michael Pressman (Some Kind of Here, Those Lips, Those Eyes) is director.

The sequel of the decade will open on May 6. Psycho II picks up 22 years after the original, with Norman Bates just getting out of an asylum. Anthony Perkins recreates his famous role and director Richard Franklin has promised to remain true to the Hitchcock style. Vera Miles also reprises her role and meg Tilly and Robert Loggia are added in new roles.

Francis Ford Coppola enjoyed filming S.E. Hinton's The Outsiders in Tulsa so much that he took another one of her works, Rumble Fish, and is filming that too in Tulsa. Shooting in the "seedy parts of town," the film explores the relationship between two brothers and their friends in a decaying neighborhood. An excellent case is featured. Mickey Rouke (Diner) and Matt Dillon are the brothers and Diane Lane, Dennis Hopper and Diana Scarwid are co-stars in the drama. Rumble Fish is scheduled for a May 16 release.

Al Pacino stars as a young Cuban refugee who is swept up into the world of international drug trafficking. Eventually he becomes czar of the drug underworld — until his final downfall. The film has yet to be filmed but is already scheduled for an August, 1983 release. Brian DePalma will direct.

Al Pacino was a lawyer in And Justice For All, now he's on the other side of the law in Scarface.

Joey D's

Fri. & Sat.
75¢
Well Drinks.
9-11
Jeans Accepted.
$1 Cover.

AMHERST CINEMA

Fri - Sat
Pennies from Heaven R 7
Victor Victoria R 9
Sun - Tues
Midnight Cowboy 7 Lenny 9
Downtown Amherst 253-5496

FOX:
I couldn't help but notice you buying Cliffs Notes at the bookstore. We must have alot in common. I use Cliffs Notes to help me understand those tough lit assignments, and they give me a great review. Let's discuss this further over a bottle of chilled Chardonnay! Your place or mine?
HUNTER

Roommate:
Watching you study Dante is a Divine Comedy indeed! You're in deep water. Why not wise up and get Cliffs Notes. They'll help you to understand what you read, and they give a great review. Do us both a favor! The bookstore has the titles you need.
Laughing in my Pillow

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

THE FINE ARTS CENTER HAS IT ALL

Scottish National Orchestra — Monday, October 25 8:00 p.m.

The Intimate P.D.Q. BACH — Sunday, October 31, 8:00 p.m.

Siamsa — Tuesday, November 2
The National Folk Theatre of Ireland 8:00 p.m.

Thursday, November 4 8:00 p.m. PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND

Music and Dance of the Silk Route
from the People's Republic of China
Tuesday, November 9, 8:00 p.m.

All shows on sale now
MC, VISA - CHARGE YOUR TICKETS TODAY
Telephone reservations Noon-4:00 p.m. M-F
545-2511

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

AT YOUR SERVICE!

With the Collegian

DINING OUT SPECIAL Coming:
Wed. Oct. 27th

LODESTONE
13 North Pleasant St
Amherst, Massachusetts
256-0591

The Lodestone and John Dellaria Salon request the pleasure of your company
at its Annual Holiday Fashion Collaborative
on
Monday October 25, 1982
8:30 P.M.
at
Hanger I Route 9
Hadley, Massachusetts
$3.00

JOHN DELLARIA SALON
26 MAIN ST., AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS
253-9271

THE LANDING ZONE
"A Geniune Army/Navy Store"

Nylon Oxford
Reg. $29.95 less 30%
$20.95

Nylon Oxford
Reg. $15.95 less 50%
$7.95

Fanny Pack convertible to Day Pack Two-in-One
Reg. $15.95 less 10%
$14.40

We are pleased to introduce a line of imported quality packs made exclusively for the Landing Zone. Choose from 52 different styles including bike packs, children's packs, child carriers & ski cases in over a dozen colors. Many available in Cordura, heavy water-proof nylon. All at special 10-50% savings!!!

Nylon Oxford
Reg. 39.95 less 35%
$25.95

Frame Pack with convertible Seat Reg. $54.95 less 20%
$43.95

11 Chapman St., Greenfield, MA 774-3472
25 King St., Northampton, MA 584-1373

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Torpedo Grinder
Fried Clams/Tartar Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Summer Salad with Syrian Bread
Fried Clams/Tartar Sauce

DINNER
Roast Top Round of Beef/ Au Jus
Baked Cod with Crumb Sauce
Fruit Plate with Saltines

WANTED : Assoc. Womens Editor

The Collegian has an opening for an Associate Women's Editor. People with interest and some knowledge in women's affairs and issues and have some writing and editing skills are encouraged to apply. All interested students should apply in person to Cris Schuster, women's editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, before Oct. 22. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

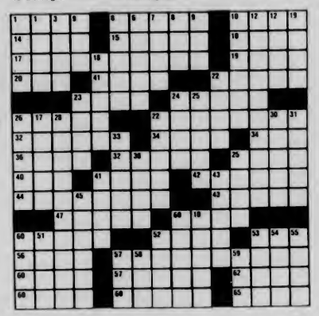
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Kind of trout
5 Title of Mohammed Ahmed, captor of Khartoum, 1885
10 Buss
14 Served perfectly
15 Cousteau's milieu
16 Bet, of a kind
17 Michener opus
19 Dutch ——
20 Adult elver
21 Forward
22 Coalesce
23 Unpleasant remark
24 Port-of-——
26 Goose genus
29 A 15 Across
32 Polyphonic compositions
34 Spike
35 A Gershwin
36 Crossbow missile
37 Place for some "brothers"
39 Follower of Oom Paul
40 That: Sp.
41 Kind of review
42 Reddish-brown pigment
44 Does an editor's job
46 Beleaguer
47 Don or Dan
48 Hammer part
50 Sight
52 Laboratory fluids
53 Youngster
56 Chinese society
57 Ticket issuers
60 Fairy tale beginning
61 Hackneyed
62 Cheese shop specialty
63 Equal
64 Replete
65 Reputation

DOWN
1 Something to tat
2 Be sore
3 Ship's timber
4 Mag. employees
5 Downcast one
6 Bitter
7 Race of a kind
8 Abbr. with North or South
9 Chemical suffix
10 Porcelain base
11 Edison's works
12 British gun
13 Delight, mod style
18 Separated
22 Canaanite fertility god
23 Relative of chard
24 Deer
25 Knee bends, in ballet
26 Fossil resin
27 Loop
28 Quebec City's waterfront
29 Aconcagua's locale
30 Actress Dunne
31 Weight unit
33 Blue-gray
38 "—— There," WWI song
39 "Where have you ——"
41 Cleave
43 Structural member
45 Horseshoe term
48 English dramatist George ——, 1556-96
49 Strayed
50 Word with gap or watch
51 Geometric solid
52 Copy: Abbr.
53 Mod's girl
54 Hatred, in Mantua
55 North Sea feeder
57 Ed.'s concern
58 Airline abbr.
59 Swedish name for Turku



10/15/82

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	C	E	S		B	A	N	N	S		D	W	A	N
W	A	T	T		A	R	O	I	L		A	E	R	O
A	I	T	U		S	U	N	N	A		S	T	I	R
H	O	U	N	D	S	T	O	T	H	E	M
			T	I	S		H	O	R	U	S
C	O	S	E	T		C	R	E	P	E	S
A	L	P			G	L	A	R	I	N	E	L	I	S
L	I	K	E		C	O	O	T	S		E	L	A	N
C	A	R	N	O		I	N	S			A	M	I
		M	O	V	O		C	A	C	H	E
D	O	L	E	S		H	U	N	D
A	C	T		M	W	O	R	D		B	A	B	E
S	H	I	M		D	I	L	L	S		B	L	O	C
T	E	M	P		U	N	I	T	E		L	E	S	T
A	R	E	S		P	E	P	T	I	S		E	C	H	O

10/15/82

WEATHER

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Clear and cold tonight. Lows in the 20s inland and the 30s along the coast. Sunny and cool today and tomorrow. Highs both days in the 40s inland, 50 to 55 along the coast.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Wake-up
9-noon	Concepto Latino
12-3pm	Rythm Section with Carl Lowman
3-5:30	Friday Drive with Jim McDee
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	Athena's Web with Don Cerow
7-10	T.K. Til Ten
10-2am	Radical Dance Faction with Vickie Bates
2-6	Avandel — For People Who Take Their Nightlife Seriously

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Freak-Out Video

10:30 - 11:00	Global Groove Some Nam June Paik action
11:00 - 12:30	Comedy from the Blue Wall
12:30 - 1:30	The Doors - No One Here Gets Out Alive
1:30 - 2:00	Reefer Madness Something to think about this weekend!

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials
Take-Out Service
Sunday Brunch
$5.25 per person
All You Can Eat
11:30-3:00
Dinner Specials
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 256-0252

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
FRI. OCT. 22
HAPPY HOUR
with the
ARMSTRONG BROTHERS

THE ORBITS
"A 5 member dance band" from Orbitron. . ."
with
R COMPLEX $2.00 cover
SAT. OCT. 23
FREE MOVIE
THE MARX BROTHERS
"A Day at the Races"
8 & 10 pm

WHOLE WHEAT AND WHITE DOUGH
THE
whole wheat
PIZZA FACTORY
"SUPER DAYTIME SPECIAL"
FRIDAY-SUNDAY*
A SMALL(12") PIZZA
WITH ANY TWO TOPPINGS
FROM OUR WIDE MENU
FOR JUST $3.75
FAST FREE DELIVERY
IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS
(PICK-UPS IN 10 MIN.)
HOURS
MON.-THUR.
4:00pm-2:00am.
FRI.-SUN.
NOON-3:00am.
* Noon-5:00pm
CALL: 256-8587
THE WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA FACTORY 363 MAIN ST. AMHERST

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY. . .
SATURDAY, OCT. 23
100% COTTON
TURTLENECKS
in a dozen dazzling colors
REG. 8.95
SAT. ONLY
6.95
3 FOR 19.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Waterpolo makes waves

By KELLY GREEN
Collegian Correspondent

If a tuna wanted to play basketball but couldn't run and jump he would probably take up waterpolo. This game is not at all like the horseman's polo game. It's strategies and game play closely resemble basketball. U-Mass has its own waterpolo team whose games are full of action packed excitement.

Waterpolo is a game based on skill, strategy and strength. It is a fast paced game in which goal scoring is like soccer. The players must either swim or tread water during play. The game requires tremendous leg strength and endurance.

Waterpolo has not caught on in the east. It is the second most popular sport in Europe and is big on the west coast.

Physical contact is a major aspect of game strategy. Fouling is the basis of defense strategies as players block shots on net, and sink and hold their opponent.

Russ Yarworth, the UMass coach, trains his players in these areas.

The waterpolo club practices with the varsity swim team. Yarworth, sole coach of both teams, puts his players through a complete training program. The training program is designed to build endurance as well as skill.

"You have to be in shape and know the game to play good waterpolo," said Yarworth.

Most of the waterpolo team members are on the varsity swim team. They swim laps, practice strategies and work on the weights to train for both sports. Their record in tournament play shows that this intensive workout has helped.

The team has played in several tournaments since the start of the season. Their record stands at 4-4-1. They are tied with MIT for third behind Harvard and Brown. Andre LaMontagne, the team goalie, has proved to be one of the strongest players. According to yarworth, he is the best waterpolo goalie in New England. Chris Porter is the teams strongest offensive player.

The final tournament of the season will be played this weekend at Brown. The top four teams will go on to the New England championships and the season will be over for the rest. UMass will put all of their long hours of training to the test as they strive to beat Yale, Columbia and MIT to guarantee them a chance at the championship.

Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Andre La Montagne makes a save during yesterday's waterpolo practice at Boyden Pool.

The team's preseason goal was to make it to the championship playoffs and with their current record they show that they have a good chance of taking a spot in this weekend's tournament.

The UMass waterpolo team was an active club for three seasons. The team was dissolved after the 78-79 season because of lack of interest. The team had been going strong. They placed second in New England in the 75-76 season. Yarworth played for the waterpolo team as an undergraduate at UMass.

When Yarworth became coach of the swim team in 79 he worked to get the water polo team reorganized.

With the support of the varsity swim team the club was playing in the 81-82 season. The team now exists as an RSO club sport. The games are funded by dues.

THE RAND THEATER
Presents
DARK OF THE MOON
"A fantastic evening of theater"
TONIGHT AND TOMORROW AT 8:00 PM!
In Repertory
October 22—November 20
Reservations: please call 545-3511

Jayvees drop another game

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Maybe it's just fate, but it looks like a trend; when the big guys go down, so do the little ones. The day after the varsity team got trounced by Maine, the University of Massachusetts JV football team also lost, this time to Brown University, 35-7.

Ol'Mother Nature played a big factor in this game, as the wind caused both teams to change their game plans. UMass, however, with the wind at their backs in the first quarter, could not capitalize. The difference in the game was that in the second quarter, Brown did.

Again, the failure of the Minutemen to move the ball offensively caused their downfall. They gave the defense bad field position all during the second stanza and Brown took advantage, scoring 28 points by the end of the first half.

The second half saw a much better played football game, with each side scoring a touchdown. Anthony Grange scored the lone UMass TD on a 15 yard sweep. But by then, Brown had already sealed the victory.

The JV's again played without the services of quarterback Mark Taber, and had to employ an alternating back system, which just doesn't give a stable offense. But for JV coach Steve Telander, it was the same as the previous two games.

"The tough wind gave us bad field position," said Telander, "but we just couldn't convert any scoring opportunities. Again, some of the kids had to play both ways.

After a well deserved week off, the Minutemen finally come home on November 7 to play the Huskies of UConn. Grange, who supplied most of the offense in this game, will be teamed with Alan Blue at fullback, who has been out all year with a separated shoulder. Hopefully, with the return home and the more potent offense, they can finally register a tally in the W-column and improve their 0-3 record.

FACULTY:
The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP
Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester!!
We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.
Please Send Us Your Orders By
October 25th
1. Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails.
2. We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them. If we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester.
3. Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex.
We appreciate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call. (5-3570-1-2)
Justina Kielec
Faculty Liaison
Textbook Annex
Hours
M-F 9 am - 4 pm
Russ Evans
Textbook Manager
Returns to publisher will begin November 1st. Please inform your students.

Dinner for Two Enjoy
any two entrees
with salad bar and a complimentary n/a beverage
EVERY FRIDAY $12.95 EVERY FRIDAY
• valid UMass ID holders receive a 15% discount
• validated parking in the Campus Center Garage
• call 549-6000, ext. 639 for further information

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE

STADIUM LIQUORS
U. Mass. Amherst

10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Carling Black Label 12 pk cans.... $3.25
Rolling Rock 12 oz pk cans..... $4.00
Busch 12 oz cans (loose)..... $7.95 case
Moosehead bottles..... $11.95 case

Cossack Vodka 1.75..... $8.20
Castillo Rum 1.75..... $9.95
Segrams 7 1.75..... $12.95
Capt. Morgan Spice Rum
1.75..... $11.95

Almaden 3 liter..... $6.95
Los Hermanos 1.5 liter..... $4.29
Tavola 4 liter..... $5.45
Mondavi 1.5 liter..... $4.95
Conche Y Toro 1.5 liter..... $5.99

Catch Our Weekly Specials

DORITOS ½ lb. .99¢

253-5595
not responsible for typographical errors

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC-113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUTO FOR SALE

Rabbit front air dam and rear shocks A1 condition Dave 256-0543

1971 Ford Torino exc cond $950 or BO call 549-4147

70 Olds 88 exl. mech. cond. $400 or BO 256-0765

VW Squareback 68 inspected for Fall 82 $700 Eby 256-6050 after 6 PM

1976 Dodge Aspen station wagon fine condition $1200 call 256-6679

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

Come see UMass bands compete for the best band on campus at the Southwest's Annual Battle of the Bands, Saturday, October 23 noon to 7 pm Hampden Student Center free admission

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

BROWNIEGRAMS

Browniegrams fudge fudgenut kaluah 1 ½ lbs sendanywhere $6.95 & postage call 546-4282

DISSERTATION RESUME

Word Processing: Prompt Quality Preparations. Professional theses & dissertation consultations. MDI/Word Link 253-9535

ENTERTAINMENT

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS! $99 SPECIAL! Dorms, Greeks. Paul 549-4405

FOUND

Found keys on Lincoln penny ring found on N Pleasant across from Sub Monday afternoon call 253-9303 nites

FOR RENT

Bedroom with kitchen. All utilities except phone. On bus route - Hadley $45.00 per week call 549-1631 available immediately

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Electric typewriters used Olivetti & Remington $150 ea 549-6889

Thermo-Fax copy machine $75 Westinghouse refrigerator, white left hinge, 65 in high, Doors-Used - 24, 30, 32 inch wide, $10 ea. Gas stove white 21 inch $200 call after 6 pm 586-1827 N'ton

Pioneer integrated amp 75 w/ch $145 Akai top of line reel to reel w/autorev $265 6-6954

'82 Olin Mark VII skis. Never used. Great deal $175.00 David 253-3588

Ampeg bass amp see Charlie at Greenough - 3:00 PM

Woman's large maroon leather jacket with removable hood, good condition, $40.00 call Maria 256-0179

Convertible - 1973 VW new top, snows. AM/FM $3500. 617-544-6555

Shogun 1000 Racing Bike, paid $450, never ridden. $350 or BO Call for more info 546-1125

Loverol Size 6½ engagement diamond. New. Half price. 253-9358 Kathy

Artists! 24x36 drawing board. New. Cheap. 253-9358 Kathy

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

Childcare for 9 month and 2½ year old in our Amherst home. Sometimes housecleaning instead. 12-5 pm twice a week. Must have car 253-7388/256-8105

HEY ROBIN SEXPOT!

Puberty has almost ended - only 1 more year to go. Anyway, here's to a productive 19th. Keep 'em pantin'. Love Moe and Curly. P.S. Sorry we couldn't wrap him for you.

INSTRUCTION

Math Tutoring 549-6612

LOST

Sweater Stolen From Van Meter 418 off white icelandic grey/black yoke design heartbroken reward! 546-1422

Harmonica Honner Special brown case 10/14 546-1422

Yonex Couguss tennis racquet at Boyden courts Saturday 253-5950

Large reward for a black & gold cross pen lost around SBA very sentimental please return 6-4670

Silver chain with flower pendant 10/18 very sentimental - reward! Sue 253-7890

Gold bracelet Tobin area reward 546-1407

MOTORCYCLE

1975 Honda 360CL excellent condition 9000 miles sissy bar $650 or BO call Mike 546-9041

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

Have something to sell?
Got something to say?
You'll be heard with a Collegian classified!

DISTRIBUTOR OPPORTUNITIES Texas Instruments home computer ground floor multi level marketing money making opportunities - no risk, no inventory investments Demonstration Tues 10/26 7:30 CC room 169 call Grace or Paul after 5 665-2494

All University women are invited to Alpha Chi Omega's rush dinner 10/20, 10/26, 10/27 at 5:00 call Jennifer 545-2152

Happy Halloween Say it with a pumpkin cookie. Order one at the Mortarboard Table Oct. 20, 21, 22 on Concourse

Sigma Kappa Open Rush
Come join us for dinner at 5:00
Tues. Oct. 26
Wed. Oct. 27
Thurs. Oct. 28
19 Allen St. behind BKO
RSVP at 256-6887

Love ya Max - the women of 1-South Happy Birthday

Hey Sexy I need to be satisfied. No bimbos please. Ask for Ricky or Marcy

I love you RUNT XO

GOOBERFACE, Happy 22nd! Get a grip, will ya?! Get mauled! Love Pam and Mary-Lou

Happy 21st B-days Sandra D Gold 10-24 Sherri Leigh June 10-27 two sweet little ladies

Danny - "Thank you" for one year of happiness and for the promise of many more happy years to come. Luv, Leah Go Crazy UMMB! Let's show Boston what we do best.

From the Chi O pledges, we think pledging is awesome! Thank You XO

Pooh, Don't want you to worry, Honey it will be alright, Happy Anniversary, love forever, Poohter

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

Want to win some money? Show your costume at NEAG/Sylvan Costume Dance Saturday 10/23/82 at 9:00 pm CCA Prizes: original, funniest, scariest, most avant-garde

Val or Bonnie call Steve 586-4512 584-6940

Suzanne, you're the greatest roomie. Best of luck opening night! Love ya, Carolyn

Jean Welcome to the Zoo! I know we will have a great weekend Love Stephen

Kaspar Hauser: Record release party to be held Sunday nite at Hangar One. "Living with Fire" on Tekno Tunes Records, produced by David Minehan

Steve you're the best! Happiest 21st B-day ever! Love always Kath

Robin Happiest 19th!! Love Larry

Je t'aime "The Perfect Rose" Friday Student Union

Happy 20th to a weal (whoops. . .aphasia) WOMBAT!! love - Na, Moe, and Lisa

RIDERS NEEDED

Riders needed to U Penn. Leaving tomorrow about noon. Call late 253-7040 Michael

ROOM WANTED

Young couple looking for room or one bdrm apt for next semester 523-5249 Martha

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share bedroom in Rolling Green immediate opening $106 month verything included 256-8335 or 256-0165

Apartmentmate needed $150/mo on bus route furnished call Jeff 665-4357

S.D.G.

Happy Birthday San love Louis

SKIING

It snowed TWO FEET!!! Saturday night in STOWE. It's going to be an awesome year

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition, 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TAG SALE

Saturday Oct 23 9-2 small refrigerator, couch, dishes, books, records, much more 41 Rolling Ridge off East Pleasant.

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

Immediately - intermediate accounting book call now! Tom at 253-5482

Female wants room in apt. or house on bus route. Immediate occupancy. Please call 256-6612

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Drive
Amherst, MA
Fine food and drink at affordable prices

Relax at the U
Friday happy hour - 2:00 - 5:30
99¢ drinks - 50¢ drafts
FREE PIZZA
orgasms only $1.50
Delicious Luncheon Specials - $2.49
Mon - Fri 11:30 - 3:00

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser 12 oz NR bottles..... $8.99/case
Pabst 12 oz NR bottles..... $7.99/case
Busch 12 oz cans..... $7.99/case
Meyer's Rum (all sizes and flavors)
Canadian Ace Malt Liquor case of 12 quarts $10.15 NOW $6.00 WITH THIS AD
many more in store specials

The rusty nail Inn presents
Sat. Oct. 23 The Busboys & The Neighborhoods
Fri. Oct. 22 The Stompers
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 13

Stickers don't win, don't lose, tie

By JENNIFER KUPPER
Collegian Staff

CAMBRIDGE — The University of Massachusets women' varsity field hockey team relented to its first tie ballgame of the season, yesterday as they battled with Harvard University, yesterday. The one thing that both teams did well was prevent each other from scoring with the 70 minute game ending in a 0-0 tie.

The first half action was a back and forth exchange by both the Crimson and the Minutewomen. Both swapped offensive powers, neither producing a dominant force. Most of the UMass action centered on Pam Moryl in the first series of corner plays. However, UMass was unable to make good on these opportunities. The first half remained a slow game of give and take play.

The second half proved to be Umass' game. However, they could not provide a goal with all their pressuring. The stickwomen heeded to coach Pam Hixon's halftime advice and beat Harvard to the ball every time. The constant pressure by the UMass forwards gave the Minutewomen numerous corners.

UMass had a total of 19 corners, 13 of which came in the second half. With 7:20 left in the game, the Harvard defense began to weaken even more. The chance of a Massachusetts goal was present. Within the next six minutes, UMass had eight corners none of which put them on top.

Yesterday's tie gives Massachusetts a 9-2-1 record. Overtime was not played because the Ivy League does not have overtime games.

"We did have plenty of scoring chances," said Hixon. The Minutewomen will return to action tomorrow at 1 p.m. when UM host the University of New Hampshire at the upper NOPE field.

• • • • •

The UMass junior varsity came out hard and strong in their game and took a quick 1-0 lead but also settled for a tie at 2-2.

With 1:45 gone in the game, Tammy Martin scored off of a Patty Masury corner. Harvard came back and dominated for the next 16 minutes, but were held off by the superior goaltending of Anita Arnum. Arnum made several good saves to keep Harvard scoreless.

Martin scored against at 10:35 left in the first to put UM up 2-0. The UM offense was swarming in the circle and Martin found the handle to hit it in.

However, the junior varsity Crimson came back and scored two goals to tie the score up at halftime. With one minute to go, Harvard got a corner and as a result, Anit Elisha drove home the second goal.

The second half was scoreless and both teams had to settle for the 2-2 tie. Debbie Dejesus and Mary Cazzetta played well for the JV Minutewomen. The JV's last minute pressure fell short as Harvard shut UM down, scoring wise.

Minutemen hope to housebreak BU Terriers

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Staff

It could be do or die this weekend as the University of Massachusetts' Minutemen travel to Nickerson Field to challenge the Boston University Terriers.

Since both teams already have one Yankee Conference loss each, the chances that the loser of this game will win the conference appears exceedingly slim.

"The loser of this particular game could possibly be counted out, though the way the standings have been juggled this year, anything can happen," observed UMass coach Bob Pickett.

Boston University is 3-2 overall and 2-1 in the Yankee Conference. Their strength is at the tailback position, which is surprising in light of the fact that BU's All-American runner, Gregg Drew, has been out most of the season with ankle and hip problems.

Fortunately for BU though, sophomore Paul Lewis has done a super job replacing Drew. Lewis is currently third in rushing in the ECAC (UMass back Garry Pearson is first), with an average of 125.8 yards per game.

The Minutemen's running attack remains in the able hands (and legs) of Pearson, who this week, on the strength of his 127 yards per game average, leads the entire country (Division I-AA) in rushing.

Of course, UMass' fine offensive line deserves some credit for clearing the way for Pearson.

On the left side of the line there is tight end Gary Freker; tackle Tony Pasquale, second team All-YC and honorable mention All-New England; and guard Jerry Gordon, a tri-captain for the second straight year and second team All-YC.

On the right side there is tackle Wilbur Jackson; and guard Scott LaFond, first team All-YC and third team All-NE. Anchoring the line at center is sophomore Ken Runge.

At quarterback, Barrett McGrath will start once again. McGrath sustained a bruised knee against the University of Maine, however, the injury was not as severe as first feared.

There is also good news on the defensive front. Ends Todd Comeau and Joe Graham, as well as middle guard Dan Brennan, all of whom had been hurt, are expected to start this week. They should help shore up the defense, which had a tough time of it against Maine.

"The defense hasn't played poorly. We just have to eliminate the big play and mental errors. Comeau, Graham and Brennan give us more experience, depth, and maturity on defense," said Pickett.

If all goes well for Pickett's troops the revitalized UMass defense should be up to the task of stepping Lewis and his BU cohorts this Saturday in what should be another YC thriller.

"I am expecting a typical BU-UMass football game. It will be a hard-hitting affair. I think that UMass just had a bad day at Maine and we will see the same team that looked very impressive against a strong Delaware team two weeks ago," commented BU coach Rick Taylor.

"We're still in the middle of the YC. This is a crucial game," said Pickett.

Boston beckons for the loyal UMass football fan. However, those grounded on campus for the weekend can hear the game on WMUA (90.1) at 1:30 p.m.

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Garry Pearson tries to free himself from a defender during an earlier game. Pearson will be running into Terriers this week.

UM booters have big task

By PETER SODERBERG
Collegian Correspondent

"We are going to play our game, and not worry about the other team," said coach Kalekeni Banda as he looked ahead to this weekend when his team squares off against Yale and Penn State following a convincing minutewomen victory over Dartmouth last Tuesday.

The women booters are currently top ranked in New England and their record stands at 9-3.

Of the three losses, Banda says they were caused by "not playing hard."

"We are our own worst enemies sometimes, we worry about what they are doing and are not concentrating on our own game," said Banda.

Tuesdays game against Dartmouth was great practice for what Banda has been trying to get his team to do: cross the ball into the middle from the wings.

"Everytime we crossed the ball in from the wings we had a scoring chance," said Banda.

Look for big games from Natalie Prosser, Nina Holstrom and Lynne Raymore this weekend. Prosser and Holmstrom each had two goals against Dartmouth and are playing good, aggressive soccer. Raymond, who is described by Banda as "a great competitor, she goes for anything moving on the field, she is always in the play," scored the first and only goal needed to win against Dartmouth.

Spikers go to Maryland for a tournament in their toughest task of the year

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team faces their toughest task of the year as they travel to College Park, MD. for the University of Maryland tournament. The Minutewomen will be the only division II school in the 16 team field.

But that fact doesn't faze UMass, who face the likes of 15th ranked Rutgers, Clemson, and George Washington. The spikers will have to go out and play very well.

"To be able to hold our own," said head coach Elaine Sortino, "we have to do three things. We'll have to pick up points from service, be able to pick up the ball (get the ball into offensive play) in the back row, and pass well."

Massachusetts will open their tournament against Rutgers. The Scarlet Knights are ranked in the top 20, which is very rare for any East coast team. Rutgers also won the Florida Invitational last weekend. The Florida meet is one of the top tourneys in the country.

UMass will also play in the qualifying pool that features George Washington University. GW has a similar team to UM, but they have an edge in experience. Clemson is also in the Massachusetts pool.

So, again as it was last week in the Delaware tournament, experience is going to play a large factor in the spikers fortunes. And UMass just doesn't have the experience of their division I opponents.

"We will have to do the best we can with everything we know," said Sortino. The Miutewomen players are all healthy and ready to go. Starting setter Patty Grant is back in the lineup and Sortino plans to use both her and the other setter Karen Gottesman against Rutgers.

Senior Patti Philbin is ready to go as is Kirsten Smith who has recovered from a hurt foot she had a week ago.

It will be the youthful team from UMass vs. top division I powerhouses at the University of Maryland and UM has nothing to lose and lots of experience to gain.

Candidates don't play ball

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

EDITOR'S NOTE: Well, we tried. All of the four gubernatorial candidates offices were contacted this week by your's truly in an effort to see which candidate possessed the greater sports knowledge. The question was simple: Who does your candidate think will win the UMass-BU football game this Saturday and by what score. But, politicians will be politicians.

MIKE DUKAKIS — A Dukakis campaign aide, after 24 hours notice of the question at hand predicted a 21-21 tie which would be called because of darkness. (Maybe Mike's in the dark already).

JOHN SEARS — The Sears people didn't have a score, they simply said, "It's like the Dukakis-Sears battle. Both teams will fight hard to win but it's the fans who will decide." (In high school we would have called this the knee pad approach.)

REBECCA SHIPMAN — They just wanted everyone to know that Shipman was opposed to the draft. (Just what we need, someone who is not afraid to address a question.)

FRANK RICH — The only people with enough intestinal fortitude to make a prediction and enough brains to pick UMass. (How many BU people read the Collegian anyway?) UMass 21-BU 13. (Frank may be from the underdog Socialist Party but at least we got an answer.)

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 34 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, October 25, 1982

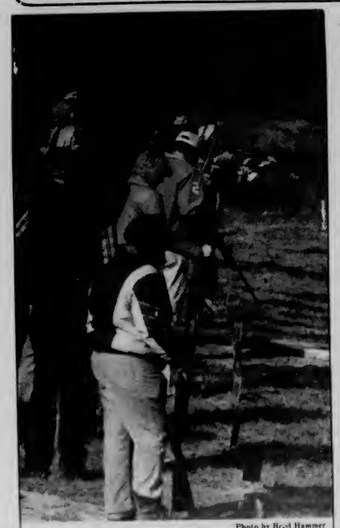

Photo by Brad Hammer

Hunters gathered in Belchertown yesterday with hopes of winning a turkey at the Swift River Sportsmans Club's annual turkey shoot.

Regents recommend $200G increase for computing center

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

To accommodate the increased student demand for Computer & Information Science (COINS) courses, the state Board of Regents of Higher Education has requested an increase in the University of Massachusetts Computing Center's budget for the 1984 fiscal year.

In its recent budget recommendations to the governor, the board of regents requested $200,000 to purchase and install new computer terminals.

This recommendation is half of the computing center's original request for $400,000 which was submitted to the board of regents in the fiscal year 1984 state maintenance budget request.

The terminals are needed to keep up with the increasing student demand for time on the university's two computer which students use, according to Computing Center Director Conrad Wogrin.

The center currently has two main computers, a Cyber 175 and Cyber 720, and a memory capable of storing 6 billion characters of information. It will increase that memory by at least 1 billion characters each year, Wogrin said.

"We are extremely tight for terminals," Wogrin said, pointing out that the number of student using the computer facilities has increased by over 500 in the past three years.

Enrollment in the introductory COINS courses — COINS 121, 122 and 123 — has increased from 350 to over 1,000 students since the Summer of 1981, when the COINS department decided to open these courses to all students who wanted to take them, Wogrin said.

In addition to installing new terminals, the center has improved its facilities through installing new equipment and changing their operating systems, Wogrin said.

Operating systems are the software programs that enable the computer to perform the tasks it is required to do, he said.

This semester the center installed a new operating system to improve the facilities, but Wogrin said the system was installed too quickly and still has many bugs.

"We should have waited six months before installing that," Wogrin said.

The center has also improved their facilities with equipment donated by private companies from around the state. Wogrin said Data General, Digital and Wang computer companies have recently donated equipment to the center.

The largest of these equipment grants was donated to UMass by the Digital Equipment Corporation of Maynard, Massachusetts in September. Digital donated 10 VAX 11/750 computers along with related hardware and software, worth approximately $900,000.

"These are very generous gifts," Wogrin said.

Wogrin said he wants to increase the number of terminals on the system, the response time of the computer, and its memory size.

However, he said it is not feasible to increase the system's capabilities to such a point that it will never reach its capacity.

"We choose the most economical way to get jobs to people," he said. "You cannot afford to get a system that will never reach its capacity." "Our highly creative student body will always fill that capacity."

Olver and Tripp spar for senate seat

Olver: balance liberal arts and high Tech.

By MICHELLE MURRAY
Collegian Staff

State government must strike a balance in alloting funds to the high technology and liberal arts fields in higher education, said incumbent Sen. John W. Olver, D-Amherst, whose senate seat will be challenged by Republican Jim Tripp in the Nov. 2 election.

"High technology, at least for the moment, is the place where the best paying jobs are," Olver said, but "one certainly cannot put all one's eggs in one basket."

Olver, a former professor of chemistry at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, said he sees no unbalance between the funding for high technology and liberal arts fields.

"I don't think anyone is proposing that we support engineering and professional schools to the point where liberal arts is ignored," he said.

He added that it is important for lawmakers to be watchful because industries are "not very good at self-policing" and tend to contribute more to the engineering and professional schools.

Olver said that in the past he has consistency voted pro-choice on state legislation designed to make current abortion legislation more restrictive.

Olver received his BS in chemistry from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York, and his Ph.D. in chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He was elected to the senate in 1972, when "philosphically, I was quite unhappy with the Republicans and the incumbent from this area was out of tune with change," he said.

As a member of the senate Ways and Means Committee, Over said that because all budgets must pass through the committee, it has substantial influence on the budget of the University.

"Year after year, I will claim, you will find that the budgets which the senate recommends are always larger than those recommended by the governor. That's how I serve the University," he said.

Olver was the sponsor of telecommunications legislation passed by the senate which would establish a network between the campuses of state colleges and universities and make it possible for instantaneous resource sharing.

Olver was the principal sponsor of a cigarette tax bill which would generate $29 million in revenue for a student financial aid fund. The proposal would require skimming

Continued on page ..

Photos by Paul A. Basken and Teresa Bellafiore

State Senator John W. Olver of Amherst, who is running for reelection in November. (above) Republican challenger Jim Tripp. (below)

Tripp's motivation: combatting corruption

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Jim Tripp, Republican challenger for the state senate seat currently held by John Olver, said combatting a long tradition of corruption that Democrats have built up throughout their years of power in the State House is the main motivation of his first experience with electoral politics.

The recipient, in 1970 of a degree in sociology from the University of Massachusetts, Tripp is a former member of the Undergraduate Student Senate of the Student Government Association and Massachusetts Daily Collegian. Now owner of his own business, a travel agency in Northampton, Tripp resides in Montague.

"We're getting in a situation where the corruption is getting quite critical," Tripp said. He said Republicans are needed if ony to counter the "absolute power" wielded by senate President William Bulger and his Democratic allies.

This power produces "white corruption — where you don't see it," Tripp said.

Tripp said the senate needs to at least remain at its current level of eight Republicans, which is the minimum number required to stand together on the floor and demand a roll call vote on any motion. Otherwise, Tripp said, the wishes of Bulger, who has sole authority to hire and fire all committee chairpersons, would be directly translated through voice votes into senate policy. Half the Republican incumbents are not seeking re-election to their senate seats this year, Tripp said.

"The problem is they (the Democrats) get into the senate and become part of the machine," Tripp said.

"If you are a really good boy, you get treated that way," Tripp said of the Democrats who submit to the "blackmail" of their party leadership. "That's what really runs the government in Massachusetts."

If elected, Tripp said he would like to get an appointment to one of the power committees — Rules, Ways and Means, and Taxation — but figured he "probably won't get it" from the senate president. Otherwise, he said his interests would lead him to seek the committees dealing with environmental, mental health, or social welfare issues, for which he said he has "tremendous concern."

Regarding his interests and anticipated relationship with his alma mater, Tripp labeled education, along with tourism, as "our state's two natural resources."

Continued on page ..

World and national news

Kennedy and Shamie debate nuclear freeze

BOSTON (AP) — The nuclear freeze issue provided the initial exchange last night as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his Republican challenger Raymond Shamie opened a live, televised debate.

"Its a simple idea, a nuclear freeze that is mutually verifiable, but its not simplistic," Kennedy said in answering an opening question.

"The time has come for the United States and the Soviet Union to say on the issue of the nuclear arms race, enough is enough."

"I favor a freeze, with onsite inspection," said Shamie. "I don't trust the Russians."

Shamie said he disagreed with what he said was Kennedy's proposal, "to freeze first, and then talk about verification ..."

Shamie also held up a book written by Kennedy, "Freeze," and read a passage quoting former President John F. Kennedy as opposed to an uninspected moratorium on weapons.

Shamie, a self-made millionaire businessman in his first run for public office, has said the hour-long confrontation is "pivotal" in his uphill campaign to unseat Kennedy, a 20 year veteran of the Senate.

The sole debate of the campaign was scheduled to be carried live by Boston and Springfield television and radio stations. Shamie has said it was "pivitol" to reverse his low standing in the polls.

Shamie, 61, used Kennedy's refusal to immediately accept a debate as an early issue in his campaign. In his television ads, the Walpole businessman debated an empty podium on a stage, then offered a $10,000 reward to anyone who could convince the Democrat to debate him.

Kennedy, 50, said he has debated his opponents throughout his political career, and planned to meet Shamie all along. But he accepted the $10,000 on behalf of a Catholic school, saying it would aid a good cause.

Kennedy has split his campaign time this fall between local appearances and stops in other states to aid Democrats. He has run hard against Reagonomics, blaming it for the nation's high unemployment rate and calling for an alternative economic policy.

Shamie's approval of several of Reagan's economic policies gives voters a clear choice this fall, said Gillian Gansler, a spokeswoman for Kennedy's Boston campaign office.

"Massachusetts voters have a decision to make. Senator Kennedy has been fighting Republican economic policy and feels it has had a major, negative impact on the state...He feels that's one of the major issues of importance to people in this state and country as they go to the polls Nov. 2," she said.

Shamie is the founder of Metal Bellows Corp., a high technology firm that employs about 500 people.

AP Laserphoto

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Republican challenger Ray Shamie met last night at Boston College for a pre-election debate.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Bruins forward "critical" after injury during game

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Boston Bruins forward Normand Leveille was listed in poor condition yesterday in the intensive care unit of Vancouver General Hospital after suffering a brain hemmorhage during a National Hockey League game against the Vancouver Canucks Saturday night.

The 19 year-old forward, a native of Montreal, was taken to the hospital after collapsing in the Boston dressing room between the first and second periods.

He was reported in critical condition following the surgery Saturday night. Hospital officials refused to comment on the player's condition.

But one doctor said the hemorrhage could end Leveille's hockey career.

"It's a risky thing to say that he'll never play again, but the risk of further damage would be too great to play hockey," said Dr. Ross Davidson, the Canucks team physician who was the first to treat Laveille.

Davidson said there was a grave risk Leveille would suffer permanent damage, possibly speech impediments or rightside spasticity.

"I've never seen a case like this in all the time I've been in sports medicine," said Davidson.

Doctors say the hemorrhage likely was triggered, but not caused by, a heavy check he received during the first period of the game. Davidson said it was possible the hockey player was born with the problem.

Supreme Court to decide procedure in drug cases

WASHINGTON — As the nation's illicit drug industry booms, the Supreme Court is loading up on cases that will spell out just what police can do to fight back.

In the coming months, the court will define the rules frontline officers must follow in combating drug traffickers and their estimated $80 billion a year business.

The decisions may carry as significant an impact as President Reagan's plans to spend up to $200 million a year to curb the illegal narcotics trade.

Among the criminal justice cases accepted for the high court's decision docket are an unusually large number — 11 — that pit the powers of police against the Constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

Ten of those 11 cases deal specifically with illegal drugs, often by necessity the target of police searches conducted without a court warrant.

In the most closely watched cases, the justices have agreed to decide:

—The constitutionality of "drug courier profiles" used by federal and local law officers to stop and question suspected smugglers at airports. Under the program, officers look for passengers who display "characteristics and behavioral traits which ... have tended to distinguish drug couriers from other passengers."

Solidarity leader's wife subjected to strip search

WARSAW, Poland — Security forces stripped Lech Walesa's wife naked and tried to undress his two screaming daughters in an attempt to find evidence that would place the detained labor chief under formal arrest, the wife said.

Danuta Walesa, visibly upset after her return home to Gdansk, said the strip-search by female agents took place Friday in a police station in southeastern Przemysl, near the resort where she visited her interned husband for five days. Walesa, leader of the now outlawed Solidarity labor federation, has been in detention without charge since martial law was decreed Dec. 13.

Mrs. Walesa told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview in her Gdansk home Saturday that she protested at the time of the strip-search and planned to file a protest with the Communist government's martial-law authorities.

Newsboys and girls strike against Providence papers

PROVIDENCE, R.I — A dozen newsboys and girls carrying signs and chanting, "We're no slaves," picketed Providence Journal-Bulletin offices yesterday to protest having to insert sections in the Sunday newspaper without extra pay.

"None of us are delivering any papers tomorrow," said Francie D'Ambra, 17, of Providence, who said she delivers 80 papers.

"We're taking the day off," said John Scott, 12, dressed in a football uniform and warm-up jacket. "Maybe we'll take a lot of days off."

The carriers, who together handle about 1,000 issues of the Evening Bulletin and the Providence Sunday Journal, said they wouldn't deliver them until they were paid for inserting advance sections or the newspaper resumed the task.

As many as 5 dead while boat sinks off of NJ coast

POINT PLEASANT, N.J. — A boat sank eight miles off the New Jersey coast yesterday and officials believe "as many as five are dead." Twenty-one people were rescued.

Five of those rescued were believed to be in serious condition, the Coast Guard said.

"We haven't had confirmation yet, but we believe as many as five are dead," Petty Officer Greg Creedon said at the Coast Guard base in New York.

Groups meet on Common against "madness of war"

BOSTON — With folk songs and speeches, a coalition of peace groups gathered yesterday on Boston Common to denounce war, racism, military spending and U.S. involvement in troubled countries overseas.

"We must redouble our efforts to mobilize opinion against the madness of war," said John Makatini, United Nations representative of the African National Congress.

"It's going to be the growth of the peace movement around that world that will do it," he added.

About 200 people listened on a cold, sunny afternoon as speakers and singing groups continued more than two hours. By the end of the second hour, the crowd had dwindled to less than 100.

No natural gas shortage forseen for winter months

BOSTON — Although the weather will be the deciding factor, state and utility officials say there should be enough natural gas this winter to avoid a repeat of the gas shortage of January 1981.

The state Energy Siting Facility says new pipeline facilities and improved deliveries of Algerian liquefied natural gas should prevent any shortage like the one that forced Gov. Edward J. King to close schools and order cutbacks in industrial and residential use.

The 1981 gas shortage followed an unusually long siege of cold weather that taxed gas supplies delivered from the South and West. The problem was further complicated by delays in the delivery of Algerian liquefied natural gas caused by a severe storm in the Mediterranean.

"Statistically this is not likely to happen again," Harry Melden, gas supply manager for the Commonwealth Gas Co., told the Boston Sunday Globe.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Scott Hersey
Copy Editor — Jim Finkle and Hannah Wholesome
Layout Technician — Stephen Anderson
Photo Technician — Bradford Hammer
Composition — Lauri Neely, Nancy Gallo, Adrianne Dufor, Janet Buch, Laurie Frank, Tracey Hollander, Gail Tanzer, James Shanahan, Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Susanne Erickson

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst. Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center. University of Massachusetts. Amherst, MA 01003

Police arrest picketers during Gnomon 'set up'

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

Two persons were arrested Thursday night in front of the Gnomon Copy store on North Pleasant Street, after an incident that striking employees at the store described as a "setup."

Lisa Sheehy, 23, Fearing St., Amherst, was charged with disorderly conduct and released, police said.

Garret Schenck, 26, was charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct and later released to the Holyoke Police. Schenck was wanted for failing to appear in court in Holyoke on a separate charge. He refused to give an address, police said.

Strikers said they saw an employee working at the store make a phone call around closing time at 9 p.m.

After making the phone call, the strikers said the employee stood in the hallway of the store and began taunting them.

The employee, who did not want to be identified, said the strikers accusations were false.

Police said they received several complaints about the picketers and had warned them twice not to enter the building.

An officer stayed in the area and arrested Schenck after he opened the door to the hallway entrance, police said.

When police arrived, strikers said Schenck, a strike supporter, opened the door to the hallway entrance to tell the store employee the police had arrived.

"All of a sudden it was like this big riot scene. It was a set up," said Stephen Ray, 31, a striking employee.

Strikers said the police asked Schenck for identification and arrested him. Sheehy, also a strike supporter, was arrested after she sat on the trunk of the police car where Schenck sat in the back seat, strikers said.

"I was arrested because I wanted to demonstrate my solidarity with my friends on the picket line," Sheehy said. "I wanted the authorities to know they couldn't intimidate us by picking one of us out of a crowd."

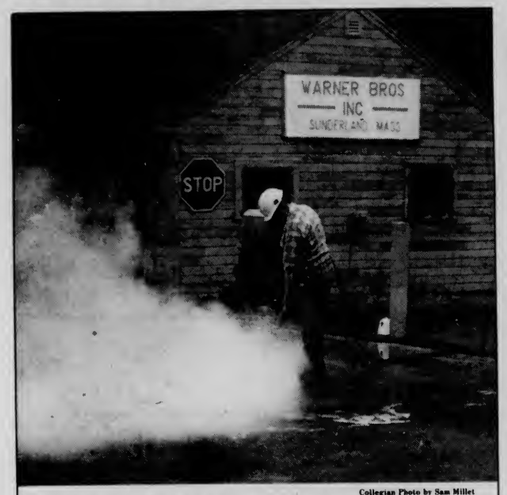
Sheehy said she supports her striking friends by walking the picket line 20 to 25 hours a week.

Roy said there were two strikers and three strike supporters on the picket line when the incident occurred.

"Things like that disturb me," co-owner Roland Wetherbee said Friday, "Personally I think it's ridiculous."

Tobi Saisa, a striking employee, said the arrest was minor and shouldn't effect any efforts to negotiate with the owners of the store.

"We're surprised the police put people in jail on such a minor offense," he said.



Collegian Photo by Sam Millet

Morris Fugun, 61, of Sunderland steam cleans a driveway at Warner Brothers of Sunderland late last week.

Photo by H. Naudin

HRTA student John Fergeson enjoys making some cranberry jelly last week in his cooking class.

DC cracks down on ID's

By GREG BROWN
PAM MADNICK
Collegian Correspondents

University Food Services is cracking down on the misuse of ID cards in the dining commons.

"Students misusing their IDs is a serious problem. It is larceny," said Dick Flynn, staff assistant to the University Food Services. Most officials of the five dining commons agree that misuse of ID cards is a major problem, although many of these officials refused to comment.

Franklin Dining Commons Manager Peter Brooks estimated that 24-36 cards have been confiscated at the Franklin Dining Commons this semester.

Brooks also said, "When the ID picture doesn't match the person using the card, this is illegal misuse of the meal plan."

Brooks also stated that if someone goes through the food line twice within a ten minute period, the ID is usually taken away from the user, and the student is charged with a $2 replacement fee.

The reason students cannot use any meals left at the end of the week is that students do not pay for all the meals on their board plan, Director of Food Services Marie Cappadonna said.

She said food services calculates the meal plan bills by studying attendance at the dining commons, and using a "statistical average" that shows students do not eat all of their meals.

"If everyone ate all their meals, we'd probably go bankrupt the first year," Cappadona said, figuring that students eat 75-78 percent of the meals they are entitled to.

Students are not allowed to loan their IDs to anyone, no matter how many extra meals they may have, nor can they go into the DC shortly after they have left. Students who do not eat all their meals are not reimbursed for them.

Some of these people think these policies are unfair.

Geoffrey Berliner, 21, a CASIAC major, said "If they label your meal plan '14-meal' they should be prepared to serve 14 meals to you." "Any product you buy, you should have the right to do what you want with it."

Berliner also complained that dining commons policies are not adequately publicized.

Linda Lavoie, 20, a fashion merchandising major, said "It's unfair to be treated like a child by the DC policies." "We pay a lot of money for the meals and we should be able to do with them what we want."

Forrest Carlson, 28, a nutrition major, said, "The meals you don't eat, since they must be exclusively yours, you should be reimbursed for."

Peter Brooks is trying to start a committee of dining common employees, students, and administrators to advise on DC policy.

Brooks said their first task would be to determine whether they should raise the $2 fee charged for misuse to $15 for next year.

Five college interchange doesn't get attention

By PAULA HOYT
Collegian Staff

Ignorance of the system, a weak orientation program, and a lack of encouragement from faculty members are among the reasons Five Colleges, Inc. doesn't get the attention it deserves, a system advisor at the University of Massachusetts said.

Only about 400 UMass students enroll in the Five College Interchange program each year, a fact which astonishes UMass Five College advisor Daphne Reed.

"It is bewildering to me that more students don't take advantage of such a unique opportunity to add combined curricula and Ivy League status to their education," Reed said.

University faculty members and advisors are partly to blame for the underenrollment in Interchange courses, Reed said.

"Instructors are jealous. It doesn't please them, by and large, to see students go off campus to other faculty members," Reed said.

She said that underenrollment in classes as a result of students going to other campuses would make professors feel that their jobs are threatened.

"There is a natural academic pressure for all faculty members to attract enrollment and to maintain a demand for study in their disciplines," Reed said.

In some cases she said there is a lack of knowledge about the system on the part of faculty and advisors.

"Many professors and advisors don't even know about the five college program and it doesn't occur to them to tell students about it," Reed said.

Five years ago, UMass had a policy in which students could not go off campus for a course unless it was not offered at UMass.

"The policy was dropped because administrators began to acknowledge the expertise of their collegues on other campuses," Reed said.

According to a profile by Five Colleges, Inc., for fall 1981, the greatest number of course exchange students came from Hampshire College and the fewest came from UMass.

Twenty eight percent came from Hampshire College with 21 percent, and Mount Holyoke College, with 20 percent, Reed said.

Smith College had 16 percent and UMass had 13 percent, she said.

The lack of interest and knowledge of the five college program is apparent among students, especially at UMass. Staff members at Five Colleges Inc. feel it is due to a lack of publicity and that the university offers such a large number of courses, making it unnecessary for students to go to other campuses.

Through a number of programs, the office of Five Colleges Inc. attempts to bring together faculty and students of the area schools in order to "pool resources" for broader educational opportunities.

Interchange is the major offering, in which students may take courses at any of the five valley schools without paying extra.

Administrators at Five Colleges Inc. suggest that the university is a valuable academic resource in itself and students do not feel compelled to go elsewhere.

"The large univerity fulfills most of the students' needs without them having to leave campus," Reed said.

"If I went to UMass, I probably would not feel the academic need to go off campus for a course," said Lisa Morino, a student at Mount Holyoke and member of the Five College STudent Coordinating Board.

A five colleges slideshow and information session was scheduled to be held in Hampden in Southwest last month, and no one showed up.

"This doesn't surprise us. The university is the one place where five college information gets lost," said Patricia Cahill, coordinator of information and public relations for the system.

"The slideshow was our first attempt at catching incoming students who are less aware of the opportunities we offer," Cahill said.

Jeff Bleich, a senior at Amherst College, and Chairman of the Five College Student Coordinating Board put together the slideshow, and said it was publicized enough.

Learn Something New Every Day!

LIVE LIFE IN THE FAST LANE! BECOME involved. LEARN more about UMass, Amherst and the exciting field of journalism.

GET involved in things which affect all our lives. The Collegian needs news reporters — all UMass students are welcome.

WE CAN DO GREAT THINGS BUT WE NEED YOUR HELP.

INTRODUCTORY MEETINGS

7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday

803 Campus Center

For more information, call Brian Sullivan at the Collegian, 545-3500.

Newslines . . .

Social workers meet this Wednesday

Social work professionals will gather at Smith College at 4:15 p.m. in the Neilson Library for the symposium, "Future Directions in Social Work: Education and Practice."

Mary Ann Quarnta, dean of Fordham University Graduate School of Social Service, is the speaker.

A panel, including deans of several schools of social work and administration, will respond to and discuss Quaranta's lecture.

The symposium is free and open to the public.

Lecture begins Plath exhibition at Smith

The official opening of Smith College's Sylvia Plath Collection will be marked by an exhibition, "Ariel Reconsidered: The Sylvia Plath Collection" at Smith College on Wednesday, October 27, in the Neilson Library.

A lecture, "In Yeat's House: The Death and Resurrection of Sylvia Plath," will be presented tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Neilson Library.

The exhibition of items left by the poet at her death can be viewed from Oct. 25 through Nov. 30.

The collection's opening is timed to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the poet's birth.

Kennedy addresses hunger conference

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass, will speak at the Northampton Conference on World Hunger at 4 p.m. today in Sage Hall at Smith College.

The conference, including about 60 to 100 invited mayors, selectmen, and educators will include a panel discussion, "A Practical Approach to Solving the Problem of World Hunger."

Director of policy analyses for Oxfam-America, Larry Simon will speak on, "The U.S. Role in World Development," at 7:15 p.m. in McConnell Hall auditorium at Smith.

Both speeches are open to the public.

There is only ONE TIME OUT

Two TV's Come and Great Juke and Stereo

DOUBLE YOUR FUN

Amherst's Biggest Little Bar

37 N. Pleasant St, Amherst MA

Athletes and Active People:

WEIGHT TRAINING and/or BODY BUILDING

- Women and Men
- Individually Designed Routines
- Continuously Monitored
- Initial Cardiovascular Test Included

Monthly memberships now available for a limited time only at:

THE HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER

Rt. 9, Hadley, Ma. 586-6336

"Need A Workout?"

Call "TIPS", at 545-1540, and ask for TAPES-

#2453	Gym Schedules
#2459	Pool Schedules
#2471	Racquetball & Squash Courts' Schedules
#2464	Tennis Court Schedules
#2476	Weight Room Schedules

During these colder months, stay in shape and feel even better.

IDB TIPS

a Service of the Dean of Students Office

FACULTY:

The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP

Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester!!

We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.

Please Send Us Your Orders By

October 25th

1. Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails.
2. We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them. If we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester.
3. Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex.

We appredate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call. (5-3570-1-2)

Textbook Annex Hours M-F 9 am - 4 pm

Justina Kielec, Faculty Liaison

Russ Evans, Textbook Manager

Returns to publisher will begin November 1st. Please inform your students.

UMass task force to address world hunger problem

By BILL THOMAS
Collegian Correspondent

The problem of world hunger is a complex one that exists for a variety of interrelated reasons and cannot be blamed on any specific political or economic system, said Tony Dreyfus and Mary Jo Langston of the University of Massachusetts Hunger Task Force.

The Fast Day, for which students give up a meal and donate its cost to Oxfam America — a non-profit, international development agency that funds self-help programs in Asia, Africa and Latin America will take place this year on Nov. 18.

Langston, a former Peace Corps volunteer, and Dreyfus, a junior agricultural economics major, are among the ten members on the task force whose strategy in combatting world hunger includes weekly meetings and sponsoring of a Fast Day each semester

"For example, in Kampuchea in the years following the (Vietnam) war, the rice harvest was nearly, if not totally, wiped out and in two years of post-war work with the help of some other organizations, they (Oxfam) got the rice harvest back up to two thirds of the maximum level, which is phenomenal," she said.

Langston said it's difficult to place the blame for starving people on one source.

"Everybody has a part. A country devoting 60 percent of its prime agricultural land to a cash crop that is exported reduces the amount of land available for crops that feed the people of that country, she said.

"The government is certainly responsible for that situation to a certain extent, but so are people who buy the product and so are the people who produce the product." "But it's not as simple as saying, 'well, don't do that, turn it all around,' because these countries do need a cash flow, they depend on foreign trade, it's vital."

Concerning the belief of some people that poor countries are responsible for their own food shortages due to overpopulatoin, Dreyfus said, "Families in underdeveloped nations have a high birthrate because the infant mortality rate is so high — in some places the infant mortality rate is such that one out of every two people don't make it to the age of five."

"People in underdeveloped nations also need offspring to help in agricultural work and it's not until these nations complete the developmental process that their people are secure enough not to need kids," Dreyfus said.

Langston said student support for the Task Force "is there and we're appreciative of the support we've had from students and faculty, but it's something we need more of." "We're going to need people for the week of the fast to talk to people, hand out leaflets and things like that." "If someone could gie us just an hour of their time we could use it."

Duffey speaks to talented high school students at luncheon held yesterday

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey invited 34 talented high school seniors to attend UMass next year with a tuition waiver, at a luncheon held in their honor yesterday.

The students are all winners of the 1983 Chancellor's Talent Award Program. The program was instituted in 1980 to provide an incentive for talented students in Massachusetts to attend UMass, said the program's coordinator, Sarah J. Hamilton.

"I have just chosen the University of Massachusetts," Duffey said. "Naturally, I hope you will choose it also."

The winners of the award, a four-year tuition waiver, were chosen out of about 260 students who took an aptitude test last April, Hamilton said. The tests had sections on math and English.

"It was a lot easier than the SAT's," said Laurel Starkey of Grafton, a winner of the competition. "I was pretty excited because 260 kids had taken it," Starkey said.

While the high school juniors were taking the examination, their parents were honored at a luncheon in the campus center. Hamilton said. She said representatives from various academic departments and the financial aid office participated in discussions with the parents after the luncheon.

This was the first time the parents were invited during the testing, Hamilton said. She said this was to increase the number of winners who actually would attend UMass next fall. Last year 42 percent of the winners actually enrolled in UMass.

Duffey told the students to enjoy their talents. "Learning can be a thing of tremendous joy and delight," Duffey said.

However, he said they should consider the social responsibility that comes with that talent, pointing toward such historical and political figures as Albert Einstein, Theodore Roosevelt and Sen. Bill Bradley.

The students and their parents dined on salad, cold cut sandwiches, cherry pie, coffee and tea.

Various academic deans, administrators, members of the new students program and new students program student counsellors also attended the luncheon.

"I am a freshman this year," Duffey said. "When I am just a sophomore I hope you'll be coming to this institution."

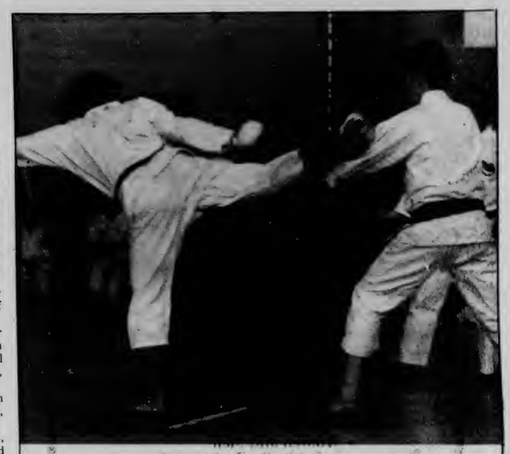

Photo by Bryan L. shway

Steve Herman of UMass (right) and Mark Fabi battle it out at the karate tournament held Saturday at NOPE gym.

THE WOMEN'S WEEK
FOR THE WEEK OF OCT. 25-31

The Women's Week is a calendar of local events for women. To place an event, contact the Women's Department of the Collegian by Friday.

MONDAY:
"Preening our Common Symbols: Third World Women Writers" will be held at 4 p.m. in the 6th floor lounge of Thompson Hall at the University of Massachusetts. Roberta Ferbandez, a professor from the Women's Studies Department at UMass will present the lecture.

TUESDAY:
A workshop on sexual harassment, "The Workplace Hustle," will be held at noon in the UMass Campus Center in room 917.

Women's Week

Sandra M. Gilbert from the University of California at Davis wil speak on "In Yeats House: The Death and Resurrection of Sylvia Plath at 8 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room at Smith College.

WEDNESDAY:
The support group "Adolescent Survivors of Sexual Assualt" for any adolescent woman who has experienced a past or recent sexual assualt will meet at 3 p.m. at the Everywomans Center.

THURSDAY:
The film "Women in Arms" will be held at noon in the Campus Center in room 904-908.

A workshop on "Career and Life Planning" will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Everywomans Center.

You'll have to see it.

50 - 90% OFF LIST PRICE

ALL TYPES OF BOOKS

down the ramp

71 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

The Reading Remedy

NEW BOOKS AT HALF PRICE

Monday - Saturday 10 - 6

HALLOWEEN!

masks make-up costumes & more

FAGS

A Store-full of Ideas Downtown Amherst

★Tripp

Continued from page 1

Tripp proposed the current 7½ percent surtax, which he said former Gov. Michael Dukakis is considering eliminating, be instead targeted solely for "higher education, and specifically UMass." He said this would have involved $162 million generated by the surtax in 1981, as compared to the University's total budget that year of $99 million.

"Our prime source of income is education," Tripp said, and "the way to attract industry is a good pool of educated talent."

However, Tripp disagreed with recent efforts to gear the University towards a mainly science and technology focus, saying the same mistake could be made with engineers in the 1980's as was made with teachers in the 1970's.

"It sounds so nice politically," Tripp said, but "to emphasize one thing is a rather poor move. We'd have to retrain these people later."

While calling it "unrealistic" to stake himself to a promise of not voting for a tax increase, Tripp advocated a "direct revenue return" system for dividing state allocations to the individual cities and towns by a set percentage of the annual budget.

This, he said, would eliminate a "continual course of payoffs and paybacks" such as that exemplified by a situation in which he said a mayor of a city "gets down on his hands and knees" asking for needed funds and is forced in return to promise votes for the benefactor politician.

★Olver

Continued from page 1

four cents from the 21 in excise taxes now charged per pack of cigarettes. To avoid an increase in the price of cigarettes, the minimum pricing law, which requires that cigarettes be sold at 12 percent above the wholesale price, would be rescinded.

Corruption is in every state all government all over the country, Olver said. "I suppose there will always be people who will use their position for personal gains. Is it any different from tax fraud?" he said.

Olver added he disliked using tax fraud as an example because "we're likely to end up using loose words."

Olver won the support of the Massachusetts Teacher's Association, the largest professional association in Massachusetts, because of his efforts to make proposition 2½ work by struggling to increase local aid to offset 2½'s effects.

Photo by Peter Marks

The Juggler Meadow Morris men and Wake Robin Morris women perform their song and dance routine on an Amherst sidewalk last week.

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

2.19 Reg B & L 12 oz Saline Sol. 3.23

Playtex Tampon 28's reg super 2.44 reg

1.56 reg 2.35 24's Pamprin

1.19 reg 1.64 Murine Plus ½ oz

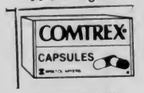
Ponds Cocoa Butter

1.41 Reg 2.15

Finesse conditioner Reg & X-Body 7 oz.

76¢ reg 1.13 Lime Menthol Regular

1.41 reg 2.11



Comtrex 2.08

1.28 3 oz Right Guard reg 2.05

2.19 reg 2.50 Sudafed 24's

Special Value 1.14

Close-up 4.6 oz.

All sale items also available the Mini Store located in the Student Union

UNIVERSITY STORE

Located in the Campus Center Open M-F 9-5

Shape Your Own Future
by designing a major specifically suited to your goals
Some examples: Biological Illustration, Industrial Pyschology, International Relations

Come to an introductory meeting of the Bachelor's degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) Program, and discover the choices available to you.

Monday, October 25
Brett Lobby
7:00 PM

★THE WHO★
TOUR OF AMERICA
SEPT. - DEC. 1982
IN CONCERT
All Area Shows BILLY JOEL All Area Shows

SPRINGSTEEN	BARRY MANILOW	BOB SEGER
STEVIE NICKS	RICK SPRINGFIELD	NEIL DIAMOND
PAT BENATAR	ALABAMA	STEVIE WONDER
LUTHOR VANDROSS	JACKSON BROWNE	JOHN COUGAR
NEIL YOUNG	GENESIS	JOURNEY
SOFT CELL	ROBERT PLANT	STRAY CATS
J. GEILS	ERIC CLAPTON	DAVID BOWIE

Deposits are now being accepted for concerts for 1982-83. All concerts are subject to change or cancellation without notice. ALL DEPOSITS FULLY REFUNDABLE

★ Call for concert info. — 201-461-5650 ★
FUTURE CONCERTS
POLICE • GO GO'S • MOTELS • GLEN FREY • DON HIENLEY
TOM PETTY • PRINCE • RANDY MEISNER • KOOL & THE GANG
LAURIE ANDERSON • FLOCK OF SEAGULLS • RUSH • BILLY SQUIER • ASIA • ALAN PARSONS PROJECT • STEVIE WINWOOD

Write for concert info, dates & locations. Send $2.00 plus SASE

Tickets Unlimited Inc.
Name
Address
City State Zip Code
Date of Birth / / Phone No ( )
P.O. Box 791, Fort Lee, New Jersey 07024

EDITORIAL/OPINION

'WHO'S INSIDE?'

Reagan's talk very partisan

President Reagan pulled a few quick punches last Wednesday night by urging the American public to "Stay the Course" during his network and cable TV telecast.

Reagan was supposed to give a non-partisan speech, in response to the historic unemployment figure of 10.1 percent, and he didn't. The facade of an unbiased report on the state of the economy was an obviously weak front for the real political message of the speech, which was "Vote Republican in the November elections." In the speech, Reagan regurgitated large portions of campaign speeches he's made in the past few months while stumping for Republican candidates.

The President even signed into law a job training bill as an attempt to bolster flagging spirits. What was left out was the fact that he had threatened to veto the bill if it passed through Congress. (One of the bill's original sponsors was Ted Kennedy)

Josh Meyer

By saying that his administration has made important progress in the sturggle to start the country "on our way back to prosperity," Reagan accepted only a tiny part of the blame for the economy, and glossed over the dubious impact that his policies have had. He used charts to trace the economic ups and downs of the past few decades, and kept referring to the "pounding economic hangover," left presumably by the Democrats. (Unemployment under Carter was at worst 7.5 percent) and better when he left office than when he entered.)

More than anything else, the speech sounded like a Republican pep-talk. It is evident that Reagan was speaking more in the interest of the Republican party than in the interest of the people. After all, for a speech about the unemployment crisis, a lot more was said about "Staying the Course" than about what this course would actually be. How convenient it is that a free, presidential campaign ad comes just three weeks before elections!

"Stay the Course," which is also the primary message of Republican campaign ads, is a sneaky way of asking for more time to allow present policies to work themselves out. It is also a subtle means of coercing people to vote Republican. Instead of referendum voting, or choosing a candidate on the merit of their stance on particular issues (like unemployment), the public is being duped into voting on the basis of party politics. The Democrats are guilty of this too, but they pay for the TV time in which they choose to advertise.

Eleven million people are out of work, and another 1.6 million have stopped looking for a job. Their uncertainty is being manipulated by a campaign strategy which is banking on the premise that people would rather stick with the present policy directions than try something new and untested.

Whether the present strategy is working or not is not the question here. The speech is at issue, not the speaker. Critics will say that the Democrats were given only two days to come up with a speech and a speaker. So if their rebuttal sounded like a messy, last-ditch effort by someone nobody's ever heard of, that's because it was.

President Reagan himself said that the "sheer weight of all these facts and figures (unemployment, inflation, interest rates, federal spending index rates, etc.) makes them hard to understand," and that "people are desperately trying to make sense out of all the statistics, slogans and political jargon filling the airwaves this election year." Everyone is playing the "blame game," he said.

After hearing this, and then studying a transcript of the speech given last week, one begins to suspect that President Reagan himself abused the power of his office in making the speech. He himself is trying to outdo his opponents in the Blame Game, and use these "statistics, slogans and political jargon" to his party's advantage. If he had acted this well during his movie days, he would have won an Academy Award.

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Scientific banter on grey matter

I read in the Collegian last Friday that a Chicopee man has come up with a theory on brain function. The Collegian story reported that he claims his theory "reduces the basic drives and the phenomena of creativity, curiousity, conscience, decisions and volition to concrete biological processes." The story also said that he achieved a chance to present his theory through his own efforts, which consisted of spending Tuesday at the Campus Center concourse talking to students about his theory.

Well, I find this interesting. Particularly interesting because I came up with my own brain function theory two years ago. I didn't come out with it then because I wanted to check and recheck my figures thoroughly and make sure all the decimal points were in the right places. But now since this man in Chicopee has forced the issue I've decided to come out with my theory and beat him to the punch.

This is my theory: Millions of years ago the brain was the laziest part of the body. All other parts of the body were active: the legs ran and jumped and hopped; the hands touched and grabbed and threw; the stomach churned and digested; the heart thumped. But the brain? He had nothing to do and spent all his time in his room watching television. He was the saddest little organ you ever saw. And then one day (and no one knows when, but most scientists agree it was a Thursday) the brain decided to stop feeling sorry for himself and to do something about his problem. He shut off his television set and began to read as many books as he could lay his hands on. Soon, the other parts of the body started to respect the brain and wanted to hang out with him. But by this time the brain had realized that not only was he as good as the other parts of the body, he was better. And so the brain snubbed them all, staying in his room alone, reading, imagining, and pondering. That is my theory.

Ed Robinson

And I have still another theory: I think the man from Chicopee owes me an enormous debt. Some how he probably got his hands on my unpublished theory, and used it as the foundation of his own theory. Anyone who has taken Psych. 101 realizes, I think, that once the origin of the brain is explained (which I have just done) answering other questions, like function, is a piece of cake. I hope the man gives credit where credit is due.

In any case, I wish him well. Some people scoff at him because he is from outside the academic community. They think that the academic community has a monopoly on creativity and ideas. Perhaps, after he makes the formal presentation of his theory in front of faculty and students, he should keep in mind the words of our greatest scientist, Carl Sagan, the man who discovered public television: "They laughed at Columbus. They laughed at Copernicus. But they also laughed at Bozo the Clown." Only time will tell if his theory, or my theories, or anybodys theories are valuable.

Ed Robinson is a UMass student

Letters

We can learn from listening

To the Editor:

After talking at some length with Mr. Kenneth Collins, I heartily support him in his efforts to present to us his unified theory of brain function and behavior. At 35 years of age, Mr. Collins is not a joke or a gag, as passerbys would believe; he was in the campus center for one reason only, that being to gain the right to present his theory. He appears to be quite intelligent and well spoken, as well as knowledgeable about the brain and "our" current understanding of it.

As a student studying psychology/neuroscience, I feel that we owe it to ourselves to hear what he has to say. He indicated that his years of research were an integration of the works of other scientists. By summing, chopping, and, the true scientist's skill, analyzing the part, Mr. Collins believes he has come up with a unified theory incorporating the efforts of many scholars.

How can we deny ourselves the opportunity to at least listen to him?! Afterwards, we can judge for ourselves. We wish to understand the mystery our brain calls the brain, and if Mr. Collins thinks he can provide us the platform on which to build upon, the least we can do is listen. From listening, we can only evaluate and learn.

Andrew Lehrer
Amherst

Senate endorsement inappropriate

To the Editor:

On Wednesday, October 20, the Student Senate at this University endorced incumbent Senator Olver for the State Senate. On Friday, October 22, the Collegian reported charges made by Olver's opponent Jim Tripp of slanderous politics. We are two concerned senators who wish to make public our views on this highly significant issue.

We feel very strongly that the implication of the Oct. 20 endorsement is ulterior to the interests of the students at UMass. To us, the Senate vote implies that the Senate is a partisan, special interest group. We object to this implication and feel that the Senate's duty is to represent all its constituents, not just the views of a majority of its senators.

We feel it essential to point out that 25,000 students of varying backgrounds and party affiliations attend this unversity. There are Republicans, Libertarians, and Socialists on this campus as well as Democrats. The Senate's endorsement of Olver implies a consensus among these diverse political groups. It is obvious to these two senators that no such consensus exists.

For these reasons we feel that Jim Tripp should get his apology from the Student Senate. We intend to pursue this issue. We urge all concerned students to contact their senators and make their views known before Wednesday's Senate meeting. This issue leaves no room for apathy.

Jack Merrill
Amherst
David Stanley
Northeast

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Because of the large volume of mail received, unpublished letters cannot be acknowledged or returned. Submissions are subject to editing for clarity and grammar. Letters longer than 30 line - may be condensed due to space limitations.

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

STOP & SHOP FROZEN COUPON D9 — Asst'd Flavors Sealtest Ice Cream Half Gal. Carton 99¢ — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct. 24 Sat. Oct. 30. Limit one per customer. 447

STOP & SHOP FROZEN COUPON D8 — Stop & Shop Half Gallon Apple Juice Regular 59¢ — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct. 24 Sat. Oct. 30. Limit one per customer. 445

STOP & SHOP DAIRY COUPON D10 — Premium Pack Tropicana Orange Juice Half Gal. Container 99¢ — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct. 24 Sat. Oct. 30. Limit one per customer. 446

Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon D3 — White, Pink or Yellow Stop & Shop Facial Tissue 2 ply 300 sheet package FREE — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct. 24 Sat. Oct. 30. Limit one per customer. 443

STOP & SHOP DAIRY COUPON D11 — All Natural Breyers Yogurt Assorted Flavors 8 oz cup FREE — With this coupon & a $7.50 purchase. Good Sun. Oct. 24 Sat. Oct. 30. Limit one per customer. 449

Beef Bottom Round Roast USDA CHOICE Up to 5 lbs 1.69 lb

Porterhouse or T-Bone Steak Beef Loin 2.99 lb

Beef Top Round Roast	Up to 5 lbs	lb 1.79
Beef Round Tip Roast	Up to 5 lbs USDA Choice	lb 1.89
Boneless Beef Chuck Roast	USDA Choice	lb 1.69
Cube Steak Beef Round	USDA Choice	lb 2.49
Beef Round Stew	USDA Choice "Great Beef"	lb 2.29
Beef Eye Round Steak	USDA Choice "Great Beef"	lb 2.49
Boneless Beef Chuck Steak	USDA Choice	lb 1.89
Shoulder London Broil	Beef Chuck	lb 1.99
Beef Top Round Steak	USDA Choice	lb 2.39
Top Round London Broil	USDA Choice	lb 2.49
Beef Round Tip Steak	USDA Choice	lb 2.49
Boneless Top Sirloin Steak	USDA Choice Beef Loin	lb 2.99

Prices effective in Hadley-Amherst only

DOUBLE MFG. COUPONS Hadley-Amherst only see Store for Details — STOP & SHOP

corner deli Available in stores featuring a service deli.
Deutschmacher Franks Cello casing 1.99 lb
Deutschmacher Liverwurst Sliced to your order 1.59 lb

Whole Oven Ready Fresh Lamb Legs American Grown 1.89 lb
Colonial Extra Mild Franks 1 lb package 1.19
Colonial Beef Franks 1 lb package 1.49
Fresh Flounder Fillets Great baked stuffed! 2.79 lb
Fresh Cod Steaks 1.99 lb
Stop & Shop Rye Bread 16 oz Swedish, Plain or 19 oz Caraway Rye 69¢
Silkience Shampoo or Conditioner 15 oz bottle 1.99

'White Gem' with Back Chicken Leg Quarters 8 to 9 pound package 49¢ lb

Chicken Legs	White Gem 5-6 pound package	lb 69¢
Chicken Wings	White Gem 5-6 pound package	lb 59¢
Chicken Breast	Split with Back White Gem 5-6 lb pkg	lb 99¢
Chicken Livers	White Gem	3 lb pkg 99¢
Fresh Lean Ground Beef	3 lb pkg or more	lb 1.69

Produce Hand-pick exactly what you need at Stop & Shop!

Bartlett Pears Large Size — Mountain Grown 3 lbs $1
Firm and juicy, very flavorful. A naturally sweet dessert!
New England Grown Bosc Pears lb 39¢

Florida White or Pink Grapefruit 32 & 27 size
Indian River 3 for $1
A juicy half is a tangy morning eye-opener!

Cauliflower Jumbo Snow White head 99¢
So good so many ways, buttered, with cheese sauce or par-boiled, breaded and deep fried!

2 Pound Bag Fresh Carrots 2 for $1

Yellow Onions	New York State	5 lb bag 99¢
Fresh Brussel Sprouts		lb 79¢
Fresh Cranberries	12 oz package	69¢

Three Diamonds Tuna Chunk Light in water 6½ ounce can 79¢
Tomato Soup 10¾ oz Stop & Shop can 4 for 95¢
Heinz Keg O Ketchup Tomato 32 ounce bottle 1.19
Folger's Coffee 1 lb can Electric, Drip, or Regular Grind 1.99
Apple Juice Half Gallon Stop & Shop From concentrate 1.09
Friskies Buffet Cat Food Assorted Varieties 6½ ounce can 3 for $1
Vanity Fair Towels 2 ply 100 sheet roll 59¢
Breyers Yogurt All Natural, Assorted Flavors, 8 oz cup 3 for $1
Heinz Deep Fries Regular or Crinkle Cut 24 ounce package 99¢

Copyright 1982 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Not responsible for typographical errors.

Arts

Jackson relaxin'

Joe Jackson
Thursday, October 21
Fine Arts Center

By DEAN RANZO
Collegian Correspondent

Though Joe Jackson wasn't as good as I thought he'd be, he still was a touchstone of metamorphosis via his personality and music Thursday night at the Fine Arts Center. He succeeded in keeping an unsuspecting, rowdy crowd confused and/or insulted, yet entertained nonetheless.

The Joe Jackson Band (not merely Joe Jackson on this tour) is the first big-name act I've seen that didn't make use of a guitar. You wonder how a band that made it big from such frantic guitar oriented songs as "I'm The Man," "One More Time," and "Sunday Papers" can pull off a show without that attribute. A more aesthetic reliance on the electric keyboards was Jackson's answer. Though it proved Jackson's talent for divergence and was definitely quality music (a la Night and Day, his latest LP), it took away the chance of hearing him perform "On The Radio" or "Look Sharp" in a fashion that people are familiar with and really want to see. I'm totally for innovation and change but just one song with an old Joe Jackson frenzied guitar riff would have been nice.

Joe Jackson himself, the sure winner of a Frank Purdue look alike contest, was dressed like your average Joe, that is if this was 1946. And he was on the tail end of a cold. There were a few moments when I thought he was going to pass out right on the spot. He looked terrible, wiping his forehead a lot and taking many deep breaths. He stuck it out though and his voice was barely flawed.

The only time his voice failed was when he repeatedly and rudely lashed out at the crowd for clapping inappropriately or for clapping off-beat. Some people might have thought he was funny or just exploiting his perogative as a musician, but I thought he was insensitive and just plain arrogant. I paid good money to see the show and I'll clap when I damn well want to. Jackson's audacity prevented the crowd from acknowledging his emotionally brilliant vocal display on "A Slow Song." People were actually afraid to clap during appropriate points. I was too. I didn't want him to stop and tell me to fuck-off in the middle of a gorgeous song that Barry Manilow would envy.

When Jackson wasn't cussing the crowd he was primarily singing and leading the band consisting of a bass player, percussionist, drummer and two keyboardists into quite an array of generally easy listening music. "One More Time" was one of the heavier tunes of the night dominated by the powerfully competent bass playing of Graham Maby. "T.V. Age," though off the new album, was touched up with some swing as Jackson blew a mighty sax. "Cancer" and "Fridays" had quite the Latin overtones and succeeded largely due to an impressive blend of the bongos and bass. "Is She Really Going Out With Him" was done in a rather discordant acapello that was salvaged by Jackson's irrepressible voice. "Real Man" was by far the classiest song, setting quite a laid back mood supplemented by some fine piano playing by Jackson.

My favorite song was the encore, 'I'm The Man," which featured an excellent electric jam and the fierce Joe Jackson we're used to. Following the lone encore Jackson apologized for not giving a better and longer show due to his illness.

The Joe Jackson Band was a good show with some interesting mystical concepts and fine musicianship, but I do feel that Joe Jackson should be more appreciative of his following, especially if he wants the changes made in his sound to be enthusiastically received.

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

Frank Purdue? Frank Gorshin? Wallace Shawn? No, its Joe Jackson, in performance Thursday night at the FAC.

Much to be seen in The Dark

By KAREN BEACIENSKI
Collegian Correspondent

Slowly the lights rise, casting eerie shadows about the wild mountain setting as a solemn voice rises on the misty air, the unseen balladeer relating to us the haunting story of the beautiful Barbara Allen. Dark of the Moon is the tale of a sensitive witchboy who falls in love with the prettiest member of a dirt-poor hillbilly clan, and is transformed into a human so he can court her. He will remain if and only if Barbara is faithful for one year, a condition which is manipulated by the contrasting sides of the earthy folks and the ethreal witches.

The cast blends together wonderfully, creating a mountain community which scrapes a life out of superstition, barn dances, and an unshakable faith in the Lord. Lawrence Cox, as the witch-boy who attempts to join their charmed circle, succeeded brilliantly in gaining our sympathy for his plight. He was especially effective in the witch-boy, as his eyes eerily dart about the stage. His lean body seemed to be controlled by a gravitational force different from the other characters. Together with Linda Amendola as Barbara Allen, they override all cliches about star-crossed lovers with emotional and very human performances.

In brief yet striking appearances, Alan Arenius as the Conjur Man and Jodi Leong as the Conjur Woman established the powerful supernatural undertones of the play, casting a dark, threatening mist on the community which is powerfully thrust aside by the Preacher Haggler, played by Lenny Egan. Of the remaining cast, each and every one created from a stereotypical hillbilly base a unique individual who contributes in propelling the tension of the plot upward until its chilling conclusion.

Harry Mahnken's precise and accurate direction made thorough use of set. The set of the mysterious mountain oppressively peering into the hillbilly valley is brutally threadbare in the daylight, emphasizing the scant existence of these hardworking folks. And yet when shades of blue light dull the edges and mystify the entire setting we realize that the supernatural is always present and not to be ignored. June B. Gaeke's costumes added to the mood perfectly, with the mountain people's salvation army browns and greys contrasted with the airy, imaginative garments of the conjurs and witches.

Overall, this production is typical of the fine entertainment which is produced at the Rand. Consistently presented in a totally professional manner, the high degree of talent and hard work which goes into one of these shows is evident from beginning to end. Dark of the Moon succeeds as fine drama in every category, with the acting and other effects melting into a smoothly running and attention-grabbing production.

Lenny Egan and Dennis Wemm in Dark of the Moon at the Rand Theatre.

Photo by Nancy Nutile

The Busboys thrilled and entertained a good sized crowd at the Rusty Nail Saturday night. The dynamic band kept the dance floor hopping all night with material from their latest album.

Yo-Yo Ma plays Amherst College

By JOHN C. JENKINS
Collegian Correspondent

The Music at Amherst concert series at Amherst College continued Friday with performances by cellist Yo Yo Ma and pianist Lydia Artymiw.

The concert had been an instant sell out and the standing room only crowd was further testimony to the incredible wave of popularity and critical acclaim awarded Yo Yo Ma. His performance, this one included, are showcases for the mastery he possesses over the cello.

The first half of the concert included works by Shumann and Mendelssohn which highlighted the talents of both performers. A sonata by Mendelssohn was a sample of what the performers were capable of and the audience could gauge from the demonstrative behavior of Mr. Ma his involvement with the piece.

The second half consisted of a Sonata in G minor by Rachmaninoff which solidified the partnership between the artists. The closeness in purpose as they played the piece produced the excellence for which both artists are known.

This concert, following closely his performance last weekend at Carnegie Hall, is a prelude to his Boston University Celebrity Series appearance as well as his Boston Symphony Orchestra debut the week of February 10th. Yo Yo Ma will be playing a Dvorak cello concerto as part of the program.

Ms. Artymiw will be in Amherst again December 11th to perform with the New England Chamber Orchestra at Amherst College.

Both performances have much to offer in the way of talent so any opportunity to see them should not be missed.

Louis FINE FOODS
76 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MASS.

Save on your grocery bills plus S&H Green Stamps!

EFFECTIVE DATES 10/25 - 30

USDA CHOICE Top Round Roast $1.89 LB

USDA CHOICE

MOSEYS Corned Beef Brisket 2½-4½ LBS

Point Cut $1.29 LB

Straight Cut $1.89 LB

USDA CHOICE Top Round Steak LB $2.59

FREEZER SPECIAL
ARMOUR VERI BEST NO BLADE BONE Whole Pork Loins 14-17 LBS $1.69 LB

HOOD Apple Juice ½ GAL ALL NATURAL 100% PURE $1.09

MRS. FILBERTS Golden Margarine 1 LB QTRS 55¢

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

MINUTE MAID Orange Juice 12 OZ CAN 99¢

BREYER'S ALL NATURAL Ice Cream ½ GALLON $2.29

WITH THIS COUPON & $7.50 PURCHASE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & CIGARETTES. LIMIT ONE PER CUSTOMER. LU85
SCOTT Jumbo Towels 39¢ ROLL
GOOD OCT. 25-30 AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH THIS COUPON & $7.50 PURCHASE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & CIGARETTES. LIMIT ONE PER CUSTOMER. LU86
SWEET LIFE Creamy Butter 1 LB QTRS 99¢
GOOD OCT. 25-30 AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH THIS COUPON & $7.50 PURCHASE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & CIGARETTES. LIMIT ONE PER CUSTOMER. LU87
Free SWEET LIFE FROZEN Waffles 6 PK
GOOD OCT. 25-30 AT LOUIS FOODS

Porno Board meeting just business talk

BOSTON (AP) — For the 100 representatives of the multimillion-dollar industry, the day was spent discussing nothing but sex.

But the talk of sex was strictly business as members of the Adult Film Association of America gathered in Boston Saturday to trade views on court rulings involving pornography, the growing X-rated video cassette market and ways to clean up the image of the adult movie industry.

There was no display of the latest adult films. No actresses or actors appeared at the meeting at the swank Copley Plaza Hotel.

"Porno stars should be obscene and not heard," said David F. Friedman, chairman of the board of the association.

Friedman said the X-rated movie business is "a growth industry," with 784 theaters around the country now showing sex films to an estimated 3 million customers a week. About 40 of those theaters are located in New England.

AMHERST CINEMA
Mon & Tues
Midnight Cowboy 7:00
Lenny 9:00
Wed - Sat
Pretty Baby [R] 7:00
Atlantic City [R] 9:00
Downtown Amherst 253-5426

Dana Harlow
Happy Birthday!
May we have touchdowns forever!
I love you
Your Baby

$12.95
Men's Acrylic V-Neck
Saturday Clothes
266 N. Pleasant
Fri till 9 pm
(behind Silverscape)
Sat 10 - 6
253-9729

Dastardly Dans
Mon - Thurs
$3.00 Cover
FREE DRAFT
9 - closing
50¢ Highballs
50¢ Domestic Beers
Pool Table - Pinball - Video Games
POOL TOURNAMENT TONIGHT

LODESTONE
13 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Massachusetts
256-0591

The Lodestone
and John Dellaria Salon request the pleasure of your company
at its Annual Holiday Fashion
Collabortive
on
Monday, October 25, 1982
8:30 P.M.
at
Hangar 1 Route 9
Hadley, Massachusetts
$3.00

JOHN DELLARIA SALON
26 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
253-9271

Ping Pong
Paddles, Balls & Nets
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
TRY OUR RESUME SERVICES

Mount Snow Vermont Tours
"Presents"
SKI SEMESTER
Collegiate Ski Weeks
6 Days 5 Nights
Jan. 2-7, 1983 Jan. 16-21, 1983
Jan. 9-14, 1983 Jan. 23-28, 1983
at Mount Snow Vermont
$179.00 per person Quad occupancy
$50.00 deposit required
Package Includes:
• 5 nights lodging
• A gala welcome party
• Five day lift tickets at Mt Snow ski area
• Five full skiers' breakfasts
• Four full course dinners
• Ski tour guide & host
• And so much more!
• Welcome Get-Together Party • Beer Bash
Wine & Cheese Party • Fondue Party • Horse-Drawn Sleigh Ride • Movies • And so much more
"The Mountain of Fun, MT Snow Vermont"
All Rates Subject to 5% State Tax and 15% Hotel Gratuity Service Charge
Mount Snow Vermont Tours
PO Box 571, Route 100
West Dover, Vermont 05356
802-464-2076

Enlarge your Horizons
Order Enlargements today!

Buy three enlargements the fourth is FREE!
Pick up a coupon at the Photopatio counter at the University Store. Order four 5 x 7 or 8 x 10 lustre-luxe enlargements of your favorite color negatives (110, 126, 35mm or disc) or 35mm slides and the fourth one is FREE! Hurry, offer expires November 8, 1982.
PHOTOPATIO
THE UNIVERSITY STORE at the Campus Center

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Study, planning, and action toward nuclear disarmament. Help promote Referendum Question #'s 5 and 6. 6-8:00 p.m., 428 Student Union.

STAR TREK LIVES! Club Meeting. Films and information for Star Trek and Science Fiction fans. 7 p.m. 174 Campus Center.

UMASS OUTING CLUB MEETING — Summer 82 and Artic Whitewater Expedition: slide show and information by Dr. Jim Abel. Also trip announcements and business meeting. 7 p.m., 162-175 CC.

FIRST AID EMERGENCY CARE WORKSHOP — The Commuter Collective and the Health Aid Program are co-sponsoring a series of seven workshops dealing with health related issues. This first workshop will focus on how to administer first aid in an emergency situation. 11:30-12:30 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union.

ECUM MEETING — The Ecumenical Council meeting 3:00 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — Anyone willing to help and share ideas about solving the problems of world hunger is welcome. Plans now in process for Fast for a World Harvest. 4:30-5:30 p.m., Student Union.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS — Organization for "Freeze Campaign." People are needed to canvass the dorms for Referendum Question #5. Call 545-2661 for info. 6 p.m., 428 Student Union.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB MEETING — Come make candy apples in Chenoweth Pilot Plant. 6 p.m.

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

Doonesbury
Brought to you everyday by Garry Trudeau and the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

RECORD

Entry's must be on official coupon below

GIVE-AWAY

Record Album Drawing Oct 29

Name _____

Phone _____

Address _____

deposit coupons at Record Dept

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

A Talk By
Bernadette Devlin McAliskey
on
Human Rights in Ireland
TODAY
12:00 Noon
Student Union Ballroom

Sponsored by:
Irish Solidarity Committee
Radical Student Union
UMass Student Senate
Graduate Student Senate
Newman Club
Southwest Area Govt
Commuter Collective partial list

NOMINATIONS

for Distinguished Teachers Awards Program

any TA or Professor that has taught a course over the past two semesters

is eligible

Send your letter of recommendation to:

Distinguished Teachers Awards Committee
Graduate Student Senate
917 Campus Center
Deadline: Friday, Nov. 5th

"This reminder is brought to you by your friendly neighborhood yearbook staff."

Attention Fall Graduates:
Senior Pictures will be taken the week of November 15 appointments can be made by stopping by Campus Center room 103 or calling 5-2874

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD FALL COURSE BOOKS.

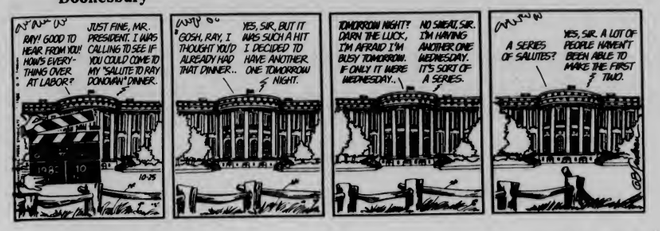
RETURNS START
NOVEMBER 1st

DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK—
YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
HOURS

MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

the UNIVERSITY STORE's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

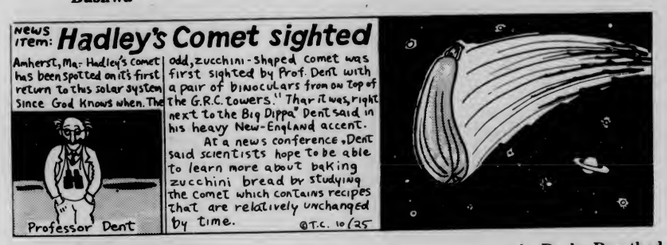
Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau



The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa



Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Turkey Club Sandwich
Fiesta Rice and Cheese

DINNER
Veal Parmesan
Ham Steak/Pineapple Rings
Tuna Salad Plate with Chips

BASICS LUNCH
Falafel Pocket Sandwich
Fiesta Rice and Cheese

BASICS DINNER
Baked Cod with Lemon Slice
Eggplant Parmigiana

Associate News Editor Wanted

The Collegian needs an associate news editor. Become involved in New England's largest college daily newspaper. Some experience in newswriting and reporting is necessary but we provide training. Low pay but great experience. All UMass students are encouraged to apply. Apply before Nov. 5 to Michael Foley, news editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

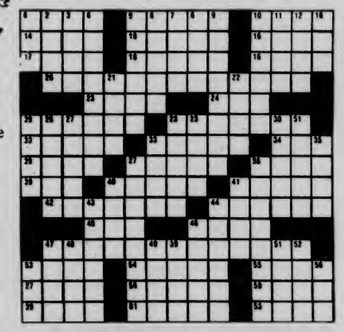
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Sound of disapproval
5 Singer Reese
10 Smooth
14 Lose traction
15 Noisy
16 Faithful
17 Colorful duck
18 Layer's home
19 Sponsorship
20 Criminologist's phrase
23 "The —— of a Tub"
24 Have a late bite
25 Meritorious
28 Neptune's symbol
32 Zodiac sign
33 Belts
34 Pentagon abbr
36 Construction piece
37 Take pride in one's achievement
38 Northern game fish
39 Appropriate
40 Traveler's choice
41 Finished for travel
42 Graduated, in a way
44 Extra-Terrestials, for one
45 Criticism
46 Laurel, to Hardy
47 Anna Magnani award-winning film, 1955
53 Hazy
54 More indisposed
55 Swirl
57 Wing: Fr.
58 Witch town
59 Papyrus
60 Unit of area, ¼ acre
61 Major Hoople's expletives
62 Ladies of Spain: Abbr.

DOWN
1 Pres. monogram
2 Holly
3 Former name for Thailand
4 What some decorators do
5 "...see through a glass ——"
6 Notched
7 Pillage
8 Tie up with rope
9 Deep-bored well
10 Treeless tract of Asia
11 Jason's ship
12 Nighttime in Nantes
13 —— Plaines
21 Stadium sounds
22 Froth
25 Street child
26 Spaceman's path
27 Vaquero's equipment
28 Held at bay
29 Lively dance
30 Ingenuous
31 Captured
33 TV's Johnson
35 Agents, for short
37 Dolphin kin
38 Tinterello and others
40 Learn by ear
41 City map
43 Raided for booty
44 Sergeant ——
46 Prancer
47 Singing group
48 Symbol of goodness
49 Waste at a smeltery
50 Singer Fitzgerald
51 Stettin's river
52 Modern concert halls
53 Nosy fish
56 Football measures: Abbr.



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

C	A	P	S		F	R	U	M	P		S	A	C	S
S	I	D	E		R	U	R	A	L		T	E	A	K
M	A	S	Q	U	E	R	A	D	E	P	A	N	T	Y
A	S	T	U	T	E		A	N	T	I	S	E	P	S
			E	I	D	E		M	O	W
B	E	L	L	C	O	R	D		S	K	A	T	E	D
E	N	A		A	M	I	E	S		A	R	U	B	A
S	T	U	D		G	A	L	E		S	I	D	E	W
O	R	I	T	S		H	E	A	S		O	N	E
S	T	A	N	D		S	T	E	W	A	R	T	S
		A	P	P	L	E		O	R	C	H	E	R	D
S	H	O	P	P	E	R		R	A	D	I	O
T	H	E	P	R	I	C	E		I	S		R	I	G	H	T
A	N	I	L		N	O	R	A		N	A	O	M	I
Y	U	L	E		E	I	N	E	S		E	M	M	A

WEATHER

★★★★★★★★

Mostly sunny today. High temperatures from the mid 40s to the mid 50s. Clear tonight. Lows in the 30s and low 40s. Mostly sunny and milder tomorrow. Highs in the 50s and low 60s.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	R 'n' B Wake-up with Ken Johnston
9-noon	Jazz with Dave Hart
12-3pm	Free as the Wind with Mahogony
3-5:30	Black Contemporary with Merritt Anthony
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	People's Perspective
7-10	Concepto Latino
10-2am	Rootsman Connection with Art Tillman
2-6	Night Club with Evan Abramowitz

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC
Daily Programming Schedule

Monday Oct. 25
Wake up and die right video

10:30 - 12:00	Sean Sands talks of Problems of Northern Ireland
12:00 - 1:30	The Neighborhoods wailing in the wall
1:30 - 2:00	May the Force be with You

EARTHFOODS MENU

Vegetable Chow Mein
over Rice
Green Salad
Black Bean Bread

Sports

Women booters win over weekend

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Sometimes no matter how hard you try nothing seems to go right for you. It was that type of weekend for the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team. The Minutewomen nipped stubborn Yale University, 1-0 on Saturday, on a Kristi Kelly goal with 19 seconds left in the game and beat Penn State, 3-0 on Sunday, but that win was clouded by a protest of the game.

With the two wins, UMass raises their record to 11-3. On Saturday, the Minutewomen, ranked 7th in the country, traveled to New Haven, Ct. and barely snuck out with a win. UMass outshot Yale 35-0, but could not score. The stubborn Yale defense did just enough to keep UM off the board.

"We dominated the game," said head coach Kalekeni Banda, "but we couldn't put the ball in the net. We had the chances to do it, but we didn't have the timing."

But Massachusetts, led by back Lori Stukes, took charge in the final minutes of the contest. The Yale defense collapsed around Stukes, who passed the ball off to Susan Bird. The freshman Bird passed the ball to a wide-open Kelly who popped the goal home with 19 seconds left on the clock.

"Lori set up the play," commented assistant coach Jim Williams. "Kristi played exceptionally well." The UMass defense played well but the offense just couldn't finish off the lady Bulldogs.

Against Penn State, yesterday, the Minutewomen played well and dominated most of the game enroute to a 3-0 win, that Penn State will protest. Penn State coach Dan Palumbo will protest the game because the officials, which are the responsibility of the home team, were 1 hour and 15 minutes late for the scheduled 1 p.m. kickoff.

Rules allow up to a 45 minute delay of the starting time. If the protest was ruled in Penn State's favor, UMass could lose the game by forfeit.

Back on the field, Nadia Komarowski and Debbie Harackiewicz played exceptionally as they staked UM out to a 2-0 lead. Komarowski, who assisted on both goals, and Lynne Raymond helped set up the goals, both scored by forward Harackiewicz.

All-American Nina Holmstrom scored the third goal with a beautiful shot on a follow up from another shot. Holmstrom, who played her best game of the year, according to Williams, was all over the field leading the UM offense.

The whole team played well on both defense and offense. No one player can be singled out, because they all played well.

"It was a good game," said Banda. "I was glad to see them play well today to sharpen up for Harvard." The Minutewomen face a crucial game with the Crimson tomorrow for a possible berth in the NCAA playoffs. UMass controls their own destiny. With a win on Tuesday, UMass is assured of the top ranking in the New England region and a berth in the playoffs.

UMass, ranked third overall in New England behind UConn (1) and Brown (2), are undefeated in NCAA New England region play. The New England region includes Mass., NH, VT, and Maine. UConn and Brown are in the NCAA Northeast region.

"We can't afford to lose (to Harvard)," said Banda. Game time is 2:30 tomorrow at Boyden Field.

Take a look at the real World Series awards

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Correspondent

As the World Series came and went, it was realized that only one award, the Most Valuable Player Award, would be officially presented. With so many more plays, players and media deserving more attention, it was decided that these momentos of recognition should be handed out.

THE "YOU'RE IN GOOD HANDS" AWARD: To Ben Oglivie, whose play in leftfield over the final two weeks of the regular season and throughout the playoffs made the strongest case yet for the designated hitter rule. Yes,that's even including the catch against Baltimore.

THE HEAD OVER HEELS AWARD: To Ozzie Smith for his perfect execution of a front flip, followed by a back flip on the way out to his position before game seven. No kiddin', he really did it.

THE FENWAY FRANK HOTDOGGER AWARD: To Juaquin Andujar, whose constant finger pointing and antics on the mound nearly caused a brawl with Milwaukee's Jim Gantner in game seven.

THE COMMENTATOR QUOTE AWARD: To Joe Garagiola, who, after watching Smith and Andujar do their thing, commented, "We may need a big jar of mustard for all the hot dogs we've seen so far."

THE FOOT IN MOUTH AWARD: To Milwaukee pitcher Moose Haas who, after pitching a terrific game against California in the A.L. playoffs, commented that he had never agreed with his assignment to the bullpen the final weeks of the season, and that getting starts in the playoffs only reflected management's late agreement with his point of view. Sour grapes or whatever, Moose the magnificent went out and promptly got wracked for seven hits and five runs in five and one third innings in game four.

THE MR. NICE GUY AWARD: To George Hendrick, who held his swing, as catcher Ted Simmons moved up in the box to get better positioning on Lonnie Smith's attempt to steal home. Had Mr. Hendrick not done so, Mr. Simmons head may have been deposited in the leftfield seats.

THE GREAT DISAPPEARING ACT AWARD: To Paul Molitor, who after going 5-5 in game one, hit a whopping .192 the remainder of the series. Gorman Thomas might have won this one with his equally depressive .120 batting average, but ole' Stormin' was practically invisible the ENTIRE series.

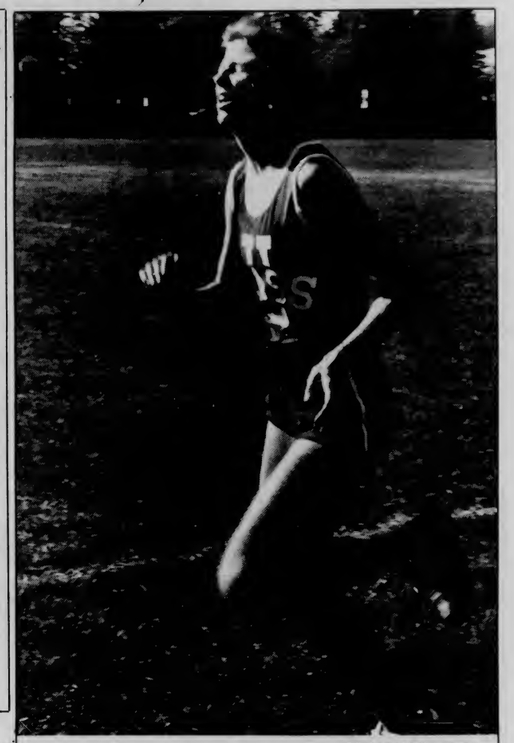
THE GREAT RE-APPEARING ACT AWARD: To Keith Hernandez, who after going 0-15 in games one through four went 7-11 with eight runs batted in for games five through seven.

THE NEWEST CATCH PHRASE AWARD: To rookie John Stuper, whose brilliant performance in game six started the call "Stuper was Super." Try saying that three times fast.

THE SHOCKER AWARD: To Byron Day, who conducted an interview with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in a thunder and lightning storm during game six using his electrical microphone. Smart move.

And finally,

THE BEST BROADCASTING AWARD: To NBC, who just as Garagiola and Tony Kubek finished commentating on how no player had made a big mistake that would be remembered, hit the part of the series highlight film showing St. Louis' pitcher Dave LaPoint dropping a toss to first which led to six unearned Brewer runs in game four.



Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Caroline Gardiner is shown on her way to placing first for the UMass women's cross-country team and fourth overall in a four team meet yesterday at UMass. Her time was 18:34.

Salazar captures close New York Marathon over Gomez

NEW YORK (AP) — Alberto Salazar, conserving his energy, powered past Mexico's Rodolfo Gomez in the stretch Sunday and won the New York City Marathon for the third consecutive year in a dramatic finish, in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 29 seconds.

"I was saving it (energy) for my last surge," said the confident Salazar, who is unbeaten in four marathons, including last April's Boston Marathon.

The 24-year-old Cuban-born Salazar, who now lives and trains in Eugene, Ore., needed every ounce of energy to outlast the dogged Gomez, 31, undefeated in three previous marathons this year.

The 1-2 finish by Salazar and Gomez matched their positions in the 1980 New York City Marathon. But two years ago, Salazar won handily. This time, Gomez gave him a fight to the finish.

Starting about the 21-mile mark of the 26-boroughs, the two ran side—by—side, never more than a step or two apart until they headed for the finish line in Central Park.

Then, the bigger and stronger Salazar made his winning surge through a cloud of dirt, finally putting away the gritty Gomez, who was clocked in a personal best of 2:09:33.

After the two crossed the finish line, they embraced warmly, knowing they had produced a scintillating "Duel in the Sun," before a huge national television audience and a crowd estimated at three million spectators along the route.

Another embrace at the finish line took place between Grete Waitz and her husband Jack, after the 29-year-old Norwegian had won the women's race for the fourth time in five years. In finishing a marathon for the first time since winning the New York City event for the third straight time in 1980, she was timed in 2:27:14.

Both winners were short of the world-bests, set in this race last year — 2:08:13 by Salazar and 2:25:29 by New Zealander Allison Roe, who was unable to defend her title this time because of an Achilles tendon injury.

The men's race was expected to be reminiscent of the Boston Marathon, where Salazar outkicked Dick Beardsley by two seconds. But Beardsley suffered a leg cramp about the nine-mile mark and finished 30th.

"I'm sorry I didn't give Al a better race," Beardsley said. "I felt very prepared and confident, but I just didn't have it today."

Instead, it was Gomez who fought it out with the favored Salazar.

"The last three miles I had pains in my stomach," said Gomez. "When Salaza changed the pace (with a rapid 4:31 mile from the 25th to the 26th mile), I couldn't follow him. I was surprised when he increased the tempo drastically.

Sports Notices Sports Notices

Mandatory meeting for all candidates and returning women lacrosse players tonight at 6 p.m. in NOPE 157.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?

Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

ANNIVERSARY

D Happy 1st I hope we have many more Love D

AUTO FOR SALE

1971 Ford Torino exc cond $950 or BO call 549-4147

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional ballydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

FOR RENT

Bedroom with kitchen. All utilities except phone. On bus route - Hadley $45.00 per week call 549-1631 available immediately

Room in Amherst family home $150/mo on busline 549-1536

FOR SALE

MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805

Pioneer integreted amp 75 w/ch $145 Akai top of line reel to reel w/autorev $265 6-6954

'82 Olin Mark VII skis. Never used. Great deal $175.00 David 253-3588

Women's large maroon leather jacket with removable hood, good condition, $40.00 call Maria 256-0179

Convertible - 1973 VW new top, snows. AM/FM $3500. 617-544-6555

1980/1981 Jawa Moped. New. Less than 100 miles $299.00 (617) 655-5724 after 6 PM

FOUND

Glasses in 231 Herter on 8/14/82 clear glass. . .silver frames gray ends. . .maroon case. Call Joe 665-4694 after 6:00 PM

Found: gold ladies watch. Call karen at 546-8966

HAPPY BIRTHDAY JEANNE MELIA!!!

Happy Birthday Jaannel You're the greatest roommate in the world! Have an excellent day! Happy 21st Gwen

HELP WANTED

Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434

OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

INSTRUCTION

Math Tutoring 549-6612

Tutor wanted for math 233 oncampus please call collect 0 788-8243

LOST

Silver chain with flowar pendent 10/18 very sentimental - reward! Sue 253-7890

Gold brecelat Tobin area reward 546-1407

Kays lost near Hampshire Mall rainbow key chain call 546-4829 reward

MORE RECORD MANIA!

What to Bruce and Romeo Void heve in common? They're both on sale this week at U.R.U.!

MOTORCYCLE

1975 Honda 360CL excellent condition 9000 miles sissy bar $650 or BO call Mike 546-9041

PERSONALS

Stick it in your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets 99. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324

Kingbid:
I wish to you the maximum tortures of plateauism. Two fingers to you—
Queenie

Scooby:
Done any leg throws lately? They're good for both you and your partner. Love those pictures on the wall. Huyaa, huyaa!!
Splaural

Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156

DISTRIBUTOR OPPORTUNITIES Texas Instruments home computer ground floor multi level marketing money making opportunities - no risk, no inventory investments Demonstration Tues 10/26 7:30 CC room 169 call Grace or Paul after 5 665-2494

Sigma Kappa Open Rush
Come join us for dinner at 5:00
Tues. Oct. 26
Wed. Oct. 27
Thurs. Oct. 28
19 Allen St. behind BKO
RSVP at 256-6887

Love ya Mex - the women of 1-South Happy Birthday

Happy 21st B-days Sandra D Gold 10-24 Sherri Leigh June 10-27 two sweet little ladies

Sandy G Happy Birthday 10/24 hope it was the best ever! Love Ilene

Stevia My roommate is a smurf. She needs a date Saturday. Will you do it?

Hey Mike - talk is cheap

Sigma Delta Tau Sigma Delta Tau
I all Univ women are invitad to D
G Rush Dinner E
M Tuesday Oct 26 L
A Wednesday Oct 27 T
Thursday Oct 28 A
D for more info call 546-0527
Delte Tau Sigma Delta Tau Sigma Delte

Paul Marmai goes hog-wild! Leave our beds out of it!

The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266

Val or Bonnie call Steve 586-4512 584-6940

Star Trek Livas! Club meeting Oct. 25 Time 7-11 pm Room 174 Campus Center Films, Info for ST & SF fans all welcome!

Here it is, Indra—
I talked to Chuck. What I thought was confirmed. Now isn't that something!
—S.

Happy Birthday Wandy O'Williams you woman & ½! Have a super one! Friends always Guess Who

Michael love and kisses and thanks PS do call

Candy Apples are coming!

ROOM WANTED

Young couple looking for room or one bdrm apt for next semester 523-5249 Martha

Male will share room prefer single 253-5896

SERVICES

SPEEDY TYPING SERVICE
Professional overnight typing at reasonable rates call Jim at 546-7042

S.D.G.

Happy Birthday San love Louis

SONY VIDEOTAPES

Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL

FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED

DRUMMER WANTED- Zeppelin, Rush, etc covers. Rehearsal space available. UMASS Band Call 6-8651.

Immediately - intermediate accounting book call now! Tom at 253-5482

Female wants room in apt. or house on bus route. Immediate occupancy. Please call 256-6612

WANTED TO BUY

Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St Amherst, 256-0710

RECORD SALE

BUY — SELL — TRADE

Prices below Wholesale

Oct. 25 thru Oct. 29

ROCK JAZZ DISCO SHOWS OLDIES WESTERN SWING CLASSICAL PERSONALITIES

-BEATLES · ELVIS-
—JETHRO TULL—
-SINATRA · ELLINGTON-
—GLORIA GAYNOR—
-SIMON & GARFUNKEL-
—JUDY GARLAND—
-EARTH, WIND & FIRE etc.-

TOP CASH PAID FOR YOUR OLD RECORDS & YOUR PARENTS OLD LP'S

Hours 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 14

Boston University runs over UMass

Terriers end it early with 28 point first half

By KEVIN DeLUCA
Collegian Staff

Disastrous is the best way to describe the University of Massachusetts football team's performance at Nickerson Field Saturday, as the Boston University Terriers routed the Minutemen 42-6.

The loss was surely UMass' worst performance and most disheartening game of the year, for there were really no positives to point to.

Of course, Garry Pearson had his usual 100 yard game, picking up 111 yards on 23 carries, but other than Pearson, things were rather bleak for the Minutemen.

For the second straight week, the injury-riddled UMass defense surrendered 42 points, 28 of those points in the first half.

BU made it look easy with super sophomore tailback Paul Lewis scampering through gaping holes and quarterback Jim English completing passes at will, as well as making timely gains on the ground.

Lewis finished the day with 177 yards on 25 carries, 165 of those yards coming in the first half. Lewis scored three touchdowns on the day before leaving the game in the third quarter with a bruised lower back.

Meanwhile, English rushed for 81 yards of his own while completing 12 of 20 passes for 131 yards.

Of course, part of the UMass problem on defense, besides the play of the BU offense, was, once again, injuries.

UMass plyers were dropping all over the turf. Middle guard Dan Brennan and right end Todd Comeau, both just returning from injuries, were among the more prominent casualties.

The constant turnover in personnel due to the injuries has obviously taken its toll.

"We just got the heck kicked out of us, that's all," said UMass coach Bob Pickett. "No, I have not had any team hit with injuries as hard as this one. The lack of a consistent defensive unit has hurt us a lot. You win with defense. But I don't want to make excuses. BU played well."

The UMass offense, as the six points indicate, had nearly as many problems as the defense. They had only one sustained drive in the first half which ended when fullback Tom Murray was stopped on fourth down by BU defensive end Tony Brown.

The BU offense decided the contest early. After the teams exchanged punts, BU went on a tear, scoring four straight touchdowns while the Minutemen were held scoreless.

The Terriers offense revolved around the running of Lewis and the passing of English. English's favorite target was freshman flanker Bill Brooks, and with good reason. Brooks was like a human vaccum, sucking up all passes in his direction.

The second half was academic as the Minutemen found themselves on the short end of a 28-0 halftime score. At least the Minutemen got on the scoreboard when quarterback Barrett McGrath threw a 35 yard touchdown pass to flanker Kevin Jackson in the third quarter.

All in all, it was a lost cause for the Minutemen.

"We expected a close game. In all fairness, I think they were a little banged up," commented BU head coach Rick Taylor.

How does Pickett see the rest of the UMass schedule?

"It's going to be tough. I hope we finish out strong, and play up to our ability. I hope the reason for our poor play has been inexperience," said Pickett. "Time will tell our potential."

The BU game was the final road game of the season for the Minutemen. With the final four games of the year at home, maybe they will find home to be a haven.

Robinson remembered for breaking color barrier

By ELLIOTT KALB
Collegian Staff

There are a lot of things wrong with professional sports these days. The NFL players are staging a strike that is upsetting the regular rhythms of my Sunday afternoons, economics and free-agency have replaced loyalty to cities and fans, and for the most part, professional athletes show as much enthusiasm as I do when I make the effort to attend my 9:30 class on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Still, there are a lot of wonderful moments in sport, exciting, poignant and heartbreaking. Times in which we should have the inhuman capability to freeze for eternity.

There are also times in which too much importance is placed upon "the Game" — an emphasis the media, in a large part, perpetuates.

That is why this column will not speak of the just concluded World Series. However, it will remember a man who retired from baseball in 1957 and without whom the recently concluded World Series (and all others) would be a farce. Jackie Robinson died ten years ago today (October 24, 1972), ten days after throwing out the first ball in the 1972 World Series.

Until 1947, an unwritten agreement between the owners of the 16 major league ballclubs had barred all black players from competing in the American League or the National League. Robinson broke that barrier.

Jackie Robinson was not the greatest baseball player of all time. He wasn't even the best ballplayer from the old Negro leagues in existence at the time. But there was never any doubt about his ability to play. Robinson was a legitimate Hall-of Famer, with a lifetime batting average over .280.

But statistics don't begin to tell the Jackie Robinson story. Space limitations prohibit telling it in a column like this. For those interested, Roger Kahn's superb book The Boys of Summer and Howard Cosell's autobiography Cosell reveal insight into the incredible courage and fortitude of this man.

College-aged fans like myself have obviously never seen Robinson play. We are told he was the greatest competitor there ever was. He was an expert baserunner, a versatile and poised fielder.

According to Julius Lester, an Afro-American studies professor at UMass and currently Acting Director for the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities, Robinson had a monumental impact on baseball, and in society.

"With every year, my admiration for the character of the man increases," said Lester. "People speak of pressure games, but being the center of attention for the whole nation to see, every game was a pressure game for Robinson."

Robinson died at 53, a victim of dehabilitating diseases which had cost Robinson most of his eyesight in his last years. The abuses directed at Jackie shortened his life considerably.

Jackie Robinson never lived to see the day that Henry Aaron would break Babe Ruth's lifetime homerun record, or the day that another Robinson, Frank, would become the first black manager in baseball's history with the Cleveland Indians in 1977.

It's so hard to imagine baseball without Reggie Jackson, Willie Mays, Bob Gibson, et.al., and the contributions that they have made.

It wasn't so long ago the Jackie Robinson was given the first chance that any black had been given. Courage is often cliched in sport, used seldomly the way it was meant.

Jackie Robinson defined courage.

AP Laserphoto

Alberto Salazar raises three fingers signifying his third straight marathon victory as he crosses the finish line four seconds ahead of second place Rodolpho Gomez in the New York City marathon. See story on page 14.

Women spikers lose tourney

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

COLLEGE PARK, MD — School is out for the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team and it's time to reap the benefits. The Minutewomen finished the last phase of their schooling this past weekend at the University of Maryland tournament.

Even though the Minutewomen lost all four of their matches, they played very well and gained some valuable insight and experience.

"I was very pleased with our performance," said head coach Elaine Sortino. "We made a very good showing. Everyone knew that we were the only Division II team there and how young we were and we still received a lot of compliments."

UMass did well from the start. Against 15th ranked (nationally) Rutgers in Massachusetts' opening match, UMass got on the scoreboard first in both games. UMass held a 2-0 advantage in one game. Rutgers eventually won 11-15, 7-15.

"We did everything we knew how to score points," said Sortino. "We executed well and even made some blocks." The Scarlet Knights had a front line that had heights ranging from 6'2 to 6'4.

Massachusetts played tough against George Washington and lost 12-15, 11-15. The spikers also dropped a pair to Clemson 9-15, 13-15.

Sortino instituted a new lineup in order to offset the advantage the taller Rutgers, George Washington, and Clemson teams had over the Minutewomen. Five foot-ten inch Mary Ellen Normon was switching with setter Patti Grant, when Grant was retreated to the front row. Five foot-eleven inch Leslie Smith took setter Karen Gottesman's place when she rotated to the front line. Thus, there was never the shorter setters in the front row while there was always Grant or Gottesman in the back row to set.

Freshman Sue Mudry played very well, especially in the Rutgers game when she had six straight service aces.

So, now Massachusetts heads into what Sortino call the "bread and guts" of the season. Upcoming matches include Smith, the 12th ranked team in the nation in Division III, tomorrow night, the state championships, and meets against Springfield and Southern Connecticut State.

"We've learned what we have to learn," said Sortino, "and now it is time to start putting it together."

A key match for UMass will be against Smith College, tomorrow night in NOPE. The spikers from Northampton are a team to be reckoned with. The Unicorns finished second in the state last year, while UM placed third. Game time is at 7 p.m. for the best-of-five match.

Booters fall to Westfield

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team dropped its sixth game of the season on Saturday against Holy Cross College, 2-1. The Minutemen travel to Westfield State College on Wednesday, when they will play under the lights in an attempt to regain a .500 record. The booters are now 4-6-2 overall this year.

The Minutemen next home game will be on November 3, against Springfield College.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday October 25, 1982 Volume 11 Issue 64

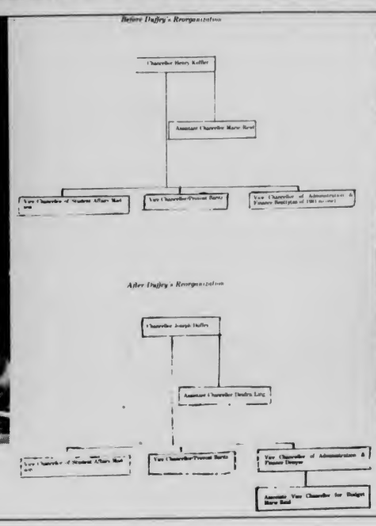
NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for distribution.

REORGANIZATION OR DEMOTION?

Ms. Marie Reid

Photo by Bill Burkhart
U-Mass Photo Center.



Chancellor Duffey

Photo by Brynne Clarke

by Deanna McRae

The recent change in the organizational structure of the Chancellor's Office, removing substational administrative departments from the jurisdiction of the first Black woman to hold the position of Assistant Chancellor and Director of the Office of Planning and Budget, Marie Reid, prompts NUMMO to investigate the specific changes and to explore their significant effects on the Third World community.

Marie Reid was hired in April 1980, as the Director of the Office of Planning and Budget and was promoted in March of 1981 to Assistant Chancellor by former Chancellor Henry Koffler. As Assistant Chancellor, Ms. Reid was assigned three offices to supervise, Ombudsperson, Human Relations, and the Mediation Project. In addition, she was temporarily assigned supervision of Affirmative Action and University Relations and Development, which includes the offices of ; Alumni and Development , Public Information and Publications, State Relations, and Community Relations and Special Projects. These were temporaries assigned until such time as a Vice Chancellor for University Relations and Development was hired. These temporary responsibilities still report to Ms. Reid under Chancellor Duffey's reorganization. However, according to Ms. Reid, half of her permanently assigned duties as Director of the Office of Planning and Dudget and all of her duties as Assistant Chancellor have been removed, or as Chancellor Duffey stated in NUMMO's interview with him, "re-assigned."

Deidra Ling, former acting Assistant Chancellor appointed by acting Chancellor Baritz, has now been appointed as the permanent Assistant Chancellor. (It should be noted that Dr. Ling was the acting Assistant Chancellor for five months while Ms. Reid was still the Assistant Chancellor). The remaining functions of Human Relations, Ombudsperson, and the Mediation Project have been designated to Lou Fischer, the former acting, now permanent Associate to the Chancellor.

Ms. Reid has been asked by Acting Vice Chancellor, Jack Denyse to sign a contract renewal declaring Ms. Reid as Associate Vice Chancellor for Budget. Ms. Reid told us in our interview with her that, "this is an unacceptable title because it does not correspond with my extensive training and experience." Ms. Reid, therefore, states that she views the organizational change as a demotion, that is a direct result of her outspokeness on the issues of racism, sexism, and those issues affecting the campus community. However, Chancellor Duffey when asked if he viewed the change as a demotion for Ms. Reid responded, "absolutely not. She's still our principal officer in regards to budget." NUMMO has provided the diagram below to show the basic administrative areas affected by the recent reorganization, and illustrates the change in Marie Reid's status.

"I have been active in funding issues affecting areas like the Billingual Collegiate Program, the Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and Other Minority Students, as well as, issues of human rights and equity of treatment in the hiring and promotion of Third World persons on campus', stated Ms. Reid. In addition, she has served as a member of the Executive Committee of the Minority Coalition on campus which brings discriminatory practices to the attention of the campus administration. She is also the President of the Minority Educators Group in the Commonwealth, and the President of the New England Minority Women Administrators Organization. Ms. Reid says that through these groups she has been consistently outspoken on issues regarding discrimination and decreases on Third World students and faculty members. She believes that this is the sort of thing that has led to the recent reorganization in regards to her position.

Chancellor Duffey was asked if he had anticipated that a controversy of any sort would arise from the Third World community as a result of a Third World person in the administrative sector being removed from his executive staff and therefore, no longer contributing input into recomendations on policy making. He responded by saying that, "the experiences in the Third World community are such that people look carefully at the re-assignment of responsibilities anytime they are made to see that they were done with an eye towards management rather than predjudice." He continued by stating, "I don't believe that there is anything in this situation that involves discrimination. I also think that these matters ought to be looked at. I didn't anticipate any controversy."

Ms. Reid says that she does not wish to pursue legal action, and hopes that future discussions with Chancellor Duffey will resolve this matter. However, NUMMO will continue to investigate further Ms. Reids' allegations that the change in the organization of her office was a planned discriminatory act.

The Last Wave From Port Chicago

by Peter Vogel
c 1982 Peter Vogel, Reprinted by permission of the Black Scholar Spring 1982 issue

Editors Note-This is the Second Part of a Three Part Series on Peter Vogel's essay, "Last Wave at Port Chicago", which reveals the evidence that suggests that the Port Chicago explosion may have been an atomic disaster. Reprinted as it appears in the Spring issue of the Black Scholar*.*

SPECIFICATION

Having in hand the data for the production of U-235 for the years 1943 through 1949, it became necessary, in order to further develop the hypothesis that a nuclear device had been detonated at Port Chicago, to learn at what date the Hiroshima U-235 gun weapon had been specified. This information is not readily apparent in published literature, but a careful reading of the 600 pages of the Manhattan District History discloses enough information to accurately date the final specification of the Hiroshima weapon as having been completed by mid-February, 1944. An example of this information appears in paragraph 5.17 of Volume 1 of that document, where it is stated that "by February 1944....sufficiently accurate calculations had been made so that, for the U-235 gun, Group T-2 specified the actual bore." This implied that the length and diameter of the gun bore, the dimensions and weight of the projectile and target, the tampering, and the rate of acceleration of the projectile by the propellant charge all were known.

Confident of this date, I requested that the Classification Office at Los Alamos declassify for my use Volume XXI of the Los Alamos Technical Series, The Gun, written by the late Harvard University professor, Albert Francis Birch. The Gun carried a "top secret" classification, and still does. The work is, according to one source, "A survey of the experimental gun program from the early tests to the development of the Hiroshima bomb. This volune includes design specifications and a discussion of the interior ballistics of the gun"

The Gun is the only document which has not been declassified at my request and I am grateful to Mr. Joseph Watts of the Classification Office who has been so cooperative in the matter of declassifying documents under his jurisdiction at Los Alamos. The denial of declassification of The Gun was based on the fact that the document contains weapon specifications (which may not, according to law, be declassified) and on the opinion of the Classification Office that partial, or selective declassification could result in material being misconstrued, lacking its original context. Mr. Watts was kind enough, however, to read to me over the telephone that paragraph of The Gun which declares that the Hiroshima weapon was specfied by mid-February 1944.

These specifications included the interior ballistics of the gun, the propellant charge for the projectile, the fuses, the tampering, the weight of the projectile and target, and the external case. Another source at the Los Alamos National Laboratory with access to The Gun, reports that the document declares that the hardware for at least three of the Hiroshima weapons was ordered by the end of March, 1944. The projectile tubes, (modified, unrifled naval gun barrels) for the gun weapons were ordered to be manufactured by the United States Naval Gun Factory under orders of special priority. I have been unsuccessful in my attempts to locate any extant contract order and delivery records. Dr. Carson Mark of the Los Alamos National Laboratory has told me in a private conversation that there were no significant design changes between the February, 1944, specification of the weapon and the August, 1945, Hiroshima delivery.

THE PORT CHICAGO EXPLOSION

In the summer of 1944, the only method of delivering the weapon was by boat. A surface delivery by boat to a harbor facility was the very first delivery method proposed for the bomb. In Albert Einstein's letter of August 2, 1939, to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in which he informed the president that nuclear fission was on the threshold of development, he explained:

> Th is new phenomemon would also lead to the construction of bombs, and it is conceivable - though much less certain - that extremely powerful bombs of a new type may thus be constructed. A single bomb of this type , carried by boat and exploded in a port, might very well destroy the whole port together with some of the surrounding territory. However, such bombs might very well prove to be too heavy for transportaion by air.

Still photo made from video tape copy of film footage of Port Chicago blast.

The U-235 gun bomb weighed approximately 9,000 pounds. Immediately prior to its docking at the Port Chicago facility, the E.A. Bryan, the ship which exploded, had been ordered by the Navy to the Alameda Shipyards. There its 5-ton (10,000-pound maximum load) booms and gear on the No. 1 and No. 5 holds were removed. They were replaced with 10-ton booms and gear, which indicated an intention to allow a margin for safety while loading heavier cargo.

Unlike other ammunition ships which have exploded, the E.A. Bryan exploded spontaneously, without an intial fire or other triggering incident. By contrast, the explosion of the Mont Blanc in Halifax harbor in 1917 and the explosion of S.S. Fort Stikine in Bombay harbor in April, 1944, both followed shipboard fires that had burned for hours. According to a Navy analysis of the fallout pattern of fragments of the E.A. Bryan, the detonation originated in the No. 1 hold.

The Bryan was an EC-2 Liberty ship of 7,212 tons commanded by Captain John L.M. Hendrickson of San Pedro, California and operated by Oliver J. Olson & Co. of San Francisco. The ship had been built and launched at the Kaiser Steel shipyard in Richmond, California, in March 1944 and had just completed her maiden voyage to the South Pacific before being ordered to the Alameda Shipyards. On Thursday, July 13th, the Bryan docked at the Port Chicago facility. She moored to the inboard, or shore side of the Port Chicago pier with her bow pointing westward, down the Sacramento River. At 8:00 a.m., July 14th, naval personnel began loading ammunition into her holds. With the exception of officers and a few ratings, the entire complement of the ship-loading details which worked around-the-clock at Port Chicago were black seamen, both volunteers and enlisted.

The force of the exploding ship created an earthshock measured as the equivalent of a 3.4 earthquake; the shock was recorded up and down California and as far away as Pierce Ferry, Nevada. The 426-foot-long Bryan disappeared into the night. No single large piece of the ship was ever found, and the 320 men working on the ship and on the pier were "sucked up into the writhing column of flame."

Docked on the opposite side of the pier was the Victory ship, the S.S. Quinalt Victory of 7,606 tons. On July 14th, the ship steamed out of Portland, Oregon, where it had been newly launched after construction; the Quinalt Victory was operated under the management of the United States Lines, and skippered by Robert J. Sullivan of Westfield, New Jersey. The Quinalt Victory tied up to the outboard, or channel side of the huge pier at approximately 5:00 p.m. July 17th. The largest piece of the Quinalt Victory which remained after the explosion was a 65-foot section of the keel, with its propeller attached, which protruded from the bay at low tide, 1,000 feet from its original position. As the entire Bryan was fragmented and widely dispersed, so, too, some 300 feet of the Quinalt Victory also disappeared into small pieces scattered within an area 13,000 feet in radius. There was at least one 12-ton diesal locomotive operating on the pier at the time of the explosion. No a single piece of the locomotive was ever identified; the locomotive simply vanished. In the river stream, several small boats one-half mile distant from the pier reported being swept by a 30-foot wall of water. The force of the explosion at Port Chicago greatly exceeded the combined potential explosive force of the 1,780 tons of T.N.T. and torpex which were loaded on the Bryan and on the pier. The Quinalt Victory was unloaded.

There are, in my judgement, a number of phenomena and artifacts associated with the Port Chicago explosion which unequivocally testify that the disaster resulted from the detonation of a nuclear fission device aboard the E.A. Bryan.

The White Flash

The July 31, 1944 issue of Time magazine, which reported the explosion, asserted that the explosion of the Bryan "filled the sky with an enormous, blinding incandescence." The Army-Navy Explosives Safety Board Technical Paper No. 6 (1948) which deals in great detail with the effects of the explosion reports that "the first flash was brilliant white." The pilot of an Army Air Corps C-49 aircraft flying line-of-sight towards Port Chicago at a distance of four to five miles described the explosion as "a terrific white flash."

The luminous flash effect of a fission weapon explosion results from extremely high temperatures which are generated in the fireball - several tens of millions of degrees, which may be compared with a maximum of 5,000° C (9,000°F) generated by the detonation of conventional explosives.

The emission of energy by electromagnetic radiation during a nuclear fission process covers a wide range of wavelengths, from infrared (thermal) through the visible to the ultraviolet, and beyond. Much of the emitted electro-magnetic radiation is absorbed by the air immediately surrounding the fissioning bomb with the result that the air itself becomes brilliantly incandescent (the fireball) within less than one-millionth of a second of detonation. The peak of this intense, visible illumination has a duration of approximately one-thousandth of a second (one millisecond). That brief explosion of light is the white flash associated with nuclear fission explosions. The relatively low temperatures of conventional high explosives will not produce the white flash characteristic of the fission process. Rather, the visible illumination produced by the explosion of conventional high explosives such as T.N.T. and torpex will be yellow to reddish-orange.

The surface temperatures of the fireball, upon which the brightness (luminance) depends, do not vary greatly with the total energy yield of the weapon. Consequently, the observed brightness of the fireball in an airburst is roughly the same regardless of yield, so that the detonation of a 5-kiloton U-235 weapon at Port Chicago would produce the same observed brightness as that observed at, say, Hiroshima when a 10-kiloton weapon was detonated.

It has occasionally been argued that the white flash identified at Port Chicago could be accounted for by the presence of magnesium-loaded explosivesaboard the Bryan or on the pier, but records of the munitions loaded aboard the Bryan and emplaced upon the pier compiled by both the United States Navy and the Los Alamos Laboratories mention no magnesium among the complete load.

The Wilson Condensation Cloud

First Lieutenant Sidney P. Phillips of the Reno Army Air Base was the pilot of a C-49 aircraft flying several miles south of Port Chicago at 9,000 feet at the time of the explosion. At the Court of Inquiry which investigated the disaster, Phillips described what he saw:

> Well, there seemed to be a white flash and this flash had with it a large smoke ring that spread in all directions around Port Chicago. I would estimate it, from the air, to be at least three miles wide. This smoke ring proceeded then to go up and in the center of that was a terrific flash which mounted up to as high as I was, 9,000, and above. I would estimate it to be at least 500 feet above me. In this flash there were pieces of white hot metal. I didn't know what they were at first because I didn't know what the explosion was. I would say there were red hot pieces and white hot pieces going straight up from the explosion.

Phillips repeated that there was only one flash, and that he first observed it when it was about 100 feet in all directions and spreading outward, and that the flash "whoosed up" through the smoke ring. His testimony was corroborated by his co-pilot, Second Lieutenant Fred A. Dregor, Jr.

It is the "smoke ring" three miles in diameter which is of interest here.

On July 1st and July 25th, 1946, two atomic bombs were detonated in the lagoon at Bikini island in the South Pacific - one was detonated slightly above the surface of the water, and one slightly below the surface. As a result of those two tests, a phenomenon of nuclear fission detonations which had not occurred at the Japanese detonations was noted: The Wilson Condensation Cloud.

The most recent edition of The Effects of Nuclear Weapons (1977), edited by Samuel Glasstone and Philip Dolan, reports:

> There are a number of interesting phenomena associated with a nuclear air burst that are worth mentioning although they have no connection with the destructive or other harmful effects of the explosion.

..... Continued on page 3

Continued from page 2

Another early phenomenon following a nuclear explosion in certain circumstances is the formation of a "condensation cloud." This is sometimes called the Wilson cloud (or cloud-chamber effect) because it is the result of conditions analogous to those utilized by scientists in the Wilson cloud chamber....The passage of a high-pressure shock front in air is followed by a rarefaction (or suction) wave. During the compression (or blast) phase, the temperature of the air rises and during the decompression (or suction) phase it falls. For moderately low blast pressures, the temperature can drop below its original, preshock value, so that if the air contains a fair amount of water vapor, condensation accompanied by cloud formation will occur.

The condensation cloud which was observed in the Able Test [July 1] at Bikini in 1946...[is typical]. Since the device was detonated just above the surface of the lagoon, the air was nearly saturated with water vapor and the conditions were suitable for the production of a Wilson cloud...

The relatively high humidity of the air makes the conditions for the formation of the condensation cloud most favorable in nuclear explosions occurring over (or under) water, as in the Bikini tests in 1946.

The cloud commenced to form 1 to 2 seconds after the detonation, and it had dispersed completely within another second or so, as the air warmed up and the water droplets evaporated. The original dome-like cloud first changed to a ring shape and then disappeared.

The Wilson cloud is formed only in conjunction with the blast pressures achieved the the detonation of relatively low yield atomic weapons and in the presence of water vapor laden atmospheric conditons. The Effects of Nuclear Weapons offers a definiton of a condensation cloud which clearly indicates that such a cloud is a unique artifact of a nuclear fission weapon detonation: "A mist or fog of minute water droplets which temporarily surrounds the fireball following a nuclear (or atomic) detonation is a comparatively humid atmosphere."

The photographic illustration reproduced here is a record of the late ring stage of the Wilson cloud formed around the July 1, 1946, detonation at Bikini. The Wilson cloud pictured here is reported to have been two miles in diameter. The ring rests on the water and encloses the rapidly expanding fireball. A few instants later the fireball "whooshed" up through the center of the Wilson cloud at Bikini to a height of about 9,000 feet. This was almost an exact replication of Lt. Phillips' description of the "smoke ring" with a small fireball in the center which he observed at Port Chicago. At Bikini, the fireball grew and swept rapidly upward until the end of ten to twenty seconds when it became lost in the rapidly rising mushroom cloud. Lt. Phillips reported that the fireball at Port Chicago, from his airborne perspective, lasted about 15 seconds.

The condensation cloud is the most compelling of all the physical evidences of a nuclear fission device at Port Chicago. In the nearly 40 years which have passed since the observation of condensation clouds at Bikini, this phenomenon has been uniquely associated in the literature with nuclear detonations in the water vapor laden atmosphere above water.

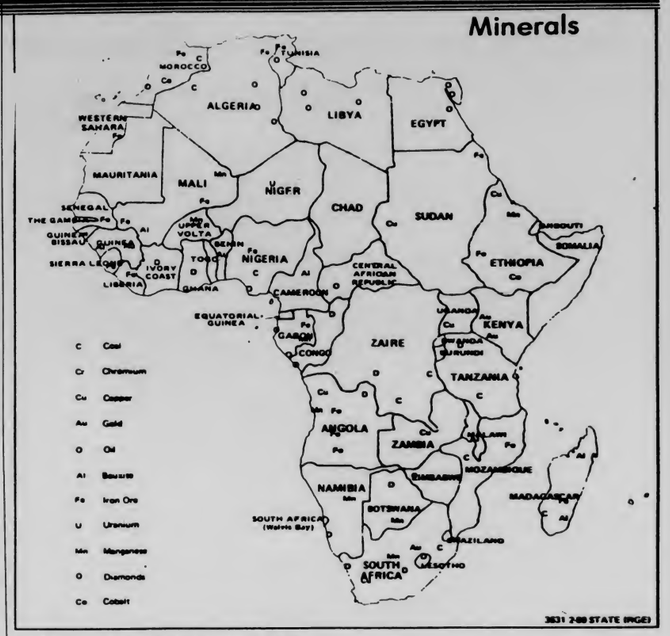
The Motion Picture Footage

There exists a single motion picture film print, in possession of the U.S. Navy Concord Weapons Station (which includes Port Chicago), which may be an authentic film record of the explosion at Port Chicago. The Navy has claimed that the film is not an authentic record of that explosion, but is instead a film of a miniature explosion created by a Hollywood studio. According to the Navy, the film was created to support their argument to the U.S. Congress sometime in the 1960s that the remains of the town of Port Chicago be purchased and incorporated into the Concord Naval Weapons Station as a buffer zone in the event of another large explosion.

Significantly, the Navy did not claim the film was a re-creation until after I suggested that the film could be the record of a nuclear detonation. At the same time, however, I was also told by Dan Tikalsky, public affairs chief at Concord, that the film was a nitrate-base film, which would require that the film have been produced prior to 1950 when nitrate-base film was replaced with non-explosive cellulose-base film. If it is ever possible to examine the original film print, the date of production will be established by reference to film type and imprinted processing dates.

Based on viewing an edited video copy of that film which was made available to me, I have concluded that the film records in every detail, the progression of the actual explosion of July 17, 1944, at Port Chicago. For example, early frames of the film suggest a record of the expasion of the Wilson condensation cloud during which the formation of the ball of fire is obscured. Furthermore, the movements exhibited by several large, independent fragments of the explosion over time compared to the speed of

Continued on page 4



The Strategic Importance of Africa

By Greg Anderson

Africa is a vast continent comprised of 50 states (45 in Sub-Saharan or rather Black Africa where the majority of the continent's people live). Ninety-five percent of Africa's estimated 400 million people reside in the forty-five countries south of the Sahara desert, the natural dividing line between North Africa (Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, Algeria and Morocco).

Sub-Saharan or rather Black Africa is what we're most concerned with as that's where our ancestors came from. Most American Black people came primarily from West Africa from the countries on the Gulf of Guinea (e.g., Nigeria and Ghana).

Africa, our beloved ancestral homeland, is unfortunately somewhat misunderstood as many are not aware of its true greatness! The fact of the matter is that Africa is, quite simply, the richest continent on the face of the earth which largely accounts for European interest in Africa.

At the Organization of Africa Unity (O.A.U.) simulation in Washington, D.C. at which this reporter was present,(representing Africa Form, the B.M.C.P. and Hampshire College) the Keynote address, delivered by Kenyan ambassador, Mr. Joseph P. Mboojua, strongly asserted that there are sixty key strategic minerals that American industry needs in order to function and all of these are to be found in abundance in Africa. To that effect, according to a recent State Department Discussion paper revised August 1981, "Today Africa produces ninety-five percent of the world's diamonds, eighty-seven percent of its cobalt, sixty-five percent of its gold, fifty-four percent of its chrome, and a steadily increasing supply of its petroleum.

As regards petroleum, Nigeria is the eighth largest exporter of oil in the world, its low sulfur, high-quality crude oil being exceedingly valuable.

According to Trans Africa, the Black American lobby for Africa in the Caribbean, "By the year 2000, the U.S. will be importing eighty percent of the critical industrial materials used such as cobalt, chromium, diamonds, copper, iron ore, and manganese. Africa, as the region with the largest reserves, promises to be a significant supplier."

Also, according to the 1981 State Department discussion paper on Africa, "Africa is rich in increasingly important national resources - oil, copper, bauxite, uranium, cobalt, gold, and diamonds. Its largely unharnessed rivers can provide hydroelectric power to increase industry and agricultural irrigation. During the 1980's, the U.S. will become even more dependent on Africa's natural resources."

That the United States needs African resources is noted in the State Department discussion paper on Africa in the section entitled Promoting U.S. Trade, Aid, and Investment.

Ostensibly, the above-mentioned facts should serve to graphically corroborate the validity of the contention that Africa is indeed the richest continent on the face of the earth!

In essence, that is but one of the many reasons that we need to be as well informed regarding Africa as possible.

Politically, Africa is of key strategic importance as well. Presently, the Reagan Administration in its foreign policy towards Africa has openly embraced South Africa. President Reagan referred to South Africa in the State of the Union address as "our friend and ally." In addition, South Africa alone presently accounts for the overwhelming majority of U.S. trade with Africa. As per the fact that according to the International Monetary Fund out of total Sub-Saharan exports of $3,371 million, South Africa received 1,080 million dollars worth and of total imports to Sub-Saharan Africa 9,965 million dollars worth.

Also, the Reagan Administration has repealed the ban on selling arms and uranium to South Africa as well. In a recent address to the U.N., President Reagan admonished the developing countries to look to themselves for development.

Africa has the largest refugee problem on the face of the earth, with an estimated 1,200,000 refugees in Somalia alone. Sudan reputedly hosts "over 400,000 refugees, the majority Eritrean fleeing the war of secession waged by Eritrea for the last 13 years for independence from Ethiopia." As a result of prolonged infighting in N'Djamena during Chad's Civil War, over 75,000 Chadians sought refuge in Northern Cameroon.

According to a recent Trans Africa News Brief, the refugee quota for Sub-Saharan Africa is reportedly less than 1,000, yet the refugee quota for Eastern Europe is 35,000.

An additional factor that must be considered is the key strategic location of the continent which includes the following elements:

(1) South Africa located on the Cape of Good Hope controls access to the Cape of Good Hope which is vitally important to shipping and the military.

(2) The Horn of Africa, which includes Sudan, Ethiopia, Diibouti, Somalia, and Kenya, occupies a strategically important location on the Red Sea and Indian Ocean close to volatile areas of the Middle East.

Also important political issues making Africa of great concern are Apartheid, the Namibian Independence issue, Zaire's concerns, the drought in the Sahel, Nigeria, et al.

Hence, Africa is of most vital concern politically. It is of paramount importance that we be as well informed as possible regarding Africa.

In summation, to quote Marcus Garvey who asserted in the 1920s in order for the Black motto to be strong Africa must be strong. Malcolm X contended in the 1960s something to the effect that in order for Black people to be respected, Africa must be respected. In fact, historically numerous Black

Continued on page 7

On Thursday, October 21, THE CAPE VERDE STUDENT ALLIANCE finally ratified their first constitution. Photo by Sheila Smith

Phillipine Leader Addresses Umass Audience

By Keith W. Johnson

On Tuesday October 19, Filipino activist, Charito Planas spoke in the Campus Center here at UMass on the current status of the struggle by the people of the Phillipines. The event was sponsored by the Third World Women's Task Force of the Everywoman's Center.

The Phillipines are a group of islands in the South China Sea. They are an ex-colony of the United States that have been independent for 36 years. The current president is Ferdinand E. Marcos who has held his country in a state of martial law during his time in office.

Ms. Planas was born into a wealthy family of Manila, Phillipines in 1930. Ms. Planas was educated at the Phillipine State University where she received a law degree. Later she became the Director of the Center of Commerce and also worked with the Red Cross.

In 1971, Ms. Planas went to the Republic of China on a trip with the First Trade Mission. While in China she was impressed with the care that the government had for its people. She found people well fed and clothed which was not like the stories that she was told that the Communist would be monsters. She also saw that although they were not dressed in fancy clothes and jewelry like some of the rich in the Phillipines, all were at least dressed and fed.

This became a turning point for Ms. Planas and she became interested in Marxist docrines. She realized that the people of China were doing much better under Communism than her people were doing under Capitalism. It is a fact that 95 of families in the Phillipines live below the current standard of living. Meanwhile the upper and many middle class families live fairly well on th U.S. supported capitalist society.

After her China trip she became active in the movement which is in opposition to the current government which is led by President Marcos. In 1973, Ms. Planas was arrested and served time in prison. In 1978 she was forced to flee the country for fear of being imprisoned again for continuing her opposition activities. She is now living in Arlington, Virgina where she is very active with the "Friends of the Filipino People" organization. She also does speaking engagements across the coutry.

While talking to a very interested crowd in the Campus Center, Ms. Planas described much of the poverty that is in her homeland. She talked of the many American businesses that have been in the Phillipines for years. For example the Del Monte Company has been there since 1925. There are also numerous American military bases on the islands.

On the struggle, Ms. Planas stated that the opposition follows Marxist doctrines. Ms. Planas is a Christian and stated that, "Marxism is the way to make Christianity a Reality." She also stated that the opposition will not come to power for a while. She said the opposition realizes that it will be a protracted struggle. But some plans for the new government have already been made. For example, the government will be a coalition form of government and the basic necessities of life must be supplied to all of the people.

The program proved to be very interesting for those who attended, and Ms. Planas spent much time answering as many questions as possible. The program came at an appropriate time because of the recent visit of President Marcos to this country and his talks with President Reagan.

Continued from page 3

the explosion itself are evidence of the very large distances those fragments travelled during the course of the film sequence.

It is obvious, of course, that only an intentional film record of the blast could have been made since the probability of having, by chance, a motion picture camera rolling and pointed in the right direction at the right time at night is exceedingly remote. If the explosion was filmed at the Port Chicago site, it would follow that the explosion was planned and anticipated.

The Explosive Force Of The Blast

There is little doubt in my mind that the explosive force of the Port Chicago blast greatly exceeded the potential explosive force of the conventional high explosives which, according to public records, were loaded aboard the Bryan and on the pier did not exceed 1,780 tons, of which a substantial portion most probably burned and did not, in the jargon of explosive experts, go off "high order," that is, explode in one powerful blast.

When the Bryan disappeared at Port Chicago, a crater was formed in the river bottom. The dimensions of that crater give a fairly good indication of the size of the detonation. According to the Nuclear Bomb Effects Calculator developed by the Lovelace Biomedical and Environmental Research Institute in Albuquerque, the detonation of a five-kiloton nuclear device on the surface of wet soil will produce a crater 53 feet deep and 132 feet in diameter.

Shortly after the disaster at Port Chicago, Navy divers found the crater in the river bottom to be 66 feet deep, 300 feet wide and 700 feet long. Other measurements made between November, 1944, and March, 1945, determined a maximum depth of 31 feet and "possibly 800 feet in diameter measured from the center of the blast," according to Technical Report No. 6, Army-Navy Explosives Safety Board, "The Port Chicago Explosion of 17 July 1944."

If it is taken into account that a large portion of the downward force of the blast was expended in the creation of a large tidal wave which swept the Suisun Bay, and if additional energy was expended in removing vast tons of soft river mud before the crater itself ws formed in the rock-like hardpan of the river bottom, and if further allowance is made for the energy expended in lifting half a cubic mile of river water 10,000 feet into the air, then the total explosive force at Port Chicago may have substantially exceeded 5-kilotons.

Most of the structural damage which occurred on the Port Chicago installation and in the surrounding territory is very nearly equal to the structural damage reported at the same distances from ground zero at Hiroshima. There are, it must be noted, some differences between the effects of the two explosions. At Hiroshima there was intense thermal radiation which at Port Chicago was attenuated by the shielding effects of the steel-hulled ship and the low yield of the device. The massive destruction of Hiroshima by fire is more readily accounted for by fires which were ignited from ruptured natural gas distribution lines - which were not in place at the Port Chicago facility - than by ignition from thermal radiation.

Additionally, the weapon detonated in the atmosphere at Hiroshima created a complex pattern of overpressures and peak pressures augmented by reflected pressure waves which are not characteristic of surface detonations. However, when all parameters of the blast are tabulated - earth shock, structural damage, cratering, pressure and "tidal" wave in the Bay, etc. - the cumulative effect could possibly be accounted for by the surface detonation of a weapon of the same yield which was detonated in the atmosphere 1,000 feet above Hiroshima, or a "10,000 ton gadget."

WATCH FOR THE LAST PART OF PETER VOGELS INVESTIGATIVE ARTICLE TO BE FEATURED NEXT WEEK IN NUMMO!!!!

Detach and mail coupon below

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER

TO
THEBLACKSCHOLAR
SUBSCRIPTION SERVICES
P.O. Box 7106, San Francisco, CA 94120

Please enter my subscription for ☐ 1 year—$16 ☐ 2 years—$28 ☐ New ☐ Renewal
☐ Institution (1 year)—$24

Name
Address
City/State/Zip

Payment must accompany order

United Nations Dispute Ends in U.S Sustainment of Israel

By Keith W . Johnson

Last week the United Nations experienced a huge crisis because many Third World nations were about to demand the expulsion of Israel from the General Assembly. The crisis was no less than a direct conflict between the Third World and the Israel-United States alliance.

During the week there were a number of developments that ocurred. The most important one was the fact that the United States was prepared to pull out of the United Nations if Israel was expelled. On Saturday October 16, Secretary of State George Shultz stated that "if Israel were excluded from the General Assembly the United States would withdraw payment to the U.N. until Israel's right to participate is restored."

Israel is also having diffieulty with some of the U.N. agencies. Last month Israel had its credentials withdrawn by the International Atomic Agency. This week the International Telecommunications Union debated whether or not to expell Israel from that U.N. agency.

The United States' response to these actions has been that its representatives walked out of the International Atomic Agency Coference in Vienna and held up $8.5 million in payments. It has also threatened to do the same in the International Telecommunications Union if another expulsion occurs. The United States owes $2.4 million to that U.N. agency. If the United States pulls out of the General Assembly and the entire U.N., it will withhold $149.4 million that the U.S. still owes for this year. The U.S. contributes 25. of the $600 million budget used to operate the United Nations.

Additionally, many nations have feared that the withdrawal of the United States would do great damage to the effectiveness of the U.N. It is not simply a matter of money. Libya and Iran have said that they will pay the amount of money that is needed if the U.S. pulls out of any agencies, and Saudi Arabia could pay for the entire contribution of the U.S. per year with one day of its oil production.

The biggest problem that a U.S. withdrawal from the U.N. would produce is political damage; one example would be an end to the U.S. involvement in the Lebanon peacekeeping force.

The Third World nations have decided to compromise and present motions that would state that Israel has violated the charter of the United Nations by using force to settle disputes. On Thursday the International Telecommunications Union passed a compromise motion that condemned Israel but did not expell it. The question of whether or not Israel has violated the charter will reach the General Assembly floor today.

The recent action is another in a long list of efforts by the United States to support Israel. The United States has vetoed any strong actions against Israel in the Security Council, even in the bombing of an Iraqi nuclear plant and its incursion into Lebanon

Photo by Ed Cohen

Message for Third World Working Women

by Tracey Bryant

Last Thursday, Thelma Johnson, the new Director of Affirmative Action at UMass, gave a short and informative talk. Sponsored by the Third World Women's Task Force, Johnson addressed the rights of working women and the climate of the job market.

She began by stating the rights of working women under federal law, as they now exist. She highlighted this portion of the lecture by saying that Executive Order 246 (which states that people are entitled to equality of opportunity), "doesn't guarantee you anything but the right to try." Ms. Johnson emphasized that people should not forget that these laws pertaining to equality/non-discrimination were not always on the books; many having been instated "as recently as twenty years ago... Black and white people died for the rights you have not be discriminated against," she said.

She also listed laws and procedures employers have to adhere to. She gave detailed examples of job-related advertising. "A job advertisement must advertise for the skills required to do that specific job and nothing more. They can not ask you for a master's degree if the job requires bachelor's work. An advertisement must speak about the specific needs to fulfill that job, at the present time (not what they're hoping you'll be able to do in five years). The contract is stated." Anything more or outside of that is above and beyond the call of duty and is not required. You can not be fired or refused a job because you refuse to fulfill duties outside of the job description. She gave examples of questions interviewers cannot/should not ask, that need not be answered. "For the first time," Johnson said, "we have institutions in place to combat unlawful discrimination."

Often employers will try to imply that foreign diplomas or education are not as good as the American equivalent. But they are equivalent and as valid. It is illegal to be refused employment on that premise. Discrimination is not exclusive to the job market structure. Third World and poor white women also have to face attitudes. "Poor white women are treated no differently than Third World women in the job market," said Ms. Johnson. She went on to say that very often women coming from Third World countries are not used to the nebulousness, i.e., 'Here's your desk, now go to it.' We need to know, and be specific about what is required of us. Having job descriptions more clearly defined enables a person to see exactly where she stands, beforehand, and will better equip her to fight or bargain effectively if the need should arise.

Thelma Johnson's major point was that Third World women and poor white women need to know what they are dealing with, how it operates and what tools you have to work with. She stressed the need to utilize all institutions and laws that are available. She closed by saying, "And some of us don't know how to play the game. We have some educating to do. We have to help Third World women learn the instictive knowledge of how, when and how loud to bitch." We need to cultivate the effective use of time and opportunity.

Caucus Promotes Third World Students' Interests On Campus

By Keith W Johnson

The Third World Caucus is the group of senators that represent the views of the Third World Students in the Student Government Association. Fifteen seats are reserved for Third World students in the Student Senate. These same students also serve on various committees that are included in the Student Senate such as budget, finance, etc.

The Caucus is currently advised by acting Director of the Office of Third World Affairs, Gary Lee. Mr. Lee hopes to see a tighter relationship between Third World groups and the Caucus. The chairperson of the Caucus is Adria Crum who is a veteran student senator and is very active in student politics.

SPOTLIGHT

What may be important to many students is that the Student Senate provides valuable experience in not just politics, but many other areas such as management and finance. Students in a number of different majors may find work that will be related to their goals in the future. It goes without saying that students with law or political experience and the first stepping stone to their future careers.

The Student Senate, like the current United States Congress, is witnessing a conservative trend in opinion. Therefore the Caucus needs the support of all Third World students on campus. There are still seats open to Third World Students who wish to be a part of the Caucus. The Caucus meets every Wednesday at 6:00 p.m. in the Office of Third World Affairs at 308 in the Student Union Building. The Student Senate meets an hour later at 7:00 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information contact the Office of Third World Affairs at 545-2517.

Rita Marley toured New England recently before standing room only audience in Hartford, New Haven and Boston.

Photo by Ed Cohen

Open Letters to the Community

Brothers and Sisters,

One of the greatest assets of UMass-Amherst is undoubtably the opportunities available for each of us to get involved. While academics always shall be the most important task for us to attend to during our time here, extracurricular activities add a totally different dimension to an Undergraduate's life.

Fortunately this institution boasts a variety of organizations in response to the diversity of our needs and interests. If you happen to be literary or artistic for example, you might consider joining the staff of Nummo News, Black Affairs or Drum magazine. If your interest centers around Black development and empowerment, Afrik-Am could be just the group you've been looking for. Ahora and the Asian-American Student Association also do exciting and important work throughout each semester, ensuring culturally-rich programs and services. The Black Mass Communications Project provides opportunities to those of us who are musically-inclined. The Third World Theatre Series allows performers of color their chance, while providing our community with entertainment.

Another important organization in need of participation is the Third World Caucus. This caucus is made up of all the Third World members of the Undergraduate Student Senate. The caucus works to ensure that the interests of the students of color here at UMass are represented and secured on the Senate floor. This group also advocates each year for the continued funding of all the Third World organizations aforementioned, when the Senate allocates its 1.5 million dollar budget.

Our involvement is the only way to ensure the continued existence of these opportunities. It took years of constant struggle to secure them; we cannot afford to lose them now.

Becoming involved is easy. Simply call the organization which interests you (the numbers are listed in the Student Directory), or visit the Office of Third World Afairs in the Student Union for a complete listing of available activities and more information. If you are interested in becoming a Student Senator (representative of the Third World Caucus) contact Adria Crum at 545-2517, or myself at 545-0341 in the Senate Office, 420 Student Union.

In Unity and in Strength
Sharon L. Davies
Speaker of the Student Senate

Greetings from the Office of Third World Affairs:

First, let me thank all those individuals and groups who recommended, nominated, and supported me as Acting Director of the Office of Third World Affairs.

I would also like to praise the dynamic work of my predeccesor, one Anthony Crayton. Without lapsing into hero-worship, it is quite obvious that Tony leaves an inspirational legacy, and to that we are all indebted. That legacy is a poignant reminder of the responsibility that we, as non-white descendants of ancient and contemporary high-achievers must live up to.

However, I am Gary M. Lee, not Anthony Crayton; just like there are no clone of Martin Luther King Jr., Barbara Jordan , Maya Anyelou, Antonio Maceo or Nefertiti roaming around the Pioneer Valley.

All of us have a spiritual responsibility to carry on the work of those who have come before us and to renege on that responsibility is not only worng, but could be construed as treason against our community.

So, we all have work to do. I'm going to work as hard as I possibly can for you and I hope theat everyone of you will work as hard as you can for each other. In this way, we can finally become united and strong, both as individuals and as a community.

The first test comes on Tuesday the 26th from 6:30 pm to 8:00 pm at the Malcolm X Center in Southwest. My office and the Third World Caucus are expecting that each Third World organization send al least two representatives to this meeting.

The time to act is now!!!

Towards a positive Thing,
Gary M. Lee

Afro-American Studies Professor Receives Sponsorship by Five Colleges, Inc.

Five Colleges, Inc., recently announced the names of eight young scholars who are the first participants in the new Five College Associates Program.

The Associates Program was developed in response to the difficulties faced by academics who for one reason or another find themselves between jobs, or who are working independently without being connected to a college or university.

John Dovi Afesi, who taught courses in Africa history and politics as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Afro-American Studies at the University of Massachusetts was one of the recipients of the Five College Association Program. Through the International Programs Office, Mr. Afesi established an exchange program with the University of Lagos in Nigeria. He also taught at the University of Western Ontario. He has published articles on "The Roots of the Conflict in Southern Africa," "The International Implications of African Liberation Struggles," and "African Socialism: Meaning and Implications for African Development." Mr. Afesi has been a program consultant for WGBY television, a co-producer of the radio program "The Rising of a Continent" on WFCR, a faculty advisor for the Five College African Studies Association, and Chair of the Five College Faculty Seminar in Africa.

A Look at Women's Mobilization in South Africa.....

"You Have Struck A Rock"

By Sithunzi Ngokumaphagathi

A well documented film on Black South African women's struggles for their human dignity, You've Struck A Rock is more than worthwhile viewing.

The film highlights the political gains of South African women over apartheid government restrictions during the 1900's. It points out that Black women have been oppressed on the basis of both race and sex, so that their plight has been doubly encumbering.

Because of the system of migrant labor for Africans, families are often separated, the men leaving home on the reserves in search of labor contracted jobs in the urban areas, the mines or white-owned farms. African women are usually left behind, as they are considered "useless appendages" (of their men) by the government, to mind the children, the old and the sick. They are forced to endure living off the land which is mostly barren, with no source of income unless they also decide to leave and seek employment as domestic workers. If they want to visit their husbands, they are restricted to squatter camps outside the men's quarters on their site of employment. The children remain with friends and relatives on the reserves during these periods. Employers and corporations maintain such regulations as a means of keeping wages down and profits high, the women often receiving the lowest wages.

Other forms of discrimination against women include not being able to rent homes in their own names, and facing eviction if their husbands die, unless there is a son, in whose name the house may be registered. If a woman chooses to brew and sell traditional beer for her livelihood, it is also considered illegal. In 1955, the Pass Law was made mandatory for women. For men, already having been subjected to this law, it required that they carry a pass at all times, and that it include a record of residence, travel and employment.

Although restricted in so many ways, Black resistance to apartheid has had a long history in South Africa, and so it was that women played a major role in the fight for national liberation as well as for their rights as women. The women argue that their struggle is not centered only around women's issues. Although they are dominated by a form of patriarchy, it is not perpetuated by African men, since they have no power to carry out such action. It is clearly the South African government which passes more and more stringent legislation against Blacks, as experience has proven. If the women had decided that their purpose was to gain equality with men, it would amount to just that - enduring the same appalling conditions to which the men are subjected. Thus the issue at hand is not only to do away with apartheid, but to force the government to relinquish the land (eighty-seven percent of which is owned by whites) for majority rule first, to be followed by equal rights for all blacks.

The first call to resistance came in 1912 when the ANC (African National Congress)was formed, to unite all Africans against white supremacy. Shortly thereafter in 1913, the women successfully resisted the pass laws which unfortunately would be re-enacted in subsequent years. Nevertheless, women continued to make major contributions to the struggle and in 1943 they participated in a bus boycott to protest the increase in bus fares. A 1949 protest against apartheid, in which women also were a major force, took the form of a national workers' strike, and in 1952 a defiance campaign was organized in which people took it upon themselves to cross the color line.

Lillian Ngoyi, now a national heroine, became leader of the FSAW (Federation of South African Women) in 1954. She helped to organize the demonstration against tuition for primary school children (while education for white children is free of cost), against poor settlements and low wages for women, and against the banning of beer halls. She was also the first president of the ANC Women's League.

In 1955, the first major demonstration against the pass laws took place because at this time the government had decided to re-enact the laws applying to women. The campaign against these pass laws was headed by the ANC along with the FSAW and the ANC Women's League. A mass protest ensued on August 9, 1956 in which 20,000 women from all over South Africa were in attendance, giving this incident international recognition. Had it not been for the fact that the women boarded the train to go to Pretoria for the demonstration instead of buses (which had been cancelled by the government) they would have been prevented from airing their grievances to the Prime Minister. He refused to address the issues except on an individual basis.

In connection with this demonstration, 156 of its leaders, including Mrs. Ngoyi were arrested and charged with high treason which called for the death penalty.

Nurses and domestic workers later joined the cause to abolish passes for women. The government responded by notifying their employers of their involvement in the national demonstration.

Mass trials were heard in the corridors of the jails, in which some of the women were convicted and some released, later to be rearrested.

In 1959 African men re-entered the anti-pass campaign. At Sharpeville, men and women burned passes in a show of defiance. Sixty-nine were reported to have been shot in the back, revealing the lack of discretion on the part of the South African police force.

In 1963, it became mandatory for women to carry the pass, however this was 50 years after the first anti-pass protest. It proves still, that there were some gains made by the women's efforts to resist the pass. Today, South African women continue to combat apartheid and to work for national liberation, for now that they have gained support and recognition world-wide, the pressure on the South African government to comply with demands becomes greater. As they remarked to Strijdom (then Prime Minister) during the march on Pretoria, the women echoed a pronouncement after which the film is also entitled, "Strijdom, you have struck a rock, when you have touched a woman."

Continued from page 8

leaders (George Padmory, C.L.R. James, Stokely Carmichael et al.) have most strongly stressed the vital importance of African independence and its key strategic role in the struggle for Black freedom. This has also been echoed from the continent from many of Africa's leading statesmen (e.g., Amil Carcabral, Kwame Nhkrumuh, Frantz Fanon et al.).

However to summarize this sentiment, President Shahu Shaguri of Nigeria asserted in his October 25th address to the United Nations: "Nigeria's destiny is inextricably linked with the fortunes of all countries of Africa and all the peoples of Africa descent abroad. As a result, Nigeria must continue to vigorously strive for the restoration of the rights and dignity of the Black man everywhere who for too long has suffered humiliation and discrimination.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Progressive Film Series

The Progressive Film Series is now in its 14th season. We have over the years, tried to offer a different look at the world than is generaly available through the traditional news media. When was the last time you read or saw on television news about Ms Jean Donovan ... Maryknoll Missionary murdered in El Salvador by soldiers... or the conflict in the Western Sahara between Morocco and the Polisario guerillas?
These two issues... as well as the Death Penalty, Southern Africa and Women struggling for their rights is this seasons Progressive Film Series.

THURSDAY November 4, 1982
FILM: Rose's in December
Maryknoll sisters Maura Clarke, Ita Ford, and Ursuline sister Dorothy Kazel were murdered in El Salvador by Security Forces. Also killed was Jean Donovan of Connetticut. This is her/their story.

FRIDAY November 19, 1982
FILM: The Grapes of Wrath
This classic look at America in the Depression Era is one of the best films the late Henry Fonda made. It is also a stirring human drama.

THURSDAY December 2, 1982
FILM: Generations of Resistance
The Black Struggle for freedom in Southern Africa is the incusrd this informative film. Tracing the liberation movement over several generations this film offers a deep insight into South Africa today

FRIDAY December 10, 1982
FILM: Anna Mae: Brave Hearted Women
Killed by U.S. Government agents this film expresses the dedication of this women to the struggle of her Native American People. This film is also the story of the Native American Movement in the United States.

All films will be shown at 8:00pm in room 163 of the Campus Center Complex. Please bring a friend with you to the Progressive Film Series.

BLACK HOMECOMING 1982

Sunday October 31 Parade 1:00 pm

Monday November 1st Dinner at Yvonne's New Africa House Lummumba Hut

Tuesday November 2nd Gospel Night 8:00 pm CCA

Wednesday November 3rd Nikki Giovanni

Thursday November 4th Poetry & Dance Malcolm X Center Southwest

Friday November 5th Lady Sings the Blues with Diana Ross & Billy Dee Williams SUB

Saturday November 6th Come Home to CCA Home Coming Party 10-5
ENJOY!!!

Today, at 6 p.m., "People's Perspective," a public affairs program, sponsored by the Black Mass Communications Project and the W.E.B Dubois Department of Afro-American studies, will air an interview with Gary Lee, the acting Director of the Office of Third World Affairs at the University Of Massachusetts, on WMUA 91.1 FM.So, be sure to tune in and get turned on.

The Third World Theater Series will present the Sansei Theater Company presentation of "Life in the Fast Lane, A Requiem for a Sansei Poet," a one man tour-de-force by Lane Kiyomi Nishikawa, a Sansei (third generation), Japanese-Hawaiian poet/actor on Thursday, October 28 at 8:00 p.m.

Fresh, moving and dynamic, Lane takes us by the hand and lets us experience the pains and joys of growing up Japanese and American in a world that finds it hard to accept both. The emotion generated in Lane's use of performance can be attributed to the use of his own experiences to convey the messages of "Life in the Fast Lane." It should not be missed!

There will be a mandatory CAPE VERDE STUDENT ALLIANCE meeting on Thursday, October 28, at 5:00 p.m. in the New Africa House. For more information please call John Lopes at 545-0031.

First Annual Five College Graduate and Professional Schools Information Day- Wed., Nov. 3, 1982. Fifty-plus graduate schools participating. Afternoon Workshop-Panel Discussion. Workshop I: Taking the GRE, GMAT, and test taking skills.
Panel I: Business, Engineering, and Mathematics
Panel II: Health Sciences and Medecine
Panel III: Liberal Arts and Education
Panel IV: Law School
Time: Workshop I- 11:30 a.m.
Panels I-IV- 3:30 p.m.
(Approx. 2 hours)
Place: Campus Center- first level
Sponsored by CCEBMS, BCP, and Five College Minority Graduate School Advisors

BLACK MASS COMMUNICATIONS
Student Union, Room 402 University of Massachusetts
Amherst MA 01003 (413) 545 2426

FALL SCHEDULE

DAY		NAME	SHOW NAME	TIME
Sunday		Les Correla	Soft n Easy	2:00-6:00am
		Rev. Pearson	Glory Road To Gospel	6:00-10:00am
Monday		More Music	BMCP	7:00-6:00am
		Ken Johnston	On Air Live-Jazz	6:00-9:00pm
		Gus Martins	" "	" "
		Mahophany	Free As The Wind	12:15-3:00pm
		Merritt Anthony	BMCP	3:00-5:30pm
	*	People's Perspective	BMCP	6:00-7:00pm
		Concerto Latino	BMCP	7:00-10:00pm
Tuesday		The General	BMCP	12:15-3:00pm
		Elliott Andrew	Urban Contemporary	10:00-2:00am
Wednesday		Theresa M	BMCP	6:00-9:00am
Thursday		Rev. Pearson	Glory Road To Gospel	2:00-6:00am
		Concepto Latino	BMCP	6:00-9:00am
		D.R.	BMCP	3:00-5:30pm
		Kari Njiiri	Pan Afrique	10:00-2:00am
Friday		Mark Elliot	BMCP	2:00-6:00am
		Mark Semedo	New Jazz Experience	6:00-9:00am
		Concepto Latino	BMCP	9:00-12:00noon
		Carl Lowman	Rhythm Section	12:15-3:00pm
Saturday		Reports In Color	w/Bettina Henry	6:00-7:00pm
		Daddy Nell	Funk n Thangs	7:00-10:00pm
		Frank Oolesby	Frankie O's Odyssey	10:00-2:00am

KEY
* Public Affairs
 Rev. Pearson included; not a part of BMCP
 News

TOTAL HOURS OF PROGRAMMING: 68%

Keep on listening to BMCP on WMUA, 91.1 FM and help us keep Black Music alive!

Black Mass Communications Project will be meeting Monday, November 1, 1982 at 6 p.m. in New Africa House. All members and any persons interested in getting involved with news, public affairs, video, music or journalism are urged to attend. BMCP is located in Room 402 of the Student Union.

Announcements policy: All announcements must be submitted in writing by the Friday before date of issue.

Nummo Staff

Roxana Bell	Co-Editor
Angela Brown	Co-Editor
Brynne Clarke	Lay-Out
John Wright	Photo Editor
Jennifer Bayne	Researcher
Donna Davis	Business Manager
Angela Siscamanis	Typesetter
Deanna McRae	Administrative Assistant

Contributing Reporters/Photographers

Keith Johnson
Tracey Bryant
Max Senior
Ed Cohen
Sheila Smith
Chris Hardin

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 35 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, October 26, 1982

McAliskey condemns human rights offenses in N. Ireland

By MICHELLE MURRAY
Collegian Staff

Understanding the situation in Northern Ireland today is central to understanding any other struggle in the world, Irish political activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey yesterday told a crowd of about 400 in the Studen: Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts.

Speaking on human rights in Ireland, McAliskey said, "I think you can say in very few words what human rights in Ireland are all about. They simply don't exist.

"Human rights is not a liberal issue," McAliskey said. "That's what I'm trying to say. Human rights is not an issue that keeps you out of the difficult arena of politics. Human rights is what the people in Ireland, El Salvador, West Beirut and Guatemala die for."

McAliskey stepped into the international spotlight in 1969 when, at 21, she became the youngest person ever elected to British Parliament. In 1979, she ran for a seat in the European Parliament. Her platform called for the release and amnesty for political prisoners in Northern Ireland and withdrawal of British troops from that country.

In January 1981, McAliskey and her husband were seriously injured when three pro-British gunmen attacked their home.

To understand the Irish struggle is to understand all struggles against oppression, Devlin McAliskey said, and to sympathize with that struggle is to sympathize with all world struggles for justice.

"The struggle for freedom in Ireland is the oldest struggle for freedom still continuously going on, from the beginning, 800 years ago, to today without having secured success," McAliskey said.

"We share the attempted genocide of our entire race," she said.

An example of this genocide was the Great Hunger which some people, McAliskey said, mistakenly know as the Great Famine.

Millions of people in Ireland starved or died trying to escape starvation on ships to America because of the failure of the potato crop. Ships stocked with grain and livestock would leave the ports hourly, she said.

Discussing other parts of Irish history, McAliskey said, "We share, as possibly the only white race who do share it, a history of slavery with our black brothers and sisters the West Indies."

McAliskey outlined the historical division of Ireland, North from South, and spoke of current conflicts in the small Northern state.

Criminals are divided into two categories, she explained. "O.D.C.'s" or "ordinary decent criminals" who commit social crimes such as rape and robbery and "real" criminals or political criminals.

Political criminals are subject to internment without trial, McAliskey said, and when they are tried it is in Diplock courts, where the judges and police "belong" to the British.

Britain has also changed the onus of proof from the prosecution to the defense, she said, meaning defendants must prove they are innocent. "Evidence is a minor point in Northern Ireland," she said.

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

Focusing on the political struggle that now divides Ireland, Irish political activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey spoke yesterday in the Student Union Ballroom on human rights in Ireland.

Devlin McAliskey said in the name of defending the peace, British soldiers are given license to shoot and kill anyone they choose.

Children in Northern Ireland are killed by plastic bullets, the use of which has been condemned by the European Court of Rights, the European Parliament, the British Labor Party and the British Liberal Party.

Duffey may extend vice chancellor search after review

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey said Friday he is currently reviewing the recommendations of the search committee for a permanent vice chancellor for administration and finance at UMass.

The vice chancellor for administration and finance is responsible for campus construction, overseeing grants and contracts, managing the transportation and mail services, coordinating the food services and Campus Center, and operations at the Physical Plant.

UMass has been without a permanent vice chancellor of administration and finance since July 1, 1981.

"I am talking with experts in the areas of administration and finance to learn about the experience of other institutions," Duffey said.

Duffey said he may decide to extend the search after consulting with these sources and carefully reviewing the recommendations of the search committee.

If the search is extended, the University will have to advertise the position for at least two months, Duffey said.

The search for the permanent vice chancellor began in August, 1981, when the search committee met for the first time. The committee was composed of representatives from the student body, faculty and staff members and administrators.

Last February, Dr. Carl Swanson, the committee's chairman, presented former Chancellor Henry Koffler with the names of seven final candidates. These are the names Duffey is currently reviewing.

The finalists were: John L. DeNyse, acting vice chancellor for administration and finance at UMass Amherst; William Louis Dillon, vice president and treasurer at Chatham College; Gary Gabriel Goetz, assistant chancellor at the University of Wisconsin; Joseph D. Hamel, assistant vice president for finance at Washington State University; John J. Stevens III, assistant to the president at Baylor University; and Jack C. Weiner, dean of administration at the City University of New York in the Bronx.

$450,000 reserved for UMass athletes

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the first article of a four part series that will appear in the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

In 1927, Rear Admiral George H. Barber bequeathed $5,000 for athletics to Massachusetts Agricultural College, now the University of Massachusetts. Since then, all UMass athletic scholarships have been named after Barber, even though the money he left is not used to pay for them.

The scholarships, worth about $450,000 this year, are granted to UMass students on the basis of athletic ability alone. They are funded through a variety of sources, including alumni donations, interest on student fees, ticket sales and concessions.

The $59 athletic fee paid by UMass students each year indirectly subsidizes athletic scholarships, since the fee pays all expenses associated with athletic teams. This allows all revenues generated from athletic events to be returned to scholarships.

Barber bequeathed $5,000 "to be safely invested and the income to be used annually for the encouragement of general athletics among the student body as a whole." When the gift was accepted by the Board of Trustees in 1927, it was suggested that part be used to build new tennis courts.

The Barber Endowment Fund still exists, and contains the original $5,000. The interest from that fund has been accumulating for a number of years and could be used for future projects or scholarships, said Al Rufe, assistant director of athletics and financial manager of the athletic accounts.

In addition, the UMass Board of Trustees established a separate Barber Trust Fund in 1957, which is used to grant athletic scholarships to UMass students.

The Barber Trust Fund is funded through a variety of sources and through a large, complex system of financial accounts, making it one of the more complex programs at the University. The $325,430 in income last year was broken down into an alumni contribution ($65,000), football and basketball ticket sales ($84,655), concessions ($5,840), other revenues processed through the Athletic Events Clearing Account(120,000) and a University contribution ($50,000).

The University contribution is allocated from the interest earned on other trust funds, which hold student fee money and other funds. This year, that contribution has been increased from $50,000 to $244,000.

A reserve account of $460,000 also exists, containing unused football telecast revenue from several years ago. The Athletic Events Clearing Account also has a balance of over $110,000.

Scholarships are granted through a less complex process, involving gradual negotiation and recruitment efforts over the course of each year. The coaches of each team talk with the Athletic Department to see how many scholarships will be granted to each team, depending on the needs of the team and the available money.

"We negotiate, in a sense," said Frank McInerney, head of the Athletics/Intramurals Department. "I talk to the coach and see how many scholarships he absolutely needs to be competitive, and we authorize roughly that number."

Continued on page 8

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

UMass alumnus Scott Bolotin maneuvers through a treetop left bare in the autumn tradition while working on a "re-leaf" project to replace the fallen leaves in plastic bags extended from branches. The environmental sculpture project was originated by Nancy Florian, a ComStu graduate student.

World and National News

VA slammed by congressional, GAO studies on Agent Orange physicals, computer system

WASHINGTON (AP) — Physical exams for Vietnam veterans who fear their exposure to Agent Orange imperiled their health often are inadequate and performed by government doctors who do not know what to look for, congressional investigators said yesterday.

Moreover, the Veterans Administration's computerized registry into which the results of the exams are stored is so unreliable that the system should be scrapped, the General Accounting Office said after a 2¼-year study.

Even the veterans' addresses were not kept in the computer files, making it difficult to find vets for follow-up exams or treatment.

The agency found that many VA doctors are suspicious of the complaints of veterans.

In six of 14 hospitals that the GAO visited, the chief environmental physicians — in charge of Agent Orange exams — "believed the program served only to pacify veterans who were exploiting the Agent Orange issue for personal gain," the report said.

At four of the hospitals, the physicians were not adequately told what to focus on in the physical exams, the report added.

So far, more than 95,000 Vietnam veterans have gone to Veterans Administration hospitals for the day-long exams out of concern that exposure to the herbicide is damaging their health or threatening to produce birth defects in their offspring.

The report on the examination progam was made public by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., and Rep. Thomas Downey, DN.Y.

"It's an appalling operation, for the most part," Downey said at a news conference. "It's astonishing to me that a government agency behaves that way."

The Veterans Administration said the GAO exaggerated the problem and used out-of-date data to reach its conclusions.

The VA questioned whether the veterans were qualified to pass judgment on the adequacy of the examinations. The GAO agreed that the examinations are often more thorough than the veterans thought.

The GAO sampled records of 1,258 medical exams and found the exams were thorough in only 36 percent of the cases. Only 10 percent of the records completely documented the veteran's medical history.

The report found 14,236 claims filed by veterans for disabilities attributed to Agent Orange.

AP Laserphoto

An unidentified man walks along the board walk at Virginia beach, Va., as a winter storm yesterday blows foam off the ocean's surface.

Sharon's career at stake as he admits he gave Christian militiamen OK to enter camps

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, in testimony to the commission probing the Beirut massacre, took responsibility yesterday for letting Lebanese Christian militiamen into the Palestinian refugee camps. He said Prime Minister Menachem Begin had known nothing about it.

The commission, in its first public session, grilled Sharon for more than two hours on whether the Israeli army and government should have suspected in advance that the entry of the Christians into the Sabra and Chatilla camps to rout PLO guerrillas might end in a slaughter.

Sharon said the decision to let the Christians into the camps was worked out by the chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, "and I approved it, because it was the accepted thing, it was clear, it was what we were striving for all the time.... "

"Our central concern was to save our soldiers' lives. Moreover, there was a Cabinet decision reached June 15, 1982, which spoke in a clear fashion, in my opinion the clearest fashion possible, of integrating the Lebanese forces (Christian militiamen) into the fighting in Lebanon."

Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 to smash the Palestine Liberation Organization and entered west Beirut Sept. 15.

On Sept. 22, Sharon told Parliament the Israeli army helped plan and support the Christian militia raid on the camps, intending to drive out PLO guerrillas believed to be hiding there. But, he said he did not imagine "in our blackest dreams" that hundreds of civlians would be massacred.

The commission members, Supreme Court Justices Yitzhak Kahan and Aharon Barak and retired Maj. Gen. Yona Efrat, hammered away at essentially the same questions that outraged Israelis have been asking ever since they forced the government to set up an inquiry.

Was there no hint of a massacre to come? Could Israeli forces have stopped it sooner? Who made the decisions and who knew or should have known about them?

Sharon sat at a desk facing the panelists in the low-ceilinged Hebrew University lecture hall sequestered for the hearings. Sharon, whose career is at stake, had asked for an open hearing to demonstrate he had nothing to hide. But when the questions touched on the mechanics of deciding to let the Christians into the camps, he asked to be heard in closed session.

The commission announced that Sharon testified for three hours in secret, and said he might be called again, though it was not known when. No testimony would be taken today, the commission said.

Start every day refreshed!

The Collegian

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Diane Kadzis
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Kelley Riley
Photo Technician — Michael Margolis
Composition — Jamie Katz, Laura Shanahan, Kathie Wells, Becky Robins, Alyssa Rusiecki, Adrianne Dufor, Maria Cahillane, Laurie Frank, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver, Lynn Eisenberg, Joy McCarthy

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
THURS. OCT. 28
HAPPY HOUR 3-6
Costume Party with
THE FOOLS

THE FOOLS
and
THE VALENTINES
The Fools rock 'n' rolled 864,942 people on the Van Halen Tour last year. Now they're ready for you!
Facial Identification Necessary
sponsored by UPC/$3.00 cover

Looking For Legal Assistance?

Call "TIPS", at 545 ~ 1540 and ask for TAPES~

*2422 The Legal Services Office
*2482 Small Claims Court
*2485 Breaking & Signing Leases
*2487 Malicious Destruction of Property
*2489 Univ. Housing Regulations

Let us help you know your Legal Rights.

IDB TIPS
a Service of the Dean of Students Office

Collegian photo by Teresa Bellafiore

Senator Edward M. Kennedy spoke yesterday at Smith College at the Northampton Conference on World Hunger sponsored by Oxfam-America.

Kennedy at local hunger conference, blasts defense budget, social cuts

By KEN LUNDBERG
Collegian Staff

Senator Edward M. Kennedy spoke briefly at the Northampton Conference on World Hunger yesterday afternoon at Smith College during one of the many stops he will make before the statewide election next week.

The conference, organized by Oxfam-America, attracted public officials, educators and activists from around the state who discussed means for better fund-raising and leadership in curbing world hunger.

Mayor David B. Musante of Northampton who co-chaired the conference and Dr. Larry Brown of the Harvard School of Public Health, gave short introductions to Kennedy who went on to condemn the pouring of money into the build-up for nuclear arms while organizations like Oxfam America are denied funding.

"In the last two years," Kennedy said, "we haven't heard about the responsibility to the millions of children who will die this year from hunger and for the families in their critical growing years."

Kennedy said instead of taking care of "human needs and concerns" first, U.S. leaders, both Democratic and Republican have backed spending on more "weapons of destruction."

Even with $35 billion being spent on nuclear arms last year and this year, Kennedy said funding for student scholarships, elderly social security programs and child care support still ends up as part of the defense budget.

After speaking for about 15 minutes, Kennedy answered several questions from the audience. Lola Reinhart, associate professor of economics at Smith, asked Kennedy what exactly were the "root causes" of the world hunger problem.

Kennedy hesitated before saying there were a "variety of issues and factors that must be dealt with." Poverty, changing conditions in the weather, lack of skills and other problems are hurting economic development and bringing about world starvation, he said.

When asked if he was "riding the nuclear freeze issue into the White House" as his Republican opponent Ray Shamie has asserted, Kennedy denied this calling the nuclear freeze a grass roots issue that started particularly in Western Massachusetts and said he will leave it up to writers and educators to decide the worth of his efforts in the freeze issue.

When asked about his views on the U.S. cutting off grain supplies to the Soviet Union, Kennedy simply said, "I reject the idea of using food as a political weapon."

Social science advocate still going strong, concourse idea sales continue

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Staff

The majority of the vendors on the Campus Center concourse are trying to sell material items to passers-by like T-shirts, photographs or frisbees. Henry Buber, on the other hand, is selling an idea.

For three years now the 78 year old Buber has been standing in front of a display of worn out pictures advocating the social sciences. That is, the study of history, social structure and sociology. The pictures he displays are of social activists he admired because of their fight against authority.

"I admire Jesus and Socrates tremendously. They dedicated their lives to an idea and died defending it," Buber said.

Anybody who has strolled through the Campus Center on a given day has seen this balding man in the green plaid suit and assumed he's some "weirdo". This is far from the truth. Henry Buber is a Colby College graduate and a former Hadley High School teacher who has dedicated his retirement to the preaching of the social sciences.

"I'm trying to get people to study the social sciences. History is the basis for the social sciences. Without history we would have no art, literature or philosophy," claims Buber.

"History should be studied with a scientific mind. When scientists work on experiments they have no prejudices or false pretenses prior to entering the lab," said Buber. "When you study history the same approach should be taken. Too many people like preachers interpret history in accordance with their beliefs and not how it actually happened."

In order to occupy a space in the Campus Center concourse, one must clear through the Board of Governors office. Buber's clearance was arranged by the United Christian Foundation, a Recognized Student Organization (RSO) Buber does charitable work for. The group discovered him preaching the social sciences at a local church and decided to arrange for the elderly man to get a shot at the big-time and speak to the students of the University of Massachusetts. So in 1979, Buber was given the opportunity every philosophical mind dreams of — a chance to voice his ideas in front of a large crowd.

Aside from his strong feelings for the study of the past Buber said he has some strong feelings about the world today. He said he feels modern history has a direct link to ancient history. History has a way of repeating itself so we must be careful, according to Buber.

On Reaganomics, Buber said, "The Reagan plan is similar to the 1926 Andrew Mellon plan. This plan cut the taxes across the board so people would take their savings and put it into investments. Many companies at the time, like now, were not making money. The investments did not pay dividends. This plan led to the Depression, where Reaganomics could be leading us."

On Russian militarism, Buber said: "Russia has been invaded three times from the West. First Napolean, then the two world wars. They lost over 40 million people in the world wars alone and they will never let it happen again."

Like all great historians, Henry Buber has his own world peace plan. He traces it back to Lincoln.

"A British historian commenting on Lincoln said he was the greatest man democracy ever produced. This was because he had sympathetic understanding," said Buber, "which leads to wisdom. Countries have to have sympathy for others. We have to have sympathy for Israel, Russia, or any other country to understand them. When this occurs the world will have peace."

Collegian photo by Katie Walters

Henry Buber ... he concourse with his pictoral display of historic figures he admires.

Selectmen discuss money, Halloween

By ANN CARRNS
Collegian Staff

The town of Amherst will receive $515,000 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds next year, and last night the Amherst Board of Selectmen held a public hearing for residents to suggest ways of spending the money.

Federal Revenue Sharing funds are monies granted to cities and towns by the federal government. The town may elect to spend the money in any way it chooses.

Representatives of the Munson Memorial Building in South Amherst recommended some of the revenue sharing funds be spent on that building for a new sewer system winterizing and routine maintenance. The 50-year-old building serves as a branch to the Jones Library, as well as a center for community activities.

June George, chairman of the Munson Memorial Building Board of Trustees, said an energy audit in Spring of 1981 determined that approximately $7,000 should go into winterizing the Munson Building. In addition, she said the sewer system has caused repeated problems over the past two years.

"The building is extremely well-used, so there is a lot of deterioration of property which must be maintained regularly," George said. She added that funds have not been available for this purpose in the past.

The selectmen also approved budget guidelines for fiscal year 1984, but decided not to include a recommendation of a 10 percent increase. Instead, the budget will strive for a "maintenance" budget. Acting Town Manager Stanley Ziomek said the wording was made more vague to give the new town manager leeway in adopting a finalized budget next spring.

Despite the fact that other local communities have banned trick-or treating due to the recent Tylenol scare, Amherst will allow the tradition.

"I don't think it is fair for us to ban it," said Selectman Francesca Maltese. "It's not our holiday, it's the children's."

The Board instead urged parents to accompany children, and to stay in their own neighborhoods.

Brain "sub-system" theory to play Tobin

By RICHARD NAGLE
Collegian Staff

The controversial brain theory of Kenneth Collins will be presented from 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow at 204 Tobin Hall on the campus of the University of Massachusetts.

Collins, 35, spent a couple of days in the Campus Center concourse two weeks ago in the hopes his theory would be recognized by the scientific community. Thomas Grinley, president of the Council of Undergraduate Psychology, was largely responsible for allowing the theory to be presented for an official forum.

"The theory rigorously unifies the functioning of all the brain's major sub-systems," Collins said.

He further claims the theory "reduces the basic drives and the phenomena of creativity, curiosity, conscience, decisions and volition to concrete biological processes."

Before his presentation, Collins will appear on WMUA's "UMass Hotline" at 6 p.m. The show will be hosted by Bill Stepehew.

The format of the presentation may be difficult for Collins to comply with however.

"The theory is blisteringly complex. I've never been able to deal with it in less than four hours, and this presentation runs three hours," he said.

"I hope it rings some bells somewhere and someone says, 'Let's hear it again.'"

"Evolution dynamics have left a fundamental flaw within the brain's neural mechanism. This flaw is responsible for negative behavioral dynamics. However, my theory shows rigorously that this flaw can be transcended by incorporating within the brain knowledge of the way the brain processes information," Collins said.

Collins has a general studies degree from Springfield College.

★ $450,000

Continued from page 1

The coach for each team then goes through the normal recruiting process and makes tentative scholarship offers to potential student athletes. Once the student has decided to attend UMass, the coach makes a recommendation to the Athletic Department, and the student officially applies for the scholarship. The University Scholarship Committee then approves the scholarships in what is essentially a rubber-stamping process of Athletic Department recommendations.

As a result of negotiation between McInerney and the coaches, 94 scholarships were granted this year, or the equivalent of 89 "full" scholarships, since some are partial grants. Most of these were for returning students. 55 scholarships go to football players, 14 to members of the men's basketball team, and 21 are divided among five women's teams.

These 94 scholarships, plus books and insurance costs, would total about $450,000 this year if the student athletes received only Barber money to pay their educational expenses. But some students apply for and receive other need-based financial aid.

Social sciences combined under STPEC's wide roof

By DONALD CASSIDY
Collegian Correspondent

The program of Social Thought and Political Economy (STPEC) attempts to get to the roots of modern social problems.

Students attempt to address many of the fundamental questions in our society left unanswered by prevailing academic thought.

Many of these issues involve relations between individuals and society and include: freedom and the state, structural inequality, work and work relations, racism, sexism and class oppression, according to a class description.

Standard STPEC classes include titles such as "Psychoanalysis and Social Theory," "Mass Participation and Forms of Political Activity," "Tragedy and Democracy" and "Blacks and Radical Movements."

John Cole, acting director of the program, said "Political activism is encouraged in an integration between theory and practice."

A relatively new major, conceived in 1972 by Dr. Robert D. Wolff, a University of Massachusetts philosophy professor, STPEC was an outgrowth of "a perception he shared with others — the need for a program that dealt with critical issues and means of addressing them," said Cole. "It was felt this could be better approached in a multi-disciplinary manner than under one discipline."

"It started with one seminar and has evolved into a major with nearly 100 students and the regular participation of at least 20 faculty members," said Louise Brown, STPEC coordinator.

STPEC students can select from a variety of areas and departments such as economics, political science, Afro-American studies, anthropology and women's studies. All must participate, however, in a four-credit junior seminar on social theory and two similar senior seminars concentrating on more specific STPEC issues, Brown said.

"The multi-disciplinary approach attempts to use the best aspects of the Jeffersonian tradition, where education is viewed as training people for responsible lives. The idea is that people should be knowledgeable and politically active," Cole said.

Asked if any specific courses were being planned by STPEC to study the phenomenon of the New Right, Brown said although none were being planned, some professors were starting to explore issues relating to this. Among them is Professor Daniel Clawson who conducts a sociology class "The New Right and the Left."

"In some sense," said Cole, "we've been criticizing the New Right before it existed."

Due to the scarcity of similar programs nationwide and the quality of the UMass program, Brown said STPEC accepts a number of transfer students from such schools as Boston College, UMass/Boston, Hampshire College, the University of Chicago and Antioch College, Ohio.

For further information, the STPEC office is located in Machmer E27, across and down from CASIAC.

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

UMass student Jane Ashley directs her horse in a flying leap last weekend in a training level stadium jumping class at the equine center.

Newslines . . .

Convocation to feature Murphy and Duffey

The Student Affairs Convocation will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Campus Center Auditorium for all Student Affairs staff.

Focusing on the theme "Versitality, Integrity and Pride," the program will host Chancellor Joseph Duffey and SGA President Jim Murphy as speakers. The recipients of the Second Annual Distinguished Service Awards for staff members nominated by the University community will be announced.

All Student Affairs staff are urged to attend the event.

Dialogue series, part two tonight in Mahar

Professor Paul Hollander of the sociology department and Professor Johnetta Cole of the anthropology department will speak at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Mahar Auditorium in the second event of the Dialogue Series at the University of Massachusetts entitled "Humanistic Values, Intellectuals and the Pursuit of Utopia."

All day law conference offers three seminars

The seventh annual Law Related Education Conference will begin at 8:30 this morning in the Campus Center Auditorium and continue throughout the day in the conference rooms on the first level of the Campus Center.

The agenda includes three seminars: The first seminar will address the topics "To Scare Straight or not to Scare Straight?", "The Practice of Law in the Soviet Union," and "Police Use of Deadly Force" and "Academic Freedom: Is there Any? Does it Make a Difference?" The second seminar will provide information on practical experience on how to introduce people to the courts to gain maximum use out of the visit. The third seminar will examine Massachusett's new drunken driving law.

Mideast TV figure to appear at Smith

Rafik Halabi, Israeli Arab television correspondent and author of "The West Bank Story," will speak at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Browsing Room of the Neilson Library at Smith College. Halabi will speak on "We and Them: Co-Existence Between the Israelis and Palestines."

ESL Center offers exam November 3, 17

The Michigan Test of English Language Proficiency will be given at 1:30 p.m. on Nov. 3 and 17 in room 204 Tobin Hall. the test is being sponsored by English as a Second Language Center.

Any student considering taking the test should register in room 308 Bartlett Hall or call 54-2578 before Nov. 3.

Give a Friend a Gram
High Notes
Singing Telegrams and Balloons
Delivered by Tuxedoed Messenger for any and All Occasions
Student Discounts
"Send A Song"
Call 665-7664
VISA/MC

For women
DISTRESSED by PREGNANCY...
Services that are confidential, helpful, caring and free.
Birthright
Amherst area: 549-1906
Sprfld. area: 732-4184

adventure travel
549-1256
Reserve Holiday Flights Now save up to 50%
Upper Level
233 N. Pleasant St
Amherst Carriage Shops

No Longer Will Any UMass Student Be Without Credit

Fill out applications for SEARS, G.FOX and WEATHERVANE CREDIT CARDS immediately at no charge to you, and establish for yourself good credit!

Tues, Wed on the CC Concourse next to the University Store.
Sponsored by the Panhellenic Council.

Credit-Free Workshops LSAT Preparation Workshop

LSAT Preparation Workshop --
W111 Section 2 -- Cost: $55.

This LSAT Preparation Workshop has been newly devised to prepare students for the LSAT offered on campus on December 4, 1982.
Classes begin on Monday, November 8, 7-9 p.m., and run for two weeks as follows:
Monday, November 8 - Introduction to New LSAT and "Type 2" Questions - Bob Welch
Tuesday, November 9 - Writing Sample Preparation - Ann Rylestone
Wednesday, November 10 - Reading Comprehension Preparation - Ann Rylestone
Monday, November 15 - "Type 3" Questions - Bob Welch
Tuesday, November 16 - "Type 4" Questions - Bob Welch
Saturday, November 20, 9 am - 1 pm
Practice Examination
Last session under timed conditions to simulate actual examinations.
Registration is now taking place at the Division of Continuing Education, Registration Office, University Library. Total cost, including registration fee is $60.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Halloween mischief is no fun

With the recent cases of cyanide-laced Tylenol as well as other poisoned consumer products, there seems to be a rather sick phenomenon that's taking place right under our noses. Mentally-twisted individuals have some need to make life miserable for others. These warped-minded people see fit to destroy life, property or both. Is this supposed to be some sort of a joke? Do these idiots need to get attention, perhaps the attention he or she never got before but felt they always deserved? It's impossible to pinpoint any specific reason as to what would possess someone to do something like this but you can't deny the fact that this evil has been with us for quite some time under a various array of forms.

Frank Zabierek

In the early 70's, I recall phony bomb threats as the "in" thing to do. Although this may sound like a rather subtle prank, a fire department's response to a cross-town facility could easily cause a serious accident since they've got to get to the scene as quickly as possible without having to worry about traffic violations. This doesn't even take into account the people who occupy the facility at the time of the threat. Scaring people half to death isn't anything to laugh about!

Not too long ago, a Haverhill woman had her face disfigured thanks to an individual who hurled a boulder through her windshield from a Route 495 over-pass. After several plastic surgery operations and a lengthy period of just pure hell and agony, this unfortunate victim died. Although nobody was ever charged for throwing the rock which literally ruined an innocent woman's life, I bet the guilty culprit would be a regular scream at any party.

This weekend we're approaching a truly blessed event that just seems to bring out the internal animal instincts in many people — Halloween. Ever since I can remember, some individuals find it absolutely necessary to have fun (or should I say mess other people over) on this sacred occasion. As with previous Halloweens, I'm sure we'll hear many instances of car tires being slashed and kids biting into apples with razor blades in the center — isn't that hilarious?

Our own university is employing increased security measures this weekend for fear that things could get out of hand. Is it this holiday we call "Halloween" which drives supposed normal people in much the same fashion as a lunatic during a full moon? Why can't people have a good time without getting out of hand? Will rowdy, animal-like behavior prove to your friends that you're not a wimp? If the latter question is bothering you, then you might consider changing your friends.

Approximately two years ago, singer-composer John Lennon was shot and killed by a man named Mark David Chapman. Beatle fans all over the world mourned the death of their legendary hero and referred to Chapman as "insane", "psycho" and "a nut." Even though he sent a public figure like Lennon to an early grave, can you see the distinct similarities between Chapman and those guilty of the aforementioned incidents?

If these are supposed to be jokes then I must have a bad sense of humor. Granted, as Americans we're all entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness but when this infringes upon other people's rights then a line has to be drawn.

I'm not trying to say that everybody ought to stay home this weekend and twiddle their thumbs but before you add to the world's grief, misery and problems by pulling off the prank of the century, just have some consideration for the person you may hurt in the process.

Frank Zabierek is a UMass student.

Letters

Animals in human warfare

To the Editor:

The utilization of animals in scientific research is an accepted practice. It is argued that an animal's life can save a person. There is one use of animals that I can not condone, the use of animals in human warfare.

I specifically refer to US Patent #4,015,873; a sea mine recovery system. This system uses a sea lion trained to home in on the sounds emitted by mines. The sea lion swims with a yoke attached to his head. When he reaches the mine, the yoke is attached to the mine, the sea lion is set free and the mine is hoisted aboard. Thus a diver is spared the danger of a delicate underwater operation.

The military mind will want to expand on this idea. Perhaps the sea lions could be trained to swim with blocks of steel. A "squad" of sea lions could then be sent into a minefield to clear a channel for a submarine or ship.

Dogs can fetch slippers, monkeys can sign for dresses and horses can add. People give animals emotions and intelligence and then say they are happy. A three legged dog trained to spring bear traps does not strike me as being a happy animal. We can not take an animal's life for something as inhumane as war.

Furthermore, the patent defined the sea lion as the sound localizing component in the mine recovery system. Is a trained animal patentable? Perhaps just the method of training.

Fred Stewart
Sylvan

Collegian

Board of Editors

John Brobst Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
Lise Zeiger Executive Editor
Michael Foley News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Andrew Gordon Arts Editor
Phillip Jennings Black Affairs Editor
Jim Floyd Sports Editor
Kevin Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Scott Hersey, Diane Kadzis, Michelle Murray, Brian Sullivan, Associate Managing Editors; Laura Shanahan, Associate Production Manager; John F. Hudson, Associate Executive Editor; Paul Belval, Associate News Editor; Gus Martins, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Douglas Muise, Associate Arts Editor; Bill Shea, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Nuclear freeze unfair to U.S.

In approaching the sensitive subject of nuclear weapons, it is important to remember that there are certain ideas which both liberal and conservatives can agree. First of all, neither of us would like to be blown off the face of the earth. Secondly, neither conservatives nor liberals find nuclear weapons wonderful. Therefore, it seems to me that the main argument is whether there should be a nuclear freeze, not whether some people want to blow up the world and others wish to save it. I realize that this is an emotional subject, but since I oppose the nuclear freeze, I feel compelled to explain my reasons.

Katherine Curda

Perhaps the most prevalent current argument given for a nuclear freeze is the continual cry of butter over guns. Yet if one looks at actual statistics, this argument loses much of its impact. During John F. Kennedy's administration the U.S. was spending 9 percent of its GNP on the military which accounted for 49 percent of the Federal budget. Today we are spending roughly 5.3 percent of the GNP on the military. Only 23 percent of the budget is going to the Pentagon. Even President Reagan's budget will not drastically change this almost 2 to 1 ratio. In the Soviet Union, on the other hand, 12 - 14 percent of their GNP is spend on the military and, more importantly, the best brains and resources of the country are directed toward the armed forces.

In looking at this issue, it is important to note that in 1979 at the Vienna SALT Summit President Carter proposed to President Brezhnev a freeze on both deployment and modernization of nuclear weapons and to bar the use of force, including nuclear weapons, in Europe. Both proposals were turned down as the Soviets insisted on first deploying their newest missile the SS-20 — in Eastern Europe. Today, the Soviets have installed over 300 SS-20's, not to mention the SS-18's, the 11's and all the others. To be fair, NATO also has weapons pointed at the Soviet Union, but these were placed there by agreement between allies, not by dictatorial fiat. One wonders what the East Europeans think of all this. It was because of the soviet deployment of the SS-20 that European governments, in 1979, led by Helmut Schmidt, demanded that the U.S. install a new generation of land based missiles (the Pershing II and Cruise missile) to counter the strategic threat of the SS-20. Thus all those protesters should be angry at Helmut Schmidt, not at Ronald Reagan.

In fact, President Reagan has offered to cancel NATO's 1979 deployment decision if the Soviets will remove the offensive SS-20's, yet, predictably, this offer has been turned down. Now the Soviets want to freeze deployment and production of new nuclear systems. Of course they do, they have already installed theirs.

For the record, the SS-20 is perhaps the most dangerous weapons system that the Soviets have ever deployed. It's most important factor is it's mobility, which makes removal and re-deployment easy and detection difficult. In considering why the Soviets went to all the trouble of building and deploying this mobile menace, the most curious detail is when they chose to. If they had done it after 1981, liberal apologists could have blamed it on fear generated by Reagan's "cold war rhetoric." Quite the contrary, though. The Soviets began deployment in 1977, at the beginning of the Carter presidency. Thus, what we have here is not a fearful reaction, but a clear, cold action designed to gain what they feel to be tactical superiorty in Europe.

In talking about the subject of tactical superiority, one's tendency is to say, "So what?" since we already can make the world go blooey. The answer is that we are dealing with a power which believes that nuclear superiority is important. In 1980, Carter Defense Secretary Harold Brown reported to Congress that the Soviets believe there will be a victor and that damage need not be unacceptable. The Russian elite, regardless of wishful thinking, is not like us. Unencumbered by opposition, a free press and an informed citizenry, they are able to make moves and take actions no democratically elected president could. Thus, given the close nature of Soviet society, their representatives at the START talks are able to stall forever hoping to wear down the U.S., whose people demand quick agreements and whose liberal spokesman continually clamor that concessions be made to show good faith.

I wonder how willing the Soviets would be to reduce nuclear weapons if: A) the U.S. was going to stop it's nuclear deployment or B) they had what they believed to be tactical superiority in Europe. The Soviets only enter negotiations when their interests are at stake and I suspect arguments about the horrors of nuclear war are not going to move them. History has shown (and I am a Soviet Studies major) that when one deals with the Soviet Union, one should not throw away one's bargaining chips before the game has begun.

Katherine Curda is a UMass student.

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

UNIVERSITY HORSEMASTERS CLUB — Meeting to discuss Stallion Service Auction, Horse show and hayride. All are welcome. 8 p.m. 311 Stockbridge.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB — Wine and Cheese Party. 4:30 p.m. Chenoweth Pilot Plant.

CERRF — Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom weekly meeting will be discussing the play "A Women's Choice." 6:30 p.m., 902 Campus Center.

UMASS HANGGLIDING CLUB MEETING — To discuss fund raising. All members and non-members welcome. 7 p.m. 805-09 Campus Center.

GRADUATE STUDENT SENATE — Meeting. 7:15 p.m. 917 Campus Center.

AL-ANON — Having a problem with someone else's drinking, come to an Al-Anon meeting. 8-9:30 p.m. Check Campus Center schedule for room listing.

FREE CONCERT: FACULTY WOODWIND QUINTET — Faculty members Joanne Tanner, flute, Charles Lehrer, oboe, Joseph Contino, clarinet, Laura Klock, horn, and Frank Morelli, bassoon, will perform their first concert of the season. Special guest on the program is Lynn Klock. 8 p.m. Bezanson Recital Hall, Fine Arts Center.

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • NEW WAVE
&
DESIGN HAIRCUTS
$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
expires 10/30/82 C

"Sparen Sie 30¢"
Viennese style, with a touch of cinnamon.
General Foods International Coffees
Cafe Vienna
AUSTRIAN STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
"Economisez 30¢"
Smooth and light, French-style.
General Foods International Coffees
Café Francais
FRENCH STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
"Risparmia 30¢"
Creamy rich, with an orange twist.
General Foods International Coffees
Orange Cappuccino
ITALIAN STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
"Sábhail 30¢"
Delicious, like a chocolate after-dinner mint.
General Foods International Coffees
Irish Mocha Mint
IRISH STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
"Epargnez 30¢"
Rich and chocolatey Swiss.
General Foods International Coffees
Suisse Mocha
SWISS STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
"Risparmia 30¢"
Delicate and aromatic, with just a kiss of amaretto flavoring.
NEW General Foods International Coffees
CAFE AMARETTO
ROMAN STYLE INSTANT COFFEE BEVERAGE
NON-ALCOHOLIC
STORE COUPON
30¢ "Save 30¢" 30¢
GENERAL FOODS INTERNATIONAL COFFEES.
To the retailer: General Foods Corp. will reimburse you for the face value of this coupon plus 7¢ for handling if you receive it in the sale of the specified product and if upon request you submit evidence of purchase thereof satisfactory to General Foods Corp. Coupon may not be assigned, transferred or reproduced. Customer must pay any sales tax. Void where prohibited, taxed or restricted by law. Redeemable in U.S.A., Puerto Rico and U.S. Gov't. instal. Cash value 1 20¢. Coupon will not be honored if presented through outside agencies, brokers or others who are not retail distributors of our merchandise or specifically authorized by us to present coupons for redemption. For redemption of properly received and handled coupon mail to: General Foods Corp., P.O. Box 503, Milwaukee, WI 53202. Any other use constitutes fraud. Purchase must be only at retail rates at product indicated. Any other use constitutes fraud.
GENERAL FOODS CORPORATION
NIN-3 1961 300
NIN-3 1961 CRN
Available at: UNIVERSITY STORE
© General Foods Corporation 1982

OLDIES
with
GREG ADAMS
2 FOR 1
all liquor drinks
9 to 11
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

BE PART OF THE TRADITION
UMASS SKI CLUB
MEMBERSHIP
$10 BEFORE NOV. 15
$15 AFTER NOV. 15
11th ANNUAL SKI SNATCH
NOV. 17 - 20
THE GREAT SKI SNATCH
11th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
JAN. 23 - 28
SUGARBUSH SKI & PARTY WEEK
LAGNAF 83
NOT JUST A CLUB, A UMASS TRADITION
430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

Arts

Holly Nearly perfect

By MARILYN LENTZ
Collegian Correspondent

The nuclear freeze movement has a vocal friend in Holly Near. Near sang of her belief and commitment to the movement and other causes to a near capacity crowd Sunday night in the Greene Hall at Smith College. Indeed the theme of her tour is "Be Disarming — Challenge the Nuclear Mentality.

From the moment Near stepped on stage she performed as if there was no place she would rather be. The crowd responded to her activism and music with enthusiasm; clapping, singing chanting and finally a standing ovation.

Near is primarily known as a feminist songwriter/singer but has also appeared in the Broadway production of Hair and several movies and television shows. In 1971 Near accompanied Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland on the 'Free the Army' tour which entertained the American GI's in the Far East. That tour led to her first album in 1973, Hanging in There.

Near performed several songs from her recent Speed of Light album. The audience was obviously familiar with them and loved her 'driving the message home' style. Especially popular were "Back Off," "Dancing Bird," "Emma" and "Unity".

When asking for requests, Near was flooded with enthusiastic shouts of song titles. She may not have gotten to them all but attempted with "Mountain," "Fight Back," "Nicoli," "Fire in the Rain" and "No More Genocide."

Several times Near sang and spoke about lesbian and gay rights to the delight of the audience. As well she expressed her views on the six questions on the upcoming Massachusetts referendum and told "nice stories," as she called them, recounting experiences on her recent European tour and the disarmament cause.

Near's band, made up of Adrienne Torf, Carrie Barton and sign language interpreter Susan Freundlich, were splendid. Their occasional vocal assistance added a nice touch to Near's songs.

The rapport between Near and the crowd throughout the evening was one most concert goers dream of. She talked to the crowd and invited their response time and time again and the people loved it.

At the end of the evening and two solid hours of song Near thanked the crowd for coming. It should have been us thanking her for performing.

Suzanne Shanbaum and Nancy Vogl opened for Near. Their compositions ranged from instrumental to fast-paced and political. Included was a moving song by Vogl called "Three Mile Run" about freedom of speech and action in this country prompted by such people as Karen Silkwood. Shanbaum and Vogl will be performing at the Ironhorse in Northampton on Wednesday evening.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers
Holly Near during her powerful performance Sunday night at Smith.

Jaz

SPIRIT WITHIN (ELEKTRA/MUSICIAN)
Red Rodney & Ira Sullivan

By DAVID CHEVAN
Collegian Correspondent

On the liner notes to Spirit Within is a quote from Red Rodney, "This is a computer oriented society where pretty soon we're going to be pushing buttons to get everything. Music has always gone the way society is going, whether we've wanted to let it head that way or not." Despite the faceless computerized direction of current popular music, Red Rodney and Ira Sullivan have chosen a personal route and use their respective flugelhorns to blow some of the hottest straight ahead jazz of the year.

Spirit Within is the latest installment of an on-and-off collaboration between Rodney and Sullivan dating as far back as 1955. Their unique combination of flugelhorns creates some of the nastiest tones to come forth from what usually a mellow sounding instrument.

Spirit Within is not your typical funkified jazz album. It requires a lot from the listener and I doubt someone who prefers their jazz served up by the likes of Chuck Mangione will enjoy this album. Some of the compositions, like "King of France", take a bopped out model melody and turn it into an atonal trade-off between the horns. Believe me, it's not something everyone will find soothing to the ears. Other songs like "Crescent City", get the full speed ahead treatment. I haven't heard music played this quickly since I threw out my Return to Forever albums, but the wild thing about the LP is that, despite its being played entirely without synthesizers or studio gimmicks, it's still good!

Red Rodney and Ira Sullivan have been playing together for decades and their music reflects this. Their jazz is intelligent but still retains that direct from the heart feeling. If you sincerely want to explore some of the current trends in jazz today, this is an album to check out.

Red Rodney and Ira Sullivan, whose new album was just released.

Collegian photos by Tom Kudla
The Valentines (at left) were the big winners in Saturday night's battle of the bands at Southwest. Biz (r.) came in second. Look for a photo essay in the next other voice.

Joel behind The Nylon Curtain

The Nylon Curtain
Billy Joel

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

Billy Joel's musical career has been a series of moves and his latest release, The Nylon Curtain is no exception. After the commercial mishap of his first solo LP, Cold Spring Harbor in 1971, Joel moved to the West Coast and produced the hit LPs Piano Man and Streetlife Serenade. Joel turned the Turnstiles in 1975 and returned home to New York. After the pop success of The Stranger in 1976, came the rockhard street songs of 52nd Street and the fragile Glass Houses. Now, after producing an album of live, re-hashed oldies, fifteen years after his involvement with The Hassles, Joel has moved to Suburbia, USA.

The Nylon Curtain is the story of the typical white collar middle-class worker and life on East St. It's the story of a former Marine and his "soul mates" who'd promised mother they'd write and vowed they'd all "go down together" but eventually said "Goodnight, Saigon." It's "Allentown" where the restlessness was handed down/And it's getting very hard to stay.

But life behind the nylon curtain isn't that bad. There's "Laura" who

Calls me
In the middle of the night
...says
I'm the best friend that She's ever had
How do you
Hang up on someone who
Who needs you that bad?

Although the "Pressure" is overwhelming, our bearded, New York Times reading, upper middle class hero seems to be handling it. He just needs a "little elbow room of my own," he says, and he's o.k.

To quote Joel from "Where's the Orchestra", "I like the scenery." But unlike the rest of the verse that goes:

Even though I have absolutely no
Idea at all
What is being said
Despite the dialogue,

it is very clear what Joel is up to. He's on the move again.

The balladeer of "Piano Man" and the anti-drug satirist of "Captain Jack," the crooner who later put all us "Los Angelenos" into a "New York State of Mind," has recorded an album that has not quite as much verve as "Piano Man" or "Turnstiles," but equals the energy of later works including "The Stranger," and "Songs in the Attic."

With "The Nylon Curtain," Joel has hit America right where it is. In fact, you can say he's recorded eight tracks of conservative, UMC suburbia: including all the "Pressure," "Surprises," and "Room of Our Own." But tell me, Billy, please! How does the ninth track, "Scandanavian Skies," fit behind "The Nylon Curtain?"

Black Affairs

Death Penalty ballot raises many questions

By JAMES R. WILLIAMS
Collegian Correspondent

Capital Punishment is one of the four referendums that will be voted on in the upcoming election on November 2.

The views on capital punishment differ as much as those on abortion and other issues concerning the "right to life." Some people are able to realize both sides of the issue while others vehemently argue against opposing viewpoints.

In this world of escalating crime rates, people are constantly seeking methods to deter criminal acts. Many feel that jails are counter-rehabilitory. They believe that jails "breed" violence. Thus the ex-convict becomes an even more dangerous individual than he/she was prior to entering jail.

Others simply preach that jail is not the correct punishment in cases in which people have been murdered, raped, or severely maimed. This is especially true in the eyes of the relatives and loved ones of such victims.

So what is the answer? Is it capital punishment? Is an "eye for an eye" the correct method? Is it justifiable to say "O.K., seeing how you took the life of another person, which is wrong, ruthless, and intolerable, we must now murder you and this will make us right?"

Put yourself in the place of Stacy Marcowitz's fiancee. Your girlfriend has been murdered by this mass murderer ("The Son of Sam"). You are left blinded in one eye during an incident in which he shot and killed your fiancee. Adding to this catastrophic situation, you witness David Berkowitz singing "Stacey Marcowitz is a whore" repeatedly in the courtroom.

If this was the situation you would probably be inclined to say that you believe that this ruthless and deranged individual should be executed. (Although you probably wouldn't describe him in that manner. Vulgarities would more than likely dominate your response).

Yet many in society feel that you have to "write off" the opinion of this particular man since his would most definitely be formed from the mind of a temporarily mentally unstable individual. Also, his relationship with the victim would lead to a biased response.

But, how should others in society view such a crime? Is capital punishment, in a case such as this, the most effective and just punishment? After all, if people knew that the price of murder was the loss of their own life, wouldn't they be less inclined to engage in such a crime? Could not such a law lessen the incidents of rapes and other detestable crimes?

Studies have shown that capital punishment does, in fact, deter crime. Yet what if an innocent person is executed? Many feel that the death of one innocent person is too high a price to pay.

The arguments are almost endless. Whether right or wrong, capital punishment may be a deterrent but it is not the solution to crime. Election day will provide us with a sample of how people in Massachusetts feel. Let us hope that we make the right decision!

Editorial

THINGS TO DO TODAY

"This reminder is brought to you by your friendly neighborhood yearbook staff."

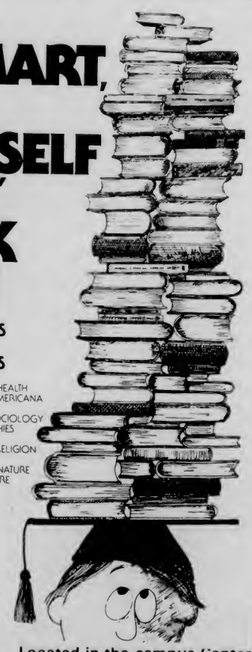
Attention Fall Graduates:
Senior Pictures will be taken the week of November 15
appointments can be made by stopping by Campus Center room 103 or calling 5-2874

THE "BE SMART, BUY YOURSELF SILLY" BOOK SALE!

60-85% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

HISTORY ... PSYCHOLOGY ... HEALTH
SCIENCE ... MUSIC ... ART ... AMERICANA
LITERATURE ... PHILOSOPHY
BUSINESS ... LANGUAGES ... SOCIOLOGY
LAW ... HOW TO ... BIOGRAPHIES
CRAFTS & HOBBIES ... SPORTS
GARDENING ... COOKING ... RELIGION
POLITICS ... MATHEMATICS
REFERENCE ... THE OCCULT ... NATURE
ECONOMICS ... AND LOTS MORE

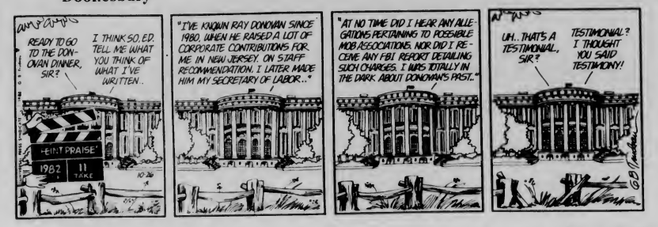
Sale Priced
99¢ to 5.99
Come Early for Best Selection



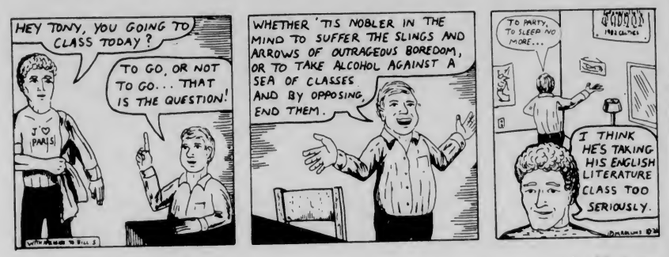
Books are on Special Sale Tables in the Trade Book Department
OPEN M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the campus Center
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau



The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins



Under The Influence by M. Joyce

Bushwa by Tom Cushwa

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Sausage Links/Spiced Apples, Mashed Potatoes
Pizza

DINNER
Barbecued Chicken
Chopped Beefsteak Special

BASICS LUNCH
Spinach Wheat Croquettes/ Mushroom Sauce
Pizza

BASICS DINNER
Mixed Bean Casserole
Barbecued Chicken

Associate News Editor Wanted

The Collegian needs an associate news editor. Become involved in New England's largest college daily newspaper. Some experience in newswriting and reporting is necessary but we provide training. Low pay but great experience. All UMass students are encouraged to apply. Apply before Nov. 5 to Michael Foley, news editor, in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

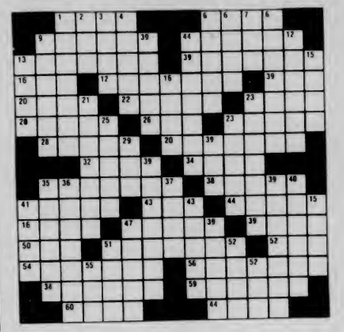
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Ring out
5 Heroic poem
9 Impromptu
11 Whiten
13 Very active
14 Loud and disorderly
16 Frenzied
17 Romberg operetta
19 Native metal
20 London landmark
22 Bernard or Boniface
23 Sleep like ——
24 Stair post
26 Thus far
27 Used up
28 Periwinkle
30 Homesteaders
32 Market of a type
34 Official stamp
35 Intense
38 Uncharted region
41 Voyageur's craft
42 Rocky pinnacle
44 Attain
46 Etching liquid
47 Wardrobe necessities
49 Untailing
50 Took a seat
51 Ear stone
53 Legume
54 Starch
56 Minnie of song
58 Without much effort
59 Runner's problem
60 Of recent vintage
61 Achieve

DOWN
1 Degrade
2 Anglo-Saxon letter
3 Port city of Arabia
4 Laws: Lat
5 Author of "Middlemarch"
6 Mexican farm hand
7 Ancient reed instrument
8 Child's vehicle
9 Traps
10 Not at all
11 English literary family
12 Wyandot Indians
13 Augury
15 Calendar abbr
18 Bearing
21 Shore dinner fare
23 Greek painter of ancient times
25 Manufacturing city of N France
27 Part of a walk-up
29 First or last name
31 Ply the needle
33 Ballet star Dowell
35 Get out
36 First
37 Cat's paw
39 Former crown prince of France
40 Camouflage
41 Judge Timberlane
43 Champagne center of NE France
45 Gain information
47 Inscribed pillar
48 Mine excavation
51 What ——?
52 Book of hours
55 Actuaries' honor Abbr
57 Ranch wagon



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

H	I	S	S		D	E	L	L	A		S	A N D
S	L	I	P		A	R	D	A	I		B	R E
T	E	A	L		R	O	D	S			E	G I S
X	M	A	R	K	S	T	H	E	S	P	O T
		T	A	L			S	U	P
W	O	R	T	H	Y		T	R	I	D	E N T
A	R	I	E	S		A	R	E	A	S		A A F
I	B	A	R		P	R	E	E	N		P	I K E
F	I	T		H	O	T	E	L		P	A	V E D
		P	E	R	E	D		E	N	I	S
		R	A	P		S	T	A	N
T	H	E	R	O	S	E	T	T	A		T	O D
G	R	A	Y		T	I	L	L	E	R		G O O Y
A	I	L	E		S	A	L	E	M		R	I E F
R	I	O	D		E	G	A	D	S		S	R A S

WEATHER

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Mostly sunny today. Mild with high temperatures in the 50s. Warmer Wednesday with highs in the 60s.

WMUA 91.1 FM

6-9am	Oblivion Express with Fern Spierer
9-noon	Hell Comes to Your House with Pauline
12-3	Positive Vibration with The General
3-5:30	Mr. Ted in the Modern Dance Tradition
5:30-6	Newswatch
6-7	UMass Hotline with Bill Stepchew
7-10	Live from Studio B
10-2am	Urban Contemporary with Eliot Andrew
2-6	Classical Reveille with Mike Cevasco

CABLE/VIDEO

UVC & GPC Daily Programming Schedule

The Sublime to the Ridiculous Video

10:30 - 12:00	Abbie Hoffman speaks at UMass
12:00 - 12:30	Scapemates by Ed Bushmiller
12:30 - 2:00	Jorma Kaukonen playing last Halloween

EARTHFOODS MENU

Baked Potatoes with Vegetable Gravy
Tomato Veggie Soup
Carrot Cake
Green Salad

Sports

UM heads to NE tourney

By KELLY GREEN
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Men's water polo club swam their way to a New England championship playoff berth this weekend when they competed in a tournament held at Brown University.

The team's tournament record was two wins and three losses, bringing their season record to 6-7-1 and putting them in fourth place. Fourth now qualified them to compete in the division 1 New England championships.

The first game of the two day tournament was against MIT. UMass was tied with them for third place before the match. MIT scored the winning goal in the last minute of the game.

"We hit the crossbar twice in the last 30 seconds of the game but couldn't get the equalizer," said coach Russ Yarworth.

UMass held Yale and Columbia down in two consecutive games to finish up Saturday's play. The score of the Yale game was UMass 12, Yale 7. This match was their "strongest game of the season," according to Yarworth.

Sunday, UMass faced their toughest opposition, the two top ranked teams in New England, Brown and Harvard. Yarworth decided to play the bench against Brown and save the team's energy to challenge the second place Harvard team. UMass lost to Brown 17-2.

UMass put a great effort into challenging Harvard. Yarworth tried a new strategy and pulled the goalie in the last two minutes of the game. The goalie played defense and the extra man covered Harvard's goalie.

"We pressed all over the pool leaving the goal open and stole the ball to score four times," said Yarworth. Harvard only scored once in this time period.

Even though UMass lost 15-9 to Harvard this was the closest they have come to beating them all season, they are practicing up for the first meet of the championship, November 6 and 7.

Andre LaMontagne gave another excellent performance in the net during the tournament and also did well on defense when he was removed from the goal in the Harvard game. Jack Fuchs was another star of the tournament along with Paul McNeil. They held up the offensive and defensive ends of the team to help UMass gain a chance for the New England title.

★field hockey

Continued from page 12

Forward Sandy Kobel took the stroke that flew up to the upper right of the net, putting UMass on the board 1-0.

Only sixty-two seconds later, UMass made the score 2-0 on an Alison Rioux hit. The score at the half was 2-0.

Only forty-two seconds into the second half, senior Tina Coffin found the UNH net, pushing the ball right past Bolducci, giving UM a 3-0 lead.

The day was not only offensive however. The strong play of defensemen Chris Coughlin, Nancy Goode and Andrea Muccini kept UNH from being successful at the Minutewomen end of the field. The defensive team used a backup system that worked superbly.

Hixon was able to use all her substitutes in this game. Diane Kobel and Caroline Kavanaugh came off the bench and played a high quality game.

The final goal for UMass was made by stickwomen Patty Smith on a penalty flick. Smith took her flick and Bolducci made a beautiful saving dive to prevent a goal. However, she was called for a moving violation and a repeat flick was granted to Smith. This time Smith fired the ball into the net.

"Everybody did a great job. I'm very pleased," said Hixon.

The stickwomen are now 10-2-1 and will play at Dartmouth on Tuesday.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The junior varsity field hockey team defeated Wellesley 1-0 in a very physical double overtime game. The stickwomen from the all girls private school used such tactics as holding, tripping, and hitting so frequently that coach Donna Partin was tempted to bring her team home at half time.

"I have never seen such a physical game in my life," said a disturbed Partin. "The referees did not seem to call a thing."

The first half of the JV game was equally split between the two teams. It was not until the second half that UMass was able to dominate. Nevertheless, dominating the game is not enough, as they were unable to score.

The winning goal came in the second overtime on a corner play. Bunny Forbes put the game away for the Minutewomen.

The JV record now holds at an undefeated 5-0-1. Their next game is Tuesday at Dartmouth, following the varsity game.

Computer Supplies
Disks!!! Special
Control Data Corporation
Single Side, Soft Sector, 100% cert.
Single density 12 for $22.00
Double density 12 for $27.00
15% minimum discount on all items
We have supplies for Apple, Atari, IBM, CP/M
Write for our free catalog
Send check or MO to: Shore's Inc. POB 47 Dept CL Ardmore, PA 19003

North Amherst Tire & Auto
A Full Service Tire Store
POLYESTER BLACKWELL $26.95 Size A78-13 FET $1.59
• COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE • FRONT END ALIGNMENT • BRAKES & SHOCKS
WITH THIS AD
78 SUNDERLAND RD NORTH AMHERST 549-4704

MDI/WORD LINK
Word Processing
. . . 253-9534 . . .
37 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
(above Matthews Shoes)
Resumes & Papers
Consultations & Editing
• Theses • Dissertations
TRY OUR RESUME SERVICES

SAME DAY COLOR PHOTO PROCESSING
FILM IN BY 10:00 AM
BEAUTIFUL COLOR PRINTS
OUT BY 4:00 PM
The Foto Factory
A division of HALLMARK COLOR LABS processors to the professionals
Hours: Mon.–Fri., 8–6 / Sat., 8–Noon
257 TRIANGLE STREET IN AMHERST

RECORD SALE
BUY—SELL—TRADE
Prices below Wholesale
ROCK JAZZ DISCO OLDIES SHOWS WESTERN SWING CLASSICAL PERSONALITIES
-BEATLES · ELVIS- —JETHRO TULL— -SINATRA · ELLINGTON- —GLORIA GAYNOR— -SIMON & GARFUNKEL- —JUDY GARLAND— -EARTH, WIND & FIRE etc.-
TOP CASH PAID
FOR YOUR OLD RECORDS & YOUR PARENTS OLD LP'S
Oct. 25 thru Oct. 29
Hours 10-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

A BAND OR DISC JOCKEY NEEDED?
Rackadisc Professional Entertainment Agency has guaranteed performances for your function 256-0739

AUTO FOR SALE
1971 Ford Torino exc cond $950 or BO call 549-4147
1978 Toyota Corolla SR5 liftback, A/C, cassette A/FM stereo w/graphic, headers excellent gas milage BO 546-4366
1975 Toyota Celica $1300 549-5515

BELLYGRAMS!!
Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza 253-7822

CPR
CPR course offered starts Nov 2nd 7-11 pm if interested sign-up by Oct 30 outside EH + S Office Rm 416N Morrill IV class limit 25, 1st come - 1st serve

FOR RENT
Bedroom with kitchen. All utilities except phone. On bus route - Hadley $45.00 per week call 549-1631 available immediately
Room in Amherst family home $150/mo on busline 549-1536

FOR SALE
MXR 100 phase shifter $65 1-283-7805
Pioneer integrated amp 75 w/ch $145 Akai top of line reel to reel w/autorev $265 6-6954
Woman's large maroon leather jacket with removable hood, good condition, $40.00 call Maria 256-0179
Convertible - 1973 VW new top, snows. AM/FM $3500. 617-544-6555
1980/1981 Jawa Moped. New. Less than 100 miles $299.00 (617) 655-5724 after 6 PM
Hexcel Firelite skis with Salomon 444 $80.00 call Terry 546-7849
Ashley deluxe wood stove takes 24" logs. heats 5-room house $165 549-6025

FOUND
Glasses in 231 Herter on 8/14/82 clear glass. . .silver frames gray ends. . .maroon case. Call Joe 665-4694 after 6:00 PM
Found: gold ladies watch. Call karen at 546-8966

HELP WANTED
Promote Ecology and Consumer Issues, Bottle Bill and Safe Energy. MASSPIRG, the state's largest public interest organization is now hiring full and part time staff for public education & fund raising, will train. $135-$200/week & $160-$225/week. Call Cindy at 256-6434
OVERSEAS JOBS Worldwide selections. Act now. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA/Corona Del Mar, CA 92625
Administrator UMass Recycling Project dependable person sought. Year round. 306 SUB

INSTRUCTION
Math Tutoring 549-6612
Tutor wanted for math 233 oncampus please call collect 0 788-8243

LOST
Silver chain with flower pendant 10/18 very sentimental - reward! Sue 253-7890
Gold bracelet Tobin area reward 546-1407
Long-hair black & white female cat in the general vicinity of intersection of Rt 9 & Univ Drive since beginning of Sept please call 253-7057
3 keys on a gold ring call 546-8869
Tan handbag with gold handles and a blue J.G. Hook blazer Laurie 549-4699

MORE RECORD MANIA!
What to Bruce and Romeo Void have in common? They're both on sale this week at U.R.U.!

MOTORCYCLE
1975 Honda 360CL excellent condition 9000 miles sissy bar $650 or BO call Mike 546-9041
Kawasaki 400 1975 2 stroke good condition must sell $500 or best offer call John 253-7258

PERSONALS
Stick it In your ear!! Free piercing with purchase of studs! Artistically placed -singles tool 14k bracelets $9. Expert repairs Silverscape Designs, Amh. 253-3324
Montreal Trip $99 Oct 29-31 and Nov 5-7, for more info call Nancy & Randi 549-0156
Love ya Max - the women of 1-South Happy Birthday
Sigma Delta Tau Sigma Delta Tau all Univ women are invited to Rush Dinner
Tuesday Oct 26
Wednesday Oct 27
Thursday Oct 28
for more info call 545-0527
Delta Tau Sigma Delta Tau Sigma Delta
Iris & Dan-Congratulations to both of you! May you always be happy. We'll miss ya !! -Women's Cross Country Team
DM - How about hot tubs with a bottle of wine? I'll scrub your back if you'll scrub mine. - Double C
Happy 19th Wendy-O! Hope you have an excellent year! Lynn & Lori
The Dukakis organization is looking for volunteers. If interested please call Barry Salloway 549-5897 or Nancy Gillis 256-0266
Candy Apples are coming!
Oh Lisa, I love you, always and forever
5 college chapter of EMTs will have a meeting at 7 pm this Wednesday Oct 27 in Dickinson Hall - subject: Cardiac Monitors -speaker: Robert Carl NREMT-Paramedic -submitted to OEMS for 3 hrs - election of officers will follow the meeting
Gay and Lesbian Halloween Ball Red Barn - Hampshire College Thursday Oct 28 9-2 am 2.50 admission Five College Welcome for info call 545-0154

RIDE WANTED
Ride desperately needed to Dartmouth College on 10/29. Kris 6-5221

RIDERS WANTED
Driving to Florida Dec 21 to stay for intersession. Need reliable driver to share expenses call 546-5381

ROOM WANTED
Male will share room prefer single 253-5896
Spring semester - quiet older non-trad looking for room or to share rooms will be gone most weekends - not drinker or smoker please call collect: Jim Anderson 413-445-5874

SERVICES
SPEEDY TYPING SERVICE
Professional overnight typing at reasonable rates call Jim at 546-7042

S.D.G.
Happy Birthday San love Louis

SONY VIDEOTAPES
Best video available used ¾ inch tapes, perfect condition. 20 min - $6. 30 min - $8. 60 min - $10. 617-757-3165 or 617-752-3313 after 5

TRAVEL
FREE TRAVEL TO FLORIDA by car. Call Doug 546-8185

WANTED
DRUMMER WANTED- Zeppelin, Rush, etc covers. Rehearsal space available. UMASS Band Call 6-8651.
Immediately - intermediate accounting book call now! Tom at 253-5482
Ride needed for TWO to Northern NJ exit 163 Grdn St Pkway Oct 29th will share exp. and bake cookies! Please call Kate 6-4991, keep trying Ice Hockey Equipment tel 546-1072

WANTED TO BUY
Buying class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

D.V.P. presents:
William Schaufele
former Ambassador to Poland
Speaking on:
"The Crisis In Poland and its Effects On East/West Relations"
TONIGHT
Tuesday, October 26
at 8:00 pm
S.U.B.
FREE

Learn Something New Every Day!
LIVE LIFE IN THE FAST LANE! BECOME involved. LEARN more about UMass, Amherst and the exciting field of journalism.
GET involved in things which affect all our lives. The Collegian needs news reporters — all UMass students are welcome.
WE CAN DO GREAT THINGS BUT WE NEED YOUR HELP.
INTRODUCTORY MEETINGS
7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday
803 Campus Center
For more information, call Brien Sullivan at the Collegian, 545-3500.

Sports

MORE SPORTS ON PAGE 10

Ruggers romp to New England title

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Correspondent

The engraver of the New England Rugby Tournament won't have much trouble enscribing the name of this year's winner, he'll just have to copy the name of last year's champion: the University of Massachusetts.

The A side ruggers made their way to their second straight NERFU championship this past weekend, defeating Harvard in the final on Sunday afternoon, 18-9 at the Boyden fields.

To get to the final round rematch with the Crimson, the A's beat M.I.T. 16-0, Dartmouth 15-6, and defeated a vastly improved Boston University team in the semi-final 7-6. The BU game was undoubtedly one of the best matches of the weekend, with the outcome still uncertain with little time to go.

A Joe Kennedy penalty kick gave UMass its slim one point lead with two minutes to go, but the ruggers couldn't celebrate until BU's Gerry Moro missed a penalty kick of his own with forty seconds to play.

The final was a battle of the classes, Harvard versus UMass. The Harvard players pulled up to the game in Porches and Firebirds, while the UMass men came to the field in heaps and hunks. Many of the Harvard players looked like they had just played someone for a Michelob Light.

The final opened with UMass assuming the role of the oppressors. Boris Kinneen, Dave Laird, Jack Harney and Kevin Connors kept the play down in Harvard territory. UMass jumped ahead 4-0 when Mike DaCampo got control of a loose ball close to the Crimson try line and touched it down to open the scoring.

The UMass lead swelled to eight points on some great passing by George Economou and Kevin Lyons. They got the ball out on the left wing to Bob Clarke who used a head fake and his long legs to get into the end zone.

Harvard had a chance to decompress the lead to five but failed to convert a penalty kick. UMass then looked to erase all thoughts of a Harvard resurgence in the first half with concentrated punishment on the Harvard forwards by Connors and Bill Carroll.

UMass had one more chance to put further distance between themselves and Harvard, but an Economou pass to Steve Foohey was picked off.

The half ended with UMass holding all but one of the aces, Harvard would have to regroup and get some tackling lessons if they were to turn the match around.

Kennedy poured more cement into the Harvard machine with a penalty kick to start the second half, making the score 11-0. Backs Chris Todd and Mike Holmes moved through the open field with the ball while Harvard defenders lunged unsuccessfully for them.

Harvard had to channel all of their energies into stopping the UMass attacks, not generating any thrusts into UMass land. The one flicker of an attack they had was extinguished by fullback Dave Brown.

15-0 was the deficit Harvard was facing after a dazzling Holmes rush ending with Stefan Rutherford grinding in for the score.

Kennedy completed the UMass scoring with his second penalty kick of the game, making the score 18-0. The rubber band of

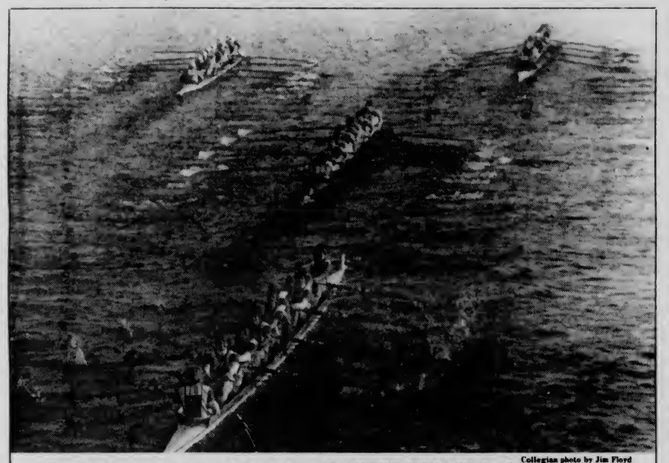
With even the referee looking abit winded from the constant UMass invasion, Harvard decided to dig in.

Harvard got on the board with a penalty kick that seemed to ignite the tempers on both sides. High tackles became the order of the day, and contact included punching. Like the score, Harvard fell behind in injuries when Mike DaCampo retaliated after a cheap shot sending Harvard's captain to the sidelines.

Harvard squeezed the lead down to the final margin of nine points when they scored off a tight ruck when the Crimson's Steve Macks couldn't be slowed down by Brown or Kennedy. The conversion was good and Harvard was breathing, but with diffieulty.

UMass stuck to their game and completed a four game sweep for the victory and the title. Harvard came back and made it interesting, but couldn't push UMass away from the winners circle.

Captain DaCampo described his team as a group that cannot be compared to any other college side.



Collegian photo by Jim Floyd

Four eight oared shells make their way upriver in the Head of the Charles Regatta held Sunday in Boston.

Stickers stick it to UNH, 4-0

By JENNIFER KUPPER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey squads were once again victorious Saturday afternoon as both the JV and varsity teams beat Wellesley College and the University of New Hampshire respectively.

The varsity match, played at NOPE field with a crowd of 200 spectators, was one of the best games UMass has played all season. They defeated UNH 4-0. UMass came out as a powerhouse and never lost their energy, leaving UNH in the dust by two goals at halftime.

"Today they did it all on their own. They needed to do it from within and they went out on the field with an internal spark from the very beginning," said coach Pam Hixon.

The excitement began early on the game. Within five minutes Megan Donnelly fought for a shot, and UNH goalie Robin Bolducci fouled her in order to prevent a goal. This foul led to the first of four penalty strokes of the game. Co-captain Ro Tudryn took the flick and Bolducci made a fine diving save to prevent UMass from scoring — momentarily.

UMass pressured within the circle better than they have all year. Forwards Patty Smith, Tina Coffin and Tish Stevens bombarded the UNH goal over and over. The internal spark that Hixon spokes of was omnipresent in the performance of these players.

At 17:30, the stickers forced another foul in the circle and were awarded another penalty flick.

Continued on page 10

Linksters win tourney

By JIM SAMIA
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's golf team finished one of their most successful seasons in six years this weekend in grand fashion. Led by Marlene Susienka, the Minutewomen won the Mt. Holyoke Invitational Tournament.

Susienka won her third tournament to complete a remarkable triple crown year. She won easily at Mt. Holyoke by 12 strokes. Previously she had won the Yale Invitational and the Eastern AIAW's at Dartmouth. Without question, Marlene was the top women's collegiate golfer in New England.

The Mt. Holyoke Invitational belonged to UMass from the very outset. Susienka won the long driving contest and Judy Guzy won the "nearest to the pin" contest that preceded the tournament.

Behind Susienka's 80 and Guzy's 86, UMass jumped out to a 12 stroke lead on runner-up Dartmouth on the first day.

Coach Leaman was a bit worried that the fabulous opening day for his women golfer would make them relax on the second day. But, to the dismay of the rest of the field this was not to be the case. Susienka shot an 85 to win the tournament. Guzy shot an 88 to finish in second behind her teammate.

Sparked by the fine play of Susienka and Guzy, Nola Eddy shot a 95 on the second day of the tournament enabling UMass to finish with a 23 stroke victory at 727. It was a romp in the truest sense of the word.

Jane Egan came in a tie for sixth.

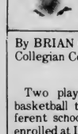
"She made the most improvement on the team," said Leaman. "She was always consistent."

Theresa Collins, teeing off from the number five position shot a 213. Collins, a sophomore, has a bright future ahead of her on Leaman's team.

By winning the Mt. Holyoke Tournament, the Minutewomen won the 1st Ruth Elvedy trophy. Elvedy was a Mt. Holyoke golf coach and was an instrumental force in women's golf in New England.

While many of UMass' fall teams have faltered the Minutewomen golf team quietly put together one of their most satisfying campaigns.

Individually, it was the amazing All-American Marlene Susienka winning the triple crown and putting UMass women's golf on the map again.



Around the collegiate rim with roundball rap

By BRIAN C. MURPHY
Collegian Correspondent

Two players from last year's UMass basketball team have transferred to different schools. Tyrone Whitehead is now enrolled at Long Island University, and Bill Bayno is at Sacred Heart in Connecticut. Both will have to sit out this year.

Two ex-Minutemen will be playing at Springfield College this year. Ty Nedd and Pedro DeLaCruz will both be playing and figure very prominently in the Chief's plans for a big season.

Former Duquesne coach Mike Rice will be coaching at Youngstown State (Ohio). Ricky Tunstall, a 7'0", 235 pound junior who played for Rice at Duquesne will follow him to Youngstown.

Gale Catlett, the coach at West Virginia University, was publically reprimanded by the NCAA for recruiting violations, but no restrictions were placed upon that school.

Wendell Walters of URI will transter to Iona this year. Walters saw limited action for the Rams last year.

It's too bad about the University of San Francisco dropping its basketball program. The school produced some fine basketball talent. Some of the players include Bill Russell, K.C. Jones, Bill Cartwright and of course the wholesome and pure Quentin Dailey.

Reportedly, the administrators at USF had lost total control of the alumni. Some were paying the high school tuitions for some potential recruits, and Wallace Bryant was getting $14 an hour at a job where it didn't matter whether he showed up or not.

Plans are under way for a life sized bronze statue of Ralph Sampson to be placed outside of the Virginia gym. That's 88 inches of pure bronze which will cost about $40,000.

The Boston University basketball team will be hurting this year. The tragic death of Arturo Brown will be devastating and guard Poncho Bingham has flunked out again.

The best part of the college basketball season has got to be Al McGuireisms. The man is a classic.

Have you ripped down any backboards lately?

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 36 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, October 27, 1982

Collegian Photo by Kevin Pachetti

Michael Skowyra, a UMass Physical Plant worker changes a photocell that monitors outside lighting on the side of John Adams dormitory in Southwest.

Discrimination charged in vendors' terminations

By DIANE KADZIS
Collegian Staff

The termination of a student's license to sell flowers on the Campus Center concourse at the University of Massachusetts is stirring controversy between members of the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) and flower vendors amidst a law suit currently facing BOG affiliate.

In a letter issued yesterday by John Furbish, BOG vendor certificate coordinator, Susan Gamer, a junior fashion marketing major, was notified of the revocation of her vending privileges based on "fraudulent actions."

Furbish claims Gamer was in violation of vendor table policies when she allegedly misrepresented the status of her vending classification last week. Furbish said she represented herself as a Priority 6A vendor as opposed to a Priority 6 for the purpose of setting up a table.

Under the Priority 6 category, Campus Center vendors are required to pay a daily fee of $20 to market their "personally made non-craft goods and unique items." Priority 6A vendors must pay a fee of $35 a day to sell their manufactured or non-crafted goods because they have a higher volume of business, Furbish said.

Denying Furbish's allegations against her, Gamer said the BOG and other Campus Center administrators have been "harassing" her since last fall when her license was revoked three times. Gamer said she now plans to take court action to reach a final settlement.

"I have been continuously harassed and I should be patted on the back," said Gamer. "I'm very good at what I do and they (the BOG) don't like that. I'm still here and that's what intimidates the Board of Governors."

With charges of discrimination filed against Furbish last week in Hampshire District Court by Gamer's sister Laura, also a flower vendor whose license was recently revoked, Furbish said he presented Gamer with a detailed description of avenues of appeal open to her in an effort to reach an "orderly resolution of the issue."

The Gamer sisters said they have appealed to the mediation Project, the University Ombudsman, the Student Attorney General and Legal Services in the past year to establish a working relationship with the Board without success. As an alternative, Gamer said she is ready to file suit against Furbish independent of her sister's.

"I'm determined to sell or to have justice. I'll take it as far as I can and if that means court, yes, I'll do it," Gamer said.

Both Laura and Susan Gamer called Furbish's revocation of Gamer's license a "retaliation" of Laura's law suit against him. "I don't know what he thinks he is gaining," Gamer said. "He must have some vindictive thing against me and Laura, but the student body is not benefiting."

Furbish said he does not see how a law suit can settle the lingering dispute because "Laura Gamer's actions are not directed to her rights of appeal and may work to cloud the situation rather than clarify it."

Officially, Susan Gamer has not yet filed claim against Furbish and he said he hopes Gamer will decide to use the appeal process open to her by the BOG.

Glass-blowing artisans find satisfaction in fragile work

By ELLEN M. RYDER
Collegian Correspondent

The glass blowing lab in the basement of the Graduate Research Tower is aflame with blow torches, cluttered with sophisticated glassware of every kind and virtually humming with the sound of creation.

Amidst the spread of machinery and high technology involved in scientific glassblowing, there stands a lone cabinet, aglitter with glass animals, flowers and ornaments.

As if protected from the cold complexities of science, they twinkle behind glass doors, lending warmth to the room.

The Scientific Glassblowing Laboratory operates from the basement of the Graduate Research Center. It is staffed by only Larry William and Gordon Good who make a wide variety of experimental equipment to service the needs of the faculty and graduate students at the University of Massachusetts.

"I've been here for seventeen years and I love it," said Larry William. "We're employed by the graduate school to support the research of the departments. We make all of the custom glasswork apparatus — some of the first of its kind. Usually we make dewars, vacuam systems, diffusion pumps and stills. Not the alcoholic kind," he added.

In addition to supplying the Polymer Science, Chemical Engineering, Chemistry, Food Science and Physics departments at the University, the laboratory makes glassware for institutions across the state. Among its customers are UMass Boston Medical School, UMass Medical School, Worcester and all the schools in the Five College System.

"Over the years you get to know the faculty and the students. People from all over the world come in here to order something specially made," William said.

The equipment in the lab is impressive. Shelves and shelves of glass tubing awaits melting and shaping. A huge, $10,000 stove stands against one wall, still warm from melting the glass. Elaborately designed beakers, stills and tubes fill the counters. An enormous "turning machine," which turns glass to make it evenly spread, graces the middle of the room.

"We start with a piece of glass tubing," said William. "You heat the glass to three thousand degrees or hotter...then you shape it or blow it with air. Sometimes gravity alone will do the work. We only use Borosiliceate (a kind of glass) because it can be reworked many times."

When not creating glassware for scientific use, William crafts what he calls "novelty glassware". He opens the cabinet to display the many fruits of his efforts. Delicately designed flowers, horses, Christmas ornaments, carriages and even a carousel fill the shelf.

"These are things we sell," William said, "although it's not encouraged as part of our job. Sometimes it gets hard because it's a case where everyone wants specially-made glassware. We just don't have the time. There is a vast difference between the artistic and the scientific glassblower, but in both cases, it's got to be right or we won't sell it." The prices on the novelty glassware range from about five to thirty-five dollars, depending on the piece.

William is a member of the American Scientific Glassblower Society, an international society. He estimated that nationally there are 850 members. Of the glassblowing profession, William said that it requires a great deal of skill and patience. Although there are schools that specialize in glassblowing, William favors apprenticeship as the best learning tool.

"You have to learn on the job. If you start working with an experienced glassblower, you will really get the experience. Very few glassblowers are disappointed with their work," he added.

Jewish posters vandalized

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

A barrage of swastikas recently appeared on posters advertising Jewish or Israeli activities on the campus of the University of Massachusetts.

"I consider a swastika a direct attack on my life," said Howard Glantz, who called himself a concerned Jewish student and a member of Students Against Political Distortion.

Doors and posters have been vandalized, said Debbie Propper, western New England coordinator for the America Zionist Youth Foundation. She added the person who drew a swastika on the forehead of holocaust survivor Elie Weisel "knows what he was doing."

"It's disgusting and horrible to put something on Elie Weisel after all he's gone through," the former UMass student and program assistant at Hillel said.

Propper said recent demonstrations by the Organization of Arab Students (OAS) may have influenced action by anti-Semetic students who have previously been silent.

She did not say she believes OAS members are responsible for the swastikas.

They say to themselves "it's OK now, I can draw swastikas because everyone's doing it." she said. "There's more than

Continued on page 12

Photo by Bryan Lashway

Larry Williams, left, and Gordon Good, right, repair a graduated water jacketed column at the glass blowing shop in the cellar of the Graduate Research Center.

World and National News

Texas man on death row entreats life for Halloween

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has been asked to stay the execution of a Texas man condemned to die by lethal injection on Halloween for the cyanide poisoning of his young son eight years ago.

In a petition filed Monday in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, attorneys characterized the condemned man, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, as a dreamer with a peaceful nature.

"There is no evidence that Mr. O'Bryan had a prior criminal record or that he ever committed an act of violence in the past," the petition said.

The attorneys said O'Bryan, who would be the first person in the United States to be executed by lethal injection, had the best interest of his family at heart.

"Mr. O'Bryan admitted to living beyond his means because he wanted his family to live as well as possible," the petition said. "He was a dreamer. He dreamed the very best he could get for himself and his family."

The petition alleged that jurors who might have had reservations about the death penalty were unfairly excluded from O'Bryan's trial panel and that jurors who recommended the death penalty did not give enough consideration to the defendant's peaceful nature.

The appeals court did not indicate when it would rule on the request.

AP Laserphoto

President Ronald Reagan presents the Presidential Medal of Freedom to singer Kate Smith during ceremonies yesterday at the Raleigh, N.C. Civic Center.

Buildup of Syrian arsenals work of USSR, says US

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has rebuilt Syria's ground and air arsenal to a point where it is bigger and better than before Syrian losses in battle with Israel last summer, U.S. intelligence analysts have concluded.

However, the analysts say the Syrian buildup isn't a significant threat to what they term Israel's "military dominance" in the area.

An intelligence report says the Soviets have completed replacement of Syrian losses in tanks, planes, artillery, surface-to-air missiles and other weapons and equipment.

Soviet cargo ships have delivered about 35,000 tons of military gear to Syrian ports since early June and additional tonnage aboard at least eight heavy transport planes, the sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said Monday.

"Overall, the quantity and quality of Syria's arms inventory has increased over prewar levels," said the intelligence report. It gave no specifics.

U.S. military officers stressed that it will take more than new equipment to restore Syria's battered forces to combat effectiveness.

"The Syrians lost trained pilots and tank crews," noted one Pentagon specialist. "It's going to take some time to train their replacements."

According to intelligence analysts, the Soviets have poured billions of dollars worth of military equipment into Syria after previous defeats at the hands of the Israelis, notably in the 1973 Yom Kippur War.

Syria has received some of the most advanced weapons exported by the Soviet Union, including T-72 tanks, MiG-23 jet fighters and SU-22 ground attack planes.

The Soviets also have assigned a large number of advisers to Syrian forces over the years. An Israeli defense ministry report in August claimed there were 2,580 Soviet and East European military advisers in Syria, a larger number than in any other Middle Eastern or African nation.

U.S. military officers tend to credit American-made weapons, such as F-15 and F-16 fighter planes, for much of Israel's success against the Syrians and other Arab countries in past wars.

Gen. Charles A. Gabriel, Air Force chief of staff, emphasized this in a speech in San Bernardino, Calif., last Friday.

Mass. car dealer bails De Lorean

NORWOOD, Mass. — A Massachusetts car dealer said yesterday he has offered to put up $250,000 bail for John De Lorean, saying the auto executive charged with cocaine trafficking "is too talented to sit in a cell."

Ernie Boch, the New England distributor for Subaru, who also sells the $25,000 DeLorean sports car, said he was negotiating with De Lorean's representatives to arrange for collateral for the $250,000 cash bail.

Reports of Boch's involvement in the De Lorean case were published yesterday in the Daily Evening Item of Lynn, Mass.

Boch, 53, said he has talked with D. Lorean's business partner, Roy Nesbett, to arrange for collateral against the loan.

"It's a question of security," he said. "We're asking for some buildings or land or stocks and bonds to hold for the bail. I'm sure nothing would happen, but it's a little too much to ask to give the money without any protection."

The FBI said De Lorean, 57, was arrested last Tuesday in Los Angeles with several kilograms of cocaine. Federal authorities says he was part of a conspiracy to complete a massive cocaine deal which would have provided some $60 million for his faltering auto company.

Leominster pop bottler says yes to bottle bill

LEOMINSTER, Mass. — Fred Steele differs from other Massachusetts bottlers in several ways. He only makes about 500 cases of his soft drinks each week. And he favors the law that would require a deposit on soda bottles.

"I know it drives the big guys cuckoo," says Steele, the owner of Leominster Home Beverages Inc. "But for my money the sooner we get it, the better."

Leominster Home Beverages Inc. has been charging a deposit on its bottles since its founding 30 years ago. In fact, one of Steele's main concerns is that customers won't return bottles, some of which have been used for 40 years or more.

Steele charges a dollar deposit on six large bottles of soda. But he says the figure doesn't cover what it would cost to replace the bottles and wooden case.

"We don't want people to take a case and disappear into the sunset," he says. "If we get folks pulling in with New Hampshire plates, we kind of interrogate them a little bit."

Massachusetts lawmakers passed a law requiring a deposit on soft drink and beer containers in 1981. The law is scheduled to go into effect on Jan. 17. But industry opponents have placed a question on next week's ballot in hopes of repealing the law.

Candidate Frank gets Anderson endorsement

BROOKLINE, Mass. — John Anderson, the former Republican congressman who ran for president as an independent in 1980, urged voters yesterday to support Democrat Barney Frank instead of Republican U.S. Rep. Margaret Heckler in the 4th district.

Anderson, appearing at Frank's congressional campaign headquarters, said the Democrat "exemplifies the kind of rugged independence on the issues that wears neither the bridle of the party nor subservience to one point of view."

Anderson, who received 14 percent of the Massachusetts statewide vote in 1980, noted that he did even better in some of the more liberal communities in the district, which runs from Brookline and Newton down to Attleboro, then southeast to Fall River.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Two students market chemical test kits

WACO, Texas — Two business students at Baylor University are marketing a test kit they say will protect consumers against poison and acid in pain-killers, mouthwash, eyedrops and nasal sprays.

Mark Bower and his roommate, Chuck Watson, got the idea after seven people in the Chicago area were killed by cyanide-spiked capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol, and other over-the-counter health products were found contaminated elsewhere.

Bower said a fraternity brother, who majors in chemistry, helped to develop the kit.

The kit, which sells for $19.95, is "easy to use," he said. It includes chemicals that change color and give off an odor if cyanide or arsenic is present in pain-killing tablets or capsules, Bower said.

Litmus paper is used to discover acid in eyedrops, mouthwashes and nasal sprays, he said.

"The problem was gaining credibility," Bower said. "We are college students and are operating as a mail-order business."

But Bower said inquiries started coming in after the Fort Worth Star-Telegram ran the ad last Friday.

Bower said his employer, Waco motel owner Tom Kuebler, put up the money to market the kit.

"He came to me one night and said if I had some money, he has an excellent product," Keubler said. "I thought it was an excellent idea," Kuebler said.

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

Boston tenters protest Reaganomic policies

BOSTON — A tent city put up on Boston Common to protest President Reagan's economy policies is an expression of free speech, a judge ruled yesterday, rejecting a city request that it be taken down.

The Boston Building Department, represented by attorney Elton Watkins, argued the community groups that set up the tents as part of a nationwide 10-day protest against Reagan didn't get the right permits.

Watkins also claimed the tents were a potential fire and safety hazard and asked Superior Court Judge William Young to order them taken down.

Watkins argued that even though the Association for Community Organization and Reform Now (ACORN) got a permit for the two large tents and 14 pup tents from the city Parks and Recreation Department, building permits also were needed.

ACORN's attorney, Burton Nadler, countered that the largest tent, used for assemblies, had a building permit and that the pup tents were not used by anyone, but were a type of sign to protest Reaganomics.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Brian Sullivan
Copy Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Kevin Fachetti
Composition — Marianne Walsh, Scott Stockwell, Anni Gardner, Gail Tanzer, Adrianne Dufour, Terri Cooper, Marge Hochman, Sheryl Silver, Laurie Frank, Donna Maurice, Janet Buch, Kyle Cooper

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $25 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01002

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Maura Sweeney of Chi Omega gives a group of students and parents from Yorktown, N.Y. a tour of the University campus yesterday.

Tripp to attend senate meeting, accept apology

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Republican candidate for state Senate Jim Tripp, having asked the Undergraduate Student Senate for an apology following its endorsement of his opponent, said he probably will attend tonight's weekly meeting, while some student senators announced plans to make a motion for its retraction.

Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, was endorsed in his re-election bid by the senate at last week's meeting after "senators were apparently misinformed that he (Tripp) had not been on campus before," Senate Speaker Sharon Davies said yesterday.

"It will be announced to the senate that Tripp had in fact been on campus," Davies said in reference to a remark to the contrary made during the debate by Student Government Association President Jim Murphy. Tripp, a 1970 University of Massachusetts graduate and former student senator, claimed "to be slandered" by that and other remarks made at the meeting.

Tripp, who said he had never and still had not been invited to address the senate concerning his candidacy, estimated a 60 percent chance he would attend this evening's meeting in order to answer any questions he felt might arise.

Davies said her decision to make the announcement followed a conversation she had yesterday with Tripp in which he requested an apology. She said while she saw the endorsement of Olver as proper, and would make no apology for it, she had been informed by other senators that they plan to make a motion at the meeting for its retraction.

Murphy, while admitting his statement concerning Tripp's lack of appearances at UMass was inaccurate, said, "The point I was trying to make is still true. He's made no overtures to the University community, and he still hasn't."

Sexual harassment is topic of Campus Center film

By LISA PEDULLA
Collegian Staff

No matter how much sexual harassment is misunderstood, it is always one-sided, unwanted and unwelcomed, according to the film "The Workplace Hustle," shown yesterday in the Campus Center.

The film was a commentary on sexual harassment in the workplace and was narrated by Ed Asner (star of the Lou Grant series).

"Too often men have spoken for women not allowing them to speak for themselves," Asner said. Men and women do not understand sexual harassment in the same way, they see with different eyes and hear with different ears. They need to begin to listen to each other and learn a common language."

Lin Farley, author of Sexual Shakedown, said, "Whenever you find men and women working together in this country today, you will find one of the types of sexual harassment."

Farley said, she was surprised when many of her male friends told her women were going too far when they talked about sexual harassment in the job market. An unidentified woman in the film said women get defensive when they are misunderstood by men. They feel threatened because men are in a position of power over them.

The film was shown as a series of interviews with Farley, skits on sexual harassment, discussion with small groups of women and men on their interpretations of sexual harassment and the documented case of a woman who had been sexually harassed.

Helene Young, a corporate vice president, said she was fired after rejecting her employers sexual advances. Young said she brought the matter to her superior and was told she was a good worker but needed psychiatric help. When "terminated without explanation," it is hard to find work, Young said.

"The office is the hunting ground and the promotion is the bait," Young said.

Eventually Young found employment elsewhere and sued the company she had worked for. They settled on the stipulation that Young would not disclose what she got in the settlement.

Farley said sometimes it seems like men and women are operating in two different working worlds. "I know most men do not want to act like this," she said.

She said verbal harassment also exists and there are two aspects to it: verbal demand and verbally attacking a woman's body.

In a number of surveys Farley said it was noted, 70 percent of the women surveyed think sexual harassment is a serious problem, 70 percent have experienced some type of harassment and 54 percent have quit or been fired from their jobs as a result of sexual harassment.

Law conference hosted by UMass; over 300 attend

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

Promoting legal literacy within the public was the theme of the Seventh Annual Teaching About The Law Conference held by the Massachusetts Association for Law-Related Education at the University of Massachusetts yesterday.

The conference brought together about three hundred people consisting of teachers, students, lawyers, judges and law enforcement officers to participate in over twenty law related seminars with the hope of broadening knowledge and becoming more confident in teaching and cultivating law education in school and throughout society.

Daniel O. Mahoney, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association gave the keynote address stessing the importance of learning that the practice of law is a process based upon the laws and ammendments to the Constitution. Society must be committed to resolving disputes by following this process, he said.

"Our system requires that (the) process be used to settle disputes and people don't understand that," Mahoney said.

Mahoney said that most controversial social issues are problems of process. He cited the proposal for mandated school prayer as an example of this by saying even though the notion that school prayer should occur is shared by many people, including a majority vote in Congress, it is not the right process. Thus when the Supreme Court examined the process they decided to veto the vote of Congress because forcing people to pray violates the First Ammendment (which) legalizes Freedom of Religion and Expression.

"Whatever the result, if it is in accord with the policy it will be so," he said. "We have organized ourselves through the Constitution," he said.

The seminars were presentations and workshops that dealt with different aspects about teaching and learning law, such as demonstrations of successful programs, teaching techniques, new laws and their effects and the use of community resources.

Examples of some of the seminars were mediation, the values of Visiting Courts, the Status of the fourth ammendment, and new laws concerning operating under the influence of alcohol.

Collegian photo by Bradford Hammer

Daniel Mahoney, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, addresses seminar goers in the Campus Center yesterday.

Seminars included one entitled "Before The Bar At Seventeen: A Practical Approach To Mock Trials and Moot Court for Grades 8-12" led by Robert Clayman, a high school teacher and student at the Boston University Law School.

Participants in the seminar had the opportunity to act out a real trial by volunteering to be judges, lawyers, witnesses and everything else down to a clerk.

Clayman said it gives everyone a chance to be involved in a realistic legal process with a positive learning outcome rather than a situation where a law is being implemented because a crime has been committed.

"Our contact with the law is typically negative and high school students never usually have the opportunity to be on the right side of the law. This gets students to think and make decisions and it prepares them for a positive role in society," Clayman said.

Newslines . . .

Notarization of absentee ballots set for today

Students with absentee ballots can have them notarized from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today and tomorrow in Memorial Hall.

Absentee ballots can be used by voters unable to be in the city or town in which they are registered on election day.

Voters must mark their ballots in the presence of a notary public or other approved official and then have the ballot signed. It must be returned to the town or city hall of origin by the close of polls on Nov. 2.

Gnomon coffeehouse to feature music, poetry

A coffeehouse featuring the music and poetry of Ingrid Askew, Tom Juravich, Pat Schneider, Mary Sossong, Eshu Elegba and Don Ogden will be held in support of the Gnomon Copy workers strike at 8 p.m. Friday at the Amherst Unitarian Meetinghouse, 121 N. Pleasant St.

Refreshments will be served and donations are requested.

Nuke referendum question is debate subject

The Public Debate Program will stage a debate on the nuclear freeze referendum question at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Room 163 of the Campus Center.

Four undergraduate members of the UMass debate program will argue the proposition "that a unilateral freeze on the production and development of nuclear weapons system should be adopted."

UMass juniors eligible for gov't scholarships

More than 100 $5,000 scholarships will be offered nationwide to juniors showing promise for a career in government service by the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation.

Two University of Massachusetts applicants will be chosen to compete for the scholarships. Information and application forms are available from Luther Allen 332 Thompson Tower.

Duffey, Murphy address convoction today

The Student Affairs Convocation will be held at 2:30 p.m. today in the Campus Center Auditorium. The theme of the convocation will be versatility, integrity and pride. UMass Chancellor Joseph Duffey and SGA President Jim Murphy will speak on the topics. Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, D. L. Madson urges all students to attend.

Death penalty reinstatement meets grad senators' disapproval

By SEAN CASEY

The Graduate Student Senate last night voted 14-6 with 3 abstentions to express its dissent against reinstating the death penalty, which will be a question on referendum ballots across the state next Tuesday.

The senate issued a statement which cited the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston, the Massachusetts Protestant Church Leaders, and the Roman Catholic Bishops of Massachusetts, all have come out against bringing the death penalty back to massachusetts.

The Senate agrees with the state Supreme Judicial Court ruling that the death penalty is unnacceptably cruel under contemporary standards of decencey and the death penalty is administered with unconstitutional arbitrariness and discrimination.

Although some senators questioned their authority in making a "political" decision on behalf of their constituents, the officers pointed out that the senate was indeed a political organization and had made other political statements in the past.

In other business last night, the senate voted to approve a $325 funding allocation to the Irish Solidarity Committee to help defray the cost of having Irish political activist Brenadette Devlin McAliskey speak at the University yesterday.

HALLOWEEN HEADQUARTERS

Professional Theatrical Make-up

Great Rubber Masks!

clown noses, bald pates, beards scars & warts, crow's feet,
witch's nose & chin sets,
grease crayons, tooth black-out,
spirit gums & adhesives . . .

water soluble clown kits in 2 sizes
. . . one kit does many people!

COLLEGE DRUG

9-9 weekdays/ 9-6 Sat./ 9-3 Sun.

4 MAIN STREET, AMHERST,

Phone 253-2523

No Longer Will Any UMass Student Be Without Credit

Fill out applications for SEARS, G.FOX and WEATHERVANE CREDIT CARDS immediately at no charge to you, and establish for yourself good credit!

Tues, Wed on the CC Concourse
next to the University Store.
Sponsored by the Panhellenic Council.

"Need A Workout?"

Call "TIPS", at 545-1540,
and ask for TAPES-

#2453	Gym Schedules
#2459	Pool Schedules
#2471	Racquetball & Squash Courts' Schedules
#2464	Tennis Court Schedules
#2476	Weight Room Schedules

During these colder months, stay in shape and feel even better.

IDB TIPS

a Service of the Dean of Students Office

More than 75 percent of scholarship monies given to UMass football, basketball players

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

(Editor's note; This is the second of four articles on the athletic scholarship program at the University of Massachusetts.)

Currently, the football and basketball teams at the University of Massachusetts receive over three quarters of the athletic scholarships at the school, while no other men's teams receive scholarships.

Eighty-nine "full" Barber athletic scholarships were granted to University of Massachusetts students athletes this year. Of these, 55 went to football players, 14 to members of the men's basketball team, and the remaining 20 were distributed among five women's programs.

Much of the basis for these priorities is tradition: men's football and basketball are considered "University programs" to be maintained because of a University-wide committment. These two teams also have higher paying attendance and generate more revenue than the other 26 interscholastic athletic teams.

"The University has said it wants a football program," said Frank McInerney, head of the Athletics/Intramurals Department. "They've had one for a hundred years. They built a stadium for one."

To keep a quality football or basketball team, McInerney said, the University must offer athletic scholarships.

"You can't play the game without scholarship aid. It's the only way we can maintain a football program that's competitive in the Yankee Conference. There is no option," said McInerney.

The process of athletic scholarship grants is fairly clear. The coaches for each of the "scholarship" teams talk with McInerney about the needs of the team, and an agreement on the number of scholarships for each team is made.

"I start off by determining how much money we have available," McInerney said. "Then I talk to the coaches. We negotiate, in a sense, and see how many scholarships he absolutely needs to be competitive in the league in which he exists. And we authorize roughly that number."

Football, for example requires 50 to 55 scholarships for the team, McInerney said, and basketball needs thirteen or fourteen. NCAA rules prohibit more than 75 football scholarships in Division 1AA, or more than 15 men's basketball scholarships in Division 1, the divisions the UMass teams are in.

McInerney said he decides, based on a number of factors, how many scholarships each team will get. But he has no absolute control.

Changes can be suggested by "whoever was so inspired," McInerney said. If the proposals come from above him — from the Dean of Athletics, the Chancellor, or the Trustees, for example — McInerney said he would then work to implement them.

McInerney noted that athletic scholarships are necessary in certain sports because other schools offer scholarships.

"If all the other schools that you play go out and can offer something to a football player, then you have to be able to do the same thing or you can't stay competitive in that league," said McInerney.

Yet lacrosse, a non-scholarship sport, had strong attendance and a very successful record — unlike football and basketball — despite the fact that other schools UMass plays, offer lacrosse scholarships. McInerney noted that scholarships are not the only factor.

"There is a wide range of factors that influence a youngster coming to a school," McInerney said. "The academic program, a wide range of offerings, a coach of national reputation, and so on" all influence potential UMass students.

"But in football — you try to generalize, and it doesn't work," said McInerney. "In football, we're in a very, very clear specific business. These are the rules you have to operate by, or you have to change your division, just get out of Division 1AA."

McInerney noted that in lacrosse, the quality of the coach was an important factor, but suggested that as other teams offered more scholarships, UMass's record might change.

"Now, there's a certain amount of flexibility built in there, because we're never going to reject a true blue-chip athlete, someone who has an unusual contribution to make to the University," said McInerney.

Thus, McInerney said, if a student who excels in a sport not normally granted scholarships might be lured to the University, he would try to provide scholarship aid.

Another factor in determining scholarship priorities is federal law. Title IX requirements, according to a 1981 report by the Office of Planning and Budget, would require that 37 women be granted scholarships if 75 men received them, based on sports participation.

"We feel our increase in scholarships to women is much too slow," said Robert O'Connell, Associate Director of Athletics. "Each year we've added a little money to women's sports."

When, in 1974, the women's athletic program was merged with the men's program a number of men's teams were eliminated from scholarship lists and two women's teams were granted scholarships.

"We take the position that men's football and basketball programs are University programs. They provide a service to the University. So those have to be sustained . So we took the money that was made available to the other (men's) teams," said O'Connell.

According to the 1981 Office of Planning and Budget report, based on Athletic Department figures, a goal of 112 scholarships — with 37 for women — is planned. Former Chancellor Henry Koffler suggested in an August 1981 memo to UMass President David Knapp that the department planned to offer 100 scholarships this year, "to achieve gradual implementation of Title IX along with maintaining its current program."

The Barber Fund received its requested $194,000 increase in University funding for the 1982-83 fiscal year, but will grant only 89 full scholarships this year, which reflects an increase in both men's and women's sports.

O'Connell and McInerney both stressed that athletic scholarships are granted on the basis of teams needs. Women's basketball coach Mary Ann Ozdarski agreed, and said she has no problems with the method of scholarship distribution.

"This is my seventh year," said Ozdarski, "and the Athletic Department has just done an outstanding job in recognizing the needs of our program."

BS & MSEE

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
WEDNESDAY,
NOV. 17

Kearfott ideas guide the future.

Our systems guide almost everything that moves...including careers.

Kearfott
a division of The SINGER Company

North Amherst Tire & Auto

A Full Service Tire Store

POLYESTER BLACKWALL $26.95
Size A78-13 FET $1.59

- COMPUTER WHEEL BALANCE
- FRONT END ALIGNMENT
- BRAKES & SHOCKS

WITH THIS AD

78 SUNDERLAND RD. NORTH AMHERST 5494704

BLUE WALL

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. OCT. 28

HAPPY HOUR 3-6

Costume Party with

THE FOOLS

THE FOOLS and THE VALENTINES

The Fools rock 'n' rolled 864,942 people on the Van Halen Tour last year. Now they're ready for you!

Facial Identification Necessary

sponsored by UPC/$3.00 cover

Hypercurricula

WINE CHEESE CONVERSATION HOURS —Come and converse in a relaxed atmosphere with native French and Italian speakers. Everyone welcome! Held twice weekly. 12:00—2:00pm. Third floor lounge Herter Hall.

FRENCH CLUB MEETINGS —This and every Wednesday afternoon. Come and participate in a wide variety of social and cultural events. Five College students encouraged —everyone welcome! No language experience necessary. 4:00pm. Third floor lounge, Herter Hall.

NATURAL FITNESS AND WEIGHT CONTROL —A free introduction is being given by Mental Health Associates. Learn how to improve the way your body looks, feels, and moves, naturally. For information call 549-6362. Sponsored by the T'ai Chi Chuan Club. 8pm room 904 Campus Center.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST WEEKLY MEETING —Come for good fellowship and a continuing series designed to help you grow as a Christian. 6:30, room 109 SBA.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY —Today's topic for theological discussion is: "Freeze Resolution" facilitated by Rev. Phil Ward. 12:15-1:15pm, room 428 Student Union.

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP —A group of women who are challenging traditional ways of experiencing spirituality. A supportive community where women can share, question, and grow toward a new understanding of ourselves. 7:00-9:00pm. Room 428 Student Union.

GENERAL STUDY ABROAD MEETING —An informational meeting with staff of the International Programs Office with students interested in studying abroad. 3:00pm third floor lounge, Herter Hall.

SPRING STUDIES IN ANGERS —Meeting for students interested in participating in studying in Angers, France for the spring semester. French language, literature and civilization courses. Some knowledge of French required. 7:30pm. Third floor Lounge, Herter Hall.

WORKSHOP FOR PSYCHOLOGY MAJORS —The Psychology Advising Office will sponsor a workshop on Resume Writing. The workshop will be conducted by Dr. Floyd Martin of the University Placement Service and will also include information on the job-search process. 4pm, room 204 Tobin.

SEMESTER STUDY IN THE U.K. —The director of "Interstudy Programs" will be available for interested students. 2:00-4:00pm. International Program Office. 239 Whitmore.

RAFIK HALIBI TO SPEAK AT SMITH COLLEGE —Rafik Halabi, an Arab-Druze, will speak on "We and Them — Co-existence". He is a popular and controversial correspondant on the Israeli television network. Open to the public. 7:30pm Browsing Room, Neilsen Lebrary, Smith College.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING —Come dance to the beautiful rhythms! This series is off to an active start. All are welcome. 7:30 beginners, 8:30 all others. Commonwealth room, Student Union.

Housing Exemptions

Frosh, Sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for Spring Semester 1983 should apply.

Spring 1983
Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore

Applications are due no later than Monday, November 1, 1982.

Applications will not be accepted after this date.

Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore

Thank you.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

Dr. Virginia Harper DC
Dr. Howard Ewert DC
CHIROPRACTORS

The Chiropractic X-Ray

If your examination includes an x-ray, there are usually two important reasons why a doctor of chiropractic will do this.

First, we want to be sure there are no complications in your case that might prevent or delay recovery. Using the x-ray picture, we can see if there are any obvious signs of fractures, malformations, or diseases present. This helps the doctors decide whether to accept or refer your case.

If there's nothing present to prevent the results you're seeking, we'll look for the cause of your condition and determine how it can be corrected. Our prime area of search is for misalignments of the spinal vertebrae. Any pressure or irritation to the nerves within the spine or as they leave the spine may cause health problems in other parts of your body, depending where the affected nerves extend.

Through a gentle chiropractic adjustment we can correct the misalignment and remove the nerve pressures and irritations that are causing problems. This can relieve the pain without recourse to drugs or surgery.

RECORD SALE

BUY — SELL — TRADE

Prices below Wholesale

ROCK · JAZZ · DISCO · OLDIES · SWING · CLASSICAL · WESTERN · SHOWS · PERSONALITIES

-BEATLES · ELVIS-
—JETHRO TULL—
-SINATRA · ELLINGTON-
—GLORIA GAYNOR—
-SIMON & GARFUNKEL-
—JUDY GARLAND—
-EARTH, WIND & FIRE etc.-

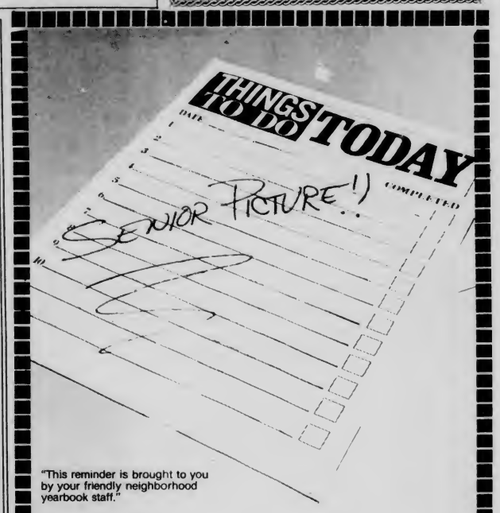
TOP CASH PAID

FOR YOUR OLD RECORDS & YOUR PARENTS OLD LP'S

Oct. 25 thru Oct. 29

Hours 10-4

UNIVERSITY STORE



"This reminder is brought to you by your friendly neighborhood yearbook staff."

Attention Fall Graduates:
Senior Pictures will be taken the week of November 15
appointments can be made by stopping by Campus Center room 103 or calling 5-2874

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Heavy consequences of question 3

The League of Women Voters of Amherst, together with others in the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts, is opposing Referendum Question 3 which if passed would establish binding preconditions for the construction and operation of any new nuclear power plant, low-level radioactive waste disposal facility, and on Massachusetts entry into a regional waste disposal compact. The referendum sponsors included these three different issues in one question. Because of the consequences of this question with respect to low-level radioactive waste sites, we urge defeat of the question.

The League believes that radioactive waste disposal is a complex and serious problem. Even if no new nuclear power plants are built and the existing ones are closed, there still will be low-level radioactive wastes produced. At present, 65 percent of the waste in Massachusetts comes from power plants and 35 percent from industry (pharmaceutical companies, high tech, etc.), institutions (universities), and medical facilities. The production of items as diverse as cancer treatments, luminous dials, and smoke detectors result in low-level radioactive waste.

The League supports Massachusetts' adopting the safest possible approach for the disposal of radioactive wastes. We do not feel that Referendum Question 3 does this. We believe that this referendum will impede the development of an environmentally sound solution to the problem of what do we do with radioactive wastes. It also will subvert the effectiveness of the licensing process, foster impasse, and thereby force the adoption of unsound stop-gap measures.

The recently enacted federal Low-Level Waste Policy Act has made each state responsible for ensuring available disposal capacity for the low-level waste it generates. It also authorizes states to enter into regional disposal compacts to provide regional disposal facilities. After 1986, regional compacts, but not individual states, are empowered to exclude waste generated outside the compact region. In other words, if this referendum succeeds in barring Massachusetts' entry into such a compact (and it is likely to have such a consequence), wastes produced in Massachusetts may not be permitted in the regional site, and institutions and industry will be able to bury waste on-site. (This is permitted under current federal regulations.)

The provisions of this referendum mean that decisions regarding low-level waste sites will be based on a political rather than a deliberative process. It is possible that the electorate would decide to site a facility in a small, politically weak area regardless of environmental concerns because the licensing process designed to protect environmental concerns can be overturned by a referendum.

The League supports an open, orderly decision making process which ensures meaningful public participation at all levels of governmental decision-making. We support a process that fosters comprehensive, coordinated planning, reflects and protects legitimate local and state concerns, and promotes cooperative coordinated decision making at all levels of government. In addition, one hopes that the results of citizen participation will be decisions that are equitable, environmentally sound, and capable of being successfully implemented.

Myrna Hewitt is the president of the League of Women Voters of Amherst

Myrna Hewitt

No to banning of handguns

I noticed with interest the editorial of 13 October, by Mr. Kevin DeLuca, "U.S. Hostage to Handguns." The piece is misleading in several respects, and simply wrong in others.

In 1980 there were 21,860 homicides in the United States. Of these, just over 60 percent (precisely, 62.4 percent) were committed with firearms of any type. Of those committed with firearms, approximately three-quarters were committed with handguns. It is therefore correct that more homicides are committed with handguns than with any other type of weapon. Nonetheless, about 4 in ten do not involve a firearm, and over half do not involve a handgun. The handgun is a relatively frequent, but by no means the common, denominator in U.S. homicides.

James D. Wright

The "obvious conclusion," that if we ban handguns, the murders committed with handguns would not occur, is not at all obvious. One wonders, first, with some 30-40 million handguns presently in private hands in the United States, just how we are going to effect a significant reduction in the numbers of them available for homicidal purposes. I note further: shoulder weapons are already some 3 to 4 times more common than handguns, and virtually all households possessing a handgun also possess one or more shoulder weapons. I note finally a fact certain from the relevant medical literature: attacks with a shoulder weapon are some 4 to 5 times more lethal than attacks with a handgun. If, in the face of a ban on handguns, any significant fraction of the assaults now perpetrated with handguns were perpetrated with shoulder weapons instead, the homicide rate would increase, not decrease.

I take it as self-evident that so long as there are any guns available, people will continue to shoot one another with them. This being the base, one had to wonder whether we would not just as soon they blast away with handguns. The survival rate for handgun wounds in serious locations (above the waist, not in the arms) is on the order of 85 percent. At the ranges in question, attacks with a shotgun, by way of contrast, are nearly always fatal.

The international comparisons cited in the editorial are intrinisically misleading. Japan provides a case in point: as it happens, the non-gun homicide rate in the United States is many times higher than the total homicide rate in Japan. Even if we ignore homicides committed with handguns, the U.S. would remain, relatively speaking, an extraordinarily violent nation compared to the rest of the industrialized West. There is, in other words, obviously much more to the U.S.-Japan difference than the simple fact that we possess more handguns than they do.

Any two nations (or regions, states, counties, cities, whatever) will differ in any number of ways: in culture, history, legal systems, social structure, and so on. This means that in the simple one-to-one comparison, "all else" is assuredly not equal. To attribute the difference in crime rates between two nations to the difference in their gun laws is, in the absence of more thorough analysis, gratuituous.

The NRA is fond of pointing out that New York City, with some of the toughest handgun laws in the United States, also has one of the highest crime rates in the world. Following the general logic of Mr. DeLuca's international comparisons, one would be obliged to conclude from this fact that tough handgun laws cause violent crime(!). The proof that strict handgun laws reduce crime, in short, requires much more than simply pointing to a few nations that have tougher laws and less crime than we have.

Serious and empirically credible studies of the effects of gun laws on criminal violence in the United States show that the crime-reductive effects are, at best, modest, and at worst non-existent. This, of course, is not proof that handgun laws do not work, only a statement that if they do work, no one has yet been able to detect it. In most cases, these negative results have been reported by investigators who were (and often remain) generally sympathetic to stricter firearms laws.

In his concluding paragraph, Mr. DeLuca opines that "handguns serve no useful purpose, they are made expressly for murder." This is demonstrably false: handguns are used in all sorts of legitimate and useful ways, by all sorts of people, more or less all of the time. The best available estimates are that there are some 2.9 million people in the United States who target shoot with handguns, 2.4 million handgun collectors, and 1.6 million people who hunt with handguns. (Handgun hunting has become a sufficiently popular sport that several states have now enacted special handgun hunting seasons.) What Mr. DeLuca meant to say was that he, and perhaps his circle of acquaintances, do not use handguns in any useful way or indulge in any of the various shooting sports that involve handguns. That Mr. DeLuca does not do these things does not imply that they are not done. They are in fact done by millions of people.

James D. Wright is a UMass Professor of Sociology

Letters

Higher education is a criteria in Student Gvt endorsement

To the Editor:

I feel compelled to respond to the Collegian's article (10/22) concerning the Student Senate's endorsement of Senator John Olver, D-Amherst. According to said article, Jim Tripp, the Republican nominee for the Senate seat demanded a "full apology" for the Senate's action due to the fact that "a publicly funded organization should not be making political endorsements," and that certain remarks voiced at the meeting were allegedly slanderous in content.

While I agree that the Senate was somewhat misinformed about Tripp never having been on campus, this error is easily corrected, and was certainly not done with any malicious intent to defame his character (as slander necessarily is). In fact, such a loose definition of slander would include his own defamatory remarks about the Senate leadership "railroading" the endorsement through the supposed "abuse" by the Speaker's position. Indeed, if Tripp had attended the meeting he would have been painfully aware that the discussion on the matter was both lengthy and democratic.

Furthermore, Tripp's assertion that the motion was "engineered by the Olver campaign" is ludicrous at best. Olver has taken a determined position on furthering student interests in the Commonwealth; a rare position amongst many of our legislators. He has worked closely and effectively with the Student Government Association for many years, contributing time to such important issues as the cigarette tax proposal which would provide approximately 28 million dollars in student financial aid. The Senate endorsement was made in recognition of Olver's efforts, in the hope that he would continue such work if re-elected.

Also, while it is true that no money may be used from any trust fund to further any partisan effort, it is clearly appropriate for the Senate to politically endorse a senator who has demonstrated the type of commitment to higher education as Olver has. One of the most important charges of the Public Policy Committee of the Student Senate is to efficiently work with state legislators, and applaud the work of those who assist the S.G.A. There is ample precedent for this passing type of endorsement as a means of ensuring that adequate attention is given to the needs of higher education.

Sharon L. Davies
Student Senate Speaker

UPC guest lists flunk PR

To the Editor:

UPC (Union Program Council) has done it again. I am now convinced that they are a self-serving organization that has no sense of priority. Their first and foremost priority is to this University and its students. To this end I wonder how the press passes or complimentary tickets are given out with regards to student run publications, especially the school yearbook, INDEX. In the past, the INDEX has been accorded two passes to cover UPC events. These two passes allowed for two different approaches and themes to be photographed.

This year, however, UPC has limited the INDEX to one pass citing other non-university publications and a rather large "guest list" as the reasons. As a result the INDEX will have to cut in half the coverage UPC events have normally received in the past. The INDEX regrets this decision, but feels it is the proper one, and will maintain its policy until UPC recognizes its obligations and corrects its position.

Michael Altneu
Editor-in-Chief INDEX 1983

Dining out with the family

Overview of Amherst restaurants on the menu

Amherst eateries cure the DC blues

By CHARISSE E. FEINERMAN
Collegian Staff

It was inevitable. Once a semester I would have to put up with my relatives coming to visit me at school. I kept telling myself that things could be worse; only the problem was I couldn't think of what those worse things were. I finished my last class on Friday and as I was walking back to the dorm an idea sparked in my brain and a smile flashed across my face. I had though of the bright spot to my family's visit: I would be taken out to eat.

When my family arrived, the usual question and answer period ensued, but I let it all slide, as I was so looking forward to the night out to eat. When it came time to decide where we would eat, a great dilemna arose; there were six different people and that meant six different tastes.

Immediately Uncle Charlie (everybody has an Uncle Charlie), put in his two cents worth. "If it would be alright, he started, "I'd like to eat at a place that's fast and convenient." All eyes looked to me, but seeing that I am a junior and had experienced these get-togethers before, I was prepared for the worst.

everyone of the great variety of "fast-food" restaurants that were available to us in the neighboring area. "The Sub in Amherst," I began, "has delicious sandwiches served on foot-long sub rolls or Syrian bread. You'd be able to get the cheese of your choice and a variety of fresh vegetables.

"along those same lines," I continued, "is the Subway in the Hampshire Mall and Northampton. They too serve a variety of foot-long sandwiches. Another popular choice is Bonanza, which has a variety of quality food at reasonable prices. Then, of course, there are the all-time favorites for fast-food, MacDonalds and Burger King. These can be found on Route 9 and even have a drive thru window for convenience.

Everyone seemed impressed with my knowledge of the convenient food places in the area and I even caught a glimpse from my mother, who was wondering whether I spent my time studying or eating. My little brother Gary had been impatient all afternoon and finally came out and told everyone that he wanted to have pizza. Well, with this I would have no problems at all.

"We could go to Papa Gino's which is in the Mountain Farms Mall. They have excellent pizza and Italian food as well. El Greco, in South Amherst, features regular pizza, as well as specialties with such items as brocolli, spinach and black olives, just to name a few. They also have grinders and greek salads if a pizza is not what you are hungry for. Whole Wheat Pizza in Amherst features pizzas on whole wheat dough, which is often a nice change. Other pizza places include Pinnochio's, La Mia, and Superior pizza" I said. Well, Gary was his usual cranky self and just looked at me in an angry way, because I knew the answers to his inquiries.

Aunt Norma, who is always responsible for family arguments, told everyone that she wanted Chinese food. Well, not even aunt Norma could throw me, for I quickly informed her that in Northampton could be found Sze's, which featured delicious Schezuan cuisine.

My little sister Janet is at the age where she has to impress mom and dad, so she decided that French cuisine would be more to her liking and would lend a certain amount of style to her image. I was prepared for Janet and I even derived a certain amount of pleasure from annoying her with an agreeable response.

"Oh that's a great idea, I know just the place," I said. "La Raclette on the Boltwood Walk in Amherst is just the right spot. They feature a nice selection of French cuisine that I'm sure would suit everyone's palate." Janet was angry at my joviality and quickly backed-off.

